WOODROFFE AND AMEER ALIS

LAW OF EVIDENCE

APPLICABLE TO BRITISH INDIA-

FIFTH EDITION

ŧΥ

JOHN GEORGE WOODROFFE

Barrister and acc, a Judge of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William Rengal

ND

FRANK JAMES MATERIN

Barrister-at-Law

CALCUTTA
THACKER, SPINK & CO

LAW OF EVIDENCE

APPLICABLE TO BRITISH INDIA ...

FIFTH EDITION

EY

JOHN GEORGE WOODROFFE

Barrister Desc, a Judge of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Rengal

ANI

FRANK JAMES MATTEW

CALCUTTA TH'ACKER, SPINK & CO

REFACE TO FOURTH EDITION.

attention to several additions and alterations in dition. The Introduction has been re-written and Portions of it, as it appeared in the last edition, such as se dealing with the construction of Codes, have been removed o the Commentary on Civil Procedure which we have in preparation, and which in answer to enquiries we may state will be published on, or shortly after, the publication of the new Code and before it comes into operation. Others have been placed in the text. We have acquired the copyright of the Introduction to the Evidence Act of the late Sir James Fitzjames Stephen and have incorporated it in our own. The critical portion of the latter has been expanded chiefly in two particulars. A much fuller statement has been given of Mr. Whitworth's criticism of Sir J. Stephen's theory of relevancy as embodied in the Act than in the previous editions. Some apology may appear needed for the extensive citations we have made. If so, excuse will be found both in the instructive character of the criticism in Mr. Whitworth's pamphlet as also in the fact that it has been out of print now for some twenty-four years. We have also thought it better to give, for the most part, the criticism i the author's own words rather than as before, a summary ( such criticism of our own. Nextly previous editions thou they referred to, did not, we now think, sufficiently emphasi ... the criticism of the historical school of which Professor Thaver is the chief exponent. The importance of this criticism is the more readily recognized, the greater the experience which is gained in the practical working of the Act.

Similarly, matters have been withdrawn from, and added to the text. The portions withdrawn are those referred to in the preface to the last edition, and have been embodied e Authors Civil Procedure Code. Their place has new matter bearing strictly on the Law of Evidence. Amongst the text-books laid under contribution for this matter we wish particularly to indicate the recent work of Professor J. H. Wigmore (Treatise on Evidence: An Encyclopedia of Statutes and cases up to March 1904, 4 vols., Canadian Edition containing English cases), a valuable and exhaustive book written in an original and modern spirit and thus free of what Bentham calls: "grimgribber nonsensucal reasons" for the rules of evidence.

The commentary has throughout been thoroughly revised and in part re-written. New cases have been noted up to the end of last year. In some instances either these cases or further consideration have necessitated a change in the Authors' views. We may here note for example some of the more important changes and additions to which we have referred.

The question of the admissibility of judgments under section 13 has been again reconsidered by Geidt, J., in a careful opinion [Abinash Chandra v. Paresh Nath, 9 C. W. N., 402 (1904), I which is helpful to dispel some of the obscurity in which the question was left by the judgment in Tepu Khan v. Rajoni Mohun, 2 C. W. N., 501 (1898). The views of Geidt. J., constitute a sound re-action from the loose notion that any judgment may go in "for what it is worth" for which in our opinion no sanction can be found in the decisions of the Judicial Committee. The opinion however expressed by the learned Judge in the first mentioned case that the judgment in Bhitto Kunwar v. Kesho Pershad, 2 I. A., 10 (1897), was admitted by the Privy Council under section 42, is incorrect as will appear from the judgment of the Subordinate Judge in . that case which we have been able to obtain through the courtesy of the Chief Justice of the Allahabad High Court, and which has been reprinted in the Appendix. The commentary on this section has been re-written and enlarged upon this point.

The important question as to the admissibility of evidence of conduct under section 92 has again come under consideration in several recent cases and has been dealt with at length in the commentary, and at p. 481* we have stated what appears to us to be the true rule on the subject which has been more recently dealt with in an article in Nos. 20 & 21 of the Bombay Law Reporter of last year. As further supporting the view-there expressed the following cases in the Addenda should be referred to:—Keshavarao Bhagwant v. Ray Pandu, 8 Bom. L. R., 287; Maung Bin v. Ma Hlaing, 3 L. B. R., 100 F. B. In Ram Sarup v. Allah Rakha, 107 P. L. R., 1905, evidence appears to have been allowed. The grounds on which the Privy Council proceeded in Ismail Mussagee v. Hafiz Boo. 10 C. W. N., 570, are not clear, but the decision apparently rested on a construction of the document.

Considerable additions on the subject of estoppel have been made to section 115, and we have thought it necessary to expand our observations on the nature and limits of cross-examination, a power which is sometimes abused.

Other alterations and additions will be found in their respective places in the text.

The reported cases in the text and Addenda are noted up to the end of 1906. For the summary of decisions in the Addenda taken from the L. B. R., N. R., P. L. R., & O. C., which we have not previously cited, we are indebted to Mr. Sanjiva Row's excellent Digest. The excessive bulk of the Addenda is both recognized and regretted. It is due to an unfortunate accident which prevented for some months the printing off of the book after the whole of it had been set in type. As is, however, often the case with reported decisions in this country, a large number of those cited in the Addenda, scarcely do more, in their favourable results, than freshen knowledge, either by recalling what has been previously said by other judges, or by restating in ampler form the concise definition of the Legislature. Such cases therefore while they add to, do not alter the text. With a few exceptions we have not drawn afresh on American caselaw. A very proper tendency now prevails to restrict any excessive citation from this source. (See In re Missouri Steamship Co., 42 Ch. D., 321, 330, 331.)

While recourse to it doubtless not infrequently serves a purpose more useful than a mere display of learning, yet most will we think judge the sensible freedom of modern English practice to be (particularly in this country) of better example than the technicality which is not uncommonly to be found in the trials of cases by the American Courts. The few American decisions therefore which have been added are those only which have been selected by Prol. Wigmore in support or illustration of such portions of his exposition of the law as have been quoted in this work. It is instructive in this connection to note how few are the cases on evidence in the English Law Reports of recent years as compared with the past. This circumstance is due to the growing sense of the inutility of many objections to evidence and to a desire to free all judicial enquiry of anything which, without sound and certain justification, may baulk or hinder it. The dictum of the Judicial Committee in American-188a Khatoon v. Abedoonissa Khatoon, 23 W. R., 208, 209, now represents also the views of other English Courts. It may, however, be necessary to add that a proper interpretation and liberal application of the law is not the same thing as the abrogation of it

In the Appendix we have at request restored the Proceedings in Council prior to the passing of the Bill, which appeared in the first two editions but were omitted in the last. We agree that these proceedings will be generally considered useful as they and the Introduction of Sir James F. Stephen, here reprinted, form a complete explanation of the Act by its chief framer and others who approved of, and were responsible for it.

14th March, 1907.

A. A. J. G. W.

PREFACE TO THIRD EDITION.

Though but a comparatively short time has elapsed since the publication of the Second Edition, a considerable number of cases of importance have been decided during that period which have been incorporated in the text. The additions made are, however, not limited to these. Former editions contained generally speaking, only those Indian cases which are in the Weekly Reporter, Bengal Law Reports, Calcutta Law Reports. Calcutta Weekly Notes and the Authorized Law Reports The present edition includes also cases reported in the Madras Law Journal, the Bombay Law Reporter and the Allahabad Law Journal. Further, not merely has the whole work been revised and brought up to date, but portions have been re-written such as amongst others, the matter relating to Brokers' Books and Notes in the Commentary to section 91, and other portions are entirely new, of which the Commentary at pp. 254-263 dealing with the important and recurring question as to the party on whom the onus lies of proving the voluntary character of a confession, may be taken as an example. The inclusion of all this new matter, and the desire on the Authors' part to limit an already bulky work as much as possible to its strict subject have necessitated the exclusion of certain matters appearing in the last from the present editions. They are, moreover, of opinion that the Appendices in last editions reproducing former legislation and the Debates in Council upon the Evidence Act Bill have been sufficiently circulated, at any rate for the present. Some other Appendices which dealt with Civil Procedure are strictly foreign to, though connected with some of, the matters treated by this Act. There still remains much in the text itself which is open to the same comment and which therefore appears in this edition for the last time. Such of this and of the matter already removed which relates to Civil Procedure will

PREFACE TO SECOND EDITION.

The present edition has been revised throughout. The text and addenda contain all decisions reported up to the present month. Portions of the book have been re-written, such as amongst others, the notes to sections 13, 44, 45—47, 92 and 110. Other portions which appeared in the former edition in the text have been placed in the Appendix, such as those dealing with Discovery, Evidence on Commission, Res Judicato, Stamps, Registration, Oaths, Bankers' Books and others. The matters therein treated are the subject of other Acts and, with a view to facilitate reference, an endeavour has been made in the present edition to limit the notes in the body of the work to an exposition of the law contained in the sections to which they are appended.

CALCUTTA,
31st August, 1902.

A. A. J. G. W.

PREFACE TO FIRST EDITION.

In the preparation of this Commentary on the Indian Evidence Act the Authors have striven to meet the wants, both of the profession and of students, believing that a work framed merely for the use of one of these classes will prove unsuited to the needs of the other. Much that must be set out for those who have little or no knowledge of the subject, is superfluous to the professional reader: while the close and elaborate detail which the practising lawyer requires is not only useless, but often a source of confusion, to the beginner. The novel scheme of this work, which is designed to satisfy the wants of both classes of readers, demands a few words of explanation.

The Act is divided into three Parts and eleven Chapters. Each Part and Chapter is preceded by an Introduction dealing with its subject-matter. The Introduction prefixed to the Parts or main divisions of the Act are more general in character and broader in treatment than those which precede the Chapters: while these again exhibit less detail than is found in the notes appended to the sections. Elementary notions are explained and a general, and sometimes historical, survey of the subject of the sections is given in the several Introductions which also contain references to matters akin to, but not part of, the actual material of the Act. While these Introductions will, as the Authors hope, be of aid to students, the separation of their subject-matter from the commentary to which alone the profession will in general refer, should spare the practitioner in search of decisions bearing directly upon the meaning of the sections unnecessary reading. A short paragraph immediately follows each section presenting with all possible brever, and principle upon which it is founded and has been enacted it. paragraph is succeeded by a note of cognate section , hely m turn is followed by a collection of reference, to said '

English, American, or Indian text-books dealing with the material of the section. The Authors are indebted in part for the idea of this arrangement to the recent work by Mr. S. L. Phipson on the Law of Evidence (London, 1892). Next comes the Commentary proper on the section which elucidates its important words and phrases by the aid of the case-law and text-books.

The work as thus finished departs in many respects from the original and advertised plan of its Authors. At the outset they proposed to write a short Commentary for the use of the profession only and to collect therein the provisions of all other Acts on the Indian Statute-book which touch upon this branch of the law. They, however, realised in the course of their task that though a book so planned might be of assistance to members of the profession practising in the Presidency Towns with large libraries available for reference, it would yet be of little use to others in the mofussil. The attempt to serve a wider circle of readers has entailed a large increase in the bulk of the work he ond the limits originally proposed, while the length of time consumed in its preparation in its modified form has prevented the inclusion of that complete collection of provisions of other Acts hearing upon this branch of the law to which allusion has been made. The more important of these provisions (taken from more than a hundred Acts and Regulations) will, however, be found in the Commentary and, should another edition be called for, the Authors hope to make it complete in this respect. At the instance of several correspondents the Authors have republished a full record of the proceedings in Council and of the Law Commissioners relative to the preparation of this Act; as also the text of the preceding Act (II of 1855) with reference to the provisions of which many of the decisions here cited were decided. The full Index which closes the book will, it is hoped, notwithstanding the increased bulk of the work, render the search for references both easy and expeditious,

The authors desire to acknowledge the assistance they derived from the standard works on the Law of Evidence ! 1 in this country, in England, and in America. In especial, much aid has been gained from the American textbooks, amongst which are perhaps the most valuable and scientific works on this branch of the law. The Law of Evidence as it obtains in the Courts of the United States is founded upon the English Law and is in nearly every respect identical with the law which prevails in England and in this country; and though it is not of binding authority upon Indian Judges, yet the decisions of those Courts are as Lord Chief Justice Cockburn said in England (Scaramanga v. Stamp, L. R., 5 C. P. D., 295, 303), and Sir Lawrence Peel observed in this country (Braddon v. Abbot, Tailor and Bell's Reports, 342, 359, 360; Malcolm v. Smith, ib., 283, 288), of great value to a correct determination of questions for which our own or the English law offers no solution.* Following the Table of Cases cited is printed a Bibliography, the first published, of works upon the Law of Evidence. References in the text to any of these works are to the last editions, unless where otherwise expressly stated. Every effort has been made to collect the whole of the Indian case-law touching the subject of evidence. The decisions reported during the progress of this work through the press (up to and including the month of December 1897) are collected in the Addenda.

CALCUTTA, March, 1898. A. A. J. G. W.

. But see also observations in Preface to the Fourth Edition.

CONTENTS.

1	FABLE OF CONTEXTS FABLE OF CASES CIT SIBLIOGRAPHY OF TE NTRODUCTION	CED			ACT 	xvii- xxui-la lxxxiv-	ixxi 70x-
	THE I	NDIA	N EVID	ENCE .	ACT.
			PART 1
		RELEV	ANCY OF FA	CTS
			ANOL OL IA	010
		CI	HAPTER	t
		P	RELIMINARY.
			•				,var
	PREAMBLE		• • • •	• • •		99-	-10
ECTI 1	ons Short title	)
	Extent Commencement of Act	ì	• • • •	•••	•••	•••	10
2.	Repeal of enactments	,				106-	-10
3	Interpretation-clause		• • •			107-	-119
4	"May presume"		•••	•••	• • •	•••	119
	"Shall presume"   "Conclusive proof"		•••	•••	•••	•••	111
		c	HAPTER II.				•
	O	THE R	ELEVANCY OF	FACTS			123
5.	Evidence may be given o	of facts in	issue and rel	evant facts			123
6	Relevancy of facts formi	ng part c	f same transac	tion		•••	132
7.	Facts which are the occas	ion, caus	e or effect of fa	cts in issue	• • •	•••	134
8 9.	Motive, preparation and				•••	•••	138
10.	Facts necessary to expla Things said or done by c				n design	•••	149 153
iĭ.	When facts not otherwis	e relevar	t become rele	rant	u design		153
12.	In suits for damages, fa	ets tend	ng to enable	Court to
	are relevant	•••			•••		160
13.	The service of the sum of		im nc4	·		• • •	161
14. 15.		•					187
16.						•••	20:
	• •		ADMISSIONS	•			209
17.	Admission defined	·	ADMISSIONS	•••	•••	•••	219
18.		entative	character;			219-

xviii contents.

SECTI				AUL
19.	Admissions by persons whose position must be proved as a	gainst pa	rty to	22
20.	Admissions by persons expressly referred to by party to suit		::	22
21	Admissions by persons raper by transparent	beh:	alf	24
21 22				24
23.				24
24.		relev	ant in 249	-256
23	criminal proceeding Confession made to a police-officer not to be proved	• • • •		-234 265
26	Confession by accused while in custody of police not to be	nroved a	gainst	-0.
10	him			26
27.	How much of information received from accused may be prov-	ed		263
28.	Confession made after removal of impression caused by ind	lucement,	threat
29	or promise, relevant  Confession otherwise relevant not to become irrelevant bee			27:
29	of secrecy, &c	ause or p	romise	276
30.	Consideration of proved confession affecting person making	it and	others	-11
	jointly under trial for same offence	•••		278
31.	Admissions not conclusive proof, but may estop .			290
	STATEMENTS BY PERSONS WHO CANNOT BE CALLED 48 WI	TNESSES		293
32.	Cases in which statement of relevant fact by person who is	) dead or cannot be found, &c , 13 relevant	1
	When it relates to cause of death;	Į.
	or is made in course of business; or against interest of maker;	i or gives opinion as to public right or custom, or matters	1
	of general interest,	7	297.	-209
	or relates to existence of relationship	( or is made in will or deed relating to family affairs, or in document relating to transaction mentioned in	1
	section 13, clause (a)	1
	or is made by several persons, and expresses feelings	)
	relevant to matter in question	}
33.	Relevancy of certain evidence for proving in subsequent truth of facts therein stated	proceeding
	track or more majorit stated	••	328	-320
	STATEMENTS MADE UNDER SPECIAL CIRCUMSTANCE			340
34.	1' 4 Lanks -f4 ! .	.,	•••
35.			• • • •	341
36.				356
37.	or notifications	n certair	Acts
38,		• •	• • •	363
	,		•	365
	HOW MUCH OF A SPATEMENT IS TO BE PROVED			367
39,	What evidence to be given when etatament form		•••	307 document, book or series of letters or papers	a conversa	ttion,	367
				50,
	JUDGMENTS OF COURTS OF JUSTICE WHEN RELE	V t v/m		369
40	Previous judgment relevant to have a second		•
41		•••	• • •	371 376
42	mentioned in cost on 41	than thos	e ·	.,,,
43	Judgments, &c , other than those mentioned in continue		• •	381
	relevant rectioned in sections 1	0 to 42,	when	384
44	<ul> <li>Fraud or collusion in obtaining judgment, or incompetency be proved</li> </ul>	of Court	mar	204
		•••		389
		•••		389
,.	OPINIONS OF THIRD PERSONS, WHEN PETER AND
4:	OPINIONS OF THIRD PERSONS, WHEN RELEVANT		 	397
40	OPINIONS OF THIRD PERSONS, WHEN RELEVANT		•••
46	OPINIONS OF THIRD PERSONS, WHEN RELEVANT			397 401

Sections.					1	AUE.
	n on relationship, when i		•••	•••		-422
51. Groun	ds of opinion, when rele-	rant	•••	•••	•••	424
	CHARACTER, WHE	N RELEVANT		•••	•••	426
52 In civ	il cases character to prove	conduct impute	d irrelevani			427
53 In crit	minal cases, previous good	1 character relev	ant	• • • •		428 428
	ous bad character not rele eter as affecting damage		eluà	•••	• • •	433
or. Chara	cter in miceting diminge		•••	•••	•••	40,
		PART II
		ON PROOF	•			437
		•
		CHAPTER III.
	FACTS WHIT	LH NEED NOT BE	PROVED	• • •	• • •	440
56. Facts	judicially noticeable need	not be proved				441
57 Facts	of which Court must tak	e judicial notice			442-	-444
58 Facts	admitted need not be pr	oved	• • •	5		452
	-
		CHAPTER IV.
	Or	ORAL EVIDENCE		•••		457
		WHILE THE PROPERTY			•••
59. Proof 60. Oral	of facts by oral evidence evidence must be direct	• •	•••		•••	462 463
oo. Oral	evidence mane in ancer	•••	•••	•••	•••	100
		CHAPTER V.
	Or Doo	UMENTARY EVID	ENCE	•••		469
61. Proof	f of contents of document					472
b2 Prim	ary evidence				• :::	472
63 Secon	ndare evidence			•••		473
	f _f 1 you out- 1	er lanes			11	47H
65		•	•	•	479-	4'4
67.				٠,	or writ-	4 1
	ten document produced f of execution of document	 .				4115
68. Proc 69 Proc	f of execution of document f where no attesting withe	required by law				204
	ission of execution by par		cument			- 11
	f when attesting witness of	lenies the executi	ion	•••		- 7
72. Proo	f of document not required	l by law to be att	ested	. • • •		14
73. Com	parison of signature, write	ng or seal with of	thers admitt	ed or provi	d 500
	Public	DOCUMENTS
74. Publ	ic documents	•••	• • •		1
75 Pm	ate documents
76. Cert 77 Proc	ified copies of public docu- if of documents by produc	ments	onics	•••
78. Proc	f of other official docume	nts	opies ,	•
	Parsi merios	AS TO DECEMEN	T*
79. Pre-	umption as to genuineness			_
Mr. 120-	umptem as to documents	husparery we neces	d of environ

81	Presumption as to gazettes, newspapers, person newspapers,	529
	other documents  Presumption as to document admissible in England without proof	of seal
8		000
_	or signature nt	536
8	pressure -	538
8		538
8		540-511
8		542
8		542543
8	•	543544
9		544 — 545
	_
	CHAPTER VI
	OF THE EXCLUSION OF ORAL BY DOCUMPATARY EVIDENCE	. 551
9	Evidence of terms of contracts, grants and other dispositions of	property
;	reduced to form of 2.	556557
		571572
-	i.	608
- 1		613
	it it even to existing facts	. 614
	Evidence as to application of language which can apply to one only	of several persons  Evidence as to application of language to one of two sets of feets to	614615
	of which the a pole	, 615
	of which the	620
		625
1	•	626
	PART III
	Decorroller tith profess of property
	PRODUCTION AND EFFECT OF EVIDENCE	627
	CHAPTER VII
	OF THE BURDES OF PROOF	629
	Burden of proof	632
		632
		632
		676 678 or on anye with
	The second control of	681
	Burden of proving that person is alive who has not been heard of	for seven years Burden of proof as to relationship in the cases of partners, land	ilord and tenant, principal and agent	683
	), Burden of proof as to ownership	684
	I. Proof of good faith in transactions where one party is in relation	of active eonlidence Birth during marriage conclusive proof of legitimacy	694
	2 Proof of cataion of turn-tons	704—703
	4 Court may presume existence of certain facts
		705
	CHAPTER VIII.
	Estopezi
	5 Externel	746
	6. Estoppel of tenant	756
	and of license of person in possession	784
	7. Estoppel of acceptor of bill of exchange, bailes or licenses	794

contents. · xxi

PAGE.

		OF WITNESS	*4			798
118	Who may testify					880
119	Dumb witnesses					803
120	Parties to civil suit and their w	ives or husba	nds; }			803
	Husband or wife of person under	enminal tria	l j	• • • •	••
121	Judges and Magistrates			• • •		805
122	Communications during maring	٠.:				807
123	Evidence as to affairs of State			• • •		809
124	Official communications				*::-	809
125	Information as to commission of	1 offences		• •		-811 -812
126 127	Professional communications					813
128	Section 126 to apply to interpre Privilege not waived by volunt	ters, at		••	• • •	813
129	Confidential communications wi	th local advis				813
130	Production of title-deeds of with	es not a nart		• • •	•••	822
131	Production of documents which	another re	y	g nossession.	filuos
-0.	refuse to produce .	, another je		8 Porter and	•••	822
132	Witness not excused from ansi	ลอบทย on ยบ	ound that a	nswer will crim	inate
	Proviso	•••	••		• • •	825
133	Accomplice	• • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • •	• • •	: ·		827
134	Proviso Accomplice Number of witnesses					835
			_
		CHAPTER	X.
	Or THE	EXAMINATION	OF WITNES	114		838
135	Order of production and examin	ation of witne	4464			845
136	Judge to decide as to admissibil	ity of evidence	٠			845
137	Examination-in-chief	٠.			}
	Cross-examinations			•••		848
	Re-examination	• •		•••
138	Order of examinations	:		•••	••••	848
100	Direction of re-examination			•••	)	862
139. 140	Cross-examination of person call Witnesses to character	en to produce	a document		• • • •	863
141	Landing questions			•••		863
142.	Leading questions When they must not be asked When they may be asked Evidence as to matters in write	••	•••			863
143.	When they may be asked		:.:			863
144	Evidence as to matters in writi	ng	•••	•••	•••	868
145.	Cross-examination as to previou	s statements 1	n writing			869
146	Questions lawful in cross-exam	ination				872
147	When witness to be compelled t Court to decide when question	o auswer				872
148	Court to decide when question	shall be a-ke	d and whe	n witness comp	elled
	Question not to be asked without		rounds	• • • •	872-
149	Question not to be asked withou	it reasonable g	rounds	nishans massas		875
150.	Procedure of Court in case of	n question o	enig asked	without leaves		876
151.	Indepent and sevadalous uparts		•••			876
152	grounds Indecent and scandalous questio Questions intended to insult or	annov	•••			876
153.	Exclusion of evidence to contrac Question by party to his own wi	lict answers to	questions to	sting veracity	•••	877
154.	Question by party to his own wa	tness -				880
155					884-
156.	Questions tending to corroborate	e evidence of r	elevant fact	admissible		891
157	Former statements of witness i	nay be proved	to correbe	rate later testir	nony	en a
	as to same fact					892
159	What matters may be proved i	n connection	with proved	statement Pele	Ant	895
150,	under section 32 or 33 Refreshing memors	•••	•••	<sub>1</sub>	•••
	When witness may use copy of d	locument to re	fresh memor	v :::}	895-	-896
160,	Testimony to facts stated in doc	ument mentio	ned in section	n 159		895
161.	Right of adverse party as to wri	ting used to re	fresh memo	у	•••	896
162.	Production of documents			• •••	,	901
	Translation of documents				1

CHAPTER IX

SECTIONS.

Y	v	1	i.

GENERAL INDEX

CONTENTS

SECT	IONS.						Pag.
163	n		11-1/1				907
164.							008
165.							909
166						•••	918
		_
		CH.	APTER XI
	Or Impropi	R Admissio	n and Redi	CTION OF	EVIDENCE		916
167.	No new trial for improp	er admission	or rejection	of eviden	e		918
			-			• • • •
		-
	SCE	EDULE—I	EN ACTAIENTS	REPEALE	,
		_
		Al	PPENDIX
	(A) Places to which the	Ant has bee	n applied
	(AA) Law Commissioners	Report	a appared		••		938
	(B) Stamps	ite post		•	•		1—983 1—988
	(C) Registration	.,			•		991
	(D) Indian Oaths Act		-				-094
	(E) Bankers' Books			• •			-936
	(F) Appendix to s 13						000

1001-1048

TABLE OF CASES CITED.

PACE	Page.
A	AdmrGenl. of Bengal v Prem Lall 101, 626
Aba r Sonabai	Admr -Genl. of Madras r. Ananda
Abqi Annap e. Luxman Tukaram 587	Chan 731
Abbas Ali e Ghulam Muhammed 165	Adrishappa v. Gurushidappa 644
Abbey r. Hill 205, 207	Adurmoni Devi r. Chowdhry Sib-
Abbott r Hendricks 591	namın 657
Abbott t Massie . 611, 625	Adu Shikdar v R. 117, 262, 263, 268,
Abdool Ah a Abdoor Rahman 499	269, 270, 271, 273, 274
Abdool Alı Kurrumnıssa 696	Afzul-un missa r. Tej Ban 984
Abdul Ali r Rai Chandra Das . 71	Agace Ex perte 233
Abdul Azız v Ebrahım . 314	Agar, H. W., In the goods of 535
Abdul Hamid v Kiran Chandra 359, 360	Agarehand Gumanchand t Rakma
Abdul Hossem t C A Furner 645, 646	Hanmant 767, 769
Abdul Karım t R 260, 830, 833, 834	Agassız t. London Tram Co 143, 226
Abdul Karım e Manji Hansrai 719	Aga Syud v Hajee Jackariah 624,
Abdul Karun : Sahmun 502, 503,	634, 635, 659
506, 641	Aghore Nath e. Radhica Pershad 386,
Abdul Mand / Amolak 670	388, 667
Abdulla Paru a Gannibai 306, 499	Agheree Ram t. Ramolee Sahoo 647
Abdul Rahim t Madhavrao Apaji 714	Agraval Singh v. Foujdar Singh .: 774
Abdul Rahman r. Mahomed Azım., 640	Ahmedbhoy v Vulcebhoy 377, 390,
Aldul Rasak r Aga Mahomed 422 731	392, 393, 395, 396
Abed Ah v Moheshur Buksh ,, 723	Ahmed Yar v. Secretary of State for
Abmash Chandra + Paresh Nath 126,	India in Council 769
173, 177, 178, 369, 386	Absanullah Khan r Hurri Churn 686
Abinger e Ashton 398	Ah Thain c. Moothi Chetty 568, 569
Abouloff r Oppenheimer 391	Airey, Re 547
Abraham r Abraham . 645	Aizunnism Khatoon e. Karimun-
Abrath t. N E R Co 645	nissa Khatoon 422, 729
Abudh Singh e Ram Raj 235	Ajabangh e Nanabhau 320
Abul Hossain e Habibullah 645	Ajoodhya Prashad t. Babu Omran
Accidental Death Insurance Co e	7, 476
Mackenzie 791	Akbar Hussain r. Alia Bibi 754
	· Akbar Khan r Sheoratan 353
Achhan Kuar e Thakur Das 698	Akbar Alı v. Bhyea Lal 131, 671
Achunth Singh t. Kishen Pershad 645	Akhil Chandra c, Nayu 315, 899
lehutarımaraju c. Subbaraju 575, 581, 586	Akhoy Kumar r. Jagat Chander 829
"Actron," The 215	Akkanna r. Venkayya 721
Adam e. Kur	Akshava Kumar r. Shama Churn 317, 514
Adams r Lloyd 823	Alaraiya Tirrebettambala r Sami-
Adams r Peters 420	nada Itiliai 614
Adukkalam r. Teetham 989	Alangamonjari Daloe r. Sonamoni
Adarkkalam Chetti r Marimuthu 639 Almn Genl, t. Radolf 826	Debee
Almn-Gent, t. Radolf	Albion, The 410

Pagi	Ε.	PA	OE.
Albonso t United States 40	00 2	Anunda Coomai / Hari Das	79
Mchorne v. Gomme 78	35	Ananda Hari Basak i Secretary of
Alderson v. Clay 149, 562 57	0	State	66
Alderson v Maddison 77	ii .	Anandrao Gunpatrao e Vasantrao
Uderson v. White . 38	85	Madhawrae	72
Alep Pramanick v R . 4.	32	Anudaray Styru / Ganesh Yesh-
Aldridge v. G. W R Co 1	37	vant	72
		Ananta Bilicharya : Demol'yar
Alı Buksh e. Sheikh Sımıruddın	38	Makund	74
All Duest C. Cherki Fith troubin			75
dit lakit t. 1		Anithanath Dev e Britu Chunder	23
Alijan v. Hara Chandra		Anderson : Bank of Columbia 815.
All Minds of Lines		4. 1 69
		Anderson : Clas	68
All Meah v Magi-trate of Chitta-		Anderson : Collison .	37
gong - 841, 8	42	Anderson v Weston .	73
Alı Moidin i. Eliyachanidatlıl		Andrew - 1 Mottles	73
Kombi 241. 4	10/	Ankni Chunder . Madhub Chun-
	71	der 986.	. 98
Alt Nasir v Manik Chand 350, 351, 3		Annagurubala Chetti t Krishna
	84	vuamy Nayakkan	.59
Appeared (1 Common 11	97	Anna Hinde, In the goods of	53
Allen c. Allen 117, 224, 861, 8		Annakumam t Muttupayal	15
Allen & Benne	667	Annapiganda r Keru	23
	78	Annapaganda r Sangadagyapa	23
	548	Annesley , Ford Anglesea 818.	. 84
Allayat Chinaman v. Juggot Chen-		Annoda Mohun r Bhuban Moh-
der 316 6		in 698.	. G9
	71	Annod Sundarı : Jogutmoni Dabi	67
THOSE THEFT IS COME	306	1mm	71
	744	Antaji v. Dittaji	98
Alter Caufman r Government of		Autan Kashi v Antan Madhay	37
	705	Anund Chunder r. Punchoo Lall	10
	141	Anund Chunder r. Mookta Keshee	51
	653	Anundmoyee Chowdhrain v. Sheeb
	505	Chunder	23.
	789	Anundinoyee Debea v. Shib Dyal	64
	665	Anundo Mohun v. Lamb	65
Ambica Charan Das r. Kala Chandra		Anupchand Hemchand v. Champsi
	392	Ugerchand	59
	987	Annar Hossein v. Secretary of State	67.
	638	Apaji Patil e Apa	35
Ambika Churn Chakravarti v Dya		Apothecary Co v. Bentley	67
	668	Appamma Nayumula r. Ramanna	57
	150	Appr Rau v. Subbunna 633,	, 66
	69] \	Apparthur: Pattar v. Gopala Pam-
Ameeroonies Khatoon e Abedoonie		ker 477, 547	, 73
sa Khatoon	b	Appasimi v. Mamkam	75.
Amey r. Loug 838, 839, 904,		Apurba Krishna Bose r. R 149,
	792	Arbon v. Fussel	509
Amos v. Hughes	630	Ardrshir Dhanjibhu t Collector of Amerit Nath v. Gauri Nath 154.		Surat	718
ta Ravji v. Shruthar Narayan	666	Arding e Flower	P 98
Boso v. Rajonec Kant 223, a. Alexander . 882,	455	Atlaps Nayah v. Narai Keshavii 16.4	186
Alexander . 882, i ler e Basu Budh	883		365
ect to total things	K07	Arman Elan . P. o

	1,4	αE,		P	GF
	. '	718	Att Genl. r Radiofi		82
Armstrong v. Strokham		539			78
Arnold e. Cheque Bank	778,	796	Att,-Genl of N S. W. r. Bertrand	131,	81
Arnott. Re	817,	820	Augustine r. Challis .		56
Arruth Misser r. Juggernath Indra	١-		Augustine e Wedlycott	449,	45
ananiee	. 1	653	Austin r. Evans		78
Arumugam Chetty r Perriyanna	n		Austin e. Rumsey		33
Servai	634,	690	Autu Sing r Ajudhia Sahu .		40
Aruna Chala r Munisamı Mudalı .		658	"Ava" and "Brenhilda," In ti	le .
Arunachellam r. R		802	matter of a collesion between the 48
Arunmovi Davi r. Mohendra Nath		380	489, 492,		31
Asghar Hossein v. In the matter of 10:	2.		Avery v. Bowden		73
	333.	334	Aveson e Kinnard . 190,		80
		637		214.
Ashanullah Khan r. Trilochan Bas			Ayesha Beebee r Kanhye Mollah .		69
chı 668.		714	Aylesford Peerage Case		70
		656	Avetun r. Ram Sebuk		29
Ashford v. Price		230	Azımat Singh r. Kalwant Singh .		550
			Azimut Ali t. Hurdwaree Mull .		74
					22
Ashidbai r. Abdulla Haji Mahomed		642	Azmat Alı r Lallı Begum .		720
Ashootosh Chandra r Tara Prasann		389	Azmat An / Dan Degum		•-
Ashpitel r. Bryan		795
Ashrufloodowlah e, Hyder Hossein		729	B.
Ashruffunnissa r Azeemun .		729 729
		12.9	Baba t. Timina		657
Ashruffoonissa Begum r Rughoonat Sohov		685	Baban v Krishna		772
		294	Baban Mahadaji e. Krishnan Devi		659
Ashton's Case		668	Baban Mayacha r. Nagu .		364
Asiatic Steam Navigation Co.		OUB	Balsoo Bodhnarain v. Balsoo Omrao	3,	917
	o. 148, :	22.	Baboo Dhunput r Sheikh Jowa
		677	hur 555,		601
Asmatunnessa Khatun r. Harendr		011	Baboo Dolee v. Sham Beharee .		789
Lal Biswas 747,		703	Baboo Doorga v. Musst. Kundun		356
Asmuntoonissa Bebee r. All		10,	Baboo Ganesh r. Mugneeram Chow
 4	213.	600	dry		667
		149	Baboo Ghansam v. Chukowree Singh		641
Aspitel r Sercombe Assanoosllah r. Obhoy Chunder .		743	Baboo Gooroo r. Durbaree Lai		182
		662	Baboo Gunga v. Baboo Indernt		3
		733	Baboo Radhakissen v Musst Shur
		659	reefunnissa		765
	104,		Baboo Rambuddun e Ranee Kunwar	534
	423.		5	55. (	614
tal t		823	Baboo Ram v. Sirdar Dyal	. (	667
	232.		Babu v. Sitaram	08, 6	614
441.5		235		57. 6
	736,		Bachan Singh e, Karan Singh		14
	680,		Bacharam Mundul v. Peary Mohur	,
		483			371
		815	Bacon v. Bucon		375
		336	Badam Kumari r. Suraj Kumari		345
		144		78, 2
	877.		Badi Bibi e. Jami Pillat		98
AttGenl. v. Moore ,		107	Badrad Din Ahmed r Nizaniuddin
Att Court ar a		762	Haider		91

Page	B
Budri Narajn v. Joy Kishen 238, 24	Bil Wookand v Jirjudhun Roy . 122
Badri Prasad v. Madan Lal 65
Badel Singh v. Chutterdharce Singh 65	Bania-condery Dassyah t Radhika
Baerlein v The Chartered Mere Bank 340
Bageshri Dayal r. Pancho 573
Bagranji Singh t. Manokarnika	Sunterday Jagjivanday
Baksh Singh . 418, 652, 783	573, 580, 583, 584, 592
Bahadur Singh v. Mohar Singh 325, 757	2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2
Buh idur Singh v Vicu 700	Bands Date . FF 10
Bahir Das r. Nobin Chunder 751	Bandon . B
Bai Baiji v Bai Santok 382, 384, 417, 645	D
Bai Diwalli r. Patel Bechardas . 722	Clutes
Bai Gungadhur v R 804
Bri Gangabai v Bhugwandrs Valji 674	-1
Baijnath Sahay v. Raghunath Per-	Pares D. 1
shad . 633, 637	Bane Pershad t. Baboo Manu 768, 783
Baij Nath 1 Sukku Mahton 350, 351, 514	Ram Madhah
Bil Gangadhar t. R 924	Bank at Rombon beb 662, 664
Baikanta Nath Roy t Debendra	Bank of Bombay , Suleman Som .
Nath Sahr , Debettera 664	Bank of England : Cutler 769
Baikanta Nath Roy Cowdhr,	Bank of England a Cutter . 769
Mohendra Nath Roy 396	Bank of England v Vaglano Bros. 8,
Barkanthanath Kumar t Chandra	Bank of Passel 1
Mohan . 216, 217	Bank of United States a Dandridge 737 Bank of Utica a Hillard 905
Bai Kesserbai r Narranji Walji 485	Bankalal , Chidriamekkansa 793
Baikunt Nath r Lukhun Majhi 546
Bain v Whitehaven Ry Co 99, 130, 917	Banku Behari Sikdar v Secretary of Bunbrigge v Browne , 696
Bainee Singh v. Bhurth Singh 651	Banku Behira a Day V
Bajal Bahadur & Bhupindar Bahadur 423	Bannet r. Jackson
Bujrangi Singh & Manokarnika Baksh	Banco v Kashas D
Singh 418	Banshi Supeli 31 4
Bakshi Das r Nadu Das 642	Bansi [4] + Dham.
Baksu Lakshman v Govinda Kanji	Bansı Lal v Bamu Lal 200 200
579, 580, 581, 584, 586, 592	Banwari Das v Muhammad Ma.
Bala v. Shiva 634, 668	Shat
Bilabux e Rathmabai 724	Bapuji e Senaravii
Balajı Raghunath v Balbın Raghojı 374	Bapuji Bolal v Sytahhamahhan
Bulayya v Kistnappu 682	Baquar Ah v Anjuman Ara
Balbadhar Prasad r Maharajah of	Barbat t. Allen
Betia 479, 562, 570, 987	parelt r Lytle
Baldeo Pershad r. Fakhr-udd in 769	Darkul-un-bissa t Fazi Han 201 ton
Baldeo Singh v. Imdad Ali 788	Bullow t Chum La! 679
Balkishan v. Kishan Lal . 372, 374	Barlow v Chuni Lal 306, 882
Balkishen Das v. Legge 554, 580, 581,	Barnes & Co v. Toye
583, 585, 586	Barnett v. Tugwell 400
Balkishen Die e. Ram Naram 555, 556, 650	Barons of C. Tugwell 732
Bulkrishna r Gopikabal coo	Barony of Sale, The
Ball r Taylor	Burr e Centa
Ballard r. Way	Barrow's Case 387
Balmakundas Atmaram r Moti Na-	Barrow c Hem Chunder Labari 189
Balmakund Ram : Ghansam Ram
113 to te	Barry r Rutter
113, 118, 143, 192, 643, 680	Bartlett v Wells 673
	759

PAGE	Page
Barton t Bank of New South Wales 580	Bejoy Gobind v Bheekoo Roy 34
Barwick e. English Joint Stock Bank 124	Belaet Khan r. Rash Beharee 342, 346, 34
Birwick r Thompson 790	Bell r. Ansley 23
Breant Bibi, In re 840	Bell c. Ingestre 59
Bashi Chunder r Enavet Ah 237,	Bell e Kennedy 71
2.18, 746, 771	Bell v. O'Sulivan 98
Basa Kooer e Hurry Dass . 658	Bellefontaine Ry. Co. v. Bailey . 40
Bastin e Carew 848, 881	" Bellerophon, " The 80
Basummoti Adhikarini e Budra	Belt r Lawes 41
Kalita 841	Bemjon, In the goods of 72
Biswantappa r Shidappa Banu 768	Bemola Dossee v. Mohun Dossee 65
Bata i R 363	Benarra Das e Blukari Das 559, 570, 98
Batta Krishna t Chintaman 651	Bengal Bunking Corporation t. Mack-
Batai Ahir e Bhuggobutti Koer 664, 687	ertich 98
Bate t Kinses 495	Bengal Indigo Co, The, v Tarinec
	Pershad 46
Bateman t. Bailey 145, 150, 240 Bater t Bater 306
Bates t Townley . 212
Baugh t Cradocke 816
Rauerman : Radenius 234
Baxendale & Bennett 796	Beni Prasad v Mukhtesar Rat
Baxter e Browne 550
Bayliffe v. Butterworth 734	Bennett v Marshall 61
Bayliss t AttGenl 611	Bennison t Cartwright 132, 145, 14
Beale v Com 737	Benodhee Lall : Dulloo Sirear 60
Bean t Quimby . 815	Benson r. Olive 33
Beasley r Magrath 212	Benyon v. Nettlefold 593
Beatson v Skene . 800, 906	Bepinbehari Chowdhry v. Ram
Beattie v Jetha Dungaisi . 825	Chandra 589, 590, 78
Beauchamp v Parry 240	Bepin Behari Kundu r Durga
Beaufort v. Smith . 326	Charan Banerji 653
Beaumont v Fell 625	Bepin Behari t. Sreedam Chunder
Beavan v. McDonnell 197	321, 321
Beckwith r. Bonner 818	Berkeley v Musst, Chittiar 45
Bedford : Birley 328	Berkeley Pectage Case, 2, 319, 325,
Beebee Ashrufoonissa v. Umung	216, 221, 318
Mohun 672	Bernandı r. Motteux 378
Beer Chunder v. Deputy Collector of	Bernascon v Atkinson 607
Bhullooah 665	Berryman t. Wise 737 Bessels v Stern 139
Beer Chunder v. Ramgutty Dutt
639, 661, 742
Beer Narain r. Teen Cowric 648	Bethell r. Blencowe
Beharee Lall, In the matter of . 564
Beharce Lall v. Kalee Dass 660
Beharce Lall r. Kaminee Soondaree 101, 578 Behari t. Sadho Mal 687
Behari t. Sadho Mal	Bewicke v Graham 82: Bishen Dutt v R 282, 28
D-1	Bishop of Meath r. Marquess of Win-
Behari Patak r. Mahomed Hyat 644
Behary Lall r Juggo Mohun Gos-	Bhaddar r. Khair-ud-din Husain
	Bhagain Megu v. Gooro Pershad . 514
Behary Lall v. Tej Narain 580, 581, 584	Bhagawan Das r Balgobind Singh 164
Bejai Bahadur r. Bhupindar Baha-	Bhagbut Chunder r. Hurrogobind
durant and the property of the party of the	and the second of the second o

Page.	PAGE.
Bhagoji v. Bapuji 354, 355	Bibec Nujcebunnissa, In re 729
Bhagubhar t. Tukaram 647, 650	Bibee Rukhun r. Shaikh Ahmed 697, 698
Bhagvandas Tejmal & Rajmal 162	Bibee Wuherdun r. Wu-ee Hossein 729
Bhagwat Dayal Singh v. Debi Dayal	Bickerton r Walker 776
Sahu . 652	Bidder e Bridges 326, 545
Bhagwandas Huipvan, In re 452	Biddomoye Dabee r. Sittaram . 787
Bhagwan Singh t. Bhagwan Singh 166, 445	Biddle & Bond 706
Bhaguan Singh e Mahabir Singh 670	Bigsby v Dickinson 412, 850
Bhasker latya & Vijalal Nathu . 227	Bikao Khan e R . 889, 899
Bhau Nanali e Sundiabat 164, 166, 185	Bindesurce Dutt v Doma Singh 406
Bhuram Madan e Ram Natayan . 985	Bindo Bashinee r Pearce Mohun 637, 664
Bhawanp Harbhum e Devit Pun-	Binja Ram & Rajmohan Roy 986
	Bipro Doss r Seev. of State for
Bhaya Dirguj Deo / Pande Fateh	India in Council 821, 822
Bahadoor Ram 170	Bipro Pershad t Kens Davee 651
Bhecknatam Singh a Necot Kooer 776	•
Blikumber Singh v Becharam Sir-	Bitaj Vohinee Dassee r. Kedat Nath Karmakar car 840
Bhim Sen v Sitaiam , 667
B'uma v Dhulappa 665, 703	Birbhadra Ruth v Kalpataru Pandu 990 Birch, In v. 762
Bhitto Kunwar r Kesho Per-shad
Bhog Hong Kong v Romanathen
Chetty 344, 719, 720
Bholanath v Ajoodhya 648, 651, 723
Bholinath Khettri e Kali Prasad	Bir Chandra v Bansi Dhar 132, 753 Birendra Lal v R 923
Agurwalla 577, 582
Bholoram Chowdhry e. Administra-	Birjanandan Lal r. Mosst, Kunwari 670
tor-General 513	Bu; Mohan : Ram Nursingh 771
Bhoobun Moyee v Umbica Chura 330	Birj Nath v Chunder Mohan 380
Bhoorun Koer v Sahebzadee 654	Birman, The
Bhootnath Chatterjee v Kedar Nath 665	Bishambar Nath v. Nand Kishore 985, 986 Bishan Dutt v. R
Bhowance Persad r Cheedun 771	Bishen Chand v Rajendro Kishore 796
Bhowany Sunkur r Pureem Bihee 771	Bishen Dyal v. Musst, Khadeema 492
Bhubuneswari Debi v Harisaran	Bisheshur t, Muirhead . 768, 780
Surma . 144, 481, 483, 490	Bisheshur Bhuttacharice v. Lamb . 648
Bhugut Pershad v. Girija Koer 657	Bishnath Chowdhry t. Radha Churn 660
Bhuggobutty, In the quadr of 139	Bishnu Banwar v. R 281
Bhugmunt Narain e Lall Jha 213	Bishonath Neoghy s. Huro Gobind 388
Bhuggobutty Misrain v Domun Mis-	Bishonath Rukhit v. Ram Dhone 733, 840
xer 650	Bishop Maniee v. R 260, 267, 269
Bhugwan Chunder v. Mechoo Lall 222	Bishop of Meath v. Marquis of Win-
Bhugwandeen Doobey v. Myna Bree 748
Bhugwan Doss r Uponch Singh 771
Bhugwan Dutt r Sheo Mungul 347	Malabar and dall
Bhupatram e Harr Prio	The second of the state of the second Bhyah Ram c. Bhyah Agur 166 Bhyro Dutt c. Musst. Lekharnee 768
Bibee Jokai r. Beglar
Bibee Meheroonnissa t. Abdool Gun-	70 70 70 71
nee GG	Bissessur Das v. Smidt . 613
Bibi Gyannessa v. Muset, Mobaru.	Distribut Latir E. Buchinessur Ningh 618
	Bissessur Singh v. Gunput 372
Hibi Khaver e. Bibi Rukha 157, 340	Bissonath Roy r. Lall Bahadur . 632

Brasumbhur Sirear r. Soorodhuny   Dassec	2. 0
Dassec   Dischetter, Rayal Exchange Assurance Co.   555, 603
Blackett r. Royal Exchange Assurance Co
Brain   Freece
Black et. Albion Life Ass. Co. 5, 126, 137   188, 192, 194, 200, 204, 798   Blake et. Pilford		11 1 11 400
Blake r. Albion Life Ass. Co. 5, 126, 137   188, 192, 194, 200, 204, 708   189   188, 192, 194, 200, 204, 708   189		To 4 977 1 971 - 60 1
Blake r. Pilford
Blakert r. Trigonning
Blue and Deschamps r. Red Mountain Railway   .
Blue and Devchampe r. Red Mountain Railway
Tarjeshwar   Peshakar   P. Budhan   Gl6, 670, 776	District to 11 gondaning 11
Blundell r. Ghaistone   625   Board r. Board   750, 785, 785   Brawngton r. Brassington   825   Boddy e. Roddy   137   Bodh Singh r. Gunesh Chunder   201, 648, 724   Bodh Singh r. Gunesh Chunder   201, 648, 724   Boileau r. Miller   774   Boileau r. Ruthin   242, 372   Boileau r. Wildows   201   Bolton e. Corporation of Liverpool Bolton e. Widdows   201   Bolton e. Corporation of Liverpool Bolton e. Widdows   201   Bolton e. Corporation of Liverpool Bomanjee Cowaşee, In the matter of   888, 894   Bomanjee Muncherjee v   Hossein   Abdoolah   Bonfield r. Smith   103   Bonnard r. Petryman   105   Bool Marain v. Omaco Singh   198   Bool Marain v. Omaco Singh   198   Bool Marain v. Charisook Buryman   105   Borrodaile v. Chainsook Buryman   105   Bringe v. Goodoon   100
Board   Roard   750, 783, 785   Boddy   Roddy   137   Boddy   Roddy   137   Boddy   Roddy   137   Bodh Singh   Gunesh Chunder   291,   Breun   Romanu   Rowman   Ro	· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·
Boddy r. Boddy   137
Bodh Singh r. Gunesh Chunder 201,
Reidonath Parcoye v. Russick Lall 127, 347   Breichley v. Stull   730   Brewier v. Sewell   489   Brewkelt v. Sewell   480   Brewkelt v. Sewell v. Sewell v. Sewell   480   Brewkelt v. Sewell v
Reidenath Parcoyee Russick Lall 127, 347   Beles		D 11 (11)
Boikunt Nath   Lukhun Majh    548   Brewer   F. Palmer   659
Boileau r. Willer
Boileau v. Rutlin   242, 372   Boiseoponofi t. Nahapiet Jute Company   114, 337   Boldron e. Widdows   201   Briggs e. Aynsworth   830   Bri		E
Boisogomoff t. Nahapiet Jute Company		D 1 11 11 1
Pany   114, 337   Boldron r. Widdows   201   Briggs r. Aynaworth   830   Boldron r. Widdows   201   Briggs r. Wilson   311   Boldron r. Sorporation of Liverpool   Briggs r. Wilson   311   Bright r. Doe d. Tethan   505   Briggs r. Wilson   312   Briggs r. Wilson   312   Briggs r. Wilson   313   Briggs r. Wilson   313   Briggs r. Wilson   314   Briggs r. Wilson   315   Briggs r. Wilson   315   Briggs r. Wilson   316   Briggs r. Wilson   317   Briggs r. Wilson   316
Bolton r. Widdows
Bolton v. Corporation of Liverpool   Sigh and v. Sayerweather   378
Bolton v. Sherman
Bolton v. Sherman
Bonnanjee Cowasjee, In the matter of Section   Sect
Brimho Moye t. Ram Dalub   771
Abdoolah
Bommarauze Bahadur v. Ranga-   samy Mudaly             samy Mudaly             samy Mudaly           samy Mudaly           samy Mudaly           samy Mudaly           samy Mudaly           samy Mudaly         samidabun Chouders v. Radhica       samidabun Chunders v. Tarachand       samidabun Chunders v. Tarachand       samidabun Chunders v. Tarachand       samidabun Chunders v. Baloude
Bond v. Douglas
Bonnéel d. Smith
Bonfield t. Smith
Bonhaun   Ex partie   391
Bandyopadnya	Dollaria V. Dillian	Brindabun Chunder t. Tarachand
Bonnaud v. Charriol   641
Boodh Narain v. Omrao Singh   128   Brislance v. Dacres
Boolee Singh t. Hurobuns Naram
Borse   Comment   19, 327
Bortondale v. Chainsook Buxyram   565
Bottomley   Ex prirk   Sale
Bottomley e Brougham   840   British, &c., Assurance Co., fir.   738
Bourne s. Gatliff   137, 144, 713   British and American Federation Co. 505   Colson   207, 543
Bowes t. Stand   603
Bowes e. Shand   Bowling & Welby's Contract, In r. c. 379   Brocas v. Lloyd   .838   Brodie v. Brodie   .146   Bowman v. Hodgson   .506   Brodie v. Howard   .232   Bowman v. Taylor   .747   Brohmo Dutt v. Dhurmodass Ghosh 788, 759   Boyes v. Cook   .607   Brojendra Coomar v. Chairman, Boyle v. Wiseman   .484, 826   Daes Municipality   .23, 226, 291, 292   Boyson v. Coles   .770   Brojo Kishoree v. Sreenath Bose   .666   .66	Boverbank r. Monteiro 575
Bowes e. Shand	Bowes v. Foster 292, 776
Bowman v. Bowman   881 Brodie v. Brodie   146
Bowman e. Hodgson   506	Bowling & Welby's Contract, In re 379	_ *.
Bowman e. Taylor         747         Brohmo Dutt r. Dhurmodass Ghosh 758, 759           Boyse e Cook         607         Brojendra Coomar r. Chairman,           Boyle r. Wiseman         484, 826         Daces Municipalty 23, 236, 201, 202           Boyson r. Coles         770         Brojo Kishoree r. Srcenath Boso 656
Boyes v         Cook
Boyle v. Wiseman         484, 826         Daces Municipality         23, 236, 291, 292           Boyson v. Coles         770         Brojo Kishoree r. Sreenath Boso         656 Boyson v. Coles n in the second of the second oracion r. Audott 554, 601 Brojo Monun v. Rauna Koomaree 652
	oradion r. Abbott 554, 601	Dialo monen et medua graditates  625

Pige.	Page
Brojonath Ghose t. Koylash Chun-	Surnside r. Dayrell
der 771	Burr v Smith . 840
Brojonath Roy v Kishen Lall 667	Barrell v. North 474
Brojo Soondery & Luchmee Koon-	Burrough a. Martin . 901
waree 740	Burrowes r. Lock . 762
Brojo Sunder v Koylash Chunder. 691	Bursill v Tanner 817, 818, 824
Bromanund Gossain v Govt 665	Burt r Walker 333
Bromlev r G I P Ry Co 726	Burton r Piyne . 483
Brook v Brook 795	Burton t Plummer 901, 902
Brookes v Tichhorne 508	Bury : Philpot 701, 702
Brown r E C R Co 136	Bustros r White . 815
Browning v State 228	Buteshire, The . 455
Bruce v Nicolupolo 146	Butler t Allnutt . 206
Brown t Foster 812, 817. 818	Butler : Ford 737
Brown v Woodman 478	Buxton r Coinish . 560
Browne v McClintock 455	Buzloor Ruheem & Shumsoonissa
Browne & Muiray 631	Begun 101, 102, 740
Bruce t Garden . 213	Buzrang Sahoy & Mantra Choudh-
Bruce v Nicolupulo 738	1am 654
Bruff v G N. Ry Co . 226	Byathamma > Avulla 168, 171, 175,
Brukowsky : Thacker, Spink & Co 150	176, 213, 351
Brunner, Re . 241	Byjnath Lall : Ramoodeen Chow-
Brunswick + Harmer . 400	dlay
Bryan v White . 503	Byjonath Sahoy e Doelhun Brun-
Buccleuch 1 Metropolitan Board of	nath 769
Works 805, 806	Bykant Nath & Goboollah Sıkdar 772
Bucharam Gundul v Peary Vohun 671	Byne, Ex parte $39
Bucher v Jarratt . 563	Byris t Shiv-hanker 600
Budree Lall v Bhoosee Khan 525, 527 Budree Lall v. Kantee Lall . 657	Bune r Broudle 727
Budree Lall v. Kantee Lall . 657 Bull v O'Sullivan 986	C.
Bulley v Bulley . 215, 291, 292
Bullock v Corne 816	Came v. Horsefall
Bullubee Kant t Doorjodhun Sluk-	Character
dar . 690	Caldey r Richards 813
Bunbury v Bunbury 818	Cameron's &c., Co., Re 825 Cammell & Sewell 300
Bunbury & Mathers 737
Bunwarce Lali e Maharajah Het-narain 7, 114, 459, 460, 470, 471	C
Bunware Chund + Mudden Mohun 655	Campbell Y 1.
Bunwarry Lall r Forlong 348, 482, 663, 669	Cannell v Curtis
Burberry's t Cording . 623	Cantelio v Cantello
Burdseant Roy r Chunder Koonaar 743	Carew, Ex parte 804
Burdett's Case 117	Circule v Wood 730
Burgoyne r Showler	Cunavon r Villebors 393
	Carpenter v. Buller 718 777
Burjorji Cursetji v. Mancheiji Kuverji	Carpenter v Wall
441, 453, 455, 479, 576 Burjorji Dorabji c. Dhunbai 238	Carpmiel r Powis
Paul andrew at Visually	Carr r. London and N.W R. C
Durling a Ditteres	100, 750, 767, 777, 778, 770, 700 mon
Burmester v Barron	curici p Tryke
Burn v Achumbst Roy . 250	Caso t Caso
Burn & Co. r. Bushomoyee Dasce 785, 792	Carperso t Nedar Vall
Burnsbie e. Bailhe 158, 484	on sumbinly Angiedbhoy . Aliman
100, 104	bhoy Hubibhoy . 634, 644

_	-
PtaE.	PAGE.
Caston r. Caston 391, 300	Chengal Reddi t. Venkata Reddi 993
Castrique e. Imrie 398	Chenvirappa v. Putappa 394, 395, 748.
Catheart, In se 816, 817	772, 773
Catt v. Howard 240, 367	Cherukunneth r Vengumt 449, 752
Cavaly Vencata r. Collector of Masu-	Cherry v. Colonial Bank of Austra-lipstam , 652	lasin 765
Cazenove v Vaughan 336	Chestre e Briley . 124, 761
Central Ry, Co r. Kisch . 764	Chetti (Venugopal) r Chetti (Venu-
Chabildas Lallubhas r. Dayal Monji 198.	gop d) 758
199	Chhato Ram e Bilto Ali . 231
Chadwick v Bowman . 822	Chidambata t Thirumani 840
Chain Mahto t. R , 133, 134	Chidambaram Pillu / R . 202
Chakauri Sing e Suraj Kuar 330	Child t Grace 148
Chamanbu r. Multan Chand . 320	Childerson v Barrett . 839
	Chimnaji Govind r Dhunkar Dhon-
Chamarnee Bibee r Ayenoolah Sir-	A dur	China e Morris 160
Chambers r. Barnasconi 308
Chambers v. The Queen's Proctor 5	Chinna Krishna t Dorasami Reddi 990
Champabaty e Bipi Jibnu 985	Chinnan r Ramehandra 641, 642
Chand Huree v. Rajah Norendro . 651	Chinnappa Reddi v Manickka Vasa-
Chandi Charan r Boistob Charan	gan 669
510, 513, 519	Chinnasami i Hariharabadra . 380
Chaondika Baksh r. Numa Kunwar 185	Chinna Umayi i Tegarai Chetti . 165
Chandi Prosad v. Mohendra Singh 373	Chinnaya v Gurunatham Chetti . 227
Chandi Singh v Janga Singh 653	Chintamar Rainchandra v Dareppa 767
Chandler r. Greaves 452	Chintanianrao Mchendale i Kashi-
Chandra Kalı Dabee v. Chapman 795	nath 657
Chandra Kant v. Kartic Chunder 986	Chintamon Singh t R 432
Chandra Kunwar v Chandri Narpat	Chintu t Dhondu . 773
Singh 246, 292	Chitko t. Janaki
Chandra Nath r Nilmadhub Bhut-	Chockalingam Pillar t Mayandi Chet-tacharjee . 207, 301, 323	tiar
Chango r. Kalaram 579	Chokkey Singh v. Jote Singh 749
Channel, Re 332	Cholmondeley t. Clinton 816
Chant v. Brown 816	Chooa Kara : Isabin Khahfa . 115
	Chotey Narain & Mussamut Ratan 471
	Choutmull Doogur v. River Steam
- · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·	Navigation Co 726, 727
	Chowdbrant v Tariny Kanth 638, 740
	Chowdhry Debi v Chowdhry Dow-
O	Chowdhry Herasutollah v Brojo
	Soundur 655
	Chowdhry Pudum v. Koer Codey 656
Chathu v. Viraryen	Christacharlu r. Kasibasayya ., 681
Chatenay v. Brazilian Submarine Telegraph Co	Chuckun Lall v. Poran Chunder . 227
Chatring Moolchand e. Whitehurch 696	Chumman Shah, In the mutter of 252
Chaurand e Angerstein 624	Chundee Churn v. Eduljec Couas-
Chedambara Chetty v. Renga Krishna Muthu fre 365, 762 Chunder Coumar v. Harbuna Sa-Chedambaran Chetty r. Karunalyava-
Cheetha a Miless Lell	hai 770, 771, 783 Chunder Kant e. Bungsher Deb 689
Cheetha r. Miheen Lall	Chunder Kant v. Bungshee Deb
Chertan Lall t Chutter Dharee 144	Chunder Mant r Pearce Mohun . 291

986, 987

Chunder Kant r Broje Nath

550

Chenbasapa r. Lakshman Ram

Pag	E
Chunder Kant v. Ramnaram Dey 2	PIGE.
Chunder Monee v Joykissen Sir-	or independent to ouraj
	100, 142
Chunder Monce v Raj Kishore , 68
Chunder Nath v. Kristo Komul 649, 74	0 144, 164, 165, 168, 171, 176, 182,
Chundernath Roy & Kooer Gobind-	2 Collector of Madura v Motoo Ramnath
Chundreshwar v Chuni Ahn 22
Chum Kuar v. Udai Ram 638, 641, 72
Chunni Kuar v Rup Singh 69	0.002
Churaman v Ballı 19	Varain
Chutter Lal & Govt 38
Chyet Namain v Bunwaree Singh . 64
Citizens Bank v First National Bank 756, 757, 78
Civa Rau : Jevana Rau . 75
Clarges r. Sherwin 387	Collector of Sca Customs , P H.
Claridge v Mackenzie 795	Collecter of 2) 103
Clark v. Adie 787	Collector of Thana , Harn Sitaram 655
Clark r. Alexander . 683	Collector of Trichinopoly z. Tekka-
Clarke v Bindabun Chunder 235, 249, 686	Colledge v Horn
Clarke v. Magnuder . 739	C-B 230
Clarke r. Mullick 222	College . Pro-
Clarke v Saffery 881	Collers v Bennett 398, 467
Clarkson v Woodhouse . 327	Collins r Blantein
Clarton v. Shau . 567, 568	Colpore = C-1
Clay v Crowe 987	Colvell , D., 11
Claydon v Green , . 101	Com : Cases 158
Clayton v Lord Nugent 611, 622	Com # E 303
Chyton v Wardell 727	Com a kimbill 898
Cleare v. Cleare . 673	Com a Marell
Cleave 1, Jones 129, 818, 820 Clifford 1 Burton	Com . W-1-4-
CO C 1 27	Conche C 410, 111
Chus Dusset 7: 850	Conch 35
Clark a Channel 1	Constable v. Loubal
Cleaned and Count	Cool + Ward
Clunes a Deserve	Cook a William n p	Cooke a Ranka
0.11.44 0	Coole a Vest II and 711
C. L	Coombs . Conthus
Cubilen a Kandadi	Copper. In re
Crykran n Pathama	Couner Rianda
Corkrill to Sparker	Cooper r Deduck
Coggs v. Bernard 79c 70c	Cooper t. Met. Board of World
Coglan v Cumberland	Cooper v. Slade
Coben c. Bank of Bengal and
Cohen v Sutherland	Corbett r. Brown
Cole v. Haukins	Cornish t. Abington 704
Cole r. Langioni
Colo V. Manning
	Corsen g. Dubous
Collier r. Simpson 891, 883	Cory t. Bretton
113	Cory r Gerteken 247
	151, 760

	P	AGE.		PAGE.
Costello v. Crowell		898	Dadabhai v. Jamsedji	450
Cotman v. Orton .		818	Dadabhai Narsidas r. Sub-collect	or
Cotton r. James .		194	of Broach	691, 692
Coulson v. Disborough		913	Dada Honaji v. Babaji Jagushet .	. 598
Courteen v. Touse .	. 137	224		. 871
Court of Wards v. Venkata		618		608
Coventry r. G. E. R. Co. 7	765, 766, 767		Dagdu r. Bhana	595, 596
Coventry v. Tulsi Pershad		753	* "	. 654
		711		., 8
Cowan v. Abrahams .		563	"	. 368
Cowasji Ruttonji v. Borjor			Daimoddee Paik v. Kaım Tarıdar
· · ·		. 596		400
O		617		249
Comite or Desert or		568		621
A. 1 B. 1		803	Daitari Mohanti r. Jugo Bundhe
O		729	163, 167, 171,
a		775	Dakhina Kalı v. Jagadeshwar Bha
A 70 ( 1)		188		652
O		895	and the second second	582
		818	Dalglish v Guzuffur Hassain 16
		, 102		418, 419
	316, 317		· Dalip Singh r Durga Prasad 45
	510, 521	855		571, 990
Commence II or T at		508	Dalip Singh v Nawal Kunwar	138, 143
arm T	·· ··	420		., 562
C A-A-		738		750
~ . - .		484	Dalton v. Fitzgerald Damodar Jagannath v. Atmara
Contract Contract		739		986,987
		100
		815	Damadara Mudalian w The Sect	·
	. 785	815	Damodara Mudahar v The Secretary of State for India
Cropper v. Smith	. 782	787	tary of State for India	8
Cropper v. Smith Crossfield (R. T.), trial o	. 782 f	2, 787 116	tary of State for India Damodhar Gordhan v Deoram Kar	8 ji
Cropper v. Smith Crossfield (R. T.), trial o Crowdie v. Kullar Chowd	. 782 f lhry	2, 787 116 990	tary of State for India Damodhar Gordhan v Deoram Kar 443, 448, 449, 450,	8 iji 641, 705
Cropper v. Smith Crossfield (R. T.), trial o Crowdie v. Kullar Chowd Crowley v. Page	. 782 f lbry	2, 787 116 990 889	tary of State for India Damodher Gordhan v Deoram Kar 443, 448, 449, 450, Damudar Dass t. Mahiram Pandol	8 iji 541, 705 i 773
Cropper v. Smith Crossfield (R. T.), trial o Crowdie v. Kullar Chowd Crowley v. Page Crowthier v. Appleby	. 782 f lbry	2, 787 116 990 889 905	tary of State for India Damodhar Gordhan v Deoram Kar 443, 448, 449, 450, Damudar Dass t. Mahiram Pandol Dan v. Brown	8 nji 541, 705 n 773 232
Cropper v. Smith Crossfield (R. T.). trial o Crowdie v. Kullar Chowd Crowley v Page Crowthier v Appleby Cunliflo v. Sefton	. 782 f thry	2, 787 116 990 889 905 505	tary of State for India Damodhar Gordhan v Deoram Kar 443, 448, 449, 450, Damudar Dase t. Mahuram Pandol Dan v. Brown Daniell v. Pitt	8 nji 541, 705 n 773 232
Cropper v. Smith Crossfield (R. T.), trial o Crowdie v. Kullar Chowd Crowley v. Page Crowthier v. Appleby Cunlifie v. Sefton Cunningham, In re	782	2, 787 116 990 889 905 505 124	tary of State for India Damodhar Gordhan v Deoram Kar 443, 448, 449, 450, Damudar Dass t. Mahiram Pandol Dan v. Brown Daniell v. Pitt Daniell v Potter	8  oji  541, 705  o 773  232  241  233
Cropper v. Smith Crossfield (R. T.), trial o Crowdie v. Kullar Chowd Crowley v Page Crowthier v Appleby Cunhife v. Sefton Cunningham, In re Cunningham v. Faublangu	f	2, 787 116 990 889 905 505 124 186	tary of State for India Damodhar Gordhan v Deoram Kar 443, 448, 449, 450. Damodar Dase t. Mahiram Pandol Dan e. Brown Daniell v. Pitt Damell v Potter Daniel v. Metropolitan Ry. Co.	8 705 773 232 241 233
Cropper a Smith Crossfield (R. T.), trial o Crowdie v. Kullar Chowd Crowley v. Page Crowthier v. Appleby Cunliffor. Sefton Cunningham, In re Cunningham v. Faublanqu Currier v. Hampton	782	2, 787 116 990 889 905 505 124	tary of State for India Damodhar Gordhan v Deoram Kar 443, 448, 449, 450, Dan v. Brown Dannell v. Pett Daniel v. Potter Daniel v. Metropolitan Ry. Co. Duniel v. Wilkin	8  nji  641, 705  773  232  241  233  201  326
Cropper v. Smith Crossfield (R. T.), trial o Crowdie v. Kullar Chowd Crowley v Page Crowthier v Appleby Cunhife v. Sefton Cunningham, In re Cunningham v. Faublangu	f	2, 787 116 990 889 905 505 124 186 415	tary of State for India Damodhar Gordhan v Deoram Kar 443, 448, 449, 450, Damodar Dase t. Mahram Pandol Dan v. Brown Danell v. Potter Daniel v. Potter Daniel v. Wilkin Danmull v. B I.S. N. Co	8  15  15  16  17  17  17  17  17  17  17  17  17
Cropper n. Smith Crowfield (R. T.). trial o Crowdie v. Kullar Chowd Crowley v. Page Crowthier v. Appleby Cunlifie v. Sefton Cunningham, In re Cunningham v. Faublangt Currier v. Hampton Curry v. Watter	f	2, 787 116 990 889 905 505 124 186 415 806	tary of State for India Damodhar Gordhan v Deoram Kar 443, 448, 449, 450. Damodar Dass t. Mahiram Pandol Dan v. Brown Daniell v. Pitt Daniell v. Potter Daniel v. Metripolitan Ry. Co. Daniel v. Wulkin Danmull v B I. S. N. Co Dathla Venkamma v. Raina Su	8  15  15  16  17  17  17  17  17  17  17  17  17
Cropper a. Smith Crowfield (R. T.), trial of Crowdie v. Kullar Chowd Crowley v. Page Crowthier v. Appleby Cunlifie v. Setton Cunningham, In re Cunningham v. Faublangu Currier v. Hampton Curry v. Walter Curretty I. Khambatta v. Curretty J. Khambatta v.	f 782 f	2, 787 116 990 889 905 505 124 186 415 806 106	tary of State for India Damodhar Gordhan v Deoram Kar 443, 448, 449, 450, Damodar Dase t. Mahiram Pandol Dan v. Brown Dan-ell v. Pitt Daniel v. Potter Daniel v. Metro-politan Ry. Co. Duniel v. Wilkin Danmull v B I.S. N Co Dathla Venkamma v. Rama Su barayudu	8  nji  541, 765  773  232  241  233  201  326  665  b-
Cropper n. Smith Crowfield (R. T.). trial o Crowdie v. Kullar Chowd Crowley v Page Crowthier v Appleby Cunlife v. Sefton Cunningham, In re Cunningham, In re Cunningham v. Faublange Curry v. Walter Curry v. Walter Curry v. Malter Curretu, J. Khambatta v. Cutteen v. Touse	. 782 f lhry        	2, 787 116 990 889 905 505 124 186 415 806 106 866	tary of State for India Damodhar Gordhan v Deoram Kar 443, 448, 449, 450, Damodar Dase t. Mahiram Pandol Dan v. Brown Dannell v. Potter Daniel v. Metropolitan Ry. Co. Duniel v. Wilkin Danmull v B I. S. N. Co Darbla Ventamma v. Raina Su barayudu Darby t. Ousely	8  773  232  241  233  201  326  665  b. 752
Cropper a. Smith Crossfield (R. T.). trial o Crowdie v. Kullar Chowd Crowley v Page Crowthier v Appleby Cunlifie v. Sefton Cunningham, n. r. Faublangt Currier v. Hampton Curry v. Walter Cursety, J. Khambatta v. Curteen v. Touse Curteen v. Peek	. 782 f thry Crowder	2, 787 116 990 889 905 505 124 186 415 806 106 866 400	tary of State for India Damodhar Gordhan v Deoram Kar 443, 448, 449, 450, Damodar Dase t. Mahiram Pandol Dan v. Brown Dannell v. Potter Daniel v. Potter Daniel v. Witkin Danmull v B I. S. N Co Datbla Veckamma v. Raina Su barayudu Darby t. Ousely Dasarath Mandal v. R	8  ji 541, 705 773 232 241 233 201 326 665 b 752 246, 367
Cropper a. Smith Crossfield (R. T.). trial o Crowdie v. Kullar Chowd Crowley v. Page Crowthier v. Appleby Canlife v. Setton Cunningham, In re Cunningham, Faublangt Curry v. Walter Curre v. Walter Curre v. Walter Curre v. Towe Cutten v. Lowa Cutte	. 782	2, 787 116 990 889 905 505 124 186 415 806 106 866 400 326	tary of State for India Damodhar Gordhan v Deoram Kar 443, 448, 449, 450, Damodar Dase t. Mahiram Pandol Dan v. Brown Dannell v. Potter Daniel v. Potter Daniel v. Within Danmell v. B I. S. N. Co Darbla Venkamma v. Raina Su barayudu Darby t. Ousely Dasarath Mandal v. R. Dattaji v. Kalba	8 ji 541, 705 773 232 241 233 201 201 665 752 246, 367
Cropper a. Smith Crossfield (R. T.). trial o Crowdie v. Kullar Chowd Crowley v. Page Crowthier v. Appleby Canlife v. Setton Cunningham, In re Cunningham, Faublangt Curry v. Walter Curre v. Walter Curre v. Walter Curre v. Towe Cutten v. Lowa Cutte	. 782	2, 787 116 990 889 905 505 124 186 415 806 106 866 400 326 786	tary of State for India Damodhar Gordhan v Deoram Kar 443, 448, 449, 450, Damudar Dase v Mahiram Pandol Dan v Brown Dannell v Potter Daniel v Potter Daniel v Metropolitan Ry. Co. Duniel v Wilkin Danmull v B I.S. N Co Darbla Venkamma v Raina Su barayudu Darby v. Ousely Dasarah Mandal v. R. Dattarin v Kalba Dattarin v Venayak	8  705  773  232  233  201  326  665  752  246, 367  716
Cropper s. Smith Crossfield (R. T.). trial of Crowdie v. Kullar Chowd Crowley v. Page Crowthier v. Appleby Cunlife v. Sefton Cunningham, In re Cunningham, In re Cunningham v. Faublanqt Currier v. Hampton Curry v. Walter Cursety; J. Khambatta v. Cutteen v. Touse Cuttes v. Peek Curtes v. Peek Curzon v. Lomax Cythbertson v. Irving Cutts v. Brown 52	. 781 f thry         	2, 787 116 990 889 905 505 124 186 415 806 106 866 400 326 786	tary of State for India Damodhar Gordhan v Deoram Kar 443, 448, 449, 450, Damodar Dase t. Mahiram Pandol Dan v. Brown Dannell v. Pitt Daniell v. Potter Daniel v. Metropolitan Ry. Co. Diniel v. Witkin Danmull v B I. S. N. Co Darbla Venkamma v. Raina Su barayudu Darby t. Ousely Dasarath Mandal v. R. Dattaji v. Kalba Dattarain v. Venayak Dattarain v. Venayak Dattarain v. Venayak Dattarain v. Venayak	8  iji 541, 705 773 232 241 201 326 665 b 752 246, 367 716 769
Cropper a. Smith Crowfield (R. T.). trial o Crowdie v. Kullar Chowd Crowley v. Page Crowthier v. Appleby Cunlife v. Sefton Canningham, In re Cunningham, In re Cunningham v. Faublangt Curry v. Walter Curry v. Walter Currey v. Walter Curresti J. Khambatta v. Cutteen v. Touse Cuttees v. Peek Curteen v. Lomax Cythbertson v. Irving Cutts v. Brown 57	782 f hhry	2, 787 116 990 889 905 505 124 186 415 806 106 866 400 326 786	tary of State for India Damodhar Gordhan v Deoram Kar 443, 448, 449, 450, Damodar Dase t. Mahiram Pandol Dan v. Brown Dannell v. Pitt Daniell v. Potter Daniel v. Metropolitan Ry. Co. Diniel v. Witkin Danmull v B I. S. N. Co Darbla Venkamma v. Raina Su barayudu Darby t. Ousely Dasarath Mandal v. R. Dattaji v. Kalba Dattarain v. Venayak Dattarain v. Venayak Dattarain v. Venayak Dattarain v. Venayak	8  ji  541, 705  773  232  241  233  201  326  65  - 752  246, 367  716  758  758
Cropper a. Smith Crossfield (R. T.). trial o Crowdie v. Kullar Chowd Crowley v. Page Crowthier v. Appleby Cunlife v. Setton Cunningham, In re Cunningham, In re Cunningham v. Faublanq Currier v. Hampton Curry v. Walter Currett v. Touse Curtes v. Peck Curren v. Lomax Cythberthon v. Irving Cutts v. Brown 57  D Dabes Misser v. Mungur	782	2, 787 116 990 889 905 505 124 186 415 806 106 866 400 326 786	tary of State for India Damodhar Gordhan v Deoram Kar 443, 448, 449, 450, Damodar Dase t. Mahiram Pandol Dan v. Brown Dannell v. Pitt Daniell v. Potter Daniel v. Metropolitan Ry. Co. Duniel v. Wilkin Danmull v B I. S. N. Co Dathla Venkamma v. Raina Su barayudu Darby t. Ousely Dasarath Mandal v. R. Dattarin v. Venayak Dattarin v. Venayak Dattarin v. Venayak Dattaring, In re Datto v. Rain Chandra 580, David, In ke motter of	8 8 8 17 232 241 233 201 326 665 752 2246, 367 769 758 129 581, 586
Cropper a. Smith Crowsfield (R. T.). trial o Crowdie v. Kullar Chowd Crowley v. Page Crowthier v. Appleby Cunlife v. Sefton Cunningham, In re Cunningham, In re Cunningham, In re Currier v. Hampton Curry v. Walter Currey v. Lomax Cutteen v. Touse Cuttee v. Peek Curren v. Lomax Cythbertson v. Irving Cutts v. Brown 57  Dubee Misser v. Mungur Dabee Pershad v. Ram C	7816	2, 787 116 990 889 905 505 124 186 415 806 106 866 400 326 786	tary of State for India Damodhar Gordhan v Deoram Kar 443, 448, 449, 450, Damodar Dase t. Mahiram Pandol Dan v. Brown Dannell v. Pitt Daniell v. Potter Daniel v. Metro-politan Ry. Co. Duniel v. Wilkin Danmull v B I. S. N. Co Dathla Venhamma v. Raina Su barayudu Darby t. Ousely Dasarath Mandal v. R. Dattarin v. Venayak Dattarin v. Venayak Dattarina, I n re Datto v. Ram Chandra	8 / 15i / 15i / 15i / 15i / 17i
Cropper a Smith Crossfield (R. T.). trial o Crowdie v. Kullar Chowd Crowley v. Page Crowthier v. Appleby Cunlife v. Setton Cunningham, In re Cunningham, In re Cunningham v. Faublang Currier v. Hampton Curry v. Walter Currett v. Touse Curtes v. Peek Curren v. Lomav Cythbertson v. Irving Cutts v. Brown	781 f	2, 787 116 990 889 905 505 124 186 415 806 106 866 400 326 786	tary of State for India Damodhar Gordhan v Deoram Kar 443, 448, 449, 450, Damudar Dass v Mahiram Pandol Dan v. Brown Dannell v. Potter Daniel v. Potter Daniel v. Wilkin Dannull v B I.S. N Co Darbla Venkamma v. Raina Su barayudu Darbla Venkamma v. Raina Su barayudu Datari v. Venayak Dattarin v. Venayak Dattarinya, In ve Datto v. Ram Chandra 580, David, In the motter of Davice, Er porte Davice v. Lowndes Davice v. Ridge	8 8 1 765 232 241 201 326 326 752 246, 367 769 758 129 581, 802 796 324, 807 796
Cropper s. Smith Crossfield (R. T.). trial o Crowdie v. Kullar Chowd Crowley v. Page Crowthie v. Appleby Cunlife v. Sefton Cunningham, In re Cunningham, In re Cunningham, In re Cuntering v. Hampton Curry v. Walter Curreit J. Khambatta v. Cutteen v. Touse Cuttees v. Peek Currein v. Lomax Cythbertson v. Irving Cutts v. Brown . 57  D Dibee Misser v. Mungur Dabee Pershad v. Ram C Dabees Sadai v. Shev Dat	781	2, 787 116 990 889 905 505 124 186 415 806 106 866 400 326 786 2, 596	tary of State for India Damodhar Gordhan v Deoram Kar 443, 448, 449, 450, Damodar Dase t. Mahiram Pandol Dan v. Brown Dannell v. Potter Daniel v. Potter Daniel v. Wilkin Damoull v. Bi. S. N. Co. Datbla. Venkamma v. Raina Su barayudu Darby t. Ousely Dasarath Mandal v. R. Dattapi v. Kalba Dattaria v. Venayak Dattariaya, Is re Dattov v. Raim Chandra . 580, David. In the matter of Davies v. Lowales Davies v. Kalba Davies v. Lowales Davies v. Kidge Davies v. Maters	8 8 8 763 232 201 252 201 265 762 762 768 769 768 768 752 752 758
Cropper a. Smith Crossfield (R. T.). trial o Crowdie v. Kullar Chowd Crowley v. Page Crowthier v. Appleby Cunlife v. Setton Cunningham, In re Cunningham, In re Cunningham v. Faublang Currier v. Hampton Curry v. Walter Curretu v. Touse Curtes v. Peek Curron v. Lomav Cythbertson v. Irving Cutts v. Brown	781 (	2, 787 116 990 889 995 505 124 416 866 400 606 786 786 786 753 651 691	tary of State for India Damodhar Gordhan v Deoram Kar 443, 448, 449, 450, Damudar Dase v Mahiram Pandol Dan v. Brown Dannell v. Potter Daniel v. Potter Daniel v. Wilkin Dannull v B I.S. N Co Darbla Venkamma v. Raina Su barayudu Dasha Venkamma v. Raina Su barayudu Dasarath Mandal v. R Dattaji v. Kalba Dattarin v. Venayak Dattarin v. Venayak Dattafarya, In ve Daviev, Er porte Davies v. Lowndes Davied, In the motter of Davies v. Lowndes Davies v. Ridge Davies v. Nales v.	8, 1,1,1,1,1,1,1,1,1,1,1,1,1,1,1,1,1,1,1
Cropper a. Smith Crossfield (R. T.). trial o Crowdie b. Kullar Chowd Crowley v Page Crowthie v Appleby Cunlife v. Sefton Cunningham, In re Cunningham, In re Cunningham, In re Cunrier v Hampton Curry v. Walter Currety I. Khambatta v. Curteen v. Touse Cuttees v Peek Curzon v. Lomax Cythbertson v. Irving Cutts v. Brown 50  D D-bbee Misser v. Mungur Dabee Sahai v. Stero Dar	7816	2. 787 116 990 905 505 505 124 416 806 106 866 400 326 786 753 9, 363 651	tary of State for India Damodhar Gordhan v Deoram Kar 443, 448, 449, 450, Damodar Dase t. Mahiram Pandol Dan v. Brown Dannell v. Potter Daniel v. Potter Daniel v. Watropolitan Ry. Co. Duniel v. Wilkin Danmull v B I.S. N Co Darbla Venkamma v. Raina Su barayudu Darby t. Ousely Dasarath Mandal v. R. Dattapi v. Kalba Dattarian v. Venayak Dattariaya, Is re Datto v. Ram Chandra S80, David, In the matter of Davies T. Lowndes Davies v. Ridge Davies v. Ridge Davies v. Ridge Davies v. Ridge Davies v. Raters Davies v. Waters Davies v. Dale . Davies v. Dale . Davies v. Dale . Davies v. Ridge Davies v. Dale . Davies v. Field	8 8 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1
Cropper a. Smith Crossfield (R. T.). trial o Crowdie v. Kullar Chowd Crowley v. Page Crowthier v. Appleby Cunlife v. Setton Cunningham, In re Cunningham, In re Cunningham v. Faublang Currier v. Hampton Curry v. Walter Curretu v. Touse Curtes v. Peek Curron v. Lomav Cythbertson v. Irving Cutts v. Brown	781 (	2, 787 116 990 889 995 505 124 416 866 400 606 786 786 786 753 651 691	tary of State for India Damodhar Gordhan v Deoram Kar 443, 448, 449, 450, Damodar Dase v Mahiram Pandol Dan v Brown Dannell v Potter Daniel v Potter Daniel v Wilkin Danmull v B L S. N Co Darbla Venhamma v Raina Su barayudu Darby v Gusely Dasarath Mandal v R. Dattarji v Kaiba Dattarji v Kaiba Dattarja v Venayak Dattarja, Is re Datto v Ram Chandra S80, David, In the matter of Davice E porte Davice v Lowndes Davice v Ridge Davice v Ridge Davice v Waters Davice v Davice s	8 8

PAGE.	PAGE
Davis v Hutchings 199	Dewan Run t. Indarpal Singh 05:
Davis v. Lloyd	Dhan Bibi e Lalon Bibt 72
Davis's Trusts, In re 452, 539	Dhanka v. Umrao Singh 77-
Davlata e. Ganesh Shastree 634, 670	Dhanmull r Ramchunder Chose 322, 759
Dawan Singh v Mahip Singh 840	76
Dawson v. Rokeby . 810	Dhanookdharee Sahee v Toomey 31
Day v Trig	Dhanukdan Singh e Nathima Sahu 67:
Dayal Jairaj v. Khatav Ladha . 748	Dharam Das v Ganga Devi ., 56
Dear v. Knight 882, 883
Debi Churn r Issur Chunder 691	Dharman Vaman v Gurrav Shrimvas 21:
Debi Rai v. Gokul Prasad 752	Dham Singh e Hur Pershad 68
Dept Test & Contra statement	Cillian Canga C Colonia C
Debt Singh t R 643 Debtath Roy v. Gudadhur Des 786	Distribute Control of the first
DeBretton v DeBretton & Holme 798, 804	District Confidence of the DeBussche v Alt 768
Deby Prasad v. Dowlut Singh . 4	Diction Dickersian Cathograph
DeLassalle v Guildford . 578	Duongo Dinkaji e Ganesa Dinkaji (18 things lightenancing t. Danktonan
	Gornia 00
2.0000100000000000000000000000000000000	, Duamina ( 10mm
	num stones a partoothum sest 61 Duning Razi, in the matter of the рениот ој 71
De Ross Pearson	Dianockanaree Lant E Ganpae Inti
. 200 24003 E corogo	Dhunput Singn, In re 45
Dinomoni Devi v Roy Luchmiput	Drumput Singh v. Gooman Singh ., 74
	1/Unither puller & Manomed 1/2-
Denonath v. Hurry Natain 648, 72: Denonath Batabyal v. Adhor Chun-	zim 100, 19
	Dhunput Singh r Russomoyee Chow-
Dengo Singh v. Doorga Pershad 451	daram
	Daurmadas Gnosa r. Broamo Dutt 75 and a second of the second	Dourm Das v Shama Boonduri 647, 72
Deolit v. Pitamber 61 Deokinandan v Sriram 35	Dickinson v. Innaortants of Frien-
Deo Kuar v Man Kuar 653, 69	Durgn 42
Deoli Chand v. Nerban Singh 77	Dickson F 137 and
Deo Nath v Peer Khan	4
Depy. Comer. of Bara Bankı v. Ram	5 Dil Gazi v R 14
Parshad 307, 341, 34	Dina Nath Das v. Matimala Dassya 99
Depy, Legal Remembrancer v. Karuna
Boistobi 117, 192, 197, 254, 255, 281	lick 99 Dinamoyee Debi v Bon Behari Ka-
643, 678, 68
Depy. Legal Remembrancer r. Mir	1
	Dinendionath Sannial v Ramkumar 1
De Rosaz, In the goods of 61	(1100)
De Ross Peerage Case . 49	Dinkar v. Apaji 22' Dinnonath Sen v. Gurvchurn Pal 75:
De Ross Peerage Cese 42 Derry r. Peak 199, 20	Dinnonath Sen v. Gurvchurn Pal , 75
Desar Motilal v. Parashotam Nadlal 09
Dessi Rancheddas r. Rawai Nathu-	Dinomoney Daben v Doorgapershad Mozoovider 453.754, 789
bai te	4 Dinamoni Chandhani - 754, 789
DeSouza r. Pestanji
Devachand v. Hirachand Kamrai 98	4 Di D-12 D-13 D-14 D-15 D-15 D-15 D-15 D-15 D-15 D-15 D-15
Devaji Gaja r Godabhai Goda-	- memori bent nov Lacinapat 3, 8
bhai 550.75	1 Dinonath Mukern v. Gopal Churn
Devala Co , Re

Dintarini Debi, In the matter of the petition of —	PAGE.	Page,
Dirtamin Dehr & Doubo Chundra   760	Dintarins Debi, In the matter of the	Doe e. Wolley 545
Dintarnii Debi e Doibo Chundra   676   Doe d Bullen r. Milli   720   Dis Singh e, Girand Singh   720   Die d. Child r. Ree	petition of 673, 843	Doe d. Barlow e. Wiggins 788, 789, 792
Discreth Varadar & Krishnasami Ay-   yangar	Dintarini Debi r. Doibo Chundra 676
Discreth Varada v Krishnasami Ay- yangar	b: 0 1 0 10 1	D 1 (0.11) D
Diverth   Varada e   Krishnasmi   Ay-yangar
yangar	Divethi Varada e Krishnasami Av-
Dwan Rau r   Indarpal Singh   724   Doe c   Glibert r, Ross	yangar 488, 990
Doe r. Allen
Doe r. Bartnes	Doe v. Allen 145, 616
Doe v   Barton	Doe v. Barnes 355
Doe r. Beriss	Doe v Parton
Doe t. Bird	Doe v Beviss 315
Doe c. Bover         910         Doe d. Lloyd r. Passingham         236           Doe r. Cartwright         562         Doe d. Lloyd r. Passingham         336           Doe r. Date         816, 824         Doe d. Marrioft r. Edwards         792           Doe r. Daves         309, 319, 322         Doe d. Passingham         782           Doe r. Daves         309, 319, 322         Doe d. Person r. Ries         . 558           Doe v. Deakin         732         Doe d. Spencer r. Beckett         790           Doe v. Deakin         732         Doe d. Spencer r. Beckett         750           Doe v. Ford         575         Doe d. Wright r. Tatham         465           Doe v. Gosley         850         Dolder e. Huntungfield         43           Doe v. Gosley         850         Dolder e. Huntungfield         448           Doe v. Griffin         732         Dolder e. Huntungfield         43           Doe v. Griffin         732         Dolder e. Huntungfield         43           Doe v. Harver         565, 661         Doiler e. Huntungfield         43           Doe v. Hertefort         819         Dooler s. Griffin         596           Doe v. Jaincey         814         Dooman Lall r. Pudmun Singh         663 <td< td=""><td>Doe r. Bird 230</td><td></td></td<>	Doe r. Bird 230
Doe v. Bray         350         Doe d. Lloyd v. Passingham         336           Doe v. Date         815, 824         Doe d. Controlled and the property of the	Doe c. Bover 919
Doe t. Cartwright	Doe v Bray 350
Doe r. Date   S15, 824   Doe d Pearson r. Ries	Doe v. Cartwright, 562
Doe n. Deakin	Doe v. Date 815, 824	Doe d Pearson v. Ries
Doe v. Deakin	Doe v. Davies 309, 319, 322	Doe d Plevin r. Brown 789, 792
Doe v. Ford	Doe v. Deakin
Doe v. Ford	Doe v. Derby 329	Doe d. Spilsbury v. Burdett 503
Doe r. Frankis         . 148         Doe d. Wright r. Tathan         . 485           Doe v. Goriffin         . 732         Dolder t. Huntungfield         . 485           Doe v. Harvey         . 560, 561         Dolder t. Huntungfield         . 481           Doe v. Harvey         . 560, 561         Dolz r. Morris         . 411           Doe v. Harvey         . 560, 561         Dolz r. Morris         . 623           Doe v. Hertford         . 819         Domun Lall r. Pudmun Singh         . 663           Doe v. James         . 818, 905         Domun Lall r. Pudmun Singh         . 663           Doe v. Jones         . 315         Dooke K. Kedar Nath Chucker           Doe v. Jones         . 315         Dookel A. Takkoor r. Ram Lall         . 607           Doe v. Kelly         . 839, 904         Doorga Churn v. Shoshee Bhoosun         . 848           Doe v. Kelly         . 452         Doorga Churn v. Shoshee Bhoosun         . 848           Doe v. Lleyd         . 452         Doorga Churn v. Spothee Bhoosun         . 384           Doe v. Redg         . 616         Doorga Churn v. Spothee Bhoosun         . 384           Doe v. Redd         . 616         Doorga Dass v. Doorga Churn         . 384           Doe v. Petkint         . 901         Doorga Dass v. Nuernd	Doe v. Ford 575
Doe v   Hawkins   Solo   Solo   Domin Lal Sahu v   Roshan Dubey	Doe v. Frankis
Doe v Griffin	Doe v. Gosley 850	Dolder v. Huntingfield 448
Doe v. Hawkins
Doe r. Hertford	Doe v Harvey 560, 561
Doe v. James		239, 565
Doe v. James		Domun Lall v. Pudmun Singh 663
Doe v Jauneey		Donzelle v. Kedar Nath Chucker-
Doe v. Kelly
Doe v. Kelly   S39, 904   Doorgrasser Byde v. Gridharee Mull   637
Doe n. Kemp         159         Doorga Churn v. Shoshee Bhoosun         384           Doe v. Langdon         824         Doorga Churn v. Syud Najunood.           Doe v. Ladyd         452         Doorga Churn v. Syud Najunood.           Doe v. Morris         493         Doorga Dasv v. Doorga Churn v. Seed.           Doe v. Needs         616         Doorga Dasv v. Doorga Churn v. Seed.           Doe v. Perking         901         Doorga Dasv v. Doorga Churn v. Seed.           Doe v. Perking         901         Doorga Dasv v. Doorga Churn v. Seed.           Doe v. Perking         901         Dorah Ally v. Abdool Azeze         237, 451           Doe v. Pettett         236         Dorsaamy v. Muthusamy         688           Doe v. Pettett         233         Dowley v. Winfield         732           Doe v. Powllman         109         Dowling v. Dowling         158           Doe v. Roboon         313         Doyackand Shaha r. Anund Chundra elevation         667           Doe v. Robe         230, 478, 484, 492, 518, 904         Doyle v. Hart         732           Doe v. Steel         215         Dravalnéhi Panda r. Kela Panda         667           Doe v. Steel         215         "Dravalnéhi Panda r. Kela Panda         667           Doe v. Steel         213 </td <td></td> <td></td>
Doe v Langdon
Doe r. Lleyd         452         deen         668, 679           Doe r. Norris         498         Doorga Dave r. Doorga Churn         388           Doe v. Needs         616         Doorga Dave r. Doorga Churn         171           Doe v. Perking         901         Doorga Pershad r. Kesho Pershad         638           Doe v. Perking         901         Dorah Ally v. Abdool Azes         237, 451           Doe v. Pettett         236         Dorsaamy v. Muthusamy         668           Doe v. Pettett         236         Dowdan T. Blakey         818           Doe v. Powell         333, 334         Dowely r Winfield         732           Doe v. Rye         145         Downs v Cooper         790, 792           Doe r. Roe         435, 830         Doyanidhi Panda r. Kela Panda         667           Doe v. Steel         213         Doyle r. Hart         732           Doe v. Steel         215         "Drachenfels." The "Retriever" v.         75           Doe v. Steel         215         "Drachenfels." The "Retriever" v.         75           Doe v. Turford         305, 305, 308, 316         Draupre. The c.         662           Doe v. Webber         229         Drinkwater v. Porter         312           Doe w. Webber <td></td> <td></td>
Doe r. Needs
Doe n. Needs
Doo v. Perkins
Dos. Perkint
Doe v. Pettett   226
Doe e. Phillips	*
Doe r. Powell   333, 334   Dowley r Winfield   732
Doe r. Pulman   169   Dowling v. Dowling v
Doe n. Pye     145   Downs r Cooper   700, 762	-
Doe r. Robson
Doe r. Roe         Ass. 530         Doyandhil Panda r. Kela Panda         667           Doe r. Steel
Doo r. Steel   215 "Drachentels," The "Retriever" r.		Doyanidhi Panda v. Kelat Panda 667
Doe r Suckermore	Doe r. Ross 230, 478, 484, 492, 518, 904	Doyle r. Hart 735
Due r. Thomas         .         .         815         the         .         .         410, 412, 420           Due r. Turford         .         303, 306, 308, 316         Draun r. Browne         .	Doe v. Steel 215
Doe r. Turford		"Drachenfels," In the matter of Doe r. Vowles       .       313       Draupner, The .       . <t< td=""><td></td><td></td></t<>
Doe v. Westlake 239 Drinkwater v. Porter 317 Doe v. Westlake 616 Dubey Sahai v. Ganeshi Lal 101
Doe v. Westlake 616 Dubey Sahai v. Ganeshi Lal 101
Doe v. Witcomb., 326, 489 Durga Das v. Norendro Coomar 382
	200 v. 1111comb., 326, 459	Durga Das r. Norendro Coomar 382

	P	SGE.		I	, IOF
Du Bost r. Beresford .		328		••	678
Duchess of Kingston's Case		389		• •	804
Duke r, Ashby		785		• •	230
Dake of Devonshire r. O'Connor	• •	103	Ely v. Caldecott .	••	320
Duke of Leeds v Earl of Amherst		768	Enayet Hoosein : Deedar Bux		744
Dukhi Mullah t. Halway		101	Enayetollah Meah t Nubo Coom	ar	347
Dullab Sirkar v. Krishna Kumar	768,	769	Enayutoolah t. Elaheebuksh	.,	744
Duncombe t Daniell	455.		England d Syburn v. Slade		792
Dungariya e. Nand Lal .		780	English r Tottie .		825
Dunne r. Legge		667	Eranjoh Illath r. Eranjoh Illath		18
Dunne v. Dharani Kanta Labiri		360	Eranjoli Vishnu t Eranjoli Kris	h-
Durga v. Jhinguri .		788	nan	٠.	773
Durga Das v Samash Akon		792			775
Durga Dihal e Anoraji .	•	812	Erfanoonissa v. Pearce Mohun	٠.	660
Durga Prosad v Bhajan Lal	263	. 596			317
Durga Prosan v Bhajan 140 Dwarka Bunia v R .		432	n. n n		691
	ksh	702	Eshan Chandra Samanta : Nil 310
Dwaren Dass e Sant Da		2 006	Singh	.	165
Dwarka Doss e. Baboo Jankee		345	Eshan Chunder z. Protab Chunder		618
Dwarks Noth v Tara Soonduree		348	70.1 (0. )		389
Dwarks Nath v. Unnoda Soondu		752	Eshan Chundra v Shama Charan	• •	11:
Dwarkanath Bose r Chandce Ch		223	Eshoor Dass t Venkatasuba Rau		591
Dwarkanath Chattopadhya t B		223	Eugene Aram's Case		145
		600	France - Doesle	•	206
goban Panda  Dwyer v Collins 483, 49  Dyer v. Pearson .	. 40	7 010	Pourson D	•
Dwyer v Cours 403, 40	,, 48	770	70	•	733
Dyer v. rearson .	•	110		• •	424 863
E			72	••	384
E I. Co. v. Tritton		734	72 11 75 75 45 15	• •
E I. Co. v. Tritton E I. Ry. Co. v. Kalidas Mui		104		•	421
	kerji 26, 72	7 724	Exerci Watren	• •	316
		819
Eade v. Jacoba . Earl's Trust, In re		539	F
Earl of Bandon v Becher		394	Fabrigas : Mostyn		243
Earl of Darnley v. Proprietor,		034	Fackeroodeen Adam Saw, In the me		243
of London, Chatham and D					379
	••••	601	Facz Bux r. Fakiru'ldın Mahomed
Eastern Counties, &c , Compani		001	Fairlie v. Denton
		1. 102	Fairlie t Hastings 221,	225	996
Eaton v Swansea Waterworks		387			760
Ebrahira Pir v. Cursetjee Sorabj			There are the second		83.5
Ecker r McAllister		733	D		484
Eckowrie Singh r. Heera			Faizun-nissa r. Hanif-un-nissa 58
127, 30	62, 45	8, 471			604
Ede v. Kantho Nath		681	Fakeeruddeen Mahomed v Office	al	004
Edgington r. Fitzmaurice		192	Trustee		372
Edie r. Kingsford		305	· Fakir Muhammad v. Tirumala Chari	ar	450
Edmunds r. Groves	٠.	453	Falconer v. Hanson		368
Edmunds r. Groves Edwards, Ex parte Edwards r. Muller Edwards s. Toulls	11, 31	2, 315	" Falls of Ettrick," In the matt.	er	3113
Edwards r. Muller	• •	840	0/		381
Edwards t. Toulls	14	8, 149	Fant Rhusan Bancrit v Suriva Kant	la.	301
Ekowrie Singh e. Kylash Chund	ler	550	Row Chowdhry		682
Elabre Buksh, In the matter of	••	923	Fanindra Nath Ranguing - 17	716	893
Elzin Mills Co. v. Muir Wills Co.		ಣಾ	Faridumissa, In re		840
Eliot c. Boyles	••	859	Farmlor v. Bain		77-

		P	IGE.			P	AGE.
Farquharson v. Dwarka	nath Sin			Ford r Agar			792
-		4.	317	Ford r. De Pontes			815
Farr r. Price .			987	Ford r. Yates			555
Farrar r. Beswick			739	Fordham r. Wallis			232
Farrar e. Hutchinson			776	Fordyce r. Bridges			102
Farrow r Blomfield			246	Forceter v. Secy. of State			450
Farzand Ali Khan r Bi	smill sh I	Be.		Forshaw r Lewis			818
gum			753	Foster, Ex parte			115
Fatrehand Harchand r	Kisan		986	Foster, Re			455
Fatimunnissa Begum r. S			782	Foster r. Hall			815
Fatma r. Darya			375	Foster r. Mackinnon			796
Fatteh Singji r Barnanı	1.		794	Foster r. Pointer		٠.	392
Faulkner r Brine			892	Foster r. Shaw			387
Fawkes r Lamb			604	Foulkes r. Chadd			137
Fazlar Rahman r Raj C	hunder		631	Fountain r. Boodle			427
Feeham, R.		٠.	367	Fowler v. Fowler			825
Fegredo r. Mahomed Mu		•	655	Fowler r. Savage			387
Felder r State .		•	303			31, 233,	234
Fellowes r Williamson		189	245	Foxall r. International L.	and C	redit
Feltham. In the matter			60.5				187
Fenn r. Griffith	" .	·	559	Framji r. Mohansing Dh		7. 8.	103.
Fenner r. Duplock	788.	. 792		812, 813, 814,
Fenner r. S. E. R. Co.			821	Framji Hormusji e. Comn
Fenwick r. Thornton			234				718
Fergusson r Govt.			347			784,	792
Fernander r Alves			505	Franklin Bank r. Pensylv		), &
Ferrand e. Milligan			917	M. S. N. Co		224,	225
Few c. Guppy			824	Fraser, Re			391
Fielder r. Ray'			360	Freeman e. Arkell			489
Finch r. Finch	•		836	Freeman e Cooke 754, 763	3, 765.	770, 77	8,
Fisher r. Owen			823				779
Fisher r. Ronalds			826	Freeman r. Cox		148,	149
Fitz r. Rabbits			459	Freeman r. Fairlie		•-	354
Fitzgerald r. Dressler			740	Freeman r. Phillips		••	319
Fitzgerald r. Fitzgerald			336			••	326
Fitzhardinge r. Purcell			418	Frein r. L. C. & D. R. Co	-		822
Flatau, Ex parte			391	Freshfield r. Reed		••	503
Fleming r Fleming			. 730	Friedlander e. London	Assur	ance
Fleming r. Gooding			785			••	880
Fletcher r. Braddyll			207		1	19, 356,
Fletcher v. Froggatt			217		•-	399,
Flower v. Lloyd	••	• •	391	Fulli Bibi r. Banisuddi Me			670
Foakes r. Webb		••	816				100
Folkes r. Chadd	••	402	, 413	Furness Withy Co. r. Hall			376
Follett r. Jefferyes			, 814	Fureelun Bibee r. Omdah			729
Foolcoomary Dasi r. We	oody Chu	nder	380	Fuzloodeen Khan r. Fa	kir 31
Fool Kissory r. Nobin C	hunder 3	333,		m≪d	•-	••	744
			, 825	G
Forbes e. Ameeroonissa	Begum		533				397
Forbes v. Meer Mahom	rd 222, (	636,		G. r. M. L. R G. L. P. Ry. Co. r. Hanns	   F		٠,٠
			672			775.	-07
Forbes r. Mir Mahome	ed 235,3 292_69				••		450
Park Mr			144			···
Forbes r. Watt	••	765	1,700	Gajendur Sinch e. Sardar			723
Ford, Ex parts	••	•••				••

	PAGE	ľ	16 2.
		Gheran v Kunj Behart 767, 768	, 769
Gajraj Puri e. Achaibar Puri		Ghirdharee Singh v Koolahul Singh	644
Gale v. Williamson	686, 736	Gholaub Koonnarce t. Eshur Chan-
Galpin t. Page		des	752
Ganee Mahomed r. Tarini Charan		Ghulam Ah Shah e Shahbal Singh	645
Ganes v. Lanesborough		Gibbs. In re	607
Ganesh v. Purshottam	239	Gibson t. Doeg	740
Ganesh Lal v. Bapu	. 758		185
Ganesh Daji r Sukharam Ram	752	Gibson t Hunter	105
Ganesh Jagannath r Ramcha	ngta	Gilbert v Endean
Ganesh	. 350		1,811
Ganga v. Murli Dhur	. 732	Gill : Gill	676 818
Gangadhar Sikhdar r. Azımu	ıddın	Gillard : Bates
Shah	743	Gillies a Smithers	:01
Gangamoyi Debi v Troduckya	Nath	Girdhar Nagpshet : Ganpat Moro-
Chowdri	714	ba 144, 98
Ganga Dei v Shiam Sundar	502	Girdharee Lall t Kantoo Lall	657
Ganga Prasad v. Ajudhia Persh	ad 658	Girdharee Lall t Modho Roy	458
Ganga Prasad r. Bhagat Singh	. 23‡	Girdharee Singh v Lalloo Koonwur	776
Ganga Ram : Amit Chand	. 559	Girdhari Singh : Hurdeo Narain	753
Ganga Bam v. Chandan Singh	681	Girdharlal Dayaldas : Jaganath Gir-
Ganga Ram r. Secretary of Sta		dharbhar	667
India	. 672	Girdlestone t Brighton Aquarium Co	394
Ganga Sahai v Hıra Singh	. 778	Girindra Chandra i Nogendra Nath 35	1, 362
Ganges Manufacturing Co. v. Se		Girindra Chundra : Rajendro Nath	130
mull 751, 755, 756,		Girindra Nath : Bejoy Gopal Muker-
Gangulee v. Ancha Bapulu	658		2, 503
Ganouri Lal r R	467	Ginsh Chunder : Bhugwan Chunder	416
Gunpat Rao v. Ganpat Rao			9, 380
Gunpat Rao e. Ram Chandra	555	Girish Chunder r R
Gardner v. Irvin	. 816		3, 222
Gardner v. Moult	. 242	"Glencoe" The	673
Gardner V. Mout.	410, 423	Goberdhan Singh r. Ritu Roy	772
Garnett, In re	836	Goberdhun Lall r Singessur Dutt	658
Garnett, In re	225, 226, 227	Gobind Chander t. Doorgapersaud 64
Garurudhwaja v Saparandhwa		Gobind Chunder v Sri Gobind .	171
417, 419, 421,	450, 466, 644	Gobind Das v. Sarju Das	565
Garvey v. Hibbert	539	Gobind Lall r. Debendronath Mul-	5113
Gaskill v. Skene	149		666
Gasper v. Mytton	713		636
Gathercole v Minll	489		684
Gatty r. Try	862		836
Gaurand r. Edison Goner Bel		Golanda Nath Shaha Chowdhry v.	630
phone Co	815	Quein Transla Tata !	789
Gaur Mohan v. Tarachand	725	Coblet or Possilion	625
Gaya Prasad r. Bhagat Singh	338		523
Gee r. Ward	319	Co es Counts	~~~
Genda Puri e Chhattur Puri	656	0-131- 01-1	752
George r Surrey	415	Coff Mills	18, 733
George v. Thyer	730		838
George Whitchurch, Ld. r. Ca		dul
Gerish r Chartier	187	Corne Chunder v. D	681
Getty r. Getty	216		388
Ghasti e Umrio Jan	165	Praninal Prem.	0.045
Gharace Khan r Kulloo	747	Goka Presed a Dadka
Oellabhai e. Nandabhai	601, 614	Cakest Posts D 17	445
		Consol Krista e, David 66	6, 712

PAGE.	Page.
Gokul Chunder v. Nilmoney Mitter . 606	Gopce Mohun v. Abdool Rajah 344
Gokul Dichit " Maharaj Dichit 356	Gopeenath Naik v. Jadoo Ghose 772
Golam Ali t. Tagore 662	Gopeenath Singh v Anund Moyee
Golam Nubee r Bissonath Kur 690	127, 361, 714
Golap Chand r Thakurani Moho-	Gopi Nath v. Bhugwat Persaud 741
koom	Gopi Wasadev v. Markande Nara-
Golden River Mining Co. v. Buxton	yan 772
Mining Co 856	Gorachand Sircar v. Ram Narain 127,
Goloke Chunder r. Magistrate of	329, 847, 855
Chittagong 218	Gorakh Babaji v. Vithal Narayan 639
Goluck Chunder r. Raja Sreemurd 458	0 1 0 1
Goluck Kishore r. Nund Mohun 458	Gordon Stuart & Co r. Beejoy Go-
	Goreti Subbarow v Virgonda Nara-
Goodrich r. Venkanna 760	simhamon 600
Goodright : Harwood 675	Goriboolla Kazee v. Gooroodas Roy
Goodright : Saul 423	460, 461, 471
Goodtitle v. Southern 617, 618	Gorrison t. Perrin 624
Goodwin v. Parton 235	Gosham Tota v Rajah Rickmu-
Goomanee, In the matter of 119, 458	nee 917, 918, 919, 922
Gooroo Pershad v. Bykunto Chunder	Goss v Lord Nugent 599
132, 358, 546	Goss : Quinton 488
Gooroo Doss t. Huronath Roy 665	Goss v. Watlington 231
Gooroo Doss v. Issur Chunder . 741	Gossain Dass v. Siroo Koomaree 649, 665
Gooroo Pershad r. Juggobundoo Mo	Gossam Rambhartt v Gosavi Ishvar-zoomdar 671	bhartı 644
Gooroo Pershad v. Kales Pershad 650	Gour Hurs v Amirunessa Khatoon 794
Gooroo Prosunno v Nil Madhub 655, 722	Gour Lall t Mohesh Naram 213, 222
Gopal v Dasarath Set 374	Gour Lall r Rameswar Bhumik 788
Gopat r Kanaram 650	Gour Monee v Hurce Kishore . 358
Gopal v. Krishna 714, 715	Gour Monee v. Krishna Chunder . 776
Gopal v Mageshwar 374	Gour Paroy v Woma Sounduree 548, 550,
Gopal v. Narayan 776	690
Gopalasamı Chettı v. Aruna Chel-	Gour Sundar v Hem Chunder . 237
lam 323, 423, 699, 724	Gour Surun v Kanhya Singh 482
Gopalayyan r. Raghupatiayyan 162,	Goura Chandra v Secretary of State 769
164, 165, 184, 773	Gource Naram t. Madhoosoodun
Gopal Chunder v. Herembo Chunder 743	Dutt 640
Gopal Chunder v. Madhub Chunder 362	Gource Dass r Jagunnath Roy 785, 791
Gopal Chunder v. Sarat Chunder 768	Government v Gridbaree Lall 788
Gopal Chunder v. Umesh Narain 664	Govinda v Josha Premaji 634, 635
Gopal Lall v Manick Lall 849, 913	Govinda Kuar v. Lala Kishun 772, 773
Gopal Lall v. Tiluck Chunder 661, 741	Govindasami v. Kuppusami 681
Gopal Mundul r Nobbo Kishen 342, 347	Govind Atmaram v Santai 635
Gopal Naram t. Muddomutty 227, 774	Govinda Priya v. Ratan Dhupi . 662
Gopal Narhar v. Hamant Ganesh . 644	Govindii Jhuver 1. Chhotalal Velsi 174, 224
Gopal Sahu e Joyram Tewary 751	Govindray Deshmukh r Ragho
Gopanund Jha v Lalla Gobind 663, 793	Deshmukh 355
Gopaul Chunder t. Gour Monee . 777	Govind Vaman r. Sakharam Ram-
Gopeckristo Gossain r. Gungaper-	chandra 752
eaud 636, 648, 651, 723, 740	Gowree Narain r. Modhoosoodun
Gopee Lall r Musst, Sree Chundrao-	Dutt 640
lee 216, 291, 454, 774, 780	Gown Patrs v. Reiley 662

PAGE,	Page.
Grace v. Baynton 248	Gulaniali e Miyabhai 680
Grant v. Byjnath Tewaree 548	Gully * Bp of Exeter 489
Grant v. Maddov 624	Gulzar Alı v Feda Ali 783
Grant r Norway 775	Gulzarı Mal r. Vadho Ram ., 238
Grant v. Robinson 743	Gummanee Kazee v Hurryhur Muk.
Gravenor v. Woodhouse 788, 792	erjee 672
Graves v. Key 754, 776	Guman Gallubhai & Sorabji Burjorn 458
Gray v. Warner 696	Gumanı Singh e. Chakkar Singh 638
Great Western Railway Co. v Mc-	Gunga Bishen r Ram Gut 788
Carty 698	Gungadhur Singh v. Bimola Dassee 671
Great Western Radway Co. v. Wil-	Gunga Gobind e Bhopal Chunder . 667
hs 225, 226	Gungamala Chowdhrain r Madhub
Greaves v Greenwood 732
Green v New River Co 386	Gungamoyec Debi v Apurba Chandra 353
Green's Settlements, In re 682
Greender Chunder v. Mackintosh . 198	Gunga Naram r Radhika Mohun 537 Gunga Naram Gupta r. Tiluckram
Greender Chunder e Troyloko Nauth 749
Greenough v. Eccles 881, 882, 883	C
Greenough v. Gaskell 799, 813, 814, 816, 817, 818
Greenshields v. Henderson . 732	Gunga Pershad r Ramphul Sahoo 733
Greensdale v. Dare ., 197, 400	Gungaram Ghose v Kalipado Ghose 990 Gunga Sahai v Lekhraj Singh 108
Greesh Chunder v Musst, Bhuggo-	Gunnales Barrel Lekhraj Singh 198
butty 698	Gunindra Prasad v Bainjath Singh 754 Gunjra Kuar v Ablakli Pande 351
Greeg v. Wells 754, 767, 778	Gunnesh Date . 351
Gregory v. Doidge , 792	Gunnesh Dutt v Wugneersm Chow-
Gregory v. Dooley Chund 329, 336
Gregory v Howard 222, 249	Gunnesh Pattro r Ram Nidhee 390
Gregory v. Molesworth 372	Gupta Narain v Rijoya Sundari . 990
Grellier v Neale	Gurdayal Mai r Jhandu Mai 162, 184, 383 Gureebullah Sirkar r Mohun Lall 101
Grey v. Redman 314	Corporation Co.
Gridhar Hari v. Kalıkant Roy 678, 679	0-1
Gridhari Lall v. Govt of Bengal . 656	Gurulangaman . 350
Griffin v Brown 387	Gurulingaswami v. Ramalakshmam.
Griffin v. Mason
Griffith v Hughes 762	Gurunath Shrinivas v Chenbasappa 990 Gurusami Chetti v Sadasiva Chetti 658
Grish Chander v. Iswar Chandra 139, 291,
779, 781	Gutee Koiburto v Bhukut Koiburto
Grish Chunder v Mohesh Chunder 645
Grish Chunder v. R 806, 807	Gutty r. Fry 986
Grish Chunder v Soshi Shikharesh-	4 4 war 571
Grish Chunder r. Bhagwan Chunder 789	Gyan Chunder r Durga Churn 752
Guardhouse v Blackburn . 595
Gudadhur Banerjee e. Tara Chand	Ħ
Banerjee 358, 361	Habi Bullah r. R 836
Gudadhur Paul v. Bhyrub Chunder 549	Hadley a Damendala
Guddalur Ruthna r Kunnatur	Madlan - Cart
Arumuga 576, 577, 578, 598, 599	Harder Aless About Mr.
Gugden r. Brett 508	Harder Khan v Secretary of State
Guijo Koer v Aalay Ahmed 347	for India in Council . 686, 740
Gujju Lall v. l'atteh Lall 7, 101, 102, 103,	Hugh a Decele
128, 133, 163, 164, 166, 169, 170, 171,	Harmun Chull v. Koomar Gunesheam 743
173, 176, 177, 181, 183, 317, 382, 385,	Haines v. Guthrie 321
386, 417	Hait Singh v. Dahis Singh

PAGE-

Haji e Gohna 687, 693	Hari Chintaman v. Moro Laksh-
Haji Khan e, Baldeo Dass 634	man 306, 309, 314, 398, 548, 549, 68	2,
Haji Mahomed e. E. Spinner & Co. 144,		68
604, 624	Hari Churn Singh r R	56
Haji Sahoo e, Ayesha Bai 159	Hari Das v. Ghansam Naram	66
Hakim Khan r. Gool Khan 723	Harikishore Mitra e, Abdul Baki 111.	80
Hakim Muhammad v. Najeban 696, 698	Hari Khardu e. Dhondt Nath	68
Hakiman v. R 210, 290		60
		64
Y 11 TO 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1		74
		33
	Harish Chandra r Prosunno Coo-	., 601
		66
Haller e. Worman . 147, 230, 455		66.
Halliday v. Holgate . 896
Hallmark's case 197		38
Hamilton v Nott 819		37
Hamilton v Tennant 137	Haroprosad v. Sheo Dayal 115,
Hamlin v. G. N. R. Co 161	Harratt v. Wise . 197,
Hammond v. Bradstreet 318, 326	Harripria Debi v Rukmini Debi 481,
Hampden v. Walks 148, 149		248
Hanmantrao v. Secy. of State for	Harris v Brown	623
India 460, 692	Harris e. G. W. R. Co	691
Hanooman Prosad v. Musst Babooe	Harris r Knight . 490,	730
653, 654, 747, 775	Harris v Rickett 576,	578
Hanson v. Parker . 233	Harrison v Barton .	14
Hanuman Dat v. Assadula 769	Harrison : Mayor 700,	730
Hanuman Dutt v. Kishen Kishore . 658	Harrod v Harrod 700,	730
Hanuman Kamat v Dowlut Mun-	Harshankar Partab Singh t. Lal Rag-
dar	huraj Singh	722
Hanuman Singh v Nanak Chand	Hart r Hart 489, 544,	738
657, 658	Hart v Newman	214
Hara Coomer v. Doorgamon: 380	Hartley v Wilkinson , , ,	575
Haradhun Roy t. Hulodhur Chun-	Harvey v Croydon Union	151
der , 789	Harvey v. Farme	381
Harak Chand v Bishnu Chandra	Harvey v Francis .	788
130, 590, 599	Hasali v Dhondnam	347
Haran Chunder v Russick Chunder 988	Hasha Khand v Jesha Peman	580
Haranand Roy v Ram Gopal 461, 474,	Haskins v Warren 4	120
482, 498, 514, 521	Haslam v Hall. 819, 8	321
Haranund Roy e Chettangia Ram 541	Hathaway v Haskell . :	232
Hara Sundari z. Kumar Dukhinessur 752	Hatun r R . 449, 4	167
Harbans e, R . 142	Hawke, Re	185
Harbans Lal a Maharajah of	Hawkes v Drager 7	104
Benares . 662	Hawkes v Salter 5	207
Harbuns Sahat r Bhairo Pershad 5	Hawkins, Re 5	391
Harding v Crethorne 144, 197	Hawkins v Warre , 560, 5	62
Harding r Jones . 249		24
Harding v. Williams . 995	Haynes v McDermott . 5	08
Hardwick v Coleman 193		48
Handy's trial . 800		39
Harcehur Majoomdar e Churn Maj-	Head r Head
hee 7, 128	Heane r Rogers 244, 246, 291, 7
Hargrave r Hargrave . 423, 701		63
Hari r Lakshman 769		24

_	_			Pac	116.
	GE.	Trans. Brook			37.5
neugicy t from	754	Hitchins & Basset .			787
	786	Hitchman t Waltman			38
Heela Ban t. Baharanti on Princip	660	Hoare r. Corvion	•
	671	Hoare v. Graham .			571
Heinger z. Droy 318.	381	Hodges r London Delbi Ba	nk		508
Helan Dasi r Durga Das Mundalı 635,	757	Hodgson. In re .			336
Helena, The	378	Hodsoll z Taylor .			181
	789	Hoghton : Hoghton .		:	248
Hemanta Kumari Debi r. Jogendro		Holbard t Stephene .			560
Nath Roy	665	Holcombe r Hewson .			136
Hem Chandra r. Kalı Prosanno 244.		Holding v Cliott		••	775
306, 313, 634.	715	Roldsworth + Dinsdale			249
Hem Chunder t. Kally Churn 580, 58			136 13	7, 201,	711
	584	Holloway. Re	.00,		822
	51 0	Holme- 1 Mathews			580
	713	Holt Er parte			249
Hem Lotta r. Sreedhone Barooa		Holt & Co : Collyer			621
	648				752
Henderson, In the goods of 447. 534		Holt / Jesse		-
Henderson t. Carbondale Coal Co .	739	Holt & Squire	•		229
Henderson & Co. s. Williams .	797			810,
	873	Honapa e Narsapa		772,
Hennessy r. Wright 5, 799, 809, 810,		Hood : Lady Beaucham	P		321
	1, 906	Hoperaft : Keys			792
Henry Coxon, The	308	Hope t Hope			295
Henry Francis Blanford, In the goods		Hope : Liddell			825
of	536	Horendra Narain v Chan		nta	502
Henry Packer, In the goods of	535	Hormasji Karsetji i Pedo			450
Henry v. Leigh	483	Hormusji i Baidhanbaij	1		379
Henry v. Marquis of Westmeath .	539				902
Herembolhev Dharmdhardev t. Kas-		Hossain Ali e Abid Ali			452
hinath Bhaskar	600	Hossein Buksh : R	1	16, 131,	825
Hetherington v. Kemp 20	5, 307	Houldsworth t. City of	of Gla	sgow
Hetherington v. Kemp  Het Lall Roy, In re  Hev v. Moorhouse	806	Bank		••	761
Hey r. Moorhouse	562	Houliston : Smyth			738
Heyworth r. Knight!	568	How e Hall			563
Hibberd r Knight 48	4, 488	Howard & Hudson	7	65, 770	782
Hicks r. Thompson	248	Howard v. Wilson			106
Hidayut Oollah e. Rai Jan Khanum	729	Hone v. Malkin	1	46, 236	314
Higgins v. Nobin Chunder	555	Howland Will case			467
Hagana r. Senior	571	Hridey Nath v. Moholisi	inissa i	Bibce	650
Higham e. Ridgeway 309, 311, 31	3, 315	Huckvale, In re			739
Hilbourn v. Fogg	791	Huddleston : Briscoe			166
Hill r Campbell	823	Hudson v. Parker			503
Hill r Chrke	593				188
Hill r Dolt	838	Huffer v Allen			392
Hill v. Manchester, etc., Co	232				378
Hill c. Wilson	836		::		917
Hills e. Ishore Chose	449				•
Himmat Sahai r Llewhellen		dia.			738
Hirs Lal r. Datadin					212
	90, 496		:.		306
Hira Lal v. Saheb Jan	804			605	. 639
Hira Lal v. A. Hills 169, 170, 1					489
Hiran Miya. In the matter of 262.2	63, 266	Hulodhur Roy r. Jupon		•	223
Hirbai r. Gorbai					602
			••	••	002

Page.	Pac
Hungate r. Gascoigne 423	Inayet Husen v. Ali Husen 689, 6	:00
Hunooman Persad r. Munraj Kun-	Incloden t. Berry 3	80
waree 554, 635, 679		94
Hunooman Pershad Panday's case 655		31
Hunsa Koer r. Sheo Gobind 163, 171, 292	Inder Narain v. Mahomed Nazirood.
Huneraj Purmanand c. Ruttonij	deen 165, 3	:8
Walu 795		50
Hunt e Hort 611		796
Hunt r. Livermore 575		565
Hunter v. Leathley 825		360
Huntingford v. Massey 200		39:
Huntley v. Donovan 355		389
Hurdey Narain v. Rooder Perkash 659		736
Hur Dyal v. Heeralall 454		117
Hur Dyal v. Roy Kristo 635, 655		355
Hurcehui Mookerjee v. Raj Kishen		381
Mookerice . 751	Ishan Chandra Mitter r Ramrangan
		sas
Hurechur Mozoomdai v Churn Maj- bee . 7, 514, 520	Chuckerbutty 662, 6 Ishan Chundra v R . 708, 828, 8	329
hee . 7, 514, 520	Ishan Chunder v. Beni Madhub 237, 238,
Huri Ram t. Bhikari Roy 672, 683 Huri Ram t. Raj Coomar 637, 985		48
Hurrish Chunder v Prosunno Coo-		81
mar 213, 222, 477, 489, 491, 492,	Ishan Chunder v Haran Sirdar 217, 340,
		, 344
493, 514, 541 Hurish Chunder t Tara Chand 330	Ishan Chunder v. Ram Lochun 309, 0
		108
Hurjee Mull r. Imam Alı 118	Isharmal t Tejram Jagrup 9
Huronath Sircar v. Preonath Sir-		49
car 106, 213, 222, 359	Ishri Prasad i Lalji Jas . 451, 547, 7
Hurpurshad v. Sheo Dyal 164, 184 Hurrichurn Bose v. Monindra Nath 471		66
Hurrichurn Bose v. Monindra Nath 471 Hurro Chunder, Re . 803, 806, 807	Ismail Ariff t Mahomed Gous 672, 6
Hurrochunder v. Shooro Dhonee . 99
Hurro Dyal v Mahomed Ghazi 668, 679,	Ismail Khan r Aghore Nath 662, 7 Ismail Khan r Broughton 742, 7	6.0
714		29
Hurronath Mullick t. Nittanund Mul-	Ismail Khan t Joygoon Bibee 743, 7 lick 169, 183, 325, 327, 328	Ismail Khan r Mrinmoye Dassi 7
	Ismail Mussajee t Hafiz Boo 580, 696,
Hurro Soondery, In re 840 Hurry Churn r R . 449, 467, 716		98
Hurrybur Mookerjee v Abbas Ally 671	Isri Singh t Gunga 3	50
Hurryhur Mookhopadya v Madub		94
Chunder 660		53
Hurry Sunkur t Kalı Coomar 771	Issur Chunder v Russeek Lall I:	27
Hussey t Horne Payne . 561	Iswar Chundra, In the matter of . 10	05
Hutcheson r Mannington 452, 539	Ittapan t. Nanu 2.	34
Hutcheson t Smith 232	_
Hutchins v Scott 681	J
	•	14
Hutton v Warren		63
		12
Hyder Hossain r. Mahomed Hossain 723	Jackson r Thomason 681, 83
	0	٠;
I		ь7
Iftikarunissa Begum t. Amjad Ali . 735	Jacob r. Lee 1	دان د
Iggulden v May 144, 556		70
Ina Sheikh r. R 708, 709	Jacobs r. Humphrey 21	1

PAGE.	rag:
Jadabram Dey v Bulloram Dey 669, 743,	Janardan r Anant '
744, 808, 907	Jangi Nath v. Jenki Nath 75
Jadoomoney Dassee v Gungadhur	Janki v. Bhairon 55
Seal 651	Janki Pershad v Ulfat Alt 23
Jadu Lal Sahu 1. Janki Koer 445	Janmajay Mazumdar v Keshab Lal 68
Jadubar Singh r, Sheo Saran 386	Janokee Passee v Kisto Komul 648, 72
Jadunath v. Ramsoondur 690	Janoki Debi v. Gopal Acharlia 65
Jadu Nath t. Rup Lal 772	Jarao Kumarı 1 Lalonmon: 53
Jadu Rai t Bhubotaran Nundy 127, 568,	Jamett t. Kennedy 73
588, 624, 846	Jarrett : Leonard 24
Jafar Hasain r Mashuq Ali 665	Jasimuddin Biswas v. Bhuban Jelini 99
Jafar Husen v. Ranut Singh 554, 555	Jaswant Sing v Sheonarain Lal 340, 34
Jagadindra Nath v. Secretary of	50
State for India 359, 361, 743	Jayne r. Price . 72
Jagannadha Narayana r Pedda	Jayubunntssa Bibi v Kuwai Sham 47
Pakir , 742	Jehanger v Secretary of State . 81
Jagan Nath r. Mannu Lall 227	Jenkins v Bushby 819, 82
Jagannatha r Ganga Reddi 769	Jervis r Beiridge . 56
Jagannath Prasad v. Runjit Singh . 380	Jesingbhai i Hataji 79
Jagar Nath Singh v Lalta Prasad . 760	Jesus Coll v Gibbs . 48
Jagat Mohini v Rakhal Dass . 626	Jeswunt Singjee r Jet Singjee 700, 729, 84
Jagat Pal r. Jageshar Baksh 301, 308, 316,	Jethabai Duvaljee v Gudhar 99
322, 324	Jethabhai t Nathabhai 694, 764, 780, 78
Jaggers v. Binnings 232	Jetha Parkha r Ram Chandra 11
Jaggun Lall, In the matter of . 352	Jethibai - Ramchandra Narottam 98
Jaguvandas e Bai Amba 693	Jen t Wood 79
Jagobhai Lelubhai r Vij Bhukan-	Jewell r Patr 11
das 657	Jhama r Deobux , 71
Jagun Koer v Raghoo Nundun . 342	Jhinguri Tewati r Durga 779, 78
Jai Narayan r. Kadumbini Dasi 785, 786	Jhubboo Maliton, In the mutter of the
Jan Narayan r R 252, 564	prints of 850, 896, 900, 90
Jamulla Sheikh t Inu Khan . 173	Jianutullah Sirdar e Romani Kant 16
Jamutulla e Ramam Kant 172, 183	Jibanti Nath r Shib Nath 68
Japal Gir : Dharmapala 450
Jakaria e. Haji Kasım 906
Jakir Ali v Raj Chunder 447, 516, 520, 523
Jambu Ramaswamy v. Sundaraja	dhıy 23
Chetty 710
Jameela Khaton r Pagul Ram ., 164
James r Biddington 161	Jogendro Naram v. Bankı Sing 66
James v. Bion 144
James t. Williams 987
James Pegredo e. Mshomed Mod-	Jogendro Chunder r Dwarka Nath 205, 20 dessur 482
Jameson, In 10 606
Jaman 1 t. Nam Sukh . 657, 658
Jamusdas r. Srinath Roy 562	Jogini Mohun : Bhoot Nath 668, 75
Jameedji Sorabiji e Lakshmiram	John Eliot, In the goods of , 53
Rajaram 785	John Kerr v. Nuzzur Mahomed and
Jameetji N Tata e Kashinath 657, 659	Azeem Scrang 53
Jamelieer Sirlar, In re	Jogun Kouer t. Raghuonundon Lal 79
Janaki Ammal r Kamalathammal. 751.	Joharmal v. Jepiam Jagrup 98
752, 753, 773	Johnson r. Gibson 36
Janus Chowdhry r Doolar Chow.	Johnson r Kershaw 85
dhry 29	Johnson v Lawson

Johnstone r Tucker	Page.	. Page.
Johnstone e. Mark.  Johnstone e. Mark.  Johnstone e. Mark.  Johnstone e. Todd  Jogobald w. Kaner Chund  Jones e. Gordon  Jones e. Jones	Johnson e. Pye 759	Juggerwar Mookerjee t. Gopee Kis-
Johnstone r. Mark   750	Johnson r Tucker 816	hen 352
Jolly r. Arbuthnot 78, Juggobundhu Mukrpee t. Ram Chunder 66, 2014 r. Taylor . 563 Jolly t. Taylor . 563 Jolly t. Young . 563 Jolly t. Young . 563 Jolly t. Young . 563 Johes St. All t. Godrich 62, 2015 Jones r. Edwards 496 Jones r. Godrich 678, 818 Jones t. Gordon 710 Junes r. Howell 560 Jones r. James 428, 431 Jones r. Jones 676, 732, 882 Jones v. James 428, 431 Jones r. Morrell 188, 199 Jones v. Smith 188, 199 Jones v. Smith 198, 199 Jones v. Williams 130, 161, 162, 176, 186 Joney a. Williams 130, 161, 162, 176, 186 Joney a. Williams 130, 161, 162, 176, 186 Jones v. Williams 130, 161, 162, 176, 186 Jones v. Williams 130, 161, 162, 176, 186 Jones v. Milams 130, 161, 162, 176, 186 Jones v. Milams 130, 161, 162, 176, 186 Jones v. Williams 130, 161, 162, 176, 187 Jones v. Williams 130, 161, 162, 176, 186 Jones v. Milams 130, 161, 162, 176, 186 Jones v. Milams 130, 161, 162, 176, 186 Jones v. Williams 130, 161, 162, 176, 186 Jones v. Jugent Mohnee v. Dwarka Nath . 445 Juggut Mohnee v. Dwarka Nath . 445 Juggut Mohnee v. Dwarka Nath . 445 Jugut Kishori v. Anunda Lal . 230 Judicans Bankoha V. Buratum Singh . 565 Jowals Buksh v. Dhurum Singh . 565 Joykans Mockerjee v. Pearer Mohn . 667 Joykan v. Narayan . 570 Joykan v. Narayan . 570 Joykan v. Narayan . 570 Joycan v. Narayan . 570 Judoonath v. Raje Burodakanto . 214, 217 Judoonath Mulluk v. Kalee Kvito . 587 Jugdel Naratu v. Laila Ram . 577 Jugdel Naratu v. Laila Ram . 577 Jugdel Naratu v. Laila Ram . 578 Juggernath Sew v. Ram Dyal . 591 Juggernath Sew v. Ram Dyal . 591 Juggernath Sew v. Ram Dyal . 591 Juggernath Mohrer e. Caree . 582 Kalee Dasa v. Tara Chand . 776 Kalee Dasa v. Tara Chand	Johnstone v. Marks 759
Jolly r. Rees 7.11 der 667 Jolly r. Young 563 Jolly t. Young 621 Jolke Singh t. Gundar Sanch 672 Johnes r. Edwards 496 Jones s. Godrich 5763 Jones r. Godrich 673, 818 Jones r. Godrich 560 Jones r. Howell 496 Jones r. Howell 198 Jones r. Morrell 198 Jones r. Morrell 198 Jones r. Morrell 198 Jones r. Morrell 198 Jones r. Smith 50, 161, 162, 176, 186 Jogeul Kishore v. Kalectorum 6.58 Jodahar L. Homes 513 Jordan r. Money 240, 781 Joshu a. Allance Bank of Simla 198, 199 Jordan r. Money 240, 781 Joshu a. Allance Bank of Simla 198, 199 Jordan l. L. Ragubut Pershad 653 Jotendra Mohun r. Ganeadramohun Tagore 229, 449, 459 Joy Kishen r. Doorga Narsyan 164, 185 Joy Kishen r. Roordo Narsyan 164 Joy Lall e. Gossain Bhoobun 700 Joyann v. Narayan 164 Joy Lall e. Gossain Bhoobun 700 Joyann R. Sangh R. Sanghan R. S	Johnstone r. Todd 114, 859	Gossami 669
Jolly t. Najor   607		Juggobundhu Mukerjee t. Ram Chun-
Jully r. Taylor
Jolly S. Young		Juggobundu Chatterjee r. Watson
Judoes   Godneh   673   818     Jones   Godneh   673   818     Jones   Godneh   673   818     Jones   Godneh   673   818     Jones   Howell   566     Jones   James   428   434     Jones   Jones   676   732   825     Jones   Tames   428   434     Jones   Jones   676   732   825     Jones   Tames   428   434     Jones   Morrell   188   194     Jones   Williams   150   161   162   170   186     Jogna   Kishore   Valee   Churn   688     Jogna   Kishore   Valee   Churn   688     Jogna   Lall   Lit   Raglubr   Perhad     Jordan   Money   240   781     Jordan   Money   250   781     Jordan   Money   250   781     Joghan   Money   250     Joghan   Money   250   781     Joghan   M
Jones 1. Gordneh   578, 818     Jones 1. Gordneh   578, 818     Jones 1. Gordneh   578, 818     Jones 1. Gordneh   579, 318     Jones 2. Gordneh   579, 318     Jones 3. Gordneh   579, 318     Jones 4. James   428, 431     Jones 4. James   676, 732, 882     Jones 5. Jones   676, 732, 882     Jones 6. Jones   676, 732, 882     Jones 7. Jones   676, 732, 882     Jones 8. Smith   188, 199     Jones 8. Smith   188, 199     Jones 8. Smith   188, 199     Jones 8. Williams   150, 161, 162, 170, 186     Jones 9. Williams   150, 161, 162, 170, 186     Jones 1. Williams   150, 161, 162, 170, 186     Jones 8. Smith   68, 199     Jones 8. Williams   150, 161, 162, 170, 186     Jones 9. Williams   150, 161, 162, 170, 186     Jones 1. Williams   150, 161, 162, 170, 186     Jones 8. Smith   68, 199     Jones 8. Williams   150, 161, 162, 170, 186     Jones 9. Williams   150, 161, 162, 170, 186     Jones 1. Jones 1. Williams   150, 161, 162, 170, 186     Jones 1. Jones 1. Williams   150, 161, 162, 170, 186     Jones 1. Jones 1. Williams   150, 161, 162, 170, 186     Jones 1. Jones 1. Williams   150, 161, 162, 170, 186     Jones 1. Jones 1. Williams   150, 161, 162, 170, 186     Jones 1. Jones 1. Williams   150, 161, 162, 170, 186     Jones 1. Jones 1. Williams   150, 161, 162, 170, 186     Joyans 1. Williams 1. Williams   161, 170, 186     Joyans 1. Williams 1. Williams   161, 170     Joyans 1. Williams 1. Williams   161, 170     Joyans 1. Williams 1. Williams   161, 170     Joyans 1. Williams 1. Williams		Juggodanund Misser v. Hamid Rus-
Jones i. Godrich Jones i. Gordroh Jones i. Howell Jones i. James Jones i. Jones Jones Jones i. Jones Jones Jones i. Jones J		soul 666
Jones r. James   Jones . Gordon   Jones r. James   Jones r. Morrell   James   Jones r. Morrell   James   Jones r. Williams   J50, 161, 162, 170, 186   J50,
Jones t. James   428, 431     Jones t. James   428, 431     Jones t. James   428, 431     Jones t. Jones   676, 732, 882     Jones t. Morrell   148     Jones t. Williams   130, 161, 162, 170, 186     Jogen Mohre t. Park Nath 1. 445     Juggun Mohre t. Park Nath 1. 445     Juggun Mohre t. Park Nath 1. 445     Juggun Mohre t. Park Nath 1. 445     Jugun
Jones r. James   428, 434     Jones r. Jones   676, 732, 882     Jones r. Jones   676, 732, 882     Jones r. Morrell   184     Jones v. Morrell   184     Jones v. Williams   130, 161, 162, 170, 185     Jordan r. Money   240, 781     Jordan r. Money   240, 781     Jordan r. Money   240, 781     Jotendra Mohun v. Ganendramohun   132, 164, 164     Jotendra Mohun v. Ganendramohun   132, 164, 164     Jotendra Mohun v. Ranee Brijo   365     Jotendra Mohun v. Ranee Brijo   365     Jotendra Mohun v. Ranee Brijo   365     Joya Malla v. Streath Chatterjee   44     Joy Chandra v. Streath Chatterjee   45     Joy Kishen v. Doorga Narsyan   164, 185     Joy Kishen v. Ranghoolul   111, 112, 114     Joy Kishen v. Ranghoolul   111, 1		Chund 164, 165, 186
Jones r. Jones 676, 732, 882 Jones v. Morrell 148 Jones v. Smith 148 Jones v. Smith 188, 194 Jones v. Williams 130, 161, 162, 170, 186 Joseph Kishore v Kalee Churn 635 Joseph Kishore v. Kalee Churn 635 Joseph Marker v. Morey 240, 781 Joseph A. Alliance Bank of Smila 188, 195 Joseph Lal v. Ragbuster Pershad 635 Jotednar Mohun v. Ganendramohun 763 Jotednar Mohun v. Ganendramohun 763 Jotednar Mohun v. Ganendramohun 763 Jowaka Buksh v. Dunrum Smich 635 Joy Chandra Bandopadhya v Srinath 645 Chattoryndiya 655 Joy Chandra V Sreenath Chatterjee 655 Joy Kishen v. Doorga Narayan 164, 185 Joy Kissen, In the multer of 656 Journal A. 188, 195 Journal Lal v. Ragbuster Pershad 658 Joy Chandra Mohun v. Ganendramohun 763 Joy Chandra W Sreenath Chatterjee 764 Joy Chandra V Sreenath Chatterjee 765 Joy Kishen v. Doorga Narayan 164, 185 Joy Kissen, In the multer of 763 Journal V. Williams 188, 169 Jog Mark Mohnee v. Dwarka Nath 444 Jugun Mas v. Mahada v. Masqadas 164, 670 Juman Ali v. Chutturdharte 856 Joy Chandra W Sreenath Chatterjee 764 Joy Kishen v. Doorga Narayan 164, 185 Joy Kishen v. Doorga Narayan 164, 185 Joy Kissen, In the multer of 763 Jog Mark Mohnee v. Dwarka Nath 444 Jugust Mohnnee v Dwarka Nath 444 Jugust Mohnnee v Dwarka Nath 445 Jugust Admina v. Masqadas v. Masqadas 164, 670 Juman Ali v. Chutturdharte Saice 763 Juman Ali v. Chutturdharte Saice 764 Juman Ala v. Staich v. Davestanath 763 Juman Ali v. Chutturdharte Saice 764 Juman Ala v. Chutturdharte Saice 764 Juman Ala v. Chutturdharte Saice 763 Juman Ali v. Chutturdharte Saice 764 Juman Ala v. Chutturdharte Saice 765 Juman Ali v. Chutturdharte Saice 765 Juman Ali v. Chutturdharte Saice 765 Juman Ali v. Chutturd		Juggurnath Sahoo r Syund Shah . 145
Jones v. Morrell 18, 195 Jones v. Williams 150, 161, 162, 170, 186 Joogul Kishore v Kalee Churn 168 Joogul Kishore v Kalee Churn 168 Joogul Kishore v Kalee Churn 168 Joseph Kishore v Kalee Churn 168 Joseph Kishore v Kalee Churn 168 Joseph Hajir Kenp 1613 Jordan r Money 267, 781 Jordan L Ragulubr Pershad 553 Jotendra Mohun r. Ganeadramohun 17 Tagore 292, 449, 450 Jotendra Mohun r. Ganeadramohun 17 Joy Chandra Bandopadilya v Srnath 16 Joy Chandra v Sreenath Chatterjee 16 Joy Coomar r Bundhoolal 111, 112, 111 Joy Kishen r. Doorga Karsayan 164, 185 Joy Kishen r. Doorga Karsayan 164, 185 Joy Lall r. Gossain Bhoobun 650 Joyam v Narayan 164, 185 Joyam v Narayan 164, 187 Joyam v Narayan 164, 185 Joyam v Narayan 164, 187 Jo		Juggun Lall, In the matter of 343
Jones e. Williams 150, 161, 162, 170, 185, 196 Jones de Kishore v Kalee Churn 658 Joogua Kishore v Kalee Churn 658 Josepa Kishore v Kalee Churn 658 Jordan e Mance Bank of Smila 198, 199 Jotathan Lal v Raghubr Pershad 658 Jotatha Kalinare Bank of Smila 198, 199 Jotathan Lal v Raghubr Pershad 658 Jotendra Mohun v Ganendranobun 752 Jotendra Mohun v Ganendranobun 655 Jowals Buksh v Dhurum Smeh 655 Joyana Raceanth Chatteryer 764 Joy Comar v. Bundhoolal 111, 112, 114 Joy Kishen v. Doorga Karayan 164, 185 Joy Kasen, In the matter of 924 Joykssen Mohrey e Variath Roy 767 Joyana v. Xarayan 164, 185 Joyana v. Xarayan 165 Joyana v. Xarayan 164, 185 Joyana v. Xarayan 164, 185 Joyana v. Xarayan 165 Kachin Hati v. Cuturdar v. Asarayan 165 Kachin Hati v. Cuturdar v. Marayan 165	Jones r. Morrell 148	Juggut Chunder v Bhugwan Chun-
Jones e. Williams 150, 161, 162, 170, 186 Joogul Kishore v Kalee Churn 658 Joseph Hajir Kenp 658 Jordan r. Money 20, 781 Jordan r. Money 20, 481, 461 Jordan r. Money 20, 481, 461 Jordan Jordan r. Rane Brijo 365 Jowals Buksh v Diurum Singh 365 Joy Kishen r. Doorga Narayan 164, 185 Joykissen Mookerjee v Pearre Mohun 365 Kadumbin Dassi e Kumudin Daas 164 Kalibaru Noroji Jehanjir 365 Kadumbin Dassi e Kumudin Daas 164 Kalibaru Noroji Jehanjir 365 Kadishisaru Noroji Jehanjir 365 Kalash Chauder v Ran Lell 111 Kali v Jansen 367 Kalash Chauder Ran Lell 111 Kali v Jansen 368 Kalash Chauder v Ran Lell 111 Kali v Jansen 368 Kalash Chauder v Ran 368 Kalash Chauder v		der 641, 670
Joogul Kishore v Kalee Churn Jooman Pershad t. Joyram Lall Jordan Pershad t. Joyram Lall Jordan et Money Jordah et Malance Bank of Simla 198, 199 Jotschian Lal v Raglubur Pershad Jordan et Money Jotschian Lal v Raglubur Pershad Josepha et Allance Bank of Simla 198, 199 Jotschian Lal v Raglubur Pershad Josepha et Malance Bank of Simla 198, 199 Jotschian Kohun v. Ganendranohun Tagor Jotschian Kohun v. Ganendranohun Tagor Jotschian Mohun v. Ganendranohun Tagor Jotschian Mohun v. Ganendranohun Tagor Jotschian Handopadilya v Srinath Chattoprdhya Joy Chandra v Sreenath Chatterse Joy Coomar v. Bundhoolal Jili, 112, 114 Joy Kishen v. Doorga Karayan Joykansen Mookerpee v Pearce Mohun Goty Lall v. Govssin Bhoobun Joyram v. Xarayan Joyram v. Arayan Joyram v. Arayan Joyram v. Arayan Joyram v. Arayan Joydonath P. Paul v. Prosumonath Dutt Judonath P. Paul v. Prosumonath Dutt Judonath P. Paul v. Prosumonath Jugal Kishore v. Fakhr-ud-din Joydan Sharay v. Lalla Ram Jugalsh Chander v. Choodo Na- Malanch Chunder Mulled v. Chounder v. Anoo Sheikh Zalash Chandra v. Manudla Lal Zagoranth Sew v. Ram Dyal Jugernath Sew v. Ram Dyal Sale Data Kalex Kondur Bankan Kale Chunder v. Adoo Sheikh Zale Chunder v. Adoo Shei
Joonna Pershad t. Joyram Lall . 646 Jorcub Hajur Kemp . 513 Jordan r. Money . 249, 781 Joshua t. Alliance Bank of Smila 188, 195 Jotsthan Lal v Ragumbr Pershad . 655 Jotsthan Lal v Ragumbr Pershad . 655 Jotendra Mohun v. Ganendramohun . 365 Jotendra Mohun v. Ganendramohun . 365 Jotendra Mohun v. Ganendramohun . 365 Joyrah Bukh v Dhurum Smeh . 655 Joy Chandra Bandopadhya v Srinath . Chattorydhya		Jugmohandas v. Mangaldas 164,
Jooruh Hajir Kenip 513 Jordan r. Money 240, 781 Jordan t. Alliance Bank of Simla 198, 199 Jottadra Molum c. Gancaldramohum Tagor 220, 431, 450 Jottadra Molum c. Rance Brijo 365 Jowals Buksh v. Dhurum Singh 365 Joy Chandra Randopadilya v. Srnath Chattoprdhya 576 Joy Chandra v. Streath Chatterjee 74 Joy Coomar r. Bundhoolal 111, 112, 114 Joy Kishen r. Doorga Narayan 164, 185 Joy Kishen r. Doorga Narayan 164, 185 Joykans Mookerjee v. Fearer Mohum 661 Joyram v. Narayan Joyram Dassee r. Mahomed Mobaruck 115, 338, 366, 688 Judoonath Paul v. Presunnonath Dutt John Share v. Strath 585 Judoonath Mullike r. Kalec Kisto. 590 Judoonath Mullike r. Kalec Kisto. 591 Judoonath Mullike r. Kalec Kisto. 597, 598, 597 Jugel Kishore v. Fakhr-ud-din 597, 598, 597 Jugel Naraya v. Lagam 597, 598, 597 Jugelsh Chander c Choadhry Zuhoor- ul-Iluq 358 Jugernath Sew v. Ram Dyal 591 Jugerearth Sew
Joshus a Alliance Bank of Simla 198, 199 Jotathan Lal a Ragdushr pershad Jotathan Lal a Ragdushr pershad Jotathan Molun c. Ganendramohun Tagore . 229, 494, 45 Jotathan Molun c. Ranee Brijo . 365 Jowala Buksh v Dhurum Simsh . 685 Joy Chandra v Sreenath Chatterjee Joy Coomar r. Bundhoolal . 111, 112, 114 Joy Kishen r. Doorga Narayan . 164, 185 Joykissen Mookerjee Pearre Mohun Joykan Mookerjee Pearre Mohun Joykan L. Gossain Bhoobun . 655 Joyan v Narayan Joytan Dassee c Mahomed Moharuck . 115, 358, 366, 688 Judg. r. Cox . 188 Judoonath Mulka v. Kalee Kvito. 639 Judoonath Mulka v. Kalee Kvito. 639 Judoonath Mulka v. Kalee Kvito. 639 Judoonath Paul v Prosunnonath Dutt . 765 Jugal Kichore v. Fakhrud-din . 767 Jugal Kichore v. Fakhrud-din . 768 Jugal Kichore v. Fakhrud-din . 768 Jugal Kichore v. Fakhrud-din . 768 Kalaph Chandra v. Harib Chunder . 840 Kalaph Chandra v. Farrer . 884 Kalaph v. Shivaya . 772 Kalee Chunder v. Adoo Shekh . 743 Kalee Chunder v. Adoo Shekh . 743 Kalee Chunder bender Chondhur Molar . 765 Kalee Chunder Banke Mohun . 653 Kalee Chunder R. Adoo Shekh . 743 Kalee Chunder Banke Mohun . 653 Kalee Chunder R. Adoo Shekh . 743 Kalee Chunder R. Adoo Shekh . 743 Kalee Chunder Banke Mohun . 653 Kalee Chunder R. Adoo Shekh . 743 Kalee Chunder R. Adoo Shekh . 743 Kalee Chunder R. Adoo Shekh . 743 Ka	Joornh Hair Kenin 513	Jugodumba Chowdhrain t. Ram
Joshus a Alliance Bank of Simla 198, 199 Jotathan Lal a Ragdushr pershad Jotathan Lal a Ragdushr pershad Jotathan Molun c. Ganendramohun Tagore . 229, 494, 45 Jotathan Molun c. Ranee Brijo . 365 Jowala Buksh v Dhurum Simsh . 685 Joy Chandra v Sreenath Chatterjee Joy Coomar r. Bundhoolal . 111, 112, 114 Joy Kishen r. Doorga Narayan . 164, 185 Joykissen Mookerjee Pearre Mohun Joykan Mookerjee Pearre Mohun Joykan L. Gossain Bhoobun . 655 Joyan v Narayan Joytan Dassee c Mahomed Moharuck . 115, 358, 366, 688 Judg. r. Cox . 188 Judoonath Mulka v. Kalee Kvito. 639 Judoonath Mulka v. Kalee Kvito. 639 Judoonath Mulka v. Kalee Kvito. 639 Judoonath Paul v Prosunnonath Dutt . 765 Jugal Kichore v. Fakhrud-din . 767 Jugal Kichore v. Fakhrud-din . 768 Jugal Kichore v. Fakhrud-din . 768 Jugal Kichore v. Fakhrud-din . 768 Kalaph Chandra v. Harib Chunder . 840 Kalaph Chandra v. Farrer . 884 Kalaph v. Shivaya . 772 Kalee Chunder v. Adoo Shekh . 743 Kalee Chunder v. Adoo Shekh . 743 Kalee Chunder bender Chondhur Molar . 765 Kalee Chunder Banke Mohun . 653 Kalee Chunder R. Adoo Shekh . 743 Kalee Chunder Banke Mohun . 653 Kalee Chunder R. Adoo Shekh . 743 Kalee Chunder R. Adoo Shekh . 743 Kalee Chunder Banke Mohun . 653 Kalee Chunder R. Adoo Shekh . 743 Kalee Chunder R. Adoo Shekh . 743 Kalee Chunder R. Adoo Shekh . 743 Ka	Jordan v. Money 249, 781	Chunder 665
Jotendra Mohun r. Ganendramohun Tagore 229, 449, 450 Jotendra Mohun r. Ranee Brijo 365 Jotendra Mohun r. Ranee Brijo 365 Jotendra Mohun r. Ranee Brijo 365 Jowala Buksh v. Dinurum Singh 365 Joy Chandra v. Streath Chatterjee 764 Joy Coomar r. Bundhoolal III, 112, 114 Joy Kishen r. Doorga Karayan 164, 185 Joy Kishen r. Coorga Karayan 164, 185 Joy Kishen r. Coorga Karayan 164, 185 Joy Kishen r. Doorga Karayan 164, 185 Joy Kishen r. Doorga Karayan 164, 185 Joy Kishen r. Doorga Karayan 165 Joy Lall t. Gossain Bhoobun 750 Joytan a Dassee r. Mahomed Mobarruck 188 Judge r. Cox 188 Judge r. Cox 188 Judge r. Cox 188 Judgonath Paul v. Prosunnonath 188 Judononth Mulke r. Kalee Kisto 637 Judononth Mulke r. Kalee Kisto 638 Judononth Mulke r. Prosunnonath 168 Judonath Mulke r. Fahbrud-din 597, 598, 597 Singht 597, 598, 597 Singht 597, 598, 597 Kalee Chunder r. Adoo Sheikh 743 Juggelanuan Misser r. Nerghan 597 Juggerank Sew r. Rain Dyal 598 Kalee Chunder c. Adoo Sheikh 745 Kalee Chunder r. Guorga Naran 653 Kalee Chunder r. Guorga Naran 653 Kalee Chunder r. Guorga Naran 653 Kalee Chunder r. 6400 Sheikh 745 Kalee Kommat r. Guorga Naran 653 Kalee Chunder R. Adoo Sheikh 745 Kalee Kommat r. Guorga Naran 653 Kalee Chunder r. 6400 Sheikh 745 Kalee Kommat r. Guorga Naran 653 Kalee Chunder r. 6400 Sheikh 745 Kalee Kommat r. Guorga Naran 653 Kalee Chunder r. 6400 Sheikh 745 Kalee Kommat r. Guorga Naran 653 Kalee Chunder r. 6400 Sheikh 745 Kalee Kommat r. Guorga Naran 653 Kalee Chunder r. 6400 Sheikh 745 Kalee Chunder r. 6400 Sheikh 745 Kalee Chunder r.	Joshua t Alliance Bank of Simla 198, 199	Jugul Kishori v Anunda Lal . 230
Jotendra Mohun e. Ganeadramohun   Tagore		Julius v. Bishop of Oxford 102
Tagore 229, 449, 450 Jotendra Mohun r Ranee Brip 365 Jowala Buksh v Dhurum Singh 465 Joy Chandra V Srenath Chatterjee 764 Joy Chandra v Srenath Chatterjee 764 Joy Comar r Bundhoolal III, 112, 114 Joy Kishen r. Doorga Narayan 164, 185 Joy Kishen r. Nepean 565 Kachaba bin Gulabchand r Krish- nakakom Babaji 566 Kader Modeen r. Nepean 585 Judoonath Paul v Prosunnonath 770 Judoonath Mullisk r. Kalee Kisto. 635 Judoonath Paul v Prosunnonath 781 Judoonath Mullisk r. Kalee Kisto. 635 Judoonath Paul v Prosunnonath 781 Judoonath Mulliser r. Nerghan 565 Kailash Chandra t Harish Chunder 565 Kalea Marayan 164, 187 Kalea Chunder r. Adoo Sheikh 743 Jugelanud Misser r. Nerghan 565 Kalee Churr v Banbea Mohun 665 Kalee Churr v Bangal Coal Co. 225 Kale Chunder r. Gloos Nerghan 565 Kalee Churr v Bangal Coal Co. 225 Kale Chunder r. Guoga Naran 655 Kalee Churr v Bangal Coal Co. 225 Kale Chunder r. Guoga Naran 655 Kalee Churr v Bangal Coal Co. 225 Kale Chunder r. Guoga Naran 655 Kalee Churr v Bangal Coal Co. 225 Kale Chunder r. Guoga Naran 655 Kalee Churr v Bangal Coal Co. 225 Kale Chunder r. Guoga Naran 655 Kalee Churr v Guoga Naran 655 Kalee Churr v Guoga Naran 655 Jumona Das v Strath 707 Jumona Pershad 1 Copy Jumona 164 Jugernath Sew v Ram Dyal 591 Lucrosum 167  Jugernath Robert Robert 764 Jugernath Robert 764 Jugernath Robert 764  Kachabal Hau r R 525, 527, 714  Kachabal Hau
Jotendra Mohun r Ranee Brijo 365 Jowaka Buksh v Dhurum Simeh 658 Joy Chandra Bandopadhya v Srinath Chattorpidhya 5763 Joy Chandra V Sreenath Chatterjee 761 Joy Kishen r. Doorga Narayan 164, 185 Joy Kishen r. Doorga Narayan 164, 185 Joy Kissen. Jo Boorga Marayan 164, 185 Joy Kissen. Jos Boorga Marayan 164 Joy Lall t. Gossain Bhoobun 560 Joytam Dassee e Mahomed Mobarok 116, 358, 360, 688 Judge. r Cox 188 Judge Rudge 116, 358, 360, 688 Judge r Cox 188 Judge 116, 358, 360, 688 Judge 116, 358, 360, 368 Judge
Joy Chandra Bandopadhya v Srinath Chattoryddya Joy Chandra v Sreenath Chatterjee Joy Comar r. Bundhoolal 111, 112, 114 Joy Kishen r. Doorga Narayan 164, 185 Joy Kissen, Ja Ike multer of Joy Sayan i Sayan 164, 185 Joy Kissen, Ja Ike multer of Joy Lall e. Gossain Bhoobun Joyram i Narayan Joyram of Narayan Judonanth Mulke v. Kalee Kisto. Judonanth Paul v Prosunnonath Dutt Judonanth Mulke v. Kalee Kisto. Judonanth Paul v Prosunnonath Dutt Judonanth Mulke v. Kalee Kisto. Jud
Joy Chandra Bandopadhya v Srnath   763   Jussondah v Ajodha Fershad   723   Jussondah v Ajodha Fershad   724   Kachali Han v R   526, 527, 714   Stanba Bokerpee Fearre Mohun   525   Jussondah v Ropean   560   580
April
Joy Chandra & Steenath Chatterjee   764     Joy Coomar e. Bundhoolal 11, 112, 114     Joy Kishen v. Doorga Narayan   164, 185     Joy Kishen v. Arayan   165     Joy Lall v. Gossain Bhoobun   750     Joyram v. Narayan   165     Joyram v. Narayan   165     Joyram v. Narayan   167     Joyram v. Narayan   168     Joyram v. Narayan   168     Joyram v. Narayan   168     Joyram v. Narayan   168     Joyram v. Narayan   167     Judononth Mullik v. Kalee Kisto.   168     Judononth Mullik v. Kalee Kisto.   168     Judononth Mullik v. Ralee Kisto.   168     Kaachahi Hali I. R.   256, 527, 714     Kachahi Hali I. R.   264     Kachubai bin Gulabehand v. Krish.   168     Radumbin Dass v. Kumudin Das		Jussoondah " Ajodhia Pershad 723
Joy Kishen t. Doorga Narayan 164, 185
Joy Kishen r. Doorga Narayan   164, 185,   185,		_
30y Kissen, Ia the mutter of   924   Sachuban bin Gulabchand v Krish-   100
Joykusen Moskerpee Pearce Mohum   661   565   567   567   567   568   569
19
Joyram v Narayan   770   Zandumbini Dassi e Kumudini Dasi   154   Zandumbini Dassi   154   Zandu
18
Dudge r Cox	Joytara Dassee r Mahomed Moba-
Judgo r Cox   188   Judoonath v Raja Burodakanto   214, 217   Judoonath Mullick v. Kalee Kivto.   639   Judoonath Paul v Prosumonanth Butt   708   Jugal Kikhore v. Fakhrud-din   565   Jugal Kikhore v. Fakhrud-din   565   Jugalanud Misser v. Nerghan   567   Salec Chunder v. Adoo Sheikh   772   Jugdel Marsin v Laila Ram   587   598, 597   Kalee Chunder v. Adoo Sheikh   743   Jugele Marsin v. Laila Ram   584   Kalee Chunder v. Adoo Sheikh   743   Jugele Marsin v. Laila Ram   584   Kalee Chunder v. Adoo Sheikh   743   Jugerenth Sew v. Ram Dyal   591   Salec Chunder v. Adoo Sheikh   743   745	ruck 115, 358, 360, 688
Judoonath Mulke t. Kalee Kisto.  Judoonath Paul v Prosunnonath Dutt Toba Jugalanud Misser e. Nerghan Singh Misser v. Sinsaya Kalapan v. Shusaya Kalapan v. Kapat v. Shusaya Kalapan v. Shusaya Kalapan v. Kapat v. Shusaya Kalapan v. Shusaya Kala	Judge v Cox 183
Judoonath   Paul v   Presunnonath   786
Dutt   786
Jugal Kichore v. Fakhreud-din   545   Kalachand Strear v. R.   884   Kalappu v. Shuxaya   Kalappu v. Shuxaya   Kalappu v. Shuxaya   545   Jugdish Chander C Hood thry Zuhoor uh.Hua   548   Juggermath Sew v. Ram Dyal   591   Shuxaya   595
Jugdanund Misser r. Nerghan   Kaleppa e. Shavaya   772     Singh
Singh
Jugdel Narain v Laila Ram   654   Kalee Churn v Banshee Mohun   655     Jugdish Chunder Chowdhry Zuhoor   Kalee Churn v Bengal Coal Co   225     Liliuq
Juggish Chunder Chowdhry Zuhoor- ul.Hua Juggernah Sew r Ram Dyal Juggernah Sew r Ram Dyal Juggernah Sew r Ram Dyal Juggernah Sew t Ram Dyal Selection of the Selection of the Selection of the Selection of the Selection of Selec ul.Huq 338 Kalee Doss r. Tara Chand . 776 Juggermath Sew r. Ram Dyal 591 Kaleekanund Bhattacharjee r. Guree- Juggersur Buttobyal r. Roodio Na- tayan . 655 Kalee Koomat r. Gunga Narain . 681
Juggernath Sew r Ram Dyal 591 Kaleekanund Bhattacharjee r. Giree- Jugersur Buttobjal r. Roodio Nathrayan 655 Kalee Koomat r. Gunga Narain 681
Juggessur Buttobyal e. Roodio Na- bala Dabia 453, 454 rayan 655 Kalee Koomar e. Gunga Narain 681	Juggerment Come Pow Dunit 501
rayan 655 Kalee Koomar v. Gunga Narain 681
Juggessuree Debia r Gudadhur Ban- Kalee Kumar r Maharaja of Eurd-	Juggessuree Debia r Gudadhur Ban-	Kalee Kumar e Maharaja of Burd-

563

WAD

.. ..

636

erjee

	PAGE
Page,
Kripamoyi Dabia t. Durga Govind 630, 661
Krighma n. Vasudev 034, 724	Ziotta e operati
Krishna Behari v Brojeswari Chow-	arota omassi i amini dhranee	attivities and and are
Krishnabhupati v. Ramamurti 239,	Kuthupermal Rajali t Secretary of State for India
393, 395	2
Krishnabhupati Devu v Vikrama	Kutti Mannadiyar t Payanu Mu-
Devu 783	than 651 Kuyarbar 2 Mu Alam 776
Krishna Chandra Saha v Bhairab
Chandra Saha 239	Kuvern 1. Babai . 757, 781
Krishnacharya e. Lingawa . 358	S.
Krishnaji v Moro 774
Krishnaji t Rajinal 454, 557, 987	Lucey (in re) . 235
Krishnaji v. Wamanji 646	Lachho v Har Sahai 691, 693
Krishnaji Ramchandra v Antaji	Luchman Dave Dipchand , 990
Pandurang 789	Lachman Rai v Akbar Khan 162, 164, 383
Kushna Kishori v Kishou Lall 477 481.	Lachman Singh v Tansukh
489, 490, 492, 514, 321	Lachmerdhur v Rughoobur 163
Krishna Kanta v Bidya Sunda-	Lachmi Narain t Raja Partab 443, 448,
ree . 106	450, 452, 705
Krishna Laif Fractic Krishna	Lacho Bibi e Gopi Narain 673, 674
Krishnama Chariar v Narasimha	Lady Dartmouth v Roberts 518
Chariar 118	Lady Ivy's Case 158 Lafone & Falkland Islands Co 215
Krishnamarazu v Manaju 571, 589
Krishnarav Yashvant v Vasudev
April	Tables When a West
Krishnasami Ayyangar " Raja- gopala 170, 176, 214, 229, 235,	Lakhoo Khan t Wise 789 Lakshmin v. Amrit 131, 159, 168, 174, 176.
gopala 170, 176, 214, 229, 235, 351 385 387
	183, 385 Lokshman Bhaukhopkar t. Radhabai 652
	Lakshman Dida Naik c. Ram Chan-
Chetty 987 Krishno Chunder : Meer Sajdst 362	dra Dada Naik 749, 776
Krishno Monee v R 252	Lakshmen v Damodar 801
Kristnappa Chetty v Ramasawmy	Lakshman a. Jamnabar 649
Iyer , 631	Lakshmamma v. Kameswara 989, 991
Kristo Indro v Huromonee Dassec 753	Lakshmibai v. Ganput 773
Kristo Moni t Secy. of State 361, 782, 785	Lakshmibai v. Vithal Ramchandra 692
Kristo Nath v T F. Brown 447, 539	Lal Bahadur v Kanhaiya Lal 723
Kristo Pres v. Puddo Lochun . 748	Lala v. Hira Singh 164 383
Kubecrooddeen v Jogul Shaha 646	Lala Beni v. Kundan Lal 769
Kullan e R 802	Lala Banadat v Covt of Bengal 919
Kulum Mundul t. Bhowamprosad $35, 836	Lal Achal v. Raja Kazim 641
Kultoo Mahomed v. Hurdev Doss 460	Lala Himmat v Llewhellen 592, 594, 597
Kumar Saradindu e Dhirendra Kant	Lala Jha v. Muset Bibee 114
Roy 640	Lala Lakhmi t. Sayed Haider 109, 124,
Kumara v. Srmivasa 594	341, 641
Kumarasami v Pala Nagappa 227	Lala Muddun v Khikhinda Koer 774
Kumara Upendra v Nobin Krishna 722	Lala Narain r. Lala Ramanuj 469
Kumaru Reddi v. Nagayasami Tham-	Lala Parbhu v Mylne 237, 238, 239
	Lala Ranglal v. Deonarayan Tewary 171
r v. Rojjub Ali 491	Lala Surs v. Golab Chand 8
Vayoth Palliyii	Lalchand v. R 564
482, 489, 492	Lalit Mohan Singh v. Chukkun Lal
F. Sam-	Roy 621
786	Laljee Sahoy v. Fakeer Chand 658

		P	GE.	. P:	CE,
Johnson e. Pye			759	Juggeswar Mookerjee 1. Gopee Kis-
Johnson r. Tucker			816	hen	352
Johnstone r. Marke			759	Juggobundhu Mitter r. Purnanund
Johnstone r. Todd		114.	859	Gossamı	669
Jolly r Arbuthnot			785	Juggobundhu Mukerjee r. Ram Chun-
Jolly v. Rees			741		667
Jolly r. Taylor			563	Juggobundu Chatterjee v. Watson
Jolly r. Young			624	& Co	752
Joloke Singh r. Gundar	Singh		672	Juggodanund Misser r. Hamid Rus-
Jones r. Edward.			496		666
Jones r. Godrich		673.	818		602
Jones r. Gordon			710	Juggomohun Ghose t. Manick
Jones r. Howell			560	Chund 164, 165,
Jones v. James		428,	434		145
Jones r. Jones	. 676,	732,	882		343
Jones e, Morrell			148	Juggut Chunder : Bhugwan Chun-
Jones r. Smith		198,	199	der 641,
Jones v. Williams 15	9, 161, 162,	170,	186		445
Joogul Kishore v. Kale	e Churn		658	Jugmohandas v Mangaldas 164,
Joomna Pershad r. Joy	ram Lall		646	183, 185,	417
Joorub Haji r Kemp			513	Jugodumba Chowdhrain r Ram
Jordan r. Money		249,			665
Joshua r Alliance Bank	k of Sımla	198,	199		230
Jotadhan Lal v Raghi	ibit Persha	d	658		102
Jotendra Mohun v. Gar					744
Tagore			450	Jumna Das r Srinath Roy 567, 568,
Jotendra Mohun v Ra			365		658
Jowala Buksh t. Dhuru			685	Junmajoy Mullick t. Dwarkanath	- 1.
Joy Chandra Bandopadl	iya v. Srina	th		My tee . 167, 358, 362, .
Chattopadhya	••		763	Jussoondah t Ajodhia Pershad	723
Joy Chandra v. Sreenat			764	ĸ
Joy Coomar : Bundh					-14
Joy Kishen v. Doorga				Kachubai bin Gulabchand a. Krish-	114
Joy Kissen, In the mati		••	924		560
Joykissen Mookerjee t.			661		580
Joy Lall t. Gossam Bl	noobun		655		154
Joyram t Narayan			770	Kahl t Jansen . 225,
Joytara Dassee r Mai					189
Judge r. Cox	110. 300.	300.	188		231
Judoonath r Raja Bur				Kailash Chandra r Harish Chunder	595
Judoonath Mullick v. I			639	Kailash Chunder v Ram Lall	111
Judocnath Paul t				Kain c. Farrer	106
Dutt			786	Kaines e. Knightly	71
Jugal Kishore v Fakhr			565	Kalachand Sircar t R	384
Jugdanund Misser		ап			172
	597	598,	597		43
Jugdel Naram v Lalla	Ram		654		55
Jugdish Chunder r Chos	dhry Zuho	or.		Kalee Churn r. Bengal Coal Co
սեկսգ		••	358	Kalee Doss r Tara Chand
Juggernath Sew r. Rat			591	Kaleekanund Bhattacharjee r. Giree-
Juggessur Buttobyal r	Roodro N	8-		bala Dabia 453, rayan		••	655	Kalee Koomar r Gunga Narain Kalee Kumar r. Maharaja of Burd-Juggessuree Debia r G
erjee	• •	••	563	wan

Page	PAGE,
Kalee Natain v. Anund Moyee 685, 693	Katım Khatav v. Pardhan Manjı 165
Kaleenath Kur z. Doyal Kristo 771, 772	Karunakar Mahati r Nilhardo Chow-
Kaleepershad Tewaree r. Raja	dhey 741
Sahib Prablad 641	Karuppa Goundan r Thoppala Goun-
Kalian Dass r. Bhagirathi 383	dan 566, 618
Kalian Singh v Maharaya 665	Karupan v Ramasamı 752
Kalı Chandra v. Shib Chandra 460, 875	Kasan Singh & Bhup Singh 658
Kal: Charan r. Ram Chandra 590, 900, 990	Kashaba r Chandrabhagabar 335
Kali Charan v Rasik I al 772	Kashee Chandra v Noor Chandra . 515
Kah Churn, In the matter of the peti-	Kashee Kishore t Bania Soondaree
tion of 677, 678, 889	222, 358
Kalı Churn v. Nobo Kr.sto 985	Kashee Nath & Mohesh Chundra 482
Kalı Counar t Ram Dass 652	Kashee Nath Chatterjee r Chundy
Kalidas t. Ishan Chunder 676	Churn 558, 578, 579, 580, 592, 596
Kalidhun Chuttapadhya r Shiba	Kashi Nath & Brindabun Chucker-battı
Nath	Vests Vests O. H. C.D.
Kalı Kishore v. Bhusan Chunder . 656	Kashi Nath : Hurrihur Mookerjee
Kali Kissor r Gopi Mohan 231, 232	579, 580, 581, 582, 585
Kalı Krishna v. Secretary of State. 372	Kassim Mundle i Sree Mutty 591, 596
Kalil Munda c. R 155	Kasturi v Venkatachulpathi 769
Kalka Parshad v Kanhaya Singh 390	Katama Natchier v Rajah of Shiva-
Kalka Prasad r. Mathura Prasad . 325
Kallianji r Bezangi 619	Kaung Hla Pru v San Paw 109, 159, 787
Kallonass r. Gunga Gobind 806	Kausalia v Gulab Kuar 662
Kally Churn e. Secv. of State 666 712
Kally Dass t. Gobind Chunder 771	Variation of
Kally Nath v. Rajeeblochun 752	Kay r Poorunchand Poonalal 816, 819
Kamala Prasad v. Sital Prasad 828, 831, 835	Kuzee Abdool r Baroda Kant . 618
Kameshar Prasad r Bhikan Natain 101
Kameshwar Pershad v. Amanut-	Kazi Koibut-oollah v Motee Pesha-
ulla 131, 480, 488, 494, 813	kar 667
Kameshwar Prasad v. Ram Bahadur	Kearney r. London, Brighton & S.
653, 654	Coast Ry 727
Kameshwar Persad v Rajkumari Rut-	Kearsely v. Phillips 905
ton 373	Keate v Phillips
Kamini Sundari v. Kalı Prosunno 696	Kebul Kristo r. Ram Coomar 763
Kampilikaribsavappa r. Somasu-	Kedar Nuth, In the matter of 128
muddiram 458	Kedarnath Chuckerbutty r. Don-
Kanai Lall v. Kamıni Debi 696, 697	zelle 729, 747
Kanailal Khan v. Soshi Bhoosan 751	Kedarnath Doss v Protab Chunder 656
Kanayalal v. Pyarabai 477	Kedar Nath v. Bhupendra Nath 845
Kanhai Lall : Suraj Kunwar 375	Kedarnath v. Shurfoonnessa Bebee
Kanhava Lall e Radha Churn 170,	561, 570, 571
377, 378, 381	Kedarnath Metter v. Srcemutty Soro-
Kanhaya Lall v. Stowell	10n1 675
Kanhai Lall r Debidas 648, 651 Kanhai Chand v Ram Chunder 106, 115	Keeling v Ball 504, 506
	Kell v Charmar 625
	Kelly r Jackson 812, 814
Kanshi Ram r. Badda 753, 763 Kanto Prasad r Jagat Chandra	Kelly r Kelly 804
130, 357, 358, 536, 537	Kemble r. Farren 232
Karali Charan e. Mahtah Chandra 220	Kemp v King 825
Karamalı r Rahimbhov 200	Kempland r. Macauley
Karampalla r. Thekku 600	Kennedy v Lyell 817
• 000	Kensington r Inglis . 489, 902

	•
Page.	PAGE.
Kent v. Lowen 205, 207	Kirshaw v. Wright 420
Keramutoolah v. Gholam Hossein 386, 398	Kirteebash Maytee e. Ramdhun
Kesho Rao t. Poran Barai 663
Keshavarao Bhagwant v. Ray	Kirty Chunder v. Anath Nath 749
Pandu 592, 594	Kishan Lall r. Ganga Ram 237, 238
Keshub Chunder v Vyasmonee Dos-	Kishen Chunder r Buratee Sheikh 663
sia 771	Kishen Chunder v. Hookoom Chand 684
Kessown Issur v. G. I. P. Ry. Co . 118	Kishen Dhun v Ram Dhun 645
Ketu Dass r. Suiendra Nath 792, 793	Kishen Mohun v. Collypersaud . 843
Kettika Bapanamma v. Kettika Kris-	Kishore Dass r Pursun Mahtoon 347
tanamma	Kishore Singh v Gunesh Mookerjee 806
Kettlewell r. Barstow 900	Kishoree Lall v. Chumman Lall 649
Kettlewell t. Watson 197	Kishoree Lall r. Enacth Hossein 667
Ketthlamma v. Kelapan 389, 390	Kishori Lal v. Rakhal Das 131, 488
Khadar t. Subramanya 766	Kishori Mohun v Mahomed Mujaffar 239
Khadeem Alı r. Tajımunnissa 348, 353, 354	Kissen Kaminee r Ram Chunder 129,
Khaduah Khanum r. Abdool Kureem	130, 131
Sheraji 844, 888	Kitchen v. Robbins 215
Khajah Abdul v. Gour Monee . 454
Khajah Enactoollah v. Kishen Soon-	Kittu Hegadthi : Channama Shet-
dur 690, 691	tathi 744
Khajooroonissa t. Rowshan Jehan 729	Klein r Landman 772
Khahlul Rahman v Gobind Per-	Knight v. Martin 483
shad 657
Khana v. R 303	Knight v Wiffen . 775, 781, 797
Khankar Abdur e. Alı Hafez 580, 581, 586	Komolochun Dutt v Nilruttun Mun-
Kharsondas Dharamsey v Gangabai 649	dle 379
Khas Mehal v. AdmrGenl. of Ben-	Kondappa v. Subbs 227
gal 673, 697, 698	Kondayya Chetti v. Narasımhulu
Khatija Bibi, In the matter of 74:
Kheero Monee v. Bijoy Gobind 340, 345,	Konnerav v Gurrav 749
346, 348
Khelat Chunder v. Poorno Chunder 660
Khenum Kuree v Gour Chunder 235, 239
Kheoraj Jusurub e. Lingaya . 769
Kheraj Mullah v. Janab Mullah . 119
Khetridas Agarwallah v Shib Nara-	168, 171
yan 571, 580
Khetter Chunder v. Khetter Paul 489.	724
490, 54
Khilut Chunder v Koonj Lall . 72
Khoob Lall v. Jungle Singh 98 Khoorshed Kazi r. R 64
Khugowlee Singh v Hossein Bux . 37: Khurruckdharee Singh v Prosadhee	der 217, 653, 655
Mundal . 85
Khusalchand v. Madahevgiri 65
King r. Hunt 43
King v Norman 38
King r. Winn . 60
Kip r. Brigham 38
Kirby r G. W. Ry. Co 699
Kirkstall Brewery Co. c. Furness Ry.	mon: Dassee 636, 660
Co 220
Kirpal Naram v. Sakurmom 349, 731	Koylash Chunder r. Sonatun Chun 100

Page	Pice
Kripamoyi Dabia r Durga Govind 630, 661	Kuralı Prasad ı Anantaram Hajra 50!
Krishna v Vasudev 654, 724	Kurtz v Spence 248
Krishna Beharı v. Brojeswari Chow-	Kuru Chaubi v Janki Persad 750
dhranee 749	Kusum Kumarı r Satya Ranjan 056
Krishnabhupati v Ramamurti 239,	Kuthupermal Rajali v Secretary of
393, 395	State for India 786
Krishnabhupati Devu v Vikrama	Kuttı Mannadiyar : Payanu Mu-
Devu , 783	than 651
Krishna Chandra Saha v. Bhairab	Kuvarbaı r Mn Alam 776
Chandra Saha 239	Kuverji / Babai 757, 781
Krishnacharya r Lingawa . 358	_
Krishnaji v. Moro 774	L
Krishnaji v. Rajinal . 454, 557, 987	Lacey (in re) 235
Krishnaji v Wamanji 646	Lachho i Har Sahai 691, 693
Krishnaji Ramchandra v Antaji	Lachman Dave Dipchand 990
Pandurang 789	Lachman Rat v Akbar Khan 162, 164, 383
Krishna Kishori v. Kishoti Lall 477 481,	Lachman Singh r Tansukh 223
489, 490, 492, 514, 521	Lachmerdhu v Rughoobur 163
Krishna Kanta v Bidya Sunda-	Lachmi Narain : Raja Partab 443, 448,
ree 106	450, 452, 705
Krishna Lall v Radha Krishna . 667	Lacho Bibi e Gopi Najain 673, 674
Krishnama Chariar v Narasimha	Lady Dartmouth v Roberts 518
Chariar 118	Lady Ity's Case 158
Chariat	Lafone r Falkland Islands Co 815
Triangular Island	Lakhee Kowar r Hatt Kushna 741
Аран 692	Lakhi Chundra t Kali Kumar 160
Krishnasami Ayyangar v Raja-	Lakhou Khan z. Wise
gopala 170, 176, 214, 229, 237,	Lakshman r Amrit 131, 159, 168, 174, 176,
351, 385 387	183 382
Krishnasami Pillai e Rangasami	Lakshman Bhankhonkar / Radhahas evo
Chetty 987	Lakshman Dada Nask & Ram Chan.
Krishno Chunder e Meer Sajdar . 362	dra Dada Nask 749, 776
Krishno Monee v R 252	Lakshman : Damodar
Kristnappa Chetty v. Ramasawmy	Lakshman : Jamnabai . 649
Iyer	Lakshmamma v Kameswara 989,991
Kristo Indro v Huromonce Dassec 753	Lakshmibai t Ganput
Kristo Moni t Secy. of State 361, 782, 785 Kristo Nath v. T F. Brown 447, 539	Lakshmibai c. Vithal Ramchandra 692
	Lal Bahadur v Kanhaiya Lal . 723
Kristo Prea v Puddo Lochun 748 Kubeerooddeen v Jogul Shaha 646	Lala v Hira Singh . 164, 383
Kullan v. R 802	Lala Beni v. Kundan Lal 769
Kulum Mundul t. Bhowaniprosad 835, 836	Lala Bansidat r Govt. of Bengal . 919
Kultoo Mahomed v. Hurdev Doss 460	Lal Achal v Raja Kazum 641
Kumar Saradindu r. Dhirendra Kant	Lala Himmat v Llenhellen 592, 594, 597
Roy 640	Lala Jha s. Muset. Bibee . 114
Kumara v. Srimivasa 594	Lala Lakhmu t Sayed Harder 109, 124
Kumarasami v. Pala Nagappa 227	Tala Wadday 2011 341, 641
Kumara Upendra r Nobin Krishna 722	Lala Muddun t Khikhinda Koer . 774
Kumaru Reddi e. Nagayasami Tham-	Lala Narain v Lala Ramanuj . 469
bichi Naicker 184	Lala Parbhu r Mylne 237, 238, 239
Kumeezoodeen Holder v. Rujjub Alı 491	Lala Ranglal v. Deonarayan Tewary 171
Kunneth Odaugat v. Vayoth Palligil	Lala Suraj v. Golab Chand 8 Lalchand v. P
482, 489, 492	Lalit Mohan Senat 564
Kuppu Konan r Thirugnana Sam-	Lalit Mohan Singh r Chukkun Lal Roy
mandam Pillu 786	Lalies Salan Til
	Danie Candy F. Pakeer Chand 650

				5 0 .
	-	984 984	Ladacht Wallance	Pint.
Lalji Singh t. Syad Akram		984	Leggatt r. Tollervey	386
Lalji, In the matter of the pet		. 915		4, 702, 707
oj		651	Lekhraj Rai t. Mahtab Chand	230, 654
Lalla Beharee v. Lalla Modho				993
Lalla Bunseedhur r. Kunwar		*	Lekraj Kuar v. Mahpal Singh 9, 1
deseree	••	653	348, 350, 35
Lalla Probhoo e. Sheonath Roy	••	217	Leman v. Damodaraya	101
Lalla Roodroo v. Benode Ram	• •	645	Lennov, Ex parte	399
Lalla Sheebloll v Sheikh Gholam		660	Levene v Brougham	751
Lalla Sheoprasad r Juggernath	••	219	Lever t. Goodwin	200
Lalla Sreedhur v. Lalla Madho	• •	723	Levy v Pope	818
	1, 792		Lewis v Davison .	736
Lall Mahomed r. Watson & Co		642	Lewis t. Fermor	200
Lal Singh v. Deo Naram .	637	, 658	Lewis & Hartley	908
Lalu Mulji v. Kashibaı 🕠		237	Lewis t. Jones	136
Lamb v Munster	• •	826	Leuis a Levy	695
Lamb v Orton	• •	819	Lewis r Pennington .	817
Laucum r. Lovell	• •	316	Lewis v. Rogers	194
Land Mortgage Bank r. Roy L	uch-		Ley r. Barlon	. 825
miput		646	Ley r. Peter	227, 229
Langdon v. Doud	764	, 781	Lightfoot v Cameron .	839
Langhorn v. Allnutt .	• •	226	Lincoln i Wright .	583, 585
Lano r. Neale		571	Lindley c Lacy .	598
Lapsley v. Grierson		727	Lindo i Belisario	366, 405
Laros v. Com		403	Line t. Taylor	458
Last, re .		387	Lishman t. Christie .	775
Lastings v Gonsalves		745	Laster v Smith .	598
Latafat Husain v Badshah Huse	un	752	Liverpool Adelphi Loan Associat
Latch v. Wedlake	٠.	232	r Fairhurst .	759
Lathulan's Case		601	Livesy v Smith	836
Lauderdale Peerage Case		712	Llewellyn t Winckworth	137
Lavergne v Hooper	• •	787	Lloyd : Freshfield and Kaye	814
Lawless v. Queale .		246	Lloyd : Mostyn	496, 820
Lawrence, re		495	Lloyd r Sturgeon Falls Pulp Co	. 578
Lawrence v. Campbell	••	815	Lloyd v Willan	. 224
Lawrence v. Clarke	••	199	Loburi Domini : Assam Ry. & Tre
Lawrence v French		, 337	ing Co	806
Lawrence r. Ingmire	801	836	Lochun Chowdhry t. Anup Singh
Laybourn v Crisp .		383		825
Leach v Simpson	•	115	Lockett t. Nicklin	555
Lee v. Birrell	814	, 904	Lockwood : Lockwood	140
Lea r. Merest	•	827	Lockyer & Ferryman	375
Lee v. Pain		625	Lods: Mollah r Kally Das	788, 791,
Leech r Schweder .	• •	114		792, 793
Leeds v Cooks		197		102
Leeds v Lancashire	•	575		366
Leelanund Singh r. Basheeroon				753
115, 63				666
Leclanund Singh r Luchmun Sin		639		197, 417
Leelanund Singh r Musst. La		250	London & NW. Ry Co. v West	. 790
puttee	• •	352	London & Tilbury Ry. Co. v. Ki
Lers v. Marton		143	London & Yorkshire Bank r Coop
Legal Remembrancer v. Chen		. 273	London Gas Co. r. Chelses London Joint Stock Bank r. Simm	819, 822
Nashya		787	Longman r. Bath Electric Ry.
Le Geyt v. Harvey	••	101	LARGEMEN T. DATA LICETS BY.	763, 764
W, LE				d

PAGE	Page
Looloo Singh v. Rajendur Laha 654, 842	Macgowan, In the goods of 540
Lootf Ali v. Peary Mohun 198, 206	Macgregor t Kelly
Lopez t. Lopez 730
Lord v. Colvin 861, 862	Mackenzie r. British Linen Co 795
Lord Advocate v. Lord Blantyre 4, 159	Mackenzie r Dunlop 180
Lord Advocate v. Lord Lovat 169, 327, 663
Lord Barrymore v Taylor . 368	Mackenzie Lyall & Co & Chamroo
Lord Cornwallia, trial of . 116	Sing & Co 180
Lord Kinnaird v. Lady Saltoun . 536
Lord Melville's trial 128
Lord Waterpack v Fennell 183
Loughbro' Highway Board v Curzon 227
Lovatt v. Tribe 197
Lovatt Peerage Case . 321, 32;
Loveden r Loveden 11'
Low 1 Bouverie 755, 762, 763, 764, 778	Madeleine Smith's Case
Lucas v. De la Cour 231, 23;
Lucas v. Novosilieski
Luchman Chundra v. Kalı Churn 453, 770,	Madhub Chunder t Gangadhur
783, 78
Luchman Dass v Gridhur Chow-	Samunt 580 Madhavrav i Gulabbai 247, 249, 919
dhury 65
Luchman Dass v. Khunnu Lal 65	Madhub Chunder v Law 765
Luchman Rai r. Akbar Khan 184, 41'
Luchman Singh v Puna 476, 481, 483, 48	Madhub Chunder & Tomee Bewah
Luchmee Dat v Ashman Singh 65	170, 382, 383
Luchmeedhur Pattuck v. Rughoo-	Madras Deposit and Benefit Society
bur Singh 130 171, 48	I.d. v Oonamalat Ammal 502, 504, 989
Luchmeeput Singh i Sadaulla	Madras Hindu Mutual Benefit Per-
Nashyo 16 Luchnu Koer v Roghu Nath . 73
Luchmun Chunder : Kali Churn 75	101
Lucy v Mouflet 148, 14	323
Luckee Koer # Ram Dutt . 69	36
Lukheemon- Dossee v Shunkuree	Mahabeer Persad v Oomrao Singh 661
Dossee 12	101
Lukhee Natum v. Taramonee Dossee 77	B Mahabeer Persad r Ramayad Smah 250
	Mahabir Prosad t, Bashdeo Sing 637
Lukhi Narain v Maharaja Jodhu	Mahabir Prosad t, Bashdeo Sing . 657 Mahabir Prasad t, Bishen Dval . 641
Nath 63	Mahabir Prosad t, Bashdeo Sing 657 Mahabir Prasad v, Bishen Dyal 641 Mahadaji Gopal t, Vithal Ballal 748, 779
Nath 63 Lukhynarain Chattopadhya v Gora-	<ol> <li>Mahabir Prosad t, Bashdeo Sing</li></ol>
Nath	2 Mahabir Prosad t, Bashdeo Sing 657 Mahabir Prasad t, Rishen Dyal 641 9 Mahadaji Gopal t, Vithal Ballal 748, 772 Mahadeo Misser v Lahoree Misser 647 9 Mahadevappa t Basugonda 653
Nath Lukhynarain Chattopadhya v Gora- chand Gossumy 31 Lukshnian v Daniodar 50	<ol> <li>Mahabir Prosad t. Bashdeo Sing . 657</li> <li>Mahabir Prasad t. Bishen Dyal . 641</li> <li>Mahadir Gopal t. Yithal Ballal 748, 772</li> <li>Mahado Misser v Lahoree Misser . 647</li> <li>Mahadevapa t. Basugonda . 653</li> <li>Mahadeva r Neelamoney 1996, 698, 777</li> <li>Mahadeva r Neelamoney 1996, 698, 777</li> </ol>
Nath 63 Lukhynarain Chattopadhya v Gora- chand Gossamy 31 Luk-hnun v Dunodar 60 Luleet Narain v Narain Singh 35	2 Mahabur Prosad R. Bashdeo Sing 6,77 Mahabur Prosad R. Ruben Dyal 641 Mahladuji Gopal I. Vithal Ballal 748,772 Mahadeo Misser r Lahorre Misser 647 Mahadeo Misser r Lahorre Misser 647 Mahadeo Misser t Lahorre Misser 643 Mahadevi r Keclamoney 696,698,777,782 Mehald F. Sankallu
Nath 63 Lukhynrain Chattopadhya e Gora- chand Goseumy 2 Luk-hmun e Dumolar 60 Lulect Narain e Narain Singh 35 Lumley e Oshorne 10	2 Mishabir Prosad R. Bashdeo Sing     6.77       Mahabir Prosad R. Bishen Dyal     6.41       9 Mehadaji Gopal I. Vithal Ballal     748, 772       Mahadeo Misser r Lahoree Misser     6.47       Mahadevapa E Basugonda     6.53       1 Mahadevi F Neclamoney 096, 698, 777, 782       Mehadir S. Sankallu     914       5 Mishalit Chun Ammal P Palam Chetti     554       1 Mahalatchun Ammal P Palam Chetti     564
Nath	2 Mahabur Prosad R. Bashdeo Sing     6.77       Mahabur Prasad R. Bishen Dyal     641       Mehadqi Gopal I, Vithal Ballal     748, 772       Mahadeo Miwer r Lahorre Misser     647       Mahaderappa L Baugonda     653       Mahaderyap R. Baugonda     653, 777, 782       Mehald R. Sankallu     914       Mahadatchun Ammal r Palan Chetti     554       Mahanda Amm r Hyasa     724
Nath 63 Lukhynrain Chattopadhya e Gora- chand Gossumy 21 Luk-hnvan e Dunodar 64 Luleet Narain e Narain Singh 35 Lumley e Oshorne 648, 55 Lumlon Row e Mullar Row 648, 55 Lavil e Kennedy 348, 350, 332, 335	2 Mishabir Prosad R. Bashdeo Sing     6.37       Mahabir Prosad R. Bushen Dyal     6.41       9 Mehadaji Gopal t. Vithal Ballal     738, 772       Mishadeo Misser s. Lahoree Misser     6.47       Mahadevapa t. Basugonda     6.53       Mahadevi r. Neclamoney 096, 698, 777, 782       Methall r. Sankallu     914       Mahalatchun Ammel r. Palani Chetti     554       Mahamad Amin r. Hissan     175       Maharasha Gobind r. Raja Anund     488
Nath	2 Mahabur Prosad R. Bashdeo Sing         6.77           Mahabur Prosad R. Bishen Dyal         644           Mehadqi Gopal I. Vithal Ballal         748, 72           Mahadeo Miwer r Lahoree Misser         647           Mahadeo Miwer balancee Misser         647           Mahaderappa basugonda         633           Maladerie r Neclamoney 696, 698, 777, 782         914           Mahalatchun Ammul r Palanı Chetti         54           Mahatlatchun Ammul r Palanı Chetti         54           Mahatlariyal Gobund r Raja Anundı         458           Mahatrijal Gobund r Raja Bhabatanı         48           Mahatriyal Gulları Raja Bhabatanı         48
Nath	2 Mahabur Prosad R. Bashdeo Sing 67,7 Mahabur Prosad R. Bishen Dyal 64,4 Mahladqi Gopal I. Vithal Ballal 748, 72 Mahadeo Niwer r Lahoree Misser. 647,7 Mahadeo P. Reclamoney 666, 698, 777, 782,7 Mahalatchun Ammel P. Palan Chetti 54,7 Mahanad Amm r Hissal 114,7 Maharajah Gobinde Raja Anund. 458,7 Maharajah Jupadendra P. Bhabatarin 1Dasi Maharajah Jupadendra P. Bhabatarin 1Dasi Maharajah Jupadendra P. Ahlad
Nath	2 Mahabur Prosad R. Bashdeo Sing 6,77 Mahabur Prosad R. Bishen Dyal 641 Mehladuji Gopal I, Vithal Ballal 748,772 Mahadeo Miveer v Lahorree Miveer 6,67 Mahadeo Miveer v Lahorree Miveer 6,67 Mahadevappa v Basugonda 633 Mahadevi r Neclamoney 696,698,777,789 Mehladi R. Sankallu 914 Mahadad Amin + Hivan 174 Maharajah Gobind r Raja Anund. 135 Maharaja Jagadendra v Bhabatarin 10 183 Maharajah Juggeenath v. Ahlad Kowur 669
Nath	2 Mahabur Prosad R. Bashdeo Sing 67,7 Mahabur Prosad R. Bishen Dyal 64,1 Mahladqi Gopal I. Vithal Ballal 748, 72 Mahadeo Miwer r Lahoree Misser 67,2 Mahadeo Miwer r Lahoree Misser 67,2 Mahadeo Miwer balander 633 Mahadevappa a Basugonda 633 Mahadevappa a Basugonda 633 Mahadevappa a Basugonda 633 Mahadeva r Neclamoney 666, 698, 777, 782 Mahalatchun Ammel v Palan Chetti 54 Mahanad Amm r Hissal 114 Maharajah Gobund r Raja Anund. 458 Maharajah Jugadendar y Bhabatari ni Dasi Maharajah Jugadendar B. Bhabatari ni Dasi Maharajah Jugadendar R. Ahlad Mahatajah Kowur R. Nund Lall 68,0 Maharajah Kowur R. Nund Lall 68,0
Nath	2 Mahabur Prosad R. Bashdeo Sing 6,77 Mahabur Prosad R. Bishen Dyal 644 Mahadqi Gopal I, Yithal Ballal 748, 772 Mahadeo Miwee r Lahoree Misser 647 Mahadeo Miwee r Lahoree Misser 647 Mahadeo Miwee r Lahoree Misser 647 Mahadeo Misser 646, 787, 788 Mahalatehun Ammal P. Palan Chetti 544 Mahanad Amm r Hissan 154 Maharajah Golund r Raja Anund 458 Maharajah Jugadendra r Bhabatarir ni Dasi Maharajah Jugadendra r Ahlad Kowur 666 Maharajah Newur r Nund Lall 920 Maharajah Pettah r Maharajah 920
Nath	2 Mahabur Prosad R. Bashdeo Sing 6,77 Mahabur Prosad R. Bishen Dyal 644 Mehadqi Gopal I, Yithal Ballal 748, 772 Mahadeo Miwer r Lahorre Miwer 647 Mahadeo Miwer r Lahorre Miwer 647 Mahadevappa R. Baugonda 633 Mahadevi r Neclamoney 696, 698, 777, 782 Mehallat R. Sankallu 194 Mahanad Amm r Hiwan 194 Maharada Amm r Hiwan 194 Maharada Amm r Hiwan 194 Maharada Jagadendra r Bhabatarir ni Dasi Maharajah Juggernath r Ahlad Kowur 668 Maharajah Juggernath r 668 Maharajah Kowur r Nud Lall 920 Maharajah Kowur r Nud Lall 920

Piak	Page
Maharajah Rajendro Kishen e. Sheo-	Mahomed Sultan Salub r. Horace pursum Misser	Robinson 741
Maharaj Singh v. Raja Balwant Singh 585	Mahtab Chand r. Bengal Govt 749
Maharana Shri Rammalsingji t.	Maidin Saiba v. Nagappa 789
Vadilal Vakhatchand . 231, 449	Mailathi Anni e. Subbaraya Mudaliar 183
Maharani Reni Pershad e Dudh	Makbul Alı e. Srımatı Masnad Bibi 476
Nath 454	Makhun Lall r. Ram Lall 951
Maharani Hiranath & Baboo Ram 185	Makin v. AttGenl for N S W. 194, 195,
Maharani Hiranath e Ram Narayan 185	D2:
Mahatala Bibec t Haleemoozooman 623,	Makund Bahori, In re 670
729	Makundi Kuar v. Balkishan Das 774
Mahendro Nath t. Jogendra Nath 591, 596	Malcolm Brunker & Co & Water-
Mahipat e. Lakshman 714	house ' 124, 761
Mahomed v Abdul 907	Malcolmson v O'Den . 169, 327, 38-
Mahomed Abdul v. Gujraj Sahai . 737	- Malla Reddi v Aswa Natha Reddi 755
Mahomed Aizaddi v Shaffi Mulla . 550	Maloji Santili v. Vithu Hari . 670
Mahomed Akbar v Reilly . 660	Manada Sundarı r. Mahananda Sar,
Mahomed Alı e R 889, 899	nahar 638
Mahomed Alı v Nazar Alı 445, 580, 581,	Managers of Met Asylum v. Hill 124, 137
586	Mana Vikrama : Rama Patter 602
Mahomed Ali v. Khaja Abdul 665, 666, 689,	Manchaiam t Kalidas 393
712	Mangal Sen t Hira Singh . 514
Mahomed Amm t Hasan 168	Mangal Sen v Shankar Sahai 547
Mahomed Ashruff v. Buessuree Das-	Man Gobind v Jankee Ram . 755
see . 652	Maniklal Bahoo : Ramdas Mazum-
Mahomed Ausar v Prokash Chunder 640	dar 670
Mahomed Basir r Kurreem Buksh 686	Maniram Deb t Debi Charan 399, 686
Mahomed Bauker e Shurgoon Nissa 729	Manjanali Devi v Ramdas Shome 380, 38s
Mahomed Bhoy v Chutterput Sing 569	Manjayya v Shesa Shetti 840
Mahomed Buksh : Hosseini Bibee 698	Mankura Passi 2 R . 202, 432
Mahomed Bux t. Abdool Kurreem 690, 918	Mannu Singh t Umadat Pande 696
Mahomed Fedre v Ozecoodeen 362, 545	Mano Mohun v Mothura Mohun 631, 666,
Mahomed Golab r Mahomed Sulli-	712
map , 391, 646	Manohar Das v Bhagabati Dasi 593
Mahomed Hamidulla v Modhoosoo.	Manpal v Salub Ram 750
dun Ghose . 776	Mansel & Clements 193
Mahomed Hamid-ud-din & Shib	Manser t Dix . 817
Sahai . 769	Manson t Golam Kebria , 127
Mahomed Hancef r Mozhur Alı 291, 292	Manud Louis Kunha i Juana Coelho 590
Mahomed Husain t Mulchand 789	Maqbulan : Ahmad Husain . 400
Mahomed Ibrahim v. Morrison 665, 666	Marapu Tharalu e Telukula Neela-
Mahomed Imam r Husain Khan 215	kanta Behara . 679
Mahomed Ismail r Bhuggobutty	Marine Investment Co . Havi-
Barmanya 474	*ide 544, 73°
Mahomed Jackeriah & Co + Ah-	Mark Ridded e Muthuramen Chetty 981
med Mahomed . 823	Marks t Beyfus . 811
Mahomed Mahmood e Safar Ali 345, 899	Marquis of Anglesey : Lord Hather-
Mahomed Meher v Sheeb Pershad 358	ton . 180
Mahomed Mozaffer + Kishori Mo	Marriott v Chamberlain . 819
han 238, 768	Marshall e Berndge 144
Mahomed Mudun r Khodezunnissa 775	Marshall r Cliff . 229
Mahomed Routhan : Husam Row-	Marshall r Davies 814 than 984	Marshall r Lamb
Mahomed Sahili, In re . 281
Mahomed Shumsool r Shewukram 607, 652	Mareton = 1887 500

Page.	Pagi
Mohan Mahtoo r. Meer Shamsod 792	Mollwo March r. Ct of Wards 76
Mohansing Chawan v. Henry Conder 565	Monatt z. Castle Steel Co 78
Moharani Beni v. Goberdhan Koer 716	Monakton r. AttGen 319, 32
Moheema Chunder r. Poorno Chun-	Menmohiney Dassee r. Greech
der 3	Chunder : 54
Mohendra Lall r. Rosomeyi Dasi 171	Monmohinee Dassee e. Bishomoyee
Mohendro Chunder r Surbo Kukhya 645, 667	Dassee 99
Mohendro Nath e. Koylash Chen-	Monmolunee Dassee r Kedarnath
der 657	Karmokar 99
Mohendra Nath r. R 913	Monmohinee Joginee v. Jugobundho
Moher Sheikh v. R. 102, 261, 799, 827, 872	Sadhookhan 768, 78
Mohesh Chunder, In the matter of 811	Monohar Singh r Sumirta Kuar 670, 77
Mobesh Chunder r Barada Debi 690, 740	Monroe r. Twistleton 808, 60
Moresh Chunder r. Dino Bendhu 163, 171	Mochee Ram r Bissambhar Roy 362, 68
Mohesh Chunder r Goorgo Per-
shad 785, 786
Nobesh Chunder r Issur Chunder 770	Mooktakeshee Debia r Collector of Moorshidabad 67
Mohesh Chunder c. Juggut Chunder 358.
379
Mohesh Chunder r Kamını Kumarı 681
Mohesh Chunder t. Madhub Chun-
•	Monce Ummah v. The Municipal
Mohesh Chunder v Mohesh Chunder 802	Commissioners for the Town of
Mohesh Chunder v. Satrughan Dhat 185	Madras
Mohesh Chunder v. Ugra Kant . 789
Mohesh Lal v Mohunt Bawin . 743
Mohi Chowdhry = Dhiro Missrain 351
Mohidin Ahmed v Sayyid Muham-	Moonsher Burloor v Shumsoonissa
mad 458	Begum . 637, 645, 695, 696, 69 Woonshee Synd Ameer t Syef Mr 78
Mohima Chundra, In re . 843
Mohim Chandra Roy v Kalı Tara
Debia 921
Mohina Chunder e Huro Lali . 689	Moore τ Smith
Mohima Chunder v. J. P Wise . 361	Moore r Tyrell 81
Mohima Chunder v. Mohesh Chunder 665	Moran r Mittu Bibee . 58
Mohina Chunder v. Rajkumar . 358	Moorewood r Wood 296, 31
Mohima Chunder z. Ram Kishore	Morgan v. Pissell 55
455, 632, 751	Morgan r Brydges 85
Mohini Mohun e. Promods Nath . 159	Morgan r. Couchman 780
Mohinudin v. Mancher Shah . 667	Morgan v Evan 140
Mohiny Mohun t. Krishno Kish-	Morgan r. Morgan 921
ore 666, 712	Morgan t Nichol 32
Mohori Bibee v. Dharmodas 758, 760	Morarty r. Gray 48
Wohun r. Saratchand . 914	Moriarty a London C. D Ry Co
Mohun Das r Nilkomul . 753	126, 139, 143, 234
Mohun Lall r Cotton Mills Co . 985	Morley c. Harford 571
Mobun Lall r. Urnopoorna Dossee . 555	Moro Desai e Ramchandra Desa 665, 666
Muhun Sahoo e Chutto Mowar 213, 235,	Moro Vishvanath & Gonesh Vithal 72:
236	Morris r. Bethel 137
Mohunt Burm e Kashee Jha 655	Morris c. Davies 423, 699, 701, 702, 703, 704
Mohunt Doss r. Nilkamal Dewan 779, 781	Mortis r. Edwards 823  Mortis r. Hauser 496
Mohunt Gour v. Hayagrih 667
Mohur Sing v. Ghumba . 466, 918,	Morris r Miller 210
919, 920, 922	Morris r Miller 21e Morris r Panchanada Pillay 60e
Vision to Thornton . 415, 500	Morrish r Murrey 149

	PAGE.		PAGE.
	904	Meer Usdoollah , Musst. Beeby,
Maraton t. Donne.		1mamam 5, 114, 458, 46	1, 430
		Meer Yar Alt, Re 187, 192, 19
Martin r Mackonochie		Meethun Bibre r Busheer Khan	806
Martin t. Martin	116	Megit Hansrat v Bampi Jorta	237
			2, 474
Mary Goodrich (Payne 1. Benn tt).	. 473	Meharban Ki an v Muhboob Khan	458
Mary Tug Co. v B I. S N. Co.		Meherally Morral t. Sakerkhanoobas	638
Masii-nit-me and C Zuroani	015	Mcklee Khestu v Devachund	372
Mason, Re	732	Meltourne Banking Corporation r.	•••
Mason v. Mason	404	Brougham .	642
Meson a Phelps	206	Melen / Andrews	148
Mason v. Wood		Melhuish : Collier 139, 141, 8
	312, 315	Memon Haper 1 Moulve Abdool
Mathews & Munster .	. 230 206
Mathias t O'Neill			16, 817 227
Mathura Das v. Bhikhan	. 607	Meredith r Footnes
Mathura Pandey v. Ram Rucha	462, 646	Meres t Anselle	571
Mangham v. Hubbard	. 898	Metropohian Ry Co r Wright	917
Maung Bin & Ma Hlaing	586, 600	Metters v Brown
Maung Shwe v Maung Tur	. 577	Meux Executor's Case	226
May , Burdett	690 188	Mena Lali e Bhujun Jha	389
Mayandi Chetti v Olerer.	. 571	Meyer t Diesser
Maybank v Brooks		Middleton v Melton	310
Mayen r. Alston 596, 597, 635, 669	, 019, 123	Middleton v Pollock	783
Mayenborg v. Haynes .	. 777	Mighell r Sultan of Johore 413, 446,
Mayhew t Nelson .		NET 121 C 31	452
Mayo v Williams		Milan Khan t Sagai Bepart
Mayor, etc., of Bristol r Cov	815	Millar v Travers
Mayor t. Murray .			343, 730
Mayor v. Sciton .	682, 704		. 391
Mazhar Ali e. Budh Singh Mazhar Hasan e. Behari Singh	687	atmer t Danu Britano 130, 242, 245	, 659, 846
Marhar Husen t Bodha Bibi	676	Miller v Barber	630
McAleer *. Horsey	780		850, 914
			399
McAllister v Reab McCance v. London & NW. 1			132, 917
• Co	765
M'Combie : Anton	336		813, 815
McConnell t. Mayor .	767, 769
McCornuciale v. Ball .	825
McDougal r. Knight	917
McDowell r. Ragaya Chetti	657, 659
McGowan v Smith	45
McGrens to McGrens	. 73
McGregor v. Rhodes .	79
McKenzie e British Lines, Co.	77	351	. 665
McLaren Morrison v. Verschoyle	76		. 373
M'Lean r. Hertzog	56
McLeod r Simharmali	88	Mithan Bibi r. Bashir Khan
McLeol : Wakely	45
McNaghten's Case	39
McQueen t. Phipps	39	Modee Huddin v. Sandes	618
Mease r. Mease	57	l Modee Kaikhoosron v. Cooverbhae	640
Merkins r. Smith	83	9 Mohabeer Pershad v. Mohabeer Sing	b 691
Meer Ashrul v Meer Arshud	72	Mohabeer Singh v. Dhujjou Singh	219. 714
		-,	-,

Pigf.	PAGE.
Mohan Mahtoo e, Meer Shamsod 792	Mollwo March t. Ct of Wards 762
Mohansing Chawan e, Henry Conder 365	Momatt 1. Castle Steel Co 782
Moharani Beni e Goberdhan Koer 716	Monckton r. AttGen 319, 324
Voheema Chunder r. Poorno Chun-	Monmohiney Dassee r. Greesh
der .,
Mohendra Lall : Rosomevi Dasi 171	Monmohinee Dassec v Bishomoyee
Mohendro Chunder v. Surbo Kokhya C45, 667	Dassee 990
Mohendro Nath v Koylash Chun-	Monmohinee Dassee v Kedarnath
der 667	Karnokar
Mohendra Nath e R 913	Monmohinee Joginee v Jugobundho
Moher Sheikh r. R 102, 261, 799, 827, 872	Sadhockhan 768, 783
Mohesh Chunder, In the matter of . 811	Monohar Singh v Sumirta Kuar 670, 776
Mohesh Chunder v. Barada Debi 600, 740	Monroe r Twistleton 808, 609
Moresh Chunder r. Dino Bundhu 163, 171	Mochee Ram r Bissambhar Roy 362, 689
Mohesh Chunder r Goorgo Per-	Moodlay t Morton 809
shad 785, 786	Mouktakeshee Debia v Collector
Wohesh Chunder v Issur Chunder 770	of Moorsh-dabad 672
Mohesh Chunder v Juggut Chunder 358	Mookto Keshee t. Anundo Chunder 637
359	Moolii Lilla r Gokuldas . 649, 651
Mohesh Chunder & Kamura Kumara 681	Moolla Cassim r Woolla Abdul 682
Mohesh Chunder t. Madhub Chun-	Monee Ummah t. The Municipal der 102	Commissioners for the Town of
Mohesh Chunder v Mohesh Chunder 802	Madras 667
Mohesh Chunder v Satrughan Dhal 185	Moonshee Ameer v Maharani In-
Mohesh Chunder v. Ugra Kant . 789	derjeet
Mohesh Lal v Mohunt Bawan , 743	Mounshee Buzicol v Pran Dhan . 237
Mohi Chowdhry z, Dhiro Missrain 351	Moonshee Buzloor v Shumsoonissa
Wohldin Ahmed v Sayyid Muham-	Begum . 637, 645, 695, 696, 697
mad 458	Moonshee Syud Ameer t. Syef Alt 783
Mohima Chundra, In te 843	Moore v. Foley 556
Mohim Chandra Roy v Kalı Tara	Monre v Knight 232
Debia 921	Moore t Smith 148
Mohima Chunder v Huro Lali . 689	Moore t         Smith         .         .         .         148           Moore v         Tuckwell         .         .         .         .         917           Moore v         Tyrrell         .         .         .         818
Mohima Chunder v J P Wise 361	Moore v Tyrrell 818
Mohuna Chunder v Mohesh Chunder 665	Moran t Mittu Bibee 588 Moorewood t Wood . 296, 318
Wohuna Chunder v Rajkumar . 358
Mohima Chunder r Ram Kishore	Morgan v Bissell 556
455, 652, 751	Morgan e Brydges 854
Mohini Mohun v Promode Nath . 159 Mohinudin v Mancher Shah . 667	Morgan v Evan Mohiny Mohun t. Krishno Kish- ore 666, 712 ore 666, 712 Mohori Bibee v. Dharmodas 758, 700
Mohun e Saratchand 914	Moriarty v Gray 489  Moriarty v London C D. Ry, Co
Mohun Das r. Nilkomul 753	126, 139, 143, 234
Mohun Lall v. Cotton Mills Co . 985	Morley r Harford 571
Mohan Lall v. Urnopoorna Dossee 555	Moro Desai r Rainchandra Desa 665, 666
Mohun Sahoo v. Chutto Mowar 213, 235.	Moro Vishvanath & Gonesh Vithal 724
236	Morris t. Bethel . 137
Mohunt Burm e Kashee Jha 455	Morris v Davies 423, 699, 701, 702, 703, 704
Mohunt Doss c. Nilkamal Dewan 779, 781	Morris v Edwards 823
Mohunt Gour t. Hayagrib . 667	Morris e Hauser 496
Mohur Sing v. Ghuriba . 466, 918,	Morris v. Miller 210
919, 920, 922	Morris e. Panchanada Pillay 604
Moises v. Thornton 415, 500	Morrish v Murrey 148

Page	Page
	Muir e Glasgon Bank 695, 736
and the second s	Mujnee Ram v Gonesh Dutt 667
	Mukhoda Soundary e Bam Churn 115
Moseley t. Davies 297 Moseley t. Victoria Rubber Co 820	Mukim Mullick , Pamjan Sirdar 772
Moses, D. H R. In the matter of 787	Makunda Chandra : Arpan Ali 662
M C-II 797	Mulchand r Multo Ran 587
Moss v Sallimon	Muly Lala : Nityarun Singh 98%
Mostyn t, West Mostyn Corl Iron Co 818	Munchershau etc , Ven Dhurmat-
Moto Lall r Juddonputtee Dos 671	sey Spinning Co 7, 204, 307, 344,
Moter Lall v. Juggurnath Gurg 642, 646	345, 800, 913 814, 817, 816, 818 870
Mothorn Mohun " Penry Mehun 987	Munford / Gething 605
Mothoora Pandey r. Ram Ruchya 199	Mnaicipal Corporation of Botebay
Mothoor Mobun t. The Bank of Ben-	t Cutern Util . 507
gal	Municipal Corporation of Bombay
Motichand e, Dadabhei	t, Sentan of Stat . 765
Moti Gulabehand r. Mahomed Mebdi 710	Muar mality of Sholapur : Shola-
Moti Lall c. Jogumohun Das 985, 986	pur Spinning and Westing Co
Motidahu r Parshotam Doyal . 638	711, 715, 738
Moulvi Macanooddeen a Greesh	Min Mohinee / Joukissen Mooker-
Chunder 690	jee 661
Moniri Mahomed Branull Hug t.	Mun Mobinee : Soods Monee 650
Wilkie 892	Man Mehan · Smara Pay . 671
Mountmoy e. Collier 792, 793	Minnou Lall / Laka Chooree 765,
Mowatt r. Castle Steel and Iron	766, 768, 769
Works Co 239	Man-unjan Singh v T alnund Sinch 741
Mowji r. National Bank of Ind'a 763	Mun-hi Wazhar Ha-an r Behan
Moyan e. Pathukutti 994	5mgb 690, 693
Mozuster Wahid v Abdus Samad 667	Munster : Lamb $40
Mrinnioyee Dabea v. Bhoobun Moyee 336	Murietta v Wolfregen 732
Meitunjaya Sirkar : Gopal Chundra 789	Murray v Lord Stair 597
Muddun Mohan e Bhogoomanto	Muiray i R 643
Podder 665, 685	Murray e Walter 906
Muddun Mehun + Bhurut Chunder 672	Musadee Mahomed r. Meerza Ally 922
Muddun Mchun r Kantoo Lall 654	Mussfir Ram t Trelechun Bagelu 609
Maddun Vichun r. Sofuna Bewa 680	Musamat Parbati Kuar r Rani Chan-
Mudboo Soodun r. Suroop Chun.	drapal Kuar 184, 185 Musst Ackjoo e Lallah Ramchundra 220
der 114, 459, 471 Muleezodeen Kazee r. Mehar Ali	Musst Ackjook Lallah Ramchundra 229 Musst Ameeroonissa r. Musst Abe.
481, 489, 713
Muhammad Abdul t. Ibrahim 481, 489
Muhammad Allahad v. Muhammad	Muset Azzerooniss r Bakur Khan 600
Istani) 9, 100, 702, 703
Muhammad Allahdad er I-mail Khan 729
Muhammad Hussin r. Munua Lal 350
Mubammut Imam & Santae Hustin 350	kar Khoda 750
Muhammad Insyrt t. Muhammad	Muset, Ibbee r Sheik Hamel . 74
Kuramatullah 679, 680	Muset, Edun r Muset Brechun 114, 459,
Mohammad Khan e. Mohammad	471
. Ibrahim 771	Musst Farzharec r. Musst, Azizun-
Muhamered Someud din c Mannu	B1584 70
Jal 78:	Muset. Fool t. Geor Surun
Mulammad Yakoch r Mulammad	Musst Fureedoomssa v. Ram Onogra 550
Numerous Numer of the Control	Muest Hurrosoondery r. Maest.
Murammad Yusuf r. P. & O. S. N.	Amrens 68:
Ca 677	Muest Imam : Hurgobind Chose 45

PAGE.	PAGE
Musst, Imrit r. Lalla Debee 237, 238	Nagindas Haritrandas r Kara Jes-
Musst. Inderbuttee r. Sheik Mab	ang 759
boub 786	Y W C. 11
Musst, Jaibun r. Musst, Bibee 729	Nainapps Chetti r. Chidambaram
Musst. Janut-ool-Batool t. Musst.
Hosseinee 711, 729
Musst. Jhaloo r. Shark Furzund . 670	Nellethembi r Nellekumare 71,383 Nallesppa Goundan r Kalleppa
Misst, Kaboolun r. Shumsher Ali . 000
Musst. Khoob r. Baboo Moodnarain 680
Musst. Kurufool r. Musst, Rajkalee 670	Nanak Ram r Mchin Lall 101, 103
Musst. Lall r. Murli Dhar 250, 119	Nana Narain r. Hurre Puntu 461
Musst. Lalun t. Hemraj Singh 663, 664	Nanda Lal r. Jagneswar Halder 662, 664
Musst. Luteefoonista - Goor Surun 291	Nanda Lal Goswami r. Atarmani
Musst. Natukhee t. Chowdbry Chin-	Dasee 743
tamun 644, 689	Nandkishure Das r. Ramkalp Roy 453
Muset, Oodey r. Muset, Ladoo 291,	Nangah r. Raman 991
773, 780, 781, 782	Nanku Ram v. I. M. R. Co . 727
Musst, Ordia r. Bhopal 749	Nanomi Babusin r. Modhun Mohun 657
Musst, Parbati Kunwar r. Ram Chan-	Naracott r Naracott 428, 434
derpal Kunwar 163, 184, 185, 318, 351	Naragunty Lutchmeedwamah t.
Musst, Phool r Goor Surun 546, 772	Vengama Naidoo 7, 128, 516, 647, 723
Muset Purnix r Torab Ally 786	Narain Chander r Cohen . 400
Muset, Ram r Babu Bishen 594	Natain Chunder r Dataram Roy . 744
Musst. Ramdee r Baboo Shib . 594	Natain Coomary v Ram Kishna 213 21-
Musst. Safiqunissa r Shaban Ah 323. 547	Natain Dhara: Rakhal Gun 731
Muset Sahordan r. Joy Naram 645	Narainee Dossee t Nurrohurry Mo-
Musst. Shunemokee t Isin Chun-	hunto . 22:
der 842	Naraim Kuar r Chandi Din 325
Muset, Surajmani r. Rabi Nath Ojhi 724	Narain Singh t. Nurendro Narain 361
Musst. Ushrufoonessa v Baboo Gra-	Narangi Bhikabai t Dipa Umed 163, 174
dhare 291	Narayan t Chintaman 655
Musst Ustoorum r Baboo Mohuu . 481	Narayan - Lakshmandas . 503
Musst. Zaynub v Hadjee Baba 310 312	Narayan : Political Agent . 653
Mustapha Saher Santha Pillar 693	Narayan r Raoji . 779, 780
Muthoora Dass t. Kanno Beharee 654	Narayan Bhagwant r. Stiniwas Trim-
Muthuvaiyan r Sinna Samasaiyan 785, 794	bak 685
Muttayan Chetti r Sangli Vira 655	Narayan Ganesh : Bhirraj 640
Muttiya Pillat r Western 569	Narayan Kandu t. Kaigunda . 770
Muttu Karuppa r Rama Pillar 246	Narayan Undir : Motilal Ram-
Muttu Ramalinga v Persanayagam	das
Pillai 352	Narendra Lal r Joga Ham 713, 714
Muttu Ramalings t Setupati 656	Narendra Naram r Bishen Chundra 671
Muttusawmy Jagavera i Vencatas	Narendra Nath r Ram Gobind . 703
Wara 423	Naro Vinavak r Nahari Bin 159
Mutty Lall r Anundo Chunder . 5%	Narsulas Jittam r. G Joglekar . 760
Mylne, In the goods of 540 738	Narsing Das r Rahimanbbai 758, 781, 784
	Narsing Dyal r Ram Narain 136, 144, 158
	781
N	Narsyng Narain e Dharam Thackur
Nadiar Chand r Chunder Sikhur 636	661, 687
Nagalingam Pillai r Rama Chanira 724	Nasarian c Rasji 752
Nagappa r. Devu . 989, 990	Name Jhandar v R 257, 258, 263
Nagarji Trikanji, In re . 695	Nash e Imman 609
Nagar Mall r Arcemoollah 776	Natha Hart r Jamne 673
Vazinther e. Abdullati. (37, 740, 741	Vetha Sirch r Jodha Sinch etc

D	Page.
Page	Nilmani Maitra v. Mathura Nath 663
Nathu Ram t. Kalya390	Nil Monee t. Zubeerunissa Khanum
Nathubhai e. Mulchand . 757
Nawab Azmut & Hurdwaree Mull 771
Nawab Khan r. Rughoonath Das 922
Nawab Shah Ara Begam e Nanbi	Nilmony Mukhopadhya t. Amunica
Begam 321	Bibee 393
Nawab Sidhee v Rajah Oloodhya-	Nilo Ramchandi i v Gobind Ballal 749
ram ., 772, 843	Nilratan Mandal : Ismail Khan 663, 742
Nawab Syed v. Musst, Amanee 645, 670, 716	Nimhoo Sahoo e Boodhoo Jummadar 776
Nawab Tarasseed v Behart Lall 661	Ningawa r Pharmappa 130, 131, 205, 298,
Nawahunissa t Fuzloonissa - 729	306, 307, 308, 309, 312, 315, 344, 705, 706
Vezer Sulben + Womesh Chunder , 665	Ningawa v Ramappa 482
Neal v. Erving	Normal Chunder / Stanati Sarat-
Neal e Parkin . 145	manı, 499
Neamut Ali r Goorgo Doss 163, 168, 171	Nisa Chand , Kanchiran Bagani 691, 692
Neel Kanto e. Jaggabundho Ghose	Nistari ii v Kalipershad Dass 634, 639, 661
112, 466, 499	Nistarini Dosser v Nundo Lall 389, 390,
Neave 1. Moss 792	391, 393, 394, 623, 697, 894, 902, 993
Neelkisto Deb r Beer Chunder 166, 647. 723	Nitra-ut Singh r Nund Lall , 665
Nehal Chunder t. Hurree Petshad. 671	Nitra Pal v Jar Pal 185
Neile v Jakle 138, 147, 148	Nittanand Ghose r Krishna Dyal 721
Neil t. Devonshire . 159, 169	Nittvarund Roy & Abdar Raheem . 515
	Nittyanund Roy v Banchi Chandra 636
Nelson v. Bridport . 398 Nelson v. Whittal	Nitra Gopal r Nagendra Nath 502, 505
Nelson Line Limited t. Nelson &	Nityanund Surmah r Kashinati
	M D. II
Nemaganda t Paresha	Niven v Belkrap 767 Nobin Chunder v Drokhbala Dasi
International Control of the Control	638, 649, 740 Nobin Krishno v Russik Ld 569
Neway Bundopadhya r. Kali Pro sonno Ghore
	Nobin Mandul v Cholim Mullick 743 Nobe Coomar v Gobind Chunder 358,
TOTAL CONTROL OF THE PROPERTY	359, 361 Nobodoorga, In re 129, 674
Newton v Harland
	Notes Rishere v Joy Doorga . 676 Notes Chunder v Ashutesh Mu.
Nga Tha Yab e F. N Burn 625 Niamutoolah Khadim e Himmut	Landa .
Alı 216, 223, 537
Nibaran Chandra-Roy e R 112, 644, 715.
716, 727
Nicholas v Asphar 315, 700
Nicol & Co t. Castle	Norden Steam Ship Co. v. Dempsey 624 Norendra Nath v. Kamalbasini
Nicholl r Jones 819
Niheolla, In re 732	20
Nicholls v Dowding 231, 864, 867	North France D 2
Nicholls v. Downes 214	North-Eastern Railway v Hastings 614 Noshai Mistri v R 331
Nicholson t, Smith 249	Notial Mistri v R 331
Nidha Chowdhry r Bunda Lal 751	Nowcource Chunder v Birmomoyee Debea
Nidhee Singli a. Bisso Nath . 771	Value Kant a Mr
Nidhikrishna Bose r Nistanni Disi 144	Yube Kuban a D 729
Nielson : Watt 621	Nube Kishen r Promothonath Ghose 679
Nilakandhen r. Padmanabha 152	Nuddarchand Shaha c. Meajan 741
Nilkanth Surmal r. Soorela Debia. 812	Nujmoodden Ahmed v Beebee Zu- hoorun
Silkristo Deb i. Bir Chandra 459, 460	Vellet Character 20
	Nelht Chunder v Bugola Soonduree 656

Pe	GE.	r	AGE.
	654	Oomda Bibee v. Shah Jonab	720
Nund Dhunpat v. Tara Chand	348	Oomut Fatima v. Bhujo Gopal 111	, 358
	691	Oriental Government Security Life
	235	Ass Co v Narasımha Chari 452, 6	59,
Nundo Kumare. Bonomally Gayan 763,	769	869,	893
	994	Oriental Govt, Security Lafe Ass '
Nundo Lall v. Prosunno Movee	580	Co. v. Surat Chandra 126	, 659
	651	Oriental Life Assurance Co. r. Nara-
Nundun Lal v Tayler	771	smha Chari .320, 321, 33	22,
Nunno Lall Serowice v. Sawala Pra-			463
	193	O'Rorke v. Bolingbroke	4
	804	O'Rourke v. Commissioner for Rail-
Nuronath Dass v. Goda Kohta 651,		Ways	800
Nurrohurry Mohunto r Narainee		Osborne v Chacqueel	137
	232	Osborne v. London Dock Co .	823
	651	O'Shea v Wood 816,
	769	Oudh Behari, In re	111
	164	Count Design ( 1 1 1 1
Nynakka Rowthen v Vavana Maho-	104	P
	990	Pachaiperumal Chettiar v Dasi
Nye t Macdonald 447,		Thangam	840
Myo i Macdonaid 447,	July	Padam Lal v Tek Singh	724
0		Paddock r. Forester . 247.
Oakeley + Ooddeen	630	Page v Findley	712
	227	Pahalwan Singh v Mahajah Mahesh	•
Obhoy Churn r. Gobind Chunder 649.		Buksh	618
Obhoy Churn v Hari Nath 650, 684, 711.		Pame v Tilden	891
Obhoy Churn r. Lukhy Monee	645	Palakdhari Rai v Manners 186,
Obhoy Churn v Nobin Chunder .	773	Palaneappa Chetti t Maung Po Sang	640
Obhoy Churn v. Punchanan Bose	771	Palmer's Case	141
Obhoy Churn v. Treelochun Chatter-		Panchu Das : R 117.
jee	772	Panchu Mondul t R . 398,
	675	Pandaipa Talaver t. Puli Telaver 702,
Obhoy Gobind v. Beejoy Gobind 222,		Pandit Gaya Parshad Tewari v Sar-
Ochanram v. Dolatram	388	dar Bhagat Singh	338
O'Connell's Case	902	Pandit Hanuman r Mufti Assadul.
O'Connor v Marjoribanks 808,		lah , ,	757
	391	Panduranga v. Nagappa	672
	606	Pandya Nayak, In the matter of the
	667	petition of	613
Olpherts t. Mahabir Pershad .	460	Panna Lai v Srimati Bamasundari	698
Omer Dutt r Buin . 163,		Pannappa Pillai t Pappudayyangar	657
Omeron v Dowick .	444	Papendick v Bridgewater 236	314
Omesh Chunder : Dukhina Soon-		Pappi Anterjenam v Jeyyan Nayer	731
dry . 660	742	Paramma r Ramachandra .	681
	537	Param Singh e Lalu Mal 4, 747, 772,	775
	685	Paranjpe t Kanade	389
Omychund r Barker .	3	Parbati Charn e Raj Krishna .	660
O'Neill t Read	212	Parbati Kumari e. Jagadis Chunder	721
Onkarappa r Subaji Pandurang	743	Parbutti Dassi r Ram Chand .	684
Onraet r Kishen Soonduree .	645	Parbutty Dassi e Purno Chander 351,	352
Oodey Chand c. Bhasker Jagonnath	681	Parell e Macnamara	380
Oolagappa Chetty t Collector of			469
Trichmopoly	702		657
Comabuttee r Pareshnath Pandey	230	Parfitt r. Lawless	629

n	P	es.
Pige		996
Patret U. D. Z. II. So		816
Parker to Lewis	-	8
Parkin t. Moon		349
Parmanand Misser v Sahib Ali 665 Pertab Udai v Masi Das .
	215,	682
Parsons r London County Council 388 Perumal Sethurayar & M Ram.
	:	164
Partab Singh t. Chitpil Singh . 647 Petamber Manikjee i Moterchan
I hatton to control		680
	•	220
Partridge v Coates 483 Petherpermal Chefty & Muniano
Parvatibayammav Ramakrihsna Rau 773 Servai	772,
Pasley v. Freeman 189 Petrie v Nuttall		382
Pasumarty Jagappa, In the matter of 875 Pevton v St Thomas' Ho-pital		227
Pasupati v Narayana 790 Phanindra Nath Mitter i R		856
Patch v. Ward 391 Pheloo Monee : Greesh Chunder		580
Patel Kilabhai v Hargovan Man- Phelps v Pieu 101 484, 822, 682,
Patel Vandravan r. Patel Manilal Philip Esnouf : Att Gen for Jerse		924
164, 185, 316 Philipson i Eirl of Egremont		389
Pathammal v. Kalas Raduthur 575, 587, 626 Phillips v Cole		129
Patman e. Harland 198 Phillips : Goines		857
Pattabhiramier r Vencatarow Naie- Phillips a Martin		915
ken 160 Philipott v St George - Hospital		101
Pitterson v. McCausland . 449 Phul Chand v Man Singh		659
Paxton v Doughe 826 Phul Kuar a Surjan Pandy	-	7
Peacable v. Watson 315 Pickard v Sear. 751, 754, 767 77
Peacock v Bell 736	778,
Peacock v Harper . 24g Picketing. Re		815
Peacock v Harris 144 Pickering i Noye-		823
Pearce v Docker 415 Picket v Packham		£8à
Pearce t. Foster 816 Piggott t E C R Co		137
Pears Mohun v Drobomoyi Dabia Pinney v Hunt		566
73, 172, 173, 183 Pinney r Pinney		566
Peary Mohun Mukerjee v Jote Kumar Pipe v Fulcher		326 -
Mukerjee		723
		515
	751.	392
		#00
Police of Description	• •	788 839
Peck r Perry		830
Dealt at Chryner 764 75	-	100
Densif Phaseless a Passes was	• •	128 187
Shivatam 692 Playton v Dara	 318,
Penny : Hanson . 900 Plana . n		702
Pagratidad e Hammond 910 m	• •	737
Penwarden r. Roberts 503 Plumer t. Plumer	224,	997
Timple C Holotook 363 Poe c Darrah
Perceival r Sanson 316 Pogha Mahtoon : Guru Raboo		214
Perhlad Sein r Rajender Kishna Pogose r. Bank of Bengal	* TOP	504
Perhlad Sein r Rajender Kishna Pogose r. Bank of Bengal Pogose r. Mokoond Chunder Permanandas Jeewandas In r. 199	330	970
	3.58.	142
Perry e. Gibson . 839, 862 Pollock e. Costa		996
Perry r. Med loweroft 381 Poundra Nath Sen r. Hemangmi D	asi	607

n	AGF	· P	AGE.
Ponnamal v. Sundaram Pillai 349, 352		Priestman v. Thomas	392
Pontifex r. Bignold	733	Primrose, In the goods of 535,	539
Pooley t. Goodwin	738	Prince e. Samo 368,	862
Poolin Beharee r. Watson & Co 217.	100	Prince Mahomed v. Rani Dhojamani	642
	, 678	Pritchard v. Bagshawe	242
Poote v Hayne	818	Pritchard v Draper	240
Poreman Dass r. Bhattu Mahton	659	Pritchard v. Hitchcock 386.	387
Poresh Naram r. Kassi Chunder	789	Prit Koer r Mahadeo Pershad Singh	650
Poreshnath Mookerjee r. Anath Nath	239	Privanath Chatterjee v Bissessur
Porter t. Mooree	767	Dass	611
	762	Probat Chandra Gangapadhya e
Postlethwaite, Re .	815	Chirag Ali 563.	662
Postlethwaite r. Rickman .	820	Probhakar Tehari v Raja Baidya
Pothi Reddi r Velayudasıyan 559, 986	, 987	Nath Pundit	712
Poulett Peerage Care	704	Proctor v Bennis 767, 768,
Poulton v. Adjustable Cover, &c , Co.	372	Proctor t Lainson	333
Pound e. Wilson . 885	, 883		822
Powell r Browne	776	Promotha Nath v Dwarka Nath	987
Powell v. Knox	711	Prosunno Chunder r Land Mort-
Powell v. Laytor	387		689
Powell v. Smith .	731	Prosunno Coomar r Koylash Chunder	786
Powers, Re .	234	Prosunno Kumar v Secy. of State for	- 40
Prabhakarbhat e Vishwambhar		India	742 646
Pandıt	102	Prosunno Kumar v Kalı Das	794
Prahlad Sen v. Budhu Singh .	358	Prosunno Kumar e Mahabharat	655
Prahlad Sen v. Rajendra Kishor .	356	Prosunno Kumarı e Golab Chund	00 1
Pranal Anni v. Lakshmi Anni .	990	Prosunno Nath v Tripoora Soon-	986
Pranjivandav v Moyaram	379	Protab Chander t Rance Surno-	7,517
Pranjivang Govardhandass v Baju	777		537
Prankishen Paul v Mothoora Mo- han 650	. =00	moyee	75
	505 505	Protab Chunder r Arathoon Protab Chunder r R	118
Pran Krishna v Jadu Nath Prayag Raj v Sidhu Prasad Tewari	783	Pryanath Chatterice v Bissessur
Pran Kistor Bhageerutee Gooptea	100	Dass	506
	, 723	Pryer v Gribble	752
Pran Nath v. Jado Nath	380	Public Prosecutor r Bonigiri Potu
Prannath Roy v. Rookhea Begum	775	gadu	432
Pratt t. Blunt v Blunt Cornfoot	112	Puchai Khan i A d Sirdai	645
Prayag Raj t Sidhu Prasad Fewari	239	Puddo Monee v Jholla Polly	790
Premehand Dowlatram, In re	863	Pudmavatı ı Doolar Singh	130
Prem Chand v Huree Das	690	Pulm Beharec + Watson & Co	216
Prem Chand e. Suraj Ranjan .	668	Punardeo Narain : Ram Sarup	101
Frem Chand v Surendra Nath	676	Punchanan Banerjee t Raj Kumir	505
Premji Trikamdas v Madhowji Munj		Puran Chunder v Grish Chunder	652
Prem Sookh t Pirthee Ram	229	Purna Dat t Jai Narain	699
Preonath Koer e. Kazı Mahomed		Pureeag Lall t Ram Jewan Purmanandas Jewandas, In re 555, 556
Shazed	772	Purmananday Jewandas, 17 76 00 2 00 2	. 781
Preonath Shaha r Madhu Sudan 58		Purmanandas Jivandass r Cormak	787
Preston r Morcesu Price t. Burya	571 148	Purmeshur Chowdhury r Bijos
Price r. Manning	128	Lall	6/01
Price r. Page	611	Purnima Chowdrain r Nittanund
Price e. Torrington	305	Shah · ·	455
Price r. Woodhouse	147	Purseed Narain e Bissessur Dyal 661,	672
Price & Co e. Union Lighterage Co	554	Pursel Narayan r. Hanuman Sahay	658

		PAUE						PAGE-
Pushong v. Munia I	falwani	696, 697	R. v.	Ashootosh	Chuckerb	uttv.	. 7.	8, 9,
Pyari Lall, In the n			10	0, 107, 111,	112, 114,	166.	284.	285.
Tyan Lan, In men		3, 334, 335	•••	0, 10,, 111	,	/	286. 5	287, 289
Day Formula	001,00	734	ъ.	Ashruff Sh	outh.
Pyc, Ex parte				Avery			•	. 802
Pyke v Crouch	••	576, 597	D	Babaji			902 6	286, 840
Pym v. Campbell	••	370, 397		Babu Lali
	Q.			263, 265,
	-	855	202	, 403, 203,	200, 201,			273, 274
Quartz Hill Co, Re	104 155 00		D	Baddry	210, 160,
	124, 155, 36	199	n v		166, 167,
Queen's Estate, In		0.50	ο.	Bahar Ali		109,
Queen's Proctor v.
Quilter r. Jorss	••	. 484	15 1	Baijoa Ch	owanry
•	R.			n .				288, 834
			Rt		ath Baner	jee		32, 833
R r Abajı Ramel		197	Rı					. 204
R. v Abdool Setar		842		Bajo Hur				703
R. r Abdool Wade	od Ahmed	201		Bakhoore
R t. Abdul Kadır		. 04#		Bakur Kl		•		282
R. r. Abdullah 6, 1				Bala Dha				812
	, 143, 145, 30			Bala Pate				281
R. r Adam	•	709	В,		har			. 853
R & Adamson		575		Baldry				250, 260
R r Adey		826	Rr	Bal Gang	adhai			202, 837
R v. Affazuddeen		841 842	R,	Balkrishn	a Vithal	101	Iu3.	643,
R. r. Ahmad		856	_	_			•	678, 840
R v Ahmed Ally		. 117		Ball				194, 881
R r. Aickles	:	563		Balvant I		r	253, 2	254, 256
R r Alagappan B	ılı 278, 281, 2			Balya Da
R. v. Alerton		700		. Banwaree	Lall		2	282, 283
R. r. Alı Husain	•	708		Barnard				834
R r. Allen		116, 131		Bartlet				143
R r. Allison	•	424		Baru Nav	ar			288
R t. Alloomiya H				, Bashya				270
		37, 918, 919		. Basranta	250,
R v. Alloo Paroo		102		Bate			250, 5	275, 802
R v. Alogu Kone	M1-1 -	. 992	К. г.	Bayajı K
R. r. Amanoollah				Beauchan				. 832
R & Ambs Prasa R & Ambergate				Beddingfi		• •
R e Ambigara E		286, 287		Bedfords		•	296, 5	297, 317
R, r. Amir Khan				Beharee	116,			192, 430
R. e. Amruddin		33, 134, 831 164, 418, 906	K t	Behari Si Behary L	ng	• •	3	17, 237
R. t. Amrita Gov		131, 218,	16. 1	Behary L	n])	٠.	•	. 802
1, 1, 1, 1, 1, 1, 1, 1, 1, 1, 1, 1, 1, 1		282, 283, 918	16. 1	Belancy		••
R. r. Annya	٠,	281		Belat Alı		••	278, 2	282, 281
R, r Anunto Ch	uckerbutts	801, 994		Bepin B	mas 284	, 286	, 288,	643,
R. e. Anuntram		259			826,	833,		392, 894
R, r Appa Subh		. 841		Bertrand Beshor B		•	1	11, 924
R. t. Appleby		148		Desnor B	ewa .	• •
R. r. Arjun Megl		870	, D	Bhurab	Chunder .
R. v. Arnall		142 899	n	Bhairam Bharma		• •
R. r. Arshed Ali R. r. Arumugam		424	77. 5	. Bharmap		• •
R. c. Arumugam	510, 8	13, 515, 839	Tr.	· prb	pa.	• •
R. r. Ashgar Ah	256, 257, 258.	260, 261,803		: Bhavanre Bhawani	o Vithalra	10
		,,002	t	DOWNELL		• •		- 286

	Pic	oF.		Pa	GE,
R. r. Bhima			Chagan Dayaram
		116		831, 832,
R. r Bholanath Sen	116, 131, 806, 8		Chait Ram		992
	192, 451, 6		Chando Chandaline		829
			Chandra Nath	284,	285
R. c. Bhuttun Rujwan	211, 254, 2	255 R v.	Chand valad	. 280,
TO 10		133 R. t.	Chapman .		881
R. t. Bindabun Bowree		870 R. v	Charoo	:	841
		134 R v.	Chatur Purshotum	288,	834
R. r. Birmingham		315 R. v	Cheadle	!	626
R c. Bishonath Pal 131			Cherath Choys		890
	892, 8	893 R v.	Chidda Khan		101
R. c. Bissen Nath	. 892, 8		Chinna Pavuchi	. 280,
R v. Bissorunjun Muker	jee 294, 2		Chokoo Khan		$^{218}$
R. r. Blackburn	258, 2		Chota Jadub		993
R. v. Blake	154.		Christopher		564
R. r. Blechynden	:		Chullundee Potama		218
R. v Bleesdale	1	192 R. r.	Chunder Bhattacha
R. v. Bliss	145, 146, 3			285, 288,	289
R e. Boidnath Singh			Chunderkant Chuck		814
R. v. Bond	136, 196, 202, 3		Chunder Koomar		128
R. v. Borrett			Chutteidharee Sing
R. v. Boswell	. 258,			833,
	. 828, 829, 834, 8		Clarke		917
R. v. Brackenbury	277, 2		Clewes - 138,	218, 251, 258,
R v. Bradlaugh		802		275, 276, 1
R. v Braintree	465,		Cobden		134
R e. Brandeth		154 R v.		. 136, 194,
R v. Brewer			Coley Commer Sahib	269, 273, 2	261
R. v Brice			Conde		140
R. v. Brooke R. v Brown	000 000 0				[43
R v. Buckley	. 820, 887,			197, 258, 709, 7
R. v Budd			Cotton	. 204. 7
R. r. Budder-ud-deen	. 117,		Court	. 250, 2
R r Budh Lal			Courvoisier		143
R. r. Budhoobar		644 R. r	Cox	. 148, 8	320
R v Budhu Nanku	287, 288, 833, 8	834 R t	Cox and Railton	. 812, 814, 8	318
R. v. Bull		334 R. e		1	148
R. v. Burdett	115,		Cramp		143
	, 331, 335, 708,	709 R t			203
R. r. Burley	:		Crooks		117
R v. Burton					116
R. t. Bushmo Anent			Croydon		258
R. c. Buesiruddi		213	Dabee Pershad	. 209, 2	264
R. e. Bykant Nath	. 428,	400	Dada Ana 112,	218, 219, 253,
R t. Bysagoo Noshyo		211 211	Daji Narsu	254, 255, 257, 4 . 279, 282, 2
R. r. Carey R. v. Carter			_ : .		:02 :02
R. v. Carter R. v. Cass	· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·	261 R. r.		. 193, 2
R. c. Cassy Mul					70
R. r. Caster			Daulat Kungra		104
R. r Castle Morton		559 R. r.		337, 9
R. r. Castor				474, 495, 825, 8
P. r. Chaddi Khan			Degumber Thakoor	3	02

		P	ICE.					р	AGT.
R. r. Densley			708	R.	r.	Fennel	_		261
R. v. Deodhar Singh .			829	R. :		Fenton			474
R. r Deoki Nandan			806	R.	r	Fernand			258
R. v. Derrington			277	R. :	,	Firth			134
R v. Despard			829	R	ι	Fisher		643	, 734
R. v Devn Govindji			677	R	3	Fitzgerald			304
R. v. Dhamba Poshya	٠.		644	R	ŧ	Fitzsimon.			563
R t. Dhunno Kazi	٠.		ьH	R	t	Flaherty		216	. 223
R. v Dhun Singh	••		678			Flanagan			138
R. v Dhurum Dutt	••	257, 261,				Fontaine More.	ıu		. 388
R. v. Dina Bandhu			883			Foster		188	, 197
R r Dingles	• •		261			Fowker.			132
R. v Dixon		733, 839,					129, 193,	197, 204
R t. Doherty	• •	263.	196			Fursey			151
R " Domun Kahar	••	263,	108			Gadbury			432
R. v. Donaghue			143			Gallagher		·	834
R. c Donellan	٠	806,			•	Ganapabhat		286, 287,
R v Donelly		286. 287.			b	Gandfield	-		145
R r Dost Jiva	••	320.				Ganesh			145
R. v Dossaj Ghulam			728			Ganga Prasad		826,	840
R r. Dossett	•	228, 229,				Ganbia			255
E . Donner			187			Ganraj		282,
R. v Drage	••		258			Ganu			832
R. , Drew			303			Ganu Sonba	••		829
C. Drummond	•		279	R	ţ,	Garner	204,	257, 259,
R. t Durbarov Dass			529	_		_		260,	728
B. v Durga Sonar	•		256			Gavin			278
R v Durgaya			825			Gazaid			805
R. r. Durant R v Dwarka	•	833,				Gerring Gharva	•	204,	728
R. v. Dwarkanith Dutt	•	0,000	133			Gholam Ismail			255
R. v. East Fairlie	••		489			Ghulam Musta			104
R. t Edge	:		474			Ghulet	ta		875
R 1. Edmunds		.,	138			Gibbons		8, 836,
R. r Eduljee Byramjee			921			Gibson		258,
R. r Egerton			137			Gilhan	••	917,
	13, 4	59, 828.				Gillis	••	259,	259
829, 836	. 831	, 832, 833,	834			Gırjashankar E	ashiram	••	678
R. r Elizabeth Sippets			213			Gloster	••	190, 194,
R. t. Elliott	٠.		836	R,	ŧ.	Gobardhan		257, 830,
P., 1. Elles	134	, 137. 195,		R,	•	Goda: Raut		• • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • •	630
R r. Etwaree Dhaice			330	R	ξ,	Goddard			143
R. i Exeter	••		, 315	R.	1	Gogalio		•••	456
R. r. Fagent	••	• • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • •	304			Солошт		٠.	527
R. r. Fattie	·		216	R.	ť.	Gokool Kahair			116
		133, 134,				Gookool Bowre	e		199
R + Fakir Mahomed	•	152, 160,	833	R	r.	Gopal Doss, 6	. 102, 703	208
D r Parlar	••		813		75	99, 800, 806,	807, 809	811.
R. r. Farley R. r. Parr		••	473			1	325, 826,	827, 872,	873
R. r. Parrell		:	230	R	r.	tiopal Thakon			430
R t. Farrington			733	R t	r	Copcenath Koll	n		211
R. r Tata Adaja		••	304	F. :	r	Gopce Noshyo			841
R. r. Fatik Biswas		524, 528,		B. 1	r.	Gora Chand			192
R. r. Pattah Chand			807			Gardon		148.
· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·	••	••	6117	R. 1		Gon].]			000

					GE.							CE.
R	t	Gour Chand		218,				Howes			275,
R.	v	Govind Bablı		282,	283	R, r.		Howgill				193
R	ť.	Grant			797	R. v.		Hunt		I46,	151,	474
R.	r.	Gray			728	Rε.		Hurdeep Sahoy			312,	343
R,	r.	Green		188,	259	R v.		Hurdut Surma				900
		•	••		143	R. v		Hurribole Chund		2, 263	3,
		•			904			264, 266, 8	32, 918,	919,	923,	924
R				343.	352	R. c.		Hussein Gaibu				396
		Griffin			814	R. v		Hussem Haji				803
		Grish Chunder	•	849,				Hyder Jolaha				210
		Gunesh Koormee		0.0,	253	R, e						387
		Gungadhur Bhunio	•		806			Imam		831,
		Gungadnar Bhanjo			197			Imdad Khan				833
		Gutah	••		733	Rt				116,
			••	•	190			Inhabitants of B				424
			••	•	387			Inhabitants of I				384
		Hammond Page Hanmant	•	828.				Inhabitants of				727
					632			Inhabitants of I				727
к	v	Hanmanta 213.	214, 226,		če e							121
				345,		for		Inhabitants of	Lower	ney	-	311
		Hannah More		• •	256				.		•
		Haradhan	• •	•	643			Inhabitants of			•	560
		Hardewa		•	288			Inhabitants of			702,
		Harding	,	•	259	R t		Isham Dutt	•	842,
			. 153	, 233,		R. t		Ishri		117,
		Hardy	•	154,				Ishri Singh		336,
		Hargrave			828			Ismal Valad	•		888,
		Harı			709			Jacobs			259,	335
		Hari Chaian			870	Rι		Jaclab Dvs 252,
		Hari Lakshman		826	914				44, 871,			014
		Harimaniram			708	R v	,	Jaffir Ah 278	, 279, 2
		Harvey			508				283,	287,	288,
		Hawkins			726			Jagardeo Pandı				890
		Han orth			563			Jagat Chandra		255,
		Haynes			142	Rυ			09, 210,	265,	279,
R		Hayward			820			Jaichand Mundl	в			141
		Hearn		259	. 261			Jamı				710
R	t.	. Hedger 8, 1	15, 116, 1	41,				Jarv 13		259,	260,
			417, 471	. 835				Jasha Bewa				258
		. Heramun			143	Rι		Jata Polv				525
		Heeson		138	, 204			Javecharanı		264,	265,
		Hesseltine			412			Jenkina				258
		Hewitt			275			Jetoo				252
		. Heyford			313			Jhubboo Mahtor	ı			n18
		Ricks	256, 257			Rτ				-		211
		Hildreh			. 814			Jibhai Vaja				993
		Hill		733	801			Jogendra Chunds	a Bove			202
												149
		. Hind			303			John
R		. Hind . Hira Lall	·:		806	R. e	•	Johnson 1	90, 194,			489
R		Hind Hira Lall Hodges			806 112	R. e		Johnson I Jones	218,	258,	261.	489
R		: Hind : Hira Lall : Hodges : Holden	:		$06 112 641	R. e		Johnson 1 Jones Jora Haap 103	218, 143, 21	258, : 0, 269	261. 3.	459 828
R R R		: Hind : Hira Lall : Hodges : Holden : Hollamby			$06 112 644 432	R. e R. t R. r		Johnson I Jones Jora Haaji 103, 269, 270, 2	218, 143, 21 71, 273,	258, : 0, 269 274, :	261, 3, 501,	489 828 820
R R R		Hind Hodges Holden Hollamby Holmes	:: : :		906 112 644 432 259	R. e R. e R. e		Johnson I Jones Jora Haapi 103 200, 270, 2 Justices of Cam	218, 143, 21 71, 273, Ludgesh	258, 0, 269 274, are	261. 3. 501,	489 828 820 100
R R R F		Hind Hira Lall Hodges Holden Holden Holden Holden Holden Holden Holden			$06 112 641 432 259 451	R. c R. c R. c R. c		Johnson 1 Jones Jora Haap 103 269, 270, 2 Justices of Cam Kader Nasyer	218, , 143, 21 71, 273, Ludgesh	258, 0, 269 274, ire 449,	261. 3. 501, 450,	459 828 820 100 678
R R F F		Hind Hodges Holden Hollamby Holmes			906 112 644 432 259	R. c R. c R. c R. c		Johnson I Jones Jora Haapi 103 200, 270, 2 Justices of Cam	218, 143, 21 71, 273, Ludgesh	258, 0, 269 274, are	261, 3, 501, 450,	489 828 820 100

	Page		-
R. v. Kalı Prasanno	623	P - 7	PAGE.
R. v. Kaliyappa Gounde			134, 260
R. v Kallu	427, 424		151
R. v. Kally Churn	128, 210, 279	D . T . m	485
R. v Kalu Mal		The state of the s	805
R. v Kalu Patil	280, 281, 461	R v. Luckhurst	831
R v. Kamal Fukeer	200, 201, 401		261
B. v. Kamalia	263, 266, 268, 271	2	33, 335, 336
R. v. Kangal Mali	., 210, 264, 265	R v Lukhun Santhal	01, 702, 704
R v Kanye Sheikh	. 841.842	R. v Madar	. 335
R. v. Karoo	. 832	R v Madhab Chandra	257
R. v Kartick Chunder	100, 428,	. v pradnio chandra .	111,
It. b Hattick Change	430, 431, 508, 509	R v. Madho
R v. Kashinath Dinkar		R v Madhub Giri	888, 889
1 0. 11.0,	644, 806, 876	,	4
R. v Kazim Mundle	456	R & Mahabir	0, 831, 832
R. v. Kehrı	289	R t Mahomed Ibrahim	253
R. v Kelvie	255	R & Mahomed Humayoon	- 265
R. r. Kenilworth	489	R & Marku Lall	836
R. v Keshub Bhooms	282, 283		855
R v. Keshub Mohajan	171	R t. Malapa Bm 279, 281, 1 287, 288, 833, 834, 89	286,
R. v. Khandia	285, 286	R : Maihan , 70	2, 893, 894
R. v. Khem	837	R r Mallory 128 143, 147, 14	9, 828, 829
R. v Kheoraj	280
R, v. Khotab Seikh	832	R e. Manikam	219
R. v. Khukee Ooram	282, 283	R t Manning and wife	107
R, v. Khyroollah	6	R r Mannu 368, 871, 88	116
R v Kingham	. 147	R r Mannu Tamoolee
R v. Kinghorn	996	R r. Mansfield 260, 261, 42;	252
R. t Kisto Soonder	188	R r Manuaring	5, 702, 704
R. v. Koa	830	R v. Maru 628 801	. 424 1, 919, 993
R v Kodai Kahar	257, 267	A. t. Matabadal	837
R v. Kola Lolang	. 116	R r Matheus	265, 266
R. r. Koonjo Leth	287, 288	R. r. Mathura Thakur	. 304
R. t. Kothia	802	R. r Mathura Prasad	. 349
R v. Krishnabhat	112, 286,	R. v Mayadeb Gossamı	331, 564
R v. Kristo Mundul	288, 833, 834	R v. McDonald 140, 1	46.
R. r. Kuarpala		209, 203	, 263, 264
R v. Kulum Sheikh	. 268	R v. McGuire	924, 995
R. v Labouchere	201	R. r McKenna	155
R. v. Lakshman	733, 912	R. t. Mead	303
R. v Lakshman Bala	284, 285	R. v Meade	196
R. c. Lakshmoyya Pand		R t. Meher Ah 209,265,	398, 412
R. r Lalchand Koursh	836		- 560
R. g. Lal Sahai	801, 993, 994	R. v. Meyer	806
R. v. Langmead	708	R. v. Michael Stokes R. v. Millen	142
R. r Laugher	258	R. v. Mills	258
R. r. Lester	266	R. r. Milton	261
R r. Leverson	816	R. v Misser Sheikh	326
R. v Lillyman	140, 146, 147	P # Markett	253, 525
R. c. Linzate	275	R r Mogg	304, 303
R. r. Little	892, 883	D	. 192
R. r Limfarthly	495	R = Wal-1 m	259, 834
R. r. Lloyd	172, 250		3,
		286, 287,	288, 833

Page.	D
R. g. Mohima Chundra . 830, 832	R. v. Nidhee Ram 830
R. r. Mohiuddin Sahib 830, 833	R. v. Nilmadhub Mitter 209, 252, 267
R. v. Mohun Banfor 337, 831, 841, 842	R. v. Ningappa 834
R. v. Mona Puna 127, 802, 829	R. v Nirmal Das 285
R. r. Monmohun Roy 263, 266, 267	R. r. Nirunjun Singh 644
R. v. Moore 258, 559, 917	R. v Nityo Gopal 218, 257
R. v Morris 834	R. v Noakes 834
R. v. Moss 824, 826	R. r. Nobokisto Ghose 117, 197, 643
R. v. Motee Jolaha 187, 708	R. v. Nujam Ali 918
R. v. Moulton Cox 212	R. v. Nur Mahomed 188, 195,
R. v. Mowjan 330, 331, 333, 336, 337	279,2 81, 283, 429
R. v. Mugapa bin 837	R v. Nussuruddin 527, 528, 529
R v Muhammad Hadi 856	R. v. Obhoy Churn 828
R v. Mukta Singh 803, 806, 807	R v. O'Connell 146
R. t. Mullins 829	R. v. Oddy 129
R. v. Mulu282, 283, 330,	R. v O'Hara 829, 830, 832, 833, 919, 924
331, 335	R. v. Osburns 140, 146, 147
R. v. Mungul Das9 527, 564	R. v Pagarce Shaha 263, 268, 272, 273
R. v. Murarji Gokuldas 868	R. v. Page 644
R. v. Murlis 863	R. v. Pahuji 280, 281
R. v. Murphy 115, 154, 416, 843,	R. v Palany Chetty 836
881, 884	R v. Palmer 52, 138, 139, 141
R. v. Murray 700 R. v. Murray Gokuldas	R. v Pancham 262, 263, 266, 268, an or against,	269, 271, 274, 275
R. v. Murton 303 R. v. Musst. Itwarya 801, 994	R v Pandharmath 200, 210, 263, 265, 916 R v. Paparsam 192, 680
R. t. Musst, Jenia 254	R v Parbhudas 3, 124, 126, 134,
R. v. Musst. Lachoo .256, 257, 258,	155, 157, 194, 195, 431, 918, 385
260, 261, 263, 268, 276, 278	R v Parker 258
R. v. Nabadwip Goswaini 250, 264,	R v Parmeshar Aheer 708, 709
277, 278, 414, 447, 714	R. v. Parratt . 258, 261
R v Naba Kumar 187, 202, 431, 432	R. t Parridge 709
R v Naba Patnak 432	R v. Parsons 155
R. v. Nadi Chand 800	R t. Partridge 261
R. v. Naga 282, 285, 286, 288, 289	R. r Patch 49, 113, 139, 140
R t. Nagla Kala 102, 263, 265, 266, 267	R. v Pattna . 280
R r. Nana 147, 209, 210, 265,	R v Payne 802
268, 270, 271, 273, 275	R. r Peacock 337
R. v Nand Ram 337, 841, 842, 918, 919	R r Pearce 137
R. r. Nande Khan 335	R. c Perkins 303 R c. Pestanji Dinsha 454, 832
R. r. Naor Bhaskar 930	R. e. Petchirini . 146, 192, 196
R. v. Narain Bagdee	R t. Peter Ram 143
R v. Narain Tel	R. r Petta Gazi . 117, 254, 26
R. v. Narayan Raghunath Patki 255	R v Phanendra Nath Mitter 202, 644, 678
R. r. Nash 733	R. r. Pherozsha Pestonji 808
R. r Natu 802	R. r. Phillips . 143, 188, 336
R. r. Navroji Dadabhai 131, 256, 257,	R. r Philp 216
258, 260, 261, 276, 832, 917, 918,	R r. Phoolchand 430, 431
919, 923, 924	R r Pike 303
R. r. Nawab Jan 832, 833	R. r. Pirbhu 280, 281
R. r. Neville 137, 216, 400	R. r Pitamber Jens 9, 100, 263, 264,
R. r Newton 216, 223	266, 832, 918, 919, 923, 924 R. r Pitambur Singh 422, 424
R. r. Nisz Ali 618, 837 R. r. Nicholas 190, 194	R. v. Pitambur Sirdar 128, 850
	R. C. Triamour circuit
W, LE	e

PAGE,	PAGE
R. v. Plumer 207	R. v. Reason 260, 261, 304
R. v. Pohp Singh 526, 528, 714	R. v Reed 564
R. v. Poroosullah Sikhdar 117	R v Rees 278
R. v. Pountney 258	R r. Reeve 259, 261
R. v Price 104	R v Reg. of Greenwich County
R. v. Prosonno Chundra	Court 230
R. v Prosunno Coomar 842	R v Remedios 802
R. v. Punchanun Tantee 117	R v Remnant 910
R. v. Purshottamdas Ranchoddas 695	R. v Rhutten Ram 192
R. v. Pyari Lall 7, 8, 330	R r Richards 260
R. v. Radha Nath Dosadh 260, 261	R. v. Richardson 46, 192, 194,
R. v. Raghunath 564, 841	203, 204, 728, 811
R. v. Rahimat 101	R + Rickman 151
R. v. Rai Ratan 252, 564	R v Riding . 526, 714
R. v. Raj Krishna 841, 842	R v Ridsdale 140
R. v Rama Birapa 7, 146, 210,	R r. Rigg 330
256, 257, 258, 260, 261, 268, 270,	R t. Riley 871, 890
271, 273, 274, 285, 290	R v Robinson 190
R. v Ramadhan Maharam 810	R r Rochia Mohato 303, 333, 338
R. v. Raman 255	B v Roden 127, 204 728
R. v. Ramanund 257	R v Rodrigues 816
R. v. Ramanjiyya . 252, 265	B v Rookm Kant 192
R. v. Ramasami Padayachi 6, 830,	R v. Rooney 134, 151
831, 916 R. v. Rama Sattu 302, 893, 918, 919	R. v Ross . 836, 837
R v Ramdhan Singh 257, 258, 260, 269	R v Rowland . 147 R v Rowton 430 435 436
R. v. Ram Chand 281	200, 400, 400
R v. Ram Chandra . 714, 725	D D
R. v Ramchandra Govind 127, 332,	B B B
336, 337, 853, 919, 923	B 0 11 1- 130, 104
R v Ram Chunder 865, 869	286, 287, 288, 830, 832, 833, 834
R, v. Ram Churn .115, 213, 269.
272, 278, 802	R t. Sagal Samba 257, 833, 855, 884
R. r. Ram Dutt 328	R v Sageena 213, 261, 277
R. r. Ramgopaul Dhur 128	R v. Sahaden 808
R. v. Ramı Reddi 7, 329, 330,	R v Sakharam Makundji 155, 849,
335, 336, 337, 338	878, 886, 913
R. c. Ramji Sajabarao . 837 R. r. Ram Kishan . 835	R v. Salemudin Sheik 263
D D 7 .11	R v Salisbury
	R r. Sama Papi 263, 266
n . n . n	R. v Sami 133, 134, 143
D - D D 1	R r Samiappa 527, 528, 827, 828
R r Ram Saran 280, 281, 286,	n. r Samiruddin 187 204 200
287, 288, 430, 431, 460, 830, 832, 833, 834	R r Savage . 216, 223
R. r. Ram Sewak	R v Senife . 304, 334
R. r. Ramsodoy Chuckerbutty 899 no.	R. t Scammonden
R t. Ramawami Mudaliar	R # Souther # 01
R. r. Ram Vayer
R. t Ramzan 445	R. r. Sama Phanti
R. r. Range R. r. Ranjeet Sonial	R r Sexton
D m Dant Polit	R v. Shahbant Shenkh
D w Dawdan	R r Sham Lall
R. e. Rearden	R. r Shankar
134	R. r. Shane 829
	801, 994

PAGE.

		IGE.				P	AGE.
	. 277, 387,			Thomas	••	250, 261,	, 277
				Thompson	250,	251, 254,	261
R. r. Sheikh Buxoo .		280	R. r.	Thornhill			456
				Thurburn		••	190
R. r. Sheikh Kyamut .	. 841.			Tıluk		459,	623
R. c. Sheikh Magon .		128	R. r	Tirumal		155, 678,	918
R. r. Sheikh Mustaffa .		141	R. r.	Tolson			356
R. r. Shepherd .	. 258,	733	R. t.	Tooke			630
R. r. Sherrington .		276	R. r.	Tribhoban Ma	nekchand	20	9.
R. r. Sib Chunder .		832				210,	264
R. v. Shiboo Mundle .		431	R. r.	Tuberfield		428,	430
R. r. Shippey .		138	R. r.	Tukaram			644
R. r. Shivya 252, 5	23, 527, 528,	564	R. r.	Tulja		104,
R. r. Shrimpton .		432	Rι	Tulsha			733
	. 192, 197,	708	R. r.	Tulei Doradh			856
R r. Shriniyaa Krishna .				Turner		148, 429,	678
R. r. Siddu .		349	R r.	Tyler			258
R. v. Silverlock	397, 40	3.	R. r	Udhan Bind			834
	404, 408, 508,		R r.	Udit Persad			171
	215, 216, 219,		R. r	Upchurch		238.
	213,		R. t	Uttamehand	127.	565, 888,	899
	103, 525, 888,		R. v.	Uzeer	256, 257,
			R. r	Vahala Jetha			267
R. r. Sleeman	258,	259	R. r	Vajirani	8, 112, 13	3, 157, 18	8.
R. e. Smith	. 113, 294,	304		193	. 194, 195,
R. r. Smithers	. 143, 829,		R. r	Vaman			336
R. r. Sonacollah		218	R. t	Vaughan			744
R v. Soobjan	211,	218	Rυ	Verelst			737
	129, 139, 141,	143	Rг	Vincent		140,	328
R. e. Spilsbury	276,	278	Rr.	Viran 252	, 488, 323,	526, 528,	564
R r. Sreemutty Mongola		254	R. r	Viraperumal	, -	801,	944
R. r Sreenath Mookhopa	dhia .	843	R. t	Visram Babaji	٠. ا	252,	564
R. r St. Martin's Leicest	er 562.			Voke		190,
R. r Stephens		138	Rι.	Vyapoory Moo	xleher	133, 13
R t. Sterne		116				157, 194,
				Wainwright		146,
	831, 832, 833,			Walker			215
R r Subbarayan	423,			Walkley			261
				Waman			923
				Warden of the			388
				Warner			259
	. 514,			Warringham		251, 257,
	. 456, 861,			Watson		475, 879.
R. r Swatkins				Watte			337 424
R r. Swendsen	•			Wazira	•		197
R r Syumber Singh	-			Il.eeps	•	204.
R. r. Taj Khan				Weening			631
R. r. Tanyavalad Shivan R. r. Tarim Charan				Wells Welch	••		149
R. r. Tate				Wests ood	-		134
R. r. Tattershall				Whiley	130 134	168, 193,
	143, 188	267		White	10-, 101,	100, 100,	116
R. r. Taylor		, 728		Whitehead		201.
R. r. Thakour Das		431		Whitmarch			294
R. r. Thistlewood		, 453		Whitworth			304
					•••

12.144	~
		т.			PAGE.
			AGE.	Radha Ramon r. Phool Kumare
R. v Wickham	••	••	575		5Ĝ, 777
R. v. Wild		•	259		360
R, v Wilkes	••	•	833	Radhika Mohun r. Gunga Naram Radhika Prosad r. Dharma Dasi	723
R. v. Wilkins	••		465
R. v. Williams	134, 251	, 334,		Rae Manick v. Madhoram
R. v. Windsor		, .	261	Raggett r. Musgrave	149
R. v. Wink			140	Raghavendra : Kashinath Bhat 6
R v. Woodcock		294,	304	Raghunath v Hoti Lal . 1
R. v. Woodley			819	Raghunathu Mulchand v Jivandas
R. v Woods			862		40, 696
R. v. Woodward			441	Raghunath v. Ganpatu
R. v. Woolford			708	Rahamat Alı v R
R. v. Worth			306		86, 587
R, v. Wrangle			562		84, 644
R. v Wright			871	Rahimbhoy Hubbibhoy v. Turner	646
R v. Wuzir Mundul			210	Rahim Bibi. In the matter of
R. v. Wyatt	136, 193	, 200	, 204	Rauchand Motichand t Narayan
R t. Wylie		٠.	197	Bhikha	589
R v. Yakataz Khan			907	Ras Churn v Kamud Mohan 3	73, 375
R. v. Yakub Khan			252	Rai Isri e R . 4	32, 435
R. z. Yellaraddı			210	Rainer v. Gould	985
R. v. Yewin			879	Rainy v Bravo	477
R. v Young			134	Rai Seeta Kishun Dass	763
R. r Zamirum			, 836	Rai Srikishen v Rai Huri
R v Zawar Husen			853	Raja Babu t. Muddun Mohun .	686
R. v. Ziawar Rohman			870	Raja Bommarauze v Rangasamy
R. v. Zuhir		•	141		43, 919
R. R. Co. v Maples			474	Raja Burdscant v Chunder Cooms	r 685
Radford r. M'Intosh			144	Raja Chandranath v Ramja
Radha r Rakhal			237	Muzumdar 6	34, 637
Radha Bullab v. Kushe			690	Raja Enayet v Giridhari	237
Radha Bullub v Juggu			655	Raja Goundan v Raja Goundan 2	14, 320
Radha Chowdhrain t	Gireed	harı		Raja Govi Chandra v. Raja Mskunds	ι
			8, 360	Deb	608
Radha Churn v Anun			359	Rajah Leelanund v Mussamut Lakh-
Radha Churn r Chun		e	216	putice . 312, 3	313, 315
Radha Churn v. Kripa	Sindhu		651	Raja Nagendur e. Rughoonath	4
Radba Gobind e. Ingl			3, 712		64, 185
Radha Jeeban v Gree			843	Raja Neelanund v Nuseeb Singh	476
Radha Jeebunv Taram	oneê Doss	ee 85	5, 881	Raja Peary v. Narendro Nath 3
Radhakant Shaha v.	Abhoyel	nurn		Raja Prosonno v. Romonee Dossee
Mitter			987	Rajah Kishen v Narendra Bahadur
Radha Kishore v Mir	toonjoy	Cow	654	Rajah Leelanund v. Musst. Basheer-
Radha Kissen r. Fateh			504	ooniesa	461
Radha Kisto v. Radhi			660	Rajah Mahendra v Jokha Sing
Radha Prasad Mullick :	. Ranes I	faní		Rajah Mahesh r. Keshanund Misi
Dasses		••	607	Rajah Nilmoney v. Ramanoograh
Radhamoni Debi r.	Collector	of		Roy 216, 2
Khuins		••	633	Rajsh of Bobbili r. Muganti China
Radhan Singh v. Kani			152	Rajah of Pittapur v. Sri Rajah Row
Radhanath Banerjee	r. Jodno	nsth		Rucht
Singh	 .	••	670	Rajah Rajusrain t. Jugunnath
Radha Pyari e. Nobir			640	Pershad	771
Radha Raman r. Bho	wani Pr	ાકત લ		Rajah Ratan Singh r. Thakur Man

586, 600

Singh

647, 665

PAGE.	· PAGE,
Rajah Run v. Muset, Lucho 169	Ramalakshmi Ammal v. Sivanan-
Rajah Udaya r. Jadublal Aditya 644	antha Perumal 3, 164, 165, 181, 470, 471
Rajah Valad v. Krishnabhat 644	Ramalinga Chetti v. Raghunatha 372
Rajah Venkata Appa Rao v. Rajah	Ramalinga Pillai r. Sadasıva Pillai 114
Surenani Gopala Row 721, 750	Ramamanı Ammal v Kulanthai
Rajah Vurma e. Ravi Vurmah 164	Natchear 459, 460
Raja Leelanund t. Raja Mohendra	Ramanadamisar Aiyar r. Rama
Narain 639	Bhattar 458
Raja Leelanund r Maharaja Mo-	Rama Nath Chatterjee v. Kusam
heaver 639	Kamini 648, 724
Rajaram v. Krishnashamı 198	Ramanath Dose v. Boloram Phockun 769
Raja Sahib r. Baboo Budhoo 641, 670, 747	Raman v. Secretary of State for
Raja Sahib r. Doorgapershad	India 130, 352
Tewaree 687	Ramani Pershad v Mahanta Adaiya 246
Raj Coomar e Ram Sahaye 638	Raman Nayar v Subramanya Ayyar 840
Rajender Naram v. Bijai Gobind	Ramanugra Narain v. Mahasundur
645, 752, 773	Kunwur 772
Rajendra Nath v. Jogendra Nath	Ramasami v. Appavu 164, 168, 171, 174,
145, 423, 508, 665, 722	175, 182, 185, 383
Rajeswari Kuar t. Rai Bal . 638	Ramasami v Lokanada 643, 678
Rapib Panda v. Lakhan Sendh 390,	Ramasamı v. Ramu 805
392, 393	Ramasami Ayyar e. Vengi usami
Raj Kishen t. Peary Mohun 687
Rajkishen Singh r. Ramjoy Surma 164	Ayyar 450 Ramasamı Bhagavathar v. Nagen-
Raj Kishore v. Hureehur Mookherjee 671	drayyan 449, 450
Rajkishore Nag r Mudhoosoodun 922	Ramasami Chetty : Ramasami
Rajkishore Surma v. Grija Kant	Chetty 984
788, 789	Ramasami Gaunden v R 828, 829, 830, 832
	Ram Autar v Raja Muhammad 231
Rajkissen Mookerjee v Joykissen Mookerjee 672	Ramayya t Sivayya 667
Raj Kumar Ray t. Gobind Chunder	Rambaksh v. Durjan
686, 688, 712	Ram Baksh v Kishori Mohan 224, 855
Raj Kumarı r. Bama Sundarı . 388	Ram Bandhu v Kusu Bhattu 712
Rájlakhe v Gocool Chunder 197, 652, 777	Rambert v Cohen 570
Rajlukhee Debia v Gokool Chunder 653	Rambhat v. Babhat 790
Raj Mohan v. Gour Mohun 751	Ram Bhusan e. Jebli Mahto 353, 355
Raj Narain t. Rowshun Mull 645	Ram Bilas v Lal Bahadur . 87
Rajnaram Bose v Universal Life	Ram Bromo t. Kaminee Soondaree 723
Assurance Co 780	Ram Chand r Hamil Sheikh 861
Rajoni Kant v. Asan Mullick 829, 831, 832	Ramchandra Apan v Balan Bhaurav
Rajunder Narain e. Bijai Gobind . 454	685, 686
Rakhal Dass v Denomoyi Debi . 743	Ramchandra Bhaskur r Raghunath
Rakhal Das t. Indra Monee 481	Bachaset
Rakhal Doss v. Protab Chunder 841, 842	Ramchandra Chowdhry r Braja-
Rakhaldass Moduck v Bindoo	nath Sarma 690
Bashinee	Ramchandra Narayan r. Narayan
Rakhmabai t. Tukaram . 600	Mahadev
Rakken r. Alaguppudayan 580, 581, 582,	Ram Charan Das v. Gaya Prasad . 231
583, 585, 586, 592	Ramchunder Chuckerbutty e Gus-
Rallı t. Kasamallı Fazal 568	dhur Dutt
Ralls r Gau Kim 131, 476, 484, 498	Ram Chunder r Chunder Coomar 650
Ramabai r. Ram Chundra Shivram 637	Ram Chunder r Gobind Chunder 990
Rama Karan Sing r Mangal Sing 127	Ram Chunder e Jugesh Chunder
Ramakrishna r Namasivaya . 659 Ramakrishna r. Subbakka . 656	321, 322, 707,790
Ramaknshna r. Subbakka . 656	Ram Chunder r. Hari Day 197, 763, 777

Page.	PAGE
Ram Chunder v. Bunseedhur Naik	Ram Lall z. Kishen Chunder 772
362, 514, 515, 536, 537	Ram Lall v. Rivers Steam Naviga-
Sam Coomar v. Beejoy Gobind 662, 679	tion Co 698
Ram Coomar v. Debee Pershad 671	Ram Lall r. Tara Soondari 345
Rem Coomer & Kishori 990	Ram Lall v. Tula Ram 388
	Ramlochun Choudhury t. Joy
Ram Coomar Koondoo r Macqueen 238, 768, 770, 771, 780
	Ram Lochun v Unnopoorna Dassee 610, 614
	tion nomine of the second
Ram Das v Official Liq, Cotton	Zitam zitenan ii etti pi
Ginning Co. 206, 207, 349, 352	Ram Monee v Aleemoodeen 664, 687
354, 715, 921	Ram Narain t Rabu Singh 993
Ram Dayal t Heera Lali . 580	Ram Narain : Mahomed Hadi 636
Ram Dayal v Madan Mohan . 102	Ram Narsin v Mohesh Chunder 358, 359
Ram Dhone v. Ishanee Dabee 652	Ram Naram r Monee Bibee 320, 321
Ramdhan Mandul e Rajbullab	Ram Narain v Rameoomar Chunder 171
Paramanick 842	Ram Nath v Lachman Rat 658
Ram Doolal v. Radha Nath 580	Ram Nandan r Maharani Janki 656
Ram Doysl v. Ajcodhis Khan . 115	Ram Nursing v Tripoora Soonduree 348
Ram Dutt v. Mahender Prosad 658	Rampal Singh v Murray & Co . 642
Ramen Chetty v. Mahomed Gouse 985, 986	Ram Pershad v. Rance Phoolputee 696, 698
Ramessur Pershad v. Koon; Behar: 168, 172	Ram Pershad : Shiva Persad 772
Rameswar Koer v Bharat Pershad	Ram Pershad r Lakpati Koer 343, 650
461 474, 571, 634	Ram Pershad v Najbunsee Koer 653
Ramfal Shaw r Biswanath Man-	Ram Pershad Tewarry v Sheochurn
dal 803	Dass , 648, 651
Ramgasavanti t Kristna 748	Ram Pertab v Marshall 761
Ram Gobind v. Hossein Ali 650	Ramphul Singh r Deg Narain 658
Ram Gopal r. Blaquiere 747	Ram Prasad r Raghunandan Prasad
Ram Gopal v. Bullodeb Bose 653	471, 474, 476, 634, 715
Ram Gopal v. Gordon Stuart & Co.	Ram Prosad : Lakhi Narain . 666
471, 476	Ramprotab Misser v. Abhilak Misser 653
Ram Gulam v. Ram Behari 650, 723	Rampyarabai : Balaji . 306, 343
Ram Gutty v. Mumtaz Beebee 645, 849	Ram Ranjan v Ram Narain 173, 177,
Rain Hari e Trihiram 650	181, 183
Ramindur Deo r. Boopnaram Ghose 771	Ram Ratan r. Nandu 642
Ramít v. Bat Parvati 502	Ram Ratan v. Shew Nandan 760
Ramjadoo Gangooly r Luckhee	Ram Rutton r. Furrockoonnissa Begum 685
Narain 477	Ram Rutun r. Bunmalee Dass 656
Ramjeebun Chuckerbutty v. Pershad	Ram Sarup v. Allah Rakha 580, 595
Shar 661	Ram Sarup v. Sital Prosad 350
Ramjeebun Serowgy r. Rees 888	Ramsbotham t Senior 817
Ramjiban Serougy r. Oghur Nath	Ramsbottom v. Mortley . 560, 562
127, 672, 673, 589, 698, 599	Ramshottom v Tunbridge 560, 562
Ramjoy Karmokar, In the matter of	Rameden r. Dyson 761, 763, 769
197, 708
Ram Kant r. Brindabun Chunder 454
Ramkristo Paul r. Hurrydos Koondo 342	The sound of the state of the s
Ram Krishna r Surfunissa Begum 633
Ramlakhan Ral r. Bakhtaur Ras 752
Ramlal e. Saltanat Bag 997	Rana Karan r. Mangul Sen 847
Ramiel Chandra r. Gobinda Kar-	Ranchhoddas Krishna v. Bapu
mokar 600 Ram Lall Set c. Kansi Lal 747, 775
Rum Lall Set r. Kansi Lal 747, 775	173, 371

PAGE.		PAGE
Ranchod Morar v. Bezanji Eduljee 375	Read v Gamble	56	3
Ranee Emamun r. Hurdyal Singh 482	Read v Price	235, 49	I
Ranee Oojulla r. Gholam Mostafa 482, 843	Reazooddeen Mahomed v. McAlp	ine 34	7
Rance Radha v. Gireedharee Sahoo 144	Reazoonissa v. Bookoo Chowdha	ain 47	1
Rance Shornomoyee v. Watson & Co. 685	Redfern r. Redfern	82	ŧ
Ranee Shurut v. Collr. of Myen-	Reece v. Trye	81
singh 669	Reed v. Deere	. 560	0
Ranee Surnomoyee v Maharajah Sut-	Reed v James	85	5
tee Churn 460	Reed v. King	88
Rance Surut v. Rajendra Kishore 458	Reed v. Lyon	79	0
Rance Tillessuree v. Rance Asmedh 791	Reedoy Kristo v. Puddo Lochun	103	5
Rangachariar v. Yegna Dikshatur 115	Reeve v. Whitmore	367
Rangama v Atchama 768	Reeves v. Lindsay	739	•
Rangammal v. Venkatacharı 395, 396, 772	Reid v Batte	560, 561
Ranganatha Rao v Narayanasami	Reid v. Hoskin	. 226	ð
Naicker 650	Reigard r. McNeill .	. 761	ı
Ranga Rau v. Bhavayammi 783, 988	Rennel v Sprye	816	ö
Rangasamı Reddi v. Guana Saman-	Rennie v. Gunga Narain	771	ı tha 449, 663	Rennie v. Robinson	790, 791	ı
Rangibhai Kahandas v Vinayak	Revell, Ex parte	241, 391
Vishnu 652	Reynolds, Ex parte	. 825
Rango Balaji v Mudiyeppa 676, 682	Rhidoy Kristo v Nobin Chunder
Rani Humanta Kumarı r Jaga-	Rice v. Howard	. 884
dendra Nath Roy 687	Rich v Jackson	. 115
Ranı Mewa t. Rani Huldas 554, 763, 775	Richards v Black .	. 736
Ranı Monmohinı v Robert Watson		148
& Co 359	Richards v Morgan .	. 242
Rani Srimati v. Khagendra Narayan 236	Richards v Richards	. 732
Rann v. Lakshmanrao . 530	Richardson v Dunn .	. 149
Ransordas Bhoyilal v Keerising 164, 186	Richardson v Peto	. 230
Rao Karan v Baker Alı 666	Richardson v Rowntree	. 698
Rao Kurun r. Fyazalee Khan . 652	Rickets r Gurney	. 839
Rao Kurun v Mehtab Koonwer . 776	Ridley t Plymouth Baking Co.
Rapp v. Latham 232		309
Ras Behari t. Haramoni Debya	Right r Doed, Tatham ,	145, 147 650
634, 636, 663	Righu Ram r. Mohan Lal
Rash Behari v Pitambori Chow- dhrani	Rishton r Nesbit . Rist r Hobson .
		737 247, 248
Rashmonee Dabea + Hurronath Roy 663	Rivett Carnac r New Mofussil C
Roy Rassonda Rayar e Sitharama Pillai		763, 764
672, 693		483
Ratan Koer r Chotey Narain . 472		. 503
Ratan Kuar r Jiwan Singh . 685	Robert Watson & Co r Mohe
Ratan Lall t. Jadu Halsana 662	Narain	. 144
Patcliff r. Ratcliff 350		130, 333
Rattonbhai e Chabildas 320	Robinson r Markis	. 333
Ravji Vinayakrav v Lakshmibai . 773	Robinson r Robinson .	216, 224
Rawson r. Haig 146	Robson r AttGenl .	. 423
Rawson r Walker 571		818, 819
Rawstone r Corporation of		. 819
Preston 819		. 585
Rayner t. Pearson 226 Rayner r. Rayner . 608, 621, 624	Roddam r Morley	. 235
Rayner e. Rayner . 608, 621, 624	Roe r Dey	. 368
Raziem niesa r. Sabir Hussin 991	Roe r. Ferrare	215, 777

Page.	PAGE.
Rogers v. Allen 169	Runjeet Ram r. Goburdhun Ram 686
Rogers v. Custance 496	Runjit Singh e. Bunwari Lal 667
Rogers r. Hadley 389	Rup Chand v. Surbessur Chundra
Rogers v. Pitcher 792	641, 746, 749, 750, 753, 755, 785, 794
Rogers Sons & Co v. Lambert 796	Rup Singh v. R 432
Roghuni Singh v. R 398, 412	Rush v Peacock
413, 525, 888, 898	* · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·
Rohimuddi r. R 118, 119	Rush v Smith 855, 862 Russell v Jackson 812, 814, 815
	~ "
	Russell v Langstoffe 796
Romanath Roy v Kally Prochad . 360	Russell v Smythe 732
Rookia Banu v Roberts 839	Russell v Watts 768
Roopehand Bhukat r Hur Kishen 171	Ruston's Case 804
Roopmonjoree Chowdhrance v Ram	Ruttansey Laljı v Pooribai 752
Lall 481, 489	Ruttoo Singh v Bajrang Singh 636, 638
Roop Narain v Gungadhui Pershad	Ryall v Hannam 619
654, 697	Byan v Sams 712
Roop Ram v Saseeram Nath 638, 646	Ryder v Wombwell 112,759
Rose v. Bryant 311	Ryrie v Shiv Shankar 818, 821
Roselle v. Buchanan 819	,
Roshun Dosadh e. R 131	S
Ross r Bruce 563	8 E Ry. Co r Wharton 775, 777
Ross v. Gibbs 813, 816	Sabapathy Mudali r Kuppusaniy
Ross v. Hill 726	Mudah 596
Rouch v. C. W. R 143, 150	Sahan Dan 37 1 34
Roushan Bibee v. Hurray Kristo
343, 346
Roushun Khatoon v Collr. of
Mymensingh 771	6.1
Rousseau r Pinto . 115, 806
Routledge r Carruthers 700	Managhana
	Pulling Pro tr
D D. D Oct	Sadhama Upadhya v R 807
Rowshan Jehan v. Enset Hossein . 729	Sadhu Churn r Basudev Parbeary 747
Rowshun Bibee v Shaikh Kureem 771	Sadhu Sahu z Raja Ram . 350
Donath description of the contract of the cont	Sadhu Sheikh v R. 633, 644, 836
	Sadu t. Baiza 749
	Sagurmull e. Manraj . 343, 344
7 7 7 7 7 7 7 7 7 7 7 7 7 7 7 7 7 7 7 7	Sah Lal Chand v. Indrajit 575, 595
	Saheb Perhlad v. Baboo Budhoo 670
Roy thiyte v. Ubhurun Roy 790 Royauddi Sheikh v Kali Nath Moo-	Salub Perhlad v. Doorga Pershad 664
•	Sahib Mirra v. Umda Khanum . 675
Roy Rashbehares v Roy Gourse	Sailabala Debi v Sriram Bhattacharji 664
Rozario e. Ingles 701, 704, 804, 877	Sand Alt r. Ibad Alt 451
	Sakharam Shankar r. Ram Chandra 986
Del-1-1-1-1-1-1-1-1-1-1-1-1-1-1-1-1-1-1-1	Sakına Khanum v. Laddan Saheba 663
	Salamat Alı r. Budh Singh 197, 763
	Salimatul Futima r. Koylashpoti
	Narain 447, 539
Ruknadowla Nawab e. Hurdwari	Salkeld v Johnson
	Naltern r Melhuish
Dan	Samar Dasadh v Juggul Kishore
Rungo Lall r. Abdool Guffoor	241 240 514
	Sambasiya Ayyar v. Visham Ayyar ass
683, 684, 789 Rungo Monee e. Raj Coomarre . 237	Campayya r Ganpayya 455 400
Runjeet Ram r. Mahomed Waris 6-4	Ambhubhai Karsandase, Shivlaldas to a summing the state of the	Sadashirlaldas 991

PAGE.	PAGE.
Samoo Pattar v Abdool Sammad	Schmaltz v. Avery 781, 782
Salmb 503	Scholes v. Chadwick 236, 314
Samuel t. Cfner 606	Scholes v. Hilton 838
Sanderson v. Coleman 795	Scholey v. Walton 223
Sandilands, Re 738	Scholfield r. Earl of Londesborough 798
Sangram Singh v. Rajan Bibi 323	Schumack r Lock 227
Sankappa Rai r. R 274, 280, 282	Schwalbe, The
Sankaralingam r. Subban Chetti 165	Scott v Clare 216
Santacana v. Ardevol 922	Scott v. Jones 563
Santappayya e. Rangapayya 773	Scott v. London Dock Co 727
Santaya r. Savitri 566, 618	Scott v. Marshall 241
Santeshwar Mahanta v. Lakhikanta	Scott v. Sampson 201, 434
Mahanta 565	Scott v. Lord Dundonald 752
Sarrabjit Partab v. Inderjit Partab 419	Seal v. Claridge 503
Sarah Hobson's Case 116	Sealy v. Ramnaram Bose 677
Saraswati Dası v. Dhanput Singh	Seaman v. Netherclift 840, 875
348, 353, 335	Sears v. Lyons 161
Sarat Chunder v. Gopal Chunder	Secretary of State v. Kushnamoni
239, 754, 755, 756, 757, 763, 765, 766,	Gupta 712
770, 771, 774, 777, 778, 783	Secretary of State v. Manjeshwar
Sardarmull v Aranvayal 389, 390, 394	Krishnayyar 117, 476
Saidhari Lall, In re 107	Secretary of State for India in Council
Sariatullah v Pran Nath 165, 418, 419	r. Basharatullah 985
Sarkies v. Prosonnomoyee Dossec 776	Secy. of State for India in Council
Saroda Prosad v Luchmeeput Sing	v. Dattatraya Nayajı 769
713, 737	Secy of State for India v Krishna-
Saroda Prosad r. Mahananda Roy 649	moni Gupta 694
Saroda Soonduree v. Muddun Mohun 673, 674	Secy of State for India v Shanmu- garayra Mudahar
Sasi Bhusan Pal e. Chandra Peshkar 502	garayra Mudahar 450 Seetharama Raju v Bayanna Pantulu
Sastry Velaider v Sembycutty	792, 793
Vayalie 730	Selby t. Hills 839
Saskachellum Chetty & T. Gobind-	Selam Sheikh v Baidonath Ghatak 743
арра	Sellen v Norman 206
Satcown Ghosh r Secy of State	Selwyn, In re
358, 359, 360	Sennandan r Kollakiram 484, 986, 987
Satis Chunder r. Mohendra Lal 320, 351	Seshgin Shankabhoy t. Salvador Vas 769
Satya Mont v Bhaggobutty Churn 637	Seton v A S Bijohn 635
Satyesh Chunder v Dhunput Singh	Seton Laing Co v Lafone 765, 766.
576	775, 778, 779
Saunderson v. Judge 205, 206	Sevaram Aiyar : Samu Aiyar 638
Savage e Foster 700	Seviaji Vijaya t Chinna Nayana
Savak Singh r Girja Pande . 670	459, 460, 471, 685
Savi e. Obhoy Nath	Sewall t Evans 732
Savlappa r. Devchand . 726	Shadal Khan c. Aminullah Khan 171, 176 Shafin-un-nissa t. Shaban Ali 119
Sawyer r Birchmore . 817 Saxlehmer r. Appollmans Co. 193	Shafiq-un-missa e. Shaban Ah . 119 Shah Ara Begam c. Nanhi Begam 570
	Shah Golam c Must Emanum 244, 635
Sayad Muhammad r. Fatteh Muham- mad 609	Shah Gulam r Mahommad Akbar 685
Sayad Gulamalı e Mıyabhai 483, 681	Shahebzadee Shahunohah r Fergus-
Sayad Negamtula r. Nana valad . 666	son 513
Sayer r Glossop 356, 415, 417, 484	Shah Mohsum e Bilasoo Koer 597
Sayer r Kitchen	Shahzada Begam r. Secy. of State
Scales r Key 712	for India . 131, 324, 489
Scarmanga e, Stamp 8	Shaikh Abdulla r. Hap Abdulla 769

PAGE.	Page.
Shaik Hanif v. Jagabaddhu Shaha 784	Sheikh Abdulla v Sheikh Muhummud 490
Shaik Husain r. Govardhandas	Sheikh Akbar v Sheikh Khan 986, 987
Purmanandas ,. 546	Sheikh Ashruf v Ram Kıshore ., 663
Shaik Komuroodeen t. Shaikh	Sheikh Faizulla v Ramkamal Mitter
	445, 589
Monye Shaikh Koodootoolah v. Mohinee	Sheikh Fakir v. R 800
	Sheikh Goburdhun v. Sheikh Tofail 661
	Sheikh Hossein v. Sheikh Musund 749
	Sheikh Ibrahun v Parvata 247, 453,
Shaikh Kuleemooddeen v. Ashruf Ah 618
Shaikh Omed v. Wibhee Ram 101	471, 479, 990, 991
Shaikh Shurfuraz v. Shaikh Dhunoo	Sheikh Imdad v Musst Koothy 199
216, 217, 218	Sherkh Mahomed Ravuther v.
Shaikh Walee v. Shaikh Kumur . 594	British India S N Co 554, 726
Shama Charan v. Madhub Chandra 667	Sheikh Mahomed v. Kalee Pershad 990
Shama Churn r Abdul Kabeer . 691	Sheikh Milan v Mahomed Alı 660
Shama Churn v Khettro Mont . 674	Sheikh Mohammed v Jadunandan
Shama Soonduree v Collector of	Jha 668, 669, 714
Maldah 691	Sheikh Parabdi v Sheikh Mohamed
Shambati Koeri r. Jago Bibee 496, 697	580
Shambhoo Lall 1. Collector of Surat 640	Sheikh Rahmatullah v Sheikh Saritulla 990
Shambu Nath v Ram Chandra 483, 565	Sheikh Roshan z Nobin Chunder 667
Sham Chand v Kishen Prosad . 744	Sheikh Sahab v Lalla Bissessur . 660
Sham Chand v Ram Kristo Bewrah 362	Sheskh Sultan v Sheskh Ajmodin 449, 450
Sham Lall v Amarendro Nath . 772	Sheikh Tenoo, In the matter of 294
Sham Lall r Anuntee Lall . 889	Sheikh Torab v Sheikh Mahomed 672
et 7 11 b 11 10.1 non	Shelbourne v Inchiquin . 596
Sham Narain t. AdmrGenl of Ben-
Shamsh-ul-jahan Begum r. Ahmad	Sheo Nath & Sukh Lall
Wali	Sheopargash Dube v Dhanraj Dube 670
Sham Sundar v. Achhan Kuar 652, 653	Sheopiakash Singh e Rawlins, 725, 881
Shamu Patter v Abdul Kadır	Sheo Prosad e. Jung Bahadur . 658
Ravuthan	Sheo Prosad r Udai Singh 777
Shankar Murlidhar v. Mohan Lal., 787	Sheo Ruttun r Gour Beharee . 651
Shankarrao r, Ramjee 417	Sheo Ruttun r Net Lall 669, 714
Shan Mull v. Madras Building Co 198	Sheo Shankar v Ram Sewak 655
Sharfudin v. Gobind 545, 549, 550	Sheo Suhaye : Goodur Roy 346, 458
Sharo Bibi e Baldeo Das 566	Sheo Shurn r Ram Khelawan . 222
Sharoda Moyee r. Nobin Chunder 640	Sheppard, In re 730
Sharp, In re	Shepherd v Payne 185
Sharp r. Birch 503	Sheru Sha r. R 871, 889, 899
Sharpe r. Lamb 183	Shibestource Debia r Mothooranath
Shaw r. Beck 631	Acharjee 655
Show r. Gould 381	Shib Narain e. Shankar Pamigrahi 646
Shazada Mahomed r Daniel Wedge.	Shib Sabitri Prasad r Collector of berry 514, 520	Meerut 675
Shearman v. Fleming 719	Shibo Prosad. In matter of the peti-
Shedden r Att. Genl 319, 323	from of 677, 678
Shedden r. Patrick 324, 389	Shibosonduri Debis r. Sved
Sheeb Chunder r. Brojo Nath 618	Mahomed 646
Sheeb Narain r. Chuldam Doss 671	Shib Pershad r. Promothonath Ghose
Sheen r. Bumpstead 189, 200	342. 347
Sheetul Pershad r. Junmejoy Mullick	Shib Singh v. Mukat Singh 610
120, 914	Shiddapa e. Irrara 984

Page.	Pag
Shiddeshwar r. Ramchandrarav 767
CL7.11 . D. 1 . 701
Shields r. Wilkinson 634, 642, 679
Shilling v. Accidental Death Co 465	Sindh Punjab and Delhi Bank v.
Shimbu Nath v. Gynn Chand 383	Mudsoodun Chowdhury 7
Shiu Golam v. Baran Singh 648, 649, 723	Sirdar Kuar v. Chandrawati 95
Shivalingaya v. Nagalingaya 752	Sital Pershad v. Monohur Das 213, 23
Shivappa v Shidhnigappa 119	Sital Prasad v. Parbhu Lal 69
Shivram v. Narayan 749	Sitanath Dass v. Mohesh Chunder 3:
Shobanadri Appa r. Suramulu 227	Sitanath Koer v. Land Mortgage
Shookram Sookul t. Ram Lal 477,	Bank of India 67
481, 484, 490	Sitapathi Nayudu v. R
Shore t. Bedford 816	Sita Ram v. Amir Begum 37
Shore e. Wilson 555, 614, 620, 621; 624	Sita Ram t. Zalım Sıngh 657, 65
Shoshi Bhusan v Girish Chunder	Sivaganga v Lakshmana 68 Sivanananja Perumal v. Muttu
348, 351, 353, 355, 515
Shree Mohan Kishora v. Coimbatore	Ramalinga . 184, 18
Spinning and Weaving Co 723	Sivanananjee Perumal v Mecnakshi
Shrewsbury v Blount . 189, 200	Ammal . 10
Shriniwas Krishna Shriralkar t	Siva Ram r. Alı Baksh . 775, 78
Narhar Khando Khanvilkar 234	Sitaram Krishna r Daji Devaji., 68
Shristeedhur r. Kalı Kant . 789	Sivasankara Mudah v. Purvati Aneri 65
Shropshire Union Rys and Canal	Sivasubramanya r Secy.of State
Co. r Queen 776	for India 317, 318, 326, 51
Shumboo Chunder r Modhoo Kyburt	Skaife r Jackson 223, 77
215, 388	Skaife v Jackson 223, 77 Skinner v. Orde 74
Shumdan Alı t. Mothooranath Dutt 660	Skinner & Co. r. Rance Shama . 63
Shums Ahmed v Goolam Mohee-	Skinner & Co v Shew & Co . 14
	Slack r Buchanan 22
oodeen	Sladen, In re 535, 54
	Slater v Lawson 232, 24
Shusee Mookhee r. Bissessuree Debee 357, 358
Shustee Churn, In the matter of 674
Shyama Charan t Herus Mollah
579, 581, 600
Shyama Charan Nundy t Abhiram	Small v Nairne . 332, 86
Goswamı 549	Smart t. Rayner . 630
Shyamanand Das r Rama Kanto	Smidt r. Reddaway . 66
169, 321, 450, 645	Smith r Anderson 34
Sia Dasi v. Gur Sahai . 763, 773	Smith r Blakey . 308, 31:
Sibo Sundarı v. Hemangını Debi . 502	Smith r Brownlow 32
Sichel r Lambert . 700, 729	Smith t. Chadwick . 779, 786
Sidapa r. Paneakooty 651	Smith r Daniell . 81-
Sidgier v Birch 839	Smith e E. I Co 80°
Sievewright r. Archibald 567, 569	Smith e. Fell 81;
Sikher Chand e Dulputty Singh	Smith r Henderson 73:
646, 654, 776	Smith r Hughes 200, 698
Silbeck r Garbett . 205, 206, 207	Smith r Kesl 124
Simmons r. London, etc., Bank., 226	Smith r Ludha Ghella 7, 187, 602, 603.
Summons r. Mitchell 400	604, 622, 624
Simon r. Anglo-American Telegraph	Smith r Lyon 233
Co	Smith r. Mokhun Mahtoon 771
Simon Elias e. Jorawar Mull . 635	Smith e Sainsbury
Simpson r Margitson	Smith r. Smith 235, 236
Simpson r. Robinson . 148, 150	Smith r. Tayler 28

PAGE.	Page.
	Sreckant Bhuttachariee v. Raj
Smith C Waterman	Narain 548, 550
Signed of Francis	Sreeman Chunder v Gopal Chunder
Sittle 6: Wilson	460, 637, 740
SHOW of Living
Silbir barr t Cooding
	Soonduree
Donatadan Carata et al.
	Pundah
Solano v Lallaram 769, 779, 781	481, 481
	Sreemutty Mohun v Saral Chunder 759
	Sreemutty Oodoy r Bisonath Dutt 492, 518
Somar Dosadh 1. Juggul Kishori 349, 351	Sreemutty Phoones v Gobind
	•
Come and a	Chunder
sami Mudaliar	chunder Mullick
989, 990	Sreemutty Soorjeemoney t Deno-
Sonaollah v. Imamooddeen . 753
Sonatun Ghose r. Moulvie Abdul . 660	bundoo Mulhek 607 Sreenath Mundle v Sreezam Rajput 842
Sonatun Shaha v Dino Nath 502, 504	Sreenath Nag v Mon Mohinee . 291
Soobheddur Dossee v. Bolaram	Sreenath Roy v. Bindoo Bashinee
Dewan . 619, 723	291, 292, 77:
Scottn Bibee : Achmut Ali . 213,	Sreeram Chose v Steenath Dutt 72:
214, 222, 291, 292, 332, 336	Stee Sankarachari v Varada Pillat 776
Sookram Misser v. Clowdy 148, 390	Sri Balusu v Sri Balusu . 800
Sooltan Ali t. Chand Bibee 216, 217	Sri Braja v Kundana Devi 166
Soonatun Saha v Ramjoy Saha 685, 694	Sridhar Nandy v Braja Nath . 67
Soondur Monee v Bhoobun Mohun 718	Sridhar Vinavak " Narayan Valad
Scopromonian Setty v. Heilgers 590	Baban 37
Sooraj Kant r Khoodee Naram 115, 806	Sri Gajapathi e. Sri Gajapathi 750
Soorendronath Roy v Musamat	Sri Gonesh v Keshavrav Govind 383, 76:
Heeromonee 164, 185	Frikant v R . 398, 40
Souriah Row r. Cotaghery Boochiah	Sri Kishen v Huri Kishen . 34
634, 716	Sumati Alijan v Harachandra Chow-
Soorjo Coomar v Bhugwan Chunder	dhury 160
570, 571, 990	Srimati Anandmayi v. Dhanandra
Scorjomonee Dayee v Suddanund	Chandra 23
Mohappatter 372	Srimati Jaikali v Shib Nath 560
Soorjo Narain r. Bissambhar Singh 101	Srimati Lukhimani t Mohendra
Souruth Soonderee v Brodie 741 Sorabjee Vacha v. Koovurjee Manik-	Nath 726, 749, 77
jee 343	Srinath Patra v Kuloda Prosad Banerice
Soroop Chunder v Troylokho Nath 773	P
Sorbee Mohun r. Aukhil . 648, 651	Sm Pagharatha a G t N
Southwark Co. e. Quick 813, 821	Sri Raghunadha e Sri Brojo 114,47! Sri Rajab Sobhanadri e Sri Rajah
Sowdamanee Debys e. A. Spalding 597
Spargo r Brown 211	Sri Rangammal v. Sandammal 392, 39;
Spence r. Stuart 839
Spencely r. DeWillott 136, 854	Susteedhur Saunt v. Ramanath
Conner o Tulling 104 are	Pokhit
Specer v. Williams 782 Spicer v. Cooper 621	Stancs v Stewart
Spiret r Cooper	Standage r Creighton . 936
Spiere r Willison 561	Stanford r. Hurlstone 144

144

		P	AGE.	PACE
Stanley r White			145	Subramaniyayyan r. Subramaniy-
Stanton v. Percival	212, 217		234	ayyan 658
Stapylton v. Clough	'		305	Subrahamanyan r. Paramaswaran
State r. Blackburn			303	174, 351
State v. Glass			411	Subuktulla r Hari 786
State v. Lapage			728	Succaram Morarji r. Kalidas
State v. Railroad			205	Kalianji 227, 554, 607
State v. Rathburn			142	Sudisht Lal r. Musst. Sheobarat 697, 698
State v. Roe			891	Sudukhina Chowdrain v. Rajmohan
State r. Staton			900	Bose 362
State v. Wilson			435	Sufiruddeen t. R 254
Statfordshire Tramway	rs Co	ť		Sugden v. St. Leonards 490
Ebbamith			996	Sugg v Bray 496
Stearine v. Henzman			623	Sujat Ali v Kashinath Das 853
Steele v. Stewart			815	Sukaroo Kobiraj v. R 678
Steinkeller v. Newton		336,	100	Sukh Der t. Kedar Nath . 675
Stephen v. Vroman			777	Sukh Lall v. Madhuri Prasad . 647
Stephenson v. River Tv	ne Impro	ve-		Sukomut Bibee v Warris Ali 656
ment Commissioners			412	Suleiman Kader v Mehndi Afssur
Stevens v. Lynch			734	634, 637
Stevens v Pinney			560	Sulivan v. Norton 876
Stevens v. Thacker			224	Sullivan v. Sullivan 611
Steward v. Young			112	Sumeera Khatoon v. Tagore . 662
Stewart v. Eddowes			578	Summers v Moorhouse 611
Stewart's case			232	Summers r Mosely 839, 862
Stikeman v. Dawson			760	Summersett : Adamson . 216
Stiles v Cardiff S. N.	Co.		226	Sumrun Singh v Khedum Singh . 185
Stimson t. Farnham	• •	•	782	Sumsuddin t Abdul Husein 698
Stocken v. Collin		5, 207		Sundra Gopalan t Venkatavarada
Stockfleth v De Taste	t.,	• •	247	Ayyanagar 237
Stockley v Stockley	••	• •	734	Sundaraja Ayvengar r. Joganadda
Stone v Metcalfe	••	••	575	Pillar 658
Storr v. Scott	••	•	340	Sundarasastrial t Govinda Mandar-
Stewell v. Billings	••		752	ayan 666 Sundar Kuar t. Chandreshwar
Stracey v. Blake	••	400	, 751 416	Prasad 492, 494, 518
Stranger r. Searl	• •	•	819	Sunker Lall t. Juddoobung Sahaye
Stratford v. Hogan	••	• •	785	653, 776
Stringer's Estate, In re		106	, 415	Sunnud Allı t Musat Karımoonissa 712
Strong v. Brewer Strong v. Dickinson			839	Superundhwaja v Garuradhwaja 350
Stronghill v. Buck			. 777	Suppu v Govinda Charyar 105
Strother v. Barr	469, 470			Surab Narain v Shew Govind 654, 774
Struthers v. Wheeler			131	Suraj Buns: c. Sheo Prosad 657
Studdy v Sanders			818	Suraj Mookhi t Bhagwati Konwar 231
Sturge v Buchanan			, 368	Suruj Mull e. Hudson 985, 986
	3, 308, 349	3, 349	350	Suraj Prosad r Standard Life
Subba r. R		841	, 842	Insurance Co 856
Subbaji r. Shiddapa			881	Surat Dhobni, In the matter of 132, 134, 139
Subbaraya e. Krishnaj		••	792	Surat Soondaree r Rajendra Kishore 359
Subramania Aiyar v. I	155,	280,		Surendra Keshav e Durgasundarı
		8, 922	2, 924	Dassee 216, 454, 760
Subramanian Chettiar	r. Arunse			Surendra Nath r. Brojo Nath 171, 172, 173
lam Chettiar		. ••	575	Surendra Nath e Hiramoni Bur- mani 723
Subremenaya Pandya			10-	mani 723 Surja Narain r. Protab Narain 985
manya	••	••	185	Conta training to a torse training at $20

Page.	PAGE
Surja Prasad v Golab Chand 658	Talbot v Marshfield 81
Surjan Singh v Sardar Singh 321	Tallum Venkayya v R 85
Surjo Kant v. Baneswar Saha 571	Tajudin v. Cobind 54
Surjo Narain v. Bissambhur Singh 163, 167	Tamarasherri Sivithri v Maranat
Surjyamoni Dası v Kalı Kanta 731	Vasudevan 698
Surnomoyee v. LuchmeeputD oogru 740	Tamur Singh v. Kahdas Roy 44
Surnomoyee v Suttesschunder Roy 743	Tants v. Gajadhar 660
Surnomoyi v. Johur Mahomed 342, 346	Tara Banu v. Abdul Guffur 690
Surrosutty Dossee v. Umbica Nand 362	Tara Chand v Debnath Roy 67-
Sussex Peerage Case 296, 311, 366, 398, 405	Tara Chand v Reeb Ram 164, 165, 166
Sutto Churn v. Tannee Churn 672	184, 183
Sutton v. Ciceri 621
Sutton v. Devonport 719
Sutton v Sutton 101
Sutton v Tatham 734	Tara Lal v Sarobur Singh 754, 780, 785
Sutto Surrun v. Mohesh Chunder 741	Taraknath Chuckerbutty t Joy Soondur 618
Sutyobhama Dassee r. Krishna Chun-	Tara Pershad t Lukhee Naram . 508
· .	Taraprasad Mitra : Ram Nrising 237
der	Tarinee Pershad r Kali Charan 667
Swamirao v. Collector of Dharwar	Tarmee Pershad v Dwarks Nath 216
	Tarini Charan v Saroda Sungari
806, 807	655, 721, 77 , 849, 913
Swan, Ex parte	Tarını Mohun v Gunga Persad 789
Swan v. North British Australasian	Tarruck Chunder v Jogeshur Chun-
Co 766, 770, 778	der 648, 649, 651, 723
Swaranamayi Raur v Srinibash	Turuck Nath v Mohendra Nath 369 530
Koyal . 672, 686	Taruck Nath v Prosono Coomai
Swinfen v Lord Chelmsford 230	Taruck Nath Mookerjeev Guree Churn 336
Swinfen v Swinfen 148	Tarucknath Mullick v Jeamat Nosva 899
Syama Sunderi v. Jugo Bundhu 359	Taru Patur r Abinash Chundra 513
Syam Lall v Luchman Chowdry 358, 359	Tetas Abom r Gogia Gure 984
Syed Abbas v Yadeem Ramy 471, 489, 490	Tatia r Sadashiv . 780
Syed Ahmed v Ennyat Hossein . 672	Tanakkul Rai & Lachman Rai . 670
Syed Amer v Heera Singh . 756	Taylor v. Barelay . 446
Syed Ashgar v Syed Medha . 637	Taylor v. Blacklan . 820
Syed Fuzzul v Amjad Alı 698	Taylor v Brigg 624
Syed Lootfoollah v Musst Nusseebun 491	Taylor v Cook
Syed Nurul v Sheo Sahai 764, 766 770	Taylor v. Cresswell
Syed Sufdar v. Amjad Alı 985	Taylor v. Kınloch 738
Syers v Jonas 602	Taylor v. Needham 790
Syud Rera v Bhikun Khan , 991	Taylor v. Rundell 906
T	Taylor r Willans 128, 141, 230
-	Taylor t. Williams . 139, 201
Tacoordeen Tewaree r. Hossein Khan	Taylor 1. Witham 311 313 215
656, 696, 697	Tayammaul r Sashachalla . 773
Tadman c Henman . 785, 790	Teencourie r Hureehur 270
Tagore r Tagore 216, 454, 780	recentro Narain t. Bakai Sinch
Tahboonissa r. Koomar Sham . 655	Tekast Doorga v Tekast Doorga 185
Tajhoo Damor Singh r. Kotwar Jagat-	Tekait Roop r. Anund Rov 670
pal Singh 359 Tajuddin r Govind 550	Tehilram r. Kashibai 776
Taly Premariel a P	Templeton v. Lawree 157 040
	Tepu Khan r. Rojoni Mohun 159, 164, 168,
	170, 173, 177, 169
Matable to De 1 1	Inacont Bromma v Thacons Lullet 200
Tallet - Hadan	Thakooranee Dassee v Breechur
241DOL 8: 11001908 506, 730	Machani

Page,	PAGE.
Thaji Beebi v. Tirummalaiappa	Tinckler's Case 802
Pillai 987	Tiruchuran Perumal v. Sangudien 789
Thakdi Haggi v. Budrudın Saib 668	Tirumala v. Pingalai 747
Thakoor Deen v. Nowab Syud 458	Tırumalasami Reddi v. Rama Sami 693
Thakoor Dyal, In the matter of 855	Tiruvengada Ayyangar v Ranga-
Thakoor Jeetnath v Loke Nath . 644	samı Nayak 598, 599
Thakoor Mahtab r. Leelanund Sing 753	Tofaluddi Peada v. Mahar Ali 502
Thakoor Pershad v. Mussamut Bash-	Tokee Bibee t. Abdool Khan 804
	Tollemache, In re 241, 312, 391
mutty 547, 550 Thakore Fatesingji v. Bamanji	Tollemache, In re 241, 312, 391 Toleman, In re485
Dalal 768, 989	Toolsee Money v. Maria Margery
Thakurain Balaraj v Rai Jagat Pal. 101	Cornelius 761
	Toolsey Das v. Premp Tricumdas 648, 649
	Toosey v. Wilhams 207
Thakur Garuradhwaja v. Kunwar	Topham v. McGregor 852
Shaparam 320, 350, 417, 419, 421	Torab Alı v Chooramun Singh 640
Thakur Singh v. Bhogeraj Singh 687, 689	Toronto Building Co. t. Corporation
Thama v. Kondan 351	of Toronto 379
Thamman Pandi v Maharajah of	Tota Ram v. Mohun Lall 383, 384
Vizianagram 789	Townshend Peerage Case 423
Thandavan v. Vallima 989	Townsend v Strangroom 4
Thet She v. Maung Ba . 131	Tracy Peerage Case 398, 423
Thiagraja v. Giyana Sambandha . 663	Trailokia Nath v. Shurno Chungoni
Thickness v. Bromilow	546, 549
Thimma Reddi v. Chenna Reddi 668	Travers v. Blundell
Thirthasami v Gopala 115	Treelochun Roy v Raj Kishen 650
Thirukumaresan Chetti v. Subbaraya	Trewhitt v Lambert
Chetti 635, 669	Tribhovandas Jekisandas v Krishna-
Thomas v. Connell 194 Thomas v. David 879	ram Kuberam . 618
Thomas v. David 879 Thomas v. Jenkins . 507	Triccam Panachand v Bombay-
Thomas v. Jenkins . 507 Thomas v. Morgan . 188, 249	Baroda, etc., Ry Co 452
Thomas v. Norgan 158, 249 Thomas v. Newton 826	Trilochun Ghose v Korlash Nath 691, 743
Thomas a Memion ozo	Trimbak Gangadhar r Bhagwandas
Thomas v Secretary of State for	Mulchand 601
India in oddinen	Trilok Nath v. Musstt Lachhnien . 703
	Trimblestown v Kemmis 215, 314, 316
	Troilokhoya Mohini Davi t Kali Prosanna Chose 636, 921
Thorne v Heard 124 Thornhill v. Thornhill . 905	Trotter r. Maclean 205, 207
They Ammal v. Subbaraya Vudalı 993	Troup, Ex parte 391
Thunder v. Warren 559	Troylokhanath Biswas. In the matter
Thursby v. Plant 634	of 907
Thurston e. Nottingham Permanent	Troyluckho Tarmi e Mohima Chun-
Benefit Building Society . 759	dra . 769
Tiery v. Kristodhun Bose . 695	Trustees of the Harbour of Madras
Tikamdas Javahirdas r Gangakom	r Best & Co
Mathuradas 681	Tucker, In re 235
Tikam Singh r. Dhan Kunwar 449, 703	Tucker r Linger 165 Tugwell r. Hooper 820
Tilak Singh r. Chock Sing 231	Tugwell r. Hooper 820
Tiley r. Cowling 214	Tukaram bin Atmaram r. Ram-
Tiley r. Cowling 214 Till r. Ainsworth 907	chandra bin Budharam 769
Timangarda r. Rangangarda 547, 548	Tukeya Rai e. Tup-ee Koer 865, 869, 870
Timmana r. Putobhata 754
Tinappa r Murumanna 769	Tulet Pershad r. Raja Misser 665

Page.	Pagi
Tulsi Ram v. Mutsadı Lal 771	Vagliano r. Bank of England 77
Tunley r. Evans 240	Vaillant : Dodemead 81
Turner v. Power 559	Valippa Raonthan v. Mahomed
Turner v Railton 248	Khasim
Turquand v. Knight $18, 819	Vallabha v. Madusudanan 185, 45
Turton v. Turton 711	Vallabh Bhulee v. Rama 75
Tweedie v. Poorno Chunder 754, 775	Vanderdonckt v. Thelluson 366, 403, 40
Twynam v. Knowles 561	Van Omeron v Dowick 206, 451, 73
Tyrell v. Pointon 674	Van Wart v Walley 23
•	Varadarajulu Naidu r Sriniva-
υ	salu Naidu 395, 77
Ubilack Rai v. Dallial Ras 547	Varajisl : Bhaiji Nagardas 73
Uda Begum v. Imam-ud-din 99, 100, 768	Varvar Nicholas t Asphar 54
Udit Upadhia v Bhowandin 563	Vasanji v Haribhai . 491, 513, 78
Uggrakant Chondhry v. Hurro	Vasanji Haribhai t Lallo Akhu 66
Chunder 546, 547	Vasudeva Bhatlu & Narasamma 59
Ulagar Singh v Pitman Singh . 659	Vasudeva Shanbhoy v. Naramapa: 99
Ulfatunnissa Elhaijan v. Hossain	Vasudev Dajı : Babaji Ranu 785,
Khan ' 989	788, 789, 79
Uma Churn v. Ajadanissa Bibee . 100	Vavasseur : Vavasseur 83
Uma Shankar v. Mansur Alı 639	Vaughan v Martin 90 Vedamutta. In ie 97
Uman Prosad v Gandharp Singh 114, 350	Vedamutta. In .e
Umbica Churn v. Bhuggobutty	Vedanayagar Mudahar t Vedammal 38
Churn 651	Vedavallı i Narayana . 648, 65 Veerappa Kavundan i Ramasami
Umbica Churn r. Madhub Chosal 667
Umbica Churn Sen r. Bengal Spin-	Velampuducherri Padmanabhan
ning Co 820 Umedmal Motram r Davubin	n Chan-hamm
Dhondiba 599	77-1
Uniesh Chundra v. Sageman 608, 610,	Venkatratnam v Reddiah 58
615, 616, 618	Vengama Naskar : Raghavacharry 66
Umes Chunder Baneya a Mohini	Vankaji Krishna t Lakshman
Mohun 597	Devj1 78
Umrith Nath v. Gource Nath 648	Venkaji Sridhar v Vishnu Babaji 22
Unapoorna Dassee e. Nuffer Poddar	Venkata Chandrappa r Venka-
238, 245	tarama Redi
Underwood v Wing 158. 720	Venkatachella Chettiar v Sampathu
Ungley v. Ungley 582	Chettisr 810, 90
Unide Rajaha v. Pemmasamy	Venkatadri e. Peda Venkayamma 74
Venkatadry . 7, 128, 471, 476 United Company v. Raja Buddinath 843	Venkatagiri t. Raghava 99
United Company v. Raja Buddinath 843 United States Exp. Co. v. Henderson 905	Venkata Gopala v. Lakshmi Ven- kama
United States v. Dickinson 864	 1 4 6 1 -
Upendra Krishna z. Ismail Khan 742	Venkata Gopal v Rangappa 78 Venkata Krishnamma v. Anna-
Upendra Mohun v Gopal Chandra 921	purnamma 72
Upendra Narain v Gopce Nath 651	Vankata Narasimha e. Bhashya
Upendra Nath Bagehi r R 693	Karlu 45
Upocroop Tewary v Lalla Bandhjee 658	Venkatanarasımla Naidu v. Dun.
Urquhart r. Butterfield 454	damudi Kottaya
Ushar Ali v. Ultal Fatima 740	Venkatarama Ayyar r. Venkata
Uttamebandra Krithy v. Khetra Nath	Subrahmaniam 37
Nath 752	Venkataramanna r. Chavela 22
▼	Venkatarammanna v Viramma 66
Vacher v. Cocks . 150 104 107	Venkataratnan Naidu v Collector of

Page.	. Page.
Venkatasami r. R 280, 281	Walker r. Frobisher 917
Venkatasami r. Venkatreddi 164, 169, 175	Walker v. Wilsher 247, 248, 249
Venkatasubbiah Chetty v. Govindara-	Walker's Case 728, 801
julu Naidu 562, 570	Wallace r Jafferson 815, 821
Venkataswami Nayakhan r. Subba	Wallace e. Small 249
Rau 393	Wallingford v. Mutual Society Co. 646
Venkatesa r. Sengoda 571	Wallis r. Littel 598, 599
Venkatratnam v. Reddish 581, 584	Walkner r Atma Ram Mundur 685
Venkayyar r. Venkata Subbayar	Walls v. Atcheson 841, 844
570, 571, 990	Walpole v. Alexander 839
Venour's Settled States, In re 101	Walsham t Stainton 819
Vermicombe t. Butler 739	Waltean v Fenwick 124
Verabhai Ajubhai r. Rai Hirabai 450	Walter r Haynes 206, 739
Vunpakshappa v. Shidappa 668	Waman Ramchandra t Dhondrba
Vinayak v Collector of Bombay 718, 719	Krishnaji 570, 571, 990
Vinayak Narsingh v. Datto Govind 651	Ward t Hobbs 200
Vinayaek v. Govind 763	Ward t. Lord Londesborough 205, 207
Vincent v. Cole 478, 560, 561	Ward v Marshall 818
Virabhai Ajubhai v. Bai Hirabai 655	Warren v. Warren 205, 206
Virchand Lalchand v Kumaji 991	Waterpark v. Fennell 556
Virgo v. Virgo 388	Watkins i Rymill 198, 698
Virjivandas Madhavdass v. Mahomed	Watkins r Vince 137, 224
Ali 618	Watson, Ex parte 760
Vishnu t. Krishnan 169, 778	Watson r. Gopee Soonduree 921
Vishnu Yeshawant v. New York Life	Watson r Little 387
Insurance Co 820, 821	Watson r Smith
Vishvanath Charondu r Subraya
Shivappa 238	Watson & Co v. Govt 712 Watson & Co v. Mohendra Nath 347
Vithaldas v. Secretary of State for India 689, 693, 788, 792	Watson & Co v Nobm Mohun 236, 237
Vithal Mahadeb r Mahummad	Watson & Co t. Nukee Mundul 842
Husen 550	Watson & Co r Rance Shurut 789
Vithu Govinda v. Rampi Yelluji 688, 994	Watts : Cresswell 760
Volant r. Soyer . 824, 905	Watts r. Lawson 249
Volkart Bros v. Vettivelu Nadan 186, 187	Weatherall v Dillon 667
Vythilinga r. Venkatichela 164, 168, 175	Webb v. Byng 605
• • •	Webb r. East 815, 823
w	Webb v. Fox 684
Waddington r Roberts . 206	Webb t. Smallwood 836
Waddeer v. E. I Co 809	Webb r Smith 814
Wafadar Khan t R 919, 922	Webber r. Corbett 016
Wagstaff e. Watson 229	Webster t Friedeberg 917
Wahidunnessa r. Durgadass 796	Weeks a Sparke 296
Wain r. Bailey 987	Wells e. L. T. & S. Ry. Co 101
Wajid Hossain t. Nankoo Singh 657	West r Lawday 719, 820
Wajibun r. Kadir Buksh 231, 483, 565 Wajid Khan r. Ewaz Ali Khan 696	West r Lawday 618 Westinghouse r. M. R. Co. 821, 822
:	Westmacott r. Westmacott 354
Wake t Harrop 589, 593 Walcott r. American Life, etc., Society 725	Weston r Eces 571
Waldridge v. Kenmson . 248, 249	Whaley r. Carlisle 315
Wali Ahmad r. Ajudhia Kendu 743	Wharam r Routledge 907
Wali Ahmed r. Tota Meah 693, 694	Wharton r. Lewis 841, 845
Walt-wallah r. Ghulam Alt 993, 993	Wheatley c. Williams 817, 818
Walker, In re 683	Wheeler r. LeMarchant 813, 814,
Walker r. Burrow 205	815, 820, 622

Pagi	PAGE.
Whicker, v. Hume 379, 566, 71	2 Wood v. Braddick 231, 232
Whisterlo's Case 70
Whitaker v. Izod 82	3 Wood & Corporation of the Toun
Whitcomb v. Whiting 231, 23	2 of Calcutta 806
White v. Dowling 24	2 Wood v. Durham 434
White v. Greenish 754, 79	0 Wood v Mackimpon ozz
White r. White 21
Whitechurch, Ld. v Cavanagh 76	7 Woodcock r Houldsworth 205, 206
Whitehead v. Scott 497, 56	3 Woodward v Goulstone . 490
Whitelock & Musgrove 505, 73
Whitley, In re $20, 221, 223, 231,	Woods t. Cox . 434
244, 80	6 Woolway v Rowe 236
Whitfield v Brand 56	Wooma Churn e Haradhun Mojoom-
Whitnash v. George 23	4 dar 654
Whiton v. Snyder 40	9 Wooma Kant r Gunga Narain . 918
Whittaker r. Morrison 68	6 Wooma Soondaree Kishoree
Whittley Partners, Int . 98	Mohun
Wiedemann v. Walpole 148, 83	6 Woomesh Chunder , Rashmoni
Wight r Rogers 50	b Dassi . 111, 673, 674
Wilke's Case	Worthington r Sculper att
William Abbott Green, In the goods of 53	Wright v Brekett 883
William Cornell, In the goods of . 53	6 Wiight r Doe d Tatham 145, 146,
Williams v. Bridges 24
Williams c. Curtis 16	1 Wright , Holdgate . 702
Williams v E I. Co 72	Wright a Lainson con
Williams v. Graves 31	Wright r Tathern 102 402 215
Williams v. Innes 24	l Wutzlei i. Sharpe
Williams v Richards 13	Wuzeer Alt v Kalı Knomes 401 403
Williams v Star Newspaper Co 81	Wyatt r Bateman 222 405
Williams v. Thomas 24	Wynne r Tycwhitt
Williams r. Wilcox 91	5
Williams v Williams 117, 216, 77
Williamson r. Rover Cycle Co . 710
Willoughby r Willoughby . 45	Venkondora
Wilmott v. Barber 76
Wilson r Bowie	Varamatia Church re
Wilson v Oakes	Yashrant Puttee . P. a
Wilson r Rastall 81
Wilson v. Wilson 19: Wing v. Angrave 149, 158 79:
	Yales o Dom
	Venamendes No.
M' - d. f	Nidatana Sanyasi
117 . 1	) rehwadahai D
Wise r. Bhoobin Moyre 639, 66	4)6 500 501 800 8
Wise v. Sunduloonessa Chow.	Young t. Brown
drance 459, 460, 47	Young Ex parte 408 389, 855
Witmer r Schlatter 387	Young Manufacturing Co. 1
Wolmershasen, In re 246
Wolverton, In re
Womerh Chunder r. Chundy Churn
616	2
Womesh Chunder e Shama Sundari
459, 496	Zaheda Bibi e, Sheo Charan 752
1	Zakeri Begum z. Sajna Begum 305

TABLE OF CASES CITED.

			P	4GE.		1	PAGE.
Zamindar	Serimatu	v. Y	'irappa		Zeenut Ah v Ram Doyal		618
Chetti	••		747,	775	Zemindar of Ramnad r. Zemind	ar of
Zamorin of	Calicut r.	Nar	ayanan		Yettiapooram		646
Mussad		••	• • •	789	Ziulnıssa Ladlı v. Motidev Rata:	ndev
Zamunia r	Ram Tahal	••	••	737		483	3, 365

BIBLIOGRAPHY.

THE Bibliography here given is by no means strictly complete. Omitted

I others]; (3) Works on Continental law. (4) Works medentally, but not specifically and directly, dealing with the subject of Evidence last for example.

subject; or general Digests, contain incidentally much matter relating to the Nisi Prius or the like], (5) Articles in Legal Magazines [of which there are a great number]. The lasts given contain for the most part well known practical works specifically dealing with the subject, and in present or past use by the profession. They reproduce moreover only those which have come into the compiler's hands to date, but there are doubtless others.—Ed.

(A) CHRONOLOGICAL CLASSIFICATION.

(Works on the English, Scotch and American Laws of Evidence.)

1735. The Law of Evidence wherein all the cases that have yet been printed in any of our Law Books or Trials, and which in any wise relate to points of Evidence are collected and methodically digested under their proper heads, with necessary tables to the whole.

2nd Ed , London, 1735,

[The anonymous author observes in his Preface that prior to this collection there was nothing of this nature extant besides the 11th Chapter of a Book entitled Trials per Pais which was very defective. Ed.]

1758. The Law of Evidence, by Lord Chief Baron Gilbert.

London, 1756.

[2nd Ed. (1); 3rd Ed., 1769; 4th Ed., 1777; 5th Ed., in 4 vols., 1791—1796; 6th Ed., 1801, by James Sedwick. This is the first of the conject. Mr. Best [Ev., p. 70) says, that it is principally indebted for reducing our law of.

1761. Theory of Evidence.

t

[This anonymous work is in substance Part VI of the anonymous first edition (1767) of what afterwards appeared as Baller's Nisi Prins; it is found also in all subsequent editions. Thayer's Case on Evidence, p. 1028.]

London, 1761.

 A Compendium of the Law of Evidence, by Thomas Peake. London, 1801.

1802. The Rules of Evidence on Pleas of the Crown illustrated from Printed and Manuscript Trials and Cases, by Leonard McNally, 2 vols.

London and Dublin, 1802,

1810. A Digest of the Law of Evidence in Civil and Criminal Cases, by Zephaniah Swift, one of the Judges of the Supreme Court of the State of Connecticut.

Hartford, 1810.

1812. The Philosophy of Evidence, by Daniel M'Kinnon.

London, 1812.

1814. A treatise on the Law of Evidence, by the Right Hon. S. March Phillips and Ames, and (subsequently) Thomas James Arnold.

London, 1814.

[2nd Ed., 1815; 3rd Ed., 1817; 4th Ed., 1820; 5th Ed., 1822; 6th Ed., 1824; 7th Ed., 1829; 8th Ed., 1838; 9th Ed., 1843; 10th Ed., 1852 (latest). Ed.]

1820. An Essay on the Principles of Evidence and their application to subjects of judicial enquiry, by James Glassford.

Edinburgh, 1820.

1824. A practical treatise on the Law of Evidence, by Thomas Starkie. 3 vols.

London, 1824.

[2nd Ed., 1833 (2 vols.); 3rd Ed., 1842 (3 vols.); 4th Ed., 1853 (latest), by George Morley There is an American Edition (10th, with references to American Cases by George 1825. A treatise on Judicial Evidence extracted from the Manuscripts of Jeremy Bentham, Esq., by M. Dumont, Member of the Representative and Sovereign Council of Geneva. Translated into English.

London, 1825.

[A translation of Dumont's "Traite des Preuves Judiciaires," published in 1823 v. post, 1827. Ed.]

1825. A practical treatise on the settling of evidence for trials at Nisi Prius and on the preparing and arranging the necessary proofs, by Isaac Espinasse.

London, 1825.

[This is a 2nd Ed. : quære date of first. Ed.]

1825. Evidence forming a title of the Code of legal proceedings according to the plan proposed by Crofton Uniacke, Esq., by S. B. Harrison.

London, 1825

[An early attempt at codification. Ed.]

1827. Roscoe's Digest of the Law of Evidence on the trial of Actions at Nisi Prius.

London, 1827.

[Quære title of first edition; 2nd Ed., 1831; 3rd Ed., 1834; 4th 1839; 6th Ed., 1844; 7th Ed., 1849; 8th Ed., 1851;

5th Ed.

11th Ed., 1866; 12th Ed., 1870; 13th Ed., 1875; 14th Ed., 1879; 15th Ed., 1884; 16th Ed., 1891 (latest), 2 vols., by Maurice Powell. Ed.]

1827. Rationale of Judicial Evidence specially applied to English Practice from the Manuscripts of Jeremy Bentham, Esq., Bencher of Lincoln's Inn. in five volumes. Ed John S Mill

London, 1827.

[The papers from which this work was extracted were written by Benthan at varientes; from the year 1802 to 1812. They comprise a very minute exposition of his views on all the branches of the subject of judicial evidence, intermixed with criticisms on the Law of Evidence as it was established in England and with incidental remarks on the state of that branch of law in most of the continental systems of jurapridence. Bentham's speculations on Judicial Evidence had already been published in a more condensed form by M. Dumont of tieneva in the "Tratic des Preuves Judiciaires," published in 1823, an English translation of which appeared in 1825. See ante, and the Preface of J. S. Mill. A Professor Wignore says, in less than the generations nearly every reform which Bentham advocated for the Law of Evidence has come to pass. Law of Evidence, on in § 2231. Ed.]

1830. A practical treatise on the General Principles and Elementary Rules of the Law of Evidence, by Richard Gaide.

London, 1830,

1831. An Examination of the Rules of Lew respecting the admission of extrinsic evidence in aid of the interpretation of Wills by the Right Hon. Sir James Wigram

Loudon, 1831.

[2nd Ed., 1835; 3rd Ed., 1840; 4th Ed., 1858 (latest), by W. Knox Wigram. Ed.] 1834. A treatise on the Law of Evidence in Scotland by George Tait.

Edinburgh, 1834.

This is the 3rd Edition by Adam Urquhart. Ed.1

. 4 41- - 21- 4 1

1835. Roscoe's Digest of the Law of Evidence in Criminal cases

Loudon, 1835.

1836 A treatise on the Law of Evidence in the Courts of Equity by Richard Newcombe Gresley.

Landon, 1836.

[A work dealing with the system of evidence prevalent in the Court of Chancery, 2 id Ed., 1847 (latest), by Christopher Alderson Calvert. Ed.]

1838. An Essay on the Principles of Circumstential Evidence, by William Wills.

London, 1838

[Quarte date of 2nd Ed.; 3rd Ed., 1850; 4th Ed., 1862 (latest), edited by Alfred Wills. Ed.]

1842. A treatise on the Admissibility of Confessions and Chellenge of Jarors in Criminal  $\alpha$  see in England and Ireland, by Henry H. Joy Dublin, 1842.

1842 A treatise on the Law of Evidence, by Simon Greenleaf, Ll.D.

Philadelphia, 1812.

[1st Ed., in one vol.; 2nd Ed., 1844-1846; 3rd Ed., 2 vols., 1846, quare as to subsequent editions until 1896, the date of the last edition in 3 vols., revised with additions by William Draper Lewis, who states in his preface that in upwards of 20,000 cases on evidence, the Courts have referred to some section of Mr. Greenleaf's work to support their decisions. Ed.]

1844 A treatise on presumptions of Law and Fact with the theory and rules of presumptive or circumstantial proof in Criminal cases, by W. M. Best. ٠, London, 1844.

[The 1844 Ed. is the only edition of this work. Ed.]

1848. A treatise on the Law of Evidence as administered in England and Ireland with illustrations from American and other foreign Laws, by His Honour Judge Pitt Taylor.

London, 1848.

. [Quære title of first edition ; 2nd Ed , 1855; 3rd Ed., 1858 ; 4th Ed., 1864 ; 5th Ed. 1868; 6th Ed., 1872; 7th Ed., 1878; 8th Ed., 1895; 9th Ed., 1895; 10th Ed., 1906, by W. E. Hume Williams, K C. The references throughout this work are to the 10th edition by G. Pitt Lewis, o.c.]

1849. The Principles of the Law of Evidence with elementary rules for conducting the examination and cross-examination of witnesses, by W. M. Best

London, 1849.

[2nd Ed., 1855; 3rd Ed., 1860; 4th Ed., 1866; 5th Ed., 1870; 6th Ed., 1875; 7th Ed., 1883; 8th Ed., 1893 (latest), by J. M. Lely, with Notes to American and Canadian Cases, by Charles F. Chamberlayne of the Boston Bar. Ed.1

1850 The History and Principles of the Law of Evidence as illustrating our social progress, by John George Phillimore

London, 1850.

1855. A treatise on the Law of Evidence in Scotland, by William Gillespie Dickson 2 vols.

Edinburgh, 1855

[2nd Ed., 1864; 3rd Ed. (?) 1887, by P. J. Hamilton Grierson. Ed.]

1856. Powell's Principles and Practice of the Law of Evidence

London, 1856

** ** | 1 ** | 0 1 P1 10 0 0 2 P1 10 0 44 D4 10 78 . E4 D4

1861. A treatise on Facts as subjects of Enquiry by a Jury, by James Ram.

London, 1861. 4 12 12 1 1/00 1 1 m -1 -1 -1 -1 (f

ing a case to the jury; Whewell on Theory and Fact, Hoffman's fifty resolutions in regard to professional deportment, cases of mistaken identity and erroneous conviction. Ed.1

1865. Privilege of confessions, religions, by Baddely.

1868 A treatise on the Nature, Principles and the Rules of Circumstantial Ev dence, especially that of the presumptive kind in criminal cases, by A. M. Burrill.

New York, 1868.

1872. A treatise on the Law of Estoppel and its application in Practice, by Melville M. Bigelow.

Boston, 1872.

[Quære date of 2nd and 3rd Ed.; 4th Ed., 1886; 5th Ed., 1890 (latest). Ed.]

1876. A Digest of the Law of Evidence, by Sir James Fitzjames Stephen.

London, 1876.

[Reprinted with slight alterations, September, 1876; December, 1876; with many alterations, 1877; 2nd Ed., 1881; 3rd Ed., 1881; 3rd Ed., 1881; 4th Ed., 1893 (latest). There is also an American Edition (Boston, 1886), from the fourth English Edition, with Notes from American cases, including those of J. W. May. Ed.]

1877. A Commentary on the Law of Evidence in Civil Issues, by Francis Wharton, 12 b.

Philadelphia, 1877

[2nd Ed., 1879; 3rd Ed., 1888 (latest). Ed.]

1879. Famous cases of Circumstantial Evidence by S M. Phillips.

Jersey, 1879.

[This is the 4th American Edition of the English work by the author of Phillips on Evidence. Ed.]

1880. An Exposition of the Practice relative to the Right to Begin and Reply. by W. M. Best.

Eurlington, N J., 1880.

[This is an American Edition of the English work. Quære date. Ed.]

1880. A treatise on the Law of Evidence in Criminal Issues, by Francis Wharton, LLD. 8th Ed.

Philadelphia, 1880.

(Sth Ed., 1880; 9th Ed. (latest), 1884 Processes to 1880; at this book was one of the volumes of editions of which are as follows: 1st F

1057 . Kith Pa 1861 . 6th Pa 1009 . 114 1 2 1074 1 .

Law. Lat.

1883. The Theory of the Law of Evidence as established in the United States and of the Conduct of the Examination of Witnesses, by W. Reynolds, Chicago, 1883.

[2nd Ed., 1890; 3rd Ed., 1897. Ed.]

1883. The Law of Expert Testimony, by H. W. Rogers, LL.D.

St. Louis, Mo., 1883.

[2nd Ed., 1891, re-written and enlarged. Ed.]

1884. The Law of Estoppel, by L. F. Everest and E. Strode.

London, 1884.

1885. A treatise on Communication by Telegraph, by Morris Gray.

Boston, 1885.

[A fourth of this book deals with the subject from the point of view of the Law of Evidence. Ed.]

1886. The Law of Presumptive Evidence including presumptions, both of has and of fact, and the burden of proof both in Civil and Criminal cases, by John D. Lawson.

San Francisco 1886.

[The law of presumptive evidence is here reduced to definite rules. Ed.]
1886. The Law of Expert and Opinion Evidence reduced to rules, by John D. Lawson.

San Francisco, 1886.

1886. Wood's Practice Evidence for ready use in the trial of causes, by

New York, 1886.

1887. A treatise on the Law of Witnesses, by Stewart Rapalje.

7 . 7 1007

. New York, 1887.

1887. Law of Evidence under the Code of Civil Procedure of the State

Albany, 1887.

. 1887. The Practice relating to Witnesses in all matters and proceedings, Civil and Criminal, at, after, and before the trial, or hearing both in the superior and inferior Courts, by Walter S. Sichel.

London, 1887.

1888. An Essay on the Principles of Estoppel, by M. Cababé.

London, 1888.

1889. Privileged Communications as a branch of Legal Evidence, by John Frelingbuysen Hageman.

New Jersey, 1889.

1889. The Ohio Law of Opinion Evidence, expert and non-expert, by Francis B. James.

Cincinnati, 1889,

1891. A brief on the modes of proving the facts most frequently in issue or collaterally in question on the truel of Civil or Criminal cases, by Austin Abbott of the New York Bar.

New York, 1891.

[By the same author "A brief for the trial of civil issues before a jury" and "A brief for the trial of criminal cases." See also 1895. Ed.]

1892. The Law of Evidence, by Sidney L. Phipson.

London, 1892.

[2nd Ed., 1898; 3rd Ed., 1902.]

H. G. Wood.

of New York, by Henry E. Warner.

1892. The General Principles of the Law of Evidence with their application to the trial of civil actions and criminal cases, 3 vols, by Frank S. Rice.

Rochester, N. Y., 1892.

[The first two volumes deal with civil actions and the third with criminal cases, Ed.]

1892. A treatise on the Law of Identification, by G. E. Harris.

Albany, 1892

[Identity of persons and things-animate and inanimate-living and dead-mistaken identity-corpus delicts-opinion evidence. The author omits the subject of poisoning and drowning. Ed.]

1892. Select Cases on Evidence at the Common Law with notes, by J. B.

Thaver, LL.D., Professor of Law at Harvard University

Cambrine, 1892.

I" The only writer who has added much to our knowledge of the principles of evidence since Bentham:" Sir William Markby in Preface to his Indian Evidence Act.]

1893 A treatise on the Admissibility of Parol Evidence in respect to written instruments, by Irving Browne.

New York, 1893.

1894. The Theory and Practice of the Law of Evidence by William Wills.

A treatise on Disputed Handwriting and the determination of genuine from forged signatures. The character and composition of inks and their determination by chemical tests. The effect of age on documents, by W. E. Hagan, Expert in Handwriting

London, 1894.

New York, 1894.

[See also Le Faux-Maquillage, Decalquage Graphotypic pat Gustave Hasse, Paris, 1898 Ed.]

1895 Select cases in the Law of Evidence as applied during the examination of witnesses, by Austin Abbott, LL D.

New York, 1895.

1895 The taking of Evidence on Commission, by W. E. Hume Williams and A. Romer Macklin.

London, 1895.

1896. The Law of Evidence in Civil Cases, by Burn W. Jones, 3 vols,

San Francisco, 1896.

1896. A Preliminary Treatise on Evidence at the Common Law, Part I, Development of Trial by Jury, by J. B Thayer, LL.D.

Boston, 1896.

1896. A treatise on the Law of Cicumstantial Evidence, by Arthur P. Will. .

Philadelphia, 1896. 1898 The Law of Evidence in Criminal cases under the Act of 1898, by Ernest Arthur Jell.

Bradley Thavet, LL-b

London, 1898. 1898. A Preliminary Treatise on Evidence at the Common Law, by James

London 1898.

[This is the full work of which the volumes published in 1896 contained the first four Chapters, Ed.]

1898. Rules of Evidence as pre-cribed by the Common Law for the trial of actions and proceedings, by George W. Bradner.

Chicago, 1898.

1899. Compendium of Evidence, by D. Augustus Straker.

Detroit, 1899.

1904. Treatise on Evidence. An Encyclopedia of Statutes and cases until March 1904. Canadian Edition in 4 vols., by J. H. Wigmore

(Works on the Law of Evidence in India.)

1888 The Law of Evidence applicable to the Courts of the Late East India Company explained in a course of lectures delivered by the Hon'ble John Bruce Norton, Barnster-at-Law, Advocate-General of Madres

Madras, 1858.

[2nd Ed., 1859; 3rd guare date; 4th Ed., 1865; 5th Ed., quare date; 6th Ed., 1869; 7th Ed., 1869. This book contains the substance of the lectures the author delivered as Professor of Law in the Madras Presidency College.]

1862 A Manual of the Law of Evidence of the Madras Provinces, by J. R. Kindersley, Madras Civil Service and of Lincoln's Inn

This is the date of 2nd Edition : 3rd Ed., 1865. Ed.1

1862 The Law of Evidence as administered in England and applied to India. by Joseph Goodeve, Berrister-at-Law, Acting Master of the Supreme Court of Calcutta, and Lecturer on Law and Equity in the Presidency College

Calcutta, 1862.

1867. The Law of Evidence in British India, by C. D Field.

Calcutta, 1867

[2nd Ed., 1873, 3rd Ed., 1878; 4th Ed., 1884; 5th Ed., 1894. The preface of the first edition is dated 1st May 1867. The first edition dealt in Part I with the general outlines of the Law of Evidence. In Part II, the Old Evidence Act (II of 1855) was reprinted and notes were appended to its sections. The sections of two other Acts touching the subject of evidence was also reprinted with annotations, rrz., ss. 98, 145-150, 202-205, 366, 145, 154 of Act XXV of 1861: (Cr. Pr. Code); ss. 4, 20 of Act XIV of 1859 (Limitation). In the preface the author as his apology for coming before the public on ground already occupied by the able works of Mr. Norton and Mr. Goodeve says :- "These works have long since taken their appropriate places in the Indian Law Library beyond the reach of competition or criticism. The present publication seeks to fill a place, which the author ventures to think, is as yet unoccupied. It is intended to be a small practical treatise solely for Mofusul use and for the Mofussil Courts." The author in his preface to the 2nd Edition, published after the appearance of this Act (April 1873), which preface is reprinted in the last edition savs that "it is rather a new book than a new edition, the contents having increased threefold and the matter of the first edition (so far as it was then relevant) having been recast in a new shape." Ed.]

1872. An Introduction to the Evidence Act. The Principles of Judicial Evidence, by James Fitzjames Stephen, c.c.

London, 1872.

[Several times reprinted; last reprint, Calcutta, 1902. Ed.]

1872. The Indian Evidence Act (I of 1872) being a Supplement to "The Law of Evidence as administered in England and applied to India," by Joseph Gnodeve.

Calcutta, 1872.

[See ante, 1863, for author's principal treatise. Ed.]

1872 The Indian Evidence Act (I of 1872), together with an Introduction and Explanatory Notes, Rulings of the Courts and Index, by Sir Henry Stewart Cunningham, K.C.LE.

Madras, 1872.

[9th Ed. (latest), 1894.]

1873. The Law of Evidence applicable to India adapted to the Indian Evidence Act (I of 1872), by John Bruce Norton, late Advocate-General of Madras.

[8th Ed., 1873; 9th Ed., 1877. Edited by W. M. Scharlieb. The 8th and 9th Editions are apparently so styled in continuation of the Editions of the author's previous work first published in 1853 ]

1876. The Theory of Relevancy for the purpose of Judicial Evidence, by George Clifford Whitworth, Bombay Civil Service.

Bombay, 1875.

[2nd Ed., 1881. Ed.]

1882. The Indian Evidence Act with speeches delivered by the Law Member with reference to the Indian Evidence Bill, etc., by C. G. Lewis.

Calcutta, 1882.

1890. The Indian Evidence Acts (I and XVIII of 1872), with an Introduction on the Principles of Judeis! Evidence and Commentaries, by William Griffith, Berrister-at-Law

London, 1890.

1893. Estoppel by Metter of Record in Civil suits in Indic, by L. Broughton.

London, 1893.

1893. The Law of Estoppel in British India (Tagore Lew Lectures, 1893), by Arthur Cespersz.

Calcutta, 1893.

[A second edition was published in 1896 under the title "Estoppel by representation and Res Judicata." Ed.]

1894. The Indian Evidence Act with notes, illustrative cases and other explanatory remarks and comments, etc., by Kishori Lall Sarkar, M.A., B.L. Caleutta.

[2nd Fd., 1894. Quere date of 1st Edition. Ed.]

1804. The Case-noted Evidence Act, by Bijay Keseb Mitra and Ashutosh Sirkar,  ${\tt B.L.}$

Calcutta, 1894.

1894. A treatise on the Law of Res Judicata, by Hukm Chand.

London, 1894.

Printed at Bombay. Ed.7

Courts and Index, by Tarapada Banerii, B.L.

The Law of Evidence in British India with Notes, etc., by A. C. Mitra.

Calcutta, 1895.

1898. The Indian Evidence Act (No. I of 1872 as amended by Act XVIII of 1872), together with an Introduction and Explanatory Notes, Rulings of the

Calcutta, 1896

1897. The Indian Evidence Act with notes, by Sir William Markby, K.C.I.E., late a Judge of the High Court of Judicature at Calcutta; Reader in Indian Law in the University of Oxford.

London, 1897

(B) CLASSIFICATION BY NAMES OF AUTHORS

NOTE.—For the works of the authors, see the entry given in the previous list against the date mentioned in this.

(AUTHORS OF WORK ON THE ENGLISH, SCOTCH, AND AMERICAN LAWS OF EVIDENCE.)

Abbott, 1891, 1895. Anonymous, 1735, 1761. Bigelow, 1872. Bradner, 1898. Browne, 1893 Burrill, 1868. Cababé, 1888. Dickson, 1855. Espinasse, 1825 Garde, 1830. Gilbert, 1756. Glassford, 1820. Gray, 1885. Greenleaf, 1842. Gresley, 1836. Hagan, 1894. Hageman, 1889. Harris, 1892. Harrison, 1825. James, 1889. Jelf. 1898. Jones, 1896. Joy, 1842. , Lawson, 1886. Macklin, 1895. M'Kinnon, 1812. MacNally, 1802. Peake, 1801.

Bentham, 1825, 1827. Best, 1844, 1849, 1880. Phillimore, 1850. Phillips, 1814, 1879. Phipson, 1892. Powell, 1856. Ram. 1861 Rapalje, 1887. Reynolds, 1883. Rice, 1892. Rogers, 1883. Roscoe, 1827, 1835. Sichel, 1887. Starkie, 1824. Stephen, 1876. Straker, 1899. Swift, 1810. Tait. 1834. Thayer, 1892, 1896, 1898. Taylor, 1848. Warner, 1887. Wharton, 1877, 1880, Wigmore, 1904. Wigram, 1831. Will, 1896. Williams, 1895. Wills, 1838, 1894 Wood, 1886.

(AUTHORS OF WORKS ON THE LAW OF EVIDENCE IN INDIA.) .

Banerjee, 1896. Broughton, 1893. Caspersz, 1893. Cunningham, 1872. Field, 1867. Goodeve, 1862, 1872. Griffiths, 1890. Hukm Chand, 1894. Kindersley, 1862. Lewis, 1882. Markby, 1897. Mitra (A. C.), 1895. Mitra and Sircar, 1894. Norton, 1858, 1877. Sirkar, 1894 Stephen, 1872. Whitworth, 1875.

(C) CLASSIFICATION BY SUBJECTS TREATED OF.

NOTE. - For the works of the authors, see the entry given in the Chronological List against the date mentioned in this.

HISTORY OF THE LAW OF EVIDENCE.

Phillimore, 1850

GENERAL WORKS ON THE LAW OF EVIDENCE.

Anonymous, 1735, 1761. Bradner, 1895, 1827. Bentham, 1825, 1827. Best, 1849. Dickson, 1855. Garde, 1830. Gilbert, 1756. Gilassford, 1820. Gireenleaf, 1842. Harrison, 1825. Jones, 1896. W Kinnon, 1812. Peake, 1801. Phillips, 1814. Phipson, 1892. Powell, 1856 Ram, 1861 Reynolds, 1883. Rice, 1892. Starke, 1824. Straker, 1899. Swift, 1819 Stephen, 1876. Tart, 1834 Taylor, 1848.

Taylor, 1848. Thayer, 1892, 1896, 1898. Whatton, 1877, 1880. Wigmore, 1904. Wills, 1894.

Wood, 1886.

EVIDENCE IN COURTS OF EQUITY,

Gresley, 1836.

NISI PRIUS EVIDENCE,

Abbott, 1891, 1895. Espinasse, 1825. Peake, 1801, Roscoe, 1827.

EVIDENCE IN CRIMINAL CASES.

Burrill, 1868. Jelf, 1898. MacNally, 1802. Rice, 1892. Roscoe, 1835. Wharton, 1880.

RELEVANCY (See .1ct I of 1872, ss. 5-16)
Whitworth, 1875,

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE

Burrill, 1868. Philips, 1879.

Will, 1896. Wills, 1838. CONFESSIONS AND CHALLENGE OF JURORS (See Act 1 of 1872, sq. 24-30), Joy, 1842.

Baddely (religions), 1865.

Note.—See also works on Criminal Evidence.

EXPERT AND OPINION EVIDENCE (See Act I of 1872, ss. 45-51).

Harris, 1892. James, 1889. Lawson, 1886. Rogers, 1883.

EVIDENCE ON COMMISSION.

Hume, Williams & Macklin, 1895

PRESUMPTIONS (See .1ct I of 1872, 88. 79-90, 101-114).

Best, 1844.

Burrill, 1868. Lawson, 1886.

Note.-The work "Mathews on Presumptive Evidence" has not come into the editor's hands.

EXTRINSIC EVIDENCE AS AFFECTING DOCUMENTS.

(See Act I of 1872, as 91-100.)

Wigram, 1831. Browne, 1893.

BURDEN OF PROOF (See Act I of 1892, ss 101-111)

Best. 1880.

Lawson, 1886.

Bigelow, 1872. Cababé, 1888.

Caspersz, 1893. Everest and Strode, 1884.

Hukm Chand, 1894.

WITNESSES (See Act I of 1872, ss. 118-166).

ESTOPPEL (See Act I of 1872, ss. 115-117)

Best, 1849. Rapalje, 1887. Ram, 1861. Revnolds, 1883

Sichel. 1897.

PRIVILEGED COMMUNICATIONS (See Act I of 1872, ss. 121—132). Hageman, 1889

> RIGHT TO BEGIN AND REPLY. Best, 1880.

> > HANDWRITING. Hagan, 1894

xcvi BIBLIOGRAPHY

IDENTIFICATION.

Harris, 1892.

Ram, 1861.

COMMUNICATION BY TELEGRAPH.

Gray, 1885.

EVIDENCE UNDER THE NEW YORK CODE.

Warner, 1887.

TEXT-BOOKS ON INDIAN LAW OF EVIDENCE PRIOR TO ACT I OF 1872

Field, 1867. Kindersley, 1862. Goodeve, 1862.

Norton, 1858.

COMMENTARIES ON THE INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT (Act I of 1872).

Banerji, 1896. Broughton, 1893. Capersz, 1893. Lewis, 1882. Markby, 1897. Mitra (A. C.), 1859. Mitra (B. K.), and Sirkat, 1894.

Cunningham, 1872. Field, 1873. Goodeve, 1872. Griffiths, 1890.

Norton, 1873. Sarkar, 1894. Stephen, 1872.

Whitworth, 1875.

THE

LAW OF EVIDENCE

APPLICABLE TO

BRITISH INDIA.

GENERAL INTRODUCTION.

PRELIMINARY.

The substantive law of this country defines the rights, duties and habilities gratem in a caretrainment of which is the purpose of every judicial proceeding. The Cristian proceeding the section of that law is contained in the Indian Penal Code, as also in various special and local laws dealing with the subject. The substantive civil law of Indian has not as yet of the Indian personal law is the presental law is not as yet of the Indian personal law is not exists, the Courts are enjoined to act according to justice, equity and good adjective law, logically defined, is the sufficient reason for assenting to a proposition as true.(1) Practically considered, it is the establishment of facts in issue (ascertained in each particular case by the pleadings and settlement of issues) by proper legal means to the satisfaction of the Court.(2) This is done which is to all legal practice it may be concerned about. evidence" are distinguished in thus; that proof is the effect of result of evalence, while evidence is the medium of proof. (3) The facts out of which the rights and habilities arise must be determined correctly. Facts which come in question in Courts of justice are enquired into and determined in precisely the same way as doubtful or disputed facts are enquired into and determined by men in general except so far as positive law has interposed with rules to secure impartiality and accuracy of decision or to exclude collateral mischief likely to result from the investigation. (4) Some portions of the law of Evidence such as those which deal with the relevancy of facts are intimately connected with the whole theory of human

<sup>(1)</sup> Wharton, Ev., § 1, id., Cr. Ev., § 2. (2) Best, Ev., § 10.

<sup>(3)</sup> Ib. W. LE

<sup>(4)</sup> Is § 2: Whether all these rules are effective for the purpose for which they were enacted or are necessary is of course another question.

xevi BIBLIOGRAPHY

IDENTIFICATION.

Harris, 1892. Ram, 1861

COMMUNICATION BY TELEGRAPH.

Gray, 1885. EVIDENCE UNDER THE NEW YORK CODE.

Warner, 1887.

TEXT-BOOKS ON INDIAN LAW OF EVIDENCE PRIOR TO ACT I OF 1872

Field, 1867. Goodeve, 1862. Kindersley, 1862. Norton, 1858.

COMMENTARIES ON THE INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT (Act I of 1872).

 Banerji, 1896.
 Lewis, 1882

 Broughton, 1893.
 Markby, 1897.

 Caperze, 1893.
 Mitra (A. C.), 1859.

 Cunningham, 1872.
 Mitra (B. K.), and Sirkar, 1894.

Field, 1873. Norton, 1873.

Goodeve, 1872. Sarkar, 1894.

Griffiths, 1890. Stephen, 1872.

Whitworth, 1875.

LAW OF EVIDENCE

APPLICABLE TO

BRITISH INDIA.

GENERAL INTRODUCTION.

PRELIMINARY.

The substantive law of this country defines the rights, duties and habilities Evidence the ascertainment of which is the purpose of every judicial proceeding. The Cri-branch of adjective minal branch of that law is contained in the Indian Penal Code, as also in various jaw. special and local laws dealing with the subject. The substantive civil law of India has not as ye of the Indian ha and in the special provi-

personal law sion exists, the Courts are enjoined to act according to justice, equity and good conscience. Adjective law defines the pleading, procedure and proof by which the substantive law is applied in practice. It is the machinery by which that law is set and kept in motion. The rules relating to pleading and procedure are contained in the Civil and Criminal Procedure Codes Proof, the remaining branch of adjective law, logically defined, is the sufficient reason for assenting to a proposition as true (1) Practically considered, it is the establishment of facts in issue (ascertained in each particular case by the pleadings and settlement of issues) by proper legal means to the satisfaction of the Court.(2) This is done which is to all legal practice it may be concerned about.

proof.(3) The facts out of wh determined correctly. Facts which come in question in Courts of justice are enquired into and determined in precisely the same way as doubtful or disputed facts are enquired into and determined by men in general except so far as positive law has interposed with rules to secure impartiality and accuracy of decision or to exclude collateral mischief likely to result from the investigation.(4) Some portions of the law of Evidence such as those which deal with the relevancy of facts are intimately connected with the whole theory of human knowledge and with logic as applied to human conduct (1) Other rules are of a technical character designed to secure the objects mentioned or are based on principles of general policy.

(i) Wharton, Ev., § 1, id., Cr. Ev., § 2. (2) Best. Ev . $ 10.

<sup>(3) 16.</sup>

The ambiguity of the word "evidence" has given rise to varying definitions. Bentham used it in its broadest sense when he defined it as " any matter of fact the effect, tendency, or design of which is to produce in the mind a persuasion affirmative or disaffirmative of the existence of some other matter of fact. "(2) is, however, clear that the term as used in municipal law must have a very much the maniner It is manifest that every fact, some having, it may be, but t be adduced. Courts are so which may be given in evidence, great bulk, therefore, of the English law of Evidence consists of negative rules declaring what, as the expression runs," is not evidence"(4) In its legal and most general acceptation, "evidence" has been defined to include all the means, exclusive of mere argument, by which any alleged matter of fact, the truth of which is submitted to investigation, is established or disproved to the satisfaction According to the common definition of the California Code.

law, of ascertaining in a judicial

Judicial evidence is thus a species of the genus "evidence," and is for the · rules of thing less o the pro-

'(8) The ines how the parties are to convince the Court of the existence of that state of facts which, would establish the existence of bility affect it were severally gone into; and enquires carried on from month

This law, in so far as it is con-in the words of Rolfe, B.: (11) edly considered, is calculated to is practicable. Perhaps, if we had to the age of a thousand years, instead of sixty or seventy, it might throw light on any subject that came into dispute, if all matters which could by possi-

(1) Steph. Introd 1, 2. The same learned author (Dig 31) stated that Chief Baron Gilbert's work on the Law of Evidence (1756), the first of the recognised English text books on the subject, is founded on Locke's Essay much as his own work is founded on Mill's Logic.

<sup>(2)</sup> Benth , Jud Ev , 17.

<sup>(3)</sup> But. Jones, Ev , § 1.

<sup>(4)</sup> Steph. Introl.; these rules are closely connected with the institution of trial by fury : see Thater's cases on T'eklence, 4: and Thayer's Preliminary Treatise on Evdence at the Commen law : last I, Development of trial by Jury, and per Lord Manefield in the Berkely Pecrage raw, 4 (amp. 414. (5) I Green'eat, 1 r . 11; Eest, Fv . 1 11, p. 19: Steth, Introl . 7; as to the definition of the word as and in the Act, me Notes to a 3, good See also Steph Dig , Art I: Tavlor, Ev , § 1, and the definition given by Pro! Thayer in his cases on Evidence, p. 2 (6) Cal Code, s. 1823, See observations on the definitions given in the California Code (which are said to express and typify the judicial sentiment of the American Judiciary) in Rice's General Principles of the Law of Evidence, p 9

<sup>(7)</sup> Best, Ev., $5 34, 79. (8) Speech in Council of the Hon Mr. Stephen.

Gazette of Indea, 18th April 1871, p. 42 (Fatra-Supplement) (9) Other Acts also contain provisions relating to evidence; as to this see a. 2, post.

<sup>(10)</sup> Steph. Introd., 10

<sup>[11]</sup> In The Attorney General v. Hitchcock, 7 Erch., 91, 105,

to month as to the truth of everything connected with it. I do not say how that would be; but such a course is found to be impossible at present."(1) vided into those relating what the lating to the modus pro- law of evidence, the best that the nature of the case will admit.(3) This rule does not require the production of the greatest possible quantity of evidence, but is framed to prevent the introduction of any evidence which raises the supposition that there is better evidence behind, in the possession, or under the control, of the party, by which he might prove the same fact. The two chief applications of this principle are as follows: (a) With regard to the quid probandum, the law requires as a condition to the admissibility of evidence (either direct or circumstantial) an open and visible connection between the principal and evidentiary facts (4) If the behef in the principal fact which is to be ascertained is to be, after all, an inference from other facts, those facts must, to all events, be closely connected with the principal fact in some of certain specific modes.(5) This connection must be reasonable and proximate, not conjectural and remote. This, which is the theory of relevancy, is dealt with in the first Part of the Evidence Act. (6) The first question therefore which the law of evidence should decide is what facts are relevant and may be proved. (b) With regard to the modus probands, the law rejects derivative evidence, such as the socalled " hearsay evidence,"(7) and exacts original evidence prescribing that no evidence shall be received which shows, on its face, that it only derives its force from some other which is withheld.(8) In other words, the best endence must be given. If a fact is proved by oral evidence, it must be direct, that is to say, things seen must be deposed to by some one who says he saw them with his own eyes heard by some one who says he heard them with his own ears (9) and original documents must be produced or accounted for before any other evidence can be given of their contents.(10) In addition to the above-mentioned rules, English textwriters treat as a portion of the law of evidence the rule-that the evidence must correspond with the allegations, but it will be sufficient if the substance of the issues be proved. The rights of parties litigating must be determined secundum . allegata et probata (according to what is averred and proved). This rule has not been incorporated in the Act, as it is one, strictly speaking, rather of the law of procedure proper than of evidence.(11)

(1) See also R. v Parhhadar, 11 B H C R. 91 (1874), per West, J. "One of the objects of a law of evidence is to restrict the investigation made by Courts within the bounds presented by seneral coavernance," as to the utility of the rules, see Best, Er. § 35, et seq. Field, Er. 13. et seq. sanctions, Best, Ev., § 16, et seq. servities for insuring versarity and completences of vidence, 5, 18 51, et seq. (19).

(2) Best, Er., § 111, Mr. Stephen sael in his abore-mentioned speech of the 18th April 1871.— "The mun feature of the Bill consists in the distinction drawn by it between the relevancy of facts and the mode of proving relevant facts."

(3) Per Lord Hardsicke, Ch., in Omykand v. Berler, I. Atk., 21, 49. See Emmalathan v. Semmatha, 14 M. I. A., 570, 585 (1872); Below Endhorens v. Baboo Omroo, 13 M. I. A., 519, 527 (1870); n. c., 15 W. R., 1 P. C.; Below Gunga Persi v. Baboo Indepth, 23 W. R., 330, P. C.

(1873), Molvema Chunder v Poorno Chunder, 11 W R., 185, 167 (1869), Dinomony Deb., Luchmiput, 7 I. A., 8, 4s to the meaning of the rule, see Norton, Ev. 69, Best, Fr., pp. 70-73, 87, 88, 91-93, 36, 215, 216, 89, 431, 434, 416, 275, 489, 251, 232, Steph. Introl.

(4) Best, Er , §§ 90, 38

(5) Gazette of India, 18th April 1871 extra.

(6) v. post. Introduction to Ch. II.

(7) See Steph. Introd., 4, 6, Pest, Ev., §§ 495,

(8) Best, Ev., 3 9. Doe d. Helst v. Langfield, 16 M. & W., 497, Deed, Gilb-pt v. Rose 7 M & W., 102, 106; Mardonnell v. Evans, 11 C. B., 930.

(9) r ss. 59, 60, post. (10) r. ss. 59, 61, 64 post.

(11) See cases cited in Pell, Er. 357-369.

knowledge and with logic as applied to human conduct.(1) Other rules are of a technical character designed to secure the objects mentioned or are based on principles of general policy.

The ambiguity of the word "evidence" has given rise to varying definitions.

Bentham used it in its broadest sense when he defined it as "any matter of fact the effect, tendency, or design of which is to produce in the mind a persuasion the effect, tendency, or design of the existence of some other matter of fact. "(2) It is thave a very much aving, it may be, but red. Courts are so as there must be an end of nugation to the English law of Evidence consists of negative rules declaring what, as the expression runs, "is not evidence." (4) In its legal and most general expression runs, "is not evidence." (4) In its legal and most general acceptation, "evidence." has been defined to include all the means, exclusive atter of fact, the truth of which is do of supproved to the satisfaction se definition of the California Code, by law, of as estraining majudicial Judicial evidence is thus a species of the genus "evidence," and is for the most part nothing more than natural evidence, restrained or modified by rules of accepted box (7) "A lew of evidence properly constructed would be nothing less

fact "(6)

that state of facts which, lestablish the existence of s law, in so far as it is converted to the converted throw light on the subject in dispute, and of what is practicable. Perhaps, if we lived to the age of a thousand years, instead of sixty or seventy, it might throw light on any subject that came into dispute, if all matters which could by possibility affect it were severally gone into, and enquirings carried on from month

____

<sup>(1)</sup> Steph. Introd 1, 2 The same learned author (Dig. 3.) stated that Chief Baron Gilbert's sork on the Law of Eridence (1756), the first of the recognised English text books on the subject, is hounded on Locke's Essay much as his own work is founded on 'Mill's Logic.

<sup>(2)</sup> Benth , Jud Fv., 17

<sup>(3)</sup> Bur Jones, Er, § 1.

<sup>(4)</sup> Steph Introd., these rules are closely connected with the institution of trial by jury; see Thayer's cases on Fundance, 4; and Thaver's Preliminary Treatise on Endence at the Common law; lart I, Development of trial by Jury.

and per Lord Mansfeld in the Berkely Peeroge care, 4 Camp., 418 (5) 1 Green'ed. Lv., 11; Lest, Ev., 1 H., p. 19; Steph Jutted, 7; as to the definition of the also Steph Dig. Art 1. Taylor, Ev., § 1, and the definition given by Prof. Phaver in his cases on Fridence, p 2

(6) Cal Code, s 1421 See observations on the definitions given in the California Code (which are said to express and typify the judicial sentiment of the American Judiciary) in Rice's General Principles of the Law of Lyndence, p 9.

<sup>(7)</sup> Pest, Ev., § 34, 79.

(8) Speech in Council of the Hea Mr Stephen,

Gazette of India, 18th April 1871, p. 42 (Extra-Supplement)

(9) Other Acts also contain provisions relating to evidence, as to this see a. 2, post.

(10) Steph. Introd., 10.

<sup>(11)</sup> In The Attorney General v. Hatchcock, 7 Fach , 91, 105.

to month as to the truth of everything connected with it. I do not say how that would be; but such a course is found to be impossible at present."(1)

evidence, the best that the nature of the case will admit.(3) This rule does not require the production of the greatest possible quantity of evidence, but is framed to prevent the introduction of any evidence which raises the supposition that there is better evidence behind, in the possession, or under the control, of the party, by which he might prove the same fact. The two chief applications of this principle are as follows: (a) With regard to the guid probandum, the law requires as a condition to the admissibility of evidence (either direct or circumstantial) an open and visible connection between the principal and evidentiary facts.(4) If the behef in the principal fact which is to be ascertained is to be, after all, an inference from other facts, those facts must, to all events, be closely connected with the principal fact in some of certain specific modes.(5) This connection must be reasonable and proximate, not conjectural and remote This, which is the theory of relevancy, is dealt with in the first Part of the Evidence Act (6) The first question therefore which the law of evidence should decide is: what facts are relevant and may be proved. (b) With regard to the modus probands, the law rejects derivative evidence, such as the socalled "hearsay evidence,"(7) and exacts original evidence prescribing that no evidence shall be received which shows, on its face, that it only derives its force from some other which is withheld.(8) In other words, the best endence must be given. If a fact is proved by oral evidence, it must be direct, that is to say, things seen must be deposed to by some one who says he saw them with his own eyes things heard by some one who says he heard them with his own ears (9) and original documents must be produced or accounted for before any other evidence can be given of their contents.(10) In addition to the above-mentioned rules, English textwriters treat as a portion of the law of evidence the rule—that the evidence must ' the substance of the determined secundum ved). This rule has not , rather of the law of procedure proper than of evidence (11)

(1) See also R. v. Parkhadas, II. B. H. C. R., 91 (1874), per West, J. v. One of the objects of a law of exidence is to restrict the investigations made by Courts within the bounds prescribed by yeneral convenience; "as to the utility of the rules, ner Deet, Ev. § $35.5, et say, Field, Ev. 13, et say, sanctions, Best, Ev. § $16, et say, securities for insuring versicity and completeness of syndrom, J. $85.6, et say.

(2) Best, Ev., § 111, Mr. Stephen said in his above-mentioned aspects of the 18th April 1971 — "The mun feature of the Isil consists in the distinction drawn by it between the relevancy of facts and the mole of proving relevant facts."

(3) Per Lord Hardwicke, Ch. in Omychand v. Barler, 1 Atk., 21, 49. See Ramalalshim v. Siramala, 14 M. I. A., 570, 588 (1872); Belson Bodhacrain v. Balson Omrao, 13 M. I. A., 519, 527 (1870); s. c., 15 W. R., 1 P. C., Ealson Ganga-Persal v. Balson Indepth, 23 W. P., 390, P. C.

(1875). Molvema Chander v Poorso Chander, I. W. P., 185, 167 (1889), Dramony Debt. v. Lackmepst, 7 I A., 8, as to the meaning of the rule, see Norton, Ev., 69, Rest, Pv., pp 70-73, 87, 88, 91-93, 56, 215, 218, 431, 4414, 275, 489, 231, 232, Steph. Introl., 3, 7

(4) Ecst, Ev., §§ 90, 38.

(5) Gazette of India, 18th April 1871 supra.
(6) v post Introduction to Ch. II.

(7) See Steph Introd., 4, 6, Best, Ev , §§ 495,

(8) Best, Ev., § 9, Inc d Belsh v Langfeld, 16 M & W., 497. Dec d. Gilbert v Rose 7 M. & W., 102, 106, Macdonnell v. Ecans, 11 C. B., 930, 942

(9) r. sa, 59, 60, post. (10) r. ss. 59, 61, 61 post.

(11) See cases cited in Fiell, Er. 357-369,

knowledge and with logic as applied to human conduct.(1) Other rules are of a technical character designed to secure the objects mentioned or are based on principles of general policy.

The ambiguity of the word "evidence" has given rise to varying definitions.

The ambiguity of the word "evidence" has given rise to varying definitions.

The ambiguity of the word "evidence" has given rise to varying definitions.

"(2) It ery much y be, but ts are so organized that there must be some limit to the facts which may be given in evidence, as there must be an end of hitgation. The great bulk, therefore, of the English law of Evidence consists of negative rules declaring what, as the Expression runs, "is not evidence." (4) In its legal and most general acceptation, "evidence" has been defined to include all the means, exclusive of mere argument, by which any alleged matter of fact, the truth of which is submitted to investigation, is established or disproved to the satisfaction of the California Code, law, of ascertaining in a judicial Judicial evidence is thus a species of the genus "evidence," and is for the rules of thing less of the pro-

(8) The

the parties are to convince the Court of the existence of that state of facts which, according to the provisions of the substantive law, would establish the existence of the right or liability which they allege to exist (10). This law, in so far as it is concerned with what is receivable or not, is founded in the words of Rolfe, B.: (11). "on a compound consideration of what, abstractedly considered, is calculated to throw light on the subject in dispute, and of what is practicable. Perhaps, if we lived to the age of a thousand years, instead of sixty or seventy, it might throw help to any subject that came into dispute, if all matters which could by possibility affect it were severably gone must; and enquires carried on from month

<sup>(1)</sup> Steph. Introl. 1, 2 The same learned author (Dip xi) stated that Chief Baron Gilbert's work on the Jaw of Evidence (1786), the first of the recognised English text books on the subject, is founded on Locke's Essay much as his own work is founded on Mill's Logic.

<sup>(2)</sup> Benth , Jud Fv , 17.

<sup>(3)</sup> Bur Jones, Ev. 4 1.

<sup>(4)</sup> Steph Introl , these rules are closely connected with the institution of trial by jury; see Thater's cases on Erstence, 4; and Thater's

Theorie cases on Eridence, 4; and Inaxer's Preliminary Treatise on Eridence at the Common Law: I art I. Development of trial by Jury, and per Lord Mansfeld in the Berkely Pecrope case, 4 Camp. 414

<sup>(5)</sup> I Green'est, Lv., 41; Best, Ev., 411; p. 19; htelb. latrod. 7. as to the definition of the

also Steph Dig. Art I Taylor, Lv. § 1, and the definition given by Prof Thayer in his cases on Evidence, p. 2 (6) Cal. Code, s 1823. See observations on the definitions given in the Cabifornis Code (which are said to express and typify the judicial sentiment of the American Judiciary) in Rice's General Principles of the Law of Paylors and a senting

Principles of the Law of Evidence, p. 9 (7) Pest, Ev., $131, 79

<sup>(8)</sup> Speech in Council of the Hon. Mr. Stephen, Gartte of India, 18th April 1871, p. 42 (Extra-Supplement)

Supplement)
(9) Other Acts also contain provisions relating to evidence, as to this see a. 2, post.

<sup>(10)</sup> Steph. Introd , 10.

<sup>(11)</sup> In The Attorney-General v. Hstchcock, 7 Pich., 91, 105.

l character of the

to a fact, which he states he saw, must either speak truly, or must have invented his story, or it must be sheer delusion. Not so with respect to negative evidence; a fact may have taken place in the very sight of a person who may not have observed it; and if he did observe may have forgotten it."(1) As a general rule, witnesses should be weighed not numbered.(2) More weight should be attached which are so easily ot properly weigh prisoners.(4)

The Act in many of its sections leaves matters dealt with thereby to the discre- Judicial 1 /51 11 15 • • ١. 1.

public policy. The right discretion is not seize quid sit justum, but seize per legem, as Coke insisted.(7)"

The English system of Judicial evidence is comparatively of very modern date. (8) The English Its progress is marked by the discarding of those restrictions of scholastic system. jurisprudence which firstly compelled much that was material to be excluded from the issue and then when the issue was thus arbitrarily narrowed shut out much evidence that was relevant and attached to the evidence received certain arbitrary where natters.

(1) The passage in quotation marks is per Sir H. Jenner, in Chambers The Queen's Proctor, 2 Curt , 415, 434; see also Williams v. Hall, 1 Curt , 606-(2) See notes to s 134, post (3) Mecr Usdoollah v Breby Imaman, 1 M I A.

42, 43 (1836) (4) R v. Kalu Mal, 7 W R , Cr , 103 (1867)

see further, notes to s 165, post

(5) See so 32, 33, 39, 58, 60, 66, 73, 86-88, 90, 114, 118, 135, 136, 142, 148, 150, 151, 154-156, 159, 162, 164-166.

(6) Per Lord Mansfield in Wille's case, 4 Burrough's Rep., 2539, cited in Harbans Sahas v

Blairo Pershad, 5 C., 259, 265 (1979) (7) R v. Chagan Dayaram, 14 B , 331, 341, 352 per Jardine, J. (1890); Best, Er., § 86.

(8) Best, Ev., 8§ 109, 110 See Phillimore's History and Principles of the Law of Evidence (1850), pp. 120 et seq.

(9) Wharton, Fv , § 5. (10) See remarks of Lord Coleralge, C. J., in Blake v A'bion Life Assurance Co., 4 C. P D. 109 (1878) " In any but an English Court and to the mind of any but an English lawyer the controversy whether this evidence is or is not evidence which a Court of Justice should receive would seem I think supremely ridiculous because every one would say that the evidence was most cocent and material to the plaintiff's claim."

(11) Per Wills, I , in Hennessy v Wright, L. R. 21 Q B D, 518 (1898)

(12) Per Lord Colerndge, C. J , in Blate v. Albion Life Assurance Co , L. R , 4 C P D , 109 (1878). adding - Not, of course, matters of mere prejudice por anything open to real, moral or sensible objection, but all things which fairly throw light on the case "

(13) R v Mons Puna, 16 B., 661, 669 (1892) : per Jardine, J., citing Romesh (hunder Mitter and Field, JJ , and are cases cited, post

(14) The Collector of Goralibur v. Palabiliary 12 A., 26 (1889).

The law of evidence thus determines —(a) The relevancy of facts,(1) or what sort of facts may be proved in order to establish the existence of the right, duty, or hability defined by substantive law. (b) The proof of facts,(2) that is, what sort of proof is to be given of those facts. (c) The production of proof of relevant facts,(3) that is, who is to give it and how its to be given; and the effect of improper admission or rejection of evidence(4) (see post) ficiency evidence.

> syond reasonable doubt. The circumproof can never be previously defined; stible is their sufficiency to satisfy the whin that he would venture to act upon t concern and importance to his own view of the weight > > recise rules as the onsiderations upon interests.(5) which should admissibility

the sufficiency of evidence have no place in the Act.

The weight of evidence cannot be regulated by precese rules as the admissibility of evidence may be(7) it depends on rules of common-sense,(8) and the weight of the aggregate of many such paeces of evidence taken together is very much greater than the sum of the weight of each such prece of evidence taken separately,(9) The Draft Bill contained the following section, which, though it was not thought necessary to retain it in the Act, must still be borne in ruind: "when any fact is hereinafter delared to be relevant, it is not intended to indicate in any way the scroph, if any, which the Court shall attach to it, this being a matter solely for the discretion of the Court." So also the land to the court of the court is not meant that it is to the court of the court. The bill, sand:

"" the most meant that it is not mea deciding authority may consider due, shall be allowed to it." In this connection a tew dicta of general application may be here (ited. When one wintess deposes to a certain fact having occurred, and another witness, stating that he was present

<sup>(1)</sup> Evidence Act, Part I, v. post, a 3, and Introduction to Chapter IL

<sup>(2)</sup> Fridence Act, Part II, v. post and Introduction to Part II.

<sup>(3)</sup> Evidence Act, Part III; see Introduction to this Part, post.

<sup>(4)</sup> Steph. Introd , II. (5) Greenleaf, Ev , 1 2.

<sup>(6)</sup> See Faquharon v. Duvarlanati, 8 B. L. R., (50), 509 (1871); Lord Advance v. Lord Blantyre, L. R., 4 App. Car, 729, R. v. Mol Blab Gera, 21 W. R., Cr. 13, 19 (1874); Townsend v. Strangroom 6 Yes, 333, 371; C'Rorle v. B. Lingbrole, L. R., 2 B. L., 837, Best, Ev., § 81.

<sup>(7)</sup> Farquharom v. Durarlamath, 8 B. L. R., 504,508 (1871); Best. Pr., § 81.

<sup>(8)</sup> Lord Advocate v. Lord Litratyre, L. R., 4 App. Cas., 792, per Lord Blackburn: "For weighcas be no canon. Each caso presents its own prevularities, and common-news and shrewdoes must be brought to lear upon the fact elected in every case, which a Judge of fact in this country, darkbarging the functions of a jury in Fagland, has to weigh and decide upon "R. v. Machia, bas to weigh and decide upon "R. v. Machia, Gir., 21 W. R. Cr., 13, 19 (1874). "This moconveners," as just filled in The monant v. Strang-room, 62 i.e., 333, 331), "belongs to the simulation of prefer that the musts of different men will differ upon the result of the evidence, which may lead to different men may lead to different discussion super the same case," See also remarks of Lord Blackburn in O'Rorle v. Delugoples, 1 R., 28 IL., 837, R., 281.

<sup>(9)</sup> Lord Advocate v. Lord Elantyre, supra, 792.
(10) Deby Persod v. Doulut Singh, 3 M. I. A., 317, 257 (1811); a. c. 6 W. R. (P. C., 53; Wills' Circ. Iv., 290.

to a fact, which he states he saw, must either speak truly, or must have invented his story, or it must be sheer delusion. Not so with respect to negative evidence; a fact may have taken place in the very sight of a person who may not have observed it; and if he did observe may have forgotten it."(1) As a general rule, attached

so easily ly weigh or of the prisoners.(4)

The Act in many of its sections leaves matters dealt with thereby to the discre-Judicial tion of the Court. (5) means discre-discretion public policy. The right discretion is not scire quid sit justum, but scire per legem, as Coke insisted (7)"

The English system of Judicial evidence is comparatively of very modern date.(8) The Englis. Its progress is marked by the discarding of those restrictions of scholastic System. jurisprudence which firstly compelled much that was maternal to be excluded from the issue and then when the issue was thus arbitrarily narrowed shut out much evidence that was relevant and attached to the evidence traceved certain arbitrary systems might operate to exclude, are, under the Act, to be taken into consideration only in judging of the value to be allowed to evidence when admitted."(13) Accordingly, where a Judge is in doubt as to the admissibility of a particular piece of evidence, he should declare in favour of admissibility rather than of non-admissibility (14) The principle of evilusion enacted by the fifth section of this Act should

<sup>(1)</sup> The passage in quotation marks is per Sir H Jenner, in Chambers v The Queen's Proctor, 2 Curt, 417, 434, see also Williams v Hall, 1 Curt, 606-

<sup>(2)</sup> See notes to a 134, post
(3) Meer Usdoollah v Beeby Imaman, 1 M I A.

<sup>42, 43 (1836).</sup> (4) R v. Kalu Mal, 7 W R, Cr, 103 (1867)

see further, notes to s 165, post
(5) See sa 32, 33, 39, 58, 60, 66, 73, 86—88,

<sup>90, 114, 118, 135, 136, 142, 148, 150, 151, 154—</sup> 156, 159, 162, 164—166. (6) Per Lord Mansfield in Wille's case, 4 Burrough's Rep., 2539, cited in Hartans Sahas v. Blairo Pershad, 5 C., 259, 265 (1979) (7) R v. Chagan Dayaram, 14 B., '331, 341, 352 per Jardine, J. (1890); Best, Er., § 86.

(8) Best, Ev., §§ 100, 110 See Philhmore's
History and Principles of the Law of Evidence

<sup>(1850),</sup> pp. 122, et seq.
(9) Wharton, Fr., § 5.
(10) See remarks of Lord Coleradge, C. J., in Blake v. Albom Life. Assurance Co., 4. C. P. D. 100 [1878]. In any bot an. English Court and to the mind of any but an English Court and the mind of any but an English lawyer the controvery whether this evidence is or as not endoured which a Court of lattice abould receive would seem which a Court of lattice abould receive would seem which a Court of lattice abould receive would see when the court of lattice about a court of lattice and the seem of the court of lattice and material to the plantiff sclaim."

<sup>(11)</sup> Per Wills, I., in Hennessy v. Wright, L. R., 21 O. B. D., 518 (1888)

<sup>(12)</sup> Per Lord Coloradge, C. J., in Blake v. Albom Life Assertance Co. J. P., 4 C. P. D., 109 (1878), adding — "Not, of course, matters of mere prejudice nor anything open to real, moral or sensible objection, but all things which fairly throw light on the case."

<sup>(13)</sup> R v Moss Puna, 16 B., 661, 668 (1892); per Jardine, J., citing Romesh Chunder Hitter and Field, JJ., and see cases cited, post.

<sup>(14)</sup> The Collector of Gurakhpur v. Palabilhars, 12 A., 26 (1889).

The law of evidence thus determines:—(a) The relevancy of facts,(1) or what sort of facts may be proved in order to establish the existence of the right, duty, or liability defined by substantive law.

(b) The production of proof of relevant to be given; and the effect of impro-

Sufficiency of evidence.

that conviction in matters of the highest concern and importance to his own interests (5) The effect of evidence, considered from the point of view of the weight which should be attached to it, cannot be regulated by precise rules as the admissibility of evidence may be (6) For these reasons considerations upon the sufficiency of evidence have no place in the Act.

The weight of evidence cannot be regulated by precise rules as the admissibility of evidence may be(7) it depends on rules of common-sense,(8) and the weight of the aggregate of many such pieces of evidence taken together is very much greater than the sum of the weight of each such piece of evidence taken separately,(8) The Draft Bill contamed the following section, which, though it was not thought necessary to retain it in the Act, must still be bornen mind: "when any fact is hereinafter declared to be relevant, it is not intended to indicate in any way the weight, if any, which the Court shall attach to it, this being a matter solely for the discretion of the Court." So also the Law Commissioners, in the second paragraph of their Draft Bill, sand "Whenever any evidence is said to be admissible, it is not meant that it is to be regarded as conclusive, but only that the weight, if any, which the deciding authority may consider due, shall be allowed to it." In this connection a few dicta of general application may be here cited. When one witness deposes

as present her things "Upon a deposing

(1) Evidence Act, Part I; v post, s. 3, and Introduction to Chapter II.

(2) I vulence Act, Part II, v. post and Introduction to Part II.

(3) Evidence Act, Part III; see Introduction to this Part, post

(4) Steph. Introd , 11

(5) Greenleaf, Ev., § 2.

See Furpharene v. Dearlanath, 8 B. L. R.
 LOS (1871); Lord Advorde v. Lord Enarger,
 L. R., 4 App. Cas. 702, R. v. Modub Ger.
 W. R., Cr. 13, 19 (1874); Townsend v. Etrangroom 6 Ver.
 333, 334, O'Rote v. Edingbroke,
 L. R., 2 H. L., 837, Bert, Let.
 F. S. T. Hander, C. E. Grander,

(7) Farquharom v. Duarlanath, 8 B L. R., 504,504 (1971); Best Er., § 81.

(8) Lord Advocate v. Lord Linalyre, L. R. 4 App. Cas., 792, per Lord Blackburn. "For weighing evidence and drawing inferences from it, there can be no eason. Each case prevents its own procularities, and commonscence and threadness must be brought to lear upon the facts chotted in every case, which a Judge of fact in this country, discharging the functions of a jury in Figliand, has to weigh and decide upon "R v Maddudon, 21 W. I. Cr. J. J. D (1874). "This inconvenience," any Lord Edon in Towners 1. Kroaproom (6 Ver. 23.33, 341, "Velong to the administration of patter, that the minds of different men will differ upon the results of the extent cs, which may lead to different decisions upon the same case."

(10) Deby Persad v. Doulut Singh, 3 M. I. A., 317, 357 (1841); c. 6 W. R. (P. C., 55, Walls* Circ. Er., 290

to a fact, which he states he saw, must either speak truly, or must have invented his story, or it must be shere delusion. Not so with respect to negative evidence; a fact may have taken place in the very sight of a person who may not have observed it: and if he did observe may have forgotten it."(1) As a general rule, witnesses should be weighed not numbered.(2) More weight should be attached to the evidence given of men's acts than of their alleged words which are so easily mistaken or misrepresented.(3) A Judge, however, cannot properly weigh evidence, who starts with an assumption of the general bad character of the prisoners.(4)

The Act in many of its sections leaves matters dealt with thereby to the discre-judicial discretion public policy. The right discretion is not scire quid sit justum, but scire per legem, as Coke insisted (7)"

" The English

the issue and then when the issue was thus arbitrarily narrowed shut out much evidence that was relevant and attached to the evidence received certain arbitrary being itself an application of these principles. "Under the Evidence Act admissibility is the rule and exclusion the exception, and circumstances which under other ity.(14) The principle of exclusion enacted by the fifth section of this Act should

m - - - - -

<sup>(1)</sup> The passage in quotation marks is per Sir H. Jenner, in Chambers v The Queen's Proctor, 2 Curt, 415, 434, see also Williams v Hall, 1 Curt, 606-

<sup>(2)</sup> See potes to s 134, rod (3) Meer Uedoollah v Beeby Imaman, 1 M I A,

<sup>42, 43 (1836)</sup> (4) R v. Kalu Mal, 7 W R, Cr, 103 (1867)

see further, notes to s 165, post
(5) See sa. 32, 33, 39, 59, 60, 66, 73, 85—88,
90, 114, 118, 135, 136, 142, 148, 150, 151, 154—

<sup>156, 159, 162, 184-166</sup> (6) Per Lord Mansfield in Wille's case, 4 Bur-

Rep., 2339, cited in Harbans Sahas v
 Ebairo Petahad, 5 C., 259, 263 (1879)
 R v. Chagan Dayaram, 14 B., 331, 344, 352 per Jardine, J. (1890); Best, Ev., § 86.

<sup>(8)</sup> Best, Ev., §§ 100, 110 See Phillimore's History and Principles of the Law of Evidence (1850), pp. 122, et seq.

<sup>(9)</sup> Wharton, Fr., § 5. (10) See remarks of Lord Coleradge, C. J., 13

Blake v Albon Life Assurance Co., 4 C. P. D., 109 (1878). "In any but an Englah Court and to the mind of any but an Englah leaver the controversy whether this evidence is or is not evidence which a Court of Justice should receive would seem I think supremely reliculous because cerey one would say that the evidence was most cogent and material to be plantiff is claim.

<sup>(11)</sup> Per Wills, J., in Hennessy v. Wroghl, L. R., 21 Q. B. D., 518 (1858)

<sup>(12)</sup> Per Lord Colonder, C. J., in Elake v. Allows Lyle Assurance Co., L. P., 4 C. P. D., 109 (1878), adding — "Not, of course, matters of mere prepulses nor anything open to real, moral or sensible objection, but all things which fairly throw light on the case."

<sup>(13)</sup> R v Mona Pana, 16 R., 661, 668 (1892); per Jardine, J., esting Romesh Chunder Mitter and Field, JJ., and see cases cited, post.

<sup>(14)</sup> The Collector of Goralipus v. Palabilhari, 12 A., 25 (1889).

The law of evidence thus determines:—(a) The relevancy of facts,(1) or what sort of facts may be proved in order to establish the existence of the right, duty, or lability defined by substantive law. (b) The proof of facts,(2) that is, what sort of proof is to be given of those facts. (c) The production of proof of relevant facts, (3) that is, who is to given and how it is to be given; and the effect of improper admission or rejection of evidence(4) (see post).

Sufficiency of evidence By roved

CHINAL ALTERNATION FAILERS

beyond reasonable doubt The circumi proof can never be previously defined; ptible is their sufficiency to satisfy the mind of an ordinary man, and so to convince him that he would venture to act upon that conviction in matters of the highest concern and importance to his own interests (5) The effect of evidence, considered from the point of view of the weight which should be attached to it, cannot be regulated by precise rules as the admissibility of evidence may be.(6) For these reasons considerations upon the sufficiency of evidence have no place in the Act.

The weight of evidence cannot be regulated by precise rules as the admissibility of evidence may be(7). It depends on rules of common-sense,(8) and the weight of the aggregate of many such preces of evidence taken together is very much greater than the sum of the weight of each such prece of evidence the precision of the weight of each such prece of evidence thin the Act, must still be bornedeclared to be relevant, it is not any, which the Court shall attach etion of the Court." So also the Law Commissioners, in the second paragraph of their Draft Bill, said:

"Whenever any evidence is said to be admissible it is not meant that it is to be regarded as conclusive, but only that the weight, if any, which the deciding authority may consider due, shall be allowed to it." In this connection a few dicta of general application may be here cited. When one witness deposes

<sup>(1)</sup> Evidence Act, Part I, v. post, s 3, and Introduction to Chapter II. (2) I'vidence Act, Part II, v post and Introduction to Part II.

<sup>(3)</sup> Evidence Act, Part III; see Introduction to this Part, past

<sup>(4)</sup> Steph. Introd , II.

<sup>(5)</sup> Greenleaf, Ev., 1 2.

<sup>(6)</sup> See Farquharen v. Dvarkanath, 8 V. L. R. (20), 608 (1871); Lord Advocate v. Lord Hantyre, L. R., 4 App. Cas., 702; F. v. Mathod Giri, 21 W. R., Cr. 13, 19 (1874); Townsend v. Krangreom 8 Ver., 233, 331; O'Reale v. Bolingbrote, L. R., 2 H. L., 837; Ivat, Iv., §81.

<sup>(7)</sup> Farquharem v. Duarkanath, S.B. L. R., 201209 (1971), Post Ev. § 81

<sup>(4)</sup> Lord Advocate v. Lord Llastyre, L. R., 4 App Cas., 702, per Lord Blackburn. "For weighing systemes and drawing inferences from it, there can be no canon. Each case presents its own previousities, and common stems and shrewdares must be brought to bear upon the fact elected in except case, which a Julge of fact in this country, the harging the functions of a jury in England, has to weigh and decide upon "R. v. Modalla," On., 21 W. 12, Cr. 12, 19 (1874). "This inconvenence," support Edition in Oversearch v. Suragrovions (8 v.s. 233, 231). "belongs to the administration of justice, that the must of different men will differ upon the result of the exidence, which may lead to different the country upon the same case," See also remarks of Lond Blackburn in O'Roste v. Blassploved, E. R. 21 L. S. 25.

Lord Advarde v. Lord Elantyre, supra, 792.
 Deby Persad v. Doubut Singh, 3 M. I. A., 317, 357 (1841); a. c. 6 W. R. (P. C., 53, Wills Circ. Iv., 290.

to a fact, which he states he saw, must either speak truly, or must have invented his story, or it must be sheer delusion. Not so with respect to negative evidence; a fact may have taken place in the very sight of a person who may not have observed it; and if he did observe may have forgotten it."(1) As a general rule, which are so easily of properly weigh evidence, who starts with an assumption of the general bad character of the prisoners.(4)

The Act in many of its sections leaves matters dealt with thereby to the discre- judicial tion of the Court of the many deeper discretion

public policy. The right discretion is not scire quid sit justum, but scire per legem, as Coke insisted. (7)"

The English system of Judicial evidence is comparatively of very modern date.(8) The English Its progress is marked by the discarding of those restrictions of scholastic **partern*. jurisprudence which firstly compelled much that was material to be excluded from the issue and then when the issue was thus arbitrarily narrowed shut out much evidence that was relevant and attached to the evidence received certain arbitrary valuations which the Courts were required to apply.(9) The progress has, as in all ingly, where a Judge is in doubt as to the admissibility of a particular piece of evidence, he should declare in favour of admissibility rather than of non-admissibility (14). The principle of exclusion enacted by the fifth section of this Act should 12 A., 26 (1889).

<sup>(1)</sup> The passage in quotation marks is per Sir H Jenner, in Chambers v. The Queen's Proctor, 2 Curt, 415, 434, see also Williams v. Hall, 1 Curt, 606-

<sup>(2)</sup> See notes to a 134, post.
(3) Meer Usdoollah v. Beeby Imaman, I M I A,

<sup>42, 43 (1836)</sup> (4) R. v. Kalu Mal, 7 W. R., Cr., 103 (1867)

ere further, notes to s 165, post
(5) See as 32, 33, 39, 59, 60, 66, 73, 86—88,

<sup>90, 114, 118, 135, 136, 142, 148, 150, 151, 154—</sup> 156, 159, 162, 164—166,

<sup>(6)</sup> Per Lord Mansfield in Hille's cam, 4 Burrough's Rep. 2339, cited in Harbans Sakas v Bluro Pershad, 5 C., 259, 265 (1879)
(7) R. v. Chagan Dayaram, 14 B., 231, 344, 352 per Jardine, J. (1890); Rest, Er., § 86.

(8) Best, Er., §§ 100, 110 See Phillimore's History and Principles of the Law of Evidence

<sup>(1850),</sup> pp. 122, et seq.
(9) Wharton, Fr., § 5.
(10) See remarks of Lord Colerator, C. J., 12

Blake v Albon Left Assurance Co., 4 C. P., D., 109 (1878). In any but an English Court and to the mund of any but an English Lourt and to the mund of any but an English lawyer the controvery whether this evidence is or is not expense which a Court of Justice should receive would seem to this expense of the should receive would seem to would say that the evidence was most cogenit and material to the plantiff as claim."

<sup>(11)</sup> Per Wills, J. in Hennessy v. Wright, L. R., 21 Q B D., 518 (1888)

<sup>(12)</sup> Per Lord Colvader, C. J. in Elake v. Allow Life Assurance Co., L. P., 4 C. P. D., 109 (1878), adding —"Not, of course, matters of mere prejudice nor anything open to real, moral or sensible objection, but all things which fairly throw light on the case"

<sup>(13)</sup> R v Mons Puna, 16 B., 661, 668 (1892); per Jardine, J., citing Romesh Chunder Mitter and Field, JJ. and see cases cited, post. (14) The Collector of Gordifper v. Paleldhers.

to be given; and the effect of impro-

Sufficiency of evidence. The sufficiency of evidence must be distinguished from its competency.

or, as it is also called, sufficient, evidence is intended that amount of proof which ordinarily satisfies an unprejudiced mind hey oud reasonable doubt. The circum-

are susceptible is their sufficiency to satisfy the to convince him that he would venture to act upon the highest content and importance to his own interests (b) Internet of evidence, considered from the point of view of the weight which should be attached to it, cannot be regulated by precise rules as the admissibility of evidence may be (6). For these reasons considerations upon the sufficiency of evidence have no place in the Act.

be regulated by precise rules as the admissipends on rules of common-sense, (8) and the h precess of evidence taken together is very he weight of each such prece of evidence taken separately (9) The Draft Bill contained the following section, which, it in the Act, must still be borne declared to be relevant, it is not any, which the Court shall attach etion of the Court." So also the Law Commissioners, in the second paragraph of their Draft Bill, said: "Whenever any evidence said to be admissible, it is not meant that it is to be regarded as conclusive, but only that the weight, if any, which the deciding authority may consider due, shall be allowed to it." In this connection a few dicts of general application may be here ofted. When one witness deposes

<sup>(1)</sup> Evidence Act, Part 1; v. post, s 3, and Introduction to Chapter II.

<sup>(2)</sup> I volence Act, Part II, v. post and Introduction to l'art II.

<sup>(3)</sup> Evidence Act, Part III; see Introduction to this Part, post

<sup>(4)</sup> Steph. Introd . II.

<sup>(5)</sup> Greenleaf, Fv . § 2.

<sup>(6)</sup> See Farquharen v. Dwarkanath, S. B. L. R., (50), 109 (1671); Lord Advocate v. Lord Blantye, L. R., 4 App. Cas, 772, R. v. Mohbo Gira, 21 W. R., Cr. 13, 10 (1574); Townstead v. Etrangroom 6 Ver., 233, 331; O'Rote v. Bolimprote, L. B., 2 H. L., 637; Best, f. v., § 81.

<sup>(7)</sup> Farquiarem v. Dicarkanati, S B. L. R., 504,508 (1871), Post. Ev., § 81

<sup>(8)</sup> Leef Advocate v. Leef Idealyre, L. H., 4 App. Cas., 772, per Lord Blackburn: " For weighing evidence and drawing inferences from it, there can be no canon. Lack case prevents at our prevularities, and common sense and shrewdrass must be brought to bear upon the facts elected in exercises when the brought to bear upon the facts elected in exercises. When the sense is a pary in Fingland, has to weigh and decide upon, "R. y. Madrid, Oris, 21 W. B. Cr. 12, 19 (1874). "This inconveneer," as such Eldon in Theorems of State inconveneer," as such Eldon in Theorems of State inconveneer, "State Eldon in Theorems of Administration of patters, that the made of different men will differ upon the result of the evidence, which may lead to different factors to upon the same case." See also remarks of Lard Blackburn in O'Rorke V. Elssephories, Li. 211, L., 329.

<sup>(9)</sup> Lord Advocale v. Lord Elantyre, supro, 792, (10) Deby Persod v Daulut Singh, 3 M. I. A., 317, 347 (1844); v. e. 6 W. R. (P. C., 55; Wills' Circ. Ev. 290.

al had character of the

to a fact, which he states he saw, must either speak truly, or must have invented his story, or it must be sheer delusion. Not so with respect to negative evidence ; a fact may have taken place in the very sight of a person who may not have observed it : and if he did observe may have forgotten it."(1) As a general rule, witnesses should be weighed not numbered.(2) More weight should be attached ' words which are so easily cannot properly weigh

prisoners.(4)

The Act in many of its sections leaves matters dealt with thereby to the discre-judicial rules and maxims of the law, such, for example, as those of logic or evidence, or public policy. The right discretion is not scire guid sit justum, but scire per legem, as Coke insisted.(7)"

The English system of Judicial evidence is comparatively of very modern date. (8) The English Its progress is marked by the discarding of those restrictions of scholastic system. jurisprudence which firstly compelled much that was material to be excluded from the issue and then when the issue was thus arbitrarily narrowed shut out much evidence that was relevant and attached to the evidence received certain arbitrary valuations which the Courts were required to apply.(9) The progress has, as in all

ingly, where a Judge is in doubt as to the admissibility of a particular piece of evidence, he should declare in favour of admissibility rather than of non-admissibility.(14) The principle of exclusion enacted by the fifth section of this Act should

<sup>(1)</sup> The passage in quotation marks is per Sir H. Jenner, in Chambers v. The Queen's Proctor, 2 Curt ,

<sup>415, 434;</sup> see also Williams v. Hall, 1 Curt , 606-(2) See notes to s 134, post

<sup>(3)</sup> Meer Usdoollah v Berby Imaman, 1 M I A,

<sup>42, 43 (1836)</sup> (4) R. v. Kalu Mal, 7 W. R. Cr. 103 (1867)

see further, notes to s 165, post (5) See so 32, 33, 39, 59, 60, 66, 73, 86-88,

<sup>90, 114, 118, 135, 136, 142, 148, 150, 151, 154-</sup>156, 159, 162, 164-166

<sup>(6)</sup> Per Lord Mansfield in Bille's case, 4 Burrough's Rep., 2539, cited in Harbans Sahas v Plairo Pershad, 5 C., 259, 263 (1979)

<sup>(7)</sup> R. v Chagan Dayaram, 14 B., '331, 341, 352 per Jardine, J. (1890); Best, Er., § 86.

<sup>(8)</sup> Best, Ev. §§ 109, 110 See Phillimore's History and Principles of the Law of Evidence (1850), pp. 122, et seq.

<sup>(9)</sup> Wharton, Fv., § 5.

<sup>(10)</sup> See remarks of Lord Coleralge, C. J., in

Blake v Abson Life Assurance Co. 4 C. P D. 109 (1878) "In any but an English Court and to the mind of any but an English lawyer the controversy whether this evidence is or is not evidence which a Court of Justice should receive would seem I think supremely ridiculous because every one would say that the evidence was most cogent and material to the plaintiff's claim."

<sup>(11)</sup> Per Wills, J , in Hennessy v Wright, L. R .

<sup>21</sup> Q B D , 518 (1988) (12) Per Lord Coleradge, C J , in Blake v. Albion

Life Assurance Co., L. P., 4 C. P D., 109 (1878) adding -" Not, of course, matters of mere prejudge nor anything open to real, moral or sensible objection, but all things which fairly throw light on the case."

<sup>(13)</sup> R v. Mona Puna, 16 R., 661, 668 (1892); per Jardine, J., citing Romesh Chunder Mitter and Field, JJ; and we cases cated, now, not be so applied as to shut out matters which may be essential for the ascertainment of truth.(1) The Privy Council in Ameroon issa Khatoon v. Abedoonissa Khatoon(2) said: "Objections made with the view of excluding evidence are not received with much fayour at this Board." But it must not be assumed either that all technical rules are unnecessary, or that all the rules of evidence are technical. It may be safely asserted that the enforcement of most of such technical rules as are contained in this Act is necessary, and that many other rules possess no element of technicality whatever. Thus as the Judicial Committee have also observed. "It is a cardinal rule of evidence, not one of technicality but of substance, which it is dangerous to depart from, that where written documents exist, they shall be produced as being the best evidence of their own contents." (3) And other instances might be adduced than those covered by what is technically known as "the best evidence" rule.

<sup>(14)</sup> The Collector of Goralipur v. Palabiliaria

<sup>12</sup> A., 26 (1889).

History of the law of evidence in this country.

The English rules of evidence were always followed in the Courts established by Royal Charter in the Presidency Towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay. Such. of these rules, as were contained in the Common and Statute law which prevailed in England before 1726, were introduced by the Charter of that year . some others were rules to be found in subsequent Statutes expressly extended to India; while others, again, had no greater authority than that of use and custom (4) In the Courts outside the Presidency Towns no complete rules of evidence were ever laid down or introduced by authority.(5) The law on this subject rested in a state of great indefiniteness. In the Full Bench decision of the Calcutta High Court in the case of the Queen v. Khyroolah, (6) decided in 1866, it was held that the English law of evidence was not the law of the mofussil, that at that time the Mahommedan criminal law, including the Mahommedan law of evidence, was no longer the law of the country, and that by the abolition of the Mahommedan law, the law of England was not established in its place. The molusul Courts were thus not required to follow the English law, although they were not debarred from following it where they regarded it as the most equitable.

The first Act of the Governor-General in Council which dealt with evidence, strictly so-alled, was Act X of 1885, which applied to all the Courts in British India and dealt with the proof of Acts of the Governor-General in Council.(7) This was followed by allowing actions and the council.

an Act was passed(9) for the further improvement of the law of evidence, which

(1) B. v. Addallol, 7. A. 60 (1885), see observations of the 16m Mr. Marte in moving the reference of the Evolution Dill to Commutate "Anything lake a capacious administration of the law of evidence was an evil, but it would be an equal, or pethage even a greater evil, that such strict rules of evidence should be enforced as practically to leave the Court without the material for a decision."

(2) 23 W. R., 208, 209; P. C. (1875)

(3) Dinomoyi Pedi v Roy Inchmiput, 7 I A. R. 13 (1879)

(4) Field. Ev., 15; Whitley Stokes, Anglo-Indian Codes, Vol. 11, 812. See Report of Jaw Commissioners, Appendix.

(5) liegulations made between 1797 and 1831 contained a few rules; others were desired from a vague customary law of evidence, partly drawn from the Helaya and the Hahommedan Law

Officers, others from English text-books, Whitler Stokes, II, 812, 813; and see Act XIX of 1853.

(6) B. L. R., Sup. Vol., App. 11; s. c., 6 W. R., Cr., 21, Field, Ev., 16-18; Whithe Stokes, expra, and see R. v. Ramsicums, 6 B. H. C. R., Cr., 49 (1869)

(7) Whitley Stokes, II, 817
(5) Ib, Act XIX of 1837 abolished incomprehence by reason of convection); Act V of 1840 (sfirmations), see also Acts XVIII of 1863, s. 9; M of 1872; X of 1873; Act, IV of 1860.

(affirmation), we also 4cts XVIII of 1860, a. 9; Med 1872, Xet 1872, Xet 1872, Xet 1873, Act 1X of 1869, y. 11 of 1881 (incompetence by reason of crums of the second of t

(9) Act 11 of 1835. As to this Act, see R v. Good Poss, 3 31, 271, 292 contained many provisions applicable to all Courts in British India.(1). These provisions were repealed and re-enacted with certain modifications and alterations by the present Act. While, therefore, within the P of evidence was in force, modified by certain Ac-which Act II of 1855 was the most important;

hand, had, down to 1872, hardly any fixed rules of evidence save those contained in Acts XIX of 1833 and II of 1855 (2) Before and even for some time after 1872 the lax character of the evidence in the Mofussil Courts was the subject of frequent judicial comment. (3) To remedy this unsatisfactory (4) state of the law a Draft Bill was drawn up by Her Majesty's Commissioners and introduced by Sir Henry Sumner Maine, then the Legal Member in Council. This first Draft Bill did not, however, meet with approval. A new Bill was therefore prepared by Sir James Pitzjames Stephen which was ultimately passed as Act I of 1872 (The Indian Evidence Act). This Act is based on the English law of evidence modified to suit India. (5) It is in the main in accordance with English law though, as will be seen on a reference to the Commentary, it does in several respects materially diverge from that law. (6) Together with certain Acts saved by, (7) or enacted subsequent to it, this Act contains the law on the subject of evidence now in force in British India. (8)

It has been said that with some few exceptions the Indian Evidence Act was intended to, and did, in fact, consolidate the English law of evidence; [9] that the Act itself is little more than an attempt to reduce the English law of evidence to the form of express propositions arranged in their natural order, with some modifications rendered necessary by the peculiar circumstances of It dia; [10] and that it was drawn up chiefly from Taylor on Evidence.[11] It is true that,

(4) The following Acts were subsequently passed: X of 1855 (attendance of witnesses), VIII of 1859 (tyrd Procedure, contained like the present Code provisions as to witnesses). XXV of 1860 (Chrimal Procedure, contained provisions at to witnesses, confessions, police-distrise examination of accused, and Cityl-Surgeon reports of Chemical officers, and drying declarations, which have been reenacted in the present Act or in the present Code); XV of 1669 (ev-dence of Prisonery); are Whitley Stokes, 817

(2) Whitley Stokes, 817, Field, Ev., 17, 18, 19 See Report of Law Commissioners

(2) See observations in Unide Rajahav Pemmasanu, 7 M. I. A. 128, 177 (1835) s. c. 4 W. R. P. C. 121 - Hurrechur Mojumdar v Churn Majhee.
22 W. R. 355, 356, 337 (1874): Naragunty v Fengoma, 9 M I A, 90 (1861) s. c., 1 W. F. P. C. 30, Guju Loit v. Fatch Lell, 6 C., 193 (1846) Even as late as 1881 Stuart, C J, had cause to complain Phil Kuar v Surjan Pandey,

4 A., 249, 250

(4) Ne remarks of Pavy, Council in Buswares, Lot v. Valaropal Hetarous, 7 M. L. A. 185, 185 (1878), a. c., 4 W. R., P. C., 118, Carde Ropala Permanany, 7 M. L. A. 128, 137 (1889) a. C. 314, April 1879,

(5) Report of Select Committee, "It is little more than an attempt to reduce the Fratish law of explence to the form of express perpositions trained in their natural order, with some modification, readered accessity by the peculiar curcumstances of India." Steph. Introd. 2. The differences between the Indiau and English law will be found herestier melet un the Commentary to the sections. see also Whitler Volces, p. 827, Vol. II, and Widen's Comparative Tables of English and Indian Law, 1890, p. 14. Is however pointed out lister, fundamental distinctions exist in the mode of treatment between English and Indian Law.

(6) See last note and Ranchodder Krishnadas v Bops Narhar, 10 B., 439, 442 (1986), Collector of Gorakhpur v Polathders Singh, 12 A, 1, 37 (1889), R v. Abdullah, 7 A, 440, 401

(8) See note to a 2, pret

(7) 5 2, post

(9) Gujju Laff v Fatch I all, 6 ( , 171, 169 (1980) per Garth, C J ,

(10) Smith v Ludka Ghella, 17 B., 129, 141 (1892), per Baylev, C. J., adopting the words of Sir James F. Stephen, Introd., Ev. Act. 2.

(11) Mandershive Benopi v Ner Blayrney Spinning of Brong Company, 4 B, 205, 631 (1850), or West 3 see remarks of Jackson, J. in R v 4 480-480-480-480, 1999, 1997, 201, 7480-79 on E v, referred to in R v Pyers Lell, 4.C. L. E., 8es, 5.09, 6.39 in Lell v Jacks Lell, 6.0, 170, R v Renn Redd, 3.M., 65, R. v. Renn Brongs, 3 B, II (1852), R v Fakinga, 15 B, 272 (1873), and Emercus other cases, Mr. Nerton, 1673), and Emercus other cases, Mr. Nerton, the Act, super-data in his openion it is a merot the Act, super-data in his openion it is a merot the Act, super-data in his openion it is a mernot be so applied as to shut out matters which may be essential for the ascertainment of truth.[1] The Privy Council in Ameroonies Khatoon v. Abedooniesa Khatoon v. Abedooniesa Khatoon v. Abedooniesa Chatoniesa id: "Objections made with the view of excluding evidence are not received with much favour at this Board." But it must not be assumed either that all technical rules are unnecessary, or that all the rules of evidence are technical. It may be safely asserted that the enforcement of most of such technical rules as are contained in this Act is necessary, and that many other rules posses no element of technicality whatever. Thus as the Judicial Committee have also observed: "It is a cardinal rule of evidence, not one of technicality but of substance, which it is dangerous to depart from, that where written documents exist, they shall be produced as being the best evidence of their own contents." (3) And other instances might be adduced than those covered by what is technically known as "the best evidence" rule.

History of the law of evidence in this coun try.

The English rules of evidence were always followed in the Courts established by Royal Charter in the Presidency Towns of Cak utta. Madras and Bombay. Such of these rules, as were contained in the Common and Statute law which prevailed in England before 1726, were introduced by the Charter of that year, some others were rules to be found in subsequent Statutes expressly extended to India; while others, again, had no greater authority than that of use and custom.(4) In the Courts outside the Prasidency Towns in complete rules of evidence were ever laid down or introduced by without the Courts outside the Prasidency Towns in complete rules of evidence were ever laid great indefiniteness.

case of the Queen v. I law of evidence was no. .... or the morning, that at that thine the manufamenan follow the English law, although they were not debarred from following it where they regarded it as the most equitable.

The first Act of the Governor-General in Council which dealt with evidence, strictly so-called, was Act X of 1835, which applied to all the Courts in British an Act was passed(s) for the further improvement of the law of evidence, which

(1) R v. Abdallol, 7.A. 40 (1885), see observations of the Hon Vir Marse in moving the reference of the Eristene Bill to Committee "Anything like a capenious administration of the law of cellence was an evil, but it would be an equal, or perhaps even a greater evil, that such after raise of evilence should be enforced as practically to leave the Court without the materials for a decision."

(2) 23 W. B. 209, 200 . P. C. (1875).

Discourge Peter v. Roy Luckmipst, 7 1 A.
 15 (1879)

(4) Field, Fv. 15; Whitler Stokes, Anglo-Indian Codes, Vol. 11, 812 See Report of Law Commissioners, Appendix.

(5) Regulations made between 17'(1 and 1831 contained a lew rules; others were derived from a vague customary law of explence, partir drawn from the Helaya and the Mahommedan Law

Officers, others from English text books, Whitles Stokes, II, 812, 813; and see Act XIX of 1833,

(6) B. L. R., Sup Vol. App. 11; n. c., 6 W. R., Cr., 21, Field, Ec., 16-18; Whitley Stokes, supra, and see R. v. Ramsuami, 6 B. H. C. R., Cr., 49 (1889)

(7) Whitley Stokes, II, 813

(6) B., Act NIX of 1837 abolubed, meconprisency by raxon of conviction), Act V of 1840 (485mation); are also Acts. XVIII of 1862, a 9°: VI of 1852; X of 1873; Acts IX of 1860; VII of 1841 (nonumetrue) by reason of counce or interest); XV of 1872 (congretony of parties and other matters); Act XIX of 1872 extends of these areas of these reforms to the Civil Courts of the Part Irolia Company in the Popul Twodency.

(9) Act II of 1835 As to this Act, see R. v. Gopal Pass, 3 M. 271, 242.

containing the scheme of the law, the principles and the application of these principles to the cases of most frequent occurrence, but in respect of matters expressly provided for in the Act we must, so to speak, start from the Act and not deal with it as a mere modification of the law of evidence prevailing in England."

Questions, however, may arise as regards matters not expressly provided for in the Act. It has been held that the second section in effect prohibits the employment of any kind of evidence not specifically authorised by the Act itself,(1) and that a person tendering evidence must show that it is admissible under some one or other of the Provisions of this Act (2) It is to be regretted that the Act was not so framed as to admit other rules of evidence on points not specifically dealt with by it as was in effect done by the Commissioners in the second section of their Draft. In that case whenever omissions occur (and some do in fact occur) in the Act, recourse might be had to the present or previous law on the point existing in England or the previous rules, if any, in this country.

to the English rules if any on the point.

R.v. Abdullah, 7 A., 383, 399 (1885), Mu-hammad Allahdad v. Muhammad Ismail, 10 A., 225 (1886); R.v. Pitamber Jina, 2 B., 64 (1876) and in pext note.

<sup>(2)</sup> Lethraj Kuar v. Mahpal Singh, 7 I. A., 70 (1879); Collector of Gorathpur v. Palakdhari

Singh, 12 A., 11, 12, 19, 20, 31, 35, 43; (1839)
And see last note: Though in R. v Ashostock Chuckrbuty, 4 C., 491 (1878), it was said that where a case arises for which no positive solution can be found in the Act itself recourse may be had although the Code is, in the main, drawn on the lines of the English law of evidence, there is no reason it. (1) and indeed as already law. Moreover these dicta sections (5-16) dealing with the relevancy of facts.

Even where a matter has been expressly provided for by the Act, recourse may be had to English or American decisions it, as is not infrequently the case, the particular provision be of doubtful import owing to the obscurity or incompleteness of the language in which it has been enacted. Authority abounds for the use of the extraneous sources to which reference has been made in cases such as these.(3) As was observed by Edge, C. J., in the Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakdhari Singh(4): "No doubt cases frequently occur in India in which considerable assistance is derived from the consideration of the law of Ingland and of other countries. In such cases we have to see how far such law was founded in commonsense and on the principles of justice between man and man and may safely afford guidance to us beet."

It must not, however, be forgotten that the Indian Evidence Act is a Code when not only defines and amends but also consolidates the Law of Evidence repealing all rules other than those saved by the last portion of its second section. (5) The method of construction to be adopted in the case of such a Code has been expounded by Lord Herschell (6) in terms which have been adopted by the Privy Council (7) and cited and applied in other cases in this country. (8)

A similar rule had been previously laid down in this country with reference to the construction of this Act. In the case of the R. v. Ashootosh Chuckerbutty (9) it was said: "Instead of assuming the English Law of Evidence, and then inquiring what changes the Evidence Act has made in it, the Act should be resarded as figure of speech to askert that the 167 sections of the Act contain all that is applicable in India of the two volumes of Taylor on Evidence and that a great mass of the principles and rules which Mr. Taylor's work contains will have to be written back between the lines of the Ode.

 Ranchhoddas Kriehnadas v Bapu Marker,
 R. 430, 442 (1886), pr Surgent, C. J.: see The Collector of Corothpur v. Palaidhars, 12 A. 1, 37 (1693); R. v. Modulah, T. A., 400, 401 (1883).

(2) Re Pyare Laff, 4 C. L. R., 508, 509; R. v. Gheld, 7 A., 41 (1884); English cases irrelevant when Indian Legislature has not followed English law.

(3) See R v. 1 apram. 16 B., 433 (1892), Per. shall Singly v. Ram Pertab, 22 C., 5 (1894)] and the cases clini, post.

21 (Rosco, Ex.), R. v. Holger, Mutty Lell and Michael (1882), p. 132 (Stateseo Ev.), and p. 144 (Paley), I. B. 475, I. B. B. C. (32 (Rousell on Cheniel), I. B. 435 (Philapley Ev.); A. B.; 581 (Forselly on Ev.), B. J. R. F. B. Supertion of the Cheniel of the Cheniel of the Cheniel Vol. 422 (Northernon, Ev.), and Ev. Sept. 1882, Ph. 1994, 422 (Northernon, Ev.) and Ev. Sept. 1995, pp. 1995,

(5) The Collector of Gorakhpur v. Pulakihara, 12 A., 35 (1889); and see post

10 Bank of England v. Vagliano Brothers,
 L. R., App. Cas. (1891), 107 (at pp. 134, 145).
 In Novendra Nath v. Kamalbasini, 23 I. A., 18, 26 (1896).

(8) Profit v. Panchom Kingh, 17 B. 3v2 (1892): Familian Madalur v. The Revetary of State for India, 18 M. 31 (1894); Kondyn Chrift v. Naramakuli Chith, 20 M. 101 (1896); Lafa Sweij v. Glab Chend, 28 C., 157 (1991). La subject will be found fully discussed in the Author's Cvil Proceedings.

(9) 4 C., 941 (1878); per Jackson, J.

containing the scheme of the law, the principles and the application of these principles to the cases of most frequent occurrence, but in respect of matters expressly provided for in the Act we must, so to speak, start from the Act and not deal with it as a mere modification of the law of evidence prevailing in England."

Questions, however, may arise as regards matters not expressly provided for in the Act. It has been held that the second section in effect prohibits the employment of any kind of evidence not specifically authorised by the Act itself.(1) and that a person tendering evidence must show that it is admissible under some one or other of the Provisions of this Act.(2). It is to be regretted that the Act was not so framed as to admit other rules of evidence on points not specifically dealt with by it as was in effect done by the Commissioners in the second section of their Draft. In that case whenever omissions occur (and some do in fact occur) in the Act, recourse might be had to the present or previous law on the point existing in England or the previous rules, if any, in this country.

Singh, 12 A. 11, 12, 19, 29, 31, 35, 43; (1889)
And see last note: Though in R. v. Ashootosh Chukchruhy, 4 C., 491 (1878), it was said that where a case arises for which no positive solution
can be found in the Act itself recourse may be had to the Enclash rules if any on the point.

R.v. Abdullah, 7 A., 385, 399 (1885). Mu-hammad Allahdad v. Muhammad Ismail, 10 A., 325 (1886); R.v. Pitamber Jina, 2 B., 64 (1876) and in next note

<sup>(2)</sup> Iekhraj Kwar v. Mahpal Singh, 7 I A, 70 (1879); Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palaldhars

CHAPTER I.*

GENERAL DISTRIBUTION OF THE SUBJECT.

Technical elements of law.

Almost every branch of law is composed of rules of which some are groundand general ed upon practical convenience and the experience of actual litigation, whilst others are closely connected with the constitution of human nature and society. Thus the criminal law contains many provisions of no general interest, such as those which relate to the various forms in which dishonest persons tamper with or imitate coin: but it also contains provisions, such as those which relate to the effect of madness on responsibility, which depend on several of the most interesting branches of moral and physical learning. This is perhaps more conspicuously true of the law of evidence than of any other branch of the law. Many of its provisions, however useful and necessary are technical; and the enactments in which they are contained can claim no other merit than those of completeness and perspicuity. The whole subject of documentary evidence is [2]t of this nature. branches of the subject, such as the relevancy of facts, are intimately connected with the whole theory of human knowledge, and with logic, as applied to human conduct. The object of this introduction is to illustrate these parts of the subject, by stating the theory on which they depend and on which the provisions of the Act proceed. As to more technical matters, the Act speaks for itself, and I have nothing to add to its content.

Relation of Evidence Act to Eng-tish law of eridence

The Indian Evidence Act is little more than an attempt to reduce the English law of Evidence to the form of express propositions arranged in their natural order, with some modifications rendered necessary by the peculiar circumstances of India. Like almost every other part of English law, the English law of evidence

English law of evidence was formed by degrees

cretion of 'l very recently interfered ere, it has done so principa related to the disqualification of witnesses by interest, and that which excluded the testimony of the parties; but it has not attempted to deal with the main principles of the subject.

No part of the law has been left so entirely to the dis-

Its want of BITARRE ment

It is natural that a body of law thus formed by degrees and with reference to particular cases, should be destitute of arrangement, and in particular that its leading terms should never have [8] been defined by authority; that general rules should have been laid down with reference rather to particular circumstances than to general principles, and that it should have been found necessary to qualify them by exceptions inconsistent with the principles on which they proceed.

Difficulties of amend. ingit

When this confusion had once been introduced into the subject, it was hardly canable of being remedied either by courts of law, or by writers of text-books.

. This and the following chapters down to p 70 are Sir James Fitzjames Stephen's introduction to the Evidence Act.

t This and the following numbers indicate the paging of the original book (15d, 1493) as referrel to in this commentary.

The courts of law could only decide the cases which came before them according to the rules in force, The writers of text-books could only collect the results of such decisions. The Legislature might, no doubt, have remedied the evil, but comprehensive legislation upon abstract questions of law has never yet been attempted by Parliament in any one instance, though it has in several well-known cases been attended with signal success in India.

That part of the English law of evidence which professes to be founded tal rules of any beautiful and the nature of a theory on the subject may be reduced to the English lab following rules :-

- (I) Evidence must be confined to the matters in issue.
- (2) Hearsay evidence is not to be admitted.
- (3) In all cases the best evidence must be given.

Each of these rules is very loosely expressed. The word 'evidence,' which is the leading term of each, is undefined and ambiguous.

It sometimes means the words uttered and things exhibited by witnesses before a court of justice

[4] At other times, it means the facts proved to exist by those words or things, and regarded as the groundwork of inferences as to other facts not so proved.

Again, it is sometimes used as meaning to assert that a particular fact is relevant to the matter under mouiry.

The word 'issue' is ambiguous. In many cases it is used with reference to the strict rules of English special pleading, the main object of which is to define, with great accuracy, the precise matter which is affirmed by the one party to a suit, and denied by the other.

In other cases it is used as embracing generally the whole subject under inquiry.

Again, the word 'hearsay' is used in various senses. Sometimes it means whatever a person is heard to say, sometimes it means whatever a person declares on information given by some one else; sometimes it is treated as being nearly synonymous with 'irrelevant.'

If the rule that evidence must be confined to the matters in issue were con-strued strictly, it would run thus. No witness shall ever depose to any fact, containing except those facts which by the form of the pleadings are affirmed on the one evidence to side and demed on the other ' So understood, the rule would obviously put a stop to the whole administration of justice, as it would exclude evidence of decisive facts.

A sucs B on a promissory note. B denies that he made the note

A has a letter from B in which he admits that he made the note, and promises to pay it. This admission could [6] not be proved if the rule referred to were construed strictly because the issue is, whether B made the note, and not whether he admitted having made it

This absurd result is avoided by using the word 'evidence' as meaning not testimony but any fact from which any other fact may be inferred. Thus interpreted, the rule that evidence must be confined to matters in issue will run 'No facts may be proved to exist, except facts in issue or facts from which the existence of the facts in issue can be inferred'; but if the rule is thus interpreted, it becomes so vague as to be of little use; for the question naturally arises, from what sort of facts may the existence of other facts be inferred? To this question the law of England gives no explicit answer at all, though partial and confused answers to parts of it may be inferred from some of the exceptions to the rule which excludes hearsay.

For instance, there are cases from which it may be inferred that evidence may sometimes be given of a fact from which another fact may be inferred, although the fact upon which the inference is to be founded is a crime, and although the fact to be inferred is also a crime for which the person against whom the evidence is to be given is on his trial.

The full answer to the question, 'what facts are relevant,' which is the most important of all the questions that can be asked about the law of evidence, has thus to be learnt partly by experience, and partly by collecting together such crooked and narrow illustrations of it as the one just given.

Ambiguity of the rule excluding hearsay

[6]The rule that 'hearsay is no evidence' is vague to the last degree, as each of the meanings of which the word 'hearsay' is susceptible is sometimes treated as the true one. As the rule is nowhere laid down in an authoritative manner, its meaning has to be collected from the exceptions to it, and these exceptions of which there are as many as twelve or thirteen, imply at least three different meanings of the word 'hearsay'.

Thus it is a rule that evidence may be given of statements which accompany and raplain relevant actions. As no rule determines what actions are relevant, this is in itself unsatisfactory; but as the rule is treated as an exception to the rule excluding hearsay, it implies that 'hearsay' means that which a man is heard to say. If this is the meaning of hearsay, the rule which excludes it would run thus: 'No witness shall ever be allowed to depose to anything which he has heard said by any one else.' The result of this would be that no verbal contract could ever be proved, and that no one could ever be convicted of using threats with intent to extort money, or of defamation by words spoken, except in virtue of exceptions which stullry the rule.

Most of the exceptions indicate that the meaning of the word 'hearsay' is that which a person reports on the information of some one else, and not upon the evidence of his own senses. This, with certain exceptions, is no doubt a valuable rule, but it is not the natural meaning of the words 'hearsay is no evidence,' and it is in [7] practice almost impossible to divest words of their natural meaning.

The rule that documents which support ancient possession may be admitted as between persons who are not parties to them, is treated as an exception to the rule excluding hearsay. This implies that the word 'hearsay' is nearly, if not quite, equivalent to the word 'treelevant.' But the English law contains nothing which approaches to a definition of relevancy.

Rules as to best evi The rule which requires that the best evidence of which a fact is susceptible should be given, is the most distinct of the three rules referred to above, and it is certainly one of the most useful. It is simply an amplification of the obvious maxim, that if a man wishes to know all that he can know about a matter his own senses are to him the highest possible authority. If a hundred witnesses of unimpeachable character were all to swear to the contents of a sealed letter, and if the person who heard them swear opened the letter and found that its contents were different, he would conclude, without the intervention of any conscious process of reasoning at all, that they had sworn what was not true.

Ambiguity of the word

The ambiguity of the word 'evidence' is the cause of a great deal of obscurity apart from that which it gives to the rules above mentioned. In scientific inquiries, and for popular and general purposes, it is no doubt convenient to have one word which includes:—

- (1) The testimony on which a given fact is believed, 8 the facts so believed, and
- (3) the arguments founded upon them.

For instance, in the title of "Paley's Evidences of Christianity," the word is used in this sense. The nature of the work was not such as to give much importance to the distinction which the word overlooks. So, in scientific inquiries, it is seldom necessary (for reasons to which I shall have occasion to refer hereafter) to lay stress upon the difference between the testimony on which a fact is believed, and the fact itself. In judicial inquiries, however, the distinction is most important, and the neglect to observe it has thrown the whole subject into confusion by causing English lawyers to overlook the leading distinction which ought to form the principle on which the whole law should be classified. I mean the distinction between the relevancy of facts and the mode of proving relevant facts.

The use of the one name 'evidence' for the fact to be proved, and the means Effects of by which it is to be proved, 'has given a double meaning to every phrase in guity which the word occurs'. Thus, for instance, the phrase 'primary evidence' some times means a relevant fact, and sometimes the original of a document as opposed to a copy. 'Circumstantial evidence' is opposed to 'direct evidence,' But 'circumstantial evidence' usually means a fact, from which some other fact is inferred, whereas 'direct evidence' means testimony given by a man as to what he has himself perceived by his own senses. It would thus be correct to say that circumstantial evidence [9] must be proved by direct evidence—a clumsy mode of expression which is in itself a mark of confusion of thought. The evil, however, goes beyond mere clumsiness of expression. People have naturally enough supposed that circumstantial and direct evidence admit of being contrasted in respect of their cogency, and that different canons can be laid down, as to the conditions which they ought to satisfy before the court is convinced by them. This, I think, confuses the theory of proof, and is an error, due entirely to the ambiguity of the word 'evidence.

It would be a mistake to infer from the unsystematic character and absence English lav of arrangement which belongs to the English law of evidence that the substance of evidence of the law itself is bad. On the contrary, it possesses in the highest degree the characteristic ments of English case-law English case-law, as it is, is to what it ought to be, and might be, if it were properly arranged, what the ordinary conversation of a very clever man on all sorts of subjects written down as he uttered it, and as passing circumstances furnished him with a text, would be to the matured and systematic statement of his dehberate opinions. It is full of the most vigorous sense, and is the result of great sagacity applied to past and varied experience

The manner in which the law of evidence is related to the general theories Natural only by reference [10] to the natural distributo be as follows -

upon and arise out of facts

Every judicial proceeding whatever has for its purpose the ascertaining of some right or liability. If the proceeding is criminal, the object is to ascertain the hability to punishment of the person accused If the proceeding is civil, the object is to ascertain some right of property or of status, or the right of one party, and the liability of the other, to some form of relief.

In order to effect this result, provision must be made by law for the following objects :- First, the legal effect of particular classes of facts in establishing rights and liabilities must be determined. This is the province of what has been called substantive law. Secondly, a course of procedure must be laid down by which persons interested may apply the substantive law to particular cases. The law of procedure includes, amongst others, two main branches (1) the law of pleading, which determines what in particular cases are the questions in dispute between the parties, and (2) the law of evidence, which de ermines how the parties are to convince the court of the existence of that state or facts which. according to the provisions of substantive law, would establish the existence of the right or liability which they allege to exist.

The following is a simple illustration A sues B on a bond for Rs. 1,000, HinstraB says that the execution of the bond was procured by coercion.

[11] The substantive law is, that a bond executed under coercion cannot be enforced.

The law of procedure lays down the method according to which A is to establish his right to the payment of the sum secured by the bond. One of its provisions determines the manner in which the question between the parties is to be stated.

The question stated under that provision is, whether the execution of the hond was procured by coercion.

The law of evidence determines-

(1) What sort of facts may be proved in order to establish the existence of that which is defined by the substantive law as coercion

(2) What sort of proof is to be given of those facts.

(3) Who is to give it.

(4) How is it to be given.

Thus, before the law of evidence can be understood or applied to any particular case, it is necessary to know so much of the substantive law as determines what, under given states of facts, would be rights of the parties, and so much of the law of procedure as is sufficient to determine what questions it is open to them to raise in the particular proceeding.

Thus in general terms the law of evidence consists of provisions upon the following subjects:-

(1) The relevancy of facts.

(2) The proof of facts.

(3) The production of proof of relevant facts

The foregoing observations show that this account of [12] the matter is exhaustive. For it we assume that a fact is known to be relevant, and that its existence is duly proved, the Court is me position to go on to say how it affects the existence, nature, or extent of the right or lability, the ascertainment of which is the ultimate object of the inquiry, and this is all that the Court has to do.

The matter must, however, be carried further. The three general heads may be distributed more particularly as follows .--

Relevancy of facts I. The Relevancy of facts.—Facts may be related to rights and habilities in one of two ways.—

(1) They may by themselves, or in connection with other facts, constitute

Facts in such a state of things that "would be a legal inference from the there arises of necessity the artlaw of B, and that he has such rights as that status involves from the fact that A caused the death of B under certain circumstances, and with a certain intention or knowledge, there arises of necessity the inference that A murdered B, and is lable to the punishment provided by law for murder.

Facts thus related to a proceeding may be called facts in issue, unless their existence is undisputed.

2 Relevant

(2) Facts which are not themselves in issue in the sense above explained, may affect the [13] probability of the existence of facts in issue, and be used as the foundation of inferences respecting them; such facts are described in the Evidence Act as relevant facts.

All the facts with which it can in any event be necessary for courts of justice to concern themselves, are included in these two classes.

The first great question, therefore, which the law of evidence should decide is, what facts are relevant. The answer to this question is to be learnt from the general theory of judicial evidence explained in the following chapter

'What facts are in issue in particular cases is a question to be determined by the substantive law, or in some instances by that branch of the law of procedure which regulates the forms of pleading, civil or criminal.

The Proof of Relevant Facts .- Whether an alleged fact is a fact in Proof of issue or a relevant fact, the court can draw no inference from its existence relevant till it believes it to exist; and it is obvious that the belief of the court in the existence of a given fact ought to proceed up-dent of the relation of the fact to the object in which its existence is to be determined, a letter. The letter may have contained the terms of a contract. It may have been a libel. It may have constituted the motive for the commission of a crime by B. It may supply proof of an alibe in favour of A. It may be an admission or a [14] confession of crime, but whatever may be the relation of the fact to the proceeding, the Court cannot act upon it unless it believes that A did write the letter, and that belief must obviously be produced, in each of the cases mentioned, by the same or similar means. If the Court requires the production of the original when the writing of the letter is a crime, there can be no reason why it should be satisfied with a copy when the writing of the letter is a motive for a crime. In short, the way in which a fact should be proved depends on the nature of the fact, and not on the relation of the fact to the proceeding.

Some facts are too notorious to require any proof at all, and of these the 1 Judicia court will take judicial notice; but if a fact does require proof, the instru-notice ment by which the court must be convinced of it is evidence; by which I dence mean the actual words uttered, or documents, or other things actually produced normaly in court, and not the facts which the court considers to be proved by those evidence words and documents. words and documents Evidence in this sense of the word must be either (1) oral or(2) documentary. A third class might be formed of things produced

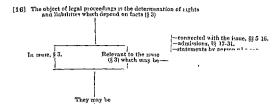

ints with which a crime was been done, but this division

The reason for distinguishing between oral and documentary evidence is that in many cases the existence of the latter excludes the employment of the former, but [15] the condition of material things, other than documents, is usually proved by oral evidence. so that there is no occasion to distinguish between oral and material evidence.

It may be said that in strictness all evidence is oral, as documents or other material things must be identified by oral evidence before the court can take notice of them. It is unnecessary to discuss the justice of this criticism, as the phrase 'documentary evidence' is not ambiguous, and is convenient and in common use. The only reason for avoiding the use of the word 'evidence' in the general sense in which most writers use it, is that it leads, in practice, to confusion, as has been already pointed out.

III. The Production of Proof .- This includes the subject of the burden of Production proof: the rules upon which answer the question, by whom is proof to be of proof. given ? The subject of witnesses the rules upon which answer the question, who is to give evidence and under what conditions . The subject of the examination of witnesses. the rules upon which answer the question, how are the witnesses to be examined, and how is their evidence to be tested. Lastly, the effect upon the subsequent proceedings, of mistakes in the reception and rejection of evidence, may be included under this head.

The following tabular scheme of the subject may be an assistance to the reader. The figures refer to the sections of the Act which treat of the matter referred to :-

Judicially noticed, proved by oral proved by docu—attested on unattested, $86.03 (cb. 11), evidence, (cb. 12), mentary evidence, public or private, $8.04.78, (cb. 12), which is—public or private, $8.74.78, conclusive pressured to be genuine, $8.79.90, conclusive pressured to be genuine, $8.79.90, conclusive providence of prior frests (cb. vi), whom the burden of prior frests (cb. vi).

If given by witnesses (ch ix) they must testify, subject to rules as to examination (ch. x). Consequence of mistakes defined, (ch. xi)

[17] CHAPTER IL.

A STATEMENT OF THE PRINCIPLES OF INDUCTION AND DEDUCTION, AND A COMPARISON OF THEIR APPLICATION TO SCIENTIFIC AND JUDICIAL INQUIRIES.

to have some acquaintance with the general theory of judicial evidence. The object of the present chapter is to explain this theory and to compare its application to physical science with its application to judicial inquiries.

Mr. Huxley remarks in one of his latest works—"The vast results obtained Mr. Huxley hy science are won by no mystical faculties, by no mental processes, other than science at those which are practised by every one of us in the humblest and meanest affairs dutied in the contract of the of life. A detective policeman discovers a burglar from the marks made by his shoe, by a mental process identical with that by which Cuvier restored the extinct animals of Montmartre from fragments of their bones, nor does that process of induction and deduction by which a lady finding [18] a stain of a particular kind upon her dress, concludes that somebody has upset the inkstand thereon, differ in any way from that by which Adams and Leverrier dis-covered a new planet.* The man of science, in fact, simply uses with scrupulous exactness the methods which we all habitually and at every moment use carelessly."

These observations are capable of an inverse application. If we wish to Application apply the methods in question to the investigation of matters of every-day marks to occurrence, with a greater degree of exactness than is commonly needed, it denotes the commonly needed, it denotes the commonly needed to the commonly needed. is necessary to know something of the theory on which they rest. This is specially important when, as in judicial proceedings, it is necessary to impose conditions by positive law upon such investigations. On the other hand, when such conditions have been imposed, it is difficult to understand their importance or their true significance, unless the theory on which they are based is understood. It appears necessary for these reasons to enter to a certain extent upon the general subject of the investigation of the truth as to matters of fact, before attempting to explain and discuss that particular branch of it which relates to judicial proceedings

First, then, what is the general problem of science ' It is to discover, col- General oblect, and arrange true propositions about facts. Simple as the phrase appears, science it is necessary to enter upon some illustration of its terms, namely, (1) facts, (2) propositions, (3) the truth of propositions.

First, then, what are facts "

[19] During the whole of our waking life we are in a state of perception. Facts, Indeed, consciousness and perception are two names for one thing, according as we regard it from the passive or active point of view. We are conscious of every thing that we perceive, and we perceive whatever we are conscious of. Moreover, our perceptions are distinct from each other, some both in space and time, as is the case with all our perceptions of the external world; others, in time only, as is the case with our perceptions of the thoughts and feelings of our own minds.

* Lay Sermons, p. 78.

External facts

Whatever may be the objects of our perceptions, they make up collectively the whole sum of our thoughts and feelings. They constitute, in short, the world with which we are acquainted, for without entering upon the question of the existence of the external world, it may be asserted with confidence that our knowledge of it is composed, first, of our perceptions, and, secondly, of the inferences which we draw from them as to what we should perceive if we were favourably situated for that purpose. The human body supplies an illustration of this. No one doubts that his own body is composed not only of the external organs which he perceives by his senses, but of numerous internal organs, most of which it is highly improbable that either he nor* any one else will ever see or touch, and some of as long as he lives.

or the heart, what he been told by other persons about human bodies, or observed himself in other human bodies, that if his skull and chest were laid open, those organs would be perceived by the senses of persons who might direct their senses towards them.

Internal

There is another class of perceptions, transient in their duration, and not perceived by the five best marked senses, which are nevertheless, distinctly perceptible and of the utmost importance. These are thoughts and feelings, love, hatred, anger, intention, will, wish, knowledge, opinion, are all perceived by the person who feels them. When it is affirmed that a man as angry, that he intends to sell an estate, that he knows the meaning of a word, that he struck a blow voluntarily and not by accident, each proposition relates to a matter capable of being as directly perceived as a noise or a flash of light. The only difference between the two classes of propositions is this. When it is affirmed that a man has a given intention, the matter affirmed is one which he and he only can perceive; when it is affirmed that a man is sitting or standing, the matter affirmed is one which may be perceived not only by the man himself, but by any other person able to see, and favourably situated for the purpose. But the circumstance that either event is recorded ; being, or as having been capable lat we mean, and all that we mean, we denote the same thing by call-[21] opposed to theory, sometimes e modes of using it are more or iess thetotical, when it is used with any degree of accuracy it implies something which exists, and it is as difficult to attach any meaning to the assertion that a thing exists which neither is, nor under any conceivable circumstances could be perceived by any sentient being, as to attach any meaning to the assertion that anything which can be so perceived does not, or at the time of perception did not, exist,

Definition of facts in Evidence

- It is with reference to this that the word 'fact' is defined in the Evidence Act (§ 3) as meaning and including-
- (1) Any thing, state of things, or relation of things capable of being perceived by the senses, and
  - (2) Any mental condition of which any person is conscious.

It is important to remember with respect to facts, that as all thought and language contains a certain element of generality, it is always possible to describe the same facts with greater or less minuteness, and to decompose every . fact with which we are concerned into a number of subordinate facts. Thus we might speak of the presence of several persons in a room at one time as a fact, but if the fact were doubted, or if other circumstances rendered it desirable, their respective positions, their occupations, the position of the furniture, and many other particulars might have to be specified. Such being the nature of facts, what is the meaning of a proposition?

proposition is a [22] collection of words so related as to raise in the minds of those who understand them a corresponding group of images or thoughts.

The characteristic by which words are distinguished from other sounds 18 their power of producing corresponding thought or images. I say thoughts or images, because though most words raise what may be intelligibly called images in the mind, this is true principally of those which relate to visible objects. Such words as 'hard,' 'soft,' 'taste, 'smell,' call up sufficiently definite thoughts, but they can hardly be described as images, and the same is still more true of words which qualify others, like 'although,' 'whereas', and other adverbs, prepositions and communitions.

The statement that a proposition, in order to be entitled to the name, must Illustraraise in the mind a distinct group of thoughts or images may be explained by two illustrations. The words 'that horse is niger' form a proposition to everyone who knows that niger means black, but to no one else. The words 'I see a sound' form a proposition to no one unless some signification is attached to the word 'sound' (for instance, an arm of the sea), which would make the words intelligible.

Such being a proposition, what is a true proposition? A true proposition True Prois one which excites in the mind, thoughts or images, corresponding to those which would be excited in the mind, of a person so situated as to be able to perceive the facts to which the proposition relates. The words 'a man is riding down the road on a white horse' form a proposition because they raise in the mind [23] a distinct group of images The proposition is true if all persons favourably situated for purposes of observation did actually perceive a corresponding group of facts.

The next question is, How are we to proceed in order to ascertain whether How true any given proposition about facts is true, and in order to frame true propositions are to be about facts? This, as already observed, is the general problem of science, framed which is only another name for knowledge so arranged as to be easily understood and remembered.

The facts, in the first place, must be correctly obs made must, in the next place, be recorded in apt lan; operations is one of far greater delicacy and difficulty for it is almost impossible to discriminate between ob...

stions instead of being a running some kindred points would exls. and I accordingly pass them Assuming then, the existence r common purposes, how are

An answer to these questions sufficient for the present purpose will be sup. Mr. Mill in theory of the present purpose will be sup. Mr. Mill in theory of the presence of the part of it which bears upon the insection in the presence of the part of it which bears upon the insection in the presence of the part of it which bears upon the insection of the part of it which bears upon the insection of the part of it which bears upon the insection of the part of it which bears upon the insection of the part of the part of the presence of the presence of the presence of the presence of the part of the presence of the presen present subject is as follows: The first great lesson learnt from the observation prevails in of the world in which we hve, is that a fixed order prevails amongst the various facts of which it is composed. Under lead always sinks in water, day always By degrees we are able to learn what . other such events happen. We learn, for instance, that the pressence of a certain quantity of air is a condition of combustion; that the presence of the force of gravitation, the absence of any equal or greater force acting in an opposite direction, and the maintenance by the water of its properties as a fluid, are conditions necessary to the sinking of lead in water; that the maintenance by the heavenly bodies of their respective positions, and the persistency of the various forces by which their paths are determined are the conditions under which day and night succeed each other.

Induction and deduction and night succeed each other.

The great problem is to find out what particular antecedents and consequents are thus connected together, and what are the conditions of their connection? For this purpose two processes are employed, namely, induction and deduction. Deduction assumes and rests upon previous inductions, and continue to attract every other particle of matter with a force bearing a certain fixed proportion to its mass and its distance, because other particles of matter have hitherto been observed to do so? are questions which lie beyond the limits of the present inquiry. For practical purposes it is enough to assume that such inferences are valid, and will be found by experience to yield true results in the shape of general propositions, from which we can argue downwards to particular cases according to the rules of verbal logic.

1:

Mere obser vation of facts insufficient

True general propositions, however, cannot be extracted directly from the observation of nature or of human conduct, as every fact which we can observe. however apparently simple, is in reality so intricate that it would give us little or no information unless it were connected with and checked by other facts. What, for instance, can appear more natural and simple than the following facts? A tree is cut down. It falls to the ground Several birds which were perched upon it fly away. Its fall raises a cloud of dust which is dispersed by the wind and splashes up some of the water in a pond Natural and simple as Why did the tree fall at this seems, it ruises the following questions at least all? The tree falling, why did not the birds fall too, and how came they to fly away? What became of the dust, and why did it disappear in the air, whereas the water fell [26] back into the pond from which it was splashed? To see in all these facts so many illustrations of the rules by which we can calculate the force of gravity, and the action of fluids on bodies immersed in them is the problem of science in general, and of induction and deduction in particular.

Proceeding of induction C - - 11

tuan tuies for arranging these comparisons. The methods which he enumerates are five, but the three last are little more than special applications of the other two, the method of agreement and the method of difference. Indeed the method of agreement is inconclusive, unless it is applied upon such a scale as to make it equivalent to the method of difference.

The nature of these methods is as follows -

Methods of agreement and differ ence All events may be regarded as effects of antecedent causes.

Every effect is preceded by a group of events one or more of which are its true cause or causes, and all of which are possible causes.

The problem is to discriminate between the possible and the true causes,

[27] If whenever the effect occurs one possible cause occurs, the other possible causes varying, the possible cause which is constant is probably the true cause, and the strength of this probability is measured by the persistency with which the one possible cause recurs, and the extent to which the other possible causes vary. Arguments founded on such a state of things are arguments on the method of agreement.

<sup>· [-</sup>The method of agreement. 2-The method of difference. 3-The joint method of agreement and difference. 4-The method of residues. 5-The method of concomitant variations.

If the effect occurs when a particular set of possible causes precedes its occurrence, and does not occur when the same set of possible causes oc-exist, one only being absent, the possible cause which was present when the effect was produced, and was absent when it was not produced, is the true cause of the effect. Arguments founded on such a state of things are arguments on the method of difference.

The following illustration makes the matter plain: Various materials are mixed together on several occasions. In each case soap is produced, and in each case oil and alkali are two of the maternals so mixed. It is probable from this that oil and alkali are the causes of the soap, and the degree of the probability is measured by the number of the experiments, and the variety of the ingredients other than oil and alkali. This is the method of agreement.

Various materials, of which oil and alkalı are two, are mixed, and soap is produced. The same materials, with the exception of the oil and alkalı, are mixed and soap is not produced. The mixture of the oil and alkalı is the cause of the soap. This is the method of difference. The case [28] would obviously be the same if oil and alkalı only were mixed. Soap was unknown, and upon the mixture being made, other things being unchanged, soap came into existence.

These are the most important of the rules of induction; but induction is definition only one step towards the solution of the problems which nature presents. In Several the statement of the rules of induction it is assun that all the causes and all the effects under independent facts, and that each cause is come effect. This, however, is not the case. A give any one of several causes. Various causes may contribute to the production of a single effect. This is peculiarly important in reference to the method of agreement. If that method is applied to a small number of instances, its value is small. For instance, other substances might produce soap by their combination besides oil and alkalt, say, for instance, that the combination of A and B, and that of C and D would do so. Then, if there were two experiments as follows:

- (1) oil and alkah, A and B, produce soap,
- (2) oil and alkah, C and D, produce soap; soap would be produced in each case, but whether by the combination of oil and alkah, or by the combination of A and B, or by that of C and D, or by the combination of oil, or of alkah, with A, B, C or D, would be altogether uncertain.
- [29] A watch is stolen, from a place to which  $A,\,B$  and C only had access. Another watch is stolen from another place to which  $A,\,D$  and E only had access.

In each instance, A is one of three persons, one of whom must have stolen the watch, but this is consistent with it having been stolen by any of the other persons mentioned.

This weakness of the method of agreement can be cured only by so great Weskness a multiplication of instances as to make it highly improbable that any other method of antecedent than the one present in every instance could have caused the effect screement how cu

For the statement of the theory of chances and its bearing on the probability of events, I must refer those who wish to pursue the subject to the many works which have been written upon it, but its general vahidity will be inferred by every one from the common observation of life. If it was certain that either A or B, A or C, A or D, and so forth, up to A and Z, had committed one of a large number of successive thefts, of the same kind, no one could doubt that A was the thief.

It is extremely difficult, in practice, to apply such a test as this, and the test when applied is peculiarly liable to error, as each separate alternative requires distinct proof. In the case supposed, for instance, it would be necessary to ascertain separately in each of the cases relied upon, first, that a theft had been committed; then, that one of two persons must have committed it; and [30] lastly, that in each case the evidence bore with equal weight upon each of them.

The intermixture of effects and the interference of causes with each other is a matter of much greater intricacy and difficulty

It may take place in one of two ways, viz

- (1) "In the one, which is exemplified by the joint operation of different forces in mechanics, the separate effects of all the causes continue to be produced, but are compounded together, and disappear in one total."
- (2) "In the other, illustrated by the case of chemical action, the separate estate case entirely, and are succeeded by phenomena altogether different, and governed by different laws."

In the second case the inductive methods already stated may be applied, though it has difficulties of its own to which I need not now refer.

In the first case, s.e., where an effect is not the result of any one cause, but the result of several causes modifying each other's operation, the results cease to be separately discermble. Some cancel each other. Others merge in one sum, and in this case there is often an insurmountable difficulty in tracing by observation any fixed relation whatever between the causes and the effects. A body, for instance, is at rest. This may be the effect of the action of two opposite forces exactly counteracting each other, but how are such causes to be inferred from such an effect v

A balloon ascends into the air. This appears, if it is [31] treated as an isolated phenomenon, to form an exception to the theory of gravitation. It is in reality an illustration of that theory, though several concommant facts and independent theories must be understood and combined together before this can be ascertained.

The difficulty of applying the inductive methods to such cases arises from the fact that they assume the absence of the state of things supposed. The subsequent and antecedent phenomena must be assumed to be capable of specific and separate observation before it can be asserted that a given fact invariably follows another given fact, or that two sets of possible causes resemble each other in every particular with a single exception.

Deductive method Aft is necessary for this reason to resort to the deductive method, the nature of which is as follows: A general proposition established by induction is used as a premiss from which consequences are drawn according to the rules of logic, as to what must follow under particular circumstances. The inference so drawn is compared with the facts observed, and if the result observed agrees with the deduction from the inductive premiss, the inference is that Intermixture of effects and interference of causes with each other the phenomeuon is explained. The complete method, inductive and deductive, thus involves three steps,-

- (I) Establishing the premiss by induction, or what, in practice, comes to the same thing, by a previous deduction resting ultimately upon induction:
- Reasoning according to the rules of logic to a conclusion : [32] (3) 'Verification of the conclusion by observation.

The whole process is illustrated by the discovery and proof of the identity illustrated of the central force of the solar system with the force of gravity as known on the earth's surface. The steps in it were as follows -

(1) It was proved by deductions resting ultimately upon inductions that the earth attracts the moon with a force varying inversely as the square of the distance.

This is the first step, the establishment of the premiss by a process resting ultimately upon induction.

(2) The moon's distance from the earth, and the actual amount of her deflexion from the tangent being known, it was ascertained with what rapidity the earth's attraction would cause the moon to fall if she were no further off and no more acted upon by extraneous forces than terrestrial bodies are.

This is the second step the reasoning, regulated by the rules of logic.

(3) Finally, this calculated velocity being compared with the observed velocity with which all heavy bodies fall by mere gravity towards the surface of the earth (sixteen feet in the first second, forty-eight in the second, and so forth in the ratio of the odd numbers), the two quantities are found to agree

This is the verification. The facts observed agree with the facts calculated, therefore the true principle of calculation has been taken

This paraphrase, for it is no more, of Mr Mill-is, I hope [33] sufficient to . I the manner in which It would be foreign ough has been said to and "com and the "fancest" and "com and to ion of . e the

In some essential points they resemble each other. Inquiries into matters Judicial a scientific of fact, of whatever kind and with whatever object, are, in all cases whatever, quiries co. inquiries from the known to the unknown, from our present perceptions or our pared-represent recollection (which is in itself a present perception) of past perceptions. to what we might perceive, or might have perceived, if we now were, or formerly had been, or hereafter should be, favourably situated for that purpose. They proceed upon the supposition that there is a general uniformity both in natural events and in human conduct , that all events are connected together as cause and effect, and that the process of applying this principle to particular cases, and of specifying the manner in which it works, though a difficult and delicate operation, can be performed.

There are, however, several great differences between inquiries which are Difference commonly called scientific inquiries, that is, into the order and course of nature, and inquiries into isolated matters of fact, whether [34] for judicial or historical purposes, or for the purposes of every-day life. These differences must be carefully observed before we can undertake with much advantage the tisk of applying to the one subject, the principles which appear to be true.

First difference as to amount of evidence The first difference is, that in reference to isolated events, we can never, or very seldom, perform experiments, but are tied down to a fixed number of relevant facts which can never be increased.

In scientific inquiries unlimited The great object of physical science is to invent general formulas (perhaps unfortunately called laws), which when ascertained, sum up and enable us to understand the present, and predict the future course of nature. These laws are ultimately deduced by the method already described from individual facts; but any one fact of an infinite number will serve the purpose of a screntific inquirer as well as any other, and in many, perhaps in most cases it is possible to arrange facts for the purpose. In order, for instance, to ascertain the force of terrestrial greavity, it was necessary to measure the time occupied by different bodies in falling through given spaces, and every such observation was an isolated fact. If, however, one experiment failed, or was interfered with, if an observation was inaccurate, or if a disturbing cause, as, for instance, the resistance of the atmosphere had not been allowed for, nothing could be easier than to repeat the process; and inferences drawn from any one set of experiments [35] were obviously as much to be trusted as inferences drawn from any other set. Thus, with regard to be multiplied to a practically served that the case with which argument that the course of

For many centuries before the modern discoveries in astronomy were made, the motions of the heavenly bodies, were carefully observed and inferences as to their future course were founded upon those observations. Such observations would have been useless and unmeaning, but for the tacit assumption that what they had done in times past, they would continue to do for the future.

In judicial inquiries limited In inquiries into isolated events this great resource is not available. Where the object is to decide what happened on a particular occasion, we can hardly ever draw inferences of any value from what happened on similar occasions, because the groups of events which form the subject of historical or judicial inquiry are so intricate that it can scarcely ever be assumed that they will repeat, or that they have repeated themselves. If we wish to know what happened two thousands years ago, when specific quantities of oxygen and hydrogen were combined, under given circumstances, we can obtain complete certainty by repeating the experiment, but the whole course of human history must recur before we could witness a second assassnation of Julius Casar.

It cannot be increased

[36] With reference to such events we are tied down unexorably to a certain-limited amount of evidence. We know so much of the assassination of Cesar says has been told us by the historians, who are to us ultimate authorities, and we know no more. Their testimony much be taken subject to all the deductions which experience shows to be necessary in receiving as true, statements made by historical writers on subjects which interest their feelings, and upon the authority of materials which are no longer extant and therefore cannot be weighed or criticized. Unless, by some unforescen accident, new materials on the subject should come to light, a few pages of general history will for ever comprise the whole amount of human knowledge upon this subject, and any doubts about it, whether they rise from inherent improbabilities in the story itself, from differences of detail in the different narratives, or from general considerations as to the untrustworthy character of historians writing on hearsay, and at a considerable distance of time from the events which they relate, are and must remain for ever, unsolved and insoluble.

Resides this difference as to the quantity of evidence accessible in scientific and historical inquiries, there is a great difference as to the objects to which the Object of scientific inquiries

inquiries are directed. The object of inquiries into the course of nature 18 twofull the estimatestion of a form of aumicative which to those who feel it at all results of very various kinds. Neither of these ends can be attained unless and until the problems stated by nature have been solved; partially, it may be, but at all events truly, as far as the solution goes. On the other hand, there is no pressing or immediate necessity for their solution. Every scientific question is always open, and the answer to it may be discovered after vain attempts to discover it have been made for thousands of years, or an answer long accepted may be rejected and replaced by a better answer after an equally long period. In short, in scientific inquiries, absolute truth, or as near an approach to it as can be made, is the one thing needful, and is the constant object of pursuit. So long as any part of his proof remains incomplete, so long as any one ascertained fact does not fit into and exemplify his theory, the scientific inquirer neither is, nor ought to be, satisfied. Until he has succeeded in excluding the possibility of error, he is bound, to the extent, at least, of that possibility, to suspend his judgment.

In judicial inquiries (I need not here notice historical inquiries) the case object of is different. It is necessary for urgent practical purposes to arrive at a decining the property of the sion which, after a definite process has been gone through, becomes final and irreversible. It is obvious that, under these circumstances, the patient sus-pension of judgment, and the high standard of certainty required by scientific inquirers, cannot be expected. Judicial decisions must proceed upon imperfect materials, and must be made at the risk of error

(38) Finally, inquires into physical science have an additional advantage Britaines of those who conduct judicial inquiries, in the fact that the evidence is fore inquiries them, in so far as they have to depend upon oral evidence, is infinitely more trusttrustworthy than that which is brought forward in courts of justice. The worthy. reasons of this are manufold. In the first place, the facts which a scientific observer has to report do not affect his passions. In the second place, his evidence about them is not taken at all unless his powers of observations have been more or less trained and can be depended upon. In the third place, he can hardly know what will be the inference from the facts which he observes until his observations have been combined with those of other persons, so that if he were otherwise disposed to mis-state them, he would not know what misstatement would serve his purpose. In the fourth place, he knows that his observations will be confronted with others, so that if he is careless or maccurate, and, à fortion, if he should be dishonest, he would be found out fifth place, the class of facts which he observes are, generally speaking, simple, and he is usually provided with means specially arranged for the purpose of securing accurate observations, and a careful record of its results.

The very opposite of all this is true as regards witnesses in a court of Evidence justice. The facts to which they testify are, as a rule, facts in which they are in fudirest more or less interested, and which in many cases excite their strongest passions less trunt to the highest degree [39]. The witnesses are very seldom trained to observe worthy any facts or to express themselves with accuracy upon any subject. They know what the point at issue is, and how their evidence bears upon it, so that they can shape it according to the effect which they wish to produce. They are generally so situated that a large part, at least of what they say is secure from contradiction, and the facts which they have to observe being in most instances portions of human conduct are so intricate that even with the best intention on the part of the witness to speak the truth, he will generally be inaccurate, and almost always incomplete, in his account of what occurred.

of judicial over scienti

So far it appears that our opportunities for investigating and proving the existence of isolated facts are much inferior to our opportunities for investing laws of nature. There nugh the evidence avail-and is always fixed in amount, and though the facts which form the subject of such inquiries are far more intricate than those which attract the inquirer into physical nature; though the judge and the historian can derive no light from experiments: though, in a word, their apparatus for ascertaining the truth is far inferior to that of which physical inquirers dispose, the task which they have to perform i. proportionally easier and less ambitious. It is attended, moreover, by some special facilities which are great helps in performing it satisfactorily.

Maxims more easily appreciat.

[40] The question whether it is in the nature of things possible that general formulas should ever be devised by the aid of which human conduct can be explained and predicted in the short specific manner in which physical phenomena are explained and predicted, has been the subject of great discussion, and is not yet decided; but no one doubts that approximate rules have been framed which are sufficiently precise to be of great service in estimating the probability of particular events. Whether or not any proposition as to human conduct can ever be enunciated, approaching in generality and accuracy to the proposition that the force of gravity varies inversely as the square of the distance, no one would feel disposed to deny that a recent possessor of stolen property who does not explain his possession is probably either the thief or a receiver; or that if a man refuses to produce a document in his possession, the contents of the document are probably unfavourable to lum. In inquiries into isolated facts for practical purposes, such rules as these are nearly as useful as rules of greater generality and exactness, though they are of little service when the object is to interpret a series of facts either for practical or theoretical purposes. If, for instance, the question is whether a particular person committed a crime in the course of which he made use of water, knowledge of the facts that there was a pump in his garden, and that water can be drawn from a well by working the pump handle, is as useful as the most perfect knowledge of hydrostatics. if the question were as to the means by which water [41] could be supplied for a house and field during the year, considerable knowledge of the theory and practice of hydrostatics and of various other subjects might be necessary, and the more extensive the undertaking might be, the wider would be the knowledge required,

Their limit

To this it must be added that the approximate rules which relate to human ations more easily conduct are warranted principally by each man's own experience of what passes in his own mind, corroborated by his observation of the conduct of other per-. pothesis that their menerience appears to show narrower limits of error than might have been supposed, though the limits are wide enough to leave room for the exercise of a great amount of individual skill and judgment.

This tircumstance invests the rules relating to human conduct with a very peculiar character. They are usually expressed with little precision, and stand quality ations and exceptions which they require. Compare two such rules as but no one would be red to doubt the second by the fact that a shopkeoper doing a large trade had in his till stolen coins shortly after they had been stolen, without having stolen them. Every one would see at once that such a case formed one of the many unstated exceptions to the rule. The reason is, that we know external nature only by observation of a neutral, unsympathetic kind, whereas every man knows more of human nature than any general rule on the subject can ever tell him.

To these considerations it must be added that to inquire whether an isolat problems ed fact exists, is a far simpler problem than to ascertain and prove the rule acare simple cording to which facts of a given class happen. The inquiry falls within a small than sole time proer compass. The process is generally deductive. The deductions depend upon blems previous inductions, of which the truth is generally recognised, and which (at least in judicial inquiries) generally share in the advantage just noticed of appealing directly to the personal experience and sympathy of the judge. The deductions, too, are, as a rule, of various kinds and so cro s and check each other, and thus supply each other's deficiencies.

For instance, from one series of facts it may be inferred that A had a strong mustra motive to commit a crime, say the murder of B. From an independent set of tions facts it may be inferred that B died of poison, and from another independent set of facts that A administered the poison of which B died. The question is whether [43] A falls within the small class of murderers by poison. If he does, various propositions about him must be true, no two of which have any neces-

} by poininistra-tion. Each separate proposition, as it is established, narrows the number of abject. When it is established that B died of , which would explain the fact of his death cone excluded; when it is proved that A administered the poison of which B died, every supposition, consistent with A's innocence, except those of accident, justification, and the like, are excluded; when it is shown that A had a motive for administering the poison, the difficulty of establishing any one of these hypotheses, e.g., accident, is largely increased, and the number of suppositions consistent with innocence is narrowed in a corresponding degree.

This suggests another remark of the highest importance in estimating real injudicial weight of judicial inquiries. It is that such inquiries in all civilized countries parties in. are, or at least ought to be, conducted in such a manner as to give every person terested have opport interested in the result the fullest possible opportunity of establishing the con-tunitie clusion which he wishes to establish In the illustration just given A would be heard have at once the strongest motive to explain the fact that he had administered the poison to [44] B and every opportunity to do so. Hence if he failed to do it, he would either be a murderer or else a member of that infinitesimally small class of persons who, having a motive to commit murder, and having administered poison to the person whom they have a motive to murder, are unable to suggest any probable reason for supposing that they did administer it unnocentiv.

The results of the foregoing inquiry may be shortly summed up as follows : summary

The problem of discovering the truth in relation to matters which are judicially investigated in a part of the general problem of science, -the discovery of true propositions as to matters of fact.

II. The general solution of this problem is contained in the rules of induction and deduction stated by Mr. Mill, and generally employed for the purpose of conducting and testing the results of inquiries into physical nature.

III. By the due application of these rules facts may be exhibited as standing towards each other in the relation of cause and effect, and we are able to argue from the cause to the effect and from the effect to the cause with a degree of certainty and precision proportionate to the completeness with which the relevant facts have been observed or are accessible.

- IV. The leading differences between judicial investigations and inquiries into physical nature are as follows :-
- 1. In physical inquiries the number of relevant facts is generally unlimited, and is capable of indefinite increase by experiments.
- [46] In judicial investigations the number of relevant facts is limited by circumstances, and is incapable of being increased.
- Physical inquiries can be prolonged for any time that may be required in order to obtain full proof of the conclusion reached, and when a conclusion has been reached, it is always hable to review if fresh facts are discovered, or if any objection is made to the process by which it was arrived at.
- In judicial investigations it is necessary to arrive at a definite result in a limited time; and when that result is arrived at, it is final and irreversible with exceptions too rare to inquire notice.
- In physical inquires the relevant facts are usually established by testimony open to no doubt, because they relate to simple facts which do not affect the passions, which are observed by trained observers who are exposed to detection if they make mistakes, and who could not tell the effect of misieuresentation, if they were disposed to be fraudulent.

In judicial inquiries the relevant facts are generally complex. They affect the passions in the highest degree. They are testified to by untrained observers who are generally not open to contradiction, and are aware of the bearing of the facts which they allege upon the conclusion to be established.

- 4. On the other hand, approximate generalizations are more useful in judicial than they are in scientific inquiries, because in the case of judicial inquiries every man's [46] individual experience supplies the qualifications and exceptions necessary to adjust general rules to particular facts, which is not the case in regard to scientific inquiries
- 5. Judicial inquiries being limited in extent, the process of reaching as good a conclusion as is to be got out of the materials is far easier than the process of establishing a scientific conclusion with complete certainty, though the conclusion arrived at is less satisfactory.

It follows from what precedes that the utmost result that can in any case be contented with a lower degree of probability than is rightly demanded in s ientific investigation. The highest probability at which a court of justice can under ordinary circumstances arrive is the probability that a witness or a set of witnesses affirming the existence of a fact which they say they perceived by their own senses, and upon which they could not be made in the perceived

It is difficult to measure the valu the theories of physical inquirers purpose to attempt to do so. It comparatively low degree of probability is shown to exist in the one case is identical in principle with that by which a much higher degree of probability is shown to exist in the other case.

The degrees of probability attainable in scientific and in judicial inquiries Degrees of are infinite, and do not admit of exact measurement or description. Cases Probability moral continuous and interpretation of the probability of the prob

n cither tainty

inguish between the two. Whether any higher degree of assurance is conceivable than that which may easily be obtained of the facts that the earth revolves round the sun, and that Delhi was besieged and taken by the English in 1857, is a question which does not belong to this inquiry. For all practical purposes such conclusions as these may be described as absolutely certain. From these down to the faintest guess about the inhabitants of the stars, and the faintest suspicion that a particular person has committed a crime, there is a descending scale of probabilities which does not admit of any but a very rough measurement for practical purposes. The only point in it worth noticing is what is commonly called moral certainty, and this means simply such a degree of probability as a prudent man would act upon under the circumstances in which he [49] happens to be placed in reference to the matter of which he is said to be morally certain.

What constitutes moral certainty is thus a question of prudence, and not Moral cerin reference to judicial inquiries tainty is a "beyond all reasonable doubt," prudence.

be in favour of the side which is most probably right. To the latter part of this rule there is no objection, though it should be added that it cannot be applied absolutely without reserve. For instance, a civil case in which character is at stake partakes more or less of the 3 - - - P - 1 - 1 - P - P - 1 innocent is marked by the use of the expression "no doubt," the necessity of running some degree of risk of doing so in certain cases is intimated by the word "reasonable." The question, what sort of doubt is "reasonable" in criminal cases is a question of prudence. Hardly any case ever occurs in which it is not possible for an ingenious person to suggest hypotheses consistent with the prisoner's innocence. The hypotheses of falsehood on the part of the witnesses can never be said to be more than highly improbable.

[49] Though it is impossible to invent any rule by which different proba- Principle of bilities can be precisely valued, it is always possible to say whether or not probabilist they fulfil the conditions of what Mr. Mill describes as the method of Difference; and if not, how nearly they approach to fulfilling it. The principle is method of methods of the method of methods of the method of the m precisely the same in all cases, however complicated or however simple, and difference. whether the nature of the inquiry is scientific or judicial. In all cases the known facts must be arranged and classified with reference to the different hypotheses, or unknown or suspected facts, by which the existence of the known facts can be accounted for. If every hypothesis except one is inconsistent with one or more of the known facts, that one hypothesis is proved. If more than one hypothesis is consistent with the known facts, but one only is reasonably probable—that is to say, if one only is in accordance with the common course of events, that one in judicial inquiries may be said to be proved "beyond all reasonable doubt." The word "reasonable" in this sentence denotes a fluctuating and uncertain quantity of probability (if the expression may be allowed), and shows that the ultimate question in judicial proceedings is and must be in most cases a question of prudence.

nstra-

Let the question be whether A did a certain act; the circumstances are such that the act must have been done by somebody, but it can have been done only by A or by B. If A and B are equally likely to have done the act, the matter cannot be carried further, [50] and the question Who did it? must remain undecided. But if the act must have been done by one person. if remain understand. But it required great physical strength, and if A is an exceedingly powerful man and B a child, it may be said to be proved that B did it II A is stronger than B, but the disproportion between their strength is less, it is probable that A did it, but not impossible than B may have done it, and so on. In such a case as this a nearer approach than usual to a distinct measurement of the probability is possible, but no complete and definite statement on the subject can be made.

ndicial sses of

Such being the general nature of the object towards which judicial inquiries are directed, and the general nature of the process by which they are carried on, it will be well to examine the chief forms of that process somewhat more particularly.

- It will be found upon examination that the inferences employed in judicial inquires fall under two heads -
- (I) Inferences from an assertion, whether oral or documentary, to the truth of the matter asserted.
- (2) Inferences from facts which, upon the strength of such assertions, are beheved to exist to facts of which the existence has not been so asserted.

For the sake of simplicity, I do not here distinguish various subordinate t of the

. r therefore be classed [51] under the general head of inferences from an assertion to the truth of the matter asserted.

Direct and dance

This is the distinction usually expressed by saying that all evidence is either ctreum stantial evi direct or circumstantial. I avoid the use of this expression, partly because as whereas circuminded, and partly

io. t... . sion favours an unfounded notion that the principles on which the two classes of inferences depend are different, and that they have different degrees of cogency, which admit of comparison. The truth is that each inference depends upon precisely the same general theory, though somewhat different considerations apply to the investigation of cases in which the facts testified to are many, and to cases in which the facts testified to are few.

infer, from what he thus sees and bears, the existence of facts which he neither

فمقم سلوسل سيلو سنلسب فهافي sees nor hears.

Let the question be whether a will was executed. Three witnesses, entirely above suspicion, come, [52] and testify that they witnessed its execution, These assertions are facts which the judge hears for himself. Now there are hey saw the will:--

(1) The witnesses may be speaking the truth.

- (2) The witnesses may be mistaken.
- (3) The witnesses may be telling a falsebook.

The circumstances may be such as to tender suppositions (2) and (3) toprobable in the highest degree and generally speaking they would be so Insuch a case the first hypothesis, se, that the will mally was executed as alleged. would be proved. The facts before the judge would be prepretent with any other reasonable hypothesis except that of the execution of the will. This would be commonly called a case of direct exidence

Let the question be whether A committed a crime. The facts which the sudge actually knews are that certain witnesses made before him a variety of statements which be believes to be true. The result of these statements is to establish certain facts which show that either A or B or C must I are committed the crime, and that neither B roy C did commit it. In this case the facts before the indee would be inconsistent with any other reasonable hypothesis excepthat A committed the crime. This would be commonly called a case of circumstantial evidence; vet it is obvious that the principle on which the [53] investication proceeds as in the last case is identically the same. The only differ nee is in the number of inferences, but no new principle is introduced

It is also clear that each case is identical in principle with the method of mustra difference as explained by Mr. Mill.

Mr. Mill's illustration of the application of that method to the motions of this process, the planets is as follows:—The planets with a central force give areas propor. Mills there tional to the times. The planets without a central force give a different " set of motions; but areas proportional to the times are observed. Therefore there is a central force.

Similarly in the cases suggested. The assertions of the witnesses give the execution of a will, i.e., no other cause can account for those assertions having been made. If the will had not been executed those assertions would not have been made. But the assertions were made. Therefore the will was executed.

Though inferences from an assertion to its truth, and inferences from facts taken as true to other facts not asserted to be true, rest upon the same principle, each inference has its peculiarities.

it is always easy, to deal with, to deal with it rightly is by far the most difficult task which falls to the lot of a judge and miscarriages of justice are almost [54] invariably caused by dealing with it wrongly. This requires full explanation.

To infer from an assertion the truth of the matter asserted is in one sense the easiest thing in the world. The intellectual process consists of only one sten. and that is a step which gives no trouble, and is taken in most cases unconscious unconscious the proposition, 18 a matter g propositions .-"All men t "This man says so and so, " therefore it is true, would present no difficulty. in and inst to wide exceptions, which are not forced hey were, the judge has often no ц to what extent they apply to any particular case. How is it possible to tell how far the powers of observation and mem a man seen once for a few minutes enable him, and how far the inn motives by any one or more of which he may be actuated dispose ifficul-

The inference from the assertion to the truth of the matter asserted is usually inference regarded as an easy matter, calling for little remark. Though in particular cases it is really easy, and though in a certain sense serted.

the truth upon the matter on which he testifies? Cross-examination supplies a test to a certain extent, but those who have seen most of its application will be disposed to trust it least as a proof that a man not shaken by it ought to be believed. A cool, steady har who happens not to be open to contradiction will baffle the most skilful cross-examiner in the absence of accidents which are not so common in practice as [55] persons who take their notions on the subject from anecdates or fiction would suppose

Cannot be affected by nies of evi dence

No rules of evidence which the legislator can enact can perceptibly affect this difficulty. Judges must deal with it as well as they can by the use of their

of our

....l experience by which an observant man forms an opinion as to whether a witness is or is not lying, is by far the most important of all a judge's qualifications, infinitely more important than any acquaintance with law or with rules of evidence. No trial ever occurs in which the exercise of this faculty is not required; but it is only in exceptional cases that questions arise which present any legal difficulty or in which it is necessary to exercise any particular ingenuity in putting together the different facts which the evidence tends to establish. This preemmently important power for a judge is not to be learnt out of books. In so far as it can be acquired at all, it is to be acquired only by experience. for the acquisition of which the position of a judge is by no means peculiarly favourable. People come before him with their cases ready prepared, and give the evidence which they have determined to give. Unless he knows them in their unrestrained and familiar moments he will have great difficulty in finding any good reason for believing one man rather than another, The [56] rules of evidence may provide tests, the value of which has been proved by long experience, by which judges may be satisfied that the quality of the materials upon which their judgments are to proceed is not open to certain obvious objections; but they do not profess to enable the judges to know whether or not a particular witness tells the truth or what inference is to be drawn from a particular fact. The correctness with which this is done must depend upon the natural sagacity, the logical power and the practical experience of the judge, not upon his acquaintance with the law of evidence.

Grounds for believing believing a witheas Power

The grounds for believing or dishelieving particular statements made by particular people under particular circumstances may be brought under three heads, - those which affect the power of the witness to speak the truth; those which affect his will to do so; and those which arise from the nature of the statement itself and from surrounding circumstances. A man's power to speak the truth depends upon his knowledge and his power of expression. This knowledge depends partly on his accuracy in observation, partly on his memory, partly on his presence of mind; his power of expression depends upon an infinite number of circumstances, and varies in relation to the subject of which he has to speak.

A man's -- ill an annul at a au at 1 s character, his courage, I . as to which he is to testif. other circumstances as to the presence or absence of which in any particular case it is often difficult to form a true opinion.

The third set of reasons are those which depend upon the probability of the statement.

Many discussions have taken place on the effect of the improbability of a obability statement upon its credibility in cases which can never fall under judicial consideration. It is unnecessary to enter upon that subject here Looking at the matter merely in relation to indicial inquiries, it is aufferent to observe that whilst the improbability of a statement is always a reason. and may be, in practice, a conclusive resson for dishelieving it. its probability is a poor reason for believing it if it rests upon uncorrobitated testimony Probable falsehoods are those which an artful har naturally tells; and the fact that a good opporturity for telling such a falselood occurs is the commonest of all reasons for its being told

Upon the whole it must be admitted that little that is really serviceable. Experience can be said upon the inference from an assertion to the truth of the matter guideonthe asserted. The observations of which the matter admits are either generalities subject too vague to be of much gractical use, or they are so narrow and special that they can be learnt only by personal observation and practical experience. Such observations are seldom, if ever through by those who make them into the form of express propositions. Indeed, for obvious tessons, it would be impossible to do so. The most acute observer would never be able [68] to catalogue the tores of voice, the passing shades of expression or the unconscious gestures which he had learnt to associate with falsehood, and if he did, his observations would probably be of little use to others. Every one must learn matters of this sort for himself, and though no sort of knowledge is so important to a judge, no rules can be laid down for its acquisition.(1)

If the opinion here advanced appears strange, I would make attention to Hustra the following illustration :- Is there any class of cases in which it is, in practice, [59] so difficult to come to a satisfactory decision as those which depend upon the explicit, direct testimony of a single witness uncorroborated, and, by the nature of the case, ircapable of corroboration? For instance, a man and a woman are travelling alone in a railway carriage. The train stops at a station and the woman charges the man with indecent conduct which he denies thing particular is known about the character or previous history of either woman is not betrayed on cross-examination into any inconsistency. There are no cases in which the difficulty of arriving at a satisfactory decision is anything like so great. It is easy to decide them as it is easy to make a bet, but it is earier to deal satisfactorily with the most complicated and lengthy chain of inference.

The uncertainty of inferences from an assertion to the truth of the matter asserted may be shown by stating them logically. They may be considered as being the conclusions of syllogisms in this form :-

All men situated in such and such a manner speak the truth or speak falsely (as the case may be).

A B, situated in such and such a manner, says so and so.

places about the evidence of police men, children, women, and the natives of particular countries belong to this subject The only remark I feel inclined to add to what is commonly said on it is that. according to my observation, the power to tell the truth, which implies accurate observation, knowledge of the relative importance of facts, and power of description, properly proportioned to each other, is much less common than people usually suppose it to be It is extremely difficult for an untrained person not to mix up inference and assertion. It is also difficult for such a person to distinguish between what they themselves saw and heard and what they were told by others, unless their attention is specially directed to the distinction.

<sup>(1)</sup> I may give a few anecdotes which have no particuar value in themselves, but which show what I mean . "I always used to look at the witnesses' toes when I was cross-examining them," said a friend of mine who had practised at the bar in Ceylon. "As soon as they began to be they always fidgeted about with them." I knew a , judge who formed the opinion that a letter had been forged because the expression " that woman " which it contained appeared to him to be one which a woman and not a man would use, and the question was whether the letter in question had been forged by a wortan. In the hie of Lord Keeper Guilford it is said that he always acted on the principle that a man was to be believed in what he said when he was in a passion The common

Therefore, in saying so and so, he speaks truly or falsely (as the case may be).

This is a deduction testing on a previous induction, and it is obvious that the induction which furnishes the major premiss must always be exceedingly imperfect, and that the truth of the minor premiss which is essential to the deduction is always more or less conjectural.

Inference from facts proved to facts not otherwise

[60] In many cases the defects of inferences of the first kind may be incidentally remedied by inferences of the second kind, namely, inferences from facts which are asserted, and, on the ground of such assertion, believed by the court to exist, to facts not asserted to exist, and these I now proceed to eramine.

I have observed that the inference from an assertion to the truth of the matter asserted often is as easy as it always appears to be. In very many instances, which it is much easier to recognise when they occur than to reduce to times really rule, a direct assertion, even by a single witness of whom little is known, is entitled to great weight. Suppose, for instance, that the matter asserted is of a single assertion of this sort may outweigh Suppose, for instance, that a number s an alibi, and that they allege that on a her with the person on behalf of whom the alibr is to be proved at a fair held at a certain place. If the Magistrate of the district, whose duty it was to superintend the fair, were to depose that the fair did not begin to be held till a day subsequent to the one in question, no one would doubt that the witnesses had conspired together to give false evidence hy the familiar trick of changing the day. In this case one direct assertion would outweigh many direct assertions. Why? Because the Magistrate of the district would be a man of [61] character and position; because he would (we must assume) be quite indifferent to the particular case in issue; because he would be deposing to a fact of which it would be his official duty to be comizant and on which he could hardly be mistaken, and lastly, because the fact would be known to a vast number of people, and he would be open to contradiction, detection, and ruin if he spoke falsely. Change these circum-tances, and the equally explicit testimony of the very same man might be worthless. Suppo e, for instance, that he was asked whether he had committed adultery? His demal would carry hardly any weight in any conceivable case, inasmuch as the charge is one which a guity man would always deny, and an innocent man could do no more. In other words, since the course of conduct supposed is one which a man would certainly take whether he were innocent or not, the fact of his taking it would afford no criterion as to his unit or innocence.

Now in almost all judicial proceedings a certain number of facts are estabhabed by direct assertions made under such circumstances that no one would seriously doubt their truth. Others are rendered probable in various degrees and thus the judge is furnished with facts which he may use as a basis for his inferences as to the existence of other facts which are either not asserted to exist or are asserted to exist, by unsatisfactory witnesses.

Buch inference com ...

These inferences are generally considered to be more difficult to draw than the inference from an assertion to the matter asserted. In [62] fact, it is far easier to combine materials supposed to be sound, than to ascertain that they are sound. In the one case no rules for the judge's guidance can be laid down. No process is gone through, the correctness of which can afterwards be inderendently tested. The judge has nothing to trust to but his own natural and acquired signeity. In the other case all that is required is to go through a process with which as Mr. Huxley remarks, every one has a general superficial Inference from assertion to truth someacquair table tested by every-day practice, and the theory of which it is easy to understand and interesting to follow out and apply.

The facts approved to be proved must ultimately fulfil the conditions of Facts must the method of difference, but they may be combined by any of the recognised fulfil test of logical method or he a combination of them all. The object is deed, at which difference they are all directed is the same though they reach it in different made. A few illustrations will make this plain. The question is whether A has embershed a small sum of money, say a platicular super which he received on account of his employer, and did not enter in a book in which he ought to have entered it. His defence is that the omission to make the entry was accidental. The account book is examined, and it is found that in a long series of instances omissions of small sums have been made each of which omissions is in if's favour in the absence of explanation, would leave no reasonable do ibt of A's guilt in each and every case. It would be practically impossible to account for such facts except upon the assumption of [63] systematic Iraud | Logically, this is an instance of the Methol of Agreement applied to so great a number of instances as to exclude the operation of chance. When, however, this is done, the Method of Agreement becomes a case of the Method of Difference

The well-known cases in which guilt is inferred from a number of separate Converging independent, and, so to speak, converging probabilities, may be regarded as an exceedibility of the same principle. Their general type is as follows:—

B was murdered by some one.

Whoever murdered II had a motive for his murder.

A had a motive for murdering B.

Whoever murdered B had an opportunity for murdering B,

A had an opportunity for murdering B.

Whoever murdered B made preparations for the murder of B.

A acted in a manner which might amount to a preparation for murdering B.

In each of these matances, which might of course be indefinitely multiplied one item of agreement is established between the ascertained fact that B was murilered and the hypothesis that I murdered him, and it does sometimes happen that these coincidences may be multiplied to such an extent and may be of such a character as to exclude the supposition of chance, and justify the inference that A was guilty.(1) The case, however, is a [64] rare one, and there is always a great risk of injustice unless the facts proved go beyond the mere multiplication of circumstances separately indicating guilt, and amount to a substantial exclusion of every reasonable possibility of innocence.

The celebrated passage in Lord Macaulay's Essays in which he seeks to Hustraprotect that Sir Philip Francis was the author of Junius's letters, is an instance, tions, of an argument of this kind. The letters, he says, show that five facts can be predicated of Junius, whoever he may have been. But these five facts may also be predicated of Sir Philip Francis and of no one else. Whether any part of this argument can in fact be sustained, is a question to which it would be impertinent to refer here, but that the method on which it proceeds is legitimate there can be no doubt.

The cases in which it is most probable that injustice will be done by the Rule as to application of the method of agreement to judicial inquiries are those in which corpus delicti one should be convicted of murder unless the body of the murdered person has been discovered. Neither of these rules is more than a rough and partial application of the general principle stated above. If the circumstances are [65] such i as to make it morally certain (within the definition given above) that a crime has been committed, the inference that it was so committed is as safe as any other such inference.

filmstra. tions

The captain of a ship, a thousand miles from any land, and with no other vessel insight, is seen to run into his cabin, pursued by several mutinous sailors The noise of a struggle and a splash are heard. The sulers soon afterwards come out of the cabin and take the command of the vessel. The cabin windows are opened. The cabin is in confusion, and the captain is never seen or heard of again.

A person looks at his watch and returns it to his pocket. Immediately afterwards a man comes past, and makes a saatch at the watch, which disappears. The man being pursued, runs may and swims across a river; he is arrested on the other side. He has no watch in his possession, and the watch is never found.

In these cases it is morally certain that murder and theft respectively were committed, though in the first case the body, and in the second the watch is not producible.

Existence of corpus cometimes wrongly in Cases, however, do undoubtedly occur in which the inference that a crime has been committed at all is a mistake. They may often be resolved into a case of begging the question. The process is this suspicion that a crime has been committed is excited, and upon inquiry a number of circumstances are discovered which if it is assumed that a crime has been committed are suspicious, but which are not suspicious unless the assumption is made

[60]A ship is east away under such circumstances that her loss may be accounted for either by fraud or by accident

The captain is tried for making away with her. A variety of circumstances exist which would indicate preparation and expectation on his part if the ship really was made away with, but which would justify no suspicion at all if she was not. It is manifestly illogical first to regard the antecedent circumstances as suspicious, because the loss of the ship is assumed to be fraudulent, and next to infer that the ship was fraudulently destroyed from the suspicious character of the antecedent circumstances. This, however, is a fallier of very common occurrence, both in judicial proceedings and in common life (1)

The modes in which facts may be so combined as to exclude every hypothese other than the one which it is intended to establish are very numerous, and are, I think, better learnt from specific illustrations and from actual practice than from abstract theories. One of the objects of the illustrations given in the next chapter is to enable students to understand this matter.

The result of the foregoing inquiries may be summed up as follows .-

Summary of

1. In judicial inquiries the facts which form the materials for the decision conclusions, of the court are the facts that certain persons assert certain things under certain (circumstances [67] These facts the judge hears with his own cars. He also es with his own eves documents and other things respecting which he hears riam assertions.

- II. His task is to infer-
  - (1) From what he limited hears and sees the existence of the facts asserted to exist.
  - (2) From the facts which on the strength of such assertions he believes to exist other facts which are not so asserted to exist.
- III. Each of these inferences is an inference from the effect to the cause, if an each ought to conform to the Method of Difference, that is to say, the cirmitances in each case should be such that the effect is inconsistent (subject the limitations contained in the following paragraphs) with the existence of yother cause for it than the cause of which the existence is proposed to be oved.
- IV. The highest result of judicial investigation must generally be, for the asons already given, to show that certain conclusions are more or less probable.
- V. The question—what degree of probability is it necessary to show, in der towarranta judicist produce and is identiin, regard being had to
- VII. This degree of probability varies in different cases to an extent which innot be strictly defined, but wherever it exists it may be called moral cerinty.

[68] CHAPTER III.

THE THEORY OF RELEVANCY, WITH ILLUSTRATIONS.

Relevancy means conevente pe cause and effect

An intelligence of sufficient capacity might perhaps be able to conceive of all events as standing to each other in the relation of cause and effect; and though the most powerful of human minds are unequal to efforts which fall infinitely short of this, it is possible not only to trace the connection between cause and effect, both in regard to human conduct and in regard to inanimate matter, to very considerable lengths, but to see that numerous events are connected together, although the precise nature of the links which connect them may not be open to observation. The connection may be traced in either direction, from effect to cause or from cause to effect, and if these two words were taken in their widest acceptation it would be correct to say that when any theory has been formed which alleges the existence of any fact, all facts are relevant which, if that theory was true, would stand to the fact alleged to exist either in the relation of cause or in the relation of effect.

Objections.

It may be said that this theory would extend the limits of relevancy beyond all reasonable bounds, masmuch as all events whatever are or may be more or [69]less remotely connected by the universal chain of cause and effect, so that the theory of gravitation would upon this principle be relevant wherever one of the facts in issue involved the falling of an object to the ground

Answer

The answer to this objection is, that wide, general causes, which apply to all occurrences, are, in most cases, admitted, and do not require proof; but no doubt if their application to the matter in question were doubtful or were misunderstood, it might be necessary to investigate them. For instance, suppose that in an action for infringing a patent, the defence set up was that the patent was invalid, because the invention had been anticipated by some one who preceded the patentee. The issue might be whether an earlier machine was substantially the same as the patentee's machine. All the facts, therefore, which went to make up each machine would be facts in issue. But each machine would be constructed with reference to the general formulæ called laws of nature and thus the existence of an an-allered ly relevant, but a fact in issue a patent, and had had to defe sure, according to the height c .

might have been facts in issue.

upon effects can be pe

Craceable causes on effects nar-

With regard to the remark that all events are connected together more or influence of less remotely as cause and affect it is to be abserted that the be true, it is equally > mit a murder, and it is notched and stained with blood in the process. The knife is carefully washed, the water is thrown away, and the notch in the blade is ground out. It is obvious, that, unless each link in this chain of cause and effect could be separately proved, it would be impossible to trace the connection between the knife cleaned and ground and the purpose for which it had been used. On the other hand, if the first step-the fact that the knife was bloody at a civen time and place-was proved, there would be no use in inquiring into the further effects produced by that fact, such as the staining of the water in which it was washed, the infinitesimal effects produced on the river into which the water was thrown, and so forth.

Illustra-

importance whether evidence of a particular fact is admitted or not. The extreme intricacy and minuteness of the law of England on this subject is prinrejection of a single quescivil case, and would upon of a conviction before the Court for Crown Cases reserved.

The improper admission or rejection of evidence in India has no effect at all unless the court thinks that the evidence improperly dealt with either turned or ought to have turned the scale. A judge, moreover, if he doubts as to the relevancy of a fact suggested, can, if he thinks it will lead to any thing relevant, ask about it himself under s. 165.

In order to exhibit fully the meaning of these sections, to show how the Act was intended to be worked and to furnish students with models by which they may be guided in the discharge of the most important of their duties, abstracts are appended of the evidence given at the following remarkable trials :-

- [74] 1. R. v Donellan.
  - R. v Belaney.
  - 3. R. v. Richardson
  - 4. R. r. Patch.
  - R. v. Palmer.

To every fact proved in each of these cases, the most intricate that I could discover, a note is attached, showing under what section of the Evidence Act it would be relevant.

I may observe upon these cases that the general principles of evidence are, perhaps, more clearly displayed in trials for murder, than in any others. Murders are usually concealed with as much care as possible; and, on the other hand, they must, from the nature of the case, leave traces behind them which render it possible to apply the argument from effects to causes with greater force in these than in most other cases Moreover as they involve capital punishment and excite peculiar attention, the evidence is generally investigated with special care. There are accordingly few cases which show so distinctly the sort of connection between fact and fact, which makes the existence of one fact a good ground for inferring the existence of another.

ĩ.

[75] Case of R. v. Donellan.(1)

John Donellan, Esq., was tried at Warwick Spring Assizes, 1781, before Mr. Justice Buller, for the murder of Sir Theodosius Broughton, his brother-inge,(2) who, up to the moment with the exception of a trifling was the sister of . lived with him at '

(1) Wills, on "Circumstantial Fridence," pp. (3) State of things under which facts in frame 102-6 happened (section 7)

(2) Introductory fact (section 9).

but subsequently removed them on the peremptory order of the prisoner.(1) On the arrival of the apothecary the prisoner said the deceased had been out the preceding evening fishing, and had taken cold, but he said nothing of the draught which he had taken.(1) The prisoner had a still in his own room which he used for distilling roses ;(2) and a few days after the death of Sir Theodosius he brought it full of wet lime to one of the servants to be cleaned.(3) The prisoner made several false and inconsistent statements to the servants as the cause of the young man's death ;(4) and on the day of his death he wrote to Sir W. Wheeler, his guardian, to inform him of the event, but made no reference to its suddenness.(4) The coffin was soldered up on the fourth day after the death.(5) Two days afterwards Sir W Wheeler in consequence of the rumouss which had reached him of the manner of Sir Theodosius's death, and that suspicions were entertained that he had died from the effects of poison,(6) wrote a letter to the prisoner requesting [79] that an examination might take place, and mentioning the gentlemen by whom he wished it to be conducted.(7) The prisoner accordingly sent for them, but did not exhibit Sir W. Wheeler's letter alluding to the suspicion that the deceased had been possoned, nor did he mention to them that they were sent for at his request. Having been induced by the prisoner to suppose the case to be one of ordinary death,(8) and finding the body in an advanced state of putrefaction, the medical gentleman declined to make the examination on the ground that it might be attended with personal danger. following day a medical man who had heard of their refusal to examine the body offered to do so, but the pusoner declined his offer on the ground that he had not been directed to send for him (9) On the same day the prisoner wrote to Sir W. Wheeler a letter in which he stated that the medical men had fully satisfied the family, and endeavoured to account [80] for the event by the at state that

W. Wheeler wrote to the ne,(12) which, however, he prevented by and the body was interred without ex-circumstances having become known to the coroner, he caused the body to be disinterred and examined on the eleventh day after death. Putrefaction was found to be far advanced, and the head was not opened, nor the bowels examined, and in other respects the

(1) Subsequent conduct and explanatory statements (section 8)

- (2) Opportunity to distil Liurel water, the poison and to have been used (section 7)
  - (3) Subsequent conduct (section 8)
  - (4) Admissions, 17, 18.
  - (5) Introductory to what follows (section 9).
- (6) Introductory to, and explanatory of, what follows (section 9). It should be observed that proof of the rumours and supricious for the purpose of showing the truth of the matters rumoured and suspected would not be admissible. The fact that there were rumours and suspecious explains St W, Wheeler's letter.
- (7) Statement to the prisoner and affecting his conduct (section 8, ex. 2)
- (3) Subsequent conduct of prisoner (section 4) and Mr. Wills' comment on the conduct
- (9) Subsequent conduct (section 8) The fact that the first set of doctors refused explains the

- prisoner's conduct by showing that it had the effect of preventing examinations (section 7). The ground on which they refused tends to rebut this inference (section 9), but the second doctor's offer, and the prisoner's conduct thereon, tend to confirm it (section 9)
- (10) Sulsequent conduct (section 11) and admission (section 17).
  - (11) Introductory (section 9)
- (12) Statement to the prisoner affecting his conduct (section 8, ex. 2.)
- (13) Each contrivance and each circumstance which showed that it was disingenuous would come under the head of subsequent conduct (section 8).
- (14) The burial was part of the transaction (section 6). The absence of examination is explanatory of parts of the medical evidence. The whole is introductory to medical evidence (section 9).

examintion was incomplete.(1) When Lady Broughton, in giving evidence before the coroner's inquest, related the circumstance of the prisoner having rinsed the bottles, he was observed to take hold of her sleeve and endeavour to check her, and he afterwards told her that she had no occasion to have mentioned that circumstance, but only to answer such questions as were put to her, and in a letter to the coroner and jury he [81] endeavoured to impress them with the belief that the deceased had inadvertently possened himself, with arsenic, which he had purchased to kill fish.(2) Upon the trial four medical men-three physicians and an anothecary-were examined on the part of the prosecution, and expressed a very decided opinion mainly grounded upon the symptoms, the suddenness of the death, the post-mortem appearances, the smell of the draught as observed by Lady Broughton, and the similar effects produced by experiments upon animals, that the deceased had been poisoned with laurel water ,(3) one of them stating that on opening the body he had been affected with a biting acrimonious taste like that which affected him in all the subsequent experi ments with laurel water.(1) An eminent(5) surgeon and anatomist stated a positive opinion that the symptoms did not necessarily lead to the conclusion that the deceased had been poisoned, and that the appearances presented upon dissection explained nothing but putrefaction.(3) The prisoner was convicted and executed.

11

[82] Case of R. v. Belaney.(6)

A surgeon named Belaney was tried at the Central Criminal Court, August 18th, before Mr. Baron Gurney, for the murder of his wife. They left their place of residence, at North Sunderland, on a journey of pleasure to London on the 1st of June (having a few days previously made mutual wills in each other's favour), (7) whereon the 4th of that month they went into lodgings. (8) The deceased.

Journey; but On the 8th bei-rang the bell f

wife were heard conversing in their chamber about seven o'clock. About a quarter before eight the prisoner called the landlady upstairs, saying that his wife was very ill; and she found her lying motionless on the bed, with her eyes shut and her teeth closed, and foaming at the [83] mouth. On being asked if she was subject to fits, the prisoner said she had had fits before, but

- (2) Subsequent conduct (section 4) and admis-
- sions (section 17).
  (3) Opinion of experts (section 45).
- (4) This is a case of testing a fact in issue, cir. the laurel water present in the body. See definition of fact, section 3
- (5) This was the famous John Hunter.
- (6) Wills on "Circumstantial Evidence," pp. 175-178.
- (7) Motive (section 8). (8) Introductory (section 9).
  - (9) State of things under which fact in issue
- (9) State of things under which fact in issue happened (section 7). (10) Preparation (section 8).

<sup>(1)</sup> Introductory to opinions of experts (sections 9, 45, 46).

none like this, and that she would not come out of it. On being pressed to send for a doctor, the prisoner said he was a doctor himself, and should have let blood before, but there was no pulse. On being further pressed to send for a doctor and his friends he assented, adding that she would not come to; that this was an affection of the heart, and that her mother died in the same way nine months of the prisoner's friends,

's feet and hands in warm A medical man was sent ere was a tumbler close to the head of the bed, about one-third full of something clear, but whiter than water; and there was also an empty tumbler on the other side of the table, and a paper of Epsom salts.(2) In reply to a question from a medical man whether the deceased had taken any medicine that morning, the prisoner stated that she had taken nothing but a little salts (3) On the same morning the prisoner ordered a grave for interment on the following Monday.(4) In the [84] meantime the contents of the stomach were examined and found to contain prussic acid and Epsom salts. It was deposed that the symptoms were similar to those of death by prussic acid, but might be the result of any powerful sedative poison, and that the means resorted to by the prisoner were not likely to promote recovery, but that colde flusion, artificial respiration, and the application of brandy or ammonia (which in the shape of smelling salts is found in every house) and other stimulants were the appropriate remedies, and might probably have been effectual. Nosmellof prussic acid had been discovered in the room, though it has a very strong odour, but the window was open, and it was stated that the odour is soon dissipated by a current of air (5) The prisoner had purchased prussic acid, as also acetate of morphine, on the preceding day, from a vendor of medicines with whom he was intimate . but he had been in the habit of using these poisons under advice for a semplar to the Two days after the fatal event the prison had been called in and who had assisted in

. on the morning in question he was about to take some prussic acid that on endeavouring to remove the stopper he had [85] some difficulty, and used some force with the handle of a tooth brush , that in consequence of breaking the neck of the bottle by the force, some of the acid was spilt; that he placed the remainder in the tumbler on the drawers at the end of the bed room, that he went into the front room to fetch a bottle wherein to place the acid, but instead of so doing began to write to his friends in the country, when in a few minutes he heard a scream from his wife's bed-room, calling for cold water, and that the prussic acid was undoubtedly the cause of her death. Upon being asked what he had done with the bottle, the prisoner said he had destroyed it; and on being asked why he had not mentioned the circumstance before, he said he had not done so because he was so distressed and ashamed at the consequence of his negligence, To cious

Hotel men

Houand, and intimated his apprehension of a miscarriage. For these statements there was no foundation. At that time moreover he had removed from

<sup>(1)</sup> The death and attendant curcumstances are facts in resus and part of the transaction (sections 5, 26) The other facts are conduct (section 8) and admissions (sections 17, 14)

<sup>(2)</sup> State of things at death, or cause or effect of win instrution of poison (section 7)

<sup>(3)</sup> Admissions (sections 17, 14).

<sup>(4)</sup> Conduct (section 8)

<sup>(5)</sup> Effect of possening (section 7), opinions of experts (sections 45, 46) The absence of the smell of pressic acul and the presence of the drafts are respectively a fact suggesting the absence of prussic send, and a fact rebutting that inference (section 9).

<sup>(6)</sup> Preparation (section 8) and fact rebutting inference from purchase of poison (section 9).

the Euston Hotel into lodgings, and on the same day he had made arrangements for leaving his wife in London, and proceeding himself on his visit to Holland In another letter, dated 8th of June, and posted after his wife's death, though it could not be determined whether it was written before or after, the prisoner stated that [86] he had had his wife removed from the hotel to private lodgings. where the was dangerously ill and attended by two medical men, one of whom had pronounced her heart to be diseased, these representations were equally false. In another letter, dated the 9th of June, but not posted until the 10th. he stated the fact of his wife's death, but without any allusion to the cause : and in a subsequent letter he stated the reason for the suppression to be to conceal the shame and reproach of his negligence. The prisoner's statement to his landlady that his wife's mother had died from disease of the heart was also a falsehood, the prisoner having himself stated in writing to the registrar of burnals that brain fever was the cause of death.(1) It was, however, proved that the prisoner was of a kind disposition, that he and his wife had lived upon affectionate terms and that he was extremely careless in his habits (2) and no motive for so horrible a deed was clearly made out, though it was urged that it was the desire of obtaining her property by means of her testamentary disposition.(3) Upon the whole, though the case was to the last degree suspicious, it was certainly possible that an accident might have taken place in the way suggested, and the jury brought in a verdict of acquittal.

The two cases of Donellan and Belaney are not merely curious in them Remarks selves, by which co

said is a question, not of calculation, but of prudence. The cases in question show that different tribunals at different times do not measure it in precisely the same way. In Donellan's case the jury did not think the possibility that iney's case the jury

the poison by acci-

pressed, they would,

I think, be as nearly as possible equal, and it might be said that both or that neither ought to have been convicted if it were not for the all-important principle that every case is independent of every other, and that no decision upon facts forms a precedent for any other decision. If two juries were to try the very same case, upon the same evidence and with the same summing up and the same the old criminal law of Europe, and of [88] England as well as of other countries produced many had effects, one of which was that it intimidated those who had to put it in force. The saying that it is better that ten criminals should escape than that one innocent man should be convicted expresses this sentiment, which has I think been carried too far, and has done much to enervate the administration of justice.

<sup>(1)</sup> All these are admissions (sections 17, 13). (2) Character (section 53), and conduct (section 3). (3) Motive (section 8).

III.

[89] Case of R. v. Richardson.(1)

In the autumn of 1786 a young woman, who lived with her parents in a remote district in the stewartry of Kirkeudbright, (2) was one day left alone in the cotta the cotta that the stewarts of Kirkeudbright, (2) was one day left alone in the cotta that the cotta

The circumstances in which she was found, the character of the deceased, and the appearance of the wound, all concurred in excluding all supportion of suicide (7) while the surgeous who examined the wound were satisfied that [80] it had been inflicted by a sharp instrument, and by a person who must have held the wappon in his left hand (8) Upon opening the body the deceased appeared to have been some months gone with child (9) and on examining the ground about the cottage there were discovered the footsteps of a person who

The prints of the footsteps were accurately measured and an exact impression have

1 - ...... alu 1 - an munuma hantilu from the attending also along the track of the footsteps, and at certain intervals drops of blood, and on a stile or small gateway near the cottage, and in the line of the footsteps some marks resembling those of a hand which had been bloody.(12) Not the slightest suspicion at this time [91] attached to any particular person as the murderer, nor was it even suspected who might be the father of the child of which the girl was pregnant. (13) At the funeral a number of persons of both sexes attended,(14) and the steward-depute thought it the fittest opportunity of endeavouring, if possible, to discover the murderer conceiving rightly that, to avoid suspicion, whoever he was he would not on that occasion be absent (12) With this view he called together, after the interment the whole of the men who were present, being about sixty in number. (14) He caused the shoes of each of them to be taken off and measured, and one of the shoes was found to resemble pretty nearly the impression of the footsteps near to the cottage. The wearer of the shoe was the schoolmaster of the parish, which led to a suspicion that he must have been the father of the child, and had been guilty of the murder to save his character. On a closer examination of the shoe it was discovered that it was pointed at the toe, whereas the impression of the footstep was round that

<sup>(1)</sup> Wills, pp. 225—229 Mr Wills observes, ""This case is also concessly stated in the Memoirs of the Life of Sir Walter Scott, IV, p. 52, and it supplied one of the most striking incidents in Guy Mannenne."

<sup>(2)</sup> Introductory (section 9)

<sup>(3)</sup> Opportunity (section 7).

<sup>(4)</sup> Explanatory (section 9)

 <sup>(5)</sup> Mr Wills' comment. They found her with the throatcut, and Mr. Wills says, she was murdered, but her murder was to them an inference, not a factise-tion 3;

<sup>(6)</sup> Fact in issur (section 5)

<sup>(7)</sup> Suicide would be a relevant fact as being inconsistent with murder. The facts which exclude suicide are relevant as inconsistent with a relevant fact (section 11).

<sup>(8)</sup> Opinions of experts (section 45)
(9) State of things under which death happened (section 7) Motire (section 8)

<sup>(10)</sup> Effects of facts in issue (section 7)

<sup>(11)</sup> The st so stated as to mx up inference and fact. Stripped of inference, the fact might have been stated thus, "There were such marks in the beg as would have been produced if a presson crossing the stepping-stone had stripped with one foot. The mad was of such a depth that a person as slapping would get we'r in the maller of the beg."

<sup>(12)</sup> Effects of fact in Issue (section 7)

<sup>(13)</sup> Observation,

<sup>(14)</sup> Introductory (section 9)

at that place.(1) The measurement of the rest went on, and after going through nearly the whole number one at length was discovered which corresponded exactly with the impression in dimensions, shape of the foot, form of the sole, and the number and position of the nails.(2) William Richardson, the young man to [92] whom the shoe belonged on being asked where he was the day deceased was murdered, replied, seemingly without embarassment, that he had been all that day employed at his master's work, (3) - a statement which his master and fellow-servants who were present confirmed.(4) This going so far to remove suspicions a warrant of commitment was not then granted, but some circumstanc's occurring a few days afterwards having a tendency to excite it tion(6) he acknowledg ... tches being observed on his cheel in a wood a few days before.(8) his having been on the day of the murder employed constantly in his master's work : (9) but in the course of the inquiry it turned out that he had been absent from his work about half an hour, the time being distinctly ascertained, in the course of the forenoon of that day; that he called at a smith's shop under the pretence of wanting something which it did not appear that he had any occasion for: and that this smith's shop was in the way to the cottage of the deceased.(9) 1 1.

would intercept him from her view, and which was the very track where the footsteps had been traced.(10)

His fellow-servants now recollected that on the forenoon of that day they were employed with Richardson in driving their master's carts, and that when passing by a wood which they named, he said that he must run to the [94] smith's shop and would be back in a short time. He then left his cart under their charge, and, having waited for him about half an hour, which one of the servants ascertained by having at the time looked at his watch, they remarked on his return that he had been absent a longer time than he said he would be, to which he replied that he had stopped in the wood to gather some nuts. They observed at the same time one of his stockings wet and soiled as if he had stepped

<sup>(1)</sup> Irrelevant.

<sup>(2)</sup> The making of the footmark was an effect of, or conduct subsequent to and effected by, a fact in issue (section 7) The measurement of the sixty shoes, of which one only corresponded exactly with the mark, was a fact, or rather a set of facts, making highly probable the relevant fact that that shoe made that mark (section 11, The experiment itself is an application of the method of difference. This shoe would make the mark, and no other of a very large number would.

<sup>(3)</sup> This would be relevant against him, but not in his favour as an admission (sections, 17-

<sup>(4)</sup> The fact that his master and fellow-servant confirmed his statement is irrelevant. If they had testified afterwards to the fact itself, it would have been relevant. (5) Irrelevant.

<sup>(6)</sup> By Scotch law, as well as by the Code of Criminal Procedure, a prisoner may be examined.

<sup>(7)</sup> The fact that he was left-handed would be a cause of a fact in issue, eve, the peculiar war in which the fatal wound was given. The admission that he was left-handed would be relevant as proof of the fact by sections 17, 18

<sup>(8)</sup> If it was suggested that the scratches were made in a struggle with the girl, they would be effects of a fact in issue (section 7), and the state. ment would be relevant as against the prisoner as an admission (sections 17, 18)

<sup>(9)</sup> Opportunity (section 7) Admissions (sections 17, 18) The call at the shop was preparation by making evidence (section 8, illustration (e) (10) There is here a mixture of fact and inference , the gurl could not know that a murder was committed at the time when it was committed Probably she mentioned the time, and it correspended with the time when Richardson was away This would be preparation and opportunity (sec. tion 7). The existence of the small eminence explains her not seeing him return (section 9), and out a march the name of which he menhave been either nath which went was absent with s fellow-servants irned to them.(1) .y.(2) They were found concealed in the thatch of the apartment where he slept, and appeared to be much soiled, and to have some drops of blood on them. (3) The first he accounted for by saying, first, that his nose had been bleeding some days before; but it being observed that he wore other stockings on that day, he said he had assisted in bleeding a horse, but it was proved that he had not assisted. [95] and had stood at such a distance that the blood could not have reached him.(4) On examining the mud or sand upon the stockings, it appeared to correspond precisely with that of the mire or puddle adjoining the cottage, and which was of a very particular kind, none other of the same kind being found in that neighbourhood.(5) The shoemaker was then discovered who had mended his shoes a short time before, and he spoke distinctly to the shoes of the prisoner which were exhibitd to him as having been those he had mended. (6) It then came course with her, and, on being taunted with having such connection with one in her situation, he seemed much ashamed and greatly [96] hurt. (7) It was proved further by the person who sat next him when his shoes were measuring, that he trembled much and seemed a good deal agitated, and that, in the interval between that time and his being apprehended, he had been advised to fly, but lus answer was, " Where can I fly to "(8)

h

On the other hand, evidence was brought to show that about the time of n the object many from Traland had landed on that part of the coast near was said that some of the crew might ir motives for doing so it was difficult bbery was their purpose, or that any thing was missing from the cottages in the neighbourhood. The prisoner was convicted, confessed, and was hanged.

This case illustrates the application of what Mr. Mill calls the method of agreement upon a scale which excludes the supposition of chance, thus :-

(1) The murderer had a motive, -Richardson had a motive.

Remarks on Richardson s case

> (I) All these facts are either opportunity or preparation or subsequent or previous conduct of admissions (sections 7, 8, 17)

(2) Introductory to next fact (section 91) (3) The concesiment is subsequent conduct

(section 8) The state of the stockings is the effect of a fact in beur (section 7)

(4) The falschoods are subsequent conduct (section 8), or admissions (sections 17 & 14) The Prisoner's allegation about the horse is an allegation of a fact explaining the relevant fact, that there was blood on the stockings (section 9); and the fact proved about his distance from the horse as a fact rebutting the inferince auggested thereby, that the blood was the horse's (section 9)

(5) Effect of a fact in issue (section 7) The similarity of the sand on the stockings to the sand in the marsh was one of the effects of the slip which was the effect of the murder

(6) That the marks were made by the presoner's shoe was relevant as an effect of facts in 1sque That the shoes which made the marks were the prisoner's had been already proved by their being found on his feet. This further proof seems superfluous, unless it was suggested that they belonged to some one else

(7) The opinion about her would be irrelevant The fact that her intellect was weak would be nart of the state of things under which the murder happened, and with what follows would show motive (sections 7, 8)

(8) Subsequent conduct (section 10) weight of this is very slight.

(9) Opportunity for the murder (section 7)-

- (2) The murderer had an opportunity at a certain hour of a certain day in a certain place,—Richardson had an opportunity on that hour of that day at that place.
- [97] (3) The murderer was left-handed,-Richardson was left-handed.
- (4) The murderer were shoes which made certain marks, -Richardson were shoes which made exactly similar marks.
- (5) If Richardson was the murderer and wore stockings, they must have been solled with a peculiar kind of sand,—he did wear stockings which were soiled with that kind of sand.
- (6) If Richardson was the murderer, he would naturally conceal his stockings,—he did conceal his stockings.
- (7) The murderer would probably get blood on his clothes,—Richardson got blood on his clothes.
- (8) If Richardson was the murderer, he would probably tell lies about the blood,—he did tell lies about the blood.
- (9) If Richardson was the murdeter, he must have been at the place at the time in question,—a man very like him was seen running towards the place at the time.
- (10) If Richardson was the murderer, he will probably tell lies about his proceedings during the time when the murder was committed,—he told such here.

Here are ten separate marks, five of which must have been found in the murderer, one of which must have been found on the murderer if he wore stockings, whilst others probably would be found in him.

All ten were found in Richardson. Four of them were so distinctive that they could hardly have met in more than one man. It is hardly imaginable that two left-handed men, wearing precisely similar shoes and closely [98] re-sistent with Richardson's innocence.

IV.

[99] Case of R. t. Patch.(1)

iker, ving d of ar-

It ally

from the business, which the prisoner was to manage, and the former was to have two-thirds of the profits, and the prisoner the remaining third, for which he was to pay £1,250. Of this amount, £250 was paid in cash, and a draft was given for the remainder upon a person named Goom, which would become payable on the 16th of September, the prisoner representing that he had received the purchase-money of an estate and lent it to Goom.(1) On the 16th of Sentember the prisoner represented to Mr. Blight's bankers that Goom could not take [100] up the bill, and withdrew it, substituting his own draft upon Goom to fall due on the 20th September (2) On the 19th of September the deceased went to visit his wife at Margate, and the prisoner accompanied him as far as Deptford.(3) and then went to London and represented to his bankers that Goom would not be able to face his draft, but that he had obtained from him a note which satisfied him, and therefore they were not to present it.(4) The prisoner boarded in Mr. Blight's house, and the only other inmate was a female servant, whom the prisoner about eight o'clock the same evening (the 19th) sent out to procure some oysters for his supper.(5) During her absence a gun or pistol ball was fired through the shutter of a parlour fronting the Thames, where the family, when at home, usually spent their evenings. It was low water, and the mud was so deep that any person attempting to escape in that direction must have been suffocated, and a man who was standing near the gate of the wharf, which was the only other mode of escape, heard the report, but saw no person (6) From the manner in which [101] the ball entered the shutter it was clear that it had been discharged by some person who was close to the shutter, and the river was so much below the level of the house, that the ball, if it had been fired from thence, must have reached a much higher part than that which it struck. The prisoner declined the offer of the neighbours to remain in the house with him that night.(7) On the following day he wrote to inform the deceased of the transaction, stating his hope that the shot had been accidental, that he knew of no person who had any animosity against him, that he wished to know for whom it was intended, and that he should be happy to hear from him, but much more so to see him.(8) Mr. Blight returned home on the 23rd September, having previously been to London to see his bankers on the subject of the £1,000 draft (9) Upon getting home, the draft became the subject of conversation, and the deceased desired the prisoner to go to London, and not to return without the money.(10) Upon his return the prisoner and the deceased spent the evening in the back parlour, a different one from that in which the family usually sat (11) About eight o'clock the prisoner went from the parlour into the kitchen, and asked [102] the servant for a candle, (12) complaining that he was disordered, (13) The prisoner's way from the kitchen was through an outer door which fastened by a spring lock, and across a paved court in front of the house which was enclosed by palisades, and through a gate over a wharf in front of that court, on which there was the kind of soil peculiar tion (section 8).

(1) Mouve (section 8).

<sup>(2)</sup> Preparation (section 8)

<sup>(3)</sup> Introductory (section 9), but unimportant (4) Preparation (section 8)

<sup>(5)</sup> Explains what follows (section 9) Prepara-

<sup>(6)</sup> The suggestion was that Patch fired the shot himself in order to make evidence in his own favour. This would be preparation (section 8) Hence his firing the shot would be a relevant fact

The facts in the text are facts which, taken together, make it lighly probable that he did so, as they show . that he and no one else had the opportunity and that it was done by some one (section 11)

The last fact illustrates the remarks made at pages 40, 41 The inference from the facts stated, assuming them to be true, is necessary, but, suppove that the " man standing near the gate" saw some one running, and for reasons of his own denied it, how could be be contradicted ?

<sup>(7)</sup> Conduct (section 8).

<sup>(8)</sup> Preparation (section 8)

<sup>(9)</sup> Hardly relevant, except as introductory to what follows (section 9)

<sup>(10)</sup> Motive (section 8)

<sup>(11)</sup> State of things under which facts in issue happened (section 7)

<sup>(12)</sup> Preparation (section 8)

<sup>(13)</sup> Preparation (section 8).

to premises for breaking up ships, and then through a counting-house. All of these doors, as well as the door of the parlour, the prisoner left open, notwithstanding the state of alarm excited by the former shot. The servant heard the privy door slam, and almost at the same moment saw the flash of a pistol at the door of the parlour where the deceased was sitting, upon which she ran and shut the outer door and gate. The prisoner immediately afterwards rapped loudly at the door for admittance with his clothes in disorder. He evinced great apparent concern for Mr. Blight, who was mortally wounded. and died on the following day. From the state of the tide and from the testimony of various persons who were on the outside of the premises, no person could have escaped from them.(1)

In consequence of this event Mrs. Blight returned home,(2) and the prisoner in answer to an inquiry about the draft [103] which had made her husband so uneasy told her that it was paid, and claimed the whole of the property as his own (3) Suspicion soon fixed upon the prisoner,(1) and in his sleeping room was found a pair of stockings rolled up like clean stockings, but with the feet plastered over with the sort of soil found on the wharf, and a ramrod was found in the privy.(5) The prisoner usually wore boots; but on the evening of the murder he wore shoes and stockings (6) It was supposed that to prevent alarm to the deceased or the female servant, the murderer must have approached without his shoes, and afterwards gone on the wharf to throw away the pistol into the river.(7) All the prisoner's statements as to his pecumary transactions with Goom and his right to draw upon him, and the payment of the bill, turned out to be false.(8) He attempted to tamper with the servant girl as to her evidence before the coroner, and urged her to keep to one account ,(9) and before that officer he made several inconsistent statements as to his pecuniary transactions with the deceased and equivocated much as to whether he were [104] boots or shoes on the evening of the murder, as well as to the ownership of the soiled stockings, (10) which, however, were clearly proved to be his, and for the soiled state of which he made no attempt to account.(10) The prisoner suggested the existence of malicious feelings in two persons with whom the deceased had been on ill-terms.(11) but they had no motive(12) for doing him any injury; and it was clearly proved that upon both occasions of attack they were at a distance.(13)

Patch's case illustrates the method of difference(14) and the whole of it Remarks on may be regarded as a very complete illustration of section 11. The general cases effect of the evidence is, that Patch had motive and opportunity for the murder. and that no one else, except himself, could have fired either the shot which caused the murdered man's death, or the shot which was intended to show that the (14) P. 34.

<sup>(1)</sup> These facts collectively are inconsistent with the firing of the shot by anyone except Patch (section 11) They would also be relevant as being either facts in issue, or the state of things under which facts in issue happened (section 7), or as preparation or opportunity (sections 7 & 8, illustration A)

<sup>(2)</sup> Introductory (section 9)

<sup>(3)</sup> Subsequent conduct influenced by a fact in issue (section 8)

<sup>(4)</sup> Irrelevant

<sup>(5)</sup> Effect of fact in issue (section 7)

<sup>(6)</sup> State of things under which facts in issue happened (section 7).

<sup>(7)</sup> Fact and inference are mixed up in this statement; the facts are (1) that the state of things was such that the deceased and his servant would have heard the steps of a man with shoes on under the window; and (2) that a person who wished to throw anything into the Thames would have to go on to the wharf.

<sup>(8)</sup> Preparation (section 8).

<sup>(9)</sup> Subsequent conduct (section 8), and admissions (sections 17 & 18)

<sup>(10)</sup> Effect of fact in issue (section 7)

<sup>(11)</sup> Motive (section 8)

<sup>(12)</sup> s.e., no special motive beyond general ill-

<sup>(13)</sup> Facts inconsistent with relevant fact (seetion 11).

murdered man had enemies who wished to murder him. The relevancy of the first shot arose from the suggestion that it was an act of preparation. The proof that it was fired by Patch consisted of independent facts, showing that it was fired, and that he and no one else could have fired it. The firing of the second shot by which the murder was committed was a fact in issue. The proof of it by a strange[105] combination of circumstances was precisely similar in principle to the proof as to the first shot

The case is also very remarkable as showing the way in which the chain of cause and effect links together facts of the most dis-similar kind; and this proves that it is impossible to draw a line between relevant and irrelevant facts, otherwise than by enumerating as completely as possible the more common forms in which the relation of cause and effects displays itself. In Patch's case the firing of the first shot was an act of preparation by way of what is called " making evidence," but the fact that Patch fired it appeared from a combination of circumstances which showed that he might, and that no one else could, have done so It is easy to conceive that some one of the facts necessary to complete this proof might have had to be proved in the same way. For instance, part of the proof that Patch fired the shot consisted in the fact that no one left certain premises by a certain gate which was one of the suppositions necessary to be negatived in order to show that noone but Patch could have fired the shot The proof given of this was the , evidence of a man standing near, who said that at the time in question noone did pass through the gate in his presence, or could have done so unnoticed Suppose that the proof had been that the gate had not been used for a long time, that spiders' webs had been spun all over the opening of the gate, that they were unbroken at night and remained unbroken in the morning after the shot, and that it was impossible that they should have been spun after the shot was fired and [106] before the gate was examined. In that case the proof would have stood thus - Patch's preparations for the murder were relevant to the question whether he committed it Patch's firing the first shot was one of his preparations for the murder. The facts meonistent with his not having fired the shot were relevant to the question whether he fired it. The fact that a certain door was not opened between certain hours was one of the facts which, taken together, were inconsistent with his not having fired the shot. The fact that a spider's web was whole overnight and also in the morning was inconsistent with the door having been opened.

Inversely the integrity of the spider's web was relevant to the opening of the door; the opening of the door was relevant to the firing of the first shot; the firing of the first shot was relevant to the firing of the second shot; and the firing of the second shot was a fact in issue; therefore the integrity of the spider's web was relevant to a fact in issue.

٠.

[107] CASE OF R. v. PALMEE.(1)

On the 14th of May, 1836, William Palmer was tried at the Old Bailey, under powers conferred on the Court of Queen's Bench by 19 Vic., c. 16, for the murder of John Parsons Cook at Rugeley, in Staffordshire. The trial lasted twelve days, and ended on the 27th May, when the prisoner was convicted, and received sentence of death, on which he was afterwards executed at Stafford.

<sup>(1)</sup> Reprinted from my "Leveral Vies o the Criminal Law of England," p 357.

Palmer was a general medical practitioner at Rugeley, much engaged in sporting transactions. Cook, his intimate friend, was also a sporting man, and after attending Shrewshury races with him on the 13th November, 1855, returned in his company to Rugeley and died at the Talbot Arms Hotel at that place, soon after midnight, on the 21st November, 1855, under cutumstances which raised a suspicion that he had been porsoned by Palmer. The case against Palmer was that he had a strong motive to murder his friend, and that his conduct before, at the time of, and after his death, coupled with the circumstances of the death itself, left no reasonable doubt [103] that he did murder him by poisoning him with antimony and strychnune, administered on various occasions—the antimony probably being used as a preparation for the strychnine.

' The evidence stood as follows' - At the time of Cook's death, l'almer was involved in bill transactions which appeared to have begun in the year 1853 His wife died in September, 1851, and on her death he received £13,000 on policies on her life, nearly the whole of which was applied to the discharge of his liabilities.(1) In the course of the year 1855 he raised other large sums, amounting in all to £13,500, on what purported to be acceptances of his mother's. The bills were renewed from time to time at enormous interest (usually sixty per cent. per annum) by a money-lender named Pratt, who, at the time of Cook's death, held eight bills-four on his own account and four on account of his chent; two already overdue and six others falling due-some in November and others in January. About £1,000 had been paid off in the course of the year, so that the total amount then due or shortly to fall due to Pratt, was £12,500. The only means which Palmer had by which these bills could be provided for was a policy on the life of his brother, Walter Palmer, for £13,000. Walter Palmer died in August, 1855,(2) and William Palmer had instructed Pratt to recover the amount from the insurance office, but the office refused to pay. In consequence of this difficulty, Pratt earnestly [109] pressed Palmer to pay something in order to keep down the interest or diminish the principal due on the bills. He issued writs against him and his mother on the 6th . be served at once, in all the Shrewsbury ra in all to £800, of which £600 went in reduction of the principal, and £200 was deducted for interest. It was understood that more money was to be raised as early as possible.

The result is, that about the time of the Shrewsbury races, Palmer was being pressed for payment on forged acceptances to the amount of nearly £20,000 and that his only resources were a certain amount of personal property, over which Wright held a bill of sale, and a policy for £13,000, the payment of which was refused by the [110] office. Should be succeed in obtaining payment, he might no doubt struggle through his difficulties. but there still remained the £1,000 antedated cheque given to Espin, which it was necessary to provide for at once by some means or other. That he had no funds of his own was proved by the fact that his balance at the bank on the 19th November was £9 6s, and that he had to borrow £25 of a farmer named Wallbank, to go to Shrewsbury races It follows that he was under the most pressing necessity to obtain a considerable sum of money, as even a short delay in obtaining it might involve him not only in insolvency, but in a prosecution for uttering forged acceptances

<sup>(1)</sup> A bill was found against him for her murder. (2) A bill was found against Palmer for his murder.

Besides the embarrassment arising from the bills in the hands of Pratt, Wright and Padwick, Palmer was involved in a transaction with Cook, which had a bearing on the rest of the case (ook and he were parties to a bill for £500 which Pratt had discounted giving £365 in cash, and a wine warrant for £65, and charging £60 for discount and expenses He also required an assignment of two race-horses of Cook' Pole-star and Sirus-as a collateral By Palmer's request the £365 in the shape of a cheque payable to Cook's order and the wine warrant were sent by post to Palmer at Doncaster. Palmer wrote Cook's endorsement on the cheque, and paid the amount to his own credit at the Bank at Rugeley On the part of the prosecution it was said that this transaction afforded a reason why Palmer should desire to be rid of Cook, masmuch as it amounted to a forgery by which [111] Cook was defrauded of £375. It appeared, however, on the other side, that there were £300 worth of notes relating to some other transaction, in the letter which enclosed the cheque, and as it did not appear that Cook has complained of getting no consideration for his acceptance, it was suggested that he had authorized Palmer to write his name on the back of the cheque, and had taken the notes himself. This arrangement seems not improbable, as it would otherwise be hard to explain why Cook acquiesced in receiving nothing for his acceptance, and there was evidence that he meant to provide for the bill when it became due. It also appeared late in the case that there was another bill for £500, in which Cook and Palmer were jointly interested,(1)

Such was Palmer's position when he went to Shrewsbury races, on Monday. the 12th November, 1855. Cook was there also; and on Tuesday, the 13th, his mare Pole-star won the Shrewsbury Handicap, by which he became entitled to the stal of worth about 1980 and I at a to 11 · £2,000. Of

> The rest was November.(1)

After the race Cook invited some of his friends to dinner at the Rayen Hotel, and on that occasion and on the following day he was both sober and well.(2) On the Wednesday night a man named Ishmael Fisher came into the sitting room, which Palmer shared with Cook, and [112] found them in company with some other men drinking brandy and water. Cook complained that the brandy "burned his throat dreadfully," and put down his glass with a small quantity remaining in it. Palmer drank up what was left, and, handing the glass to Read,

"What's ifterwards

sick, and,

* *** snoughe sine comment admirt had dusted Riffi. He also handed over to-Fisher £700 or £800 in notes to keep for him.(3) He then became sick again, and was ill all night, and had to be attended by a doctor. He told the doctor, Mr. Gibson, that he thought he had been poisoned, and he was treated on that

<sup>(1)</sup> All these facts go to show motive (section 8)

<sup>(3)</sup> Conduct of person against whom offence was (2) State of things under which the following committed, and statement explanatory of such facts occurred (arction 7). conduct (section 8, exp. 1).

n. in zw. . is ... I".' - "at Cook had said that he 1.5 He added that he did not the first quality desired with a I drunk the night beforewhich appeared not to be the case (2) Fisher did not expressly say that he returned the money [113] to Cook, but from the course of the evidence it seems that he did,(3) for Cook asked him to pay Pratt £200 at once, and to repay himself on the following Monday out of the bets which he would receive on Cook's account at the settling at Tattersall's.

About half-past ten on the Wednesday, and apparently shortly before Cook drank the brandy and water which he complained of, Palmer was seen by a Mrs. Brooks in the passage looking at a glass lamp, through a tumbler which contained some clear fluid like water, and which he was shaking and turning in his hand. There appears, however, to have been no secreey in this, as he spoke to Mrs. Brooks, and continued to hold and shake the tumbler as he did so.(4) George Myatt was called to contradict this for the prisoner. He said that he was in the room when Palmer and Cook came in , that Cook made a remark about the brandy, though he gave a different version of it from Fisher and Read; that he did not see anything put in it, and that if anything had been put in it he should have seen. He also swore that Palmer never left the room from the time he came in till Cook went to bed. He also put the time later than Fisher and Read.(5) All this, however, came to very little. It was the sort of difference which always arises in the details of evidence. As Myatt was a friend of Palmer's, he probably remembered the matter (perhaps honestly enough) in a way more favourable to him than the other witnesses.

[114] It appeared from the evidence of Mrs. Brooks, and also from that of a man named Herring, that other persons besides Cook were taken ill at Shrewsbury, on the evening in question, with similar symptoms. Mrs Brooks said, "We made an observation we thought the water might have been poisoned in Shrewsbury." Palmer himself vomited on his way back to Rugeley according to Myatt.(6)

The evidence as to what passed at Shrewsbury clearly proves that Palmer being then in great want of money, Cook was to his knowledge in possession of £700 or £800 in bank-notes, and was also entitled to receive on the following Monday about £1,400 more. It also shows that Palmer may have given him a dose of antimony, though the weight of the evidence to this effect is weakened by the proof that diarrhoes and vomiting were prevalent in Shrensbury at the time. It is, however, important in connection with subsequent events.

On Thursday, November 15th, Palmer and Cook returned together to Rugeley, which they reached about ten at night. Cook went to the Talbot Arms, and Palmer to his own house immediately opposite Cook still complained of being unwell. On the Friday he dined with Palmer in company with an attorney, Mr. Jeremiah Smith, and returned perfectly sober about ten in the evir Cook ove · his by ..

<sup>(1)</sup> The administration of antimony by Palmer would be a fact in usue, as being one of a set of acts of poisoning which finally caused Cook's death Cook's feelings were relevant as the effect of his being poisoned (section 7); and his statement as to them was relevant under section 14 as a statement showing the existence of a relevant bodily feeling. (2) Admission (sections 17, 18).

<sup>(3)</sup> Motive (section 8).

<sup>(4)</sup> Preparation (section 8)

<sup>(5)</sup> Evidence against last fact (section 5) (6) Facts rebutting inference suggested by preceding fact (section 9). (7) Introductory to what follows (section 9).

and shows state of things unfer which following facts occurred (section 7) room, an hour or two afterwards, it had been vomited.(1) In the course of the day, and apparently about the middle of the day, Palmer sent a charwoman, named Rowley, to get some broth for Cook at an una called Albion.

Albion. "I be the first of the course of the cour

The broth was given to Cook, who at first refused to take it. Palmer, however, came in, and said he must have it. The chambermaid brought back the broth which she had taken downstairs, and left it in the room. It also was thrown up.(1) In the course of the afternoon Palmer called in Mr Bamford, a surgeon eighty years of age, to see Cook, and told him that when Cook dined at his (Palmer's) house he had taken too much champagne (2) Mr Bamford, however, found no bilious symptoms about him, and he said he had only drunk two glasses, (3) On the Saturday night Mr Jetemah Smith slept in Cook's room, as he was still ill. On the Sunday, between twelve and one, Palmer sent over his gardener, [116] Hawley with some more broth for Cook.(4) Elizabeth Mills, the servant at the Talbot Arms, tasted it, taking two or the afternoon She was so ill that she had so taken to Cook, and the cup afterwards to have been taken and vomited, though the that point (5) By the Sanday's post Palmer wrote to Mr Jones, an apothecary and Cook's most intimate friend, to come and see him. He said that Cook was "confined to his bed with a severe billous attack, combined with diarthea," The servant Mills said there was no diarrhea (6) It was observed on the part of the defence that this letter was strong proof of innocence. The prosecution suggested that it was "part of a deep design, and was meant to make evidence in the prisoner's favour." The fair conclusion seems to be that it was an ambiguous act which ought to weigh neither way, though the falsehood about Cook's symptoms is suspicious as far as it goes.

On the night between Sunday and Monday Cook had some sort of attack. When the servant Mills went into his room on the Monday he said, "I was just mad for two minutes." She said, "Why did you not ring the bell?" He said, "I thought that you would beall fast asleep, [117] and not hear it." He also said he was disturbed by a quartel in the street. It might have waked and disturbed him, but he was not sure. This incident was not mentioned at first by Barnes and Mills, but was brought out on their being re-called at the request of the prisoner's counsel. It was considered important for the defence, as proving that Cook had had an attack of some kind before it was suggested that any strychnine was administered; and the principal medical witness for the defence, Mr. Nunneley, referred to it, with this view. (7)

On the Monday, about a quarter-past or half-past seven, Palmer again visited Cook; but as he was in London about half-past two, he must have gone to town by an early train. During the whole of the Monday Cook was

<sup>(1)</sup> Fact in issue and its effect, as this was an act of possoning (section 5)

<sup>(2)</sup> Conduct and statements explaining conduct (section 8)

<sup>(3)</sup> Rebuts inference in Palmer's favour, auggested by preceding fact and explains the object of his conduct by showing that his statement was false (section 9). Cook's statement relates to his state of body (section 14).

<sup>(4)</sup> Fact in usus—administration of poisons (section 5).

<sup>(5)</sup> Effects of facts in 14aue (section (7).

<sup>(6)</sup> Conduct (section 8), and explanation of it (section 9)

<sup>(7)</sup> Fact tending to rebut inference from previous fact (section 9)

much better. He dressed himself, saw a jockey and his trainer, and the sickness ceased.(1)

In the meantime Palmer was in London. He met by appointment a man named Herring, who was connected with the turf. Palmer told him he wished to settle Cook's account and read to him from a list, which Herring copied as Palmer read it, the particulars of the bets which he was to receive. They amounted to £981 clear. Of this sum Palmer Histructed Herring to pay £450 to Pratt and £350 to Padwick. The nature of the debt to Padwick was not proved in evidence, as Padwick himself was not called Palmer told Herring [118] the £450 was to settle the bill for which Cook had assigned his horses. He wrote Pratt on the same day a letter in these words .- " Dear Sir,-you will place the £50 I have just paid you, and the £450 you will receive from Mr. Herring, together £5(0), and the £200 you received on Saturday" (from Fisher) "towards payment of my mother's acceptance for £2,000, due 25th October."(2)

Herring received upwards of £800, and paid part of it away according to Palmer's dir "50 but the £350 was not paid to part was retained by Mr. Herring Herring received less than he expected. In his reply the Attorney-General said that the £350 intended to be paid t motive was to keep

to Espin on Padwick

of much importance. It was clearly intended to be paid to Padwick on account, not of Cook (except possibly as to a small part), but of Palmer. Palmer thus disposed, or attempted to dispose, in the course of Monday, Nov. 19th, of the whole of Cook's winnings for his own advantage. (3)

This is a convenient place to mention the final result of the transaction relating to the bill for £500, in which Cook and Palmer were jointly interested On the Friday [119] when Cook and Palmer dined together (Nov. 16), Cook wrote to Fisher (his agent) in these words -"It is of very great importance to both Palmer and myself that a sum of £500 should be paid to a Mr. Pratt of 5, Queen Street, Mayfair; 300l has been sent up to-night, and if you would be kind enough to pay the other £200 to-morrow, on the receipt of this, you will greatly oblige me. I will settle it on Monday at Tattersall's." Fisher did pay the £200, expecting, as he said to settle Cook's account on the Monday, and repay himself. On the Saturday, Nov. 17th (the day after the date of the letter), "a person," said Pratt, "whose name I did not know, called on me with a cheque, and paid me 300l. on account of the prisoner; that" (apparently the cheque, not the 300l) "was a cheque of Mr. Fisher's." When Pratt heard of Cook's death he wrote to Palmer, saying, "The death of Mr. Cook will now compel you to look about as to the payment of the bill for £500 due the 2nd of December."(4)

Great use was made of these letters by the defence. It was argued that they proved that Cook was helping Palmer, and was eager to relieve him from the pressure put on him by Pratt; that in consequence of this he not only took up the £500 bill, but authorized Palmer to apply the £800 to similar purposes, and to get the amount settled by Herring, instead of Fisher, so that Fisher might not stop out of it the £200 which he had advanced to Pratt, it was asked how it could be [120] Palmer's interest, on this supposition, that Cook

<sup>(1)</sup> Supports the inference suggested by the previous fact that Palmer's doses caused Cook's illness (section 9).

<sup>(2)</sup> Conduct and statement explanatory thereof

(section 8, ex. 2) (3) All this is Palmer's conduct, and is explanatory of it (sections 7, 9)

<sup>(4)</sup> Motive for not poisoning Cook (section 8).

should die, especially as the first consequence of his death was Pratt's application for the money due on the £500 bill.

These arguments were, no doubt, plausible, and the fact that Cook's death compelled Pratt to look to Palmer for the payment of the £500 lends them weight; but it may be asked, on the other hand, why should Cook give away the whole of his winnings to Palmer ' Why should Cook allow Palmer to appropriate to the diminution of his own habilities the £200 which Fisher had advanced to the credit of the bill on which both were hable? Why should he join with Palmer in a plan for defrauding Fisher of his security for this advance? No answer to any of these questions was suggested. As to the £300, Cook's letter to Fisher says. " £300 has been sent up this evening." There was evidence that Pratt never received it for he applied to Palmer for the money on Cook's death Moreover Pratt and that on the Saturday he did receive £300 on account of Palmer, which he placed to the account of the forged acceptance for £2,000 Where did Palmer get the money? The suggestion of the prosecution was that Cook gave it him to pay to Pratt on account of their joint bill, and that he paid it on his own account. This was probably the true view of the case. The observation that Pratt, on hearing of Cook's death, applied to Palmer to pay the £500 bill, is met by the reflection that that bill was genuine, and collaterally secured by the assignment of the race-horses, and that the other bill bore a forged acceptance, and must be satisfied at all hazards. [121] The result is that on the Monday evening Palmer had the most imperious interest in Cook's death, for he had robbed him of all he had in the world, except the equity of redemption in his two horses.

On Monday evening (Nov. 19th) Palmer returned to Rugeley, and went uest.

· and with him for having given Palmer anything. No doubt the concealment was improper, but nothing appeared on cross-examination to suggest that the witness was wilfully perjured.

Cook had been much better throughout Monday, and on Monday evening Mr. Bamford, who was attending him, brought some pills for him, which he left at the hotel. They contained neither antimony nor strychnine. They were taken up in the box in which they came to Cook's room by the chambermaid, and were left there on the dressing-table about eight o'clock. Palmer came (according to Barnes the waitress), between eight and nine, and Mills said she saw him sitting by the fire between nine and ten (2).

[122] If this evidence were believed, he would have had an opportunity of succeptifithing poisoned pills for those sent by Mr. Bamford just after he had, according to Newton, procured strychnine. The evidence, however, was contradicted by a witness called for the prisoner, Jeremiah Smith the attorney. He said that on the Monday evening, about ten minutes past ten, he saw Palmer coming in a car from the direction of Stafford; that they went up to Cook's room together, stayed two or three minutes and that they went up to Cook's room together, stayed two or three minutes and the cook of the process of the cook of the process of the cook of the cook he had taken them, and Palmer was late, taken them if he had thought Palmer wou

<sup>(1)</sup> Preparation (section 8)
(2) Opportunity. The rest is introductory evidence were believed it would of course have proved that Cook took the pills which Bamford sent as he sent them.(1) Smith, however, was cross-examined by the Attorney-General at great length. He admitted with the greatest reluctance that he had witnessed the assignment of a policy for £13,000 by Walter to William Palmer; that he wrote to an office to effect an insurance for £10,000 on the life of Bates, who was Palmer's groom, at £1 a week; that he tried, after Walter Palmer's death, to get his widow to give up her claim on the policy; that he was applied to to attest other proposals for insurances on Walter Palmer's he for similar amounts; and that he had got a cheque for £5 for attesting the assignment.(2)

[123] Lord Campbell said of this witness in summing up, "Can you believe a man who so distraces himself in the witness-box." It is for you to say what faith you can place in a witness, who, by his own admission, engaged in such fraudulent proceedings."

It is curious that though the credit of this witness was so much shaken in cross-examination, and though he was contradicted both by Mils and Newton, he i to the time when Palmer came down to the impector of police at the Euston sta after half-past two (when he met Herring) started at five, and reached Stafford It is about ten miles from Stafford so by the road in much less than about mic, "and Mills saw him

"between nine and ten." Aothing, however is more difficult than to speak accurately to time; on the other hand, if Smith spoke the truth, Newton could not have seen him at all that night, and Mills, if at all, must have seen him for a moment only in Smith's company. Mills never mentioned Smith, and Smith would not venture to swear that she or any one else saw him at the Talbot Arms. It was a suspicious circumstance that Serjeant Shee did not open Smith's erjury was alforded by [124] the which the defence were able to If Smith were disposed to tell puld enable him to do so with an

Whatever view is taken as to the effect of this evidence it was clearly proved that about the middle of the night between Monday and Tuesday Cook had a violent attack of some sort. About twelve or a little before, his bell rang; he screamed violently. When Mills, the servant, came in, he was sitting up in bed, and asked that l'almer might be fetched at once. He was beating the bed clothes; he said he should suffocate if he lay down. His lead and neck and his whole body jumped and jerked. He had great difficulty in breathing, and his eyes protruded. His had was stiff, and he asked to have it rubbed. Palmer came in, and gave him a draught and some pills. He snapped at the glass, and got both it and the spoon between his teeth. He had also great difficulty in swallowing the pills. After this he got more easy, and Palmer stayed by him some time, sleeping in an easy chair. (4)

<sup>(1)</sup> Evidence against the existence of the fact last mentioned (section 5).

<sup>(2)</sup> This cross-examination tended to test the veracity of the witness and to test his credit (section 146)

<sup>(3)</sup> Facts inconsistent with a relevant fact (section 11), and fixing the time of the occurrence of a relevant fact (section 9)

<sup>(4)</sup> Effect of fact in issue, viz , the administration of poison (section 7).

strychnine, and also by showing that she had been dulled as to the evidence which she was to give by [125] persons connected with the prosecution. She denied most of the suggestions conveyed by the questions asked her, and explained others.(1) As to the differences between her evidence before the coroner and at the trial, a witness (Mr. Gardner an attorney) was called to show that the depositions were not properly taken at the inquest.(2)

wards thrown up.(3)

e A little before or after this, the exact hour is not important, Palmer went to the shop of Hawkins, a druggist at Rugeley, and was there served by his apprentice Roberts with two drachms of prussic acid, six grains of strychnine, and two drachms of Batley's Sedative (4) Whilst he was making the purchase, Newton from whom he had obtained the other strychine the might before, came in; Palmer took him to the door, saying he wished to speak to him; [120] and when he was there asked him a question about the farm of a Mr. Edwin Salt—a matter with which he had nothing at all to do. Whilst they were there a third person came up and spoke to Newton, on which Palmer went back into Mawkins' shop and took away the things. Newton not seeing what he took.

**Was made to shake, or in any was made to shake, or in any

At about four P.M. Mr. Jones, the friend to whom Palmer had written, arrived from Lutterworth, 6) He examined Cook in Palmer's presence, and remarked that he had not the tongue of a bilious patient, to which Palmer replied, "You should have seen it before." Cook appeared to be better during the Tuesday, and was in good spirits (7) At about seven P.M. Mr. Bamford came in, and Cook told him in Palmer's presence that he objected to the pills, as they had made him ill the night before. The three medical men then had a private consultation. Palmer proposed that Bamford should make up the pills as on the night before, and that Jones should not tell Cook what they were made of, as he objected to the morphine which they contained. Bumford agreed, and Palmer went up to his house with him and got the pills, and was present whilst they were made up, put into a pill-box, [127] and directed. He took them away with him between seven and eight, (8) Cook was well and conflortable all the evening, he had no bilious symptoms, no vomiting, and no diarribox, (17)

Towards eleven Palmer came with a box of pills directed in Bamford's hand. He called Jones' attention to the goodness of the handwriting for a man of eighty. (9) It was suggested by the prosecution that the reason for this was to impress Jones with the fact that the pills had been made up by Bamford. With reference to Smith's evidence it is remarkable that Bamford on the second night sent the pills, not "between mine and ten," but at cleven. Palmer

(1) Former statements inconsistent with evidence (section 155).

(section 8), definition of 'shall presume.'

(3) Part of the transaction of poisoning (section 8)
(4) Preparation (section 8)

(5) Conduct (section 8)

(0) Introductory (section 0)
(7) State of things under which Cook was poisoned (section 7).

(8) Preparation (section 8)

(9) Conduct and statement (section 8, ex 2)

<sup>(2)</sup> The depositions before the coroner would be a proper mole of proof as being a recent of a relevant fact made by a public servant in the ducharge of his official duty section 533, and any document parporting to be such a deposition would on production be presumed to be spenume and the evidence would be presumed to be duly taken (exciton value).

pressed Cook to take the pills, which at first he refused to do, as they had madehim so ill the night before. At last he dulso, and immediately afterwards vomited. Jones and Palmer both examined to see whether the pills had been thrown up, and they found that they had not. This was about eleven. Jones then had his supper, and went to bed in Cook's room about twelve. When he had been in bed a short time, perhaps ten munites, Cook started up and called out, "Doctor, get up; I am going to be ill; ring the bell for Mr. Palmer." He also said, "Rub my neck." The back of his neck was stiff and hard. Mills ran across the rood to Palmer's and rang the bell. Palmer immediately came to the bed-room window and said he would come at once. Two minutes afterwards he was in Cook's room, and [128] said he had never dressed so quick in his life. He was dressed as usual. The suggestion upon this was that he had been stifting up expecting to be called.(1)

By the time of Palmer's arrival Cook was very ill. Jones, Elizabeth Mills, and Palmer were in the room, and Barnes stood at the door. The muscles of his neck were stiff; he screamed loudly. Palmer gave him what he said were two ammonia pills. Immediately afterwards-too soon for the pills to have any effect-he was dreadfully convulsed. He said, when he began to be convulsed, "Raise me up, or I shall be suffocated." Palmer and Jones tried to do so, but could not, as the limbs were rigid. He then asked to be turned over, which was done. His heart began to beat weakly. Jones asked Palmer to get some ammonia to try to stimulate it. He fetched a bottle, and was absent about a minute for that purpose When he came back, Cook was almost dead, and he died in a few minutes, quite quietly. The whole attack lasted about ten minutes. The body was twisted back into the shape of a bow, and would have rested on the head and heels, had it been laid on its back. When the body was laid out, it was very stiff The arms could not be kept down by the sides till they were tied behind the back with tape. The feet also had to be tred, and the fingers of one hand were very stiff, the hand being clenched. This was about one A.M., half or three quarters of an hour after the death.(2)

[129] As soon as Cook was dead, Jones went out to speak to the house-keeper, leaving Palmer alone with the body. When Jones left the room he sent the servant Mills in, and she saw Palmer searching the pockets of Cook's coat and searching also under the pillow and bolster. Jones shortly afterwards returned, and Palmer told him that as Cook's nearest frend, he (Jones) ought to take possession of his property. He accordingly took possession of his watch and purse, containing five soveregies and five shillings. He found no other money. Palmer said, "Mr. Cook's death is a bad thing for me, as I am lose it. If they do not assist me, all my horses will be seized." The betting-book was mentioned Palmer said, "He will be no use to any one;" and added that it would probably be found (3)

On Wednesday, the 21st instant, Mr. Wetherby, the London rating agent, who kept a sort of bank for sporting men, received from Palmer a letter enclosing a cheque for £350 against the amount of the Shrewsbury stakes (£381) which Wetherby was to receive for him. This cheque had been drawn on the Tuesday, about seven o'clock in the evening, under peculiar circumstances. Palmer about seven o'clock in the evening, under peculiar circumstances. Palmer about seven o'clock in the evening under peculiar circumstances. Palmer about seven o'clock which green the property of the Cook owed him, and that he was going to take it [180] over for Cook

. copy which he profor money which

<sup>(1)</sup> Fact in issue (section 15). Conduct (secon 8).
(3) Conduct (section 8).

ion 8]
(2) Cook's death, in all its detail, was a fact in to sign. Cheshire wrote out the body of the cheque, and Palmer took it away. When Mr. Wetherby received the cheque, the stakes had not been paid to Cook's credit. He accordingly returned the cheque to Palmer, to whom the prosecution gave notice to produce it at the trail.(1) It was called for, but strong presumption arising from Palmer's appropriation of the bets to his own purposes. In fact it would have greatly weakened and almost upset the case as to the motive. On the other hand, the non-production of the cheque amounted to an admission that it was a forgery; and if that were so, Palmer was forging his friend's name for the purpose of stealing his stakes at the time when to all outward appearance there was every prospect of his speedy recovery which must result in the detection of the fraud. If he knew that Cook would die that night, this was natural. On any other supposition it was inconceivable rashness.(3)

Either on Thursday, 22nd, or Friday, 23rd. Palmer sent for Cheshire again, and produced a paper which he [131] said Cook had given to him some days before. The paper purported to be an acknowledgment that certain bills—the particulars of which were stated—were all for Cook's benefit and not for Palmer's. The amount was considerable as at least one item was for £1,000, and another for £500. This document purported to be signed by Cook, and Palmer wished Cheshire to attest Cook's excustion of it, which he refused to do. This document was called for at the trial, and not produced. The same observations apply to it as to the cheque.(4)

Evidence was further given to show that Palmer, who, shortly before, had but £9, 6s, at the bank, and had borrowed £25 to go to Shrewsbury pad away large sums of money soon after Cook's death He pand Pratt £100 on the 24th; he paid a farmer named Spilsbury £46, 2s, with a bank of England note for £50 on the 22nd, and Bown, a draper, a sum of £60 or thereabouts in two £50 or the 22nd, and Bown, a draper, a sum of £60 or thereabouts in two £50 or the 2nd, and Bown, a draper, a sum of £60 or thereabouts in two £50 or the 2nd, and Bown, a draper, a sum of £60 or thereabouts in two £50 or the 2nd, and Bown, a draper, a sum of £60 or the 2nd, and Bown, a draper, a sum of £60 or thereabouts in two £50 or the 2nd of £50 or the 2nd to appropriate

of between £100 and £600, of which he paid Piatt £400, though very shortly before he was being pressed for money.

On Wednesday, November 21st, Mr Jones went up to London, and informed Mr. Stephens, Cook's step-father, of his step-son's death. Mr. Stephens went to Lutterworth, found a will by which Cook appointed him his executor, [129] and then went on to Rugeley, where he arrived about the middle of the day on Thursday.(6) He asked Palmer for information about Cook's affairs, and he rephed, "There are £1,000 worth of bills out of his, and I am sorry to say my name is to them, but I have got a paper drawn up by a lawyer and signed by Mr. Cook to show that I never had any benefit from them." Mr. Stephens said that at all events he must be burred. Palmer offered to do so himself and said that the body ought to be fastened up as soon as possible. The conversation then ended for the time. Palmer went

<sup>(1)</sup> Conduct (section 8)

<sup>(2)</sup> See section 66 as to notice to produce.

<sup>(3)</sup> As to these inferences see section 114, illust.

<sup>(2).
(4)</sup> Conduct (section 8). See section 88 as to notice to produce. As to these inferences see section 114, illust (g)

<sup>(5)</sup> Conduct (section 8)
(6) Introductory and explanatory (section 9).

out and without authority from Mr. Stephens ordered a shell and a strong oak coffin.(1)

In the afternoon Mr. Stephens, Palmer, Jones, and a Mr. Gradford, Cook's brother-in-law, dined together, and after dinner Mr. Stephens desired Mr. Jones to fetch Cook's hetting-book. Jones went to look for it, but was unable to find it. The betting-book had last been seen by the chambermaid, Mills, who gave it to Cook in bed on the Monday might, when he took a stamp from a pocket at the end of it. On hearing, that the book could not be found, Palmer said it was of no manner of use. Mr. Stephens said he understood Cook had won a great deal of money at Shrewsbury, to which Palmer replied, "It's no use, I assure you; when a man dies, his bets are done with." He did not mention the fact that Cook's bets had been paid to Herring on the Monday. Mr. Stephens then said that the book must be found, and [133] Palmer answered that no doubt it would be [2] Before leaving the nin Mr. Stephens went to look at the body, before the coffin

He returned to Rugeley on Saturday, the intention to have a post-morten examination, which took place on Monday, 26th.(3)

The post-mortem examination was conducted in the presence of Palmer by Dr. Harland, Mr. Devonshire, a medical student, assisting Mr Monkton, and Mr. Newton. The heart was contracted and empty There were numerous small yellowish white spots, about the size of mustard-seed, at the larger end of the stomach. The upper part of the spinal cord was in its natural state; the lower part was not examined till the 25th January, when certain granules were found. There were many follicles on the tongue, apparently of long standing. The lungs appeared healthy to Dr. Harland, but Mr Devonshire thought that there was some congestion.(4) Some points in Palmer's behaviour both before and after the post-morten examination, attracted notice Newton said that on the Sunday night he sent for him, and asked what dose of strychnine would kill a dog. Newton said a grain. He asked whether it would be found in the [134] stomach, and what would be the appearance of the stomach after death. Newton said there would be no inflammation, and he did not think it would be found. Newton thought he replied, "It's all right," as if speaking to himself, and added that he snapped his fingers. Whilst Devonshire was opening the stomach Palmer pushed against him, and part of the contents of the stomach was spilt Nothing particular being found in the stomach, Palmer observed to Bamford, "They will not hang us yet" As they were all crowding together to see what passed, the push might have been an accident, and as Mr. Stephens' suspicions were well known, the remark was natural, though coarse. After the examination was completed, the intestines, etc., were put into a jar, over the top of which were tied two bladders. Palmer removed the jar from the table to a place near the door, and when it was missed said he thought it would be more convenient. When replaced it was found that a slit had been cut through both the bladders (5)

After the examination Mr Stephens and an attorney's clerk took the jars containing the viscera, etc., in a fly to Stafford (6) Palmer asked the postboy if he was going to drive them to Stafford? The postboy said, "I believe I am." Palmer said, "Is it Mr. Stephens you are going to take?" He said,

<sup>(1)</sup> Admission and conduct (sections 17, 18, section 8).

<sup>(2)</sup> These facts and statements together make it highly probable that Palmer stole the betting-book which would be relevant as conduct (sections 8, 11).

Introductory to what follows (section 9).
 Facts supporting opinions of experts (second 46).

<sup>(5)</sup> Conduct (section 8). (6) Introductory (section 9).

"I believe it is." Palmer said, "I suppose you are going to take the jars?" He said, "I am," Palmer asked if he would upset them? He said, "I shall [135] not," Palmer said if he would, there was a 210 note for him He also said something about its being "a humbugging concern." (1) Some confusion was introduced into this evidence by the cross-examination, which tended to show that Palmer's object was to upst Mr. Stephens and not the jars, but at last the postboy (J. Myatt) repeated it as given above Indeed, it makes little difference whether Palmer wished to upset Stephens or the jars, as they were all in one fly, and must be upset together if at all.

Shortly after the post-morten examination an inquest was held before Mr. Ward, the coroner. It began on the 29th November and ended on the 5th December. On Sunday, 3rd December, Palmer asked Cheshire, the postmaster, "if he had anything fresh." Cheshire replied that he could not open a letter. Afterwards, however, he did open a letter from Dr. Alfred Taylor, who had analyzed the content of the stomach, etc., to Mr. Gardiner, the attorney for the prosecution, and informed Palmer that Dr. Taylor said in that letter that no traces of strychnine were found. Palmer said he knew they would not, and he was quite innocent. Soon afterwards Palmer wrote to Mr Ward, suggesting various questions to be put to witnesses at the inquest, and saving that he knew Dr. Taylor had told Mr. Gardiner there were no traces of strychnia. prussic acid, or opium. A few days before this, on the 1st December, Palmerhad sent Mr. Ward, as a present, a codfish, a barrel of ovsters, a brace of [136] oheasants, and a turkey (2) These circumstances certainly prove improper and even criminal conduct. Cheshire was imprisoned for his offence, and Lord Campbell spoke in severe terms of the conduct of the coroner , but a bad and unscrupulous man, as Palmer evidently was, might act in the manner described. even though he was innocent of the particular offence charged.

A medical book found in Palmer's possession had in it some MS, notes on the subject of strychnine, one of which was, "It kills by causing tetanic contraction of the respiratory muscles." It was not suggested that this memorandum was made for any particular purpose. It was used merely to show that Palmer was acquainted with the properties and effects of strychnine.(3)

This completes the evidence as to Palmer's behaviour before, at, and after the death of Cook. It proves beyond all question that, having the strongest possible motive to obtain at once a considerable sum of money, he robbed his friend of the whole of the bets paid to Herring on the Monday by a series of

was 1 his person, and had received at Shrewsbury, it proves that he forged his name the night before he died, and that he tried to procure a fraudulent attestation to [187] another forged document relating to his affairs the day after he died. It also proves that he had every opportunity of administering poison to Cook, that he told repeated lies about his state of heath, and that he purchased deadly poison, for which he had no lawful use, on two separate occasions shortly before two paroxyems of a similar character to each other, the second of which deprived him of his life.

The rest of the evidence was directed to prove that the symptoms of which Cook died were those of poisoning by strychinic, and that antimony, which was never prescribed for him, was found in his body. Evidence was also given in the course of the trial as to the state of Cook's health.

<sup>(1)</sup> Conduct (section 8)

(sects n. 8, 0).

At the time of his death Cook was about twenty-eight years of age. his father and mother died young, and his sister and half-brother were not robust. He inherited from his father about £12,000 and was articled to a solicitor. Instead of following up that profession he betook himself to sporting pursuits, and appears to have led a rather desipated life. He suffered from syphilis, and was in the habit of occasionally consulting Dr. Savage on the state of his health Dr. Savage saw him in November 1854, in May, in June, towards the end of October, and again early in November 1855, about a fortnight before his death, so that he had ample means of giving satisfactory evidence on the subject, especially as he examined him carefully whenever he came. Dr. Savage said that he had two shallow ulcers on the tongue corresponding to bad teeth; that he had also a sore throat, one of his tonsils [138] being very large, red, and tender, and the other very small. Cook himself was afraid that these symptoms were syphilitie, but Dr. Savage thought decidedly that they were not noticed "an indication of pulmonary affection under the left lung " Wishing to get him away from his turf associates Dr. Savage recommended him to go abroad for the winter. His general health Dr. Savage considered good for a man who was not robust. Mr Stephens said that when he last saw him alive he was looking better than he had looked for some time, and on his remarking, "You do not look anything of an invalid now," Cook struck himself on the breast, and said he was quite well. His friend, Mr. Jones, also said that his health was generally good, though he was not very robust, and that heboth hunted and played at cricket.(1)

On the other hand, witnesses were called for the pursoner who gave a different account of his health. A Mr. Sargent said he was with him at Liverpool a week before the Shrewsbury races, that he called his attention to the state of his mouth and throat, and the back part of his tongie was in a complete state of ollect. "I said," added the witnes, "I was surprised he could eat and drink in the state his mouth was in. He said he had been in that state for weeks and months, and now he did not take notice of it." This was certainly not consistent with Dr. Savage's evidence (2)

Such being the state of health of Cook at the time of his [139] death, the next question was as to its cause. The prosecution contended that the symptoms which attended it proved that he was poisoned by strychnia Several eminent physicians and surgeons—Mr. Curling. Dr. Todd, Sir Benjamin Brodie, Mr. Daniel, and Mr Solly-gave an account of the general character and causes of the disease of tetanus Mr. Curling said that tetanus consists of spasmodic affection of the voluntary muscles of the body which at last ends in death, produced either by suffocation caused by the closing of the windpipe or by the wearing effect of the severe and painful struggles which the muscular spasms produce. Of this disease there are three forms, -idiopathic tetanus, which is produced without any assignable external cause, traumatic tetanus, which results from wounds; and the tetanus which is produced by the administration of strychnia, bruschia, and nux vomica, all of which are different forms of the same poison. Idiopathic tetanus is a very rare disease in England. Sir Benjamin Brodie had seen only one doubtful case of it Mr. Daniel, who for twenty-eight years was surgeon to the Bristol Hospital, saw only two Mr. Nunneley, professor of surgery at Leeds, had seen four In India, however, it is comparatively common Mr Jackson, in twenty-five years' practice there, saw about forty cases. It was agreed on all hands, that though the exciting cause of the two diseases is different, their symptoms are the same. They were described in similar terms by several of the witnesses. Dr. Todd said the disease begins with stiffness about the jaw,

"I believe it is." Palmer said, "I suppose you are going to take the jars?" He said, "I am," Palmer asked if he would upset them? He said, "I shall [135] not." Palmer said if he would, there was a £10 note for him. He also said something about its being "a humbugging concern." (1) Some confusion was introduced into this evidence by the cross-examination, which tended to show that Palmer's object was to upst Mr. Stephens and not the jars, but at last the postboy (J. Myatt) repeated it as given above Indeed, it makes little difference whether Palmer wished to upset Stephens or the iars, as they were all in one fly, and must be upset together if at all.

Shortly after the post-morten examination an inquest was held before Mr. Ward, the coroner. It began on the 29th November and ended on the 5th December. On Sunday, 3rd December, Palmer asked Cheshire, the postmaster. "if he had anything fresh." Cheshire replied that he could not open a letter. Afterwards, however, he did open a letter from Dr. Alfred Taylor, who had analyzed the content of the stomach, etc . to Mr. Gardiner, the attorney for the prosecution, and informed Palmer that Dr. Taylor said in that letter that no traces of strychnine were found. Palmer said he knew they would not, and he was quite innocent. Soon afterwards Palmer wrote to Mr. Ward, suggesting various questions to be put to witnesses at the inquest, and saving that he knew Dr. Taylor had told Mr. Gardiner there were no traces of strychnia, prussic acid, or opium. A few days before this, on the 1st December. Palmer had sent Mr. Word, as a present, a codfish, a barrel of oysters, a brace of [136] pheasants, and a turkey.(2) These circumstances certainly prove improper and even criminal conduct. Cheshire was imprisoned for his offence, and Lord Campbell spoke in severe terms of the conduct of the coroner; but a bad and unscripulous man, as Palmer evidently was, might act in the manner described. even though he was innocent of the particular offence charged.

A medical book found in Palmer's possession had in it some MS notes on the subject of strychnine, one of which was, "It kills by causing tetanic contraction of the respiratory muscles." It was not suggested that this memorandum was made for any particular purpose It was used merely to show that Palmer was acquainted with the properties and effects of strychnine.(3)

This completes the evidence as to Palmer's behaviour before, at, and after the death of Cook It proves beyond all question that, having the strongest possible motive to obtain at once a considerable sum of money, he robbed his friend of the whole of the bets paid to Herring on the Monday by a series of ingenious devices, and that he tried to rob him of the stakes at rouse the stakes est presumption that he robbed Co sent up to Pratt on the 16th, and

person, and had received at Shre a fraudulent attestation affairs the day after he

Cook, that he told repeated hes about his state of heath, and that he purchased deadly poison, for which he had no lawful use, on two separate occasions shortly before two paroxysms of a similar character to each other, the second of which deprived him of his life.

The rest of the evidence was directed to prove that the symptoms of which Cook died were those of poisoning by strychnine, and that antimony, which was never prescribed for him, was found in his body. Evidence was also given in the course of the trial as to the state of Cook's health.

<sup>(1)</sup> Conduct (section 8).

(sections 8, 9).

<sup>(2)</sup> Conduct and facts introductory thereto

At the time of his death Cook was about twenty-eight years of age, his father and mother died young, and his sister and half-brother were not robust. He inherited from his father about £12,000 and was articled to a solicitor. Instead of following up that profession he betook himself to sporting pursuits. and appears to have led a rather dissipated life. He suffered from syphilis, and was in the habit of occasionally consulting Dr. Savage on the state of his health Dr. Savage saw him in November 1854, in May, in June, towards the end of October, and again early in November 1855, about a fortnight before his death, so that he had ample means of giving satisfactory evidence on the subject, especially as he examined him carefully whenever he came. Dr. Savage, said, that he had two shallow ulcers on the tongue corresponding to had teeth, that he had also a sore throat, one of his tonsils (138) being very large, red, and tender, and the other very small Cook humself was afraid that these symptoms were syphilitic, but Dr. Savage thought decidedly that they were not. He also noticed "an indication of pulmonary affection under the left lung" Wishing to get him away from his turf associates. Dr Savage recommended him to go abroad for the winter. His general health Dr. Savage considered good for a man who was not robust. Mr Stephens said that when he last saw him ' I looked for some time, and on his an invalid now," Cook struck himself His friend, Mr. Jones, also said that his health was generally good, though he was not very robust, and that heboth hunted and played at cricket (1)

On the other hand, witnesses were called for the fitsomer who gave a different account of his health. A Mr. Sargent said he was with him at Laverpool a week before the Shrewsbury races, that he called his attention to the state of his mouth and throat, and the back part of his tongue was in a complete state of olicer. "I said," added the witness, "I was surprised he could eat and drink in the state his mouth was in. He said he had been in that state for weeks and months, and now he did not take notice of it." This was certainly not consistent with Dr. Savage's evidence (2)

Such being the state of health of Cook at the time of his [139] death, the next question was as to its cause. The prosecution contended that the symptoms which attended it proved that he was poisoned by strychma Several eminent physicians and surgeons-Mr Curling, Dr Todd, Sir Benjamin Brodie, Mr. Daniel, and Mr Solly-gave an account of the general character and causes of the disease of tetanus. Mr. Curling said that tetanus consists of spasmodic affection of the voluntary muscles of the body which at last ends in death, produced either by suffocation caused by the closing of the windpipe or by the wearing effect of the severe and painful struggles which the muscular spasms produce. Of this disease there are three forms, - idiopathic tetanus, which is produced without any assignable external cause, traumatic tetanus, which results from wounds, and the tetanus which is produced by the administration of strychnia, bruschia, and nux vomica, all of which are different forms of the same poison. Idiopathic tetanus is a very rare disease in England. Sir Benjamin Brodie had seen only one doubtful case of it Mr. Daniel, who for benjamin Diouse and scenario, who can be bristol Hospital, saw only two. Mr. Nunneley, professor of surgery at Leeds, had seen four. In India, however, it is comparatively common Mr Jackson, in twenty-five years practice there, saw about forty cases It was agreed on all hands, that though the exciting cause of the two diseases is different, their symptoms are the same They were described in similar terms by several of the witnesses. Dr. Todd said the disease begins with stiffness about the jaw.

<sup>(1)</sup> Conduct and facts introductory thereto (2) State of things under which erims was committed (section 7)

the symptoms [140] then extend themselves to the other muscles of the trunk and body. They gradually develop themselves. When once the disease has begun there are remissions of seventry, but not complete intermission of the symptoms. In acute cases the disease terminates in three or four days. In chronic cases it will go on for as much as three weeks. There was some question as to what was the shortest case upon record. In a case mentioned by one of the prisoner's witnesses, Mr. Ross, the patient was said to have begone of the prisoner's witnesses, Mr. Ross, the patient was said to have bestorest case upon record. In a case mentioned by one of the prisoner's witnesses, Mr. Ross, the patient was said to have bestorest case specified on either side, though it's duration was not accurately determined. As a rule, however, tetanus, whether traumatic or idiopathic, was said to be a matter not of minutes, or even of hours, but of days.(1)

Such being the nature of tetanus, traumatic and idiopathic four questions arose Did Cook die of tetanus ? Did he die of traumatic tetanus ! Did he die of idiopathic tetanus ? Did he die of the tetanus produced by strychnia ? The case for prosecution upon these questions was, first, that he did die of Mr. Curling said no doubt there was spaamodu action of the muscles (which was his definition of tetanus) in Cook's case, and even Mr. Nunneley, the principal witness for the prisoner who contended that the death of Cook was [141] caused neither by tetanus in its ordinary forms nor by the tetanus of strychnia, admitted that the paroxysm described by Mr Jones was "very like" the paroxysm of tetanus The close general resemblance of the symptoms to those of tetanus was indeed assumed by all the witnesses on both sides, as was proved by the various distinctions which were stated on the side of the Crown between Cook's symptoms and those of traumata and idiopathic tetanus, and on the side of the prisoner between Cook's symptoms and the symptoms of the tetanus of strychma It might, therefore be considered to be established that he died of tetanus in some form or other

The next point asserted by the prosecution was, that he did not die of traumatic or idiopathic tetanus, because there was no wound on his hody, and also because the course of the symptoms was different. They further asserted that the symptoms were those of poison by strychina.

Upon these points the evidence was as follows -Mr. Curling was asked, Q-"Were the symptoms consistent with any form of traumatic tetanus which has ever come under your knowledge or observation " He answered, "No." "What distinguished them from the cases of traumatic tetanus which you have described ?" A. "There was the sudden onset of the fatal symptoms. In all cases that have fallen under my notice the disease has been preceded by the milder symptoms of tetanus " Q "Gradually progressing to their complete development, and completion, and death " .1. "Yes." He also [142] mentioned "the sudden onset and rapid subsidence of the spasms" as inconsistent with the theory of either traumatic or idiopathic tetanus; and he said he had never known a case of tetanus which run its course in less than eight or ten hours. In the one case which occupied so short a time, the true period could not be ascertained. In general, the time required was from one to several days. Sir Benjamin Brodie was asked, "In your opinion, are the symptoms those of traumatic tetanus or not?" He replied, "As far as the spa-modic contraction of the muscles goes, the symptoms resemble those of traumatic tetanus; as to the course which the symptoms took, that was entirely different, He added, "The symptoms of traumatic tetanus always begin, as far as I have seen, very gradually, the stiffness of the lower law being, I believe, the symptom first complained of-at least, so it has been in my experience; then the contraction of the muscles of the back is always a later symptom, generally much later; the muscles of the extremities are affected in a much less degree than those of the neck and trunk, except in some cases, where the injury has been in a limb. and an early symptom has been a contraction of the muscles of that limb. I do not myself recollect a case in which in ordinary tetanus there was that contraction of the muscles of the hand which I understand was stated to have existed in this instance. The ordinary tetanus rarely runs its course in less than two or three days, and often is protracted to a much longer period; I know one case only in which the disease was [143] said to have terminated in twelve hours." He said, in conclusion, "I never saw a case in which the symptoms described arose from any disease; when I say that, of course I refer not to the particular symptoms, but to the general course which the symptoms took " Mr. Daniel being asked whether the symptoms of Cook could be referred to idiopathic or traumatic tetanus, said, "In my judgment they could not." He also said that he should repeat Sir Benjamin Brodie's words if he were to enumerate the distinctions. Mr. Solly said that the symptoms were not referable to any disease he ever witnessed, and Dr. Todd said, "I think the symptoms were those of strychnia". The same opinion was expressed with equal confidence by Dr. Alfred Taylor, Dr. Rees, and Mr. Christison

<sup>(1) (</sup>minions of experis, and facts on which they were founded (sections 45, 46). The rest of the exhibitor falls under this head.

In order to support this general evidence witnesses were called who gave account of three fatal cases of poisoning by strychnia, and of one case in which the patient recovered. The first of the fatal cases was that of Agnes French, or Senet, who was accidentally poisoned at Glasgow Infirmary, in 1845, by some pills which she took, and which were intended for a paralytic patient. According to the nurse, the girl was taken ill three-quarters of an hour, according to one of the physicians (who, however, was not present) twenty minutes after she swallowed the pills. She fell suddenly back on the floor, when her clothes were cut off she was stiff, "just like a poker," her arms were stretched out, her hands clenched, she vomited slightly, she had no lockjaw, [144] there was a retraction of the mouth and face, the head was bent back, the spine curved. She went into severe paroxysms every few seconds, and died about an hour after the symptoms began. She was perfectly conscious. The heart was found empty on examination.

The second case described was that of Mrs Serjea tson Smyth, who was accidentally poisoned at Romsey in 1818, by strychnine put into a does of ordinary medicine instead of salicine. She took the dose about five oction minutes after seven, in five or ten minutes more the servant was alarmed by a violent ringing of the bell. She found her mistress learning on a chair, went out to send for a doctor, and on her return found her on the floor. She si reamed loudly, she asked to have her legs pulled straight and to have water thrown over her. A few minutes before she died she said, "Turn me over," she was turned over, and died very quietly almost minediately. The hirsted about an hour. The hands were clein hed, the feet contracted, and on a post-morten examination the heart was found empty.

The third case was that of Mrs. Dove, who was poisoned at Leeds by her habband (for attacks on the season of the week beginning the habband of the week beginning the hands. She asked her husband to rub her arms and legs before the spans came on, but when they were strong she could not bear her legs to be touched. The fatal attack in her case lasted two [145] hours and a half. The handswelf semi-bent, feet strongly arched. The lungs were congested, the spinal cord was also much congested. The head being opened first, a good deal of blood flowed out, part of which might flow from the heat.

The case in which the patient recovered was that of a paralytic patient of Mr. Moore's He took an overdose of strychnia, and in about three-quarters of an hour Mr. Moore found him stiffened in every limb. His head was drawn back; he was screaming and "frequently requesting that we should turn him, move him, rub him." His spine was drawn back. He snapped at a spoon with which an attempt was made to administer medicine, and was perfectly conscious during the whole time.

Dr. Taylor and Dr. Owen Rees examined Cook's body They found no strength, but they found antimony in the liver, the left kidney, the spleen and also in the blood.

The case for the prosecution upon this evidence was, that the symptoms were those of tetanus, and of tetanus produced by strychnua The case for the prisoner was, first, that several of the symptoms observed were moonsistent with strychma, and secondly, that all of them might be explained on other hypothese. Their evidence was given in part by their own witnesses, and in part by the witnesses for the Crown in cross-examination. The replies suggested by the Crown were founded partly on the evidence of their own witnesses given by way of anticipation, and partly by the evidence obtained from the witnesses for the prisoner on cross-examination.

[146] The first and most conspicuous argument on behalf of the prisoner was, that the fact that no strychina was discovered by Dr Tavlor and Dr. Rees was inconsistent with the theory that any had been administered. The material part of Dr. Taylor's evidence upon this point was that he had examined the stomach and intestines of Cook for a variety of poisons, strychina among others, without success The contents of the stomach were gone, though the contents of the intestines remained, and the stomach useff had been cut open from end to end, and turned inside out, and the murous surface on which poison, if present, would have been found was rubbing against the surface of the intestines. This Dr. Taylor considered a most unfavourable condition for the discovery of poison and Mr. Christicou agreed with him. Several of the prisoner's witnesses on the contrary—Mr. Nunneley, Dr. Letheby and Mr. Rogers,—thought that it would only increase the difficulty of the operation, and not destroy its chance of success.

Apart from this, Dr. Taylor expressed his opinion that from the way in which strychnia acts, it might be impossible to discover it even if the circumstances were favourable. The mode of testing its presence in the stomach is to treat the stomach in various ways, until at last a residue is obtained which, upon the application of certain chemical ingredients changes its colour if stryclinia is present. All the witnesses agreed that strychnia acts by absorption-that is, it is taken up from the stomach by the absorbents, theme it passes into the blood, thence into the solid [147] part of the body, and at some stage of its progress causes death by its action on the nerves and muscles Its nomous effects do not begin till it has left the stomach From this Dr Taylor argued that if a minimum dose were administered, none would be left in the stomach at the time of death, and therefore none could be discovered there He also said that if the strychma got into the blood before examination, it would be diffused over the whole mass, and so no more than an extremely minute portion would be present in any given quantity. If the dose were half a grain, and there were twenty-five pounds of blood in the body, each pound of blood would contain only one-fiftieth of a grain. He was also of opinion that the "strychnia undergoes some themical change by reason of which its presence in small quantities in the fissues cannot be detected." In short, the result of his cyrdence was, that if a minimum dose were administered, it was uncertain whether strychnia would be present in the stomach after death, and that if it was not in the stomach, there was no certainty that it could be found at all. He added that he considered the colour tests fallacious, because the colours might be produced by other substances.

Dr. Taylor further detailed some experiments which he had tried upon animals jointly with Dr. Rees, for the purpose of ascertaining whether strychnia could always be detected. He poisoned four rabbits with strychnia, and applied the tests for strychnia to their bodies. In one case, where two grains had been administered at intervals, he obtained proof of the presence of strychnia both by a bitter [148] taste and by the colour. In a case where one grain was administered he obtained the taste but not the colour. In the other two cases, where he administered one grain and half a grain respectively, he obtained no indication at all of the presence of strychnia. These experiments proved to demonstration that the fact that he did not discover strychnia did not prove that no strychnia was present in Cook's body.

Mr. Nunneley, Mr. Herapath, Mr. Rogers, Dr. Letheby and Mr. Wrightson contradicted Dr. Taylor and Dr. Rees upon this part of their evidence. They denied the theory that strychnine undergoes any change in the blood and they professed their own ability to discover its presence even in most minute quantities in any body into which it had been introduced, and their belief that the colour tests were satisfactory. Mr. Herapath said that he had found strychnine in the blood and in a small part of the liver of a log poisoned by it; and he also said that he could detect the fifty-thousandth part of a grain if it were unmixed with organic matter. Mr. Wrightson (who was highly complimented by Lord Campbell for the way in which he gave his evidence) also said that he should expect to find strychnia if it were present, and that he had found it in the tissues of an animal possoned by it

Here, no doubt, there was a considerable conflict of evidence upon a point on which it was very difficult for unscientific persons to pretend to have any opinion. The evidence given for the prisoner, however, tended to prove not so much that there was no strychnia in Cook's body, [149] as that Dr. Taylor ought to have found it if there was. In other words, it has less to do with the guilt or innocence of the prisoner, than with the question whether Mr. Nunneley and Mr. Herapath were or were not better analytical chemists than Dr. Taylor. The evidence could not even be considered to slake Dr. Taylor's credit, for no part of the case rested on his evidence except the discovery of the antimony, as to which he was corroborated by Mr. Brande, and was not contradicted by the prisoner's witnesses. His opinion as to the nature of Cook's symptoms was shared by many other medical witnesses of the highest eminence, whose credit was altogether unimpeached. The prisoner's counsel were placed in a curious difficulty by thus state of the question. They had to attack, and did attack, Dr. Taylor's credit vigorously for the purpose of rebutting his conclusion that Cook might have been poisoned by strychnine, yet they had also to

This dilemma was fatal, To deny it was to destroy y possible course was to was useless for the reason just mentioned.

Another argument used on behalf of the prisoner was that some of the symptoms of Cook's death were inconsistent with poisoning by strychnine. Mr Nunneley and Dr. Letheby thought that the facts that Cook sat up in (150) bed when the attack came on, that he moved his hands, and awallowed, and asked to be rubbed and moved, showed more power of voluntary motion than was consistent with poisoning by strychina. But Mrs. Serjeantson Smyth got out of bed and rang the bell, and both she, Mrs. Dove, and Mrs. Moore's patient begged to be rubbed and moved before the spasms came on. Cook's movements were before the paroxysm set in, and the first paroxysms ended his life.

Mr. Nunneley referred to the fact that the heart was empty, and said that, in his experiments, he always found that the right side of the heart of the poisoned animals was full

Both in Mrs. Smyth's case, however, and in that of the gril Senet, the heart was found empty; and in Mrs. Smyth's case the cheet and abdomen were opened first, so that the heart was not emptied by the opening of the head. Mr. Christison said that if a man died of spasms of the heart, the heart would be emptied by them, and would be found empty after death, so that the presence or absence of the blood proved nothing.

Mr. Nunneley and Dr. Letheby also referred to the length of time before the symptoms appeared, as inconsistent with poisoning by strychnine. The time between the administration of the pills and the paroxysm was not accurately measured. It might have been an hour, or a little less, or more; but the poison, if present at all, was administered in pills, which would not begin to operate till they were broken up, and the rapidity with which they [161] would be broken up, would depend upon the materials of which they were made. Mr. Christison said that if the pills were made up with resinous materials, such as are within the knowledge of every medical man, their operation would be delayed. He added "I do not think we can fix, with our present knowledge, the precise time for the "person beginning to operate." According to the account of one witness in Agnes French's case, the poison did not operate for three-quarters of an hour, though probably her recollection of the time was not very accurate after ten years. Dr. Taylor also referred (in cross-examination) to cases in which an hour and-a-half, or even two hours elapsed, before the symptoms showed themselves.

These were the principal points in Cook's symptoms said to be inconsistent with the administration of strychina. All of them appear to have been satisfactorily answered. Indeed, the inconsistent of the symptoms with strychnia was faintly maintained. The defence turned rather on the possibility of showing that they were consistent with some other disease

In order to make out this point various suggestions were made. In the cross-examination of the different witnesses for the Crown, it was frequently suggested that the case was one of traumate tetanis, caused by syphilitic sores; but to this there were three fatal objections. In the first place, there were no syphilitic sores; in the second place, no witness for the prisoner said that he thought that it was a case of traumatic tetanus, and in the third place, several doctors of great experience in respect of syphilis—specially [152] Dr. Lee, the physician to the Lock Hospital—declared that they never heard of syphilitic sores producing tetanus. Two witnesses for the prisoner were called to show that a man died of tetanus who had sores on his elbow and elsewhere, which were possibly syphilitic; but it did not appear whether he had rubbed or hurt them, and Cook had no symptoms of the sort

Another theory was that the death was caused by general convulsions. This was advanced by Mr. Nunneley; but he was unable to mention any case in one one ho one of "sepileptic convulsions with tetanic complications." But he also failed to mention an instance in which epilepsy did not destroy consciousness. This witness assigned the most extraordinary reasons for supposing that it was a case of this form of epilepsy. He said that the fit might have been caused by resual excitement, though the man was all at Ruegely for nearly a week before his death; and that it was within the range of possibility that sexual interceurse might produce a consultion fit after an interval of a fortnight.

Both Mr. Nunneley and Dr. McDonald were cross-examined with great closeness. Each of them was taken separately through all the various symptoms of the case, and asked to point out how they differed from those of poisoning by strychnia, and what were the reasons why they should be supposed to arise from anything else. After [153] a great deal of trouble Mr. Nunneley was forced to admit that the symptoms of the paroxysm were "very like" those of strychnia, and that the various predisposing causes which is mentioned as likely to produce convulsions could not be shown to have existed. He said, for instance, that excitement and depression of spirits might predispose to convulsions; but the only excitement under which Cook had laboured was on winning the race a week before, and as for depression of spirits, he was laughing and joking with Mr. Jones a few hours before his death Dr. McDonald was equally unable to give a satisfactory explanation of these difficulties. 'It is impossible by any abridgment to convey the full effect which these cross-examinations produced. They deserve to be carefully studied by any one who cares to understand the full effect of this great instrument for the manifestation not merely of truth, but of accuracy and fairness.

Of the other witnesses for the prisoner, Mr. Herapath admitted that he and said that he thought that there was strychnine in the body, but that Dr. Taylor did not know how to find it. He added that he got his impression from newspaper reports, but it did not appear that they differed from the evidence given at the trial. Dr. Lethelby said that the symptoms of Cook were irreconcilible with everything that he was acquainted with—strychina posson included. He admitted, however, that they were not inconsistent with what he had heard of the symptoms of Mrs. Serjeantson Smyth who was undoubtedly poisoned by strychnine. Mr. Partingle was called to [154] show that the case might be one of arachints, or inflammation of one of the membranes of the spinal cord caused by two granules discovered there. In cross-examination he instantly admitted with perfect frankness, that he did not think the case was one of arachints, as the symptoms were not the same. Moreover, on was one of arachints, as the symptoms were not the same. Moreover, on had never seen such a

death proceed from natural causes. Dr. Roumson, from Newcastle, was called to show that tetame convulsions preceded by epilepsy were the cause of death. He, however, expressly admitted in cross-examination that the symptoms were consistent with strychina, and that some of them were inconsistent with epilepsy. He said that in the absence of any other cause, if he "put aside the hypothesis of strychina," he would ascribe it to epilepsy, and that he thought the granules in the spinal cord might have produce epilepsy. The degree of importance attached to these granules by different witnesses strated. Several of the witnesses for the Crown considered them unimportant. The last of the prisoner's witnesses was Dr. Richardson, who said the disease might have been angina pectors. He said, however, that the symptoms of angina pectors were so like those of strychnine that he should have great difficulty in distinguishing them from each other

The fact that animony was found was never seriously disputed, nor could to be denied that its administration [155] would account for all the symptoms of sickness, etc., which occurred during the week before Cook's death. No one but the prisoner could have administered it.

The general result of the whole evidence on both sides appears to be to perform the summan of Cook's death were perfectly consistent with those of poroning by strychimie, and that there was strong reason to believe that they were inconsistent with any other cause. Coupling this with the proof that Palmer bought strychnia just before each of the two attacks, and that he robbed Cook of all his property, it is impossible to doubt the propriety of the verdict.

Palmer's case is remarkable on account of the extraordinary minuteness rks on and labour with which it was tried, and on account of the extreme ability with the trial was conducted on both sides.

The intricate set of facts which show that Palmer had a strong motive to commit the crime; his behaviour before it; at the time when it was being committed, and after it had been committed, the various considerations which showed that Cook must have died by tetanus produced by strychnine; that Palmer had the means of administering strychnine to bim, that he did actually administer what in all probability was strychnine, that he also administered antimony on many occasions; and that all the different theories by which Cook's death otherwise than by strychnine could be accounted for were open to fatal objections, form a collection of eight or ten different sets of facts, all connected [166] together immediately or remotive other heng, or as being shown not to be, the causes or the effects of Cook's murder, or as forming part of the actual murder itself

The scientific evidence is remarkable on various grounds, but particularly because it supplies a singularly perfect illustration of the identity between the ordinary processes of scientific research, and the principles explained above, as being those on which Judicial Evidence proceeds Take, for instance, the question, did Cook die of tetanus, either traumatic or idiopathic? The symptoms of those diseases are in the first place ascertained inductively, and their nature was proved by the testimony of Sir Benjamin Brodie and others. The course of the symptoms being compared with those of Cook, they did not correspond. The inference by deduction was that Cook's death was not caused by those diseases. Logically the matter might be stated thus.

All persons who die either of traumatic or of idiopathic tetanus exhibit a certain course of symptoms.

Cook did not exhibit that course of symptoms, therefore Cook did not die of traumatic or of idiopathic tetanus.

Everyone of the arguments and theories stated in the case may easily be shown by a little attention to be so many illustrations of the rules of evidence on the one hand, and of the rules of induction and deduction on the other.

On the other hand, a flood of irrelevant matter apparently connected with the trial pressed, so to speak, for admittance and if it had been admitted. would have swollen the trial to unmanageable proportions, and thrown no real [157] light upon the main question. Palmer was actually indicted for the murder of his wife, Ann Palmer, and for the murder of his brother, Walter Palmer. Every sort of story was in circulation as to what he had done. was said that twelve or fourteen persons had at different times been buried from his house under suspicious circumstances It was said that he had poisoned Lord George Bentinck who died very suddenly some years before, He had certainly forged his mother's acceptance to bills of exchange, and had carried on a series of gross frauds on insurance offices There was the strongest reason to suspect that the evidence of Jeremiah Smith, referred to in the case, was plotted and artful perjury. If Palmer had been tried in France, every one of these and innumerable other topics would have been introduced, and the real matter in dispute would not have been nearly so fully discussed.

No case sets in a clearer light either the theory or the practical working of the principles on which the Evidence Act is based.

One special matter on which Pulmer's trial throws great light is the nature of the evidence of expert. The provisions relating to this subject are contained in sections 45 and 16 of the Evidence Act. The only point of much importance in connection with them is that it should be borne in mind that their evidence is given on the assumption that certain facts occurred, but that it does not in common cases show whether or not the facts on which the expert gives his opinion did really occur. For instance, [158] Sir Benjamin Brodie and other witnesses in Palmer's case said that the symptoms they had heard described were the symptoms of poisoning by strychiune, but whether the maid-servants and others who witnessed and described Cook's death were or were not speaking the truth was not a question for them, but for the jury. Strictly speaking, an expert ought not to be asked, "Do you think that the deceased man died of poison?" He ought to be asked to what cause he would attribute the death of the deceased man, assuming the symptoms attending his death to have been correctly described? or whether any cause except poison would account for such and such specified symptoms? This, however, is a matter of form. The substance of the rules as to experts is that they are only witnesses, not judges; that their evidence, however important, is intended to be used only as materials upon which others are to form their decision; and that the fact which they have to prove is the fact that they entertain certain opinions on certain grounds, and not the fact that grounds for their opinions · do really exist.

[159] IRRELEVANT FACTS

Having thus described and illustrated the theory of relevancy, it will be desirable to say something of irrelevant facts which might at first sight be supposed to be relevant.

From the explanations given in the earlier part of the chapter it follows that facts are irrelevant unless they can be shown to stand in the relation on cause or in the relation of effect to facts in issue, every step in the connection being either proved or of such a nature that it may be presumed without proof.

The vast majority of ordinary facts simply co-exist without being in any what facts assignable manner connected together. For instance, at the moment of the arcterels commission of a crime in a great city numberless other transactions are going on in the immediate neighbourhood, but no one would think of giving evidence of them unless they were in some way connected with the crime. Facts obviously irrelevant therefore present little difficulty. The only difficulty arises in dealing with facts which are apparently relevant but are not really so. The most important of these are three -

Facts appa-

- Statements as to facts made by persons not called as witnesses
- [160] 2. Transactions similar to but unconnected with the facts in issue.

Opinions formed by persons as to the facts in issue or relevant facts. None of these are relevant within the definition of relevancy given in sections 6-11, both inclusive. It may possibly be argued that the effect of the second paragraph of section 11* would be to admit proof of such facts as these.

* Section 11 is as follows -Facts not otherwise relevant are relevant (1) If they are inconsistent with any fact in neue or relevant fact.

<sup>(2)</sup> If by themselves, or an connection with other facts, they make the existence or non-existence of any fact in issue or relevant fact highly probable or improbable.

Effect of section 165

It may, for instance, be said: A (not called as a witness) was heard to declare that he had seen B commit a crime. This makes it highly probable that B did commit that crime. Therefore A's declaration is a relevant fact under section This was not the intention of the section, as is shown by the elaborate provisions contained in the following part of the Chapter II (sections 32-39) as to particular classes of statements, which are regarded as relevant facts either because the circumstances under which they are made invest them with importance, or because no better evidence can be got. The sort of facts which the section was intended to include are facts which either exclude or imply more or less distinctly the existence of the facts sought to be proved. Some degree of latitude was designedly left in the wording of the section (in compliance with a suggestion from the Madras Government) [161] on account of the variety of matters to which it might apply. The meaning of the section would have been more fully expressed if words to the following effect had been added to it -

"No statement shall be regarded as rendering the matter stated highly probable within the meaning of this section unless it is declared to be a relevant fact under some other section of this Act "

eason for clusion of earsay. The reasons why statements as to facts made by persons not called as witnesses are excluded, except in certain specified cases (see sections 17-39), are In the first place it is matter of common experience that statements in common conversation are made so lightly, and are so hable to be misunderstood or misrepresented, that they cannot be depended upon for any important nurpose unless they are made under special circumstances bjection It may be said that this is an objection to the weight of such statements and not to their relevancy, and there is some degree of truth in this remark.

No doubt, when a man has to inquire into facts of which he receives in the first instance very confused accounts, it may and often will be extremely important for him to trace the most cursory and apparently futile report. relevant in the highest degree to facts in issue may often be discovered in this manner. A policeman or a lawyer engaged in getting up a case, criminal or civil, would neglect his duty altogether if he shut his ears to everything which was not relevant within the meaning of [162] the Evidence Act A Judge or Magistrate in India frequently has to perform duties which in England would he performed by police-officers or attorneys He has to sift out the truth for himself as well as he can and with little assistance of a professional kind. Section 165 is intended to arm the Judge with the most extensive power possible for the purpose of getting at the truth The effect of this section. * is that in order to get to the bottom of the matter before it the Court will be able to look at and inquire into every fact whatever. It will not, however, be able to found its judgment upon the class of statements in question, for the following reasons "

If this were permitted, it would present a great temptation to indolent Judges to be satisfied with second-hand reports

It would open a wide door to fraud. People would make statements for which they would be in no way responsible, and the fact that these statements were made would be proved by witnesses who knew nothing of the matter stated. Every one would thus be at the mercy of people who might choose to tell a he, and loose evidence could neither be tested nor contradicted.

· Section 165 is as follows:--

ness, or of the parties about any fact relevant or irrelvant, and may order the production of any document or thing "

&quot;The Julge may, in order to discover or obtain proper proof of relevant facts, ask any question he pleases in any form, at any time, of any wit-

Suppose that A, B, C, and D give to E, F, and G a minute detailed account of a crime which they say was [163] committed by Z, E, F, and G repeat what they have heard correctly. A, B, C, and D disappear or are not forthcoming. It is evident that Z would be altogether unable to defend himself in this case, and that the Court would be unable to test the statements of A, B, C, and D. The only way to avoid this is to exclude such evidence altogether, and so to put upon both Judges and Magistrates as strong a pressure as possible to get to the bottom of the matter before them

It would waste an incalculable amount of time. To try to trace unauthorized and irresponsible gossip, and to discover the grains of truth which may lurk in it is like trying to trace a fish in the water.

The exclusion of evidence as to transactions similar to, but not specified trans cally connected with, the facts in issue, rests upon the ground that if it were actions not enforced every trial, whether civil or criminal, might run into an inquiry into the whole life and character of the parties concerned. Latigants have frequently many matters in difference besides the precise point legally at issue between them, and it often requires a good deal of vigour to prevent them from turning Courts of Justice into theatres in which all their affairs may be discussed. A very slight acquaintance with French procedure is enough to show the evils of not keeping people close to the point in judicial proceedings

As to evidence of opinion, it is excluded because its admission would in Exclusion nearly all cases be mere waste of time ..... . .

as witnesses, and statements made under circumstances which in themselves afford a guarantee for their truth, are an exception to the exclusion of statements as proof of the matter stated

Judgments in Courts of Justice on other occasions form an exception to the exclusion of evidence of transactions not specifically connected with facts in issue, and the provisions as to the admission of evidence of opinions in certain cases are contained in sections 45-55. I will notice very shortly the principle on which these provisions proceed

1. The general rule with regard to admissions, which are defined to mean Admissi all that the parties or their representatives in certain degrees say about the matter in dispute, or facts relevant thereto, is that they may be proved as against those who made them, but not in their favour The reason of the rule is obvious. If A says, "B owes me money," the mere fact that he says so does not even tend to prove the debt If the statement has any value at all, it must be derived from some fact which lies beyond it; for instance, A's recollection of his having lent B the money To that fact, of course, A can testify, but his subsequent assertions add nothing to what he has to say If, on the other hand, A had said, "B does [165] not owe me anything," this is a fact of which B might make use, and which might be decisive of the case

Admissions in reference to crimes are usually called confessions I may Confessi observe upon the provisions relating to them that sections 25, 26, and 27 were transferred to the Evidence terbatim from the Code of Criminal Procedure, Act XXV of 1861. They differ widely from the law of England, and were inserted in the Act of 1861 in order to prevent the practice of torture by the police for the purpose of extracting confessions from persons in their custody.

Statements made by persons who are dead or otherwise incapacitated Statement from being called as witnesses are admitted in the cases mentioned in sections es who 32 and 33. The reason is that in the cases in question no better evidence is to cannot be be had.

. ...

Statements under special circumstances In certain cases statements are made under circumstances which in themthem to be true, and in these cases there erson by whom the statement was made e 34-38

It may be well to point out here the manner in which the Evidence Act affects the proof of evidence given by a witness in a Court of Justice. The relevancy of the fact that such evidence was given, depends partly on the t he gave the testimony alleged to be But the Act also provides for cases in which the fact that evidence was given on a different occasion is to be admissible, either to prove the matter stated (section 33), or in order to contradict (sections 155, 3) or in order to corroborate (section 157) the witness. By reference to these sections it must be ascertained whether the fact that the evidence was given is relevant. If it is relevant section 35 enacts that an entry of it in a record made by any public servant in the discharge of his duty shall be relevant as a mode of proving it. The Codes of Civil and Criminal Procedure direct all judicial officies to make records of the evidence given before them; and section 80 of the Evidence Act provides that a document purporting to be a record of evidence shall be presumed to be genuine, that statements made as to the circumstances under which it was taken shall be presumed to be true, and the evidence to have been duly taken. The result of these sections taken together is that when proof of evidence given on previous occasions is admissible it may be proved by the production of the record or a certified copy (see section 76).

Judgments in other cases The sections as to judgments (40, 41) designedly omit to deal with the question of the effect of judgments in preventing further proceedings in regard of the same matter. The law upon this subject is to be found in section 2 of the Code of Ciril Procedure and in section 460 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. The cases which the Evidence Act provides [167] for are cases in which the judgment of a Court is in the nature of a law, and creates the right which it affirms to exist.

Opinions

The opinions of any person, other than the Judge by whom the fact is to be decided, as to the existence of facts in issue or relevant facts are, as a rule, irrlevant to the decision of the cases to which they relate for the most obvious reasons. To show that such and such a person thought that a crime had been committed or a contract made would either be to show nothing at all, or would invest the person whose opinion was proved with the character of a Judge. In some few cases, the reasons for which are self-evident, it is otherwise. They are specified in sections 45—51.

Character, when important The sections as to character require little remark — Evidence of character is, generally speaking, only a makeweight, though there are two classes of cases in which it is highly important:—

- (3) Where conduct is equivocal, or even presumably criminal. In this evidence of character may explain conduct and rebut the presumptions which it might raise in the absence of such evidence. A man is found in possession of stolen goods. He says he found them and took charge of them to give them to the owner. If he is a man of very high character this may be believed.
- (2) When a charge rests on the direct testimony of a single witness and on the bare denial of it by the person charged. A man is accused of an indecent assault by a [168] woman with whom he was accidentally left alone. He denies it. Here a high character for morality on the part of the accused person would be of great importance.

[169] CHAPTER IV.

GENERAL OBSERVATIONS ON THE INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT.

In the preceding pages I have stated and illustrated the theory of judicial No reference on which the Evidence Act is based. I have but little to add to that first explanation. The Act speaks for itself. No labour was spared to make its provisions complete and distinct. As the first section repeals all unwritten rules of evidence, and as the Act itself supplies a distinct body of law upon the subjects, its object would be defeated by elaborate references to English cases. In so far as it is obscure or incomplete, the Judges and the Legislature are it, proper critics. If it is turned into an abridgment of the law which it was meant to replace, twill be imjurious instead of being useful to those for whom it was intended. I shall accordingly content myself with a very short description of the contents of the remainder of the Act, referring for a full explanation of the matter to the Act itself.

The general scheme of Part II, which relates to Proof and consists of Scheme of four chapters, containing forty-five sections, may be expressed in the Part II following propositions

- [170] 1. Certain facts are so notorious in themselves, or are stated Judicial not not a manner in well-known and accessible publications, that they require no proof The Court, if it does not know them, can inform itself upon them without formally taking evidence. These facts are said to be judicially noticed.
- All facts except the contents of documents may be proved by Oralavi oral evidence, which must in all cases be direct. That is, it must consist of a declaration by the witness that he perceived by his own senses the fact to which he testifies.
- 3. The contents of documents must be proved either by the production Document of the document, which is called primary evidence, or by copies or oral accounts of the contents, which are called secondary evidence. Primary evidence is required as a rule, but this is subject to seven important exceptions in which secondary evidence may be given. The most important of these are (1) cases in which the document is in the possession of the adverse party, in which case the adverse party must in general (though there are several exceptions) have notice to produce the document before secondary evidence of it can be given.

And (2) cases in which certified copies of public documents are admissible in place of the documents themselves.

4. Many classes of documents which are defined in the Act, are presumed to be what they purport to be, but this presumption is liable to be rebutted Two sets of presumptions will sometimes apply to the same document. For [171] instance what purports to be a certified copy of a record of evidence is produced. It must by section 76 be presumed to be an accurate copy of the record of evidence. By section 80 the facts stated in the record itself as to the circumstances under which it was taken, e.g., that it was read over to the witness in a language which he understood, must be presumed to be true.

Writings when exclusive evi dence

5. When a contract, grant, or other disposition of property is reduced to a writing, the writing itself (or secondary evidence of its contents) is not only the best, but is the only admissible evidence of the matter which it contains It cannot be varied by oral evidence, except in certain specified cases.

It is necessary in applying these general doctrines (the expediency of which is obvious) to practice to go into considerable detail, and to introduce provisos, exceptions, and quahications which appear more intricate and difficult than, they really are II, however, the propositions just stated are once distinctly understood and borne in mind, the details will be easily mastered when the occasion for applying them arises. The provisions in the 4ct are all made in order to meet real dithiculties which arose in practice in England, and which in must of necessity arise over and over again, and give occasion to litigation unless they were specifically provided for beforehand

Principle of provisions in documen tary evi dence

One single principle runs through all the propositions relating to documentary evidence. It is that the very object for which writing is used is to perpetuate the memory of what is written down.[172] and so to furnish permanent proof of it. In order that full effect may be given to this, two things are necessary, namely, that the document itself should, whenever it is possible, be put before the Judge for his inspection, and that if it purports to be a final settlement of a previous negotiation, as in the case of a written contract, it shall be tracted as final, and shall not be varied by word of mouth. If the first of these rules were not observed the benefit of writing would be lost. There is no use in writing a thing down unless the writing is read. If the second rule were not observed people would never know when a question was settled, as they would be able to play fast and loose with their writings. By bearing these leading principles in mind the details and exceptions will become simple. Their practical importance is indeed as nothing in comparison to the importance of the rules which they qualify

The third part of the Act, which contains three chapters (Chapters VII, VII) and IX) and sixty-seven sections relates to the production and effect of evidence.

Chapter VII, which relates to the burden of proof, deals with a subject which requires a little explanation. This is the subject of presumptions. Lake most other words introduced into the law of evidence, it has various meanings, and it has besides a listory to which I shall refer very shortly.

In times when the true theory of proof was very imperfectly understood inasmuch as physical science, by the progress of which that theory was gradually discovered, [173] was in its infancy, numerous attempts were made to construct theories as to the weight of evidence which should supply the want of one founded on observation. In some cases this was effected by requiring the testinony of a certain number of witnesses in particular cases, such a fact must be proved by two witnesses, such another by four, and so on. In other cases particular items of evidence were regarded as full proof, half full proof, proof less than half full.

The doctrine of presumptions was closely connected with this theory. Presumptions were inferences which the Judges were directed to draw from certain states of facts in certain cases, and these presumptions were allowed a cert in amount of weight in the scale of proof; such a presumption and such evidence amounted 15 July proof, such another to half full, and so on. The very irregular manner in which the English law of evidence grea up has had, amongst other effects, that of making it an uncertain and difficult question how for the theory of presumptions, and the other theories of which they formed a part, affect English law, but substantially the result is somewhat as follows:-

Presumptions are of four kinds according to English law:

I. Conclusive presumptions. These are rare, but when they occur they provide that certain modes of proof shall not be hable to contradiction.

- Presumptions which affect the ordinary rule as to the burden of proof that he who affirms must prove. He [174] who affirms that a man is dead must usually prove it, but if he shows that the man has not been heard of for seven years, he shifts the burden of proof on his adversary.
- 3. There are certain presumptions which, though liable to be rebutted, are regarded by English law as being something more than mere maxims, though it is by no means easy to say how much more. An instance of such a presumption is to be found in the rule that recent possession of stolen goods unexplained raises a presumption that the possessor is either the third or a receiver.
- 4. Bare presumptions of facts, which are nothing but arguments to which the Court attaches whatever value it pleases.

Chapter VII of the Evidence Act deals with this subject as follows :- Presump-First it lays down the general principles which regulate the burden of proof tions (sections 101-106). It then enumerates the cases in which the burden of proof is determined in particular cases, not by the relation of the parties to the cause but by presumptions (sections 107-111) It notices two cases of conclusive presumptions, the presumption of legitimacy from birth during marriage (section 112), and the presumption of a valid cession of territory from the publication of a notification to that effect in the Gazette of India (section 113). This is one of several conclusive statutory presumptions which will be found in different parts of the Statutes and Acts Finally, it declares in section 114, that the Court may in all cases whatever draw from the facts before it whatever inferences it thinks just. The terms of this section are such [175] as to reduce to their proper position of mere maxims which are to be applied to facts by the Courts in their discretion, a large number of presumptions to which English law gives to a greater or less extent, an artificial value. Nine of the most important of them are given by way of illustration.

All notice of certain general legal principles which are sometimes called presumptions, but which in reality belong rather to the substantive law than the law of evidence, was designedly omitted, not because the truth of those principles was demed, but because it was not considered that the Evidence Act was the proper place for them. The most important of these is the presumption, as it is sometimes called, that every one knows the law. The principle is far more correctly stated in the maxim that ignorance of the law does not excuse a breach of it, which is one of the fundamental principles of riminal law.

The subject of estoppels (Chapter VIII) differs from that of presumption in the circumstance that an estoppel is a personal disqualification laid upon a person petuliarly circumstanced from proving peculiar facts. A presumption is a rule that particular inferences shall be drawn from particular facts whoever proves them. Much of the English learning connected with estoppels is extremely intricate and technical, but this arrises principally from two causes, the peculiarities of English special pleading, and the fact that the effect of prior judgments is usually treated by the English text writers as a branch of the law of evidence, and not as a branch of the law of evidence, and not as a branch of the law of Civil Procedure.

[176] The remainder of the Act consists of a reduction to express propositions of rules as to the examination of witnesses, which are well established and understood. They call for no commentary or introduction, as they sufficiently explain their own meaning, and do not materially vary the existing law and practice.

Some Criticisms on the Act.

It has been said that in its main features the arrangement of Sir James Fttajames Stephen is not capable of being improved upon (1), and it will generally be conceeded that, except as regards sections 5—16 of Ch. II, a great advantage has undoubtedly been given to the legal practitioner by the codification of the law of evidence which the Act has effected. The criticism, perhaps more discriminating, of others may be divided into two classes. Some there are who approve of the general principle upon which the Act proceeds (viz., that it is both possible and advisable positively to determine what is evidence), but criticise the actual terms in which such determination is made. Others disapprove, preferring the more practical and historical method of English law which confines itself mainly to the negative task of declaring not what is but what is not evidence.

Of the first class Mr Whitworth in his able pamphlet on the theory of relevancy(2) while of opinion that probably no enactment in such few words as section 6-16 brought so much assistance to the administration of justice, says that the question yet suggests itself whether even these rules give the theory of relevancy in its simplest form, and states that they certainly do not show in themselves upon what principle it is that they have been founded. Differing from the author of the Act in regard to the adequacy of his definition of relevancy as the connection of events as cause and effect, he works out from the rules propounded under the Act what he oneceives to be a fuller and more satisfactory statement. He arrives by this process of exposition at exactly the same result as Sir James Pitajames Stephen, but claims for the new rules which he suggests that although different in form they are identical with those of the Act in their effect (3)

Mr. Whitworth uses the word relevant as Sir James Fitzjames Stephen uses it in the third chapter of his Introduction, and not as it is sometimes used as co-extensive with admissible. What is thus meant by a relevant fact is a fact that has a certain degree of probative force. All such facts are not admissible. They may be excluded under rules of evidence other than those which treat of relevancy. For example, as he points out, a fact may be relevant, but it may be one of a kind so easy to fabricate, or so difficult to test, or of so suspicious an origin, that it is more convenient to declare that it shall not be taken into consideration at all. With such questions he is not concerned, but only with the simpler and narrower question as to what facts are relevant in the strict sense of the term.

He points out that the word is used in both senses in the Evidence Act, as will appear from a reference to the Table of Contents Part I treats of "Relevancy of Facts," and, in this Part, Chapter II has several divisional headings one of which is "of the Relevancy of Facts." Part I deals with relevancy in its wide sense; Chapter II of Part I with relevancy in its strict sense The ambiguity is unfortunate. Sir Fitzjames Stephen has said that relevancy is fully defined in sections 6—11 of the Act, and until the double meaning of the word is observed, it seems as Mr. Whitworth points out inconsistent with pamphlet and the frank acceptance of his criticum by Mr Stephen enables us to enjoy the contemplation as gratifying as it is rare, of a controversy which was cuickd in a real edvancement; of knowledge, and in a manner perfectly satisfying and honourable to both parties."—Fortnight's Resire, 1876.

<sup>(1)</sup> Peynolds' Theory of the Law of Evidence, 2rd Fd., 1857. Priface, vi. See also observations in Preface to Rice's General Principles of the Law of Evidence

<sup>(2)</sup> The theory of relevancy for the purpose of Juda at Lyttlence by George Clifford Whitworth, 2nd Ed., 1881. "Mr George Clifford Whitworth of the Bomboy Crul Service has letely criticated that theory in an ingenious and able

<sup>(3)</sup> See Law Magazine and Review, 1875-6 certain things to be relevant sections as these have to derelevant or irrelevant (using ided by sections 6—16), that those things are not to be excluded or admitted under rules relating to subjects other than relevancy, which would, without the provision made, exclude or admit them.

The theory of relevancy is concerned with the question -Why is one thing relevant and another thing irrelevant " There must, Mr. Whitworth says, he some principle applicable to all cases by which it may be determined whether a particular fact is or is not relevant to another fact, without reference to a number of rules framed to meet different classes of cases. The purpose of judicial enquiries is not a purpose peculiar to them. All men upon occasion endeayour to ascertain, as quickly and as satisfactorily as they can, whether facts unknown to them personally have or have not happened. And what is calculated to aid the human mind in such inquiries must be something capable of being defined by the enunciation of its essential difference, as well as by an enumeration of its details. Sir James Fitzjames Stephen, in the third Chapter of his Introduction to this Act, has briefly considered this question, and has said that relevancy means the connection of events as cause and effect these two words were taken in their widest acceptation, it would be correct to say that when any theory has been formed which alleges the existence of any fact, all facts are relevant which, if that theory was true, would stand to the fact alleged to exist either in the relation of cause or in the relation of effect." Mr. Whitworth criticises this definition as follows -" But the proviso that the words 'cause' and 'effect' must be taken in their widest acceptation does seem to be sufficient. It seems necessary rather to take them in a transcendent sense Suppose a man is charged with stabbing another, and it is alleged that at the moment of striking he uttered a certain expression. What he said is by the rules of evidence relevant (not merely upon the issue as to his intention, but also) upon the issue whether he stabbed the man or not. But in what acceptation of the words is his expression a cause or effect of the act of stabbing? Or consider the case of the Whitechapel murder now under investigation in London. Upon the issue, Did Wainwright murder Harriet Lane 9 It is offered in evidence that the body before the Court is that of a woman who never bore children How is this a cause or effect of the fact in issue ! The widest acceptation of the words 'cause' and 'effect' will not include such facts as these. And if we give them the meaning necessary to make true the statement that relevancy means the connection of events as cause and effect, then the statement itself becomes of no use, because every fact will be relevant. No doubt to a being of such capacity of intelligence as to see the whole cause of every effect and the whole effect of every cause, everything that ever happened becomes one rigid fact and nothing is irrelevant. But for human purposes there is no question that relevancy and irrelevancy are realities; the difference between the two is recognizable by an ordinarily human capacity, and must be something expressible in ordinary language.

The definition that relevancy means the connection of events as cause and effect, leaves us, then, in this difficulty that if we take the words in any, even the widest, comprehensible sense, the definition does not include all facts which we know from our experience to be really relevant, and if we give them a transcendent meaning based upon our knowledge that all things precedent have gone together to make up the state of things existing at any time, and that no fact could ever have existed without the co-existence of every other fact that did exist at the same time, then the definition includes everything, and so ceases to be a definition.

Thus the statement that relevancy means the connection of events as cases and effect, requires some addition, if the words are used in any ordinary cases, and some limitation, if they are given a transcendent sense.

Mr. Stephen, using the words in the latter sense, imposes one limitation and declares the practical existence of another. He says, (a) the rule is to be subject to the caution that every step in the connection must be made out and (b) that wide, general causes, which apply to all occurrences, are, in most cases, admitted, and do not require proof. The first of these limitations goes far to get rid of the objection that everything is relevant. The connection must be discernible, and every step in the connection proved or presumable. But if it is meant that each step must be recognizable as a proceeding from cause to effect, then, as shown above, things really relevant will be excluded. And if any other kind of connection will suffice, then it may be said of both the limitations, that they are of little service, that the help they give in deducing practical rules from the general principle is small For those rules are least likely to be appealed to in the case of wide general causes, or occurrences, the connection of which with the fact in issue is not traceable. The object of the rules is to keep out irrelevant matter that is brought forward. As a fact, such matter is submitted as evidence every day Such matter does not usually consist of wide general causes that are admitted nor of occurrences that have no connection with the facts in issue, and therefore these limitations do not exclude it. Therefore these limitations are not sufficient

Now as the theory propounded falls short of defining what relevancy is, so we may expect to find in the rules themselves things that cannot be explained by the theory.

Again, as the rules are not deduced from first principles but possible that in some unusual a with accuracy the true limit 'reason, it is possible that the confined to the subject of relevancy.

Thus it is not immediately apparent, from the theory set forth, why one part of a transaction throws light upon another part which is so distinct from the first as to form in itself a fact in issue. When Mr. Hall shot three or four Gackwarı sowars, and it was a fact in issue whether he shot a particular one, no doubt the fact that he shot the others increased the probability of his having shot the one is question. But the theory does not afford a ready explanation of this.

By section 7 those facts are relevant to facts in issue 'which constitute the state of things under which they happened' A Magistrate lately convicted some persons of rioting, and, the object of the riot having been to offend some lindu religious reformers, he commenced his judgment with a general history of religion and religious reformation down to the present time The Judge, before whom the case came on appeal, remarked upon the irrelevancy of this, and of course it was utterly useless; but the rule quoted does not seem to exclude evidence of it. By the same section, facts which afford an 'opportunity' for the occurrence of a fact in issue, or relevant facts, are relevant. The theory does not explain why. When Mr. Hall shot the sowars, the fact that he had a rifle, gave him an opportunity of shooting other persons whom he did not shoot. Its particular bearing upon the fact in issue to make it relevant is not explained.

Section 8 is partly concerned with the admissibility of evidence of statements. It includes the substance of the English rule that declarations which are part of the res getse may be proved. But this has nothing to do with relevancy strictly so called. (r. post, remarks upon III. (j) of this section) Section 9 declares facts necessary to explain or introduce a fact in issue to be relevant, but prescribes no test of the necessity. Is there no danger of useless matter being brought upon the record under this rule on the ground that it explains or introduces something to follow? It is true there is a provision, under the law for the examination of witnesses, that when either party proposes to give evidence of any fact, the Judge may ask in what manner the fact would be relevant, and need not admit it unless he thinks it would be relevant (section 136, Evidence Act); but still whether or not the fact is necessary to explain or introduce may be a disputable matter. The first illustration says that when the question is whether a given document is the will of A, the state of A's property and of his family at the date of the alleged will may be relevant facts. Now, it is obvious that some particulars about the property would be useful to be known, and some would be useless. So the rule seems partly to fail of its object, in that it does not define what class of particulars is relevant.

Section 10 is a rule relating to one particular kind of transaction, conspiracy; and section 12 refers only to the question of damages. But the mind sets to work to ascertain such facts as these in just the same way as any other facts, and it does not appear why special rules are requisite. When any person is charged with conspiracy, one of the facts in issue is the existence of the conspiracy, its absolute existence without reference to the accused person; and from the nature of the thing itself, requiring as it does the action of more than one mind, it is to be expected that causes of it and effects of it will be found existing outside the mind, and without the knowledge, of a particular person. Therefore no rule is required to make such causes or effects or other connected facts relevant to the fact in issue.

But the rule goes on to declare that such facts are relevant also for the purpose of showing that the accused person was a party to the conspiracy. Well, if such facts will show that, clearly they are in very truth relevant. But it is obvious that very many such facts will have no bevring whatever upon the question of the accused person's completty. And it seems an error in the rule to declare all such facts relevant for that purpose, instead of showing which are not. Consider some such conspiracy as that which went by the name of Fennanism. Suppose a man is being tried in Ireland for so consider, suppose the abeen in prison for a month before trial. Suppose the Court had received abundant evidence of the existence, nature and objects of the conspiracy. Still, under this rule the Court could not refuse to listen to witnesses just arrived from America stating that a party of Fennans had burnt a farm there a fortnight before the day of trial—thus to prove the accused person's complicity in the conspiracy.

Section 14 declares that facts which show the existence of any state of mind are relevant when the existence of such 'state of mind' is in issue or relevant. Looling at the illustration, it seems doubtful whether the expression 'state of mind' is wide enough. One of the states of mind mentioned is 'knowledge'. Illustration (r) is an example of this. There the question is whether a man knew that his dog was ferocious; and the facts that the dog had bitten several persons and that they had complained to the owner are relevant. These facts are really connected with the fact in issue through the owner's knowledge. But Illus, (or also purports to be an example of a fact being relevant as tending to show knowledge. The question there is whether a person found in possession of a stolen article knew that it was stolen, and it is said that the fact that, at the same time, he was in possession of many other stolen articles is relevant as tending to show that he knew each and all of the articles to be stolen. No doubt the fact is relevant, but it is not through the receiver's knowledge. The question there are not all of the articles to be stolen. No doubt the fact is relevant, but it is not through the receiver's knowledge that it is connected with the fact in issue. What it proves is not a state of mind, but a habit, a habit which makes the receiving with a guilty knowledge a more likely fact than it would be without proof of the habit."

Mr. Whitworth then proceeds to propound his theory of relevancy with the new rules which he deduces from it —

"Every fact in issue may be affirmed or denied; and that not merely in the bare form in which it may be stated as a fact in issue, but in every derail of the meaning of that statement. The whole includes the part, if any fact is affirmed as a whole, any part of it may be affirmed or denied , anything implied by an affirmation is really part of that affirmation and may be expressly affirmed or denied. It may be m issue merely, Did A murder B? But if, as the affirmation is inquired into, it is found to mean that A murdered B at a particular hour and a particular place, then, that A was in that place at that hour, may be affirmed or denied The issue may be merely. Did Wainwright murder Harriet Lane 9 But if those affirming it produce a body saying it is Harriet Lane's, then anything showing that it is or is not may be put forward. Or the issue may be, did the accused person attempt to poison Colonel Phayre? But if it is found that the charge means that the accused person put arsenic into a glass of sherbet which, from his knowledge of Colonel Phayre's habits, he knew Colonel Phayre would drink then Colonel Phayre's halat of drinking sherbet at a particular time and the prisoner's knowledge of this are parts of the fact in issue

But heades the matters expressly on virtually in issue some surrounding matters may and in determining an unknown fart. Knowing that the progress of events is from cause to effect, any fact that seems likely to have caused the fact to be determined, or any fact that suggests the fact to be determined as a cause of it, may be of use Again, one cause may have many effects and the cause may be ascertainable from one effect as well as from another. If then in endeavouring to ascertain whether a particular event has happened we see some other event that suggests as its cause something that would probably have caused the thing we want to ascertain, then that event will be of use. For example, we want to ascertain whether -1 stabbed B, and we hear that on the occasion on which he is said to have done so, -1 said to B, wit then die ". Now this seems to imply just such volution employing the tongue as would employing an armed hand stab B. The words and the fact in issue are effects of the same volution. Similarly were -1 charged with poisoning B, the fact that before the death of B he procured poison of the kind that was administered to B would be relevant. The procuring the poison is an effect of a cause which might be the cause of the fact in issue.

Thus there are four classes of fact which aid in determining a fact in issue ;

- (1) Any part of the fact alleged or any fact implied by the fact alleged ,
- (2) Any cause of the fact;
- (3) .Iny effect of the fact;
- (4) . Iny fact having a common cause with the fact in issue.

But it is not the whole of these facts that are of use—Some facts connected with the fact in issue in one of the four ways mentioned may be of a general nature, existing whether or not the fact in issue happened and therefore indicating nothing as to whether it happened or not. For example: A is charged with the murder of B by pushing him over a precipice. Here the fall of B to the ground after be way pushed over is as much a cause of his death as the pushing over, and as much an effect of the push as his death is. But gravitation is a general fact and exists all the same whether B went over the precipic or not, and proof of it is therefore needless.

Besides such general facts there may be facts connected with the fact in issue in one of the four ways, but with such a very slight bearing upon it that their probative force is quite insignificant as, for instance, if a boviel, quarrel of fifty years ago were brought forward to prove ill-feeling between two menwho had poined in partic riship twents verts before.

To meet both these classes of cases one provise only is requisite namely, that no fact is relevant to another indice it makes the existence of that other more bileds. It is not necessary to say anothing of the degree of probability the fact must raise. The test is obvious. The Judge who has eventually to decide whether the fact in issue is proved or not, must decide whether the last offered in evidence will, if proved, and him in that decision.

The theory, then, so fit as we have gone, is this. Those facts are relevant to a fact in issue, the existence of which makes the existence of the fact in issue more probable, and they are found to be connected with the fact in issue in one of those ways, as being, (a) part of the fact in issue, (b) cause of it, (c) effect of it, or (d) an effect of a cause of it.

But as, relying upon the principle that effects follow causes, we take from the surrounding circumstances facts that appear to be probable causes or probable effects of a fact unknown, as a means of proving it; so, upon the same principle we may first consider what would be probable causes or effects of the fact unknown and look upon their absence as a means of disproving it.

Therefore in addition to the four classes of facts above mentioned, which may be said to be positively relevant, we have the following four classes which may be called negatively relevant: (a) facts showing the absence of what might be expected as part of a fact in issue or of what seems to be implied by a fact in issue; (b) facts showing the absence of cause of the fact in issue; (c) facts showing the absence of effects (other than the fact in issue) and the fact in issue and as it is essential to facts positively relevant that they make the fact in issue more likely, so those facts only are negatively relevant which make the existence of the fact in issue less likely.

Again, as facts are relevant only by reason of their being connected with the fact in issue, it follows that to disprove the connection of an alleged relevant fact with the fact in issue is as efficacious as to disprove the existence of the fact. To show, for instance, that an alleged cause of a fact in issue would not really have as effect the fact in issue; or to show that an alleged effect of a fact in issue is really the effect of some other cause, does as well as to show that the alleged facts never existed. And as the connection of an alleged relevant fact may be disputed, so it may be affirmed in anticipation of dispute. That is to say, all facts which tend to prove or disprove the connection in the way of relevancy between facts in issue and alleged relevant facts are themselves relevant.

As relevant facts may be proved and as the mode of proof of any fact is to the mode of the facts relevant to it, it follows that "facts relevant to relevant facts are themselves relevant."

These considerations suggested to Mr. Whitworth the following rules, which he considered sufficient to decide, and the simplest test by which to decide, whether any fact offered in evidence is relevant:—

Rule I.—No fact is relevant which does not make the existence of a fact insue more likely or unlikely, and that to such a degree as the Judge considers will aid him in deciding the issue.

RULE II .- Subject to Rule I, the following facts are relevant :

- (1) Facts which are part of, or which are implied by, a fact in issue : or which show the absence of what might be expected as a part of, or would seem to be implied by, a fact in issue;
- (2) Facts which are a cause, or which show the absence of what might be expected as a cause, of a fact in issue,
- (3) Facts which are an effect or which show the absence of what might be expected as an effect of a fact in issue .
- (4) Facts which are an effect of a cause, or which show the absence of what might be expected as an effect of a cause, of a fact in issue.

RULE III .- Facts which affirm or deny the relevancy of facts alleged to be relevant under Rule II are relevant

Rule IV .- Facts relevant to relevant facts are relevant

Mr. Whitworth gives a single example of each kind of relevancy according to his classification, taking all examples from a simple case, that of Muller. who was tried for the murder of an old gentleman, a banker, named Briggs, by beating him with a life-preserver, as they were travelling together by rail, and then throwing him out of the train. Muller tried to make his escape to America, but was pursued and arrested on his arrival there. One point urged in the prisoner's defence was that he was not physically strong enough to commit His object appeared to be robbery the murder as alleged

The kinds of relevancy according to Rule II are four, but, as the first clause contains two classes with an apparent difference, they may, Mr. Whitworth says, be taken for the purpose of illustration as five, and as each kind may be either positive or negative, the number becomes ten. And as by Rule III the connection of a fact with the fact in issue may be disputed as well as its existence, the number of illustrations required is twenty

These he gives in order as cited in the footnote(11:-

(1) (a) Part of fact in issue. - It would be relewant to prove that, at the time the offence was said to be committed, a witness by the roaduda got a glimpse, as the train passed, of the prisoner standing up in the carriage with his hand raised above his head.

(b) Disputing the connection -It would be releyant to show that at the time in question, the prisoner had occasion to close a ventilator in the top of the carriage

(c) Absence of what might be expected as part of the fact in some -It would be relevant to show that no notes was heard by the occupants of the next compartment.

(i) Desputing the connection .- It would be relevant to show that the occupants of the next compartment were last asleep

(e) Fact implied by a fact in issue .- It would be relevant to show that Muller was armed with a (f) Disputing the connection,-It would be relevant to show that such a weapon could not have caused the marks found on the body. (2) Absence of fact concluded by fact an sense -It would be relevant to show that Muller was playescally a very weak man.

(h) Desputes; the researts in -It would be relevant to show that under the circumstance but little strength was required.

(s) Cause.-It would be relevant to show that Mr. Briggs had done Muller some great injury (j) Disputing the connection -It would be relevant to show that Muller was not aware that it was Mr Briggs who had done him the

(k) Absence of cause.-It would be relevant to show that Mr. Briggs had nothing valuable about him to tempt a robber

(l) Desputing the connection -It would be relevant to show that Muller had reason to believe that Mr. Briggs had valuables in his possession.

(m) Effect .- It would be relevant to show that immediately after the occurrence Mulier took passage for America

(n) Disputing the connection -It would be relevant to show that Muller had sudden and orgent business that called him to America

(a) Absence of effect -- It would be relevant to show that the railway carriage bore no marks of a struzgle.

(p) Disputing the connection .- It would be relevant to show that Mr. Briggs was too old and feeble to offer any consulerable resistance

(a) Effect of a cause of a lact in issue. - It would

After giving this single example of each kind of relevancy according to his classification, Mr. Whitworth proceeds to decide by reference to the above rules all the cases quoted in illustration of the rules set forth in this Act and shows that his rules are identical in effect with the law by reference to them of the illustrations in the Act as follows:

SECTION 6 Illustration, (a),(1)—For upon examination every part of a transaction will be found to be connected with every other part as cause or effect or as effects of one cause Itlustration (b), (2).—That war was waged is one of the facts in issue. These occurrences are part of that fact.

Illustration (c) (3).—Besides the fact of the publication there may be in sense the question of Br. good faith or makes, of the sense in which the words were used, whether the occasion was privileged or not. Other parts of the correspondence may be causes or effects of the publication, or effects of Br. good faith or malice, or effects of the words having been used in a particular sense, or effects of a relationship between the parties showing that the occasion was on was not intripleced

Illustration (d), (4).—Each delivery is a relevant fact as being part of the fact in issue, Did the goods pass from B to A?

SECTION 7 Illustration (a), (5).—The first fact is relevant as a fact implied by the fact in issue, and the second is relevant as a cause of the fact in issue.

Illustration (b), (6).—The marks are relevant facts as effects of part of the fact in issue.

Illustration (c), (7).—That B was ill before the symptoms ascribed to poison, is relevant as desping the connection of cause and effect between the fact in issue (the poisoning) and the relevant fact (the death): that B was well is relevant as asserting this connection. The habits of B are, if it is alleged that the be relevant to show that Muller had just before provided himself with a life-preserver (r) Disputing the connection—It would be relevant to show that Muller anticipated violence to himself on the day in question, (s) Absence of effect of cause of fact in assue.—It would be relevant to show that Muller and Mr. Briggs had travelled together for a long distance before the fatal occurrence, and that through all that time Muller had equal opportunity to attack Mr. Briggs and had not done so.

41) Disputing the connection.—It would be relevant to show that Muller had secretained how far Mr. Briggs was going to travel, and that he (Muller) could best effect his escape by getting out at some place the train came to after the occurrence.

(I) A is accused of the murder of B by heating him: Whatever was said or done by A or B or the bystanders at the heating or so shortly before or after it as to form part of the transaction, is a relevant fact.

(2) A is accused of waging war against the Queen by taking part in armed insurrection in which property is destroyed, troops are attacked and gaols are broken open. The occurrence of these facts is relevant as forming part of the general transaction though A may not have been present at all of them.

(3) A sues B for a libel contained in a letter forming part of a correspondence. Lettera between the parties relating to the object out of which the libel area and forming part of the correspondence in which it is contained are relevant facts though they do not contain the libel itself.

(4) The question is whether certain goods ordered from B were delivered to A. The goods were delivered to soveral intermediate parties aucessively. Each delivery is a relevant fact

(5) The question is whether A robbed B The facts that shortly before the robbery B went to a fair with money in his possession and that he showed it, or mentioned the fact that he had it, to a third person are relevant.

(6) The question is whether A murdered B. Marks on the ground produced by a struggle at or near the place where the murder was committed, are relevant facts.

(7) The question is whether A poisoned B. The state of B's health before the symptoms ascribed to poison and habits of B lnown to A which afforded an opportunity for the administration of poison are relevant facts. opportunity was availed of, relevant as part of the fact in issue. (If the opportunity was not availed of, the habits are not relevant)

SECTION 8: Illustration (a), (1).—The facts are relevant as causes of the fact in issue.

Illustration (b), (2).—The fact is relevant as a cause of the fact in issue.

Illustration (c), (3).—The fact is relevant as an effect of a cause of the fact in issue.

'Illustration (d), (4).—The facts are relevant as effects of the cause of the fact in issue.

Illustration (e), (5).—The facts are relevant, for they are all effects of the immediate cause (namely, A's resolution to commit the offence) of the fact in issue.

Illustration (f), (6).—The latter fact is relevant as an effect of the fact in issue, and the former as a cause of the latter. As to the sense in which  $C^*\sigma$  statement is relevant, see remarks below, illustration (f), post Mustration (g), (7) —For A's going away without making any answer is an effect of the fact in issue, and the other two facts are causes of that effect.

Illustration (h), (8).—The first fact is relevant as an effect of the fact in issue, and the second as a cause of that effect

Illustration (1), (9).—The facts are relevant as effects of a fact in issue

Hilustration (p), (10).—The facts are relevant as effects of the fact in issue. The illustration goes on to say that the fact that without making a complaint she said that she had been ravished, is not relevant as conduct under section 8, though it may be relevant as dying declaration or as corroborative evidence. Now here, as Mr. Whitwork points out, the strict use of the term 'relevant'

- (1) A is tried for the murder of B. That A murdered C, that B knew that A had murdered C, and that B had fixed to extort money from A, by threatening to make his knowledge public are relevant.
- (2) A sucs Bupon a bond for the payment of money. B denies the making of the bond. The fact that at the time when the bond was alleged to be made. B required money for a particular purpose is relevant.
- (3) A is tried for the murder of B by poison. The fact that before the death of B, A procured person similar to that which was administered to B, is relevant.
- (4) The question is shorther a certini document is the will of A. The facts that not lone before the date of the alleged will. A mode inquiring the matters to which the provisions of the alleged will relive, that be consulted valsh in inference to raking the will, and that he caused drafts of other wills to be prepared of which he did not approximate relevant.
- (6) A is account of a trime. The acts that either before or at the time of, or after the abject erime, I provided evidence which would tend to give to the facts of the case an appearance assumable to himself, or that he destroyed or consoled evidence, or presented the presence of your content of the absence of presence who might have been witnesses, or suborned persons to give false evidence respecting it, are relevant

- (6) The question is whether A robbed B. The facts that, after B was robbed, C said in A'e pressence. The police are coming to look for the man who robbed B," and that immediately afterwards A ran awar, are relevant.
- (7) The question is whether A owes B 10,000 Tipes a The facts that A sixed C to lead him money, and that B said to C in A's presence and hearing, "I advise you not to trust A, for he owes B 10,003 rupes," and that A worst away without making any answer, are relevant facts.
- (8) The question is whether A committed a crime. The fact that A absconded after receiving a letter warming him that inquiry was being made for the criminal, and the contents of the letter are relevant.
- (0) It is accused of a crime. The facts that after the commission of the alleged crime he abscended, for was in prosession of property or the proceeds of property acquired by the crime, or attempted to conceol things which were or might have been used in committing it, are relevant.
- (10) The question is whether 1 was ravished. The facts that shortly after the alleged rape she made a complaint relating to the crime, the circumstances under which, and the terms in which the complaint was made are relevant.

has been departed from. That the woman said she had been ravished is relevant, though it does not follow that it is admissible. The fact declares when statements of fact in issue or televant facts may be proved. When the statement is a dving declaration is one instance, that such statements may under certain circumstances by proved as vorroborative evidence is another, and another is to this effect that when the conduct of any person is a relevant fact, his statements accompanying or explaining that conduct, or statements made to him or in his hearing affecting that conduct, may be proved. This has nothing to do with relevancy and the rule seems out of place in section 8. It is because the noman's statement without complaint is not admissible under this rule, that the Act says that statement is " not relevant as conduct under this section ' So above in Illustrations (f), (g), (h), some of the relevant facts are statements. They are also admissible as being connected with conduct. They are simply pronounced relevant. It is plain that it is meant that they may be proved. But that the statements are relevant in the strict sense is sufficient for the present purpose.

Hillustration (4) (1)—The facts in the first sentence of the illustration are relevant as effects of the fact in issue. The fact that he said he had been robbed, without making any complaint, is relevant, though whether it is admissible or not depends upon the law relating to the question what statements may be proved.

SECTION 9 Illustration (a), (2).—The Act says the state of A's property and of his family at the date of the alleged will may be relevant facts. But it may be stated absolutely that so much of the state of A's property or of his family as shows probable cause for his making such a will as the alleged one, or as shows the absence of such probable cause, is relevant.

Hilustration (b), (3)—Upon this issue so much of the position and relations of the parties at the time when the liber was published as shows cause for B's publishing a true libel or a false one, or the absence of such causes and so much as bears upon the matter asserted in the libel as cause of its truth or otherwise, is relevant.

The particulars of a dispute between A and B about a matter unconnected with the alleged libel are, the illustration says, irrelevant, because they do not make any fact in issue more or less likely to have happened. But the fact that there was a dispute is relevant if it affected any part of the position and relations of the parties defined above.

Illustration (c), (4). - The absconding is relevant as an effect of the fact in issue

The fact of the sudden call is relevant as denying the connection of cause and effect between the fact in issue and the alleged relevant fact.

The details further than as stated in the illustration do not make the fact in issue more likely or unlikely to have happened.

soon after the commission of the crime A abeconded from halower, selevant under 8 as conduct subsequent to, and affected by facts in uses. The fact that at the time he left benue, he had audden and orgent louises at the place to which he went, is relevant as tending to explain the fact that he left home audderdy. The details of the bosiness or which he left are not relevant, except in 6 figas they are necessary to show that the business was adden or urgent.

<sup>(1)</sup> The question is whether A was robbed. The fact that, soon after the alleged robbers, he made a complaint relating to the offence, the circumstances under which and the terms in which the complaint was made, are relevant [2]. The question is whether a given document.

is the will of A

(3) A sues B for a libel imputing disgraceful conduct to A; B affirms that the matter alleged to be libellous is true,

(4) A is accused of a crime. The fact that

Illustration (d), (1).-This statement is relevant as affirming the connection of cause and effect between the fact in issue (B's persuasion) and the relevant fact (C's leaving A's service).

Illustration (e), (2),-B's statement is relevant as an effect of a fact in issue.

Illustration (f). (3) .- That the riot occurred is a fact in issue, and the cries of the mob are relevant as parts or as effects of the fact.

SECTION 10: Illustration, (4) .- And any of these facts that are so connected with the other fact in issue, A's complicity, as to make it more or less likely, are relevant for that purpose also SECTION 11 Illustration (a), (5) -Presence at Lahore is relevant as denving a part of the fact in issue. The other fact is relevant as making a part of the fact in issue unlikely.

Illustration (b), (6).—That the crime was committed is adduced as an effect of the fact in issue that A committed it To show that some other person committed it is relevant as denving the connection of cause and effect between the fact in issue and relevant fact; and to show that no other person committed it is relevant as affirming that connection.

SECTION 12: (7) .- For the amount of damages is a fact in issue, and any fact which will enable the Court to determine it will be found to be connected with the fact in issue in one of the ways specified

SECTION 13 · Illustration, (8) .- The deed is relevant as a cause of the fact in issue. The mortgage is relevant as an effect of the father's right, which is relevant as a cause of A's right. The subsequent grant of A's is relevant as denying a fact implied by that relevant fact. Particular instances of exercise of the right are rejevant facts as effects of the father's right. And instances in

(1) A sues B for inducing C to break a contract of service made by him wih A. C, on leaving A's service, says to A, "I am leaving you because B has made me a better offer" This statement is a relevant fact as explanatory of C's conduct which as sale-s-stolen r wofe B says, as he delivers it, A says 'you are to hide this' B's statement is relevant as explanatory of a fact which is part of the transaction (3) A is tried for a riot and is proved to have marched at the head of a mob The cres of the mob are relevant, as explanatory of the nature of the transaction (4) Reasonable ground exists for believing that

A has joined in a conspiracy to wage war against the Queen.

The fact that B procured arms in Europe for the purpose of the conspiracy, C collected money in Calcutta for a like object, D persuaded persons to join the conspiracy in Bombay, E published untings advocating the object in view in Agra, and P transmitted for n ii. mon .

persons by whom they were done were strangers to him, and although they may have taken place before he joined the conspiracy or after he left it.

(5) The question is whether A committed a crime at Calcutta on the certain day. The fact that, on that day, A was at Lahore is relevant The fact that near the time when the crime was committed A was at a distance from the place where it was committed, which would render it highly improbable, though not impossible, that he committed it, is relevant

(6) The question is whether A committed a crime The circumstances are such that the crime must have been commutted by A. B. C or D Every fact which shows that the crime could have been committed by no one else and that it was not committed by either B. C or D. is relevant

(7) In suits in which damages are claimed, any fact which will enable the Court to determine the amount of damages which ought to be awarded is relevant

(8) The question is whether A has a right to a fishery. A deed conferring the fishery on A's ancestor's a mortgage of the fishery by A's father, a subsequent grant of the fishery by A'e father, areconcilcable with the mortgage, particular metances in which A's father exercised the right, or in which the exercise of the right was stopped by A's neighbours, are relevant facts tage of '

ezt

has

which the exercise of the right were stopped are relevant as contradicting those relevant facts

SECTION 14: Illustration (a), (1).—The fact that, at the same time, he was in preserving of many other stolen articles is relevant as an effect of a habit of receiving stolen goods, the habit being relevant as a cause of his receiving the particular article with a knowledge that it was stolen.

Illustration (b), (2).—The fact is relevant as effects of a habit, which habit a cause of his delivering the particular piece with a knowledge that it was counterfeit.

Illustration (c), (3).—The facts are relevant as the causes of a fact in issue, B's knowledge that the dog was ferocious.

Illustration (d). (4).— For A's knowledge on the previous occasions are a cause of his knowledge on the occasion in question, and that there was not time for the previous hills to be transmitted to him by the payer had been a real person is a cause of his knowledge on previous occasions, and the fact that if accepted the hills is an affirmation of the connection of cause and effect between the fact concerning time and the fact of A's knowledge.

Illustration (c), (5).—The fact of previous publications is relevant as an effect of the same cause as that of which the fact in issue is an effect.

The fact that there was no previous quarrel between .1 and B, is relevant as alleging absence of fact in issue. The fact that .4 reported the matter as he heard it is relevant as denying the connection of cuse and effect between the two facts, the malicious intention and the publication.

Hilustration (f), (6).—For A's good faith is in issue, i.e., did A, when he represented C as solvent, think him solvent ' is an issue. As C's insolvency may be put forward on one side as a cause of A's thinking him not solvent, so, that his neighbours and persons dealing with him supposed him to be solvent, any be put forward as effects of causes which are causes also of A's thinking him solvent. Thus the neighbour's suppositions are effects of causes of a fact in issue.

- (1) A is accused of receiving stolen goods, knowing them to be stolen. It is proved that he was in possession of a particular stolen article. The fact that at the same time he was in possession of imany other stolen articles is relevant, as fonding to show that he knew each and all of the articles of which he was in possession to be stolen.
- (2) A is accused of fraudulently delivering to another person a piece of counterfet com what at the time when he delivered it, he knew to be counterfet. The fact that at the time of its delivery A was possessed of a number of other pieces of counterfet. It can is relevant. (The rest of illustration was added after Mr. Whitworth's pamphlet by Act III of 1891)
- (3) A suce B for damage done by a dog of B's which B knew to be ferocious. The fact that the dog had previously bitten X, Y, and Z and that they had made complaints to B, are relevant.
- (4) The question is whether A, the acceptor of a bill of exchange, knew that the name of the paree was fictitious.
- The fact that A had scepted other bills drawn in the same manner before they could have been transmitted to him by the payer of the payer had been a real person, is relovant, as showing that A know that the payer was a fictious person

(5) A is accused of defauming R by publishing an imputation intended to barm the reputation of B. The fact of previous publications by A respecting R, showing ill-will, on the part of A towards B is relevant as proving A's intention to harm B's reputation by the particular publication in question. The facts that there was no previous quarrel between A and B, and that B repeated the matter compliance of as he heard it, are relevant as showing that A did not intend to harm the reputation of B.

(6) A is sued by B for fraudolently representing to Bthat C was solrent, whereby B, being induced to trust C, who was insolvent, suffered loss. The fact that, at the time when A represented C to be solvent, C was supposed to be solvent to be notent by this neighbours and by persons dealing with him, is relevant, as showing that A made the representation in good fath:

Illustration (g), (1) .- The fact that A paid C for the work in question is relevant. For it is in issue,-was B's contract with A? Therefore that I contracted for the same piece of work with C is relevant as showing absence of cause to contract with B, and that he paid C is relevant as an effect of the relevant fact that he contracted with C.

Illustration (h), (2).-The fact of notice is relevant as a cause of his knowledge that the real owner could be found.

The other fact is relevant as showing that the alleged cause of the fact in issue had not the effect of causing the fact in issue.

Illustration (1), (3) .- For A's intention is a fact in issue. The fact is one which may continue through a space of time, and the previous shooting is an effect of it.

Illustration (1), (4) .- For the intention to cause fear is a fact in issue. It is a fact capable of prolonged existence, and the previous letters may be effects of it.

Should it, however, he objected that the fact in issue is intention at a particular moment and not intention through a space of time. Mr. Whitworth's reply is, that previous intention is a cause of subsequent intention, or both are effects of the same cause.

Illustration (k), (5). - The expressions are relevant as effects of the cause of the fact in issue or as showing absence of cause of the fact in issue

Illustration (1), (6) .- The statements are relevant as effects of effects of the fact in issue.

Illustration (m), (7).—The statements are relevant as effects of the fact In issue.

Illustration (n), (8).-The drawing of B's attention is relevant as a cause of B's knowledge, which is a fact in issue

The fact that B was habitually negligent is irrelevant, for it is not connected with the fact in issue.

(1) A 15 sued by B for the price of work done by B upon a house of which A is owner, by the order of C, a contractor A's defences that B's contract was with C The fact that A paid C for the work in question is relevant, as proving that A did, in good faith, make over to C the management of the work in question, so that C was in a position to contract with B on C's account and not as agent for A

(2) As accused of the dishonest misappropriation of property which he had found, and the question is whether, when he appropriated it, he believed in good futh that the real owner could not be found. The fact that public notice of the loss of the property had been given in the place where A was is relevant, as showing that A did not in good faith believe that the real owner of the property could not be found. The fact that A knew, or had reason to believe, that the notice was given fraudulently by C, who had heard of the loss of the property and wished to set up a falsa claim to it, is relevant, as showing that the fact that A knew of the notice did not disprove A's good futh.

(3) A is charged with shooting at B with intent to kill him The fact of A's having previously shot at B may be proved

(4) A is charged with sending threatening letters to B Threatening letters previously sent by A to B may be proved at showing the intention of the letters.

(5) The question is whether A has been guilty of cruelty towards B, his wife Expressions of their feeling towards each other shortly before or after the alleged cruelty are relevant facts. (6) The question is whether A's death was caused by poison Statements made by A during his illness as to his symptoms, are relevant fact

(7) The question is, what was the state of his health at the time when an assurance on his life was effected. Statements made by .1 as to the state of his health at, or near, the time in question are relevant facts

(8) A sues B for negligence in providing him with a carriage for hire not reasonably fit for use whereby A was injured. The fact that B's attention was drawn on other occasions to the defect of that particular carriage is relevant. The fact that B was habitually negligent about the carriages which he lot to hire is irrelevant

Illustration (c), (1).—The fact is relevant as an effect of a fact in issue, B's intention

The fact that if was in the habit of shooting at people is irrelevant, for it is not connected with a fact in issue

Mr. Whitenorth adde that this case, in which a habit is declared irrelevant, has some resemblance to that of illustration (a), where a habit is relevant, but that there is a real difference between the two. He says: "The man who habitually shoot at people with intent to murder them has in each case a definite intention of killing the particular person shot at. There is not, as far as the facts are stated, any ulternor common object to connect together the fact of the privation shooting and the fact in issue. But in the case of receiving stolen property the ulternor common object of making dishonest gain by receiving supplies the connection."

Illustration (p), (2) - The first fact is relevant as an effect of the cause of his committing the crime

The second fact is irrelevant, as it is not connected with the fact in issue, namely, whether he committed the particular crime.

SECTION 15 Illustration (a), (3) —The facts are relevant as effects of the cause of the fact in issue.

Illustration (b), (4).-The facts are relevant as effects of the cause of A's making the particular false entry intentionally

Illustration (c), (5).—The facts are relevant as effects of the cause of the intentional delivery of the rupes in question.

SECTION 16 Iillustration (a), (6).—The facts are relevant as causes of the fact in issue.

Illustration (1), (7) — The facts are relevant, the first as a cause of the fact in use, and the second as affirming the connection of cause and effect between the first and the fact in issue.

Mr. Whitworth was unfortunately prevented by want of lessure from dealing generally with the criticisms which his essay provoked. One of these <sup>(1)</sup> A is tried for the murder of B by intentionally shooting him deal. The fact that I on other occasions shot at B is releant as showing his intention to shoot B. The fact that he was in the habit of shooting at people with intent to murder them is irrelevant.

<sup>(2)</sup> A is tried for a crime. The fact that he said something indicating an intention to commit that particular crime is relevant. The fact that he said something indicating a general disposition to commit crimes of that class, is irrelevant.

<sup>(3)</sup> A is accused of luming down his house in order to obtain money for which it is usured. The facts that A lived in several houses successively, each of which ho insured, in each of which a fine occurred, and after each of which first A received payment from a different insurance office, are releant, as tending to show that the first were not accelental (4) A is employed to receive money from the debtors of B. It is his duty to make entries in a book, showing the amount received by him. He makes an entry showing that on a particular occasion he received less than he really did receive. The question is whether this false entry as a accelerated or intentional. The facts that other entries made by 4 in the same book, are false and that the false entry is in ewh case in favour of 4 are relevant.

<sup>(5)</sup> It successed of frankleinth delivering to B a counterfeit rujes. The question is whether the delivery of the rujese was accidental. The facts that soon before or soon after the delivery to B. J. delivered counterfeit rujes, to C, D and E are televant, as showing that the delivery to B was not accelerate.

<sup>(6)</sup> The question is whether a particular letter was despitched. The facts that it was the ordinary course of business for all letters put in a certain place to be carried to the post, and that that particular letter was put into that place are relevant.

<sup>(7)</sup> The question is whether a particular letter reached A. The fact that it was posted in due course, and was not returned through the Dead Letter Office are relevant.

was that his first rule was a practical abandonment of the scientific form of the others. Mr. Whitworth's answer to this in his Preface to the Second Edition of his Pamphlet was that an examination of the connection of the first with the other rules would show that their scientific form was of independent value. The second, third and fourth rules supplied, he contended, a definition of relevancy and would be complete if the subject were the theory of relevancy absolutely. The qualification applied by the first rule was required, because the subject is the theory of relevancy for the purpose of judicial evidence. theory is on nurnose is another. added :- " I express at once both the propounded one rule (an principle and unscientific que, as to the muntation and three others (scientific in form) as to the principle. But the importance or unimportance of the failure is to be measured by considering whether questions of difficulty in actual practice usually relate to the limitation of the principle or to the principle itself; in other words, whether, for the solution of such questions unscientific or scientific rules are provided Now the first rule relates chiefly to what Sir James Stephen speaks of as "wide general causes which apply to all occurrences, are, in most cases, admitted and do not require proof, and the test in cases of disputed relevancy will, I think, usually be found to be one of the other, the scientific rules."

The theory contained in Mr Whitworth's essay was subsequently adopted by Sir James Stephen himself in the earlier editions of his Digest of the Law of Evidence.(1) In the present edition Sir J. F. Stephen substituted another definition of relevancy in place of that contained in the earlier editions and taken from Mr. Whitworth's essay, not as Sir J. F. Stephen observes, because he thought the former definition wrong, but because it gave rather the principle on which the rule depends than a convenient practical rule.(2)

Dr. Wharton(3) while defining relevancy as that which conduces to the proof of a pertinent hypothesis, a pertinent hypothesis being one which, if sustained, would logically influence the issue, and adopting several of Sir J. F. Stephen's positions, offers two criticisms as explaining why he cannot accept his scheme as affording a complete solution of the difficulties which beset this branch of evidence. In the first place, the words "cause" and "effect" are open, when used in this connection, to an objection which, though subtle, is in some cases fatal. The "cause" . . . vet whether such a cause produced sucl . instituted to try; and it is a petitio pri vant because it is the "cause" and that it is shown to be the cause because it is relevant. In the second place, the distinction between "facts in issue" and "facts relevant to facts in issue" cannot be sustained. An issue is never raised as to an evidential fact; the only issues the law knows are those which affirm or deny conclusions from one or more evidential facts Thus, Sir J. F. Stephen when explaining the supposed distinction says "A is indicted for the murder of B and pleads guilty. The following facts may be in issue: the fact that A killed B, etc." But if the group of facts classified as facts in issue be scrutinized, it will be found that, as they are facts which could not be put in evidence, they are not relevant facts, though they might be relevant hypotheses to be sustained by relevant fact. If Counsel should ask a witness whether " A Lilled B" the question would, if excepted to, be ruled out, on the ground that it called not for "facts," but for a conclusion from facts, and to such conclusions witnesses are not permitted to testify.(1). The only way of proving "facts in issue," as they are called by Sir J. F. Stephen, is by means of what he calls "facts relevant to the issue." Did A kill B? We cannot say that it would be relevant to the issue for a witness to say " A killed B," for a witness would not be permitted so to testify. No facts are relevant which are in-admissible; and the fact that .f killed B, being in this shape inadmissible, is irrelevant. It is, however, admissible, adopting Sir J. F. Stephen's illustration of facts relevant to the issue to prove that " . I had a motive for murdering B : the fact that A admitted that he had murdered B" and the like From such facts, taken in connection with facts which lead to the conclusion that A struck the blow from which B died, the hypothesis that A murdered B is to be verified or discarded. We must, therefore, it is said, strike out from the category of relevant facts what Sir J. F. Stephen calls " facts in 1984e," or what may be more properly called pertinent hypotheses and limit ourselves to the position that all facts relevant to " facts in issue " (or to pertinent hypotheses) are, as a rule, admissible. If we discard as ambiguous the word "fact" and substitute for it the word, "condition," then the position we may accept is that all conditions of a pertinent hypothesis are relevant to the issue; and that such conditions may be either proved or disproved.(2)

<sup>(1)</sup> Steph Dig , pp 156, 157

<sup>(3)</sup> A Commentary on the Law of Evidence m Civil Issues by F. Wharton, LL D., 3rd Ed. 1888, Philadelphia, §§ 20, 26

<sup>(2) 16.</sup> p 158 The substituted definition is given, p. 25 post, in the Introduction to Ch. II

The other class of criticism to which we have referred is altogether adverse to the system on which the Act proceeds, namely, its departure from the principle of English law which consists of negative rules declaring what (as the expression runs), is not evidence and its attempt instead to positively define evidence by placing its rules wholly into terms of relevancy. As pointed out by Professor Thayer(3), it is here that Sir James Stephen's treatment of the Law of Evidence is perplexing and has the aspect of a tour de force Helpful as his writings on this subject have been, they are injured by the small con sideration that he shows for the historical aspect of the matter and by the over-ingenious attempt to put the rules of evidence wholly into terms of relevancy.(4) The difficulty of dealing with the subject of evidence is increased by the confused way in which in several respects the subject is treated in the Act, particularly the obscurity which is thrown over the rules of evidence by the false assumption that rules of exclusion are based solely upon irrelevancy. (5) Ss. 5-16 are, even when intelligible, for the most part difficult to practically apply, and as the practising lawyer knows, many of them are scarcely ever referred to, and then only for the most part to support a case for the reception of "evidence" which, bears on its face so little the aspect of relevance that for an attempt to receive its admission, some section or other must be pressed into service. The Legislature has entertained the idea of instructing Judges and juries as to what constitutes relevancy giving as Mr. Markby says(6) in s. 7 a statement in quasi-scientific language of the meaning of relevancy; in s. 11 a statement in popular language of what in s. 7 is attempted to be stated in scientific language, and lastly an enumeration of a few facts which are declared to be relevant, though the catalogue of such relevant facts is inexhaustible. The truth is that everybody is assumed (and rightly assumed) to know what evidence is in the sense that the law takes it for granted that people know

<sup>(1)</sup> See Wharton, Ev., § 507 (2) Wharton, Ev., § 26

<sup>(3)</sup> Who during, at any rate, the last century was, as Mr. Markby justly says, the only writer who added much to our knowledge of the penciples of evidence since Bentham Markby's Evidence Act. Introd.

<sup>(4)</sup> Thayer's Prehminary Treatis on J v.1 at the Common Law, p 2000. The who, p) VI in which this passage occurs is wor!, indeed the rest of the work, of the house, <sup>(5)</sup> See Markby's Evidence Act, Lat / ...

(6) Id. 17.

how to find out what is and what is not probative as a matter of reason and general experience (1) The rules which govern here are the general rules which govern everywhere : the ordinary rules of human thought and human experience to be sought in the ordinary sources and not in law books. There is a principlenot so much a rule of evidence as a pre-supposition involved in the very concention of a rational system of evidence as contrasted with the old formal and mechanical systems, which forbids receiving anything irrelevant that is not logically probative.(2) How, asks Professor Thaver(3), are we to know what these forbidden things are? Not by any rule of law. The English law furnishes no test of relevancy. For this it tacitly refers to logic and general experience--assuming that the principles of reasoning are known to its Judges and Ministers just as a vast multitude of other things are assumed as already sufficiently known to them. Unless excluded by some rule or principle of law all that is logically probative is admissible. The Judge simply has to ask himself - Does testimony of this fact help me to determine the issue I have to decide? Whether it does or not his reason and experience will tell him. If it does not, then the rule of reason excludes it. If it does, then since there are tests of admissibility other than logical relevancy, inquiry must be made whether there is any rule of law which excludes it. It is this excluding function which is the characteristic one in the English law of Evidence, which is, as Professor Thayer calls it, the child of the jury system. It seems, he says(4), "that our Law of Evidence, while it is emphatically a rational system, as contrasted with the old formal methods, is yet a peculiar one. In the shape it has taken, it is not at all a necessary development of the rational method of proof; so that where people did not have the jury or having once had it, did not keep it, as on the continent of Europe, although they no less than we, worked out as on the continent of Europe although they, no less than we worked out a rational system, they developed under the head of evidence no separate and systematized branch of the lan "

The main object of the law is to determine not so much what is admissible in proof as what is inadmissible. Assuming in general that what is evidential is receivable, it is occupied in pointing out what part of this mass of matter is excluded , and it demes to this excluded part not the name of evidence but the name of admissible evidence. Some things are rejected as being of too slight a significance, or as having too conjectural and remote a connection : others as being dangerous in their effect on the jury and likely to be misused or overestimated by that body, others as being unpolitic or unsafe on public grounds; others on the bare ground of precedent It is in fact this sort of thing :- the rejection on one or at is really pro- bative, which is characteristic o scamping it as the child of the jury system.(mmed, first by relevancy-an affair of logic and experience and not at all of law; secondly, sbestce of this which alone accounts for the nonerastence of it in all other thin English-speaking construs, whether ancient or modern. Id 267-268 In fact it may be added that the English rules of crudence are next very serupulously attended to by tribinals, which, like the Court of Chancery, adjunitants both on Iwas on fact through the same organs and the same procedure. Mane? I Wileys Communicate, and Ed. 20.

<sup>(1)</sup> Thaver on cit , 25%a

<sup>(2)</sup> Id 275, 264

<sup>(3) 14 265</sup>

<sup>(4)</sup> Id 270

<sup>(5)</sup> Id 204-269 It is thus the creature of experience rather than of logic. Founded as being a rational system upon the time of thought, it yet recognizes another influence (the jury) that must at every moment be taken into account, for it is this which brought it into being, as it is the

but only indirectly, by the law of evidence which declares whether any given matter which is logically probative is excluded.

A practical experience of many years in the working of the Act shows it to be a matter of regret that the English system which has its basis in the historical reasons to which we have refrered, was rejected in favour of the attempt at a constructive treatment adopted in sections 5-16 of the Act. As Mr. Markby very justly puts it (1) "What then, it will be asked, is a Judge to do when he has to consider whether a fact is relevant? In the first place I answer that this is a question which he has very rarely to consider. Parties to a littgation or their advocates very rarely attempt to offer irrelevant evidence. Their only object in doing so would be to waste time. They hope to influence the opinion of the Judge-and this they cannot expect to do by evidence which is really irrelevant. But if a Judge thinks that he is being asked to listen to what is really irrelevant he would certainly not resort to any abstruse consideration, about cause and effect . he would simply consult his own experience." The real discussions which take place before a Judge upon evidence are, as he points out, not as to its relevancy but as to its admissibility. And this Act would have been far more intelligible if the language of it had corresponded with a collection of rules not upon relevancy but upon admissibility. In that case whilst their own reason and common-sense would have told the Judge and parties what was relevant, it would only have been necessary on an objection to look into the provisions of the Act to see whether there was any rule prohibiting the reception of the particular evidence in question. Whether or no certain kinds of evidence shall be admissible depends on a variety of considerations besides relevancy; and the putting forward of relevancy in the Act as if it were the only test is not only erroneous but unfortunate, as it makes the Act difficult to explain and adds to the mystery by which this branch of the law is usually supposed to be surrounded. There is, however, no mystery about the matter if it be remembered that the ordinary processes of reasoning or argument are not left at the door of the Court House and that within it the law does not properly undertake to regulate these processes except as helping by certain rules which may be presented in a readily intelligible manner to discriminate and select the material of fact upon which these are to operate. Legal reasoning, at bottom, is like all other reasoning though practical considerations come in to shape it. Rules, principles and methods of legal reasoning have, however, figured as rules of evidence to the perplexity and confusion of those who sought for a strong grasp of the subject. The notion may be dismissed that legal reasoning is some natural process by which the human What is called the mind is required to infer what does not logically follow "legal mind" is still the human mind and must reason according to the laws of its constitution. But to understand properly the law of evidence one must detach and hold apart from it all that belongs to that other untechnical and far wider subject.(2) The position may be summed up by saying that the laws of reasoning indicate what facts are relevant. The law of evidence declares which of those facts are anadmissible These latter should be concisely stated and codified. But just as other organic processes are ordinarily and in most cases are the better carried on unconsciously, so little of use is attained and the risk treated in it. The language of s. 60, he contends does not, as is generally supposed, exclude hearsay, (2) Thayer op cit. Ch VI, and the same Author's select, case on Evidence, 1-4.

<sup>(1)</sup> Evidence Act, pp 17, 18 According to the learned author notwithstanding that this is an Act which professes to contain the whole law of evidence, two at least of the general rules of exclusion (including that against hearsay) are not

of confusion is involved in an attempted analysis of that of the reason. The common sense and experience of both the parties and the Judge will tell them what they have to prove and what should be proved, and what is relevant for that purpose. And if these do not, abstract considerations of casuality will not help them, interesting though these may be in inquiries less practical than those which come before a Court of Justice (1)

(1) As matters now stand on an objection to evidence the party tendering it has to search the Act for the section which justifies its reception. This is not always an easy matter, and it is probably owing to this and a not unnatural reluctance to enter into the mace of the law of causality that there is such popular resort to a 11. In a Code which sured merely at embodying the rules of exclusion, all evidence would be primal faces admissible unless the objecting party could show some positive rule in the Code excluding it.

ACT No. 1 of 1872.

PASSED BY THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL OF INDIA IN COUNCIL.

(Received the assent of the Governor General on the 15th March 1872.

THE INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT, 1872.

The Title of an Act may be resorted to, to explain an enacting clause when doubtful.(1) As to the title of an Act giving colour to, and controlling its provisions, ride note.(2)

The law of avidence applicable in every case is that of the lex for which Lex for governs the Courts whether a witness is competent or not, whether a certain matter requires to be proved by writing or not, whether certain evidence proves a certain fact or not, these and the like questions must be determined, not leya local contractus but by the law of the country where the question arises, where the remedy is sought to be enforced and where the Court sits to enforce it "(3) As to the law applicable in this country (vide post).

Whereas it is expedient to consolidate, define and amend the Law of Evidence; it is hereby enacted as follows:—

COMMENTARY.

The Preamble shows that this Act is not merely a fragmentary enact. The Prement, but a consolidatory enactment repealing all rules of evidence other than those saved by the last part of the second section.(4)

The Law of Evidence applicable to British India is contained in this Act and in certain Statutes, Acts, and Regulations relating to the subject of evidence saved by the proviso of the second section, or enacted subsequent to this Act. This Act does not therefore contain the whole of the law of evidence. It has repealed all rules of evidence not contained in any Statute, Act, or Regulation in force in any part of British India. A person tendering evidence must therefore show that such evidence is admissible under some provision either of this Act or of the Acts abovementioned, for there are no other rules of evidence in force in British India except such as are contained in these Acts. So where certain administration-papers were tendered on behalf of the planntiff, the Privy Council observed and held. "The Indian Evidence Act has repealed all rules of evidence not contained in any Statute or Regulation, and the planntiff must therefore show that these papers are admissible, Hurro Chunder v Shovo Dhonet, 9 W R.

 402, 404, 405 (F B), (1869), see Sallidd v Johnson, 2 Exch. 256, 282, 283
 Uda Begam v Imam-ud-din, 2 A. 90 (1878).

<sup>(2)</sup> Uda Begam v Imam-ud-din, 2 A, 99 (1878). and see Alangamonyors v. Sonamons, 6 C. 637, 639, 643 (1882), Crawford v. Spooner, 4 M I A

<sup>179, 187 (1846)</sup>

<sup>(3)</sup> Bain v Whiteharen Rathony Co , 3 H. L. Cas , I, 19, per Lord Brougham.

<sup>(4)</sup> Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakdhura Sinih, 12 A, 33 (1889). As to construction of consolidating Acts, see Introduction.

ings

. tion

tra-

under some provision of the Indian Evidence Act."(1) "Instead of assuming the English Law of Evidence, and then inquiring what changes the Evidence Act has made in it, the Act should be regarded as containing the scheme of the law, the principles, and the application of these principles to the cases of most frequent occurrence."(2) The Evidence Act is, as it was intended to be, a complete Code of the Law of Evidence for British India.(3)

The Headings prefixed to sections or set of sections are regarded as preambles to those sections.(4) The headings are not to be treated as if they were marginal notes, or were introduced into the Act increly for the purpose of classifying the enactments. They constitute an important part of the Act itself, and may be read not only as explaining the sections which immediately follow them, as a preamble to a Statute may be looked to, to explain its enactments, but as affording a better way to the construction of the sections which follow than might be afforded by a mere preamble.(5)

Legislative definitions or interpretations, being necessarily of a very general nature, not only do not control, but are controlled by, subsequent and express provisions on the subject-matter of the same definition, they are by no means to be strictly construed, they must yield to enactments of a special and precise nature, and, like words in Schedules, they are received rather as general examples than as overruling provisions (6) The effect of an interpretation-clause is to give the meaning assigned by it to the word interpreted in all places of the Act in which that word occurs wherever that word appears, it must, unless the contrary plainly appear be understood in accordance with the meaning put upon it by the interpretation-clause. But it is by no means the effect of an interpretation-clause that the thing defined shall have annexed to it every incident which may seem to be attached to it by any other Act of the Legislature.(7) Where a defimtion "includes" certain persons or things, it does not, therefore, necessarily exclude other persons and things not so included; for when a definition is intended to be exclusive, it would seem the form of words (as in the definition of "fact") is "means and includes."(8) Where a particular expression has for a long time previously acquired a special technical signification, that special sense, in the absence of a defining clause in the Act, may be attached to that expression.(9)

The words of the section are not limited to the Hlustrations given Hlustrations ought never to be allowed to control the plant meaning of the section itself, and certainly they ought not to do so, where the effect would be to curtial a right which the section in its ordinary sense would confer (10) Hlustrations, although attached to, do not in legal strictness form part of the Acts,

<sup>(1)</sup> See Lelhou Kwar v. Mehped Songh, 7 I. A., 70 (1879); 5 G., 774 · 6 C. L. R. (833 also Celletto of Graithpur v. Pedeldharn Singh, 12 A., 11. 12, 12, 12, 13, 13, 14 (1889). This section in effect prohibits the employment of any land of ordence not specifically sutherned by the Act titled, R. v. Adullad, T. A., 399 (1885) (but see also 3. p. 401). Mulemmod Mishdid v. Mulemmod M. and Mulemmod Mishdid v. Mulemmod Mishdid v. Mulemmod Mishdid v. Mulemmod Mishdid v. Rudemmod Mishdid

 <sup>(2)</sup> R. v. Ashoolosh Chuckerbulty, 4 C, 491 (1378), per Jackson, J.
 (3) R. v. Kartick Chunder, 14 C, 721, 728, F.

B. (1887).

(4) Maxwell on Statutes, 65,

<sup>(5)</sup> Eastern Counties, etc., Companies v. Marriage, 9 H L C , 41

<sup>(6)</sup> Uda Begam v Imam-ud din, 2 A, 74, 86 (1878); Dwartis on Statutes, 2nd Ed. (1848), 509; R. v Justices of Cambridgeshire, 7 A & E.

 <sup>309;</sup> R. Y. Justices of Cambridgeshire, 7 A. E. E., 480, 491.
 (7) Uma Churn v. Ajadanissa Bibee, 12 C., 430, 432, 433 (1895), see also R. v. Ashootosh

Chuckerbutty, 4 C, 492 (1878)
(8) R. v. Ashorlosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C, 493

<sup>(1878) .</sup> Ashorlosh Chuckerbully, 4 C , 493

<sup>(9)</sup> Ruckmaboye v. Lulloobhoy Motichund, 5 M. I A. 234 (1852); Futteshangi Jasvantsangii v. Dessai Kullianrasii, 21 W. F., 178 (1874). (10) Koylash Chunder v. Sonatun Chun, 7 C.,

<sup>132, 135 (1881),</sup> s c, 8 C. L. R, 283 "Exempla illustrant non restrangunt legem," Co. Litt., 24 (a).

and are not absolutely binding on the Courts. They merely go to show the intention of the framers of the Acts, and in that and other respects they may be useful, provided they are correct.(1) The practice of looking more at the Illustrations than at the words of the section of the Act is a mistake. The Illustrations are only intended to assist in construing the language of the Act.(2)

It has been held in England that marginal notes are no part of sections so Margin as to throw light upon questions of construction, and that they are merely abstracts of the clauses intended to catch the eve and to make the task of reference casier and more expeditious.(3) As regards Indian Acts, there appears to have been some difference of opinion. In the undermentioned case(4) the Court was disposed to think that such notes might be used for the purpose of interpreting Indian Acts, the State Publication of such Acts being framed with marginal notes. In a subsequent case(5) Petheram, C. J., referred to the marginal notes to s. 5, Act XXI of 1870, and s. 149, Act V of 1881, and said that although the marginal notes were not any part of the Act, they did indicate the object of the sections; and in a still more recent decision, (6) it was said with reference to s. 147 of the Criminal Procedure Code :- " The only reference to easements is in the marginal note which is no part of the enactment , but even the marginal note does not restrict the application of the section in the manner suggested." In both of these cases the Court, while holding that marginal notes formed no part of an enactment, appear to have referred to the same on the question of construction. In, however, the latest reported decisions the Court held that marginal notes did not form part of the section and could not be referred to for the purpose of construing it (7)

General observations on this matter are contained in the Introduction to General the reader is referred. The modern general rule is that Statutes must tion of which the reader is referred be construed according to their plain meaning, neither adding to, nor subtract- Act. ing from, them.(8) The Court will put a reasonable construction upon an Act, and will not allow the strict language of a section to prevent their giving it such a construction. (9) In considering the rules of evidence it is necessary

(1) Nanal Ram v Mehin Lal, 1 A. 487, 495, 496 (1877), see also Dubey Sakas v Ganeshs Lal, 1 A., 34, 36 (1875)

(2) Shaikh Omed v Nidhee Ram, 22 W. R., 367 (1874), see also R v. Rahimat, 1 B, 147, 155 (1876); Soorio Narain v. Bissambhur Singh, 23 W. R , 311 (1875); Gujju Lall v Futteh Lall, 6 C , 171, 185, 187 (1880) [illustration referred to to show meaning of word in s 13, post]; R v Chidda Khan, 3 A., 573, 575 (1881) (id )

(3) Wilberforce, 293, 214, Maxwell, 52; Hard castle, 3rd Ed., 205, Claydon v Green, 3 C P, 511, Sutton v Sutton, 22 Ch D, 511 (1882), correcting dictum in In re Venour's Settled Estates,

2 Ch D , 522, 525

(4) Kameshar Prasad v Bhilan Narain, 20 C, 609 (1893), per Pigot, J, at p 628.

(5) Administrator-General, Bengal v Prem Lall, 21 C., 758 (1894)

(6) Dukh: Mullah v Halway, 23 C, 55, 59 (1895) (7) Punardeo Narain v Ram Sarup, 25 C., 859 (1898); Thakurain Balray v. Rai Jagatpal, 8 C. W. N , 699 (1904) , s c , 26 A., 393.

(8) Maxwell, 2, Gureebulah Sirkar v Mohum Lall, 7 C , 127 (1881) , when the terms of an Act to look to the reason of the matter.(10) are clear and plain, it is the dut- of the Court to give effect to it as it stands Philpett v St George' Hospital, 6 H. L. Cas., 339, Buzloor Ruheem v. Shumsoonnissa Begum, 8 W R . P C , 3, 12 (1867). s c , 11 M. I A., 551, 804 , R. v. Bal Krishna, 17 B, 577, 578 (1893), but many cases may be quoted, in which, in order to avoid injustice or absurdity, words of general import have been restricted to particular meanings, $5, 578, Bamasoonderee v Verner, 13 B L. R., 193 (1874); Wells v. L T & S Ry ('o , 5 Ch D., 126, 130; Eastern Countres, etc., Companies v Marriage, 9

A construction effecting a most

H L C, 32, 36 (9) Gureebullah Sirkar v. Mohun Lal, supra, 130 , as to " latent propositions of law , " see Leman v. Damodaraya, 1 M., 158 (1876).

(10) Gujju Lall v Patteh Lall, 6 C, 171, 182 (1880) "All rules must be construed with reference to their object " per Erle, J., in Phelps v. Prew, 3 E & B., 441. So also Couch, C J., in Beharee Lall v. Kaminee Soondaree, 14 W. R. 319. 320 (1870), in dealing with the subject-matter of a 92, post said, "in applying the rule we must always consider what is the reason of it."

under some provision of the Indian Evidence Act."(1) "Instead of assuming the English Law of Evidence, and then inquiring what changes the Evidence Act has made in it, the Act should be regarded as containing the scheme of the law, the principles, and the application of these principles to the cases of most frequent occurrence."(2) The Evidence Act is, as it was intended to be ... complete Code of the Law of Evidence for British India.(3)

adings

The Headings prefixed to sections or set of sections are regarded . preambles to those sections.(4) The headings are not to be treated as if the were marginal notes, or were introduced into the Act merely for the nurnes. of classifying the enactments. They constitute an important part of the Act itself, and may be read not only as explaining the sections which immediately follow them, as a preamble to a Statute may be looked to, to explain its co actments, but as affording a better way to the construction of the section which follow than might be afforded by a mere preamble.(5)

ns

Legislative definitions or interpretations, being necessarily of a very genral nature, not only do not control, but are controlled by, subsequent and press provisions on the subject-matter of the same definition; they are by it means to be strictly construed, they must yield to enactments of a speciand precise nature, and, like words in Schedules, they are received rather ceneral examples than as overruling provisions (6) The effect of an interpr tation-clause is to give the meaning assigned by it to the word interpreted i all places of the Act in which that word occurs, wherever that word appears it must, unless the contrary plainly appear, be understood in accordance with the meaning put upon it by the interpretation-clause. But it is by no much the effect of an interpretation-clause that the thing defined shall have annexto it every incident which may seem to be attached to it by any other Act of the Legislature.(7) Where a definition "includes " certain persons or thinit does not, therefore, necessarily exclude other persons and things not included, for when a definition is intended to be exclusive, it would seem the form of words (as in the definition of "fact") is "means and includes." (acquired a speri !

of a defining clan

The words of the section are not limited to the Illustrations given. Ill: .ustrarations ought never to be allowed to control the plain meaning of the section where the effect would be to cu sense would confer.(10) Illu-strictness form part of the Act.

<sup>(1)</sup> See Lekkraj Kuar v. Mahpel Singh, 7 I A, 70 (1879) . 5 C., 754; 6 C. L. R , 593; also Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palaldhars Sinch, 12 A., 11, 12, 19, 20, 34, 35, 43 (1889). This section in effect prohibits the employment of any Lind of evidence not specifically authorised by the Act itself. R. v. Abdullah. 7 A . 309 (1885) (but see also ib . p. 401) Muhammad Allahdad v Muhammad Ismail, 10 A . 235 (1888); R v Pstamber Jena, 2 B., 64 (1877)

<sup>(2)</sup> R. v. Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C, 491 (1878). (3) R. v. Kartick Chunder, 14 C., 721, 728, F.

B. (1887).

<sup>(4)</sup> Maxwell on Statutes, 65. (5) Eastern Counties, etc. Componies v. Mar-

riage, 9 H. L. C., 41

<sup>(6)</sup> Uda Begam v. Imam-ud-din, 2 A. 74, 80 (1878), Dwarris on Statutes, 2nd Ed. (1848), 509 , E \u2228 Justices of Cambridgeshire, 7 A & E., 480, 491,

<sup>(7)</sup> Uma Churn v Ajadanissa Biber, 12 C, 430, 432, 433 (1885), see also R v. Ashootosh Checkerbutty, 4 C., 492 (1878)

<sup>(8)</sup> R v Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C. 493 (1878)

<sup>(9)</sup> Ruckmaboye v Lulloobhoy Motichand, 5 M L. A. 234 (1852), Futteshangi Jasyantsangis v. Dessai Kullianrasji, 21 W. R., 178 (1874). (10) Koylash Chunder v Sonatun Chun, 7 C.,

<sup>132, 135 (1881),</sup> s c, 8 C L R, 283 "Exempla ellustrant non restringunt legem," Co Litt., 24 (a).

and are not absolutely binding on the Courts. They merely go to show the intention of the framers of the Acts, and in that and other respects, they may be useful, provided they are correct.(1) The practice of looking more at the Illustrations than at the words of the section of the Act is a mistake. The Illustrations are only intended to assist in construing the language of the Act.(2)

It has been held in England that marginal notes are no part of sections so Margina as to throw light upon questions of construction, and that they are merely abstracts of the clauses intended to catch the eye and to make the task of reference easier and more expeditious.(3) As regards Indian Acts, there appears to have been some difference of opinion. In the undermentioned case(4) the Court was disposed to think that such notes might be used for the purpose of interpreting Indian Acts, the State Publication of such Acts being framed with marginal notes. In a subsequent case(5) Petheram, C. J., referred to the marginal notes to s. 5, Act XXI of 1870, and s. 149, Act V of 1881, and said that although the marginal notes were not any part of the Act, they did indicate the object of the sections; and in a still more recent decision, (6) it was said with reference to s. 147 of the Criminal Procedure Code -" The only reference to easements is in the marginal note which is no part of the enactment , but even the marginal note does not restrict the application of the section in the manner suggested." In both of these cases the Court, while holding that marginal notes formed no part of an enactment, appear to have referred to the same on the question of construction. In, however, the latest reported decisions the Court held that marginal notes did not form part of the section and could not be referred to for the purpose of construing it (7)

General observations on this matter are contained in the Introduction to General which the reader is referred. The modern general rule is that Statutes must tion of the be construed according to their plain meaning, neither adding to, nor subtract- Act. ing from, them.(8) The Court will put a reasonable construction upon an Act, and will not allow the strict language of a section to prevent their giving it such a construction.(9) In considering the rules of evidence it is necessary to look to the reason of the matter.(10) A construction effecting a most

(1) Nanak Ram v Mehin Lal, 1 A., 487, 495, 496 (1877), see also Pubry Sahat v Ganroht Lal, I A., 34, 36 (1875)

(2) Shaikh Omed v Nidher Ram, 22 W R , 367 (1874); see also R v. Rahimat, 1 B , 147, 155 (1876); Sorrjo Narain v. Bissambhur Singh, 23 W. R. 311 (1875), Gujis Lall v Futteh Lall, 6 C , 171, 185, 187 (1890) (illustration referred to to show meaning of word in a 13, post), R v Chidda Khan, 3 A , 573, 575 (1881) (id )

(3) Wilberforce, 293, 214, Maxwell, 52, Hardcastle, 3rd Ed., 205, Claydon v Green, 3 C P. 511 , Sutton v Sutton, 22 Ch D , 511 (1892) , correcting dictum in In re Venour's Settled Estates, 2 Ch D , 522, 525

(4) Kameshar Prasad v Bhilan Narain, 20 C., 609 (1893); per Pigot, J, at p 628.

(5) Administrator-General, Bengal v. Prem Lall, 21 C , 758 (1894)

(6) Dukh. Mullah v Halway, 23 C , 55, 59 (1895) (7) Punardeo Narain v. Ram Sarup, 25 C, 858 (1898); Thakurain Balray v. Ras Jagatpal, 8 C. W N, 699 (1904); s. c, 26 A., 393.

(8) Maxwell, 2, Gureebulah Sirkar v. Mohun Lall, 7 C , 127 (1881); when the terms of an Act are clear and plain, it is the duty of the Court to give effect to it as it stands Philipett v. St George' Hospital, 6 H. L. Cas., 339 . Buzloor Ruheem v Shumsunnissa Begum, 8 W R , P C., 3, 12 (1867). s c . 11 M L A . 551, 604 . R v. Bal Krishna, 17 B , 577, 578 (1893), but many cases may be quoted, in which, in order to avoid injustice or absurdity, words of general import have been restricted to particular meanings, ib, 578; Bamasoonderet v Ferner, 13 B L. R., 193 (1874); Wells v L T & S. Ry Co , 5 Ch D., 126, 130 , Eastern Counties, etc., Companies v Marriage, 9 H L C . 32, 36

(9) Gureebullah Sirkar v Mohun Lal, supra, 130 , as to " latent propositions of law , " see Leman Damodaraya, 1 M., 158 (1876). (10) Gunu Lall v Fattel Lall, 6 C, 171, 182

(1880) "All rules must be construed with reference to their object " per Erle, J., in Phelps v. Presc, 3 E. &. B., 441. So also Couch, C. J., in Beharte Lall v Kaminee Soondaree 14 W. R., 319, 320 (1870), in dealing with the subject-matter of s 92 post said, "in applying the rule we must always consider what is the reason of it."

important departure from the English rule of evidence was considered in the under-mentioned case.(1) Whatever be the meaning of a word in one portion of a section, the meaning of the same word in another portion must, according to the principles of construction, be the same.(2) The meaning of a word may he ascertained by reference to the words with which it is associated, and its use in a particular sense in subsequent parts of the Act :(3) and to its allocation in a section with other conditions of a certain character.(4) A construction making surplusage should be avoided (5) "In order to a conclusion on a question of construction, it is relevant that the Indian Evidence Act was passed by the Legislature under the direction of a skilled lawyer: that the construction of the Act is marked by careful and methodical arrangement, and that many of the more important expressions used in it are plainly interpreted. It would be wholly inconsistent with the plan of such an enactment that a specific rule contained in one part of it should at the same time be contained in, or deducible from, one or more other rules relating apparently to topics quite distinct. which rules should be at the same time so expressed as to include not merely the specific rule in question, but also matters which that rule taken by itself would specifically exclude."(6) A construction may be adopted by reference to the entirety of a section and also to other sections (7) The word "may" in a Statute is sometimes, for the purpose of giving effect to the intention of the Legislature, interpreted as equivalent to "must" or "shall," but in the absence of proof of such intention, it is construed in its natural, and therefore in a permissive, and not in an obligatory sense (8) It is not for a Civil Court to speculate upon what was in the mind of the Legislature in passing a law : but the Court must be bound by the words of the law judicially construed.(9) The intention of the Legislature must be ascertained from the words of a Statute, and not from any general inferences to be drawn from the nature of the objects dealt with by the Statute.(10) The Court knows nothing of the intention of an Act, except from the words in which it is expressed applied to the facts existing at the time.(11) In case of doubt or difficulty over the interpretation of any of the sections of the Evidence Act, reference for help should be made both to the case-law of the land which existed before the passing of the Act, and also to juristic principles, which only represent the common consensus <sup>(2)</sup> Collector of Goralspur v. Palaldhar: Sunph supra, 14; so with reference to as 28 and 80 of this Act the Court in R v. Nogla Kola, 22 B, 235, 233 (1896), observed that it would be unreasonable to hold that the Legulature used the same word in different senses in the same het.

<sup>(3)</sup> Gujju Lell v. Fattek Lall, supra, 166, 187. (4) In to Pyan Lall, 4. C. L. B., 504, 506 (1879)

<sup>(5)</sup> Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall, supra, 183; In re I'yan Lall, supra, 506-508; Alangamonjors Dates v. Sonamons Dates, 8 C. 637; 640, 642

<sup>(1882), [</sup>no clause, sentence or word shall be superfluous, word, or unsignificant], Moher Sheikh v. R. 21 C. 399, 400 (1883).

<sup>(6)</sup> Gujju Lall v Fatteh Lall, supra, 183, 184. (7) In re degur Hossein, 8 C L. R., 125 (1880)

<sup>(8)</sup> Delh and London Bank v Orchard, 3 C., 47 (1817), see also R v Also Parco, 3 M. I. A., 488, 492, 493 (1847), Anual Chunder v. Panchos Lall, 14 W. B., F. B. 33, 36 (1870), s. c., 6 B. L. R., 691, 695); Julius v Babbo of Oxford, L. R., 5 Asp. Cas., 214, Ram Dayai v Madan Mohan, 21 A., 432 (1894).

<sup>(9)</sup> Mohesh Chunder v Mahdhub Chunder, 13 R, 85 (1870), Crauford v. Spooner, supra-187; Bully Raheem v. Shumacomissan Regum, supra. 12, Eastern Counties, etc., Companies v. Marriage, supra, 40 [judicaturo trespassing on province of Legislature].

<sup>(10)</sup> Nanak Ram v. Mehin Lall, 1 A , 496, supra; Fordyre v. Bridges, 1 H L. Cas , 1, 4

<sup>(11)</sup> Ib, Logan v. Courtown, 13 Beav 22; and see Crassford v. Spaner, supra, 187, 183 per Lord Brougham at to cases dealing with the intentio of juristic reasoning.[1] When the rules of exclusion and the exception to them are definitely laid down, the exception is not to be extended to cases not properly falling within it (2). Where a clause in an Act which has received a judicial interpretation is re-enacted in the same terms, the Legislature is to be deemed to have adopted that interpretation.[3] It is an elementary rule of construction that a thine, which is within the letter of a Statute, is not within the Statute, unless it he also within the meaning of the Legislature.[4] A saving clause cannot properly be looked at for the purpose of extending an enactment, nor can it give a new or different effect to the previous sections of the enactment.[5]. Upon a question of construction arising upon a subsequent Statute on the same branch of the law, it is perfectly legitimate to use the former Act though repealed.[6] In the under-mentioned case[7] Lord Esher, M. R., said, "To my mind, however, it is perfectly clear that in an Act of Parlament there are no such things as brackets any more than there are such things as stops."

under this Act: see e. g., Gujin Lall v Futtch Lall, supra, 181; In to Pyers Lall, supra, 50%; Framp v. Mohaman, 18 R., 203, 278, 279 (1891) [identity of language used in section with that employed in Taylor on Ev.), R. v. Gupal Due, supra.

(1) Collector of Goralhpur v Palabiliari Singh, supra, 37, 38.

(2) R. v. Jora Hasp., 11 Bom. H. C. R., 242 (1874).

(3) Re Campbell, 5 Ch. App., 703, cf. following sections of this Act with those of Act II of 1855:— 18, 22, 37, 37, 81, 83, 84, 118, 120, 123, 124, 126, 129, 131, 162, 167, and 25, 26, 27, with as 149— 150, Act XXV of 1861

- R. v. Bal Krashna, 17 B., 577 (1893)
   R v. Salaram Valkal, 11 B., 658 (1897)
- (5) R v. Silaram I that, 11 B., 638 (1887)
  (6) Collecter of Sea Customs v. P Chilhambaram,
- Collectif of Sea Customs v. P. Chilhambaram,
   M., 114 (1876)
- (7) Dale of Decommenter V O'Connor, L. R., 24 O B D. 479

PARTI

RELEVANCY OF FACTS.

CHAPTER I

PRELIMINARY.

Short Title Commencement of Act Extent of  This Act may be called "The Indian Evidence Act, 1872." It extends to the whole of British India, and applies to all judicial proceedings in or before any Court. (1) including Court Martial, but not to affidavits presented to any Court or Officer, nor and it shall come into force on the first day of September, 1872.

COMMENTARY

Extent of Act. The Act extends to the whole of "British India," which means the territories vested in Her Majesty by the first section of 21 & 22 Vic, Cap. 106, with the exception of the Strats Settlements, which, under the provisions of 29 & 30 Vic, Cap, 115, ceased to form portion of British India (2) The Act, therefore, applies to the Scheduled Districts, 30) and has been declared to be in force by notification under the Scheduled Districts Act in the districts of Hazaribach, Lohardaga, Manbhoom and Pargana Dhalbhoom and the Kolham in the district of Singhbboom, (4) and the North-Western Provinces Tarai. (5) The Act has also been declared to be in for States, (6) in the Hill District of Baluchistan Agency Territories :(1

to proceedings before an Arbitrator;

, been applied to certain Native States in India or places therein. The Act has been made applicable by Her Majesty in Council in certain places beyond the limits of India for the purposes of cases in which Her Majesty has jurisdiction; and has been adopted by certain Native States of India as their law.

<sup>(1)</sup> Defined in s 3, post. As to the meaning of "judicial enquiry" and "judicial proceeding." see R. v. Tulja, 12 B, 36, 41, 42 (1887); Atchayya v. Gangayyar, 15 M, 138, 143 (1891); Cr Pr. Code, 4 (v), Mayne's Criminal Law of India, 1896,

<sup>* 4 (</sup>n), Mayne's Criminal Law of Indis, 1896, pp 518-520, R. v. Price, L. R., 6 Q B, 418, R v. Gholam Ismail, 1 A., 1, 13 (1875).

<sup>(2)</sup> See Act X of 1897.

<sup>(3)</sup> v. Acts XIV and XV of 1874. (4) Gazette of India, Oct 22, 1881, Pt. I.p 504.

 <sup>(5)</sup> Ib , Sept. 23, 1876, Pt. I., p. 505
 (6) Act XIII of 1898, 4 (Burma Code, Ed., 1898, p. 264).

<sup>1898,</sup> p. 364]. (7) Reg IX of 1874, s 3 [15, p. 354]

<sup>(8)</sup> Reg I of 1890, s. 3, Baluchistan Code, Ed. 1890, p. 69

 <sup>(9)</sup> Baluchistan Agency Laws Law, 1890, s.
 4 [ib., p. 137].
 (10) Reg. III of 1872, as amended by Reg. III of 1899, a 3

Arbitrat

In the Appendix will be found a complete list revised by the Legislative Department of the Native States in India or places therein to which the Indian-Evidence Act (I of 1872) has been applied by the Governor-General in Council,

The Act only applies to Native Courts-Martial.(1) In the case of Euro- Courts. pean Courts-Martial, a Court-Martial is not, as respects the conduct of its pro- and Ma ceedings or the reception or rejection of evidence, or as respects any other Courts matter or thing whatsoever, subject to the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act. The rules of evidence to be adopted in proceedings before such Courts-Martial shall be the same as those which are followed in Civil Courts in England.(2) This is therefore an exception to the general rule that the lex fori determines the law of evidence (vide post). The Act is (subject to such modification as the Governor-General in Council may direct) applicable to all proceedings before Indian Marine Courts.(3)

The Civil Procedure Code regulates the matters to which affidavits must Amday be confined. These are such facts as the deponent is able of his own knowledge to prove, except on interlocutory applications on which a statement of his belief may be admitted, provided that reasonable grounds thereof be set forth.(4) The exception here mentioned does not apply to any proceeding which, though interlocutory in form, finally decides the rights of the parties (5) 41 ٠٠, a Ŝο, davit because it would defeat the object of the whole proceedings which is despatch.(7) The costs of every affidavit unnecessarily setting forth matters of hearsay or argumentative matter or copies of or extracts from documents. are (unless the Court otherwise directs) payable by the party filing the same.(8) The safeguards for truth in affidavits are the provisions for the production of the witness for cross-examination, (9) and the provisions of the Penal Law relating to the giving of false evidence (10)

Proceedings before arbritrators are regulated by the Civil Procedure Code.(11) As an arbitrator is not in procedure bound by technical rules of Court and is appointed to give an equitable award, (12) so also he is unfettered by technical rules of evidence, and it is not a valid objection to an award that the arbitrator has not acted in strict conformity to the rules of evidence, (13) The word "Court" in this Act does not include an arbitrator (14) Though the Act does not apply to proceedings before an arbitrator, yet the latter must not receive and act upon evidence or decide upon grounds which render his award utterly unfair or worthless. He must not import his own knowledge into a case or base his decision upon information obtained otherwise than from the evidence submitted to him by the parties to the cause. Where on the face

<sup>(1)</sup> Under Act V of 1869

<sup>(2) 44</sup> and 45 Vic. cap 58, ss. 127 & 128, r also as 163-165 (Army Discipline and Regulation Act, 1881)

<sup>(3)</sup> Act XIV of 1887, a. 68

<sup>(4)</sup> Civ. Pr Code, O XIX, r 3(1), p 824, see Whitley Stokes, 33 , Cr Pr Code, s 539 In the matter of the petition of Incar Chundra, 14 C 653; On evidence by affidavit, v Powell Ev., 659, Best, Ev., 55 101, 118, 121 et seq , Taylor, Ev. § 1394, ef seg

<sup>(5)</sup> Gibert v. Endean, L. R., 9 Ch. Div., 259. Taylor, Ev , 1 1396 B.

<sup>(6)</sup> Gilbert v. Endern, L. R., 9 Ch. Div., 259. at p 266, per Jessel, M. R. see also Chard v. Jervis.

<sup>9</sup> Q B D , 178, 180 Bonnard v Perryman (1891).

<sup>2</sup> Ch 269, re J L Young Manufacturing Co (1900), 2 Ch., 753, and Lumley v. Odorne (1901), 1 K B, 532

<sup>(7)</sup> Civ. Pr Code, supra.

<sup>(8)</sup> Civ Pr Code, O XIX, r. 1, 2, p 823

<sup>(10)</sup> Penal Code, Ch XI

<sup>(11)</sup> Civ Pr Code, The Second Schedule, pp. 1422-1430

<sup>(12)</sup> Reedoy Kristo v. Puddo Lochun, 1 W. R., 12 (1664) But as to stamp, ere now Act II of 1899.

es. 33, 34, (13) Suppur Gounda Charyar, 11 M., 87 (1887)

<sup>(14)</sup> S 3, post.

PARTI

RELEVANCY OF FACTS.

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short Title Commence-ment of Act Extent of

This Act may be called "The Indian Evidence Act. It extends to the whole of British India, and applies to all judicial proceedings in or before any Court,(1) including Court Martial, but not to affidavits presented to any Court or Officer, nor to proceedings before an Arbitrator:

and it shall come into force on the first day of September. 1872.

COMMENTARY

Extent of

The Act extends to the whole of "British India," which means the territories vested in Her Majesty by the first section of 21 & 22 Vic., Cap. 106, with the exception of the Straits Settlements, which, under the provisions of 29 & 30 Vic., Cap , 115, ceased to form portion of British India.(2) The Act, therefore, applies to the Scheduled Districts (3) and has been declared to be in force by notification under the Scheduled Districts Act in the districts of Hazaribagh, Lohardaga, Manbhoom and Pargana Dhalbhoom and the Kolhan in the district of Singhbhoom, (4) and the North-Western Provinces Tarai. (5) The Act has also been declared to be in for States,(6) in the Hill District of Baluchistan Agency Territories ,(:

, been applied to certain Native States in minute or places therein. The Act has been made applicable by Her Majesty in Council in certain places beyond the limits of India for the purposes of cases in which Her Majesty has jurisdiction; and has been adopted by certain Native States of India as their law.

- (1) Defined in a 3, post As to the meaning of " judicial enquiry" and "judicial proceeding," see R. v. Tulja, 12 B , 36, 41, 42 (1887); Atchayya v. Gangayyar, 15 M., 138, 143 (1891). Cr. Pr Code, s 4 (m), Mayne's Criminal Law of India, 1896,
- pp 518-520; R. v. Price, L. R., 6 Q B, 418, R v. Gholam Ismail, 1 A., 1, 13 (1875).
  - (2) See Act X of 1897. (3) v Acra XIV and XV of 1874.
- (4) Gazette of India, Oct 22, 1881, Pt. I,p 504.
- (5) Ib , Sept. 23, 1876, Pt. I , p. 505. (6) Act XIII of 1898, s 4 [Burms Code, Ed.,
  - 1898, p. 364]. (7) Reg IX of 1874, a 3 (ab . p. 354).
  - (8) Reg I of 1890, s. 3, Baluchistan Code, Ed 1890, p 69
  - (9) Baluchistan Agency Laws Law, 1890, s.
  - 4 [16 , p. 137]. (10) Reg. III of 1872, as amended by Reg. III
- of 1899, s 3.

In the Appendix will be found a complete list revised by the Legislative Department of the Native States in India or places therein to which the Indian-Evidence Act (I of 1872) has been applied by the Governor-General in Council.

The Act only applies to Native Courts-Martial (1) In the case of Euro- Courtspean Courts-Martial, a Court-Martial is not, as respects the conduct of its pro- and Marine credings or the reception or rejection of evidence, or as respects any other Courts matter or thing what oever, subject to the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act. The rules of evidence to be adopted in proceedings before such Courts-Martial shall be the same as those which are followed in Civil Courts in England,(2) This is therefore an exception to the general rule that the lex fori determines the law of evidence (vide post). The Act is (subject to such modification as the Governor-General in Council may direct) applicable to all proceedings before Indian Marine Courts.(3) The Civil Procedure Code regulates the matters to which affidavits must Affidavits. be confined. These are such facts as the deponent is able of his own knowledge to prove, except on interlocutory applications on which a statement of his belief may be admitted, provided that reasonable grounds thereof be set forth (4) The exception here mentioned does not apply to any proceeding which, though interlocutory in form, finally decides the rights of the parties (5) In interlocutory applications the Court acts on evidence given on information and belief because no other evidence is obtainable at so short a notice.(6) So, too, in interlocutory proceedings cross-examination will not be allowed on affidavit because it would defeat the object of the whole proceedings which is despatch.(7) The costs of every affidavit unnecessarily setting forth matters of hearsay or argumentative matter or copies of or extracts from documents. are (unless the Court otherwise directs) payable by the party filing the same (8) The safeguards for truth in affidavits are the provisions for the production of the witness for cross-examination, (9) and the provisions of the Penal Letw relating to the giving of false evidence.(10) Proceedings before arbritrators are regulated by the Civil Procedure Arbitration. Code (11) As an arbitrator is not in procedure bound by technical rules of Court and is appointed to give an equitable award, (12) so also he is unfettered by technical rules of evidence, and it is not a valid objection to an award that the arbitrator has not acted in strict conformity to the rules of evidence (13) The word "Court" in this Act does not include an arbitrator, (14) Though the Act does not apply to proceedings before an arbitrator, yet the latter must not receive and act upon evidence or decide upon grounds which render his award utterly unfair or worthless He must not import his own knowledge into a case or base his decision upon information obtained otherwise than from the evidence submitted to him by the parties to the cause. Where on the face

(1) Under Act V of 1869

(2) 44 and 45 Vic, cap 58, ss. 127 & 128, c also ss 163-165 (Army Discipline and Regulation Act, 1881) (3) Act XIV of 1897, s. 68

(4) Civ. Pr Code, O XIX, r 3(1), p 824, see Whitley Stokes, 33 . Cr Pr Code, s 539 In the matter of the petition of Iswar Chundra, 14 C 653, On evidence by affidavit, v Powell Ev, 659, Best, Ev., 55 101, 118, 121 et seq . Taylor, Ev.,

§ 1394, et seq (5) Gilbert v. Endean, L. R., 9 Ch Dav., 259.

Taylor, Ev., § 1396 B.

(6) Gilbert v. Endean, L. R., 9 Ch. Div., 259, at p 266, per Jessel, M. R. see also Chard v. Jerus. 2 Ch 269, to J L Young Manufacturing Co (1900), 2 Ch., 753, and Lumley v. Oshorne (1901). 1 K B. 532

(7) Ov Pr Code, supra (8) Civ Pr Code, O XIX, r 1, 2, p 823

(9) O XIX (10) Penal Code, Ch XI

(11) Cav Pr Code, The Second Schedule, bn 1422-1430 (12) Reedoy Kristo v. Puddo Lochun, I W. R., 9 Q B 1) , 178, 180 Bonnard v Perryman (1891).

12 (1864) But as to stamp, see now Act II of 1899. as. 33, 31

(13) Suppu v. Govinda Charyar, 11 M., 87 (1887)

(14) S 3, post

of an award it appeared that the arbitrator principally relied on an admis-'sion(1) which he alleged was made to him by the defendant when a former suit between the plaintiff's mortgagee and the defendant was depending, and the arbitrator further stated that he relied on enourisms made to reference *- - ' not statin . ... our cantined witnesses in the ordinary way, it was held have take that he acted improperly in importing the previous enquiry alleged to have been made by him, and was quite wrong in relying on what he called admissions, made to him by the defendant in the former proceedings, and that an award based upon such a foundation was utterly unfair and useless (2) An arbitrator must not receive affidavits instead of viva roce evidence when he is directed to examine the witnesses on oath. He must not make his award without having heard all the evidence, or having allowed the party reasonable opportunity of proving his whole case He must not, contrary to the principles of natural justice, examine a witness or a party privately, or in the absence of his opponent, unless the irregularity be waived by the parties. If the arbitrator proceed, ex-parte, without sufficient cause, or without giving the party absenting himself clear notice of his intention so to proceed, the award will be avoided. So likewise if he refuse to hear the evidence on a claim within the scope of a reference on a mistaken supposition that it is not within it; but not if he erroneously reject admissible, or receive inadmissible, evidence. His refusing to hear additional evidence tendered when the whole case is referred back to him by a Court is fatal, but not so when the award is sent back with a view to a particular amendment only being made.(3) The rule of law which excludes communications made "without prejudice" is as binding upon arbitrators as upon Courts of Justice, notwithstanding the first section of the Evidence Act, and an arbitrator is wrong in receiving and acting upon such a communication.(4) As much as possible the arbitrator should decline to receive private communications from either litigant respecting the subject-matter of the reference Except in the few cases where exceptions are unavoidable, as where the arbitrator is justified in proceeding ex-parte, both sides must be heard and each in the presence of the other.(5) Refusal by an arbitrator to call witnesses produced by either party amounts to judicial misconduct.(6) Lastly, arbitrators ought only to take such evidence as is required by the terms of the agreement referring the question ' an dispute to arbitration.(7)

tepeal of

- 2. On and from that day the following laws shall be repealed :-
  - All rules of Evidence not contained in any Statute, Act or Regulation in force in any part of British India:

<sup>(1)</sup> As to the use of evidence in a subsequent aurt of admissions by parties in a former arbiteation, see Hurgnath Sircar v Preonath Sircar, 7 W. R , 249 (1867), and notes to ss 17, 18, 33, post-(2) Kunhye Chand v. Ram Chander, 24 W. R. 81 (1875).

<sup>(3)</sup> Russell on The Power and Duty of an Arbitrator, 4th Ed., p. 645, ested and adopted in Gunga Sahar v. Lelhray Singh, 9 A., 284, 265 (1886), Cursetj Ahambatta v. Crowder, 18 B., 299 (1894) i arbitrator ought not to receive evidence from one side in the absence of the other!

<sup>(4)</sup> Howard v. Wilson, 4 C , p 231 (1878) Sec s. 23, post (5) Russell, op cit, pp 181 and 182, cited and adopted in Gunga Bahas v Lekhras Singh, 9 A. 565 (1886).

<sup>(6)</sup> Rughoobur Doyal v Mainu Koer, 12 G L.R.,

<sup>(7)</sup> Krishna Kanta v. Bidya Sundarec, 2 B L. R, App. 25 (1869)

- All such rules, laws and regulations as have acquired the force of law under the 25th Section of the "Indian Councils Act, 1861,"(1) in so far as they relate to any matter herein provided for; and
- The enactments mentioned in schedule hereto, to the extent specified in the third column of the schedule.

But nothing herein contained shall be deemed to affect any Repeal provision of any Statute, Act or Regulation in force in any part of British India and not hereby expressly repealed.

See Introduction and notes on Preamble.

3. In this Act the following words and expressions are Interpret used in the following senses, unless a contrary intention appears from the context:—

"Court" includes all Judges(2) and Magistrates,(3) and courtall persons except, arbitrators, legally authorized to take evidence.

s. 1 (Proceedings before Arbitrators.)

s. 3 (" Evidence.")

COMMENTARY

See notes to Preamble

The definition of "Court" is framed only for the purposes of the Act Court. itself and should not be extended beyond its legitimate scope. Special laws must be confined in their operation to their special object.(4) The definition is not meant to be exhaustive.(5) The word means not only the Judge in a trial by a Judge with a jury but includes both Judge and jury (6) A Commissioner is a person legally authorized to take evidence, and therefore the provisions of the Act will apply to Commissions to take evidence under the Civil or Criminal Procedure Codes.(7)

" Fact " means and includes :-

- Any thing, state of things, or relation of things, ... Factcapable of being perceived by the senses.
  - Any mental condition of which any person is conscious.

<sup>(1) 24 &</sup>amp; 25 Vic., cap 67 Clause (2) repeals rules relating to evidence enacted in 'Non-Regulated Provinces' prior to this Statute and which acquired the force of Law under the 25th section thereof

<sup>(2)</sup> Penal Code, s 19, General Clauses Act
(3) C/ General Clauses Act, Cr. Pr. Code, s 3

<sup>(4)</sup> R v Tulja, 12 B, 43 (1887), Attorney-General v Moore, L. R., 3 Ex. Div, 276, R v Ram Lall, 15 A., 141 (1893), but see Atchayya

Gangayya, 15 M., 138, 144, 147, 148 (1891), and ln re Sardhare Lall, 13 B L. R., App., 40 (1874), s. c., 22 W. R. Cr., 10

<sup>(1874),</sup> s. c., 22 W. R., Cr., 10 (5) R. v. Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C., 485, 493 (1878)

<sup>(6) 16 , 490</sup> (7) Dec Pa Code O XXVI •

<sup>(7)</sup> Civ. Pr. Code, O. XXVI, r. 1—10, pp. 1052— 1061; Cr. Pr. Code, ss 503—508 sec also Aichayya v. Gangayya, supra, at p. 147.

Mustrations.

- (a) That there are certain objects arranged in a certain order in a certain place, is a fact.
  - (b) That a man heard or saw something, is a fact.
  - (c) That a man said certain words, is a fact.
- (d) That a man holds a certain opinion, has a certain intention, acts in good faith, or fraudulently, or uses a particular word in a particular sense, or is or was at a specified time conscious of a particular sensation, is a fact.
  - (e) That a man has a certain reputation, is a fact
  - s. 3 (Relevant fact.)

s. 3 (Fuct in issue.)

COMMENTARY

"Fact

The first clause refers to external facts the subject of perception by the five "best-marked" senses, and the second to internal facts the subject of consciousness (1) (a), (b) and (c) are illustrations of the first clause; (d) and (c) of the second. Facts are thus (adopting the classification of Bentham)(2) either physical, eg, the existence of visible objects, or psychological, eg., the intention or animus of a particular individual in doing a particular act. The latter class of facts are incapable of direct proof by the testimony of witnesses; their existence can only be ascertained either by the confession of the party whose mind is their seat or by presumptive inference from physical facts. (3) This constitutes their only difference "When it is affirmed that a man has a given intention, the matter affirmed is one which he and only he can perceive, when it is affirmed that a man is sitting or standing, the matter affirmed is one which may be perceived not only by the man himself, but by any other person able to see and favourably situated for the purpose But the circumstance that either event is regarded as being, or as having been, capable of being perceived by some one or other, is what we mean, and all that we mean, when we say that it exists or existed, or when we denote the same thing by calling it a fact The word 'fact' is sometimes opposed to theory, sometimes to opinion, sometimes to feeling, but all these modes of using it are more or less thetorical,"(4) Facts may also be either events or states of things. "cvent" is meant "some motion or change considered as having come about either in the course of nature or through the agency of human will," in which latter case it is called an "act" or "action." The fall of a tree is an "event:" the existence of the tree is a "state of things" both are alike facts (5) The remaining division of facts is into por The existence of a certain state of things is a nonexistence of it is a negative fact. does not belong to the nature of facts themselves, but to that of the discourse which we employ in speaking of them."(6) "Matter of fact" has been defined to be anything which is the subject of testimony, "matter of law" is the general law of the land of which Courts will take judicial cognisance. (7) The fact sought to be proved or factum probandum is termed the "principal fact;" the means of proof or the facts which tend to establish it " evidentiary facts."(8)

<sup>(1)</sup> Steph. Introd , 19-21 , Norton, Ev , 93 , Steph. Dig , Art 1. Fact is anything that is the subject of testimony : Ram on facts, 3.

<sup>(2)</sup> I Beath Jud. Ev., 45. (3) Best, Ev., 6, 7.

<sup>(4)</sup> Steph. Introd., 20, 21.

<sup>(5)</sup> Best, Ev. 7, 1 Benth Jud Ev. 47, 48. (6) 1 Benth. Jud Ev , 49; Best, Ev . 7. (7) Best, Ev., 19

<sup>(8) 1</sup> Benth. Jud Ev ,18 , cf. Steph Dig , Art , 1; Steph Introd , 19-21; Best, Ev., 6, 7, 19; Norton, Ev., 93; Goodeve, Ev., 4-16

One fact is said to be relevant to another when the one is "Role connected with the other in any of the ways referred to in the provisions of this Act relating to the relevancy of facts.(1)

The expression "facts in issue" means and includes-any fact from which, either by itself or in connection with feaue other facts, the existence, non-existence, nature or exent of any right, liability or disability, asserted or denied in any suit or proceeding, necessarily follows.

Explanation.—Whenever, under the provisions of the law for the time being in force relating to Civil Procedure, any Court records an issue of fact, the fact to be asserted or denied in the answer to such issue is a fact in issue (2)

Illustrations.

A is accused of the murder of B. At his trial the following facts may be in issue:-

That A caused B's death;

That A intended to cause B s death;

That A had received grave and sudden provocation from B;

That A, at the time of doing the act which caused B's death, was by reason of unsoundness of mind, incapable of knowing its nature.

s. 3 (" Fact.' )

COMMENTARY.

"Relevant" in this Act means, it has been said, admissible.(3) Facts Relatio may be related to rights and habilities in one of two wavs.—(a) "They may rights" by themselves or in connection with other facts, constitute such a state of liabiliti things that the existence of the disputed right or liability would be a legal inference from them. From the fact that I is the eldest son of B, there arises of necessity the inference that . I is by the law of England the heir-at-law of B. and that he has such rights as that status involves. From the fact that if caused the death of B under certain circumstances, and with a certain intention or knowledge, there arises of necessity the inference that A murdered B. and is liable to the punishment provided by law for murder. Facts thus related to a proceeding may be called facts in issue, unless their existence is undisputed -(b) Facts which are not themselves in issue in the sense above explained, may affect the probability of the existence of facts in issue and be used as the foundation of inferences respecting them, such facts are described in the Evidence Act as relevant facts. (4) All the facts with which it can in any event be necessary for Courts of Justice to concern themselves, are included in these two classes. What facts are in issue in particular cases is a question to be determined by the substantive law, or in some instances by that branch of the law of procedure which regulates the forms of

<sup>(1)</sup> See as. 5-55, post, Steph. Dig., p. 2; "Relevant " cognate expressions occur in $1 8, 132, 32, cl (8), 155, 147, 148, 153; the expression "irrelevant" occurs in $1, 24, 29, 43, 52, 54, 165; Whitley Stokes, 851.

<sup>(2)</sup> Civ. Pr. Code, O. XIV, r, 1-7, pp 787-795 The expression "facts (or 'fact') in issue," occurs in ss. 5. 6, 7, 8, 9, 11, 17, 21, ill (d), 33, 36, 43; "questions in issue," s 33, "matter in issue," s 132, Whitley Stokes, 852

<sup>(3)</sup> Lala Lakhmi v Sayed Haider, 3 C. W. N., celxvin (1899), per Lord Hobbouse.

<sup>(4)</sup> For example of a fact in assue and a relevant fact see Kaung Hia Pru v. San Paw 3. L. B. R., 90.

pleading, civil or criminal."(1) A judgment must be based upon facts declared by this Act to be relevant and duly proved.(2)

"Docu-

"Document" means any matter expressed or described upon any substance by means of letters, figures or marks, or by more than one of those means, intended to be used, or which may be used, for the purpose of recording that matter. (3) s 3 (Document produced for inspection of Court.)

Hustralions

A writing is a document;

Words printed, lithographed, or photographed are documents,

A map or plan is a document,

An inscription on a metal plate or stone is a document;

A caricature is a document

"Evidence"

" Evidence" means and includes -

- All statements which the Court permits or requires to be made before it by witnesses, in relation to matters of fact under enquiry such statements are called oral evidence:
- All documents produced for the inspection of the Court; such documents are called documentary evidence. (4)

Ch. IV (Oral evidence.) ... Ch. V (Documentary Evidence.)

s. 60 (Direct Evidence.)

5. 62. 64. 165 (Primary Evidence.)

63. 65, 66 (Secondary Evidence.)

COMMENTARY

"Evidence"

The word "evidence" as generally employed is ambiguous. (a) It sometimes means the words uttered and things exhibited by witnesses before a Court of Justice; (b) at other times it means the facts proved to exist by those word or things, and regarded as the groundwork of inferences as to other facts not so proved, (c) again it is rometimes used as meaning to assert that a particular fact is relevant to the matter under enquiry. (5) The word in this Act is used in the sense of the first clause. As thus used it signifies only the instruments by means of which relevant facts are bought before the Court (ciz., witnesses and documents), and by m ans of which the Court is convinced of these facts. (6)

Instruments of evidence or the media through which the evidence of facts, either disputed or required to be proved, is conveyed to the mind of a judicial tribunal have been divided into—(a) witnesses; (b) documents, (c) real evidence; including evidence lumnshed by things as distinguished from persons, as well

<sup>(1)</sup> Steph Introd., 12, 13, cf Goodeve, Ev., 316, ct seq., Best, Ev., 20, Steph Dig., 2. (2) S. 165, post

<sup>(3)</sup> Cf. Penal Code, s 29

<sup>(4)</sup> Steph Introd., 3, sb., Dig., Art 1 The expression "Documentary Evidence" occurs only in the headings to Chapters V and VI; Whitley

Stokes, 852, as to oral evidence v post, as 59, 60, 91 Expl (3), 119, 44 Expl. The meaning of the term is not confined to proof before a judicial tribural; Sciences v. R., 4 M., 395 (1881) (3) Steph. Introd. 3, 4

<sup>(6)</sup> Norton, Ev., 95; Field, Ev., 26; as to instruments of evidence, see Best, Ev., § 123

as evidence furnished by persons considered as things, i.e., in respect of such properties as belong to them in common with things (1)

This real evidence may be (a) reported, or (b) immediate (2) Cl. (a) properly falls under the first class of instruments (witnesses). Cl. (b) describes that bmited portion of real evidence of which the tribunal is the original percipient witness; e.g., where an offence or contempt is committed in presence of a tribunal, it has direct real evidence of the fact.(3) demeanour of witnesses,(4) the demeanour, conduct and statements of parties (5) local investigation by the Judge,(6) a view by jury or assessors,(7) are all instances of real evidence. Cl. (b) thus also includes material things other than documents produced for the inspection of the Court (called in the Draft Bill "material evidence") c.g., the property stolen, models, weapons or other things to be produced in evidence and which are required to be transmitted to the Court of Sessions on High Court. (8) This " real evidence" does not form part of the definition of "evidence" given in the Act, inasmuch as the Court is in all cases the original percipient witness: and further in the case of "material evidence" in so far as it is spoken to by witnesses. (9) it falls properly under the first class of instruments. things so produced are relevant facts to be proved by "evidence," t.c. by oral testimony of those who know of them.(10) The Court may require the production of such material things for its inspection.(11) The definition has been objected to(12) for incompleteness, in so far as by its terms it does not include the whole material on which the decision of the Judge may rest Thus, in so far as a statement by a witness only is "evidence," the verbal statements of parties and accused in Court by way of admission or confession or in answer to questions by the Judge, (13) a confession by an accused person affecting himself and his co-accused, (14) the real evidence abovementioned, and the presumptions to be drawn from the absence of producible witnesses or evidence,(15) are not "evidence" according to the definition given. The answer to this objection, however, is that this clause is an interpretationclause, and the Legislature only explains by it what it intended to denote whenever the word " evidence " is used in the Act (16) This definition must be considered together with the following definition of "proved."(17) "It

<sup>(1)</sup> lext, Ev., pp 100, 108. Gooders, Ev., 11
"Personal Evidence" is that which as reported by wincesses; another division of evidence is that into "original" or immediate, and "hearsay" or mediate. The former is that which a witness reports himself to have seen or heard through the medium of his own ensense, the latter that which is not arrived at by the personal knowledge of the witness, see Norton Ex. (2.8, 7) Pest, Ex. (§ 37
31 and text, posf
(2) Best, Ev., pp 183, 184, Goodeve, Ev., 11.

<sup>(2)</sup> Best, Ev., pp 183, 184, Goodese, Ev. 11 12, 14, 16

<sup>(3)</sup> Best, Ev , p 182

<sup>(4)</sup> v Cwel Pr Code, O XVIII, r 12, p 819, C Pr Yode, a 328. As to the importance of observation of demeanour, see R v Modhab Chander, 21 W. R., Cr. 13, 14 (1821); Statue, E. s 188. Best, Ew, 981, 17 (1821); Statue, E. s 188. Text, Ed., 1 Pr C, 335. In all cases in which the evidence is conflicting it is the dudy of a Court of Appeal to have great regard to the opinion formed by the Judge in whose presence the wintensee gave there evidence as to the degree of credit to begiven to it; Woonsta Chandre v. Rashmohard Dates, 21 C.

<sup>279 1893)</sup>

<sup>(5)</sup> v Whitley Stokes, 852

<sup>(6)</sup> Civ Pr Code, O XXVI, r, 9, p 1037; Joy Coomar v Bundhoolall, 9 C. 363 (1882), Oomut Fatima v Bhujo Gopal, 13 W R, 51 (1870), Hankushore Mitra v Abdul Bakı, 21 C, 920 (1894).

<sup>(7)</sup> Cr Pr Code, s 293 See R v Chutterdharee Singh, 5 W R, Cr, 59 (1866), Oudh Behari, 1 C L. R, 143 (1877), Kalash Chunder v Ram Lall, 26 C, 869 (1899)

<sup>(8)</sup> Cr Pr Code, s. 218, see Whitley Stokes, 834, ss 60, prov (2), 65 (d), post

<sup>(9)</sup> Steph Introd , 15

<sup>10) 140 141 141 141</sup>

<sup>(10)</sup> v Norton, Ev., 95

<sup>(11)</sup> e s 60, post

<sup>(12)</sup> r Thayer's Preliminary Treatise on Evidence (1898), 263, Whitley Stokes, 852

<sup>(13)</sup> v s 165, post

<sup>(14)</sup> v s 30, post

<sup>(15)</sup> c s 114, ill. (g), post.

<sup>(16)</sup> R v. Ashoolosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C, 492

<sup>(17)</sup> Joy Coomar Bundhoolall, 9 C., 368; and see R v. Ashiedosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C., 492, supra

seems to follow therefore that if a relevant fact is proved and the law expressly authorises its being taken into consideration, that is, considered for a certain purpose or against persons, in a certain situation, the fact in question is "evidence" for that purpose, or against such persons, although the result has not been expressed in these words by the Legislature: and being evidence it must be used in the same way as everything else that is "evidence," (1) Thus an oral admission in Court and the result of a local enquiry instituted by a Mussiff is matter before the Court which may be taken into consideration, (2) and the confession of a prisoner affecting himself and another person charged with the same offence is, when duly proved, admissible as evidence against both. (See next section.) (3)

Evidence has been further divided into direct evidence and circumstantial evidence.(4) Direct(5) evidence is the testimony of a witness to the existence or non-existence of the fact or facts in 1800 by circumstantial evidence is meant the testimony of a witness to other facts including the fact in 1800 may be inferred.(6) As regards admissibility, direct and circumstantial evidence stand, generally speaking, on the same footing.(7) and the testimony whether to the factum probandum or the facta probantum is equally as original and direct. As to the several values and cogency of direct and circumstantial evidence much has been both written and said, but both forms admit of every degree of probability. Abstractedly considered, however, the former is of superior cogency, in so far as it contains only one source of error, fallibility of testimony, while the latter has, in addition, fallibility of inference (8)

(1) Per Jackson, J, in R. v Ashoutosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C, 492, supra

(2) Joy Coomar v. Bundhoolall, 9 C , 306 . supra (3) R v. Ashontosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C. 483 supra, referred to in R v. Krishna Bhat, 10 B , 326 (1885); R v Dada Ana, 15 B. 459 (1889) . s. 30, post, see also generally as to 'evidence' following sections -Ss 5 (evidence of facts in sesne and relevant facts), 59, 60 (oral), 60 (must be direct), 61-100 (documentary), 91-100 (ex clusion of oral by documentary), 114 (g), (product ble but not produced), ss 101-166 (production and effect of), 118-166 (wrinesses), 167 (unproper admission and rejection of evidence), as to the meaning of "evidence to go to the jury," see Pratt v. Blunt Cornject, 2 Cox C C, 242, Jenell v Parr, 13 C. B., 909, 916, Ryder v Wombuell, L. R , 4 Ex , 32, 38 , Steward v Young, L R , 5 C. P., 122, 128 , R v Fajiram, 16 B , 414( 1892) . as to verdict against evidence, R v Dada Ana, supra and v post

(4) See William Will's Essay on Circumstantial Evidence, 4th Ed. (1882); A M. Burnil's Treatise on Circumstantial Evidence, 1868, Phillips' Famous Cases of Circumstantial Evidence, 4th Ed. (1879); also a treatuse on Circumstantial Evidence by Arthur P Will (1896)

(6) This meaning of the word "direct" must be confounded with that in which it is used in s. 60, post, which does not exclude circumstantial evidence. Netl Kambo v Jogodows Moo Gloor, 12 B. L. R., App., 18 (1874). In the latter sense circumstantial oridence must always be "direct"; i. this facts from which the existence of the fact. us some sto be mferred must be proved by direct evidence. See Neph Introd., 8, 51, Best, Ev., §§ 233—295. Wills' Circumstantial Ev., 16. The term: presumptive 'is sfrequently used as symonymous with circumstantial' evidence. Su they differ as genus and species. Wills' Circ. Ev., 18.

(6) v post, Introduction to Ch II, eg-' 4 is indicted for the murder of B, the apparent cause of death being a wound given with a sword If I saw A kill B with a sword, his evidence of the fact would be direct. If, on the other hand, a short time before the murder, D saw .1 walking with a drawn sword towards the spot where the body was found, and after the lupse of a tune long enough to allow the murder to be committed. saw him returning with the sword bloody, these circumstances are wholly independent of the evidence of C (they derive no force whatever from it) and, coupled with others of a like nature, might generate quite as strong a persuasion of guilt." Best. Ev , § 294 Nebaran Chandra Roy v. R , (1907), 11 C W. N., 1085

(7) Best. Fv. § 294
(8) Physon, Ev., 3rd Ed. 2., Norton, Ev., pp. 14, 18, 4 sq., 71, Phillips' Fannous Cases of Liveromentantal Evidence, 4th Edition, Introduction Best, Ev., § 295, Taylor, Ev., § 65—69. Wills' Circ Ev. 34, see recensits of Alderson, B., in R. v. Hodges, 2. Lemm, C. C., 227. "Probleto yet audentium ten combine set potentior et inter omess equa general major et illa, quoe fi per tetted e swig. (Mas cardus De probletombus, v. 1, q. 3, n. 8)
(Mas cardus De probletombus, v. 1, q. 3, n. 8)
So also Menochous who draphwa partiality for

But "when circumstances connect themselves closely with each other, when they form a large and strong body, so as to carry conviction to the minds of a jury, it may be proof of a more satisfactory sort than that which is direct. When the proof arises from the irresistible force of a number of circumstances, which we cannot conceive to be fraudulently brought together to bear upon one point, that is less fallble than, under some circumstances, direct evidence may be."(1) It has been said that "facts cannot he "(2) but men can. And as we only know facts through the medium of witnesses, the truth of the fact depends upon the truths of the witness (3). Primary evidence is that which its own production shows to admit of no higher or superor source of evidence. Secondary evidence is that which from its production implies the existence of evidence superor to useful.

A fact is said to be proved(5) when, after considering the "Proved matters before it, the Court either believes it to exist, or considers its existence so probable that a prudent man ought, under the circumstances of the particular case, to act upon the supposition that it exists.

A fact is said to be disproved(6) when, after considering the "Disprovmatters before it, the Court either believes that it does not exist, ed." or considers its non-existence so probable that a prudent man ought, under the circumstances of the particular case, to act upon the supposition that it does not exist.

A fact is said not to be proved when it is neither proved nor "Not proved disproved.

Part II (On Proof.) Ch. VII (Of the Burden of Proof) Part III (Production and Effect of Evidence.)

COMMENTARY

-II and fact to a fact or require on a relevant fact the Court can Proof, proceed

upon grounds altogether independent of the relation of the fact, to the object and nature of the proceeding in which its existence is to be determined. Evidence of a fact and proof of a fact are not synonymous terms. Proof in strictness that circumstantial proof, which is the subject of his treatise, yet says "probatio are fides quae testibus fit, etteris excellet" (De præsumptionibus. L. 1, q 1); Philips, op. cit, Burrill, op. cit.

(1) Per Lord Chief Baron Macdonald in R v

<sup>(1)</sup> Per Lord Chael Baron Mactonau in A. V. Peck and R. V. Sauth, cited in Wills Cire Ev. 32; v. th., 234–36 and passm., Norton. Ev. 18, et ave. Quannigham, Ev., 16 See Asic charge of Bullen, J. in the trai of Captain Donnellan, cited and criticuscul in Philipsy Cire. Ev. xv., but evidence of a circumstantial nature can mere be justifiably resorted to, except where evidence of a direct and therefore of a superior nature is unattainable; Wills' Circ. Ev., 22, 23, 187, "if men have been convicted erroneoully on croumstantial evidence, so have they on direct testimony, but is that a reson for refusing to act on such less that the testimony.

timony?" Greenlesf Ev. I, c, 4, as to the disregard of circumstantial evidence by mofusal juries, see remarks in R v Elah, Bur, B L. R. Sun Vol., 481, 492 (1856)

<sup>(2)</sup> Per Baron Legge in the trial of Mary Blandy, State Trials (1752)

<sup>(3)</sup> Phillips' Circ Ev., xiv, xvii,

<sup>(3)</sup> Phillips' Circ Ev., xiv, xv. (4) Best, Ev., pp 70, 416.

<sup>(5)</sup> Cognate expressions occur in the following sections .—68, 104—111, 22, 50, 101, 101—4, 101, 102, 165, 77, 91, 82, Whitley Stokes, 83; Balmakand Ram v. Ghansam Ram, 22 C., 407 (1894).

<sup>(6)</sup> The expression "disproved" occurs only in as. 3 and 4 the expression "not to be proved," or "not proved," does not occur at all; Whitley Stokes, 853-

marks merely the effect of evidence.(1) Proof considered as the establishment of material facts in issue in each particular case by proper and legal means to the satisfaction of the Court is effected by :- (a) evidence or statements of witnesses, admissions or confessions of parties, and production of documents;(2) (b) presumption ;(3) (c) judicial notice .(4) (d) inspection,-which has been defined as the substitution of the eye for the ear in the reception of evidence; (5) as in the case of observation of the demonaur of witnesses. (6) local investigation,(7) or the inspection of the instruments used for the commission of The extent to which any individual material of evidence aids in the establishment of the general truth is called its probative force. This force must be sufficient to induce the Court either (a) to believe in the existence of the fact sought to be proved, or (b) to consider its existence so probable that a prudent man ought to act upon the supposition that it exists. So if after examining a fair number of samples taken from different portions of a bulk, it is found that the samples are all of inferior quality, the probability that the bulk is of the same quality is so great that every prudent man would act upon the supposition that it is of such quality; and if that is so, the Court ought to hold that the fact that the goods are of inferior quality is proved in such a "The true question in trials of fact, is not, whether it is possible that the testimony may be false, but whether there is sufficient probability of its truth; that is, whether the facts are shown by competent and satisfactory evidence."(10) When there is sufficient evidence of a fact, it is no objection to the proof of it that more evidence might have been adduced (11)

The expression "matters before it" includes matters which do not fall within the definition of "evidence" in the third section. Therefore, in determining what is evidence other than "evidence" in the phraseology of the Act, the definition of "evidence" must be read with that of "proved." "It would appear, therefore, that the Legislature intentionally refrained from using the word 'evidence' in this definition, but used instead the words 'matters before it. For instance, a fact may be orally admitted in Courts. The admission would not come within the definition of the word 'evidence' as given in this Act, but still it is a matter which the Court before whom the admission was made would have to take into consideration in order to determine whether the particular fact was proved or not."(12) So the result of a local investiga-

<sup>(1)</sup> Steph. Introd , 13 ad Dig , 67, Art 58 Goodeve, Ev., 3, 4; judgment is to be based on facts duly proved, v s. 165, post , burden of proof, v. as. 101-114.

<sup>(2)</sup> See ss 3, 5-55, 58, 59, 60 (oral proof) 61 -100 (documentary proof) 157 (former statement); 158 (statements under sv 32, 33), R, v Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C . 492 (1878) v ante. " Evidence."

<sup>(3)</sup> Ss 4, 79-90, 112-114, post

<sup>(4)</sup> Ss 56, 57, post

<sup>(5)</sup> Wharton, Ev., s 345, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed , 3, Best Ev., 5 v. ante, v s. 60, post

<sup>(6)</sup> v Civ. Pr. Code, O. XVIII, r 12, p. 819, Cr Pr. Code, s 363 (v onte) as to demeanour of witnesses and discrepancies, see remarks of Lord Langdale in Johnston v. Todd, 5 Beav , 601

<sup>(7)</sup> r. Civ. Pr Code, O XXVI, r 9, p. 1057; Joy Coomar v Bundhoolall, 9 C . 363, supra . see remarks in Leech v Schweder, 43 L. J. Ch., 232; Cr. Pr. Code, a 293 (v. ante)

<sup>(8)</sup> v. s 60, post, Cr Pr. Code, s 218

<sup>(9)</sup> Boisogomoff v. Nahapset Jute Co. 6 C. W.

N , 495, at p. 505 (1902)

<sup>(10)</sup> Greenleaf on Ev , 5th Ed , p. 4, cited in Goodeve, Ev , S. Probability, in the words of Locke, is likeliness to be true-see Ram on Facts, Ch VIII As to the probabilities of a case, v. Bunwaree Lal v Maharajah Hetnarain, 7 M I. A., 155 , s c , 4 W R , 128 , Sr. Raghunudha v. Sri Brojo, 3 1 A , 176 , Mudhoo Soodun v Suroop Chunder, 4 M I A . 441 sc , 7 W R , 37 , Lala Jha v Bihee Tullchmatool, 21 W R , 436; Meer Usloolah v Betby Imaman, 1 M I A., 41, 45, s. c, 5 W R, 29, Mussamut Edun v Mussamut Bechun, 11 W R , 345 , Uman Porthad v Gandharp Singh, 15 C, 20, 23, Best, Ev, §§ 24, 25, 100. see also Wills' Circ Ev , 5, Steph Introd , 48; Glanford's Essay on the Principles of Evidence.

<sup>(11)</sup> Ramalinga Pillai v. Sadasiva Pillai, 9 M I A , 506; s c , 1 W R. (P. C ), 25 (1864) , ses Field. Ev. p 41.

<sup>(12)</sup> Per Mitter, J. Joy Coomar v Bundhoolall. 9 C , 366 (1882); and see R v. Ashoolosh Churkerbulty, 4 C., 492, egura.

tion under the Civil Procedure Code, must be taken into consideration by the Court though not "evidence" within the definition given by the Act.(1) The judgment must be based on facts before the Court relevant and duly proved(2) upon a consideration of the whole of the evidence and the probabilities of the case.(3) The Judge may not, without giving evidence as a witness, import into a case his own knowledge of particular facts, (4) and should decide the rights of the parties higgaing secundum allegata et probata (according to what is averred and proved).(5) The Court should abstain from looking at what is not strictly evidence. In this connection may be noted the dicta of two English Judges. "In this case I have found myself upon two different occasions where it has come before me in that difficulty into which a Judge will always bring himself when his curiosity or some better motive disposes him to know more of a cause than judicially he ought."(6) Again, "I shall decline to look at what is not regularly in evidence before the Court. The proceedings before the Commissioners are, in my opinion, no evidence of an act of bankruptey. I purposely abstain in all these cases from looking at the proceedings. for my mind is so constituted that I cannot in forming my judgment on any matter before me separate the regular from the irregular evidence."(7)

Certain provisions of the law of evidence are peculiar to criminal trials , Proof in c. a., the provisions relating to confessions, (8) character, (9) and the incompe. Civil and tency of parties as witnesses ,(10) but apart from these, the rules of evidence are Cases the same in Civil and Criminal cases.(11) But there is a strong and marked difference as to the effect of evidence in Civil and Criminal proceedings, (12) "The circumstances of the particular case" must determine whether a prudent man ought to act upon the supposition that the facts exist from which liability is to be inferred. What circumstances will amount to proof can never be matter of general definition (13) But with regard to the proof required in Civil and Criminal proceedings there is this difference that in the former a mere preponderance of probability is sufficient, (11) but in the latter towing to the serious consequences of an erroneous condemnation both to the accused and society) the persuasion of guilt must amount to "such a moral certainty as convinces the minds of the tribunal, as reasonable men

(1) Ib.

(2) S 165, post.

(3) See remarks of Mitter, J. in Leclanund Singh v. Bashetroonsssa, 16 W. R., 102 (1871), v. Field, Ev. p 69, et seq. (v. ante), see notes to s. 16, post.

(4) Haroprosad v Sheo Dyal, 3 I A, 256, Mitham Bibs v Bashir Khan, 11 M. I A. 213, s c. 7 W P., 27. Soora, Kant v Khodee Narain, 22 W R , 9 , Kanhas Chand v Ram Chandra, 24 W R, 81 (arbitrator), R v Ram Charan, 24 W R. Cr., 28 (assessor), v s 294, Cr Pr Code Rousseau v. Pinto, 7 W. H., 190, are notes to a. 21, post.

(5) Eshan Chandra v Shama Charan, 11 V I A, 20, 6 W. P., P. C., 57, see Ramdoyal Khan v Apodhia Khan, 2 C., 15. Joylara Dasseev Mohamed Mobaruck, 8 C , 975 , Ranga Charia v Yegna Dikshatur, 1 M., 526 : Choon Kara v Isabin Khalifa 1 B. 213; Mukhoda Soondury v Ram Churn, R C , 875; Ashqar Reza v. Hydar Reza, 16 C , 291; Thirthasami v Gopala, 13 M. 33, Best, Ev., §§ 78, et soy , notes to s 165, post.

(6) Per The Lord Chancellor in Rich v Jackson,

note to 6 Ves., 334

(7) Per Sir John Cross, Ex purte Foster, 3 Deacon, 178 (8) Ss 24-30, post

(9) Se 53, 54, post

(10) S. 120, post and note

(11) R v Murphy, 8 & P, 297, 306, R v Burdett, 4 B & A, 95, 112, per Best, J Leach v Samson, 5 M. & W., 309, 312, per Park, B Trial of William Stone 25 How St Tr , 1314 , Trial of Lord Melville, 29 of , 764, Best, Ev § 94

(12) Best, Ev. § 95

(13) Starkie, Ev. 865, difference in the proof required of the same fact in difference cases very often arise out of the circumstances of the case; R Mahdub Chunder, 21 W R , Cr , 13, 17 (1874). See Arthur P Wills' Treatise on the Law of Circumstantial Evidence (1896), Ch IV (quantity of evidence necessary to convict )

(14) Cooper v Slade, 6 H L. Cas , 77, per Willes, J , Starkie, Ev., 818 and see remarks of Sir Lawrence Peel in R v Hedger, Mutty Lall v. Michael (1852), pp. 132, 133, R v. Madhub Chunder. post.

beyond all reasonable doubt."(1) "It is the business of the prosecution to bring home guilt to the accused to the satisfaction of the minds of the jury, but the doubt to the benefit of which the accused is entitled must be such as rational thinking, sensible men may fairly and reasonably entertain : not the doubts of a vacillating mind that has not the moral courage to decide but shelters itself in a vain and idle scepticism. They must be doubts which men may honestly and conscientiously entertain."(2) The same principle which requires a greater degree of proof demands a strict adherence to the formalities prescribed by the law of procedure. For "in a criminal proceeding the question is not alone whether substantial justice has been done, but whether justice has been done according to law. All proceedings in panam are, it need scarcely be observed, strictissimi juris."(3) Criminal proceedings are bad unless they are conducted in the manner prescribed by law, and if they are substantially bad, the defect will not be cured by any waiver or consent of the prisoner.(4) Sir Elijah Impey in his charge to the jury in Nuncomar's case said : " You will consider on which side the weight of evidence lies, always remembering that, in criminal, and more especially in capital, cases you must not weigh the evidence in golden scales , there ought to be a great difference of weight in the opposite scale before you find the prisoner guilty. In cases of property the stake on each side is equal and the least preponderance of evidence ought to turn the scale; but in a capital case, as there can be nothing of equal value to life, you should be thoroughly convinced that there does not remain a possibility of innocence before you give a verdict against the prisoner."(5) Even as between criminal cases a distinction has been declared to exist. Thus "the fouler the crume is the clearer and plainer ought the proof of it to be."(6) "As the crime is enormous, and dreadfully enormous, indeed it is, so the proof ought to be clear "(7) "But the more atrocious, the more flagrant the crime is, the more clearly and satisfactorily you will expect that it should be made out to you."(8) "The greater the crime, the stronger is the proof required for the purpose of conviction." (9) These and the like dicta, however, in so far as they may be said to imply that the rules of evidence may be modified according to the enormity of the crime, or the

<sup>(1)</sup> Fer Farke, B., in R v Sterne, cited in Best. Ev., p. 70, v Starke, Ev., 817, 885, Taylor, Ev., § 112, R. v Harke, 4 Feat & Fin. 383, see same principle laid down in R. v . Medhub Chander, § 12 W. R. C., 13, 19, 20 (1874), R v . Hedger, supra. 132, 133, 135, per Sir. Lawracce Peel, C. J. quoting and adopting Starke, Ev., 317, 818 R v. Swork Roy, 6 W. R., Cr., 28, 31 (1869) R v Bedarer, 3 W. R., 23, 23 (1869) [Presoner not to be convicted on surmise] "It is a maxim of English law talk I is better that ten guitty men abould escape than that one innocent man should suffer," per Holtoyd, J. in Sarach Rebonn's case, 1 Lewin, C G, 201; see also Best. Ev., § 549, 440 (2) R. v. Caster, Vol II. 816, per Ceckburn.

C. J. "It" and L. C. Baron Follock to the jury in R v Justing and Wife (eath in Wills' Care Ex., 191 103). "the conclaimen to which you are Ex., 191 103). "the conclaimen to which you are conducted be that there in that degree of certainty in the case that you would act upon it in your own graves and important concerns, that it the daying reso of certainty which the law requires, and which will justify you for retorning a vertice of gully," for all the day in the case of the case of the case of the day of the da

Kahar, 25 W R, Cr, 36 (1876)

Per Cockburn, C. J., in Martin v. Mackoucke, I. R. 3 Q. B. D., 730 776, see R. v. Kale Lalang, S. C., 114 (1881), R. v. Bhavin Ins., 1 B., 308 (1876), Jetha Parkha v. Ram Chandra, 16 B., 308, 461 (1892), R. v. Bhôdendh, 2 C., 23—27 (1876), 25 W. R., Cr., 57, but see also so 529—338, Cr. Pr. Code

<sup>(4)</sup> R v Bholanath, 2 C, 23 (1878), R. v Allen, 6 C, 83 (1880), Hoscein Bulsh v R, 6 C., 96, 99, see also notes to ss. 5, 121, post

<sup>(5)</sup> The story of Nuncomar and the impeachment of Sir Elyah Impey, by Sir James Fitzjames Stephen, Vol. I, p 168 See also Lord Cowper's speech on the Bishop of Rochester's Trial, Philips' Care Ev. xxvii

<sup>(6)</sup> Trial of Lord Cornwalls, 7 State Trials, 149.

<sup>(7)</sup> Trial of R T Crossfield, 26 State Trials, 218.

<sup>(8)</sup> Trial of Mary Blandy, 18 State Trials, 1186.
(9) Sarah Hobson's case, per Holroyd, J., 1
Lewin's Crown cases, 261. See also R ▼ Ings, 33 St. Tr., 1135, and Madeleine Smith's case cited in Wills' Circ Ev., 196

weightiness of the consequences which attach to conviction (for if they may be made more stringent in one direction, it is said they may be relaxed in another) have been severely criticised.(1) To quote the language of L. C. J. Dallas in the earlier portion of a passage of which the latter part is to the effect of the dieta, already cited -" Nothing will depend upon the comparative magnitude of the offence ; for be it great or small every man is entitled to have the charge against him clearly and satisfactorily proved."(2)

Every criminal charge involves two things: first, that a crime has been committed; and secondly, that the accused is the author of it. If a criminal fact is ascertained-an actual corpus delicti established-presumptive proof is admissible to fix the criminal.(3) A restriction has been said to exist against the use of circumstantial evidence in the case of the well-known rule that the corpus delicti (that is, the fact that a crime has been committed) should not in general be inferred from other facts, but should be proved independently. But it is not necessary (and indeed in the case of some crimes it would be impossible) to prove the corpus delicti by direct and positive evidence. If the circumstances are such as to make it morally certain that a crime has been committed, the inference that it was committed, is as safe as any other inference. More accurately stated the rule is that no person shall be required to answer, or be involved in the consequences of guilt without satisfactory proof of the corpus delicti either by direct evidence or by cogent and irresistible grounds of presumption.(4)

(a) The onus of proving everything essential to the establishment of the General charge against the accused hes upon the prosecutor. Every man is to be rules with regarded as legally innocent until the contrary be proved Criminality is proof in Oriminal therefore never to be presumed.(5) (b) The evidence must be such as to ex- Cases. clude, to a moral certainty, every reasonable doubt of the guilt of the accused.(6) If there be any reasonable doubt of the guilt of the accused, he is entitled as of right to be acquitted. (7) The above hold universally, but there are two

(1) Wills' Circ Ev , 196.

(2) R v Ings, 33 St. Tr , 1135

(3) R. v Ahmed Ally, 11 W. R., Cr., 25, 29

(1869); R v Ram Ruchea, 4 W R., Cr., 22 (1865). (4) Steph Introd , 66-66, Wills' Circ Ev 199-272, Arthur Wills' Circ Et. (1896), Part V (I'roof of the corpus delicts) and cases there cited, Norton Ev. 74, Cunningham, Ev. 17, Best, Ev, § 441, et seq. Powell, Ev, 72 Sea Ecans v. Ecans, 1 Hagg , C R , 35, 105 , the Courts may act upon presumptions as well in criminal as in civil cases Burdett's case, 4 B & Ald , 95. So in cases of adultery it is not necessary to prove the fact by direct evidence, Loredon v Loredon, 2 Hagg , C R., 1 , Williams v. Williams, 1 ib , 299 , followed in Allen v Allen, L R P D (1894), 248, 252 , even in a criminal case, R v. Madhub Chunder, 21 W R , Cr., 13, 16, 17 (1874) See provision, of Cr Pr Code, s 174, and also Bengal Reg. XX of 1817, a 14, and generally as to the corpus delicti, R v Petta Gazi, 4 W R., Cr., 19 (1865), R v. Ram Ruckea, 1b , 29 (1865), R . Pooroosullah Sikhdar, 7 W. R., Cr., 14 (1867), R. v. Budderud-deen, 11 W. R., Cr., 20 (1869); R v. Ahmed Atly, supra, R v. Dredge, 1 Cox, C. C., 235, Adu Shildar v R , 11 C., 642 (1885) , R. v Behars Singh, 7 W. R., Cr., 3, 4 (1867), in which case the alleged "dead" man reappeared upon the scene at the cutcherry.

(5) Lawson's Presumptive Ev , 93, 432 , Wharton, Cr. Ev . §§ 319, 717 , Best, Ev., § 440 , Greenleaf, Dv I, 34, Wills' Circ. Ev., 183; Powell, Et , 75 , Best, Treatise on Presumptions of law and fact (1844), see ss 101, 102, 103, 105, 106, 114, post. As to the meaning of the presumption of innocence in criminal cases, see Thaver's Preliminary Treatise on evidence (1898), 551 See also R. v Ahmed Ally, 11 W R. Cr. 25, 27 (1869). where facts are as consistent with a prisoner's innocence as with his guilt, innocence must be presumed, and criminal intent or knowledge is not necessarily imputable to every man who acts contrary to the provisions of the law, R v. Nobokisto Ghose, S W. R., Cr., 87 (1867), R v. Madhub Chunder, 21 W R , Cr , 13, 20 (1874) [the accused is entitled to the benefit of the legal presumption in favour of innocence, the burden of proof is undoubtedly upon the prosecutor] The Deputy Legal Remembrancer v. Karuna Boistobi, 22 C, 174 (1894) Panchu Das v R (1907), 34 C. 698, 11 C. W. N. 666.

(b) Best, Er , ib , and v ante

(7) Wills' Circ Ev., 192, Best, Ev. § 440; and ante, Lolit Mohun v. R , 22 C., 323 (1894) , R. . Madhub Chunder, supra, 20; R. v. Punchanun, 5 W. R., Cr , 97 (1866)

others peculiarly applicable when the proof is presumptive (v. antel. (c) There must be clear and unequivocal proof of the corpus delicti (v. ante).(1) i(d) In order to justify the inference of guilt, the inculpating facts must be incompatible with the innocence of the accused, and incapable of explanation upon any other reasonable hypothesis than that of his guilt.(2) While the concurrence of several separate facts, all of which point to the same conclusion may, though the probative force of each be slight, be quite sufficient in their cumulative effect to produce conviction, a mere aggregation of separate facts, all of which are inconclusive in the sense that they are quite as consistent with the innocence as with the guilt of an accused person cannot have any The principle is a fundamental one and of universal appliprobative force cation in cases dependent on circumstantial evidence that in order to justify the inference of guilt the incriminating facts must be incompatible with the innocence of the accused and incapable of explanation upon any other reasonable hypothesis than that of his guilt.(3) It is not, however, correct to say that before circumstantial evidence can be made the basis of a safe inference of guilt it must exclude every possible hypothesis except that of the guilt of the accused.(4)

"Even where the appeal turns on a question of fact, the Court of Appeal has to bear in mind that its duty is to re-hear the case, and the Court must re-consider the materials before the Judge with such other materials as it may have decided to adout (5) The Court must then make up its own mind, not disregarding the judgment appealed from, but carefully weighing and considering it, but not shrinking from overruling it, if on full consideration, the Court comes to the conclusion that the judgment is wrong. When, as often happens, much turns on the relative credibility of witnesses, who have been examined and cross-examined before the Judge, the Court is sensible of the great advantage he has had in seeing and hearing them. It is often very difficult to estimate correctly the relative credibility of witnesses from written depositions, and when the question arises which witness is to be believed rather than another, and that question turns on manner and demeanour, the Court of Appeal always is and must be guided by the impression made on the Judge who saw the witnesses. But there may obviously be other circumstances, quite apart from manuer and demeanour, which may show whether a statement is credible or not , and these circumstances may warrant the Court in differing from the Judge even on question of fact turning on the credibility of witnesses whom the Court has not seen "(6)

"The sound rule to apply in trying a Criminal appeal where questions of fact are in issue is to consider whether the conviction is right, and in this respect a Criminal appeal differs from a Civil one In the latter case the Court must be convinced before reversing a finding of fact by a lower Court that the finding is wrong.(7) 'It seems to us that the Judge treated the appeal before him

!rimina!

<sup>(1)</sup> Best, Ev , § 440. 441, Wills Circ. Ev . 199-272.

<sup>(2)</sup> Wills' Circ Ev , 188 , Best, Ev., §§ 451, tule approved in Balmakund v. Ghansum, 22 C., 409 (1894); R. v. Ishra (1907), 29 A. 46 (3) Hurgee Mull v. Imam Ali Sircar, 8 C W. N., 278 (1904), 1 All. L. J., 28.

<sup>(4)</sup> Balmal and v. Ghansam, supra; "the hypothesis of the prisoner's guilt should flow naturally from the facts proved, and be consistent with them all." R. v. Beharet, 3 W. R., Cr . 23, 26 (1665). (5) As to the admissibility of additional evidence in appeal, see Lessony Issur v. Great Indian Pennandar Raduan Co., P. C. (1907), 31 B.

<sup>391,</sup> L R , 34 I A , 115 Krishnama Chariar , Narasımha Chartar (1908) 31 M., 114; Secretary of State for India . Manyeshwar Krishnaya (1908), 31 M. 415, and cases cited. p 801, post, and Cis Pr Code, O. M.I., r. 27, p, 1267.

<sup>(6)</sup> Per Barnes, J. in Coglan's Cumberland, 13th May 1898, cited in 2 C W N . Short Notes cexxxi as to demeanour v ante, p 111, note 4

<sup>(7)</sup> Protap Chunder v. R , 11 C L. R , 25 (1882). per White, J. referred to in Rohimudds v. R. 20 C , 353, 357 (1892) , but see R v. Ramlochun, 18 W. R. (r. 15 (1872) The case of Protage Chunder v R., 11 C L. R., 25 (1882), was follow-

nore as if it was a special appeal than a regular appeal; and because he did not find sufficient on the record to convince him that the Magistrate was entirely wrong, he therefore affirmed his decision. But the Judge was in the situation of an Appellate Court, in which the matter came before him on regular appeal, and he ought to have judged, as best he could, from the materials put before him in the Magistrate's written judgment, whether or not as a matter of fact the prisoners had committed the offence of which they had been convicted. If the evidence which came before him—whatever its shape—was not sufficient to reasonably eatisfy him that the prisoners had been rightly convicted, he ought to have acquitted them.'(1) An Appellate Court is bound precisely in the same way as the Court of first instance to test evidence extrinsically as well as intrinsically.(2)

4. Whenever it is provided by this Act that the Court may sume presume(3) a fact, it may either regard such fact as proved, unless and until it is disproved, (4) or may call for proof of it:

Whenever it is directed by this Act that the Court shall pre-"Sume a fact it shall regard such fact as proved, unless and until it is disproved:

When one fact is declared by this Act to be conclusive proof "Conclusive of another, the Court shall, on proof of the one fact, regard the other as proved, and shall not allow evidence to be given for the purpose of disproving it.

ss. 86, 87, 88, 90, 114 (" May presume.") ss. 112, 113 (" Conclurate proof ") ss. 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 89, 105 s. 41 (Judgment when conclusive proof.)(5) (" Shall presume.")

COMMENTARY.

Inferences or presumptions are always necessarily drawn wherever the Presumptestimony is circumstantial, but presumptions, specially so-called, are based upon that wide experience of a connection existing between the facta probantia and the faction probandiam which warrants a presumption from the one to the other wherever the two are brought into contiguity (6) Presumptions according to English text-writers are either (a) of laic. Or (b) of fact Presumptions of law or artificial presumptions, are arbitrary inferences Orlaw which the law expressly directs the Judge to draw from particular facts and may be either conclusive or rebutable. They are founded either on the connection usually found by experience to exist between certain things, or on natural law, or on the principles of justice, or on motives of public policy. Conclusive presumptions of law are "nucle determining the quantity of evidence ed in Milan Khan v. Sogon Bepare, 23 C. 347, 349 (1893) The Court is bound in forming at conclusions as to the credibility of the witnesses to attack great weight to the opinion which the punge who heard them has expressed upon that matter, R. v. Madhab Chander, 21 W. R. Cv. 13 (1874)

<sup>(1)</sup> Khera, Mullah v. Janab Mullah. 20 W. R. Cr. 13 (1873), per Phear, J. referred to an Robinsedds v. R., supra set also remarks of Mitter. J. in the petition of Goomanee, I7 W. R., Cr. 59 (1872), Shivappa v. Shidlingappa, 15 R., 11

<sup>(1891)</sup> (2) In re Goomanee, 17 W R , Cr , 59 (1872)

<sup>(2)</sup> In re Goomanee, 17 W. R., Cr., 59 (1872) (3) Shafiq-un-nusa v. Shahan Ali, 26 A., 581, 586 (1904)

<sup>(4)</sup> That which rebuts, or tends to rebut, a presumption which is not declared to be conclusive, is relevant and may be proved, r a 9 post

<sup>(5)</sup> See also as 13, 42
(6) Norton, Ev., 97, see Best, Ev., §§ 299, 42,
43, 296, et seq., pp. 58, 291, and With Circ. Ev., 16: Panell, Ev., 70. See s. 114, page.

requisite for the support of any particular averment, which is not permitted to be overcome, by any proof that the fact is otherwise. They consist chiefly of those cases in which the long experienced connection just alluded to has been found so general and uniform as to render it expedient for the common good that this connection should be taken to be inseparable and universal. They have been adopted by common consent, from motives of public policy, for the sake of greater certainty, and the promotion of peace and quiet in the community; and therefore it is that all corroborating evidence is dispensed with, and all opposing evidence is forbidden."(1) Rebuttable presumptions of law are, as well as the former, "the result of the general experience of a connertion between certain facts or things, the one being usually found to be the companion or the effect of the other. The connection, however, in this class is not so intimate or so uniform as to be conclusively presumed to exist in every case : yet it is so general that the law itself, without the aid of a jury. infers the one fact from the proved existence of the other in the absence of all opposing evidence. In this mode the law defines the nature and the amount of the evidence which is sufficient to establish a prima facie case, and to throw the burden of proof upon the other party, and if no opposing evidence is offered, the jury are bound to find in favour of the presumption.(2) A contrary verduct might be set aside as being against evidence. The rules in this class of presumptions, as in the former, have been adopted by common consent from motives of public policy and for the promotion of the general good; vet not. as in the former class, forbidding all further evidence, but only dispensing with it till some proof is given on the other side to rebut the presumption raised. Thus, as men do not generally violat the Penal Code, the law presumes every man innocent; but some men do transgress it, and therefore evidence is received to repel this presumption "(3)

Of fact

Presumptions of fact or natural presumptions are inferences which the mind naturally and logically draws from given facts without the help of legial direction. (4) They are always rebuttable. They can hardly be said with propriety to belong to that branch of the law which treats of presumptive evidence(5) "They are in tuth but mere arguments of which the major premiss is not a rule of law, they belong equally to any and every subjectionatter, and ure to be judged by the common and received tests of the truth

<sup>(1)</sup> Taylor, E., 271, Rest, Er., p. 98, § 394, the Evalueze Act natices two cases of conclusive presumptions (in 112, 113). It is a question, however, whether the presumption mentioned in a 112 is not after all a relutfable presumption, for the section permits of eridence being offered of non-access (Norton, Ev., 07) and a 113, is whree traves (Whitely Stokes, 833) see also Field, Ev., 520, Steph, Latrid, 174, and notes to so 112-3, port, and Proceedings of the Legalative Council, 21th March 1872, pp. 294, 293 of the Supplement to the Gauttle of India: 20th March 1872.

<sup>(2)</sup> Ch VII of the Act deals with this subject of precomptions) as follows —First 11 kps down the general principles which regulate the burden of proof (as 101-100). It then enumerates the cases in which the burden of proof is determined in particular cases not by the relation of the parties to the cause but by presumptions (as. 107-111). Such presumptions affect the ordinary rule as to the burden of proof that he who affirms must prove. He who affirms that a man is dead must usually prove it, but if he shows that the man has not been sheard of for seven year, he shifts the burden of proof upon his adversary, who must displace the presumptions which has arisen Steph, India, 173 174, see Norton, Ev. 97, and Proceedings of the Legalistice Council, cited aste propositions and the validity of arguments.(1) They depend upon their own natural efficacy in generating belief, as derived from those connections, which are shown by experience, irrespective of any legal relations. They differ from presumptions of law in this essential respect, that while those are reduced to fixed rules, and constitute a branch of the system of jurisprudence, these merely natural presumptions are derived wholly and directly from the circumstances of the particular case by means of the common experience of mankind, without the aid or control of any rules of law. Such, for example, is the inference of guilt drawn from the discovery of a broken knife in the pocket of the prisoner, the other part of the blade being found sticking in the window of a house, which, by means of such an instrument, had been burglaciously entered. These presumptions remain the same under whatever law the legal effect of the facts, when found, is to be decided."(2) Presumptions of law are based, like presumptions of fact, on the uniformity of deduction which experience proves to be justifiable; they differ in being invested by the law with the quality of a rule, which directs that they must be drawn, they are not permissive, like natural presumptions, which may or may not be drawn.(3)

<sup>(3)</sup> Taylor, Ev. §§ 109, 110, Best, Ev. §§ 314. See observations as to the treatment of rebuttable presumptions by this Act in Whitley Stokes, 828

<sup>(4)</sup> Physon, Ev. acd Ed., 3. "Such inferences are formed net by virtue of any law, but by the spontaneous operation of the reasoning faculty: all that the law does for them is to recognise the propriety of their being so drawn if the Judge think fit." Cunningham, Ev., 84, Wills. Circ E., 22.

<sup>(5)</sup> Taylor, Ev § 214.

The abovementioned section appears to point at these two classes of pre- Scope of the sumptions, those of fact and those of law. The first clause points at presumptions of fact, the second at rebuttable presumptions of law, and the third, at conclusive presumptions of law.(4) As has been already mentioned, presumptions of fact are really in the nature of mere arguments or maxims. The sections which deal with such presumptions have been noted above. (5) Of these sections, s. 114 is perhaps the most important. "The terms of this section are such as to reduce of their proper position of mere maximis which are to be applied to facts by the Co sumptions, to which English law g value. Nine of the most important

Of course others besides those specified may be, and are in fact frequently, drawn.(7) In respect of such presumptions Courts of Justice are enjoined to use common sense and experience in judging of the effect of particular facts and are subject to no technical rules whatever. This section renders it a judicial discretion to decide in each case whether the fact which under section 114 may be presumed has been proved by virtue of that presumption. Circumstances may, however, induce the Court to call for confirmatory evidence.(8) Sections 79-85, 89 and 105 of this Act create presumptions corresponding to those described by English text-writers as rebuttable presumptions of law, and there are others to be found in the Indian Statute Book (9) The third clause of this section embraces, those presumptions, described by these text-writers

Norton, Ev., 260, Powell, Ev., 83

(1) Sir James Fitzjames Stephen divides pre-sumptions of fact in English law into two classes

-(1) Bare presumptions of fact which are nothing but arguments to which the Court attaches whatever value it pleases, (2) certain presumptions which, though liable to be rebutted, are regarded as being something more than mere maxims, though it is by no means easy to say how much presumptions in a 114, post and Best, Ev. § 315 English text-writers also deal with mixed presumptions or presumptions of mixed law and fact see Norton, Ev. 97 . Best Ev 6324

<sup>(3)</sup> Norton, Ev., 97

<sup>(4)</sup> Norton, Ev., 96, Field, Ev., 89, 520, 521 (5) Sq 86, 87, 89, 90, in fact all the sections from ss 79 to 90 inclusive are illustrations of, and founded upon, the maxim, Omnia esse rile acta

<sup>(6)</sup> Steph Introd., 174, 175 Proceedings of the Legislative Council, cited in n 1, p 39, see a 114, purf

<sup>(7)</sup> See notes to s 114, post

<sup>(8)</sup> Raghunath v Hols Lat, I All L. J , 14 (1904.)

<sup>(9)</sup> Field, Ev., 521

more. An instance of such a presumption is to be found in the rule that recent possession of stolen goods unexplained raises a presumption that the possessor is either the thief or a receiver Steph Introd . 174 In this Act presumptions of fact partake of the character of class(1), v post, see Taylor, Ev , § 111

<sup>(2)</sup> Taylor, Ev. § 214, ar Wills' Circ Ev passim, see also other instances of this class of

as conclusive presumptions of law. The Evidence Act appears to create two such presumptions by ss. 112 and 113 ;(1) and there are some others to be found in the Indian Statute Book.(2)

English text-writers have, it has been said, in treating of the subject of presumptions, engrafted upon the law of evidence many subjects which in no way belong to it, and numerous so-called presumptions are merely portions of the substantive law under another form (3) "All notice of certain general legal principles which are sometimes called presumptions, but which in reality. belong rather to the substantive law than to the law of evidence, was designedly omitted " (from this Act) " not because the truth of those principles was denied, but because it was not considered that the Evidence Act was the proper place for them. The most important of these is the presumption, as it is cometimes called, that every one knows the law. The principle is far more correctly stated in the maxim that ignorance of the law does not excuse a breach of it, which is one of the fundamental principles of criminal law." Of such a kind also is the presumption that every one must be held to intend the natural consequences of his own acts (4) The like presumptions and others of a similar character belong to the province of substantive law, and have been dealt with by Statute (5) or have gradually come to be recognised as binding rules through the course of judicial decision (6) In this sense the subject of presumptions is co-extensive with the entire held of law, and each particular presumption must in each case be sought under the particular head of law to which it refers (7)

Inference.

This Chapter, as originally drafted contains the following section:—"Courts shall form their opinions on matters of fact by drawing inferences: (a) from the evidence produced to the evistence of the facts alleged, (b) from facts proved or disproved to facts not proved. (c) from the absence of witnesses aho, or of evidence which, might have been produced. (8) (d) from the admissions, statements, conduct and demeanou of the parties and witnesses, and generally from the circumstances of the cases: "The Select Committee decided to omit this section 'as being suitable rather for a treatise than an Act.' The object of its introduction was originally stated to be to point out and, put distinctly upon record the fact that to infer and not merely to accept or register evidence is in all cases the dutry of the Court. "(9) Further, as has been already observed, a distinction must be drawn between the general act of inferring facts in issue from relevant facts, and those inferences which, for the reasons above given, are specifically known as presumptions [10) (c ant/s).

<sup>(1)</sup> But see p 119, ante

<sup>(2)</sup> See for example, Act AAI of 1879, a 5 (Perorga Jurafelton) of CP (Formy Jurafelton) and ECT extition), CP (Formy Jurafelton) and EAT extition), CP (See, a 57 (Proclamation for person abeconding), Act 1 of 1894, a 6 (Land Acquation), a 8, Act 1 of 1894, a 6 (Land Acquation), a 8, Act 1 (B C ) of 1893 (Recovery of Public Demands), see Individually Auryaldam, 9 (27 (11683), Act 1 (B) C) (1048), a 20 (Chota Nagpoor Tenures), see, a 35, peri, Act XIVI of 1874, a 4, 8 (Scheduled Districtly), Act XIV of 1874

<sup>(3)</sup> Sir J Fitzjames Stephen, Proceedings of the Legislative Council, unic.

<sup>(4)</sup> Steph Introd., 173; Powell, Ev., 82
(3) See for example Act V of 1889, Act 114 (Indian Articles of War, Presumptive Evidence of Desertion). Act XXI of 1886, s. 21 (Natric Converts' Marriages; Presumptive Evidence of Marragey, Act IV of 1872, as 10, 11/Panjab Laws Presumption as to evitence of right of preemption). Act 1 of 1877, a 12 (Specific Rehef). Freumption that breach of contract to transfer immessable property cannot be adequately reher of the remarkable property cannot be adequately reher of the conversion of presumptions of the substantive law into stationer yields, as a 3.8, Act 5. 1885 (vaccession Act). In England the rules as to substitutional or cimulating iffire are trade as rules of presumption, the abovementioned section deals with these rules without any refresh to the presumption, see 6, S. Henderson The Law of William India, p 192.

<sup>(8)</sup> See notes to 8 114, post (7) See Cunningham, Ev., 301-303

<sup>(8)</sup> Sees 114 ill (q), post (9) Cited in Field, Ev., 89

<sup>(10)</sup> As to the ambiguity attending the use of the term "presumption," see Best, Ev., p 306, 15, § 299

CHAPTER II.

OF THE RELEVANCY OF FACTS.

As with many other questions connected with the Liw of evidence, the theory of relevancy has been the subject of varying opinions. Relevancy has been said by the framer of the Act to mean the connection of events as cause and effect (1) But this theory, as was admitted afterwards, "was expressed too widely in certain parts, and not widely enough in others," (2) For the former definition the following was substituted "The word 'relevant' means that any two facts to which it is applied are so related to each other that. according to the common course of events, one either taken by itself or in connection with other facts proves or renders probable the past, present, or future existence or non-existence of the other,"(3) But this is "relevance" in a logical sense. Legal relevancy which is essential to admissible evidence, requires a higher standard of evidentiary force. It includes logical relevancy, and for reasons of particular convenience, demands a close connection between the fact to be proved and the fact offered to prove it. All evidence must be logically relevant-that is absolutely essential. The fact, however, that it is logically relevant does not insure admissibility, it must also be legally relevant. a fact which 'in connection with other facts renders probable the existence of a fact in issue,' may still be rejected, if in the opinion of the Judge and under the circumstances of the case it be considered essentially misleading or remote "(4) The tendency, however, of modern jurisprudence is to admit most evidence logically relevant. Logical relevancy may not thus be assumed to be the sole test of admissibility, relevancy and admissibility are not co-extensive and interchangeable terms "Public policy, considerations of fairness, the particular necessity for reaching speedy decisions,—these and similar reasons cause constantly the necessary rejection of much evidence entirely relevant. All admissible evidence is relevant, but all relevant evidence is not admissible."(5) The question of relevancy strictly so called presents as a rule, little difficulty. Any educated person, whether lay or legal, can say whether a curcumstance, has probative forced which is the meaning of relevancy. This is an affair of logic and not of law It is, otherwise, with the question of admissibility which must be determined according to rules of law. A fact may be relevant, but it may be excluded on grounds of policy as already noted. A communication to a legal adviser may be in the highest degree relevant, but other considerations exclude its reception as a privileged communication, Again a fact may be relevant, but the proof of it may be such as is not allowed as in the case of the "hearsay" rule (6) In this Chapter the word "relevancy" seems to mean the having some probative force. In the title to 14 and 62, and notes to a 60, post

<sup>(1)</sup> Steph Introd, 65 ere generalls as to Resevanes, Introduction

<sup>(2)</sup> Steph Dig. p 158, see Whitley Stokes 829, 851, note

<sup>(3)</sup> Steph Dig. Art 1 'I have substituted the present definition for it, not because I think it (the former definition) wrong, but because I think it gives rather the principle on which the rule depends than a convenient practical rule, $\psi$, p. 138

<sup>(4)</sup> Best, Fv., p. 231

<sup>(5)</sup> B. 222, thus a communication to a legal adverse, or a crumal confession impropere) obtained, max, undoubtedly, be relevant in a high degree. The are none the less inadimisable; if See also Taylor, Ex. 15 298-316, Powell, Ev. 327 328, Seep linted. Steph Dig. Art. 1 and 2 and Appendix Note 1. The Theory of Relevancy to G. Whitworth, Bombay, 1831 (6) atto the meaning of the expression, "bearing is no exclusive," seecistic Big. p. 194. Art.

this Part it appears to denote admissibility.(1) However, the considerrations mentioned go merely to the theory of relevancy and to the construction of, or definitions given in, the Act as based on that theory. For practical purposes one fact is relevant to another and admissible (2) when the one is connected with the other in any of the ways referred to in the provisions of this Act relating to the relevancy of facts.(3) Relevancy, in the sense in which it is used by the framer of the Act, is fully defined in ss. 6-11, both inclusive : "These sections enumerate specifically the different instances of the connection between cause and effect which occur most frequently in judicial proceedings. They are designedly worded very widely, and in such a way as to overlap each other. Thus a motive for a fact in issue (s. 8), is part of its cause (s. 7) : subsequent conduct influenced by it (s. 8) is part of its effect (s. 7.). Facts relevant under s. 11 would, in most cases, be relevant under other sections,"(4) Not only may the acts and words of a party himself, if relevant, be given in evidence, but when the party is, by the substantive law, rendered hable, civilly or criminally, for the acts, contracts, or representations of third persons, and such facts are material, they may generally be given in evidence for or against him as if they were his own.(5) The chief instances of such relationships (which must in the first instance, be proved alunde to the satisfaction of the Courts) are agency,(6) partnership,(7) the hability of companies for the acts and representations of their directors or other agents(8) and conspiracy in tort or crime (9)

The following sections have been considered by the author and others to be the most important, as all will admit they are the most original part of the

----- ----(1) Whitley Stokes, 849

(3) S 3, ante, v. s4 5-55, post.

(4) Steph Introd , 72 , see criticism of these sections in Whitley Stokes, p 819, "two of these sections are so drawn (ss 7, 11), as to primit evidence of matter wholly prelevant," ib, and see notes to s 11, post, but see also Steph Introd 160 , and Best, Ev , 522 In the sections mention. ed in the text the subject of encomptantial exidence is distributed into its elements First Rrport of the Select Committee, 31st March 1871

(5) See Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 69

(6) In civil cases the acts and representations of the agent will hand the principal if made within the scope of the authority conferred upon him. or subsequently ratified by the principal (Act IA of 1872, ss. 182-189, 196, 226); as to implied authority, see In re Cunningham, 36 Ch D, 532, Rollean . Feneral (1893), 1 Q. B., 316, and generally as to agency, Contract Act, as. 182-238 , as to responsibility in a tort and the doctrine of respondet at superior, see remarks of Jessel, M R, in Smith v. Keal, 9 O B. D. 340, 351, and judgment of Willes, J., inf Barwick v English Joint Stock Bank, L. R., 2 Ex 259, 265, 266, Thorne v Hourd (1894), 1 Ch., 599; Malcolm Brunker & Co v. Baterhause & Sons (1908), Times, L. R. t 24, p. 855; a party is not in general criminally responsible for the acts of his agents and servants unless such acts have been directed or assented to by him, Cooper v Slade, 6 H. L. C., 746, 783, 794, per Lord Wensleydale, Lord Melville's case, 29 Hen. St. T B . 764 , The Queen's case, 2 B. & B . 306, 367; theshire : Bailey (1905), 1 K. B., 237. See generally, Taylor, Et , 115, 602-605, 905-906; Best. Et , $531 , Phipson, Et , 3rd Ed , 69 ; Powell, Es , 290 , Evans, Principal and Agent, 123-200. and passim, 2nd Ed., Beven on Negligence, 271-312, Roscoe, Cr Ev., 12th Ed., 46, Roscoe, N. P. Es 69-71, T A Pearson, ' The Law of Agency in British India," 1890 Bowstead, Dig of Agency 4rts 79-82, 103, 104 Norton, Ev., 144; as to admissions by agents, see as 17, 18, post, and as to notice given to agents, s 14, post

(7) The liability of co-partners for the act of their partner is established on the ground of agency each partner being the agent for the others for all purposes within the scope of the joint business: Re Cunningham, supra Lindley on Partnership, 5th Ed., 80-90, 124-263, Pollock on Partnership, Taylor, Et , § 743-752, Roscoe, N. P. Et., 71 . Act IX of 1872 (Contract Act), ss 239-266, as to admissions by partners, see ss. 17, 18, post-

(8) As to the general principles of agency as applied to Companies in the course of, or after formation, see Lindley on Company Law, 5th Ed., 143-181. Companies can only be bound by the acts of their real or estensible agents. ib , 182 , lishibity for torts, sb , 208 , see also Act VI of 1882, Act VI of 1887 (Indian Companies), Commentames on the same by L. P. Russell (1888) . a Company is not hable for acts done uttra tires, Russell, 12. Brice on ultra vires, as to admissions by the officers of a Company, see as 17, 18, post,

(9) See s 10, most, and notes thereto.

<sup>(2)</sup> Lala Lakms v Sayed Harder, 3 C W N. eclysm (1899), ["Relevant" in this Act means admissible l

Act, as they aftern positively what facts may be proved, whereas the English law assumes this to be known, and merely declares negatively that certain facts shall not be proved. In the opinion of many others the English law proceeds upon sounder and more practical grounds. While importance is claimed for these sections in that they are said to make the whole body of law to which they belong easily intelligible, yet such importance cannot, owing to the provisions of ss. 165 and 167, cause an undue weight to be attached to their strict applications when a failure to so strictly apply them has not been . the cause of an improper decision of the case. For the improper admission or rejection of evidence in Indian Courts has no effect at all unless the Court thinks that the evidence improperly deaft with either turned or ought to have turned the scale.(1) A Judge, moreover, if he doubts as to the relevancy of a fact suggested, can, if he thinks it will lead to anything relevant, ask about it himself (2)

5. Evidence may be given in any suit or proceeding of the Evidence existence or non-existence of every fact in issue, and of such given of facts, in is other facts as are hereinafter declared to be relevant, and of no such and relevant facts others.

Explanation.—This section shall not enable any person to give evidence of a fact which he is disentitled to prove by any provision of the law for the time being in force relating to Civil Procedure.

Illustrations.

- (a) A is tried for the murder of B by beating him with a club with the intention of causing his death.
  - At A's trial the following facts are in issue .-
    - A's beating B with the club:
      - I's causing B's death by such beating ;
  - A's intention to cause B's death.
- (b) A suitor does not bring with him, and have in readiness for production at the first hearing of the case, a bond on which he relies This section does not enable him to produce the bond or prove its contents at a subsequent stage of the proceedings, otherwise than in accordance with the conditions prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure

Principles .- The reception in evidence of facts other than those mentioned in the section tends to distract the attention of the tribunal and to waste its time. Frustra probatur quod probatum non relevat The laws of evidence are framed with a view to a trial at Niss Prius, and a proceeding at Niss Prius ought to be restrained within practical limits.(3)

- 8. 3 (" Evidence.")
- 8. 3 (" Fact in issue.")
- s. 3 (" Fact.")

- s. 3 (" Relevant ") ss. 5.55 (" Of the Relevancy of facts ")
- 8 60 (Oral Evidence must be direct.)

(1) Steph Introd , 72, 73 , alter in England (2) Ib , 72, 73, 162 , a 165, post Best, Ev . 86 , as to "indicative" evidence, 15 , § 93

(3) Best, Ev , § 251 . R v Parbhudas, 11 Bom H. C R , 90, 91 (1874), ante, Taylor, Er , § 316 , Managers of the Metropolitan Asylum District v Hill, 47 L. T. (H. L.), 29, 34, per Lord O'Hagan; see also judgment of Lord Watson as to the distruction between evidence having a direct relation to the principal question in dispute and evidence relating to collateral facts which will, if established, tend to elucidate that question, and unte, Introduction. "Facts, which are not themselves in same, may affect the probability of the existence of facts in issue, and these may be called collateral facts" First Report of the Select Committee. 31st March 1871.

RELEVANCY.

this Part it appears to denote admissibility.(1) However, the considerrations mentioned go merely to the theory of relevancy and to the construction of or definitions given in, the Act as based on that theory. For practical purposes one fact is relevant to another and admissible (2) when the one is connected with the other in any of the ways referred to in the provisions of this Act relating to the relevancy of facts.(3) Relevancy, in the sense in which it is used by the framer of the Act, is fully defined in ss. 6-11, both inclusive: "These sections enumerate specifically the different instances of the connection between cause and effect which occur most frequently in judicial proceedings. They are designedly worded very widely, and in such a way as to overlap each other. Thus a motive for a fact in issue (s. 8), is part of its cause (s. 7); subequent conduct influenced by it (s 8) is part of its effect (s. 7.). Facts relevant under s 11 would, in most cases, be relevant under other sections."(4) Not only may the acts and words of a party himself, if relevant, be given in evidence, but when the party is, by the substantive law, rendered hable, civilly or criminally, for the acts, contracts, or representations of third persons, and such facts are material, they may generally be given in evidence for or against him as if they were his own (5) The chief instances of such relationships (which must in the first instance be proved alunde to the satisfaction of the Courts) are agency,(6) partnership,(7) the hability of companies for the acts and representations of their directors or other agents(8) and conspiracy in tort or crime (9)

The following sections have been considered by the author and others to be the most important, as all will admit, they are the most original part of the

<sup>(1)</sup> Whitley Stokes, 849
(2) Lala Lakmi v. Sayed Haider, 3 C W N clyym (1899). I" Relevant" in this let mear ccivin (1899), ["Relevant" in this Act means admissible]

<sup>(3)</sup> S 3, aute, 1 sa 5-55, post

<sup>(4)</sup> Steph Introd, 72, or entream of these sections in Whitely Stokes, p. 819, "two of these sections are so drawn its 7, 11), as to permit evalence of matter wholly incleast." 10, and are notes to a 11, nost, but sea sho Steph Introd. 100, and Beel, Ev. 522. In the sections mention, ed in the text the subject of concuminatinal evalence is distributed into its elements. First Report of the Schet Commutez, 114 March 1871.

<sup>(5)</sup> See Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 69

<sup>(6)</sup> In civil cases the acts and representations of the agent will bind the principal if made within the scope of the authority conferred upon him, or subsequently ratified by the principal (Act IX of 1872, se 182-189, 196, 226), as to implied authority, see In re Cunningham, 36 Ch D., 532, Waltean v. Fennick (1893), 1 Q. B., 346, and generally as to agency, Contract Act, ss. 182-238, as to responsibility in a torf and the dectrine of respondet at superior, see remarks of Jessel, M. R. in Smith v Keal, 9 Q. B D , 340, 351, and judgment of Willes, J., inf Barwick v English Joint Stock Bank, L. R., 2 Ex 259, 265, 266, Thorne v Heard (1891), 1 Ch., 599; Malcolin Brunker & Co v. Waterhouse & Sons (1908); Times, L. R. r 24, p 855; a party is not in general criminally responsable for the acts of his agents and servants unless such acts have been directed or assented to by him, Cooper v. Slade, 6 H. L. C., 746, 793, 794, per Lord

Wendre dale, Lord Melville's case, 29 Hew. St T R 764, The Querie's case, 2 B A B, 306, 367; t bridge v. Bailey (1905), I. K. B, 237, See generally, Tayler, D. 115, 002—805, 905—906; Best, E, 4331 Phipson, E. v. 746 Ed. 69, Posell, Est, 2 Phipson, E. v. 746, 126, 200, 200, 200, Est, 200 Erans, Principal and Agent, 123—200, and passem, John Bell, Berren on Negligence, 271— 312, Rescee, Cr Ex, 12th Ed. 46, Roscoo, N P. Er, 69—71, T. A Persono, The Law of Agency in British India," 1899 Bowsteed, Dig. of Agency vita 73—82, 197, 104 Norton, Er, 144; as to admissions by agents, ees st 71, 18, post, and as to notice given to agents, a 14, post.

<sup>(2)</sup> The hability of co partners for the act of their partner setablished on the ground of agency cach partner being the agent for the others for all purposes within the cope of the joint bounces. Se Cansaighest supra Landley on Partnership, 5th Ed., 80—90, 124—230, Pollock on Partnership, Taylor, b., §8743—728, Roceon, N. I. Er., 71, Act IA of 1872 (Contract Act), ss. 220—256, as to admission by Partners, see s. 17, 18, part

<sup>(8)</sup> As to the greetal principles of agincy as applied to Companies in the come of, or after dermation, see Lindley on Company Law, 6th Ed. 143—181, Companies can only be bound by the acts of their real or extensible agents. do, 182, inhabity for texts. dv, 209, see also Act VI of 1882, Act VI of 1887 (findian Companies); Commentaries on the same by L. P. Russell (1889); a Company is not habife for acts done utfar urer, Russell 12; Bree on utfar urers, as to admissions by the effects of a Company, see as 17, 18, pool.

<sup>(9)</sup> See s. 10, post, and notes thereto.

Act, as they affirm positively what facts may be proved, whereas the English lan assumes this to be known, and merely declares negatively that certain facts shall not be proved. In the opinion of many others the English law proceeds upon sounder and more practical grounds. While importance is claimed for these sections in that they are said to make the whole body of law to which they belong easily intelligible, yet such importance cannot, owing to the provisions of se, 165 and 167, cause an undue weight to be attached to their strict applications when a failure to so strictly apply them has not been the cause of an improper decision of the case. For the improper admission or rejection of exidence in Indian Courts has no effect at all unless the Court thinks that the evidence improperly dealt with either turned or ought to have turned the scale.(1) A Judge, moreover, if he doubts as to the relevancy of a fact suggested, can, if he thinks it will lead to anything relevant, ask about it himself.(2)

5. Evidence may be given in any suit or proceeding of the Evidence 5. Evidence may be given many sunt or proceeding of the may be existence or non-existence of every fact in issue, and of such given of other facts as are hereinafter declared to be relevant, and of no such and relevant acts in such as the control of the such acts of the control of the contr others.

Explanation .- This section shall not enable any person to give evidence of a fact which he is disentitled to prove by any provision of the law for the time being in force relating to Civil Procedure.

Illustration*

- (a) A is tried for the murder of B by beating him with a club with the intention of causing his death.
  - At A's trial the following facts are in issue --
  - A's beating B with the club .
    - A's causing B's death by such beating,
    - .I's intention to cause B's death.
- (b) A suitor does not bring with him, and have in readiness for production at the first hearing of the case, a bond on which he relies. This section does not enable him to produce the bond or prove its contents at a subsequent stage of the proceedings, otherwise than in accordance with the conditions prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure

Principles,-The reception in evidence of facts other than those mentioned in the section tends to distract the attention of the tribunal and to waste its time. Frustra probatur quod probatum non relevat. The lans of evidence are framed with a view to a trial at Niss Prius, and a proceeding at Nin Prius ought to be restrained within practical limits (3)

- 8 3 (" Evidence,")
- 8. 3 (" Fact in issue,")
- 8. 3 (" Fact.")

- s. 3 (" Relevant.")
- ss. 5-55 (" Of the Relevancy of facts,") 8 60 (Oral Evidence must be direct.)
- (1) Steph Introd , 72, 73 , alter in England (2) 10 . 72, 73, 182 . s 165, post Best, Ev., 88 , as to "indicative " evidence, ib., § 93. (3) Best, Er., § 251 , R v. Parbhudas, 11 Bom H C R., 90, 91 (1874), ante, Taylor, Er., $ 316. Managers of the Metropolitan Asylum District V Hill. 47 L. T. (H. I.), 29, 34, per Lord O'Hagan; are also judgment of Lord Watson as to the distinction between evidence having a direct relation to the principal question in dispute and evidence relating to collateral facts which will, if established. tend to elucidate that question, and onie, Introduction. ' Facts, which are not themselves in issue, mar affect the probability of the existence of facts m issue, and these may to called collateral facts" First Report of the Reloct Committee, 31st March 1871.

 64, 165, Prov. 2. (Proof of document by primary evidence.)

ss. 136, 162 (Judge to decide as to admissibility.)

98. 145, 146, 148, 153, 155, 158

(Relevancy of questions to witnesses.)
s. 165 (Judge's power to put questions.)

s. 167 (Improper admission or rejection of evidence.)

Civil Procedure Code, O. XIII, p., 780-786. Criminal Procedure Code, s. 298.
Civil Procedure Code, O. XVIII, pp., 813-824, Criminal Procedure Code, s. 359; Steph.
Intiod., 12; Chs. II, III, Steph. Dig., Art. 2, Best, Ev., § 251, p. 251; Taylor, Ev., § 316; Wigmore, Ev., S§ 9-21.

COMMENTARY.

This section therefore excludes everything which is not covered by the puritive of some other section which follows in the Statute.(1) All evidence tendered must therefore be shown to be admissible under this or some one or other of the following sections,(2) or the provisions of some other Statute saved by,(3) or enacted subsequent to this Act. These words in conjunction with the language of other portions of the Act further tend to show that the Court should of itself and irrespective of the parties take objection to evidence tendered before it which is not admissible under the provisions of this Act.(4). This section must be read as subject to the restrictions of Part II as to proof, and Part III as to the production of evidence. Thus the terms of a contract between the parties might be relevant, but oral evidence of it will be excluded if those terms have been reduced to writing (5). Though a document may not be legal evidence of a fact within the provisions of this Act it may yet be a document which the parties by their contract have made proof of that fact.(6).

All questions as to the admissibility of evidence are for the Judge.(7) Where a Judge is in doubt as to the admissibility of a particular piece of evidence, he should declare in favour of admissibility rather than of non-admissibility.(8) "Under the Evidence Act admissibility is the rule and exclusion, the exception, and circumstances which under other systems might operate to re-

Admissibi lity

And of no

thers

12.A (1899) at p. 43. "but the principle of exclusion should not be so applied as to exclude matter which may be eventual for the accertainment of truth." R. v. Abdullab, 7 A. 40 (1895), and see observations on the modern rule as to admissibility in Blake v. Album. Life Asserance Society, L. P., 4 C. P. D., 100

(1) The Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palaldhars,

- (2) Lekhraj Kuar v Mohpal Singh, 7 1 A, 70, ante, Abinash Chandra v. Paresh Nath, 9 C W N, 402, 406 (1904)
- (3) S 2, ante
- (4) Field, Ev., 668; Whitley Stokes, 854 See following paragraphs
- (5) S. 91, post, and cf. ss 92, 115-117, 121-
- (6) Orsental Government Security Life Assurance Company, Ld v. Sarat Chandra, 29 B, 103 (1895). (7) S 136, poet
- (8) The Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakdhars, supra, at p. 26. and Morsarty v. London C. & D. Ry. Co., L. R., 5 Q B., 314, 323, per Lush J.: "I also think on further consideration the evidence was receivable. I had formed no definite opinion on the subject at the trial It was a new point and I adopted what I considered to be the usual and the safer course, where evidence is pressed by one party, and objected to by the other, of receiving the evidence at the peril of the party presenting it " But see also R . Parbhudas, " the tendency to stray from the issues is so strong in this country, that any indulgence of it beyond the clear provisions of the law is certain to lead to future embarrassment, ' per West, J. 11 Bom H. C. R. 90, 95 (1874) and in criminal proceedings, it has been observed, that the necessity of confining the evidence to the issue is stronger if possible, than in cual cases, for when a prisoner is charged with an offence it is of the utmost importance that the facts proved should be such as he can be expected to come prepared to answer, 3 Rues Cr., 363, 5th Ed , ested in R v Parbhudas, 11 Bom H C. R , 93 (1874), Roscoe, Cr Ev., 85, 12th Ed., 78 79. " It 14 of high importance that no security for truth, especially in criminal cases, should be weakened On our rules of explence, said Lord Abinger clude are, under the Act, to be taken into consideration only in judging of the value to be allowed to evidence when admitted."(1) "The object of a trial in every case is to ascertain the truth in respect of the charge made. For this purpose it is necessary that the Court should be in a position to estimate, at its true worth, the evidence given by each witness, and nothing that is calculated to assist it in doing so ought to be excluded, unless, for reasons of publicpolicy, the law expressly requires its exclusion."(2) The Judges' appreliension of possible danger in admitting certain evidence cannot create a rule for excluding it."(3) "Whether the Court does or does not consider evidence given on another occasion and between other parties appropriate and valuable, for the decision of the case which is before it, is not of itself a reason for the admission or rejection of such evidence. The Court is bound to try the matter between the parties who are before it upon such evidence as those parties in their discretion produce for the purpose and at the time when the evidence is tendered to decide whether or not it is legally admissible."(4) The value of evidence cannot affect its admissibility.(5) Questions as to the admissibility of evidence should be decided as they arise and should not be reserved until judgment in the case is given.(6) Where the question was as to the admissibility of certain documents, it was remarked -" What, if all such documents are excluded, shall we have left but oral evidence? That this is not a desirable result probably no one will deny; and in all discussions on the law of evidence, it seems to me very desirable to cosider how that result can be avoided "(7) No argument in favour of the exclusion of evidence can be founded on the mability of Judicial Officers to perform the task of attributing to it its proper influence in the decision to exclude evidence because in some cases Judges might found upon it a wrong conclusion, would be utterly inconsistent with the assumption on which all rules of law are founded that the constituted tribunals are fairly competent to carry them out (8) "To admit documents, not strictly evidence at all, to prop up or al evidence too weak to be relied upon, is not a course which their Lordships would be inclined to approve, and none of the chittahs which have been laid aside by the High Court are shown to have been admissible in evidence according to the laws of evidence regulating the decisions of those Courts. It would expose purchasers to much danger if their possession . could be disturbed by inferences from, or statements in, documents not legally admissible in proof against them."(9) Where a Judge is influenced in his estimate of parol testimony by the result of his consideration of documents which he ought not to have dealt with as evidence, there is no proper trial of the case.(10) Where certain decisions of the Privy Council were referred the property, the liberty and the lives of men depend," pr. Jardine, J., in R. v. Ranchiander, Gerind, 19 B., 735 (1805). For subordinate Courts whose podgment is subject to appeal the asfect couse in cases of doubtful releasincy of ourdecers to to contemplate the possibility of the evidence being admissible and to deal with the case on such a supposition—Madharmo v. Dennak, 21 B., 688 11896.

- (1) R v Monapuna, 18 B., 661, 668 (1892) (2) R v Uttamchand, 11 Bom H C R, 121 (1874)
- (3) Per Lord Deman in Wright v Berkett,
- 1 Moo & R., 414

  (4) Gorachand Surrar v. Ram Narain, 9 W R.,
- (5) R. v Roden, 12 Cox , 630
- (6) Jadu Rai v. Bhubatran Nunly, 17 C, 173

- (1887), Rampiban Serongy v Oghur Nath, 2 C. W. N. 188 (1898), Rama Karansing v Mangal, Sing, I A L. J. Diary, 224 (1904). See Wigmore Ev., § 19
- (7) Gopernath Singh v. Anuadmoyee, 8 W. R., at p. 169 (1667), per Markby, J., for the procedure with regard to the admission of documentary evidence, see Manson v. Golam Kebria, 15 W. R., 490 (1871). Issur (Aunder v. Russeel, Lall, W. R., 576 (1868).
- (8) Ib (and as to standard of value as applied to evidence, ib at p 169)
- (9) Eclourse Sing v Heeralall Scal, 11 W R. (P C), 2 (1568), s c, 12 Moo I A, 136 (* Each relaxation is apt to become a precedent for another," ib at p 4), see notes to s. 36, post. (10) Boildmath Parouge v. Russick Loll, 9 W. R.
- 274 (1868)

to, in which it was said that with regard to the admissibility of evidence in the native Courts in India no strict rule can be prescribed, it was remarked as follows :- "But these cases, it must be borne in mind, occurred many years ago, at the time when the practice in the Mofussil in this respect was very lax and before the Evidence Act was passed, and the observations of the Privy Council(1) were made, as I humbly conceive, not as approving of this laxity of practice, but rather as excusing it, upon the ground that the Mofussil Courts were not at the time so sufficiently acquainted with our English rules of evidence as to be able to observe them with anything like accuracy. I conceive that one great object of the Evidence Act was to prevent this laxity, and to introduce a more correct and uniform rule of practice than had previously prevailed." (2) "In deciding the question whether certain evidence be admissible or not, it is necessary to look at the object for which it is produced, and the point it is intended to establish, for it may be admissible for one purpose and not another."(3) "In civil and criminal cases there is no difference in the rules as to the admissibility of evidence though there may be a difference in their application, and it may be that a piece of evidence admissible in either class of cases may not be sufficient in a criminal case, that is, without further evidence."(4) In cases tried by jury it is the duty of the Judge to decide all questions of admissibility; and in his discretion to prevent the production of inadmissible evidence, whether it is or is not objected to by the parties.(5) It is the duty of the Appellate Court to see that this judicial discretion is exercred in a proper manner.(6) "The moment a witness commences giving evidence which is madmissibible, he should be stopped by the Court. It is not safe to rely on a subsequent exhortation to the jury to reject the hearsay evidence and to decide on the legal evidence alone. '(7) The duty of a Judge in civil cases is nowhere laid down so distinctly as this and it has been said that there may be some doubt as to whether, and if at all, to what extent, a Judge ought to interfere where no objection is raised by the parties. But if the Courts themselves be passive in this respect, the utility of the Code of evidence may be seriously impaired. Further, having regard to the imperative language of 5th, 60th, 64th, 136th, and 165th sections(8) and of other portions of the Act, it would appear that it was the intention of the Legislature that a

128

<sup>(1)</sup> Unide Rajaha v Pemmasamu Lenkatadru, 7 M I A., 128 atp 137 (1858) s c , 4 W R (P C) 121. Naragunty Lutchmeedaramah v Vengania Nardoo, 9 M I A , 66 at p 90 (1891), s c . 1 W R (P C), 30, Boodhnarain Singh v Omrav Singh 13 M I, A., 529 (1870), s c, 15 W R, P C, 1

<sup>(2)</sup> Gungu Lall v. Fatteh Lall, 6 C at p 193 (1880), per Garth, C J, and as to the reception of loose evidence, v ab Harechur Mapoundar v. Churn Majhee, 22 W. R., 355, 356, 357 (1874)

<sup>(3)</sup> Taylor ▼ Willans, 2 B & Ad , 845, 855, per Lord Tenterden, C J

<sup>(4)</sup> R v Mallory, 15 Cox, 456, 460, per Grove, J. v. ante, notes to a 3, and cases there exted . and see also R. v Francis, 12 Cox. C. C , 612, 616 , Lord Melville's Trial, 29 How St Tr , 746, 764 In fact must be established by the same evidence whether it is to be followed by a criminal or civil consequence, but it is a totally different question in the consideration of criminal as distinguished from civil justice, how the accused may be affected by the fact when so established, per Lord Erakine, L. C.], Best, Ev , § 94

<sup>(5)</sup> Cr. I'r Code, s 298 See Best, Ev . § 97,

cited post in note 1, p. 10

(b) R v Amrita Govinda 10 Bom H. C. R. 498 (1873)

<sup>(7)</sup> R . Pettambur Sirdur, 7 W R., Cr., 25 (1867) Where hearsay is not admissible as evidence it should not be taken down: Pitumber Doss v Ruttun Bullub, W R . 1864. 213 : an d priors consent to abide by the testimony of a certain witness cannot bind the consenting party to hearsay testimony, but only to such evidence as is legally admissible Luckeemonee v Shunkuree. 2 W R , 252 , R v Sheil Magon, 5 W, R , Cr ; R v Ramgopal, 10 W R . Ct . 75 (1868) , R. v Anlly Churn, 7 W R , Cr., 2 [hearsey evidence prohibited] Re Kedar Nath, 18 W R , Cr , 16 (1872) . R . Chunder Koomar, 24 W R, Cr . 77 (1875)

<sup>(8) 1 8 5 &</sup>quot; and of no others," 8 60, "oral evidence must be direct", s 64, "Documents must be proved by primary evidence except, &c." s. 165," nor shall he dispense with primary evidence, Ac;" a 136, " shall admit evidence if relevant and not otherwise"

Civil Court should, irrespective of objections made by parties, compel observance of the provisions of the law.(1) Trocedure as to admission and rejection of documents is dealt with in the undermentioned order of the Code.(2) The Judge is to decide as to the admissibility of evidence, and may ask in what manner any evidence which is tendered is relevant. He is bound to try a collateral issue when the reception of evidence depends on a preliminary question of fact.(3) The rules of evidence cannot be departed from because there may be a strong moral conviction of guilt. The moral weight of evidence is not the test.(4)

The proper time to make an objection is in the Court of first instance, Objections For, it is made at the time when the evidence is tendered, it may be in the Dy parties, power of the party tendering the evidence to obvate the objection if a valid one, (5) It has been held that where a valid objection is taken to the admissibility of evidence, it is discretionary with the Judge whether he will allow the objection to be withdrawn, (6) Some latitude should be allowed to a member of the Bar, insisting in the conduct of his case upon his question being taken down or his objections noted where the Court thinks the question madmissible or the objections untenable. There ought to be a spirit of give and take between the Bench and Bar in such matters, and every little persistence on the part of a pleader should not be turned into the occasion of a criminal trial unless the plead r's conduct is so clearly vexatious as to lead to the inference that his intention is to misult or to interrupt the Court, (7)

An objection may be waived, but waiver cannot operate to confer on evidence the character of relevancy (v. post). If the objection is primi faces sustainable, then the opponent must show the Court that the evidence satisfies the law, (8) If, however, the evidence appears to the Court to be primi faces admissible it is for the objector to make out the grounds of lus objection. The objection should be specific. It should declare that the evidence violates a named principle or rule of evidence. The cardinal principle is that a general objection if overruled, cannot avail. The only modification of this broad rule which evidence was wrongly admitted As to

<sup>(1)</sup> Field, Fv . 668, see pp. 667, 668, 671-673, 637, where the question is discussed and see Whitley Stokes, 854 On the other hand, it has been said that, subject to certain well-recognised exceptions, the general principle, Omnie consensus tollit errorem, applies to evidence in civil cases, a maxim which is in one sense of doubtful application under this Act as to criminal cases v post, p 131 Much madmissible evidence is constantly received in practice, because the opposing counsel either deems it not worthwhile to object, or thinks its reception will be beneficial to his client Best, Ev , § 97 In Sheetul Pershad v Junmejoy Mullick, 12 W R , 244 (1869), the Court said " It is somewhat difficult to ascertain exactly how matters stood before the Judge, but it rather appears that the objection now taken as to there being no evidence to bring the case within cl 1, s 17, Act X of 1859, was not taken before the Judge. There is no doubt that even if the evidence on the record were in itself insufficient, the Judge might properly have decided the case upon the evidence such as it was if the defendant had waived his objection to its insufficiency and consented to its being taken as sufficient" In this case it seems the party dispensed with proof, and the case was not one in objections by parties, and admissibility of evidence on appeal, see next paragraph on appeal, see next paragraph

(2) Civ Pr Code, O XVIII, pp 780-786.

<sup>(3)</sup> S 136, post and see s 162, post, Cleave v Jones, 7 Ex, 421, Phillips v Cole, 10 A & E, 106

<sup>(4)</sup> R v Baiyos Chardhire, 25 W B, CY, 43 (1876), when it was objected that the moral curing to feertain evidence not legally admissible was almost irresistible, Lord Campbell, C J, said: "The moral weight of evidence is not the test Many facts are excluded by law, which might be important on account of the microvenence of admitting them "R v Oddy, 5 Cux C C, 210, 213, «convictions must be based on substantial and sufficient evidence not merely moral coarsons, "R v Sarch Roy, S W R, Cr, 28 (1869), as to judicial disabeled, see devium in R Nobolowya, T C L B, 231 (1859)

<sup>(5)</sup> Kissen Kominee v Ram Chunder, 12 W R., 13 (1869), Sheetul Pershad v Junmeyoy Mullick, 12 W R., 244 (1869), Wigmore, Ev., § 18.

<sup>(6)</sup> Barbat ▼ Allen, 7 Exch., 609.

<sup>(7)</sup> Per Cur in In re Dattatraya, 6 Bom L. R., 541 (1904).

<sup>(8)</sup> See Wigmore, Ev . § 18

being that if on the face of the evidence in its relation to the rest of the case there appears no purpose whatever for which it could have been admissible, then a general objection, though overruled, will be deemed to have been sufficient. The opposing counsel can make no reply to a general objection except to throw the whole responsibility upon the Judge at once or else begin systematically and argue that under any possible objection the testimony should come in. Many trials under such a system would practically never end.(1)

When dealing in appeal with the admissibility of evidence admitted by the lower Court, a distinction has been drawn between the cases (a) in which evidence wholly irrelevant has been erroneously admitted by the lower Court; and (b) those cases in which a relevant fact has been erroncously allowed to be proved in a manner different from that which the law requires (2) e.g., where secondary evidence of the contents of a document has been admitted without the absence of the ouginal having been accounted for. (3) In the first case it is obvious that the decree can be supported upon relevant evidence only (c/. s. 165. Prov. 2, post). An erroneous omission to object to the admission of irrelevant testimony does not make it available as a ground of judgment.(4) Nor can evidence be given which the law excludes as that a person who is liable on a note of hand signed it as surety only.(5) The Act (s. 165) also enacts that the judgment must be based upon facts duly proved, that is, proved in accordance with the provisions relating to proof contained in the Act. Where no proof has been offered, as where a document has been admitted in the lower Court without being proved, the Court of appeal may reject the document notwithstanding want of objection by the other party (6) Where proof has been given of a document but the proof is prima facie improper, an apparent exception exists in civil suits based on principles akin to estoppel; as where no objection is taken to secondary evidence of documents being given.(7) In this case want of objection may mislead the party tendering the evidence and prevent him from producing primary evidence, or from showing that the secondary evidence offered is admissible.(8) So it has been held that if no objection is taken in the Court of first instance to the reception of a document in evidence (e.g., as being the copy of a copy) it is not within the province

See Wigmore, Er., § 18, and see per Lord Brougham in Bain v Whiteharen F R Co, H L C, 1, 16

<sup>(2)</sup> Field, Ev., 668; and note to s. 167, poet (3) As to parol evidence of written contract admitted without objection, see Article in 14 Mad L. J., 189.

<sup>(4)</sup> A. B. Miller v Babu Madho Das, 19 A. 76; s c., L. R., 23 I A, 106 (1896), the decision in Luchmeedhur v Rughoobur, 24 W. R., 285 (1875), appears therefore to be incorrect. In Pudmavate v Doolar Singh, 4 M. I. A , at pp 285, 286 (1847), e c., 7 W. R. P C., 41, the Privy Council observed that the evidence " was, however, received below, and therefore we do not apprehend that we can treat it as not being evidence in the cause," These observations appear, however, to have referred to the weight and not to the admissibility of the evidence. See also Ningowa v Bharmappa, 23 B , 69 (1897) It has been said that a party who has filed an exhibit cannot plead its inadmissibility if the other party seeks to use the document against him. Raman v. Becretary of State, Mad. L. J. Dig., 65. But apart from any question of estoppel as where the objection is to the proof, or where the reception of the evidence has affected the position of the other party, the question of admissibility must be determined by the provisions of the Act.

<sup>(5)</sup> Harak Chand v. Bishun Chandra, S C. W. 101, 102 (1903) [Inadmissibility of oral windence, question not raised in either of lower Courts, but taken and allowed in appeal.]

<sup>(6)</sup> Kanso Prashed v Joyat Chandra, 23 C. 23, 333 (1895); is this case the contention that a map was admissible in evidence was held to be open to the appellent on speculi appeal, although he had not repealed against an order of remand made by the lower Appellate Court repecting the map as not being admissible; but see Girnadra Rangendra Nath, 1 C. W. N., 530 (1897)

<sup>(7)</sup> See Robinson v Davies, 5 Q. B D, 26 (1879), where secondary evidence of the contents of written documents was received under a commission to take evidence abroad without objection

<sup>(8)</sup> Kissen Kaminee v. Ram Chander, supra of the Appellate Court to raise or recognise it in appeal.(1) Where also the Court of first instance admitted in evidence the depositions of certain witnesses in a previous litigation and no objection was taken, but in appeal it was, objected that the witnesses who were alive ought to have been called and examined, and the Court excluded the evidence, it was held in second appeal that, as in consequence of the want of objection the party tendering the evidence had cancelled his application to have his witnesses summoned, the lower Appellate Court ought either to have accepted the evidence or if it required the ases before it for examination, ing so, and that in no case was and deciding the case on the all was remanded. (2) But of course the Appeal Court has a perfect right to attach such weight to the documents as it thinks proper, or to say whether they ought to be treated as evidence as against particular parties to the sunt.(3)

Objections to the admissibility of documents attached to the return of a commission if not previously made cannot be taken at the hearing of the suit.(4) If when evidence is taken before Commissioners a document is tendered and objected to on any ground, the opposite party is not precluded from objecting to the document at the trial on any other ground. It is not necessary to state all the objections to the admissibility of a document when it is first tendered, but the party objecting is at hierry to take any fresh objection whenever the party producing the document tenders it in evidence.(5)

In the undermentoned case, (6) the Privy Council held that the examination of a material witness of the plantifi in the absence of the defendant, his wakil having been removed and no other vakil then acting for him, was such an irregularity that if objected to at the proper time would have been fatal to the reception of such evidence; but that no objection having been urged during the time or until an appeal was interposed, the objection came too late and could not be sustained as, notwithstanding such irregularity that fact did not taint the whole proceedings so as to prevent the plantiff recovering upon the other evidence which was sufficient to establish his case.

It has been held that the ground of waiver cannot be allowed to prevail in a criminal case, (7) and that a prisoner on his trial can consent to nothing. (8)

<sup>(1)</sup> Chimnaji Govind v Dhunlar Dhonder, 11 B. 320 (1896) followed in Lalehman v Amril, 24 B , 596 (1900), in this the copy from which the copy was taken had been filed in a suit between the predecessors in title of the parties. Albar Als v. Bhuca Lai, 6 C (1880) at pp. 669, 670; Kusen Kaminee v Ram Chunder, 12 W. R., 13 (1869), in which suit the case was remanded with liberty to supply the necessary proof, see Ningsies v. Dharmappa, 23 B , 65 (1897); see note to a 165, post. No objection should be allowed to be taken in the Appellate Court as to the admissibilty of a copy of a document which was admitted in evidence in the Court below without any objection Kashora Lal v Rakhal Das, 31 C., 155 (1903), dissenting from Kameshar Pershad v Amanutulla, 26 C, 53 (1899), Shahzadi Begam v Secretary of State for India, P. C. (1907), 34 Cal , 1059 , L. R ,34 I A . 194; That She v Maung Bo, 3 L. B. R . 49

<sup>(2)</sup> Lakshman v. Amrst, 24 B., 56 (1900).

<sup>(3)</sup> Albur Ale v. Bhyen Lal, supra.

<sup>(1)</sup> Struthers v. Il heeler, 6 C. L. R., 109 (1850).

<sup>(5)</sup> Ralls v Gau Kam, 9 C , 939 (1883)

<sup>(6)</sup> Bommarauze Bahadur v. Rangasamy Mudaly, 6 M I. A. 232 (1855)

(f) R.v. America Gericada, 10 Bom H C R., 407, 1987 [1873] On the question how far the rule of evidence may be relixed by consent, Mr. Best remarks.—"In criminal cases, at least in treason and felony, it is the duty of the judge to see that the accused in condemned according to law, and, the rules of evidence forming part of that law, no admissions from him or his counsel will be recrived." § 97 see also 8.5 year.

(e) R v Budonach, 12 W R., Cr. 3 (1889); Altoracy-Green of New South Falae v Bertrad, 30 L. J., P C., 51, e e , L. R., 1 P C., 555, e e also R v Narroy Berdshin, 9 Bom H C. R., 338, 33 (1872), R v. Budonach, 2 C., 23 (1876), R. v. Alexa, 6 C., 35 (1889), Harorin Bulkh v. R. 6 C., 90, 99, as to objectious ere observation of Trevelyan, J. an Grank Chander V R., 20C., 361 (1893); Best. Ev., § 97; as to admissions of fact by legal practitioners, each st. 17, 18, 85, post.

As to objections to the reception of evidence by the Court itself, see the preceding paragraph; and as to the procedure when a question is objected to and allowed by the Court, see the Civil Procedure Code.(1) A Court is bound to decide upon the evidence without reference to any previous arrangement between the parties as to the mode in which the evidence is to be dealt with.(2) Upon the question of placing a favourable construction on doubtful evidence so as to entitle the Court to treat it as substantive evidence in the case and not to exclude it as madmissible ;(3) and as to the case where both parties have put indifferent portions of inadmissible proceedings and rested arguments thereon (4) see the cases noted below.

Relevancy of facts forming artofsame

6. Facts which, though not in issue, are so connected with a fact in issue as to form part of the same transaction, are relepart of same vant, whether they occurred at the same time and place or at different(5) times and places.

Mustrations

- (a) A is accused of the murder of B by beating him Whatever was said or done by A or B, or the by-standers at the beating, or so shortly before or after it as to form part of the transaction, is a relevant fact.(6).
- (b) A is accused of waging war against the Queen by taking part in an armed insurrection in which property is destroyed, troops are attacked and gaple are broken open. The occurrence of these facts is relevant, as forming part of the general transaction, though A may not have been present at all of them. (7)
- (c) A sues B for libel contained in a letter forming part of a correspondence. Letters between the parties relating to the subject out of which the libel arose, and forming part of the correspondence in which it is contained, are relevant facts, though they do not contain the libel itself
- (d) The question is whether the certain goods ordered from B were delivered to A. The goods were delivered to several intermediate persons successively. Each delivery is a relevant fact.(8)

Principle -If facts form part of the transaction which is the subject of enquiry, manifestly evidence of them ought not to be excluded (9) Moreover, such facts, forming part of the res gestæ in most cases could not be excluded without rendering the evidence unintelligible,(10) for every part of a transaction is connected with every other part as cause or effect. The point for

<sup>(1)</sup> Cay Pr. Code, O XVIII, r 11, p 819 cf also s 359, Cr Pr. Code of Act XIV of 1892. (2) Gourse Pershad v Bykunto Chander, 6 W

R . 82 (1866). (3) Dwarka Das v. Sant Baksh. 18 4., 92 (1895)

<sup>(4)</sup> Bir Chander v. Bhann Dher, 3 B L. R. A. C. 217 (1869)

<sup>(5)</sup> Thus where a man committed three burglaries in one night, and stole a shirt at one place and left it in snother, and they were all so connected that the Court heard the history of all three burglaries Lord Ellenborough remarked that " if crumes do so intermix the Court must go through the detail " Case cited without name in R. v Whiley: 2 Lea, 995; which is also reported as R. v. Wylie, 1 B. & P. (N. R.), 92.

<sup>161</sup> See In re Sural Dhobns, 10 C., 302 (1881);

R v Fakırapa, 15 B , 491, 496 (1890) , as to evclamations of mere by standers see R v Fouries, cited Steph Dig , Art 3, illust (a) , Milne v-Liester, 7 H & N . 786 , Bennison v Carturight, 5 B & S I. The Schwelba Swab , 521 Wharton, Ev. $ 260

<sup>(7)</sup> v a 10, pust That war was waged is one of the facts in 15-uc. These occurrences are part

<sup>(8)</sup> As being part of the fact in issue, did the goods pass to A. (9) See Norton, Er., 101

<sup>(10)</sup> Roscoe, Cr Ev., 79, 12th Ed., Acts, declarations and circumstances which constitute or occompany, and explain, the fact or transaction in 144uc, are admissible as forming part of the res gester. The term res gester, though generally ap-decision will always be whether they do form part, or are too remote to be considered really part of the transaction before the Court.(1)

s. 3 (" Fact in issue.")

s. 3 (" Relevant.")

Steph, Dig., Art. 3; Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 86, 12th Ed., 79; Steph, Introd., Ch. III; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 46; Norton, Ev., 111; Cunningham, 18c., 87; Whitley Stokes, 834; Taylor, Ev., §§ 320, 326—328; Wharton, Ev., § 258; Thayer's Cases on Evidence, 629; Rice on Evidence, 369-392.

'COMMENTARY

A transaction is a group of facts so connected together as to be referred to Facts formby a single legal name, e.g., a contract, tort or crime Whether any particular same trans fact is, or is not, part of the same transaction as the fact in issue is a question of action law upon which no principle has been stated by authority and on which single Judges have given different decisions.(2) The area of events covered by the term res gester depends upon the circumstances of each particular case. The res gester may be defined as those circumstances which are the automatic and undesigned incidents of a particular litigated act and which are admissible when illustrative of such act. These incidents may be separated from the act by a lapse of time more or less appreciable. A transaction may last for weeks. The incidents may consist of sayings and doings of any one absorbed in the event whether participant or by-stander; they may comprise things left undone as well as things done. They must be necessary meidents of the litigated act in the sense that they are part of the immediate preparations for or emanations of such act and are not produced by the calculated policy of the actors. They are the act talking for itself, not what people say when talking about the act. In other words, they must stand on an immediate causal relation to the acta relation not broken by the interposition of voluntary individual weariness, seeking to manufacture evidence for itself Incidents that are thus immediately and unconsciously associated with an act, whether such incidents are doings or declarations, become in this way evidence of the character of the act are admissible though hearsay, because in such cases it is the act that creates the hearsay, not the hearsay the act It is the power of perception unmodified by recollection that is appealed to, not of recollection modifying perception. Whenever recollection comes in whenever there is opportunity for reflection and explanations—then statements cease to be part of the res qestar. Declarations to be admissible must be made during the transaction. If made after its completion they are too late(3) but it is no objection that they are selfserving (4) Whenever a fact is a link in a chain of facts necessary to establish another fact, it is, of course, admissible. In some cases an offence consists of a series of transactions, in such cases evidence is admissible of any act which plied to a fact or transaction in issue, may be used in the above connection of any material fact Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 46

The earlier term was res grstæ, see as to the history of this "catch all" phrase, Thayer's Cases on Evidence, 629, same in American Law Review, XV, 5, 81, Wigmore, Ev., § 1793

<sup>(1)</sup> Norton, Ev., 101

<sup>(2)</sup> Steph Dig. Art 3, R v JJ J 1 yapsony Modelliar, 6 C, 635, 662 (1831), cf we of word in ss. 235, 239, Cr 1r. Code, and see R v Fahirdpr, 15 B, 496, 502, supra: R v. I apiram, 16 B.

<sup>414, 424 (1892),</sup> R v Dearlanath, 7 W B, Cr., 15 (1887), R v Sann, 13 M, 426 (1890) The term "transaction" occurs in a 13, post, and as used in that section was defined in Guju Lall v.

Fatteh Lall, 6 C at p 186 (1880).

(3) Chain Mahlo v R (1997), 11 C W N , 266

<sup>(4)</sup> Wharton, Ev. §§ 254-282 See definitions of Supreme Court of Georgia cited in Rice, Ev. 375, "the curemstances, facts and declaration which grew out of the main fact, are contemporaneous with and serve to illustrate its character as part of the rea gestie".

goes to make up the offence.(1) A fact besides being relevant under this section, by virtue merely of its being so connected with a fact in issue as to form part of the same transaction, may also be relevant on the grounds mentioned in one or other of the succeeding sections. So where several offences are connected together and form part of one entire transaction, then the one is evidence to show the character of the other.(2) And where the only evidence against a prisoner charged with having voluntarily caused grievous hurt was a statement made in the presence of the prisoner by the person injured to a third person immediately after the commission of the offence and the prisoner did not, when the statement was made, deny that she had done the act complained of, it was held that the evidence was admissible under this section and s. 8. illust. (a) of this Act.(3) But where it did not appear how long an interval had elapsed between a murder and the statement of an alleged bystander, whose condition of mind did not seem to have been such as to exclude the supposition that his evidence was fabricated, it was held that his statement was inadmissible under this section (4) The doctrine of election (in criminal trials) is closely connected with that about the admissibility of collateral facts, which, though not in issue, may be relevant under this section if they form part of the same transaction (5) The cases cited below may be further consulted in connection with this section.(6) Certain persons were convicted of robbing and murder. and on its appearing that the two offences constituted parts of the same transaction; held that recent and unexplained possession of the stolen property which would be presumptive evidence against the prisoners on the charge of robbing was similarly evidence against them on the charge of murder. (7)

Facts which are the occasion, cause or effect of facts in issue

7 Facts which are the occasion, cause or effect, immediate or otherwise, of relevant facts, or facts in issue, or which constitute the state of things under which they happened, or which afforded an opportunity for their occurrence or transaction, are relevant.

Illustrations.

(a) The question is, whether A robbed B

The facts that, shortly before the robbery, B went to a fair with money in his possession, and that he showed it, or mentioned the fact that he had it, to third persons, are relevant (8)

(b) The question is whether A murdered B.

Marks on the ground, produced by a struggle at or near the place where the murder was committed, are relevant facts (9)

(c) The question is, whether A poisoned B.

- (1) Roscor, Cr Ev , 79, 12th Ed ; Norton, Ev ,
- (2) R. v Ellis, 6 B & C, 145, cited in R. v. Parthudas, 11 Bom H C. R, 94 (1874); v. s 14, post. See also Introductions, ante.
  - In re Surat Dhobni, 10 C., 302 (1884), supra.
     Chain Mahtov. R. (1907), 11 C W. N., 266,
- (5) R v. Fakirapa, 15 B. 496, 502, supra, see also vs. 235, 239, Cr. Pr. Code; Taylor, Ev., § 329
   (6) R. v. Burdsye, 4 C. & P., 386; R. v. Rear.
- den. 4 Fost & Fin., 76, R. v. Elis, supra; R v. Cobden, 3 Fost & Fin., 83; R. v. Foung, R. & R. C. C. R., 280, note; R. v. Mestwood, 4 C. & P.
- 547, R. v. Williams, Dears, C. C., 189, R. v. Roonsy, T. C. & P., 517; R. v. Whitey, 2 Lea., 985; R. v. Long, 6 C. &. P., 179, R. v. Firth, L. R., 1 C. C. R., 172; R. v. Schiebury, 5 C. & P., 155, 157; see cases cited in Steph Dig., Art. 3, 2 East P. C., 034
  - (7) R v Sami, 13 M, 426 (1890).
- (8) As giving occasion or opportunity or being the cause, see Norton, Ev., 103; Cunningham. Ev., 90; Whitley Stokes, 855
- (9) As effects of the fact in issue, this is an instance of real evidence . see Norton, Ev., 103; Best, Ev., § 92, as to proof from foot-mark; see Wills' Circ. Ev., 641, 126, 291, 305.

The state of B's health before the symptoms ascribed to poison and habits of B. known to A, which afforded an opportunity for the administration of poison, are relevant facts.(1)

Principle.-The reason for the admission of facts of this nature is that, if it is desired to decide whether a fact occurred or not, almost the first natural step is to ascertain whether there were facts at hand calculated to produce or afford opportunity for its occurrence, or facts which its occurrence was calculated to produce. Further, in order to the proper appreciation of a fact, it is necessary to know the state of things under which it occurred.(2)

8. 3 (" Relevant.") s. 3 (" Fact in issue,")

Steph. Dig., Art. 9, and note; Steph. Introd., Ch. III; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 46, 109. Norton, Ev., 103; Cunningham, Ev., 90; Wigmore, Ev., §§ 131-134; Best, Ev., § 453; Wills' Circ. Ev., passim.

COMMENTARY.

Leaving the transaction itself the present section embraces a larger area Causation and provides for the admission of several classes of facts, which though not possibly forming part of the transaction, are yet connected with it in particular modes (viz., as occasion, cause, effect; as giving opportunity for its occurrence or as constituting the state of things under which it happened), and so are relevant when the transaction itself is under enquiry. These modes—occasion, aspects of causation. When to have done it (not through

s physical presence, within a proper range of time and place forms one step on the way to the behef that he did it. If it be asked whether the mere possibility involved in opportunity is not too slender and whether something more than mere opportunity, for example, exclusive opportunity, should not first be shown, the answer is that by the very showing of an opportunity countless hypotheses are negatived; and the person charged who might otherwise have been one of innumerable other persons at the time, is shown to have been one of the limited number who were in a position to do this particular act. In short, opportunity alone, and not exclusive opportunity, is a sufficient showing for admissibility.(3) On the other hand no circumstance can be more infirmative of a charge than that the accused had no opportunity of committing the crime. On the strength of this rests the force of a defence founded on an alibi (4) But care must be taken against a hasty inference from opportunity for, to commission of, a crime. There can be no crime without the opportunity, but there is a wide gulf to be bridged over by evidence between opportunity and commission.(5)

Generally speaking, it is not admissible to prove the fact in issue by show- similar un ing that fact similar to it, but not part of the same transaction, have occurred facts on other occasions.(6) The meaning of the rule excluding transactions similar to but unconnected with the facts in issue, is that inferences are not to be drawn

<sup>(1)</sup> As constituting the state of things under which the alleged fact happened, and as affording opportunity

<sup>(2)</sup> Cunningham, Ev. 90, 91, Steph Introd., Ch. III; knowledge of circumstances enabling a person to do the act is thus also relevant [illust. (c).]

<sup>(3)</sup> Wigmore, Ev , § 131.

<sup>(4)</sup> See 8 11, post.

<sup>(5)</sup> Norton, Ev., 104, Best, Ev , § 453 ; see case cited in Starkie, Ev., 4th Ed., 864, note; Wills' Circ Ev , 53.

<sup>(6)</sup> Steph Dig, Art 10, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 134, Best, Ev , $5 506-510; Taylor, Ev., §§ 317-326 , Broom's Legal Maxims, 903 ; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 84-86; Powell, Ev., 528-535, and v. post.

from one transaction to another which is not specifically connected with it merely because the two resemble one another. They must be linked together by the chain of cause and effect in some assignable way before an inference may be drawn.(1) They are not facts in issue and are therefore excluded by the fifth section. They are not parts of the same transaction so as to be admissible under the sixth section, and there is no principle of causation which would render them relevant under this section. The maxim res inter alias acta is frequently supposed to express the principle of exclusion in such cases but this is incorrect for similar transaction inter partes would be equally inadmissible in this relation. The maxim has its principal utility in the domain of substantive law.(2) And so when, as in a well-known case, the question was whether A, a brewer, sold good beer to B, a publican, the fact that A sold good beer to C, D and E, other publicans, was held to be irrelevant. (3) Nor, when an act has been proved to show that a given party did the act, may evidence be tendered of similar acts done either by himself, with the object of showing a disposition, habit or propensity to commit, and a consequent probability of his having committed, the act in question, or by others, though similarly circumstanced to himself to show that he would be likely to act as they.(4) And so when the question is, whether A commutted a crime, the fact that he formerly committed another crime of the same sort and had a tendency to commit such crimes, is irrelevant.(5) The so-called exceptions (though they are, not strictly speaking, such) to this rule consist in the admissibility of evidence of acts showing intention, good faith, and the like (6) and of facts showing accident or system (7) Judgment also in Court of Justice on other occasions have been said to form an exception to the exclusion of evidence of transactions not specifically connected with facts in issue (8) On the other hand and on the same principle, in cases where causation is well-known and regular, as in the case of physical and mechanical agencies, the conditions of mental disease, the propensities of animals and the like, evidence of similar but unconnected acts is often admissible.(9) Where in an action brought in respect of a nuisance

<sup>(1)</sup> Steph. Dig , p 163

<sup>(2)</sup> Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed.; 135, Steph Dig. Art 10, and n. vi, p. 162; Rest, Ev., § 112, 568—510. Tsylor, Ev., 317—326. Brown's Legal Maxims, 954—968.

<sup>(3)</sup> Helconde v Heuson, 2 Camp, 391, alute it is had been shown that the beer sold to all was of the same brewing Steph Dig. Art 10, illust (6); so (inless a general custom) be proved, the terms on which Aleftiand to B, are no evidence of the terms on which Aleftiand to other terms and which Aleftiand to other terms on which Aleftiand to other terms on which Aleftiand to other terms of the terms on which Aleftiand to other terms of the terms on which Aleftiand to other terms Carter v. Pryke, Feaks, 120, see Hallingdom v., Hend. 4 C B N. S., SSS, Speedy v DeWitzlin, 7 East., 108, Smith v William, 6 C. & P., 180; Taylor, Ev., §§ 317-2266

<sup>(4)</sup> Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 109, and text-books cited ants, and notes to s 14, post; as to the converse cases of character and course of business v post, ss. 52-55, 16

<sup>(5)</sup> Steph Dig , Art 10, illust.(a) , R. v. Cole, 1 Philips, Ev , 508 , Steph Dig , pp. 162-164 , see s 14, post, illusts (n), (o), (p)

<sup>(6)</sup> See s. 14, post; cf Steph Dig, Art 11, and pp. 162—164, ib., Physon, 3rd Ed, 135 As to evidence of intention, see Narsingh Dyal v. Ram. Narsin, 30 C. 883, 896 (1903) R. v. Rund, C. C. R. (1906). 21 Cox. p. 252; post. p. 196

<sup>(7)</sup> See a 16, post, of Steph Dig, Art 12; Lawren a Presupptive Evidence, 182, Steph Dig, 162—164, see also Taylor, Ev. §5 227—248; a Revece, C. Ev. 87, 12th Ed. 81, st. see, 7 487; Ev. p. 463, Rassoe, N. P. Ev. 85, R. v. Byst. K. B. 188 (1994), 1 All L. 4, 24, Mater. Vis. (1998), 2 K. B. 601, Times L. H. v. 24; p. 779

<sup>(8)</sup> Steph Introd., 164, see as 40-44, past.

(9) Thepron. Ev. Sci. Ed., 126-129; Best, Ev., pp. 463, 464; Taylor, Ev., 319, so in an American case it being in dispute whether a horse was or was not inglestened by a certain pile of limber evidence that other horses were frightened by the same pile, under a vanety of enreumtrances, was held admirestable. Best, Ev., p. 464, for a similac case, see flowers V. E. C. R. O., 21.Q. B. D.
391, "so where the question was whether A's dog skilled a sheep belonging to B. the fact that the same dog had killed other sheep on different occasions belonging to other people was held ala railway engine, proof that (1) the same engine, and (2) other engines of similar construction belonging to the same Company had previously caused alleged to be caused by the construction and maintenance of a hospital for infectious diseases, the plaintiff proposed to call evidence as to the effect of other similar hospitals on the surrounding neighbourhoods, it was held that evidence of facts by which the effect (or absence of effect) of such hospitals could be either positively or approximately ascertained was admissible and material.(1) Where the discharge of gaseous matter from the chimney of a chemical works was complained of as a nuisance by the proprietor of land in its vicinity, it was held that the effect of the discharge upon other properties in the neighbourhood was legitimate matter of enquiry , (2) on the same principle evidence of the effect of similar discharges from other chimneys would have been admissible (3) When the doings of animals are in question, it is admissible to prove the general character of the species, or of the particular animals, as well as the doings of the same, or similar animals on other occasions.(4) Further, similar facts may become admissible in confirmation of testimony as to the main fact which would be madmissible as direct proof. So an admission of hability on one bill accepted by the same agent is no evidence of a general authority to accept, though it is admissible to confirm independent proof of such authority (5) And proof of particular instances are admissible to confirm a general course of business. And under this Act (though not.(6) generally speaking, in England) even previous similar statements made by a witness are admissible to corroborate him by showing that he is consistent with himself.(7) Similar facts may be admissible in proof of agency. Where the question is whether one person acted as agent for another on a particular occasion, the fact that he so acted on other occasions, is relevant. (8) In a suit for dissolution of marriage, evidence of acts of adultery, subsequent to the date of the latest act charged in the petition, are admissible, for the purpose of shewing the character of previous acts of improper familiarity (9)

TION. 137

first along the same line, is admissible, Aldridge v G. IV. R. Co., 3M & Gr., 522., Figport v E. C. R. Co., 3 C. B., 229. the question being whether A was insane at a certain time, evidence that he exhibited symptoms of insanty proor and subsequent to such time, and that his ancestors and collaterals had been insant, is admissible; Pope on Lancey, 392" Plupson, Er., 3rd Ed., 129—134; as to the presumption of regularity in the case of scientific instruments, we Taylor, Ev., § 1383. As to Manorial and Trade Customs, see Taylor, Ev., § 130—202; Roscow, N. P. Ev., 83, 86; Phipson, Ev., 3rd 4, 127; a 13, port, acts showing title, see a. 11, port

(1) The Managers of the Metropolitan Arylam District v. Hill, 47 L. T. (II. L.), 29; per Lerd Schorne, L. C. "Evidence relating to collateral facts is only admissible when such facts will, if established, establish reseasolable persemption as to the matter in dispute, and when such evidence is reasonably conclusive." per Lord Watson; see also Foulker, V. Gadd. 3 Dong, 157.

(2) Hamilton v. Tennant d Co., 1 Rob., 821, 7 C. & F., 122; R v. Neville, 1 Pcs. N. P. C., 125; but are as to this last case, R v. Faire, 8 E. & B., 488

(3) Metropolitan Asylum District τ. Hill, supra.
35, per Lord Watson

- (4) Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 148, 128, Osborne v. Chacquell, 2 Q B. (1896), 109, Williams v. Richards (1907); 2 K. B., 88
- (5) Llewellyn v Winckworth, 13 M. & W., 598; Hollingham v. Head, 4 C. B. N. S., 388, Morris v. Bethel, L. R., 4 C. P., 765; Physon, Ev., 3rd Ed., 78.
- (6) Bourse v. Galliff. 11 C. & F., 45; see as to similar facts admissible in corroboration of the main fact R. v. Pearce, Peake, N. Pr. R., 106; R. v. Egerton, R. & R., 375, cited in R. v. Ellis, 6 B. & C., 148; Cole v. Manning, 2 Q. B. D., 611, and cases in preceding socie.
  - (7) S. 157, post
- (8) Steph. Dig. Art 13; Elake v. Althon Lafe Assurance Society, I. R., 4 C. P. D., 94; ec. also Courteen v. Touse, I Camp., 42n; Neal v. Fraing, I. Esp., 60; Watkins v. Vincé, 2 Starkie,
- (9) Boddy v. Roddy, 30 L. J. P. & M., 23; Taylor, Ev., § 340, ser remarks on this case in Physon, Ev., 80, let D. omtted in 20d Ed. It has been held that ante-suptial incontacence is relevant to prove post-suptial misconduct charged between the same parties. Castello, v. Castello, Times, March 2, 1896, cited in Physics, Ev., 3rd Ed., 127.

Motive, preparation and previous or subsequent conduct

8. Any fact is relevant which shows or constitutes a motive(1) or preparation(2) for any fact in issue or relevant fact.

The conduct of any party, or of any agent to any party, to any suit or proceeding, in reference to such suit or proceeding(3) or in reference to any fact in issue therein or relevant thereto,(4) and the conduct of any person an offence against whom is the subject of any proceeding,(5) is relevant, if such conduct influences or is influenced by any fact in issue or relevant fact, and whether it was previous(6) or subsequent(7) thereto.

Explanation 1.—The word "conduct" in this section does not include statements, unless those statements accompany and explain acts other than statements; (8) but this explanation is not to affect the relevancy of statements under any other section of this Act.(9)

Explanation 2.—When the conduct of any person is relevant, any statement made to him or in his presence and (10) hearing, which affects such conduct, is relevant. (11)

Illustrations.

(a) A is tried for murder of B.

The facts that A murdered C, that B knew that A had murdered C, and that B had tried to extort money from A by threatening to make his knowledge public, are relevant.(12)

- (b) A sues B upon a bond for the payment of money B denies the making of the bond. The fact that, at the time when the bond was alleged to be made, B required money for a particular purpose, is relevant
- (c) A is tried for the murder of B by porson.

The fact that, before the death of B, A procured poison similar to that which was administered to B, is relevant. (13)

(d) The question is, whether a certain document is the will of A.

The facts that, not long before the date of the alleged will, A made inquiry into matters to which the provisions of the alleged will relate, that he consulted

<sup>(1)</sup> Illusts (s), (8), and v post R v. M. J. Tygpoory Moodeldar, 6 C., 655, 682; as to the admissibility of similar facts to prove motive for a crime, see for its admission, R v. Heeson, 14 Cox, 40; R v. Stephen, 16 Cox, 387; R v. Cleuce, 4 C. & F., 22, contra; R v. Flanagan, 15 Cox, 403

<sup>(2)</sup> Illusts (c), (d), and v. post.

<sup>(3)</sup> Illust. (e).
(4) Illusts (d), (e), (s), R v. Abdulla, 7 A, 40
(1885)

<sup>(5)</sup> Iliusts. (1). (4).

<sup>(6)</sup> Illusts. (d), (e) (7) Illusts. (e), (i). Dalip Singh v. Nawal Kunwar, P C. (1908), 30 All., 258.

<sup>(8)</sup> Illusts (j), (k), and v. post.

<sup>(9)</sup> See sq 10, 14, illusts (k), (l), (m), 17-39. 155, 157. (10) Not "or" but for English rule, see Neile

v. Jakle, 2 C. & K., 709.

Husta. (f). (g). (h). R. v. Edmunds, 6 C. &
 164
 See also R. v. Buckley, 13 Cox, 293; R. v. Shippey, 12 Cox, 181; R. v. Clewes, 4 C. & P..

<sup>221; 5</sup> Cox, C. C., 214; Best, Ev., § 92. (13) See E. v. Palmer; Steph.Introd., 107-158, Steph. Dig., Art. 7, illust (8).

vakus in reference to making the will, and that he caused drafts of other wills to be prepared, of which he did not approve, are relevant.(1)

(e) A is accused of a crime.

The facts, that, either before, or at the time of, or after the alleged crime, A provided evidence which would tend to give to the facts of the case an appearance favourable to himself, or that he destroyed or concealed evidence, or prevented the presence or procured the absence of persons, who might have been witnesses or suborned person to give false evidence respecting it, are relevant.(2)

(f) The question is, whether A robbed B.

The facts that, after B was robbed, C said in A's presence—i the police are coming to look for the man who robbed B'—and that numediately afterwards A ran away, are relevanted.

(g) The question is, whether A owes B rupces 10,000.

The facts that A asked C to lend him money, and that D said to C in A's presence and hearing,—I advise you not to trust A, for he over B 10,000 rupees, and that A went saw, without making any answer, are relevant facts.(4)

(h) The question is, whether A committed a crime.

The fact that A absconded after receiving a letter warning him that inquiry was being made for the criminal, and the contents of the letter are relevant. (5)

(i) A is accused of a crime.

The facts that, after the commission of the alleged crime, he absconded, or was in possession of property or the proceeds of porperty acquired by the crime,

(1) Where the factum of a will is in dispute the question whether the testator had made a will before is relevant to show that he had disposing mind. In the goods of Bhuppobuty (deceased), Cal. H. C., 9th February 1900

(2) "A party who gives or produces false evidence may by so doing give rise to a general presumption against the truth of his case;" Orish Chunder v. Incar Chandra, 3 B. L. R., A C. J., 341 (1869) See also R. v. Patch, in Steph Introd . 99-106, and Wills' Circ. Ev. 239; R. v. Palmer, supra; Steph Dig. Art. 7, illust (c); see s. 114, illust. (a) post, Where the question was whether A suffered damage in a railway secident : the fact that A conspired with B, C and D to suborn false witnesses in support of his case was held to be relevant, as conduct subsequent to a fact in issue tending to show that it had not happened. Moriarty v L. C. & D Ry Co , L. R., 5 Q. B., 314. "The conduct of a party to a cause may be of the highest importance in determining whether the cause of action in which he is plaintiff or the ground of defence, if he is defendant, is honest and just: just as it is evidence against a prisoner that he has said one thing at one time and another at another, as showing that the recourse to falsehood leads fairly to an interence of guilt. So, if you can show that a plaintiff has been suborning false testimony, and has endeavoured to have recourse to perjury. it is strong evidence that he knew perfectly well that his case was an unrighteous one. I do not say that it is conclusive; it does not always follow, because a man, not sure he shall be able to succeed by righteous means has recourse to means of a different character, that that which he desires, namely, the gaining of the victory, is not his due, or that he has not good ground for believing that justice entitles him to it. It does not necessarily follow that he has not a good cause of action any more than a prisoner making a false statement to increase his appearance of unnocence is necessarily s proof of his guilt : but it is always evidence which ought to be submitted to the consideration of the tribunal which has to judge of the facts : and therefore, I think, that the evidence was admissible inasmuch as it went to show that the plaintiff thought he had a bad case," Ib , per Cockburn. C. J., see Taylor, Ev., $ 804; as to conduct of a party in a case for malicious prosecution, see Taylor v. Williams, 2 B. & Ad , 857; as to admission inferred from the conduct of parties, see s. 58, post; see also Taylor, Ev., § 804; Roscos, N. P. Ev., 62; Melhuish v Collier, 15 Q B , 878; Best, Ev., 5 524

(3) R. v. Abdullah, 7 A, 400 (1885); v. post,

(4) See In the petition of Surat Dhobni, 10 C., 302 (1884); v. past, notes; Bessela v. Stern, 2 C P. C., 263.

(5) As to the inferences to be drawn from abaconding, see R. v. Sorob Roy, 5 W. R., Cr., 23, 30 (1866). or attempted to conceal things which were or might have been used in committing it, are relevant-(1)

(i) The question is whether A was ravished.

The facts that, shortly after the alleged rape, she made a complaint relating to the crime, the circumstances under which and the terms in which, the complaint was made, are relevant.(2)

- The fact that, without making a complaint, she said that she had been ravished is not relevant as conduct under this section, though it may be relevant—
- as a dying declaration under section thirty-two, clause (one), or as corroborative evidence under section one hundred and fifty-seven.

(L) The question is, whether A was robbed

- The fact that, soon after the alleged robbery, he made a complaint relating to the offence, the circumstances under which, and the terms in which, the complaint was made are relevant (3)
- The fact that, he said he had been robbed, without making any complaint, is not relevant as conduct under this section, though it may be relevant.—
- as a dying declaration under section thirty two, clause (one), or as corroborative evidence under section one hundred and fifty-seven.

Principle -This section is an amplification of the preceding one. A motive is, strictly what its etymology indicates, that which mores or influences the mind. It has been said that an action without a motive would be an effect without a cause, and as, to take for example criminal cases, the particulars of external situation and conduct will in general correctly denote the motive for criminal action, the absence of all evidence of an inducing cause is reasonably regarded, where the fact is doubtful, as affording a strong presumption of unocence.(4) Preparation is also relevant, it being obviously important in the consideration of the question whether a man did a particular act or not to know whether he took any measures calculated to bring it about. Premeditated action must necessarily be preceded not only by impelling motives but by appropriate preparations.(5) The existence of a design or plan is usually employed evidentially to indicate the subsequent doing of the act planned or designed.(6) Preparation is an instance of previous conduct of the party influencing the fact in issue or relevant fact, but other conduct also whether of a party or of an agent to a party, whether previous or subsequent, and whether influencing or influenced by a fact in issue or relevant fact, is also admissible,

<sup>(1)</sup> Steph. Dig , Art. 7, illust (d) , see s 9, illust (c), rosf

(c), post (2) See R v. Lillyman, 2 Q B (1896), 167 C. C. R. R v. Osborne, 1 K B. (1905), 551

<sup>(3)</sup> R. v. MacDonald, 108 L. R., App. 2 (1872), the absence of the accused at the time when a complant as made against him, in cases coming within this Historiation, does not affect the relevancy of such complant and therefore does not exclude it, 1b. In England evidence of complant is now affect side longly in cases of rape and Indied offences against females; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 93 This Illustration shows that the rule is otherwise in this country. See R v Wink, 6 C. & P., 307; R v. Riddell, Starkie, Ev., 460, note; Rescee, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 22, 23, Steph. Dg., Art. 8; Physion, Ev., 3 del., 93 view's complant in Ecclesiastical Courts, see Lockwood v. Lockwood, 2 Curt, 281, and complaints as evidence of mental and bodily feeling, see R. v. Vincent, 9 C. & P., <sup>91;</sup> R v Conde, 10 Cox, 547, cf. s 14, post.

(4) See p. 17, note (9).

<sup>(5)</sup> Wills' Circ. Ev., 52; Norton, Ev., 109; Cunningham, Ev., 93, 94; Best, Ev., §§ 454—457; the case of Patch cited, 16, and in Steph. Introd., 99-108, Burrill, Circ Ev., 343, also 16, 546, where informative considerations are discussed.

<sup>(6)</sup> See Wigmore, Er. § 237. Design or plan should be distinguished from intent The latter in the substative law is a proposition in issue. Design or plan is evidence of intent, id. Design should also be distinguished from encotion or matre, though the same facts may be evidence of either, ib.

the conduct of a party being always extremely relevant for reason some of which appear in the Commentary to the section.(1) See Introduction, ante, and Notes, post.

8. 3 (" Fact.")

s. 3 (" Relevant. ')

s. 3 (" Fact in issue ") ss. 10 14, 17 39, 155, 157 (Statements relevant under other sections.)

ss. 17-31 (Oral and Documentary admission.)
s. 50 (Opinion on relationship expressed by conduct.)

Motive, Preparation and Conduct.—Steph. Dig., Art. 7; Wills' Creumstantial Evidence, passim. Best. Ev., §§ 91, 92, 452—467; Burall on Circumstantial Evidence, Arthur Wills on Circumstantial Evidence, Pullips' Famous Cases on Circumstantial Evidence, passim. Phipson, Ev. 3rd Ed., 109; Norton Ev., 107; Cummigham, Ev., 93; Taylor, Ev., §§ 104, 1204, 1205; Roscoc, N. P. Ev., 25, 67; Roscoc, Cr. Ev., 124h. G., G. E. 2-1, 8.5. Wills, Ev., 59 Wignore, Ev., § 117, 237, et. sey. Bottemats accompanying Acts—Steph. Dig., Arts. 7, 8, ib., Note, V; Best. Ev., § 495; Greenleaf, Ev., § 108, Wharton, Ev., §§ 258, 259; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 48; Starkie, Ev., 51—53, 87—80, 166—171; Taylor, Ev., §§ 553, 859; Roscoc, N. P. Ev., 51—33; Powell, Ev., 157; Roscoc, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 22. Statements affecting Conduct—Steph. Dig., Art. 8; Taylor, Ev., §§ 809—816; Best. Ev., §§ 574, 575; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 229; Norton, Ev., 166, Roscoc, N. P. Ev., 61—66; Powell, Ev., 277; Wharton, Ev., §§ 1336, 1155.

COMMENTARY.

Motive in the correct sense is the emotion supposed to have led to the act. Motive. The external fact which is sometimes styled the motive, is merely the possible preparaexisting cause of this "motive" and not identical with the motive itself; and conduct the evidentiary question is not whether that external fact is admissible as a motive, but whether it is admissible to show the probable existence of the emotion or motive. (2) Generally the voluntary acts of same persons have an interest of the conductive of t lready been observed that asonably regarded, where of innocence (1) If there of that motive is not in all cases necessary. Atrocrous crimes have been committed from very slight motives, [5]. The mere fact, however, of a party being so situated that an advantage would accrue to him from the commission of a crime, amounts to

<sup>(1)</sup> v. ante, pp. 117, 118 (2) Wigmore, Ev., § 117.

<sup>(3)</sup> See Wigmore, Ev., § 118 Norton, Ev., 107 In Palmer's cost (see Steph. Introd., 107-158 Rolle, B., in addressing the jury, said.—" Had the prisoner the opportunity of administering poison, that was one thing. Had he any motive to do so; that is another." Wills' Ore Ev., 220

<sup>(4)</sup> Wille Occumstantal Erdence, 156, 4th Ed., Bourille Core. Ev. 28.1, de op., Feet. Ev. 5, 45.3; see illusta (a), (b) The absence of all motive for a crune, when corroborated by undependent evidence of the pursoner's previous insanty, is not without weight: R. v. Skeith Manfel. 1W. R., Cr., 18 (1864), R. v. Sach Esy, SW. R., Cr., 28, 31 (1866); R. v. Bahar, Mt., 15 W. R., Cr., 26 (1871); D. Goz. v. R. (1907), 31 C., 666

[abonce of metrey] R. v. Jacchand Meadle, 7 W. R., Cr. 50 (1867), proof of motive not necessary, "In estimating probabilities, motives cannot in a general sense, be safely left out of the account, Where the motive is a pecuniary one, the wealth of the defender an on ammortant consideration," Per Sir Lawrence Peel, C. J., in R. v. Hiddge, 131 (1852). Evidence as to the motives with which a pressore resumts an offence should be direct evidence of the structest character: R. v. Zahv., 10 W. R., Cr. 11 (1983). The motives of parties can only be ascertained by inference drawn from facts. Tagle v. W. 1820a., 21 R. and Ad., 845, 857.

<sup>(5)</sup> Per Lord Campbell, C. J., in R. v. Palmer, cited in Wills' Circ. Ev., 44, R. v. Hedger, supra., 131.

nothing, or next to nothing, as a proof of his having committed it.(1) A letter written by the solicitors of a Company to the plantifi stating that the Company declined to continue the negotiations for a contract because of the defendant's threats, was held admissible (though not necessarily conclusive) evidence that the negotiations were in fact discontinued because of the defendant's threats.(2) Further, the existence of motives invasible to all except the person who is influenced by them must not be overlooked.(3) "It is the act (we may assume): the accused must have been present (assuming it was done by manual action) but there may be no evidence of preparation; or there may be no evidence of presence, yet the remaining facts may furnish ample proof. The failure to produce evidence of some appropriate motive may be a great weaknessin the whole body of proof, but it is not a fatal one as a matter of law. In other words there is no more necessity in the law of evidence to disc some possible one, than to feelings of affection for a deceased person would work against the doing of violence upon him and would thus be relevant to show the not-doing.(5)

The reasons which exist for the relevancy of evidence of preparation or design have been already given. Design may be proved by an utterance in which it is asserted, by conduct indicating the inward existence of design; by evidence of prior or subsequent existence of the design as indicating its existence at the time in question (6). Previous attempts to commit an offence are closely allied to preparations for the commission of it, and only differ in being carried onestep further and nearer to the criminal act, of which, however, like the former they fall short (7). Preparation and previous attempts(8) are levant fact; but other conduct of the party influencing the fact in issue or relevant fact; but other conduct also whether of a party or of an agent to a party, whether previous(9) or subsequent, (10) and whether influencing or influenced by a fact in issue or relevant fact is also made admissible under this section.

The second clause applies to the party's agents as well as the party himself. "Party" includes not only the plantifi and defendant in a civil sut, but parties in a criminal prosecution, as for instance, a prisoner charged

<sup>(1)</sup> Best, Ev., § 453.

<sup>(2)</sup> Skinner & Co. v. Shew & Co., L. R., 2 Ch. D. (1894), 581, <sup>(3)</sup> As to acts apparently motiveless, see R v. Haynes, 1 F. & F., 666, 667; R. v. Michael Stokes, 3 C & K, 185, 188, and next note.

<sup>(4)</sup> Wigmore, Er., § 118, etting Ponter v U S., 161 U.S., 396 (Amer.) [tho bearen of evidence suggesting a motive is a circumstance in favour of the accused, but proof of motive is never indepensable to conviction). State v. Rathbun, 74 Conn., $24 (Amer.) [the other endnece may be such as hown].

<sup>(5)</sup> Wigmore, Ev , § 118

<sup>(6)</sup> id., § 237, et seq, e.q, possession of tools, materials, preparations, journeys, experiments, enquiries, and the like

<sup>(7)</sup> Best, Ev., § 455; s. 14, post, illusts. (1), (9); as to the probative force of, and infinial tive eigenmentances connected with, preparation and previous attempt, see Best, Ev., §§ 456, 457.

(8) See illusts (c), (d), & s. 14, illusts. (i), (j)

<sup>(9)</sup> See illusts. (d), (e): as to previous and subsequent conduct, see Best, Ev., § 452

<sup>(10)</sup> See illusts. (e), (i),

with murder.(1) The conduct need not, to be relevant, be contemporaneous. Though concurrence of time must always be considered as material to show the connection, it is by no means essential.(2) "If such conduct influences or is influenced " means " if such conduct directly and immediately influences or is influenced."(3) The conduct of a party is extremely relevant.(4) The illustrations given are so many instances of natural presumptions which the Court or jury may draw. From preparations prior, or flight subsequent to a crime, may be inferred or presumed the guilt of the party against whom such conduct is proved.(5) Other presumptions from conduct arise in the case of flight, (6) silence, (7) evasive or false responsion (8) (v. post), possession of documents, or property connected with the offence, (9) change of demeanour in, or in the circumstances of, the accused (10) as his becoming suddenly rich, his squandering unusual sums of money and the like, attempts to stifle or evade justice or mislead enquiry(11) (as flight, keeping concealed, concealing things, obliteration of marks, subornation of evidence, bribery, collusion with officers and the like) and fear indicated by passive deportment, (12) as by trembling, stammering, starting, etc., or by a desire for secrecy,(13) e.g., as by disguising the person or choosing a spot supposed to be out of the view of others. The conduct or demeanour of a prisoner on being charged with the crime, or upon which such evidence is admitted, is contained in the maxim optimus interpres

(1) R. v. Abdullah, 7 A., 385, 399 (1885) (F. B), in which the terms of this section are discussed; see R. v. Arnall, 8 Cox. C. C. 439, 3 Russ. Cr. 489.

(2) Field, Ev., 94; Whitley Stokes, 856, Taylor, Ev., §§ 581, 587, Fauch v. G. W. R., 1 Q B. Co, Ev., §§ 581, 587, Fauch v. G. W. R., 1 Q B. Co, but see also R. v. Bednayfield, 14 Cox, 341. Apassis v. London Trum Co., 21 W. R. (Eng.), 199; R. v. Goddard, 15 Cox, 7; Lees v. March I. M. & R., 210; Thompson v. Trevanion, Skin.,

402, v. post
(3) R. v. Abdallah, supra, 395, 396; contra, pr Mamood, J., ib. 400

(4) B., 394; Balmakand v. Ohanssim, 22 C., 391, 404, 406 (1894); R. v. Ishri (1907); 29 A., 46; Dalip Singh v. Navol Kennor, P. C. (1908), 30 A., 258 [untention inferred from subsequent conduct of accused]; R. v. Hramun, S. W. R., C., 5 (1866). See ast conduct R. v.

Jora Haspi, 11 Bom H. C. R., 245 (1874), and Wigmore, Ev., sub voc.

(5) Norton, Ev. 107. (6) Illust (f), ante; abeconding is usually but slight evidence of guilt; R v. Korab Roy, 5 W. H. S. Cr. 28 (1866); R. v. Godrahan, 9 A., 623 (8) (1887); as to the obsolete maxim "fatter farinx guijadecum quipt" (in who these judgment, confesses his guilt), see Best, Ev., §§ 460—465; Norton, Ev., 110; see s. 9, illust (c), 905.

(7) v. post
(8) Norton, Ev., 106,107, and post; Best, Ev., 574; see Moriarty v. L. C. d. D. Ry., ante; for an example of inferences from conduct of the character abovementioned, see R. v. Sami, 13 M., 426, 432 (1890).

(9) Illust.(i), ante; see R. v. Courvoisser, Norton, Ev., 111; Taylor, Ev., $505; R. v. Cooper, I. Q. B. D., 15. Letters, etc., found in a man's house ofter his arrest are admissible in evidence if their previous existence has been proved: R. v. Amir Khan, 9 B. L. R., 36, 70, 71(1871)

(10) Best, Ev , § 459

(11) Arthur P. Will, Cire. Ev., 138; Best, Ev., $469; Norton, Ev., 110, 111, Illust.(c), (f), and:
R. v. Dondlam, in Steph. Introd., 75-81 and Wills' Cire Ev., 237, 241; destruction of marks, see R. v. Cook and R. v. Greeneers, cited in Wills'
Cire Ev., $8, 9, and Norton, Ev., 111.

(12) Bert. Ev., § 468. Trail of Eugene Arameted in Wills' Care Ev., 78. and Norton, Ev. 111, 112, R. v. Pider Ram, 3 W. R., Cv., 11 [1685] [conduct of accused before and after crime]; R. v. Echarce, 3 W. R., Cv., 23, 24 (1885) [conduct of pranner slace arrest, feigning insanity; general demeanour]

(13) Best, Ev , § 467 ; Norton, Ev , 113.

(14) R. v Smilhers, 5 C. & P., 332; R. v. Bartlett, 7 C. & P., 832; R. v. Mallory, 13 Q. B. D., 33; R. v. Tattershall, 2 Leach, 984; R. v. Phillips, 1 Lew. C. C., 105; R. v. Tate, C. C. A. (1908), 2 K. B., 680, at p 915; R. v. Cramp, 14 Cox.,

(15) 1 Philips and Arnold, 10th Ed., 405; Roscoe, Cr. Ev , 53, 12th Ed., 49.

rerumusus.(1) And so in the case of the Attorney-General v. Drummond.(2) Lord Chancellor Sugden said :- "Tell me what you have done under such a deed, and I will tell you what that deed means." As to the admissibility of judgments under this section, see case noted below(3) : and as to the admissibilty of opinion on relationship, expressed by conduct, see section 50. post. Instances of admission by the conduct or acts of a party to civil suits are of frequent occurrence. A party's admission by conduct as to the existence or non-existence of any material fact may always be proved against him,(4) and evidence on his part to explain or rebut such admissions is also receivable. (5) The plaintiff's title to sue, or the character in which the plaintiff sues, or in which the defendant is sued, is frequently admitted by the acts and conduct of the opposite party; and in some cases, the admission, though not strictly an estoppel, is practically conclusive Thus, if B has dealt with A as farmer of the post-horse duties, it is evidence in an action by A against B to prove that he is such farmer, and payment of money is an admission against the payer, that the receiver is the proper person to receive it.(6) So also suppression of documents is an admission that their contents are unfavourable to the party suppressing them (v. ante) When A brings an action against B to recover possession of land, he thereby admits B's possession of the land (7) Mere subscription of a paper, as witness, is not in itself proof of his knowledge of its contents.(8) When a landlord quietly suffers a tenant to expend money in

(1) Robert Watson & Co v Mohesh Noroin 24 W. B., 17 (1875), in which the question was whether a nottak conveyed an estate for life only or an estate of inheritance, their Lordships of the Pray Council said -" In order to determine this question, their Lordships must arrive as well as they can at the real intention of the parties, to be collected chiefly, no doubt from the term of the instrument itself, but to a certain extent al-a from the circumstances existing at the time of its execution, and further by the conduct of the parties since its execution" In this case the pottah was less than 20 years old at the time of the institution of the suit, from which it appears that in India the maxim is not restricted to ancient documents, s e . documents at least 30 years old (See Field, Dr., 94 . Taylor, Ev., $$ 1204, 1205; Roscoe, N P , Ev. 28) See also Girdhar Nagishel v. Ganpat Moroba, Il Bom H C R. 129 (1874); Nidhikrisna v. Nistarim, 13 Bom L. R. 418, 420 (1874) 6 c , 21 W R , 386 , Cheetun Lall v Chutterdharee Lall, 19 W R , 432 (1873) , Rance Radha Lall v. Gereedharee Sahoo, 20 W R. 243 (1873) [boundary dispute] Narsingh Dyal v. Ram Naram, 30 C., 883, 896 (1903), as to usage affecting contracts, sees 92, Prov 5, post and note , with respect to the course of dealing between the parties, when the meaning of a document is doubtful Rourne v Galliff, 11 C & F , 45 , [evidence of former transactions], Harrison v Barton, 30 L. J., Ch . 213; Forbes v. Watt, L. R . 2 H L Sc & D . 214 ; Royal Exchange Ass. Corp v. Tod, ST. L. R., 669 , Taylor, Lv., § 1198, but not when it is clear (Marshall v. Berridge, 10 Ch D , 223, 241 ; Iggulden v May, D Ves , 233), the sense in which both, but not one only of the parties have acted on it, as admissible in explanation, Phipson,

(8) Harding v. Crethorn, 1 Esp., 54.

Ev. 3rd Ed., 533 Eridence of previous dealings as admissible only for the purpose at explaining the terms used in a contract and not to impose on a party an obligation as to which the contract is short. If John Mohomed V. E. Spianer & Co., 2 B. L. R., 621 (1900) See generally as feet the admissibility of extrassis evidence to affect documents, the introduction to Chapter VI, pad (2) Dra. & Var., 338.

<sup>(2)</sup> Dru & War, 368
(3) The Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakhhars
Singh, 12 A 1, 12, 45 (1889), and notes to s
13, post

<sup>(4)</sup> Taylor, Ex , §§ 804, 806 and cases there cited The original draft of the Evidence Act contained the following section "A conduct of ant party to any proceeding upon the occasion of anything being done or said in his presence in relation to matters in question, and the things so said or done, are relevant facts when they render probable or improbable any relevant fact alleged or denied in respect of the person so conducting himself." The provisions of this proposed section are, however, incorporated in other parts of the present Act , see present section, a 11, post, s 114, illusts (g), (h), Field, Ev., 165, 166; to conduct of family showing recognition of family arrangement, see Bhubanesuart Devs v. Hartsaran Surma, 6 C . 724 (1881) making alterations and improvements in the premises, it is evidence of his consent to the alterations (1) And when a party is himself a defendant (whether in a civil or criminal proceeding), and is charged as bearing some particular character, the fact of his having acted in that character will, in all cases, be sufficient evidence, as an admission that he hears that character, without reference to his appointment being in writing. Thus upon an indictment against a letter-carrier for embezzlement, proof that he arted as such was held to be sufficient, without showing his appointment.(2) Delay in suing to enforce alleged rights may be construed as an admission of their non-existence. (3) Conversations that explain a man's conduct are admissible in evidence.(4) As to written and oral admissions, see s 17, post, and for further instances of admissions by conduct, see the next paragraph but one

<sup>(5)</sup> Melhush v. Collier, 15 Q B, 878; and 8-9, post, Powell, Ev. 277

<sup>(6)</sup> Roscoe, N P Ev. 67, Radford v. M'Intoch, 37 R. 632, Peacock v Harris, 10 East, 1013 James v Hoon, 2 Sin & St., 600; Taylor, Ev., p 567 note; Norton, Ev., p. 114; as to estoppel anama from the acts of a party, ace s 115, post. (7) Econford v. Hartson, L. R. 9, Ch., 116.

In English law such statements are said sometimes to be admissible as Biatement forming part of the vague and unsatisfactory term res qestar. The first Expla-ing and nation declares that mere statements as distinguished from acts do not constant explaining and the constant of the constant statements and distinguished from acts do not constant of the constant of th tute conduct. "It points to a case in which a person whose conduct is in dispute mixes up together actions and statements, and in such case those actions and statements may be proved as a whole. For instance, a person is seen running down a street in a wounded condition, and calling out the name of his assailant, and the circumstances under which the injuries were inflicted what the person says and what he does may be taken together and proved as a whole."(5) A statement may be admissible, not as standing alone, but as explaining conduct in reference to relevant facts. So it was held that the answers to his superior officer given by an accused person in explanation of an official irregularity could be proved against him if subsequently ascertained to he false (6) Conduct may be equivocal without statements explanatory and elucidatory of it. Statements accompanying acts are in fact part of the res gestee just as much as the acts themselves. They are often absolutely necessary to show the animus of the actor. They have been styled verbal acts. (7) Thus a payment by a debtor may be explained by his request to apply it to a certain debt. 1 . - 1-tors may be admissible shown by wha simply because in issue or relevant: the admissibility of such a statement depends upon the light it throws upon an act which is itself relevant. (9) The Evidence Act makes "those statements admissible, and those only, which are the essential complements of acts done or refused to be done, so that the act itself or the omission

<sup>(1)</sup> Doe v. Allen, 3 Taunt., 78, 80; Doe v. Pye, 1 Esp., 366; Neale v. Parkin, 1 Esp., 229, Stanley v. White, 14 East , 332

<sup>(2)</sup> Roscoe, Cr Ev . 7 . R. v. Barrett, 6 C. & P . 124; see s. 91, exception (1). proc, and notes thereto See Taylor, Ev., § 173

<sup>(3)</sup> Juggurnath v Synt Shah Mahomed, 14 B L. R., 386 (1874); Rajendro Nath v. Jogendro

Nath, 14 M. I. A , 67 (1871), a c , 15 W. R (P. C.).

<sup>(4)</sup> R v. Gandfield, 2 Co. C. C. 43.

<sup>(5)</sup> R. v Abdullah, supra, 395, 396, per Petheram, C. J. . " But the case would be very different if some passer-by stopped him and suggested some name, or saked some question regarding the transaction. If a person were found making such statements without any question first being asked, then his statements might be regarded as a part of his conduct. But when the statement as made merely in response to some question or objection it shows a state of things introduced, not by the fact in issue, but by the interposition " of something else" Ib, but see 15, 400, per Mahmood, J., and anie (8) R. v. Ganesh, 4 Bom. L. R., 284 (1902). (7) Norton, Ev., 106, Bateman v Basley, 5 T.

R., 512, Hude v. Palmer, 3 B & S., 657, 32 L. J , Q. B , 126; Bennienn v Cartwright, 5 B P &

<sup>(4)</sup> Bateman w Bailey, supra; Roscoe, N. P. Er . 52

<sup>(9)</sup> Right v. Dee d Tatham, 7 A. & E., 313, 361 : R v. Bliss, 1b , 550 : Hyde v. Palmer, supra : Roscoe, N. P. Ev , 53 . " when any facts are proper evidence upon an issue all oral or written declarations which can explore such facts, may be recerred in evidence;" Wright v. Tatham, supra, per Baron Park See Steph. Dig . p. 161.

to not requires a special significance as a ground for inference with respect to the issues in the case under trial."(1) It is not every declaration that accompanies and purports to explain a fact that will be received. e.a., a declaration that re agricocal (2) or is a mere expression of opinion (3) or is obviously concocted to serve a purpose :(4) in other words, the statements must really explain the acts (5) and the declaration must relate to, and can only be used to explain, the fact it accompanies and not previous or subsequent facts(6) unless the transaction be of a continuous nature (7) "It is sometimes said that the declaration and act must be by the same person.(8) But though such declarations are often the only ones material, the rule is by no means so strictly confined. It is an every-day practice in criminal cases to receive the declarations of the victim, as well as those of the assailant. So, in cases of conspiracy, riot, and the like, the declarations of all concerned in the common objectalthough not defendants, are admissible (9) It has, indeed, been held that unless some such common object be proved the declarations of participants. if neither parties nor agents, are inadmissible ;(10) but this limitation cannot be taken as invariable for the exclamations of mere by-standers may sometimes he both material and admissible evidence.(11) The declarations are no proof of the fact they accompany, the existence of the latter must be established independently."(12) As to the admissibility of declarations as evidence of mental and physical conditions, see the fourteenth section, post. Illustrations (i) and (l) are illustrations of statements accompanying and explaining the conduct of a person an offence against whom is being enquired into. Under these illustrations, the terms in which the complaint was made is relevant. (13) "A distinction is to be marked here between a bare statement of the fact of rane or roberry, and a complaint. The latter evidences conduct, the former has no such tendency. There may be sometimes a difficulty in discriminating between a statement and a complaint. It is conceived that the essential difference between the two is that the latter is made with a view to redress or punishment, and must be made to some one in authority—the police, for instance, or a parent, or someother person to whom the complaint was justly entitled to look for assistance and protection. The distinction is of importance : because while a complaint is always relevant, a statement not amounting to a complaint will only be relevant under particular circumstances, e.g., if it amounts to a dying declaration, or can be used as corroborative evidence.(14) The present section, so far as it admits a statement as included in the word "conduct," must be read in connection with the 25th and 26th sections, post,

<sup>(1)</sup> R v Rama Birapa, 3 B, 12, 17 (1878),

per West, J
(2) R. v. Blies, supra; R v Wainwright, 13

Cox, 171, Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 53 (3) Wright v. Tatham, supra

<sup>(4)</sup> Thompson v. Trevanion, supra, R v Abrahams, 2 C & K., 550; Brodie v Brodie, 44 L. T N S .307; Starkie, Ev., 89, and see American cases.

and authorities in Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 48
(5) See remarks in R. v. Rama Birapa, supra

<sup>(6)</sup> Hyde v Palmer, supra (7) Bennison v. Cartwright, supra, Rawson v

Haig, 2 Bing, 99
(8) Hone v. Malkin, 27 W. R (Eng.), 340;
40 L. T., 108

<sup>(9)</sup> R. v. Gordon, 21 How, St. Tr., 520; R. v. Hunt, 3 B. & Ald., 574; R. v. O'Connell, Arm & Tr. R. 1275, the present section deals only with statements by parties; the declarations mentioned in the text would be admissible under s. 10.

<sup>(10)</sup> R v Petcherini, 7 Cox, 79; Bruce v. Nicolupido, 11 Ex., 129

<sup>(11)</sup> See note (9), supra, ante; such evidence may be admissible under a 6, ante, see a 6, illust (a) and note, ante

<sup>(12)</sup> Phipson, Ev , 3rd Ed , 48 et 407

<sup>(13)</sup> As to the English rule on thus point, see Steph Dig, p 162, Taylor, Ev, 5881; Roscot, Cr Ev, 25; see R v Macdonald, supra; Norton, Ev, 114, Whitley Stokes, 827, R. v. Lillyman, 31 L. J., 333 (Juno 20th, 1896), 2 Q. B (1896), 167, R v. Obborne (1905), 1 K. B., 551.

<sup>(14)</sup> Norton. Ev., 114. See Wills' Ev., 11, for meaning of "complaint" with Crim. Pr. Code, 8 106, see Apurba Krishna Base v. R. (1907), 35 C., 141; R. v. Sham Lall (1889), 14 C. 707 and cannot admit a statement as evidence which would be shut out by those sections.(1)

In England it is now held that in prosecutions for rape and offences of a similar character, a statement in the nature of a complaint made by the prosecutrix to a third person not in the presence of the accused may be given in evidence provided such statement is shewn to have been made at the first opportunity which reasonably offered itself after the commission of the offence (2) It was formerly doubted whether the particulars of the complaint could be disclosed by the witnesses for the Crown, either as original or as conformatory evidence, but it is now settled that they may be so given in evidence in this class of cases, but only in this class, not as being evidence of the truth of the charge against the accused, but as evidence of the consistency of conduct of the prosecutrix with the story told by her in the witness box and as negativing consent on her part.(3) It was at one time thought that this evidence was only admissible in cases where non-consent was a material e'ement.(4) This however is not now the law.(5)

In the second Explanation "statement" includes documents addressed Statements to a person and shown to have come to his actual knowledge.(6) The state- affecting ments whether oral or written must affect the conduct; if they cannot be shown to have done so they are madmissible under this section. "Statements made in the presence of a party are admissible as the groundwork of his conduct. Thus, if a man, accused of a crime is silent, or flies, or is guilty of false or evasive responsion, his conduct is, coupled with the statements, in the nature of an admission, and therefore evidence against himself. His flight or false responsion would be equivocal per se, and might be unintelligible without our The state of the said . 45. ....

the statements themselves are only material as leading up to and explaining that (7) The mere fact that statements have been made in a party's presence or documents found in his possession, though it may render them admissible against him as original evidence-e.g., as showing knowledge or complicitywill afford no proof per se of the truth of their contents; the ground of reception for the latter purpose is that the party has, by his conduct or silence, admitted the accuracy of the assertions made."(8) In the case of statements made to, or in a party's presence, he may either reply to them or keep silent, (9) or his conduct may be otherwise affected by them.(10) When the statement in reply accompanies and explains an act other than the statement, it may be relevant under this section or the section relating to oral or documentary admissions; when it is unaccompanied by any act, it may be relevant under the latter sections. Such statements made in a party's presence and replied to, will be evidence against him of the facts stated to the extent that his answer

<sup>(1)</sup> R. v. Nana, 14 B , 260 (1889).

<sup>(2)</sup> R. v. Osborne (1905), 1 K. B , 551

<sup>(3)</sup> R. v. Osborne (1905), 1 K. B , 551; R. v. Lillyman (1896), 2 Q. B., 167; R v. Rowland (1898), 62 J. P., 459

<sup>(4)</sup> R v. Kangham (1902), 66 J. P., 393

<sup>(5)</sup> Taylor, 581.

<sup>(6)</sup> Illust (h), ante, Right v. Tatham, supra. (7) Norton, Ev. 106, 107. "It is a general rule that a statement made in the presence of the prisoner, and which he might have contradicted if untrue, is evidence against him," per Field, J.

in R v. Mallory, 15 Cox , 456, 459

<sup>(8)</sup> Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 220, and authorities cited at head of commentary. A party may, on similar grounds, be affected by the acquiescence of his agents or others for whose admissions he is responsible, D.; Haller v. Worman, 3 L. T. N S . 741 : Price v. Woodhouse, 3 Ex., 616; and are section, supro.

<sup>(9)</sup> Illust. (9), aute, Neile v. Jalle, 2 C. & K., 700. supra.

<sup>(10)</sup> Illusts (f), (A), ante.

directly or indirectly admits their truth.(1) But a party's silence will render statements made in his presence evidence against him of their truth.(2) only when, he is reasonably called on to reply to such statements. Care must be taken in the application of the maxim qui lacet consentire trideur (silence gives consent); for in many cases, but little reliance can be placed on this circumstance.(3) Admissions from silence or acquiescence frequently occur with receivence to unanswered letters or failure to object to an account. Here the question will also be whether there was any duty or necessity to answer or object. The rule has been stated by Bowen, L. J., to be that, "silence is not evidence of an admission, unless there are circumstances which render it more reasonably probable that a man would answer the charge made against him than that he would not."(4) A man is not bound to answer every officious letter written to him. Though unanswered a letter may be evidence of a demand.(3) The mere failure to answer or object will not generally imply an admission (6)

<sup>(1)</sup> v. post, s 17 et seq., Phupson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 220; Taylor, Ev., § 815, Jones v. Morrell, 1 C & K., 265, R v. John, 7 C. & P., 324, Child v. Grace, 2 C & P., 193, R v. Welsh, 3 F. & F., 275, and note to this case in 3 Russ. Cr., 483

<sup>(2)</sup> Neile v. Jalle, supra Hayslev v. Gymer.

1 A & E., 165. Price v Burra, 6 W R. (Eng.),

40, R. v. Cox, 1 F. & F., 90, R v. Mallory 15

Cox, 458.

(3) See Child v. Grace. 2 C & P., 193. per

Taddy Serit . " The not making an answer may under some circumstances be quite as strong as the making one : " per Best, C J., " Really it is most dangerous evidence. A man may say this is impertment in you and I will not answer your question" See also Moore v Smith, 14 Serg. & R , 393 ; Lucy v Mouflet, 5 H. & N , 229 , Wiedemann v Walpole (1891), 2 Q B, 534. Norton. Er. 113, "So statements made in parts a presence during a trial are not generally receivable against him merely on the ground that he did not deny them, for the regularity of judicial proceedings prevents the free interposition allowed in ordinary conversation. Helen v Andreus. 1 M. & M. 336 . R v Appleby, 2 Starkie, N P C. 33; R v. Turner, 1 Moo C C, 347, Child v Grace, supra. Even here, however, cases may occur in which the refusal of a party to repel a charge made in a Court of Justice: Simpson v Robinson, 12 Q B, 512, or to cross-examine or contradict a witness . R v. Coule, 7 Cox. 74 . or to reply to an affidavit Morgan v. Eigns, 3 C & F., 159, 203 , Freeman v Cox, 8 Ch. D , 148 , Hampden v. Wallis, 27 Ch D., 231, may afford a strong presumption that the imputations made against him are correct." In Sookram Misser v. W. Croudy, 19 W R , 283-285 (1873), Phear. J . said . " It is true that silence on the part of defendant during the trial of a case in regard to any matter brought against him in the course of the case might possibly be of some value afterwards prespective of the decree, as amounting to an admission on his part that that which was alleged and with regard to which he had kept silence was true." See Phipton, Ev. 3rd Ed., 220, and see American cases there (ted: and Cumingham's Ev. 95 and 98 So when a judge at a trial made a proposal as to the course of procedings in the presence of counted who raised in objection, it was held not open to coaned subsequently to question the propriety of the course to which he had impliedly given by assent; Morish's Murry, 13M & W, 82, and "if a cheat he present in Court and stand by and see his solicitor enter into terms of an agreement he is not at liberty afterwards to repudiste it."

Savinfor. 2 Heavy, 540, 2 Heavy, 540, 550, Amotte New National Co. National Co. (1998), 35 C. 1981.

<sup>(4)</sup> Wedenova v Wedpolt, suppa at p. 529, and see per Volkes, J. in Richards v Odlody, L. R. 7 C. P. at p. 131, the relation between the paties must be such that a reply might be reasonably experted Norton E. 113, Edonod v Toulis, 531 & G. 624. The only fair way of stating the rule of law is that in every case you must look at all the circumstances under which the letter was written, and you must deforming for yourself whether the circumstances are such that the refusal to reply alone amounts to an admission. Jee Kay, L. J., in Wiedmann v. Walpolts. 2 Q. B. (1991), 541, and see per Jeckins, C. J., in R. v. Ball Gangadhar 23 B. at p. 491 (1994).

<sup>(5)</sup> Norton Ev. ib Ser also Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 53

<sup>(6)</sup> See Fairlie v Denion, 3 C. & P., 103, "what is suit to a main face he is in some degree called on to contradict, the does not acquisees in. but it is too much to say that a man by omiting to answer a letter admit the truth of the statements it contains," per Lord Tenderden, or "that every paper's mass holks purporting to charge him with a debt or lability is endence agust him. "Dev. Fronks, 11 A. & E. 72 yer Lord Deumsa, and see Richards v. Odlatty, L. %, 7.0. P. 127; Weldensan v. Walpole, supra. U. %, 7.0. P. 127; Weldensan v. Walpole, supra.

But it is otherwise if the writer is entitled to an answer, so, in the case of a letter written by A to B, to which the position of the parties justifies A in expecting an answer .- as when the subject of it is a contract or negotiation before pending between them. - the silence of B may be important evidence against him.(1) Among merchants it has been held in certain old cases that an account rendered will be regarded as allowed if it is not objected to within a second or third post, or at least if it is kept for any length of time by the addressee without his making an objection, it becomes a stated account. It is said however in Taylor on Evidence to be doubtful how far these cases would be followed at the present day, and whether (apart from any special circumstances under which the account is sent in) any valid distinction can be drawn between accounts rendered between merchants and those between other persons, and that with regard to these latter it now appears to be clear that the mere fact that they have been kept by the addressee without remark is no evidence that he has acquiesced in their contents.(2) Letters and other papers found in a party's possession will occasionally in a civil suit be evidence against him, as raising an inference that he knows their contents and has acted upon them; and they are frequently received in criminal prosecutions. So, also, the opportunity of constant access to documents may sometimes, by raising a presumption that their contents are known, and of non-objection, afford ground for affecting parties with an implied admission of the truth or correctness of such contents (3) Thus the rules of a club or the proceedings of a society recorded by the proper officer and accessible to the members(4) or an account-book kept openly in a club-room(5) are evidence against the members. On similar grounds, books of account which have been kept between master and servant, tradesman and shopman, banker and customer or co-partners,(6) will occasionally be admitted as evidence even in favour of the party by whom they have been written, provided that the opposite party has had ample opportunities for testing from time to time the accuracy of the entries.(7)

9. Facts necessary to explain or introduce a fact in issue Fact relevant fact, or which support or rebut an inference rish or each suggested by a fact in issue or relevant fact, or which establish quastion the identity(8) of any thing or person whose identity is relevant, or fix the time or place at which any fact in issue or relevant fact happened, or which show the relation of parties by whom any such fact was transacted, are relevant in so far as they are necessary for that purpose.

<sup>(1)</sup> Lucy v Moufet, 5 H. & N. 229; Edwards v Toulls, supra, Ruhardson v Dunn, 2 Q B. 218, Grakill v Slene, 14 Q B. 664, Fairlie v. Denton, supra; Freeman v Cox, supra, Hampelen

v Wallis, supra
[2] Taylor, Ev , § 810, and cases there cited

<sup>(3)</sup> Taylor, Ev., § 812 See notes to a 14, pool (4) Rappett v. Musprave, 2 C. & P., 556, Alderson v. Clay, 1 Starkie, 405; Aspitel v. Sercombe, 5 Ex., 147.

<sup>(5)</sup> Il time v. Adamson, I Philippe. Ev. 239 (6) See Landley, Partnership, 536, 5th Ed., and cases there cited; and note to s. 18, post.

<sup>(7)</sup> Taylor, Ev., § 812, and cases there cited, as to books of a Company see Lindley, Company Law, 312; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 222, 223, 328.

and books of Corporations, Taylor, Ev., §§ 1781 -1783; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 222, 223, 328; Roscoe, N. P Ev., 123, 214-215; Grant on Corporations, 317-319; and note to a 35, post (4) See as to identity, Introduction to # 45-51, post (opinion evidence). Wigmore, Ev , § 410 et erg Witnesses may state their behef as to the identity of persons present in Court or not and may also identify absent persons by photographs produced and proved to be theirs [Phipson, Ev. 3rd Ed., 353; Frith v. Frith, L. R. P. D. (1896), p. 74, note to s. 35, post. Introduction to sa. 45-50, post; Rogers Expert Testimony, § 1401 The same rule applies to identification of things (ab) It is well settled that for certain purposes photographs may be received in evidence. Thus whenever it is important that the locus in quo

Illustrations.

- (a) The question is, whether a given document is the will of A.
  - The state of A's property and of his family at the date of the alleged will may be relevant facts (1)
- (b) A sues B for a libel imputing disgraceful conduct to A; B affirms that the matter alleged to be libellous is true.
  - Heged to be libelious is true.
    The position and relation of the parties at the time when the libel was published may be relevant facts as introductory to the facts in issue.
    - The particulars of a dispute between A and B about a matter unconnected with the alleged libel are irrelevant though the fact that there was a dispute may be relevant if it affected the relations between A and B.(2)
  - (c) A is accused of a crime
    - The fact that, soon after the commission of the crime. A absonded from his house, is relevant, under section 8, as conduct sub-equent to, and affected by, facts in same.
    - The fact that at the time when he left home, he had sudden and urgent business at the place to which he went, is relevant, as tending to explain the fact that he left home suddenly.
    - The details of the business on which he left are not relevant, except in so far as they are necessary to show that the business was sudden and urgent.(3)
  - (d) A sues B for inducing C to break a contract of service made by him with A. C, on leaving A's service, says to A 'I am leaving you because B has made me a
    - on leaving A service, says to A 'I am leaving you because B has made me a better offer. This statement is a relevant fact as explanatory of C's conduct which is relevant as a fact in issue (4) should be deembed to the jury, it is competent to introduce in evidence a photographic view of it. So also in an action to recover damages for assault committed with a raw inde a plauntif was allowed to introduce a ferrotype of his back taken three days after the injury, the person taking the same shrung testified that it was a correct representation. Ropew's op it Harris' Law of Identification, § 12, 137-137, 335, 509, 612.

As to photographic copies of writings for purpose of comparison, see a 73, and

(1) As explanatory or introductory Also when the questions will or no will, such fact may contradict or support the terms of the alleged will whence forgery might be presumed or negatived. Such facts would then "rebut or support an interance suggested by a fact in insue" (Nerton, Ev., 116). It is to be observed that the farius and not the construction of the will is here the matter in since. As to evidence of an rounding eigennatances in aid of construction, see Introduction to Chap VI. Pace Introduction to Chap VI. Pace.

(2) The object with which what would otherwise be collateral matter is receivable here, is to show the melice or names of the libeller, though to go into the full details of a quarrel would be too rimote and would waste too much time. It is sufficient to show that there was a quarrel, Norton, Ere, 117. Simpson v. Robinson, 12 Q. R., 311; eec. 14, illust, (c), post

(3) The presumption or 'inference' arising from the act of absconding is thus 'rebutted' The fact of absconding is in itself equivocal It may be the result of guilty knowledge or conscience, or it may be perfectly innocent. Anything, therefore, that the party says at the time of the act is receivable as explanatory of a rele. vant fact. It would also be receivable as part of the res gester and as a declaration accompanying an act The question frequently arises in bankruptcy, when it is necessary to decide whether leaving the house is an act of bankruptcy or not In order to prove the intent with which the baukrupt departed from his dwelling-house evidence of what he said is admissible as forming part of the res gester Norton, Ev., 118; Roscoe, N. P Ev , 52 , Bateman , Bailey, 5 T. R , 512; Ambrose v Clendon, Ca t , Hardw., 267 : Rouch v. G. H Ry Co , 1 Q B , 51 , Smith v Cramer, 1 N C, 585 The details just as in illust (b) are not admissible generally except as corroborating the allegation of the suddenness and urgency of the emergency which caused the departure Declarations made or letters written during absence from home, are admissible as original evidence. since the departure and absence are regarded as one continuing act Taylor, Ev , §§ 588, 589

(4) v. post; Hadley v. Carter, 8 New Hamp R., 40. Brukowsky v Thacker, Spank and others, 6 B L R, 107.

- (e) A, accused of theft, is seen to give the stolen property to B, who is seen to give it to A's wife. B says, as he delivers it, 'A says you are to hide this.' B's statement is relevant as explanatory of a fact which is part of the transaction.(1)
  - (f) A is tried for a riot, and is proved to have marched at the head of a mob.

The cries of the mob are relevant, as explanatory of the nature of the transaction.(2)

Principle.—As the 7th and 8th sections provide generally for the admis- Explana-sion of facts causative of a fact relevant or in 1880e, the present section may tory facts. be said generally to provide for facts explanatory of any such fact. (3) There are many incidents which, though they may not strictly constitute a fact in issue, may yet be regarded as forming a part of it, in the sense that they accompany and tend to explain the main fact, such as identity, (4) names, dates, places, the description, circumstances and relations of the parties and other explanatory and introductory facts of a like nature (5) The particulars receivable will necessarily vary with each individual case; it is not all the incidents of a transaction that may be proved; for the narrative might be run down into purely irrelevant and unnecessary detail.(6) By the answers to some of such questions, if sufficiently particular for the purpose the fact is individualized. (7) See also Commentary, post

s. 3 (" Fact.")

a. 3 (" Fact in 188ue.")

s. 11 (Rebuttal of inference etc.) s. 3 (" Relevant.")

Steph. Dig., Art. 9; Steph. Introd.; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 48; Cunningham, Ev., 98; Norton, Ev., 115; Wills' Ev., 47; Wigmore, Ev., §§ 410-416.

COMMENTARY.

The seventh section, ante, provides for evidence of the state of things under which relevant facts or facts in issue happened, and the 14th and 15th sections, post, for evidence of similar facts, closely connected with the main fact, and explanatory of it. Evidence in support, and particularly in rebuttal, of inferences is of a similar explanatory character.(8) The eleventh section is very like the present one as to rebutting an inference and forms an instance of sections overtopping one another (9) All the abovementioned facts qualify, explain, or complete the main fact in some material particular. A statement which can be shown to be explanatory under this section may be admissible irrespective of whether the person against whom it is given, heard it, or was present when it was made. (10) But it is necessary to distinguish the purpose for which it is admissible. "It is presumed that the statements made by C

<sup>(1)</sup> v. post. (2) This illustration is founded on the case of R v Lord George Gordon, 21 How St. Tr , 514. 529 "In the case put, the cries would be made in the presence of the leader, though they were the cries of third parties, not of himself; his silence would be equivalent to an admission that he accepted and acquiesced in those eries as explanatory of the common objects of himself as well as of those he led Under the effect of the next section such cries would be evidence sgainst the accused, even if he was not present, upon proof of a conspiracy between himself and the noters, joint and common, for the preparation of a wrongful act " Norton, Ev , 119 In R. v. Hunt, 3 B. & Ald , 566, 576, evidence given of banners and inscriptions was held to be properly admissible to show the general character and intention of an assembly (3) Cunningham, Ev., 98 (4) See Norton, Ev., 119; R. v. Rickman, 2

East , P. C., 1035; R. v. Rooney, 7 C & P., 517; R v. Fursey, 6 C. & P., 81; Wills' Ev., 47 (5) See R. v. Amir Khan, 9 B L. R., 36, 50, <sup>(6)</sup> Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 48; the facts are relevant, "in so far as they are necessary for that purpose, " a. 8, supra.

<sup>(7)</sup> Bentham cited in Norton, Ev., 44

<sup>(8)</sup> Illust (c) (9) Norton, Ev., 115, and Introduction age.

<sup>(10)</sup> See Busta (al. (ch.

in the one case, and B in the other [illusts. (d), (c), antel are only to be receivable as evidence that such statements were made, as declarations accompanying and explaining an act, not of the truth of them as affecting B or A respectively. Without some proof of authority given by the parties to be affected, to those making the statements, it is clear that a very dangerous innovation is introduced, whereby persons may suffer in life, person, or property by statements put into their mouths behind their backs; a principle which the law of evidence has hitherto entirely eschewed."(1) Identity may be thought of as a quality of a person or thing. The essential assumption is that two persons or things are thought of as existing and that the one is alleged because of common features to be the same as the other. The process of inference operates by comparing common marks found to exist in the two supposed separate objects of thought with reference to the possibility of their being the. same. It follows that its force depends on the necessariness of the association between the mark, and a single object. Where a circumstance, feature or mark may commonly be found associated with a large number of objects, the presence of the feature or mark in two supposed objects is little indication of their identity because on the general principle of relevancy the other conceivable hypotheses are so numerous, ie, the objects that possess that mark are numerous, and therefore two of them possessing it may well be different. But where the objects possessing the mark are only one or a few, and the mark is found in two supposed instances the chances of the two being different are nil or are comparatively small For, simplicity's sake the evidential circumstances may thus be spoken of as a mark. But in practice it rarely occurs that the evidential mark is a single circumstance. It is by adding circumstance to circumstance that we obtain a composite feature or mark which, as a whole, cannot be supposed to be associated with more than a single object (2) In the undermentioned case(3) one of the questions in issue as to the pedigree of a one MS belonging to of a rubkar (or Magishe suit, was tendered of BS. It was held that the rublar was admissible in evidence under the provisions of this section. Where one of the main questions for determination in a case was whether a document impugned was or was not presented before the Registrar by one NS, a comparison of the thumb-impression of the person who presented the document with that of NS, was held to be admissible under this section if the similarity of those impressions could establish the identity of that person with NS (4) It often happens that a place or a time is marked significantly by an utterance there or then occurring, so that the identification of it may alone be made, or not be made, by permitting the various witnesses to mention the utterance as an identifying mark. This utterance not being used as an assertion to prove any fact asserted therein is not obnoxious to the hearsay rule and may therefore be proved like any other identifying mark. The utterance cannot, however, he used as having any assertive value From this use of identifying utterances the following superficially similar uses should be distinguished (a) mentioning a third person's utterance as a reason for observing a particular fact, (b) mentioning it as a reason for recollecting a particular fact; (c) using <sup>(1)</sup> Norton, Ev., 118, 119, per contra, Cunnungham, Ev. 98-99; it will be seen from the Matrations themselves that the statement in fillust. (d) is relevant as explanatory of C'a conduct and in (e) of "a fact which is part of the transrelum."

(2) Sigmore's Evidence, 3 411 Circumstances identifying persons are corporeal marks, voice, mental recubarities, clothing, weapons, name, residence and other circumstances of personal history, ib., § 413

<sup>(3)</sup> Radhan Singh v Kanay, Dichit, 18 A, 95

<sup>(4)</sup> R v Falir Mahomed, 1 C. W. N., 33, 34 (1896), see as to identity, and post, s. 11, and Introductions to ss 45-51.

one's own prior utterances of a fact to corroborate one's present testimony and repel the suggestion of recent contrivance.(1)

10. Where there is reasonable ground to believe that two Things said or more persons have conspired together to commit an offence complication or an actionable wrong, anything said, done, or written by any tocommon design. one of such persons in reference to their common intention, after the time when such intention was first entertained by any one of them, is a relevant fact as against each of the persons believed to be so conspiring, as well for the purpose of proving the existence of the conspiracy as for the purpose of showing that any such person was a party to it.

Illustration.

Reasonable ground exists for believing that A has joined in a conspiracy to wage war against the Oucen.

The facts that B procured arms in Europe for the purpose of the conspiracy, C collected money in Calcutta for a like object, D persuaded persons to join the conspiracy in Bombay, E published writings advocating the object in view at Agra, and F transmitted from Delhi to G, at Kabul, the money which C had collected at Calcutta, and the contents of a letter written by H, giving an account of the conspiracy, are each relevant, both to prove the existence of the conspiracy, and to prove A's complicity in it, although he may have been ignorant of all of them, and although the persons by whom they were done were strangers to him, and although they may have taken place before he joined the conspiracy or after he left it.

Principle,-" - 1- which - - + that a man shall be sharesable with the gate and declarations o A conspiracy mal the acts of every other conspirator done in pursuance(3) of the conspiracy. Consequently the admissions of a co-conspirator may be used to affect the proof against the others on the same conditions as his acts when used to create their legal hability. The inclusion of tort-feasors enacts the same rule in its application to civil liability for torts.(4) The tests therefore are the same whether that which is offered is the act or the admission of the co-conspirator or joint tort-feasor : in other words the question is one of substantive law and its solution is not to be sought in any principle of evidence.(5) The principle is substantially the same as that which regulates the relation of agent and principal. When various persons conspire to commit an offence or actionable wrong (e.g., co-trespassers or other tort-feasors) each makes the rest his agents to carry the plan into execution. The acts done by any one in reference to the common intention (v. post) is considered to be the act of all. These acts are themselves evidence of the corpus delicts, the conspiracy to be established; they are relevant "for the purpose of proving the conspiracy," as well as the part which each conspirator took in it.(6)

<sup>(1)</sup> Wigmore, Ev., § 416

<sup>(2)</sup> Prof Thayer in American Law Review, XV. 80 (3) See, however, as to this, notes, post.

<sup>(4)</sup> See R. v Hardwicke, 11 East., 578, 585. (5) Wigmore, Ev. § 1079.

<sup>(6)</sup> Steph. Dig , Note 111, p. 160; Norton.

Ev , 121; Taylor, Ev., § 590, 3 Russ. Cr , 143, 144; Best, Ev., § 508; E. v. Amir Khan, 9 B L. R., 36 (1871) , 8 c., 17 W. R. Cr., 15; R. v. Amiruddin, 9 B. L. R., 36 (1871); s. c., 15 W. R. Cr. 25, and cases there and in the text-books (suzza) cited.

in the one case, and B in the other fillusts. (d), (e), antel are only to be receivable as evidence that such statements were made, as declarations accompanying and explaining an act, not of the truth of them as affecting B or A respectively. Without some proof of authority given by the parties to be affected, to those making the statements, it is clear that a very dangerous innovation is introduced, whereby persons may suffer in life, person, or property by statements put into their mouths behind their backs, a principle which the law of evidence has hitherto entirely e-chewed."(1) Identity may he thought of as a quality of a person or thing. The essential assumption is that two versons or things are thought of as existing and that the one is alleged because of common features to be the same as the other The process of inferonce operates by comparing common marks found to exist in the two supposed separate objects of thought with reference to the possibility of their being the. same. It follows that its force depends on the necessariness of the association between the mark, and a single object. Where a circumstance, feature of mark may commonly be found associated with a large number of objects, the presence of the feature or mark in two supposed objects is little indication of their identity because on the general principle of relevancy the other conceivable hypotheses are so numerous ie, the objects that possess that mark are numerous, and therefore two of them possessing it may well be different. But where the objects possessing the mark are only one or a few, and the mark is found in two supposed instances the chance, of the two being different are mil or are comparatively small. For, simplicity's sake the evidential circumstances may thus be spoken of as a mark. But in practice it rarely occurs that the evidential mark is a single circumstance. It is by adding circumstance to circumstance that we obtain a composite feature or mark which, as a whole, cannot be supposed to be associated with more than a single object.(2) In the undermentioned case(3) one of the questions in issue as to the pedigree of a certain family being whether one GS was son of BS or of one MS belonging to s totally different family from that of BS, an attested copy of a rublar for Magistrate's judgment) in some proceedings long anterior to the suit, was tendered in evidence in which rublar GS was described as the son of BS. It was held that the rubbar was admissible in evidence under the provisions of this section. Where one of the main questions for determination in a case was whether a document impugned was or was not presented before the Registrar by one NS, a comparison of the thumb-impression of the person who presented the document with that of NS, was held to be admissible under this section if the similarity of those impressions could establish the identity of that person with NS.(4) It often happens that a place or a time is marked significantly by an atterance there or then occurring, so that the identification of it may alone be made, or not be made, by permitting the various witnesses to mention the utterance as an identifying mark. This utterance not being used as an assertion to prove any fact asserted therein is not obnoxious to the hearsay rule and may therefore be proved like any other identifying mark. The utterance cannot, however, be used as having any assertive value From this use of identifying utterances the following superficially similar uses should be distinguished (a) mentioning a third person's utterance as a reason for observing a particular fact. (b) mentioning it as a reason for recollecting a particular fact; (c) using

<sup>(1)</sup> Norton, Er. 118, 119; per contra, Cunningham, Er. 95-99, it will be seen from the filtutrations themselves that the statement in illust. (d) is relevant as explanatory of Ce conduct and in (e) of "a fact which is part of the transcritom."

<sup>(2)</sup> Wigmore's Lysience, § 411 Circumstances identifying persons are corpored marks, voice, mental pseuhardus, clothing, weapons, name, tesidence and other circumstances of personal history, ib. 4 413

<sup>(3)</sup> Radhan Sengh . Kanaya Dichel, 18 A., 86

<sup>(4)</sup> E v. Falir Mahamed, I.C. W. N. 33, 34 (1896); see as to identity, and part, a 11, and Introductions to as 45-51

When fact

conspired together to commit an offence or actionable wrong. There must have been some pre-concert A conspiracy within the terms of this section contemplates something more than the joint action of two or more persons to commit an offence. If that were not so, the section would be applicable to any offence committed by two or more persons jointly with deliberation, and this would in port into a trial a mass of hears we evidence, which the accused persons would find it impossible to meet (1) (b) After the existence of a conspiracy has been established, the particular defendant must be proved to have been parties to it (2) (c) After these two facts have been proved the acts and declarations of other conspirators in reference to their common intention may in all cases be given in evidence against the defendants; and under the present section letters written and declarations made by any of the conpirators which are not part of the res gester of the conspiracy and are in the nature of mere admissions are admissible as against the rest.(3) "It is necessary to prove the existence of a conspiracy, and to connect the prisoner with it in the first instance, when you seek to give in evidence against him the declaration of a conspirator, and having done so, you are then at liberty to give in evidence against the prisoner acts done by any of the parties, whom you have connected with the conspiracy; but when a party's own declarations are to be given in evidence, such preliminary proof is not requisite, and you may, as in any other offence, prove the whole case against him by his own admission."(4) A conspiracy need not be established by proof which actually brings the parties together but may be shown, like any other fact, by circumstantial evidence.(5)

- 11. Facts not otherwise relevant are relevant-
- (1) If they are inconsistent with any fact in issue or relevant with the relevant because (2) If by themselves or in connection with other facts they

(2) It by themselves or in connection with other facts they make the existence or non-existence of any fact in issue or relevant fact highly probable or improbable.

Illustrations.

(a) The question is, whether A committed a crime at Calcutta on a certain day.

The fact that, on that day, A was at Lahore, is relevant.(6) be madmissible; and although the person making the assertion confessed that he was party to it, this on principle fully established would not make the assertion evidence of the fact against trangers." B., see also 3 Russ. Cr. 144.

- (1) Nogradiala Dales v. R., 4 C. W. N., 528, 520 (1900). As to relicance of conspiracy, see Schralmanna Approv. R., 25 C., 797 (1901); F. v. Turnad Reddi, 24 M., 547 (1901); Templeton v. Lurne, 25 B., 250 (1900), [conspiracy to obtain conviction of accused person; and as to what amongs to evidence of abetiment of conspiracy, see Red Bundar v. R., 25 C., 737 (1901).
- (2) Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 374.
- (3) v. aupra, and Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 359; and as to proof, generally, 55., 401-403; 12th Ed., 371-375; The Quern's Case, 28. & B., 310; Norton, Ev., 120; 3 Russ. Cr., 144, and cases there ented; but are also a 136, post.
- (4) Per Pennefather, C. J., in R. v. McKenna.

- Ir. Cire. Rep., 491. cited in Taylor, Ev. p. 225.

  (5) Taylor, Ev., 5 201; 3 Reso. Cr. 148; the evidence may be entirely currountaintial and the evidence of the computery collected from collatered currountainers; R. v. Parma, 1 W. R., 392; Rosco, Cv. Ev., 12th Ed., 573—574. "It is perfectly tree that the dark covertness of crime cannot often be laid open, that computees like other crimes must be generally supported by circumstantial proof." per Er. Lawrence Peel, C. J., on R. v. Helyrs, p. 129 (1829)
- (6) An allo the relevancy of which is it as entire monaistency with the hypothesis that the accused committed the crime. Norton Er., 126, eeg. R., V.Sakhrean Markady, Il Born. H. C. E., 166 (1874); and as 103, illust. (c), post; see observations on an allois as a defence in E. Porchados, Il Born. H. C. E., 97 (1897); Wills, Cir. Er., 167.

The fact that, near the time when the crime was committed, A was at a distance from the place where it was committed, which would render it highly improbable, though not impossible, that he committed it, is relevant.(1)

(b) The question is, whether A committed a crime.

The circumstances are such that the crime must have been committed either by A, B, C or D. Every fact which shows that the crime could have been committed by no one else, and that it was not committed by either B, C or D, is relavant.(2)

Principle.—The object of a trial being the establishment or disproof by evidence of a particular claim or charge, it is obvious that any fact which either disproves or rends to disprove or tends to prove that claim or charge is relevant.

s 3 (" Fact "

156

s 13 (Transaction inconsistent with existence

s. 3 (" Reletant.")

of right or custom )
s. 3 (" Fact in issue.")

Steph. Dig., Art. 3, Steph. Introd., 180, 161, Norton, Ev. 124, Whitley Stokes, II, 819; Cumungham, Ev., 102; Taylor, Ev., § 322—325, Wylls' Circ., Ev., passim; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 85, 80, 931, 934; Wygmore, Ev., § 135—144.

COMMENTARY.

Inconsistency probability

While the seventh section defines the meaning of the term 'relevancy' in quasi-scientific language, the present section contains a statement in popular language of what in the former section is attempted to be stated in scientific language. The practical effect of these two sections is to make every relevant fact admissible as evidence (3). It has been said that the terms of this section, which are very extensive, (4) must be read subject to the restrictive operation of other sections in the Act (5) that it may possibly be argued that the effect of the second paragraph of this section would be to admit proof of facts of the irrelevant character mentioned in the lutroduction (ante) but that this was not the intention of the section, is shown by the special provisions in the following part of this Chapter as to the particular exceptions which exist to the general full is which exclude as irrelevant the four classes of evidence already mentioned in the introduction, and is also shown by indications in other portions of the Act (6). The sort of facts which the section was intended to

ŧ

<sup>(1)</sup> This example is of a fact rendering the hypothetical fact on the other side not positively impossible, but highly improbable as often bappens, when the question is, whether there was time for the accused to have gone from the place where he says he was to the scene of the crime and returned again.

<sup>(2)</sup> This is a disjunctive hypothetical sallogism —X is either A or R or C, but it is not B or C; therefore it is A, see Whitley Stokes, 801, note (3); Cunningham, Ev. 103, Norton, Ev., 124

<sup>(3)</sup> Markby, Ev. 17, 18

<sup>(4) &</sup>quot;Some degree of latitude was designedly left in the wording of the section (in compliance with a suggestion from the Makras Government on account of the variety of matters to which it might apply:" Steph, Introd., 160, 161

<sup>(5) &</sup>quot;The meaning of the section would have been more fully expressed, at words to the following wifet had been added to it. "No statement shall be regarded as rendering the matter stated hoping probable within the meaning of this section unless it is declared to be a release that fact under some other section of this Act." 15, 161, see observations on this section. Withing Stokes, 819 It is to be observed, however, that the section asys. "Section" you delivers releasing to, under so, 6-10, 12, and subsequent sections) are retivant, etc.

<sup>(6)</sup> Steph. Introd., 160. "It may, for instance, to said: A (out-called as a witners) was heard to declare that he had seen B commt accume. This makes it highly probable that B dd commt that crime. Therefore At a declaration is relevant Lat under a II, et. [2]. This was not the intention of the section, as is shown by the callorate provisions contained in the following.

include, are facts which either exclude or imply, more or less distinctly, the existence of the facts sought to be proved.(1) In the word of West, J., this section " is, no doubt, expressed in terms so extensive that any fact which can, by a chain of ratiocination be brought into connexion with another, so as to have a bearing upon a point in issue may possibly be held to be relevant within its meaning. But the connexions of human affairs are so infinitely various. and so far-reaching, that thus to take the section in its widest admissible sense. would be to complicate every trial with a mass of collateral inquiries limited only by the patience and the means of the parties. One of the objects of a law of evidence, is to restrict the investigations made by Courts within the bounds prescribed by general convenience, and this object would be completely frustrated by the admission on all occasions, of every circumstance on either side, having some remote and conjectural probative force, the precise amount of which might itself be ascertainable only by a long trial and a determination of fresh collateral issues, growing up in endless succession, as the enquiry proceeded. That such an extensive meaning was not in the mind of the Legislature, seems to be shown by several indications in the Act itself. The illustrations to the eleventh section do not go beyond familiar cases in the English law of evidence."(2) All evidence which would be held to be admissible by English law would be properly admitted under this section. (3) There must always be room for the exercise of discretion when the relevancy of testimony rests upon its effect towards making the affirmative or negative of a proposition "highly probable," and with any reasonable use of the discretion, the Court ought not to interfere.(4) In order that a collateral fact may be admussible as relevant under the eleventh section, the requirements of the law are(a) that the collateral fact must itself be established by normally conclusive evidence and (b) that it must, when established, afford a reasonable presumption or inference as to the matter in dispute.(5)

Any fact material to the issue which has been proved by the one side may be disproved by the other, whether the contradiction is complete, i.e., inconsistent with a relevant fact under the first clause of this section, or such as only to render the existence of the alleged fact highly improbable under the secord clause. (6) There are five common cases of the argument of inconsistency (a) the absence of the person charged in another place (alib); (b) the absence of a husband (non-access), a variety of the preceding; (c) the survival of any alleged deceased person after the supposed time of death, and (d) the self-infliction of the harm alleged. Thus the theory of an alib is that the fact of presence elsewhere is essentially monsistent with presence at the place and time alleged and there fore with personal participation in the act. (7) So to disprove a rape, evidence is admissible that the prisoner had for many years been afflicted with a rupture which rendered sexual intercourse impossible. (8) When the question was whether a deed was forged or not, it was held admis-

part of the Chapter II (ss. 12—39) as to particular classes of statements, which are regarded as relevant facts, either because the circumstances under which they are node invest them with importance, or because no better evidence can be got." if <sup>(1)</sup> Ib "the words "highly probable" point out that the connection between the facts in mane and the collateral facts acquite to be proved must be so mediate as to render the co-existence of the two highly probable," per Mitter, J. R. r. M. J. jurpony Moddiars, 6 C, 655, 662 [1881]. "If an improperly wide scope be given to the section, the latter might seem to contain in itself.

and to supersede all the other provisions of the Act as to relevancy. Cunningham, Ev., 103 (2) R. v. Parbhidas, 11 Bom. H. C. R., 91, 91 (1874), R. v. Vajiram, 16 B., 414, 425 (1892), see note to s. 14, post

R. v. Vajiram, supra, 430, per Telang, J.
 R. v. Parbhudas, supra, 91, per West, J.
 Bibi Khaver v. Bibi Bulha, 6 Bom 1, 1983 (1994).

<sup>(6)</sup> S. 9 is very similar to the present serves to rebutting an inference; Norton, Ev., 11 v. ante.

<sup>(7)</sup> Wigmore, Ev., §§ 135 et . (8) 1 Hale, P. C., 835; Best, Ev., § (.)

sible to prove that the titles recited in the deed as those of the then reigning sovereign were not in fact then used by that sovereign.(1) The question being whether A lent money to B, evidence of the poverty of A about the time of the alleged loan is admissible as tending to disprove it.(2) Again, under this latter clause of the section, facts may be put in evidence in corroboration of other relevant facts, if they render them highly probable.(3) So where two or more persons have perished by a common calamity such as shipwreck, and the question is whether A survived B, the law of England raises no presumption (ither of survivorship or contemporaneous death; but if any circumstances connected with the death of either party can be proved, the whole question of survivorship may be dealt with as one of fact, and the comparative strength, or skill, or energy of the two sufferers may be taken into account in estimating the probabilities of the case. (4) The question being, whether A is the child of B, evidence of the resemblance, or want of resemblance, of A to B is admissible (5) So also circumstances may be proved which render the fact of payment of a debt probable, as, for instance, the settlement of accounts subsequent to the accruing of the debt, in which no mention is made of it (6) Where defendants Nos 2 and 4 sold a jote to defendant No. I, which they obtained under a partition, and subsequently colluded with the plaintiff and denied the said partition, as well as the sale, the statements previously made by them, which went to snow that there had been a partition and they had changed their attitude were held to be admissible as against them under the third clause of twenty-first section and the second clause of the eleventh section of the Evidence Act (7) In a case in which the question was as to the permanency of certain leases in suit, instances of alleged recognition of the successors of the grantees were adduced relating to other leases. It was argued that, as all the leases were granted at or about the same time under similar circumstances and on similar terms, acts and conduct of the parties indicative of an intention that any one of these leases was perpetual should be evidence of a similar intention with regard to all the other leases. The Court, however, held that it was unable to accept this argument as correct in its broad generality. If it had been shown that in the case of a fairly large number of these leases, there was recognition of the successors of the original grantees, and such recognition was not explained by the other side as being the result of anything peculiar to the leases to which the recognition related, the fact that the intention indicated by the acts and conduct of the parties was to make these leases perpetual would make it highly probable that the same was the intention with regard to the leases in dispute, and the facts relating to these leases would, therefore, have been relevant facts under the second clause of this section. But then such a fairly large number of instances were not proved and the instances so far as they were proved had been explained as being either insufficient or as being the result of peculiarities in the circumstances of the leases to which they belonged,(8) When the question was whether a deceased perso 1 had married a lady, and a draft of a will not written by the testator himself and containing no mention of the lady was tendered

in Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 95

<sup>(1)</sup> Lady Iry's rase, 10 St. Tr , 615; Steph. Dig , Art. 9, illust, (d); see also Field, Ev., p 65, note.

<sup>(2)</sup> Descring v. Dowling, 13 Ir. C. L., 241, cited

<sup>(3)</sup> Norton, Ev., 124. (4) Taylor, Ev., § 203; Best, Ev., § 410; Underwood v. Wing, 4 D. M & G., 633; Wing v.

Angrary, 8 H. L. C., 183. (5) Burnaby v. Baillie, 42 Cb. D., 282, 290. (6) Crisell v. Budd, 1 Camp., 27; as also that the party claiming to have paid the debt was afterwards in possession of the document creating it . Brembridge v Osborne, 1 Starkie, 374; see for sımılar cases, Taylor, Ev . §§ 178, 138 , Best, Ev . § 406 , and other cases dealt with by these authors under the head of presumptive evidence.

<sup>(7)</sup> Bibs Gyannessa v. Mussamat Mobarakunnessa, 2 C. W. N., 91 (1897). (8) Narsingh Dyal v Ram Narain, 30 C., 833,

<sup>890, 897 (1903).</sup>

in evidence under this section it was held to be inadmissible inasmuch as it was not a written statement made by the deceased testator,(I). Where in a suit for rent of land from defendant, plaintiff alleged that he bought the land from the defendant and thereafter leaved it to him year by year, and the defendant totally denied the sale and the lease; it was held that the fact in issue was the lease alone, but that evidence might be given of the fact of the sales, as a relevant fact, corroborative of the fact of the lease. (2) As to the question of admissibility of judgments under this section, see notes to the thirteenth section post (3).

On questions of title, repeated acts of ownership with respect to the same property are, under the thirteenth section, post, receivable, and even acts done with respect to other places connected with the locus in quo by "such a common character of locality as to give rise to the inference that the owner of one is likely to be the owner of the other "(4) are sometimes under the present section receivable. In Jones v. Withmans,(5) Parke, B., said that "evidence of acts in another part of one continuous hedge adjoining the plaintiff's land was admissible in evidence on the ground that they are such acts as might reasonably lead to the inference that the entire hedge belonged to the planntiff."

"In other words, they are facts which, by the eleventh section of the Evidence Act, are relevant, because they make the existence of a fact in issue highly probable."(6) When a question as to the ownership of land depends on the application to it of a particular presumption, capable of being rebutted, the fact that it does not apply to other neighbouring pieces of land similarly situated is deemed to be relevant. (7) So when the question is, whether A, the owner of one side of a river, owns the entire bed of it, or only half the bed at a particular spot, the fact that he owns the entire bed a little lower down than the spot in question is deemed to be relevant (8) In like manner it has been held that when the question is, whether a piece of land by the roadside belongs to the lord of the manor, or to the owner of the adjacent land, the fact that the lord of the manor owned other parts of the slip of land by the side of the same road is relevant (9) And in a suit brought by the plaintiff against several defendants to prevent encroachments by the defendants, it was held that the admission of one of the defendants, in a previous suit to which the other defendants were not parties, as to the common character of the portion of the land between his house and the plaintiff's, and also a similar statement in a deed put in by another of the defendants to prove his title to his own house, were admissible in evidence to establish the common character of the entire lane as alleged by the plaintiff. The fact of common ownership of other parts of the lane should be treated as relevant to the issue as to the common character of the entire lane on the principle laid down in this section.(10) Where one of the main question for determination in a case was whether a document then impugned was or was not presented before the Registrar by one NS a

Haji Saboo v. Ayeshabai, 7 C W. N., 665
 Haji Saboo v. Ayeshabai, 7 C W. N., 665
 Haji Saboo v. Ayeshabai, 7 C W. N., 665

<sup>(1903),</sup> s. c., 27 B., 485
(2) Kaung Hla Pru v. San Pau, 3 L. B. R., 90

<sup>(3)</sup> And Tepu Khan v Rajam Mohun, 2 C W. N., 501 (1898), Latshman v. Amrit, 24 B. 598, 599 (1900)

was observed upon in Mohini Mohan v Promoda Nath, 24 C, 259 (1896) ath, 24 C, 259 (1896) (5) Supra at p 331.

<sup>(6)</sup> Naro Fsnayak v Narhars 16 B, 125, 128 (1891), per Sargent, C J, referred to in Bibs Gyannessa v Mussamat Mobarakunnessa 2 C. W N, 91, 94 (1897)

<sup>(7)</sup> Steph Dig. Art. 3

<sup>(8)</sup> Ib , Jones v. Williams, 2 M & W., 326, see note to s 13, post), followed in Naro Vissayak v Narhari, ante

<sup>(9)</sup> Ib , Doe v Kemp, 7 Bing., 332; 2 Bing, N. C., 102, Taylor, Ev., §§ 320-325.

<sup>(10)</sup> Naro Visyak v. Narkari, supra.

comparison of the thumb-impression of the person who presented the document with that of NS was held to be admissible under the second clause of this section if dissimilarity of the impressions made the identity of that person with NS improbable.(1)

In suits for damages, ing to ento determine amount are relevant

12. In suits in which damages are claimed, any fact which will enable the Court to determine the amount of damages which ought to be awarded, is relevant.

Principle.-In suits in which damages are claimed, the amount of the damages is a fact in issue.(2) See Note post

Roscoe, N. P. Ev., passim, sub tor. "damages", Norton, Ev., 124, Mayne on Damages, 4th Ed. (1881), Alexander's "Indian Case-Law on Torts," 3rd Ed., 1891; Pollock on Torts, 2nd Ed., 1890; Act IX of 1872 (Contract Act), ss. 73-75, 117, 118 125, 150-152, 154, 180, 181, 205, 206, 211, 212, 225, 235, 259; Cunningham and Sheohard's Indian Contract Act, 6th Ed., 1892

COMMENTARY

namages

Damages which are the pecuniary satisfaction which a plaintiff may obtain by success in an action, are, unless expressly admitted, deemed to be fact in issue .(3) damages may be claimed either in actions or contracts (4) or tort.(5) The question as to when damages may be recovered and the amount of damages recoverable in particular suits, as well the defences pleadable in such suits, is a portion of the particular branch of the substantive law under the provisions of which these suits are brought , (6) and therefore the present section does not specify how the facts made relevant by it are to be related with the injured property, person or reputation but lays down generally, that evidence tending to "determine," i.e. to increase or diminish the damages is admissible (7) Thus in an action for libel, other libellous expressions by the defendant, whether used before or after the commencement of the suit, are sometimes admissible for the plantiff, to show the malevolence of the defendant, and so to enhance damages. On the other hand, evidence of circumstances, which, according to the law of libel have the effect of mitigating damages, are admissible in evidence for the defendant (8) In an action for breach of promise of marriage, the plaintiff may give evidence of the defendant's fortune, for it obviously tends to prove the loss sustained by the

<sup>(1)</sup> R v. Fakir Mahomed, 1 C W N., pp 33, 34 (1896), v. ante, s 119, n 1

<sup>(2)</sup> See Whitley Stokes, 861, n (5) (3) See Roscoc, N P Ev., 86, and Rules, 1883 O xxi, R 4: evidence in mitigation, 16, 878,

<sup>(4)</sup> See Contract Act (IN of 1872), so 73-75. 117, 119, 125, 150-152, 154, 180, 181, 265, 206, 211, 212, 225, 235, 239,

<sup>(5)</sup> See Alexander's "Indian Case Law on Torts," 3rd Ed., 1891, pp. 3-11, 195, 291, 215, 217, 217, 244, 261, 271, 277 and passim, Pollock on Torts, 2nd Ed (1890); Draft Indian Civil Wrongs Bill, 15 , p. 517. (6) See Marge on Damages, 4th Fd. (1894) ;

Roscoe, N. P. Er., sub roc. "Damages." (7) Norton, Ev., 124, Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 86 (8) Roscoe, N. P. Ev. 884, 875; evidence in mitigation and aggravation of damages may be further illustrated by the decided cases on action for seduction, assault, false imprisonment, trespass, trover, etc. Thus where the defendant had given the plaintiff in charge of a constable for felony, he was allowed to show reasonable ground of suspicion in mitigation of damages. Chian v. Morris, Ry & M. 424 . v Roscop, N P. Er., passim, sub roc "damages" Norton, Ev. 126 So also in actions for assault, the provocation offered by the plaintiff would be relevant under this section , in the case actions against Railway Companies for injuries received, the position, and circumstances and earnings of the plaintiff, the precautions taken by the Company, and the contributory negligence, if any, of the plaintiff, See Cunningham, Ev., 105 plaintiff; but not in an action for adultery ;(1) nor for seduction ,(2) nor for malicious prosecution, for it is nothing to the purpose in an action on tort " whether the damages come out of a deep pocket or not "(3) Injury to the feelings is irrelevant in an action on contract as an element of damage; but in actions on tort heavy damages may be given on this score. In Hamlin v. Great Northern Railway Company (4) it was said. "The case of a contract to marry has always been considered as a sort of exception, in which not merely the loss of an establishment in life, but, to a certain extent, the injury to a person's feelings in respect to that particular species of contract, may be taken into account; but, generally speaking, the rule is this in the case of a wrong, the damages are entirely with the jury, and they are at liberty to take into consideration the mjury to the party's feelings and the pain he has experienced, as, for instance, the extent of violence in an action of assault : and many topics, and many elements of damage, find place in an action for tort, or wrong of any kind, which certainly have no place whatever in an ordinary action of contract."(5) The leading case on the subject of damages in the case of breach of contract-Hadley v. Baxendalc(6)-is the foundation of the rule contained in section 73 of the Indian Contract Act according to which rule the damages which the plaintiff ought to receive should be such as naturally arose in the usual course of things from the breach, or such as the parties knew, when they made the contract, to be likely to result from the breach of it. All facts showing the amount of such damage are relevant under this section; but no damages can be ordinarily recovered by an action of contract that are not capable of being specifi

llew

ts in aggravation or mitiganless the damage or aggravating or mitigating facts are of the kind and character which the substantive law recognises. The question when, and under what circumstances, evidence of character may be given in civil actions with a view to damages, is dealt with by section 55, post, and in the notes thereto.

Where the question is as to the existence of any right Facts relevant when or custom, the following facts are relevant :-

right or ci tom is in onestion.

(a) any transaction by which the right or custom in question was created, claimed, modified, recognised, asserted

(1) James v Buldington, 6 C & P. 589, Roscoe, N P Ev 86 Hodsol v Taylor, post, 81 (2) Hodsoll v Taylor, L R, 9 Q B, 79, Roscoe, N P Ev, 86, and p 911 as to evidence in aggravation

(3) Per Blackburn, J, in Hod toll v Taylor, supra, quoting Lord Mansfield

(4) 26 L, J, Ex., 20, 1 H & N, 408, per Pollock, C B (this was an action for damages for breach of contract)

(5) See Williams v Curtis, 1 C. B , 841 , Sears v Lyons, 2 Starkie, 317, this principle is well illustrated in actions for libel where the injury to the feelings is always an element of consideration Norton, Ev , 126 , the circumstances of time and piace, when and where the insult was given, re quire different damages, thus it is a greater insult to be besten upon the Royal Exchange than in a private room, per Bathurst, J , Tullidge v. Wade, 3 Wills , 19 , Roscoe, N P Ev , 913 , and in trespass the jury may consider not only the pecuniary damage sustained but also the intention with which the act has been done, whether for insult or injury, per Abbott, J, Sears v Lyons, 2 Starkie, 318, Roscoe, N P Ev.,

(6) 23 L J . Ex . 179, 182 . 9 Ex . 341 , see Act IX of 1872 (Contract), s 73, Cunningham and Shephard's Indian Contract Act, 6th Ed. (1892),

(7) Per Pollock, C. B , in Hamlin v G N. Ru. Co, supra at p 23

(8) Act IX of 1872, s 73; Alexander, op. cit. 9 or depied, or which was inconsistent with its exis-

(b) particular instances in which the right or custom was claimed, recognised or exercised, or in which exercise was disputed, asserted or departed from,

Mustration

The question is whether A has a right to a fishery. A deed conferring the fishery on A's ancestors, a mortgage of the fishery by A's father, a subsequent grant of the fishery by A' + father irreconcilable with the mortgage, particular instances in which A's father exercised the right, or in which the exercise of the right was stopped by A's neighbours, are relevant facts.

Principle.- In such cases every act of enjoyment or possession is a relevant fact, since the right claimed is constituted by an indefinite number of acts of user exercised animo domini (1) Ownership may be proved by proof of possession, and that can be shown by particular acts of enjoyment, (2) these acts being fractions of that sum total of emovment which characterises dominum.(3) This also is the best evidence, with the exception of that afforded by judicial recognition, which is only admissible in proof of matters of a public nature, that is public or general rights and customs. (4) Opinion also is admissible in proof of such rights and customs (5) But the most cogent evidence of right and customs is not that which is afforded by the expression of opinion as to their existence, but by the examination of actual instances and transactions in which the alleged custom or right has been acted upon, or not acted upon, or of acts done, or not done, involving a recognition or denial of their existence.(6) "In the absence of direct title-deeds, acts of ownership are the best proofs of title."(7) Acts of ownership, when submitted to, are analogous to admissions or declarations by the party submitting to them that the party exercising them has a right to do so, and that he is therefore the owner of the property upon which they are exercised But such acts are also admissible of themselves proprio vigore, for they tend to prove that he who does them is the owner of the soil (8)

- 3 (" Relevant.")
- 32. Ct., (4), (Public right or custom.

opinion of person not called as wit- s.

- 32. ILLUST. (i). (Illustration of "public s. 48, ILLUST. (Illustration of "general moht.")
- s. 32, CL (7) (Statements in Document & 49 (Opinions as to usage, etc.)
  - relating to "transaction.")
- 48 and ILLUST. (General Custom or rights, opinion of witnesses on.)
- 48, Explanation. (Meaning of "general custom or right.")
  - custom or right, ")
- s. 51 (Grounds of opinion.)

(1) Wille' Ev., 41.

- (2) Jones v. Williams, 2 M & W. 326
- (3) Wale Ev . 41.
- (4) V s. 42, post see remarks of Edge, C. J. and Tyrrell, J. in Gurdyal Mal v. Jhands Mal. 10 A . 586 (1848).
  - (5) Y. se 32, cl. (4), 48.
- (6) See remarks of Turner, J , in Lackman Ras v. Albar Ehan, 1 A , 440 (1877), and Gopalayuan v. Raghapatiagyan, 7 Mad. H. C. Rep., 250, 354 post . and remarks of Westropp, C. J., in Bhagwandas Termal v. Raymal, 10 Bom H C. P. 261

(1873); Steph. Dig , Arts 5 and 6, and cases there cited , Taylor, Ev . § 1683 , v. Ranchhodas Khishnadas v. Bapu Narhar, 10 B , 439, post v. Commentary, post, and note to sa. 32, cl. (4), (7), and 42, 48, as to long usage being the best exponent of right, see Nilakandhen Nambudirapad v. Padmanobha Ren Larma, 18 M., I (1895).

(7) Per Jackson, J., in Collector of Razehahy v. Doorga Soondures, 2 W. R., 212 (1865).

(8) Starkin, Ev., 470, note F.; Jones v. Willuma, 2 H. & W., 328; v. post, s. 42 and ILIUST. (Judgments relating to s. 92, Prov. 5. (Unige and Custom import. matters of a public nature.) ed into contract.)

The following Acts refer to custom :- Acts XXI of 1850, s. 1 (Non-forfesture of rights by loss of caste); XV of 1856 (Re-marriage of Hindu scidence); IV of 1872, ss. 5 (a), 7 (Punjab Lanes); IX of 1872, ss. 1, 110 (Contract); III of 1873, s. 16 (b) (Civil Courts, Madras); III of 1901; (N.-W. P. Land Revenue); XX of 1875, . 5 (Central Provinces Laure); XVII of 1876, s. 31 (Land Revenue, Oudh) XVIII of 1876, ss. 3 (b) (1), 4, 8 (Oudh Laves); IX of 1908, Art. 10 (Lamitation); II of 1901 (N.-W. P. Rent); XVIII of 1881. s. 67 (Land Revenue Central Provinces); II of 1882, a. 1 (Indian Trusts), V of 1882, as. 18, 20 (Easements); VIII of 1884, s. 40 (Punjab Courts); VIII of 1885, s. 183 (Bengal Tenancy); XVII of 1887, s. 125 (Punjab Land Revenue); Steph. Dig., Art. 5; Taylor. Ev., §§ 1683, 609, 320; Starkie, Ev., §§ 123-139; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 24, 25, 53, 54, 934; Physical Rev., 3rd Ed., 90, 91; Best, Ev., §§ 366-399, 499; Wills' Ev., 40.

COMMENTARY

The right mentioned in this section is not a public right only the Illustra- Right tion shows this is not so, the right there mentioned being a private one.(1) Three kinds of rights are thus included in the Act .- (a) private, e.g., a private right of way : (b) general, siderable class of persons use the water of a partic οf use the water of a partit right is nowhere defined in the Act. Every public right in the sense of the previous definition is a general one, though (if the distinction made in English law between the terms "general" and "public" be accepted) every general right is not a public one.

There was at one time a conflict of decision as to whether the term is to be understood as comprehending all legal rights (including a right of ownership) or only incorporeal rights. In Gujju Lall v. Fattch Lall, Jackson, J., and Garth, C. J. were of opinion that the rights referred to, in the section. were incorporeal rights "What is referred to in the section cited is evidently a right which attaches either to some property or to status; in short, incorporeal rights, which though transmissible, are not tangible or objects of the bodily senses."(4) "It may be difficult perhaps to define precisely the scope of the word 'right,' but I think it was here intended to include those properties only of an incorporeal nature, which in legal phraseology are generally called 'rights,' more especially as it is used in conjunction with the word 'custom.' It is certainly used in that sense in subsequent parts of the Act (v. the fortyeighth section, and the fourth sub-section of the thirty-third section) which deal with matters of public or general 'right or custom'."(5) On the contrary it has been held by Mitter, J., that the contention that the section in question refers only to incorporeal rights, whether of a public or private nature, is not warranted by any general principle, it being difficult to suggest consulted on this point Koondo Nath v. Dheer Chander, 20 W R 345 (1873) (right of successon to office) Neamat Ale v Goorgo Dans, 22 W. R., 365 (1874), (stmamee right to lands): Gutter Koburto v. Bhukut Koiburto, 22 W R., 457. Dastrai Mohants v Jugo Bundhoo, 23 W R , 293 (1875); Hunsa Koper v Sheo Gobind, 24 W R., 431 (surt for lands) . Mokesk Chunder v Dino Bundhu, 24 W. P., 265, Lachmeedhur v. Rughoobur, 24 W. R., 284 , Omer Datt v. Burn, 24 W. R., 470 (suits for rent); Narangs Ehikabhas v. Dipa Umed, 3 B. 3 (1878) (suit for chirds allowance).

<sup>(1)</sup> Suria Narain v. Bissambhar, 23 W. P., 311 (1875) see Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall (F E.), 6 C , 187 (1880), per Garth, C. J.

<sup>(2)</sup> S. 48, and illust.

<sup>(3)</sup> S. 32, cl. (4), illust. (i), and illust. to s 42 which last section also deals with the subject of Public rights.

<sup>(4)</sup> Per Jackson, J., in Guppe Lall v. Fatteh Lall, 6 C. supra, 184; Mitter, J. dissenting (5) Per Garth, C. J., 186, ib., Mitter, J., dissenting - and see Kalidhus v. Shiba Nath, 8 C., 505 (1882). The undermentioned cases decided Prior to Gujju Lall v. Fattel Lall (1880), may be a reason which would justify the existence of a distinction between the rules applicable to the proof of (d) corporeal and incorporeal rights, respectively, whether of (a) public or private nature.(1) Quite recently also Banerjee, J., observed as follows: (2)-" It has been said that the right spoken of in this section is an incorporeal right. I do not think that there is any sufficient reason for putting thus limitation on the meaning of the term as used by the section." So also in Bombay, it has been held that the words "rights and customs" should be understood as comprehending all rights and customs recognised by law, and therefore as including a right of ownership :(3) and in Allahabad that the word "right" in both clauses (a) and (b) includes a right of ownership, and is not confined, as held by the majority (sed qu. majority) in Gunu Lall v Fattch Lall, to incorporeal rights. (4) It would seem now to be generally held that the term "right" includes all rights and is not hmited to incorporeal rights. As to antiquity in the case of a right no less than of a custom, usage for a number of years, certainly raises a presumption that such right or custom has existed beyond the time of legal memory. (5)

Oustom or usage "Custom" as used in the sense of a rule which in a particular district, class, or family has from long usage obtained the force of law, (6) must be (a) ancient, (7) (b) continued, unaftered, uninterrupted, uniform, constant; (8) (6) peaceable and acquiesced in (9) (4) reasonable, (10) (e) certain and definite; (11)

 Guyn Lall v Fattch Lall, 6 C., 180, v supra, Pontifex, J., expressed no opinion upon this particular point and Morris, J., merely sgreed with Garth, C. J., in holding that the former judgment was inadmissible.

(2) In Tepu Khon v Rajons Mohan, 2 C W \ 501, 504 (1893)

(3) Ranchhoddas Krishnadas v. Bapu Marhar 10 B., 439 (1886), per Sargent, C. J.

(4) Collector of Gorokhpur v Polishthan Sung 12-5, 13-241; D.), and see Remneamt v Appata, 12-M, 9 (1857) [surt for money claimed under alleged right), Fendersemu v Lenderedd, 15-M, 12 (1891) aut to declaration of title to land hythinga v Lendardola, 16-M, 194 (1892) surt for possession of land

(6) Ramasamı v Appais, 12 M, 14 (1887)
 (6) Hurpurshad v Sheo Dyal, 3 I A, 259
 (1876); s c, 25 W R, 55. Sivanananja Perumd
 v. Meenskehl Ammal, 3 Mad. II C R, 77 (1866)

(7) Hurpurshad v. Shro Dayal, 3 I A. 259 (1976) , Lala v. Hira Singh, 2 A , 51 (1878) . Doc d Jogomohan v Nimu Dan, Montriou's Cases of Hindu Law, 596 (length of time necessary), Joy Kishon v. Doraga Marain, 11 W. R. 348 (1860) (rd); Juggomohan Glose v. Manickchund, 7 M I. A. 282 (1859); sc. 4 W. R. (P. C), 8; Amril Nath v. Gours Nath, 6 B. L. R. 238 (1870); Rayah Nagendur & Rughoonath Narain. W R. (1864), 20; Pamalakhmi Ammal v. Surananantha Perumal, 17 W R., 553 (1872); Perumag Sethurayar v. M. Ramalinga Sethurayar, 3 Mad H. C. E. 77 (1966); Gopalayyan v Roghupatiayyan 7 Mad. H C. R., 254 (1873) (usage must also la public) See Ramasami v. Appara, 12 M. 14, ante, and Elau Nanuji v Sundralas, 11 Bom H. C R., 271, post

(8) Lala . Hira Kingh, 2 A. 49, supra. Jameela Khalon v Pagul Ram, 1 W. B., 250 (1864) Bent Madhub v Jan Krishna, 7 B. L. R. 154 155 (1869), Judgomohun Ghase v. Manilchund 7 M I 1, 282 ec. 4 W R (P C), 8, suvra 4mer Nath v Gaurs Nath, 6 B. L R, 238. supra . Raya Nugendur v Rughoonath Naraus W R. (1864), 20, supra, Bamalakhus Ammal Strangaghang Perumal, 17 W. R., 553, supra, Patel Vandravan v Patel Manual, 16 B. 470 (1591), Perumal Sethurayar v M. Ramalinga Sethurayar, 3 Mad H C R. 77, supra, Souren. dronath Roy v Mussamut Heeramonce, 12 M I 4. 81 (1868), s t, 10 W R (P C.), 35, Tora Chand v Reeb Ram, 3 Mad H. C R . 57 (1866) . (acts must also be plural), Railishen Singh s. Ramjoy Surma, 1 C, 195 (1872) (discontinuance). Jugmohandas Mangaldas v Sir Mangaldas, 10 B , 543 (1856) (the consensus atrotum, which is the basis of all legal customs must be uniform and constant

(9) Lala v Hira Sirgh, 2 A , 40, supra

(10) Hargurahed v. Shro. Djul, 3 T. A. 295, augus "Lakv Hux Sung, 2. A, 9 augus "Lukv Hux Sung, 2. A, 9 augus "Lukv Hux Sung, 3. Q. 109 (1985), Remodella Muship, 19 Q. 109 (1985), Remodella Habyllelli Kevanay Johan, 19 Bom. H. C. R. 229 (1983), Arlopa Nagob v. Neura Krabary, 8. Bom. H. C. R. (A. C.), 19 (1971); C. R. Debausz v. Pestung Dhamphat, 8 H. 409 (1934), Rogob Forma v. Rost 1 urmah, 1 M. 233 (1977), Nyamutalloh Outaque v. Golard Chern, W. R. 4 C. V. 40, (1935).

(11) Hurpurshad v. Shen Dyal, 3 1 A. 285, supra, Rajkishin Singh v. Rampiy Surma, 1 C. 103, 106, supra, Lala v. Hira Singh, 2 A. 48, supra, Lachman Rai v. Akbar Khan, 1 A. 440, (1877); Hhapiwan Dai v. Balquind. Singh, 1 (f) compulsory and not optional to every person to follow or not.(1) The acts required for the establishment of customary law must have been performed with the consciousness that they spring from a legal necessity;(2) and (9) must not be immortal.(3)

The right mentioned in the section being a public or private right (v. auto), the 'custom' must also, on proper principles of construction, include a private custom.(4) The word custom as used in this section is not, however, limited to ancient custom, but includes all customs and usages. So it has been held under section 48, which deals with general customs and rights, that evidence of usage was admissible.(5) The word 'usage' would include what the people are, now or recently, in the habit of doing in a particular place. It may be that this particular habit is only of a very recent origin, or it may be one which has existed for a very long time. If it be one which is regularly and ordinarily practised there is usage.(6) So a business-usage as distinguished from a common law custom need not be long established or strictly uniform.(7) nor need an agricultural custom have existed from time immenorial.(8) The word used in this and other sections of the Act in its widest sense, including all customs ancient or otherwise and all usages. Three classes of custom or usage are thus dealt with in the Act, (a) private, (b) general. (9) (c) public (10)

Instances of the first class are family customs and usages termed kulachar, or in Upper India, Rasm wa rucap-t-khandan (v. post).(11)

The expression ''general custom'' is defined to include customs common to any considerable class of persons.(12) These are (a) local, termed desachur; eq, in the Broach and other Gujarat districts aabl property, which is makerable by Mahommedan law, may be by custom of the district alienated (13). In the same district, and more especially in parts of Eastern Bengal, the right of pre-emption which is based on Mahommedan law, is allowed and enforced by custom as between Hindra slos (14) (b) caste or class, of which the Khopah and Memon cases,(15) and the right of divorce marital by usage of particular castes, the customs of religious brotherhoods attached to Hindra temples and the like,(16) afford examples. English Municipal law owing to historical development limits custom to a particular locality only. Sir Erskine Perry in the Khopah's case has remarked that this peculiar municipal rule of English law can have no application to India, where customs are seldom local and are mostly personal or caste customs; (c) Trade customs or usages (v. post).

- B.L.R., S.N., x (1868), Telact Deorga v. Telact Deorga, 20 W.R., 157 (1873), Ramalalhan Annal v. Sicananantha Perimal, 17 W. R. 553, ante.
- (1) Eshan Chandra Samanta v Nilmoni Singh (1908), 35 C, 851 (riperian owner's right to irrigate)
- Mussamut Parbats Kuar v Rans Chandrapal Kuar, 8 O C, 94
- (2) Tara Chand v Reeh Ram, 3 MsA H C R., 57, supra Gopalayyan v Raghupatiayyan, 7 Msd H C R., 254 (1873)
- (3) Chinna Ummayi v Tegarai Chetti, 1 M. 168 (1876) See also Sankaralingam Chetti v Sulban Chetti 17 M. 470 (1894) Chasily v Umrao Jan. 20 I A. 193 (1893), 21 C. 149
- (4) Collector of Gorakh pur v. Palakdhari, 12 A 16 (1889)
- i (5) Dalglish v. Yusuffer Hossain, 23 C., 427 (1896), Sariatulki Sarkar v. Pran Nath, 26 C., 184 (1895)

- (6) Ib (7) Juggamohun Ghose v. Manskehund, 7 M. 1
- (8) Tucker v Linger 8 App Cas 508, in which case the local custom had grown up within the last 30 or 40 years
  - (9) r s 45, post

A. 263, 282

- (10) v * 32, cl (4), pre
- (11) v Norton, Ev. 190
- (12) r s 48, and illust post
- (13) Abas Ali v Ghulam Muhammad 1 Bom H C R, 36 (1863) (14) Shaikh Koodru v Mohince Mohan, 13 W.
- (14) Shahan Koorry V. Mohnnet. Mohnnet. 15 W. R. (F. B.) 21 (1870). Index Natural field Natural field. 1 W. B. 273 (1864), and the cases cated in Field's Ex., 115
- (15) Perry's Or Ca., 110 Karım Khatac v Paraban Manja, 2 Bom. H C. E., 276 (1886)
- (16) See Field, Ev. 109, 110, where a large number of cases of family, local, easte, and class custom are collected.

Public custom is nowhere defined in the Act. It is not clear, if any, and if so what, meaning is to be attached to the word "public" as distinguished from the word "general" in the Act. In speaking of matters of public and general interest the terms "public" and "general" are sometimes used as synonyms, meaning merely what concerns a multitude of persons.(1) But iblic " being strictly apand the term "general"

nty. In matters strictly public, reputation from anyone appears to be receivable. If, however, the right in dispute be simply general: that is, if those only who live in a particular district, or adventure in a particular enterprise, are interested in its hearsay from persons wholly unconnected with the place of business would be not only valueless but probably altogether madmissible 12 but as the Indian Evidence Art(3) makes no such distinction as to admissibility, merely requiring in all cases a probability of knowledge on the part of the declarant, the distinction ceases to be of importance in India (4). Again the expression "general custom or right is explained to include (not "mean and include")(5) customs or rights common to any considerable class of persons. In fact such matters as would according to the English rule, fall within the expression matter of general interest." (6) The expression therefore would appear to have a more extended meaning and to be applicable also to those which are cases spoken of in English law as "matters of public interest."

Custom or usage occupies a prominent place in Hindu law (of which it forms a branch), and wherever it obtains "upersedes its general maxims." Immemorial custom" says Manu "is transcendent law "(f) Clear proof of usage will outweigh the written text of the law.(8) The Digest sub-ordinates in more than one place the language of text to custom and approved usage (9) Where a custom is proved to exist. It supersedes the general law; which, however, still regulates all beyond the custom.(10) A custom is some established practice at variance with the general law. There cannot therefore be a custom to do that which the general law permits any one to do or abstain from at his own will,(11).

"Facts

The third section contains the general definition of the term "fact" as used in this Act. The particular facts which are relevant under this section are "transaction" and "instances" as to the meaning of which (v. post). See also note on the admissibility of judgments (post), [12]

The facts made relevant are (a) transaction, (b) instances. Neither of these terms is defined by the Act. (a) A "transaction" is the doing or performing of any business; management of any affair, performance; that which

Transac tions Instances

<sup>(1)</sup> Taylor, Ev., § 609; Greeley, Ev., 305; are notes to a. 32, cl. (4), post.

<sup>(2)</sup> Taylor, Er., § 609

<sup>(3)</sup> r. s. 32, cl. (4)

<sup>(4)</sup> See Norton, Er , p. 186 .

<sup>(5)</sup> It does not therefore (accepting the distition between "'public" and ""general") exclude public custom: ""when a definition is introduct to be exclusive it would seem the form of words is "means and includes," per Jackson J. E. v. Allocous Chestributs, 4 C., 493 (1878)

<sup>(6)</sup> e Field, Ev. 249
(7) See the authorities set out in judgment of West, J. in Phase Names v. Sandrakai, Il Bom.

H C. R., 262 (1874), and Tara Chand v. Rob

Ram, 3 Mad. H. C. R., 50 (1866).

(8) Collector of Madura v Muts Ramalings, 1
B. L. R., 12 (1868), cited and applied in Bhat-

E. L. 13 (1805), cited and applied in Enorgens Singh v. Ehogrenn Singh, 17 A., 239 (1895), but held to have been misapplied by the Privy Council, s. c., 21 A., 412 (1899)

<sup>(9)</sup> Bhyah Ram v Bhyah Uqur, 13 M I. A. 290 (1870), s c. 14 W R (P C.), 1

<sup>(10)</sup> Nedhato Deb v Beer Charder, 12 M I.

 <sup>542 (1869);</sup> a.c., 12 W. R. (P. C.), 21
 (11) Sri Braya Kuora v Kundana Deci, 3 C.
 W. N., 378, 380 (1899), P. C.

<sup>(12)</sup> r also se 3, 11, ante is done; an affair as the transactions on the exchange. A transaction is something already done and completed; a " proceeding" is either something which is now going on, or, if ended, is still contemplated with reference to its progress or successive stages.(1) "We use the word 'proceeding' in application to an affray in the street, and the word 'transaction' to some commercial negotiations that has been carried on between certain persons. The 'proceeding' marks the manner of proceeding, as when we speak of proceedings in a Court of law. The "transaction marks the business transacted; as the transactions on the exchange "(2) " A 'transaction' as the derivation denotes is something which has been concluded between persons by a cross or reciprocal action as it were."(3) A "transaction" in the ordinary sense of the word, is some business or dealing which is carried on or transacted between two or more persons."(4) The qualifying characters of the transaction spoken of in the section are (a) creation, (b) claim, (c) modification, (d) recognition, (e) assertion, (f) denial, (g) inconsistency. Of these (b) and (d) are also qualifying characters of "instances." (b) An "instance" is that which offers itself or is offered as an illustrative case, something cited in proof or exemplification, a case occurring; an example.(5) The qualifying characters of the "instances" spoken of by the section are (a) claim, (b) recognition (common both to "instances" and "transactions"), and (c) exercise (which is peculiar to "instances" only), and instances in which the exercise of the right or custom was disputed, asserted or departed from. It will have been observed that the section distinguishes between a claim and an assertion. Under the second clause, however, instances are admissible in which the exercise of a right or custom was asserted. The word "assertion" includes both a statement and enforcement by act. Ordinarily the evidence tendered under this section will be evidence of acts done, but a verbal statement not amounting to, and not accompanied by, any act would also be admissible if it amounted to a "claim."

Road-cess papers and deeds of sale were held to be evidence quantum valeant as transactions and instances in which rights were asserted and recognised.(6) Documents showing recognition of alleged right by Government A map prepared by an officer of Government while in were admitted (7) charge of a khas mehal, Government being at the time in possession of the mehal merely as a private proprietor, is not a map purporting to have been made under the authority of Government within the meaning of section 83, the accuracy of which is to be presumed; but such a map may be evidence of possession or of assertion of right under the thirteenth section (8) In a suit for possession of land, the plaintiffs claimed title under a lease from the shrottemdars of the village where the land was situated. The defendants. who had obstructed the plaintiffs from taking possession of part of the land, claimed to have permanent occupancy-rights, and asserted that the shrotiendars were entitled not to the land itself but to melvaram only To meet this allegation the plaintiffs tendered in evidence documents executed by other tenants

<sup>(1)</sup> Webster's Dictionary, sub nom, 'Transaction.''

<sup>(2)</sup> Crabb's Synonyms

<sup>(3)</sup> Gujju Lalt v Fattch Lall, 6 C. 185 (1880). per Jackson, J. transaction in its largest sense, means that which is done, ib., 175, per Mittler, J. (4) Ib at p. 180, per Garth, C. J., who added.

&quot;If the parties to a suit were to adjust their differences sater or the adjustment would be a transaction; and by a somewhat strained use of the word the proceedings, in a suit, might also be called transactions, but to say that the decision of a Court of Justice is a transaction appears to me a misapplication of the term." See also Ranchholdus v Bapu Narhar, 10 B., 442 (1896), but see as to judgments, post in the same village showing that they were pura kudis merely :- Held that these documents were admissible that the defendants were not of course concluded by them, but that the documents were relevant evidence under the thirteenth section as showing the tenure on which the village was held.(1) Decisions are conflicting as to whether previous judgments and decrees, not inter partes, are,(2) or are not,(3) included in the term "transaction." are.(4) or are not.(5) included in the words " particular instances" (v. nost). In some cases it has been held that judgments and decrees are not themselves "transactions" or "instances," but the suit in which they were passed and made is a "transaction." or "instance" So in the undermentioned case Banery, J, observed as follows -" If the existence of the judgment is not a transaction within the meaning of clause (a) of the thirteenth section it proves that a higation terminating in the judgment took place, and the litigation comes well within the meaning of the clause as being a transaction by which the right now claimed by the defendants was asserted. So again the litigation which is evidenced by the existence of the undement was a particular instance within the meaning of clause (b) of the thirteenth section in which the right of possession now claimed by the defendants was claimed "(6) In a case where a dispute existed between the proprietors of two estates, A and B, as to the right to water flowing through an artificial watercourse on estate B, belonging to the defendants, proceedings were taken in the Criminal Courts by the owners of estate A against some rvots of estate B m consequence of their having closed the watercourse. These proceedings led to a razinamah, or deed of compromise, which was relied on as evidence before the Privy Council Their Lordships said "This agreement is a clear acknowledgment of right to this overflow. It was objected that this razinamah does not bind the proprietors of B; but although it was apparently made between tenants, it seems to have been subsequently acted upon, and may be properly used to explain the character of the enjoyment of the water."(7) Their Lordships also referred to certain proceedings under section 320 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of 1861 corresponding to section 147 of the Codes of 1882 and 1898), in which a claim was made as to the right to use the water collected in the tal, observing that the proprietors of B do not seem to have challenged the decision of the Magistrate,

<sup>(5)</sup> Webster's Dictionary, sub nom, 'instance'' (6) Daitari Mohanti v Jugo Bandho, 23 W R, 293 (1875)

<sup>(7)</sup> Surp. Narain v. Bissamlihur Singh, 23 W. R., 311 (1875)

<sup>(8)</sup> Junmapoy Mullick v Dwarkanath Myttee, 5 C. 247 (1979)

19 (1891)

<sup>(1)</sup> Lythilings . Lenkatachala, 16 M., 194 (1892)

<sup>(2)</sup> Neamut Ali v Gaoro Dass, 22 W R. 365 (1874); Gupin Lall v Fatich Lall, 6 C. 175 (1889), per Mitter, J. cur disent, Collector of Gorekheur v Palakhari Singh, 12 A. 43 (1889), per Mahmood, J., cur disting.

<sup>(3)</sup> Guppa Lall v Fotteh Lall (F B.), & C . 183. 185, 187, per curiam, Mitter, J., diesent, Collector of Gerakhpur v Palaidhars Sonah, 12 A . 11, 27. 24, per curum , see remarks of Sargent, C. J., in Ranchheddae Krishnadus v. Papu Narhar, 10 B. 412 (1846) "former judgments are not themselves transactions," but the suit in which they were made is a "transaction; " per Straight, J., 13 A . 25, supra. It was sard by Ranade, J , that the interpretation placed upon the words 'right,' and 'transaction' in Gujju Lell v. Faitch Lell ecens not to have been accepted by the Privy Council and its correctness is questioned in the Full Hench judgment of the Allahabad High Court in the Collector of Goraldsur v Palak than in so far as the exclasion of such judgments from being received as evidence under any section is concerned," Lakehman v Amrit, 24 B. 509 (1966)

<sup>(4)</sup> Koondo Nath v Dheer Chunder, 20 W. R 345 (1873). Janatulla Surlar v Ramani Kont, 15 C., 233 (1887), Ramasam v. Appacu, 12 M. 9 (1887), and see Byathamma v. Avulla, 15 M.

<sup>(6) &</sup>quot;Record and not the judgment alone admissible as ninetance," Collector of Gonziller or Neural Programmers, Palathkars Singh, 12 A, 14, 22, ergre, per Udge, C J, and Tyrrill, J, "Ironer judgment on et stell an instance, but the sort in which it was made is an instance," by 22, per Singh, D, and see Guiye Lall τ Fatteh Lall, 6 C., 171, ergre

<sup>(6)</sup> Tepn Khan v. Rogons Mohun, 2 C. W. N. 501, 504 (1894), Sexmats Aligan v. Hara Chambra, S. A., 106 of 1902; Cal. H. C., 1st July., 1904; and see Mahoned Amin v. Hasan (1907), 31 B, 143

<sup>(7)</sup> Ramessur Pershad v. Koonj Hehars, 4 C., 640 (1878)

in these proceedings, in the Civil Court.(1) In a suit to establish the existence of a family-custom, the plaintiffs offered in evidence a deed contaming a recital that the custom of the family was as alleged in the plaint, and a covenant to do nothing contrary to it. The deed was executed before action brought by the present plaintiffs, and also by a plaintiff who had died since the institution of the suit, and, as the plaint alleged, by a "considerable majority" of the family; but the defendant was not a party to it. The deed was held to be admissible as evidence on behalf of the plaintiffs.(2) In an English case the Crown claimed the salmon fishing above the falls of a certain river against A, who in proof of his right to the fishery gave evidence, inter alia. . of (a) occasionally fishing there, (b) having watchers during the spawning season, and (c) of binding his tenants in their leases to protect the fishing, and prevent all others from fishing.(3) In a case decided prior to the Act, measurement chittas were admitted as primi facie evidence that long before the case originated and the suit was thought of, the plaintiff put forward his rights to certain lands as mal lands.(4) The question is whether A has a right of fishery in a river , beenses to fish granted by his ancestors and the fact that the beensees fished under them are relevant (5) The question is whether A ouns land the fact that .1's ancestors granted leases of it is relevant.(6) is whether there is a public right of way over .1's land. The facts that persons were in the habit of using the way, that they were turned back, that the road was stopped up, that the road was repaired at the public expense, and I's titledeeds showing that for a length of time, reaching beyond the time when the road was said to have been used, no one had power to dedicate it to the public are all relevant. (7) A petition to the Collector in which the right of primogeniture is stated has been held to be an instance of the recognition of such a custom.(8) Where it was alleged that land was debutter and it was contended that there was no legal evidence from which the Court was justified in inferring that it was , held that a Rubakar by which the Collector released the land in dispute as being debuttur property was a "transaction" and a relevant fact from which the Lower Court was cutifled to infer that there had been a previous grant though the release of itself did not constitute such a grant. (9) Where it was shown that it was the practice in old times for the Lower Courts in Bengal to set out the pleadings in their judgments and that this practice was recognized by circulars issued by the Sudder Dewany Adalut, these judgments were held admissible under this section as instances in which the right

<sup>(1)</sup> As to this case Islage, C. J., observed appearedly this resiseants was admissible under a 9, the record of the proceedings in the Criminal Court, which the Judicial Committee admitted in endence might be admissible under a 9 or under a 13 (b), 12 k., 16 * 10 Rapa Raw a Museum Lucko (11 C. 310), the Judicial Committee would possibly here held that the record in the rest suit, et which the judgment referred to former part, was admissible under a 13 (b), and see Him Luf v. A. Hill. 11 C. L. R. 539 (1882). See Ash Centatomia 1 Graduation 15 (c), and see Him Luf v. A. Hill. 11 C. L. Learnda, 15 M. 1, 12 (1891) part, and note on "dd missolitist of judgments," pool coming out of the proper custody and purporting on the face of them to everence ownership, such as a lease or hecme, may be given in evidence as being in themselves acts of ownership and eviclence of possession are notice to s 50 past. See also Mulcidimon v. Olion 10 H. L. Cas. 503, and asor to 50), post.

<sup>(2)</sup> Hurronath Mullick v Nationand 10 R L. R., 203 (1873), see x 32, cl (7)

<sup>(3)</sup> Lord Advecate v. Lord Lorat, L. R., 5 App. Cas., 273, in this case incent document was tendered to prove ancient possession and held to be admissible, the rule being that such documents

<sup>(4)</sup> Inbee Pershad v. Ram Coomar, 10 W. R., 443 (1868) we note to s. 32 ci. (7) post

<sup>(5)</sup> Rogers v. Allen 1 Camp. 309. See also Neill v. Duke of Devoushire. L. R., 8 App. Cas., 135.

<sup>(6)</sup> In a v. Pulman. 7 Q. B., 622, 623, 626.
(7) Steph Dig. Art. 5, illust. (c), as to proof of custom by instances see Lishnu v. Arishnan, 7 M., 3 (1883).

<sup>(8)</sup> Shyamanand Das v. Rama Kanta, 32 C., 6 17 (1984)

<sup>(9)</sup> Lalli Chandra v. Kali Kumar, 10 C. W. N., xxiv (1905)

in question was claimed and disputed and disallowed.(1) And generally speaking, title to property, corporeal or incorporeal, may be proved under profits, the discharge of the burdens or repairs of the property, the granting of licenses and leases and the like; while in rebuttal, proof is admissible that these acts were disputed, or done in the absence of persons interested in disputing them (2) As to want-ul-araz, see note to section 35.

Admissibility of judgments and decrees as transac-tions or instances

Judgments qua judgments or adjudications upon questions in issue and proofs of the particular points they decide are only admissible either as (a) res judicata, (3) or (b) as being "in rem." (4) or (c) as relating to matters of a public nature (5) In (a) they are between the same parties in (b) they are declared by law to be conclusive proof against all persons of certain (6) matters only : in (c) though not conclusive, they are relevant as adjudications against persons not parties to them, the reason being that in matters of public right the new party to the second proceeding as one of the public has been virtually a party to the former proceeding.(7) But judgments, orders and decrees, other than those admissible by sections 40, 41, 42 may be relevant under section 43. If their existence is a fact in issue or is relevant under some other provision of the Act. (8) In the sections relating to judgments the judgment is admissible as the opinion of the Court on the questions which came before it for adjudication. Ordinarily judgments are not admissible as between persons who were not parties and do not claim under the parties to the previous liti-But there are exceptions to this general rule (9) The cases contemplated by section 43 are those where a judgment is used not as res judicata or as evidence more or less binding upon an opponent by reason of the adjudication it contains (because judgments of that kind are already dealt with under one or other of the immediate preceding sections), but the cases referred to in section 43 are such as the section itself illustrates, viz, when the fact of any particular judgment having been given is a matter to be proved in the case (10) Section 43 is one of the group of sections relating to judgments and contains the provision applicable to cases relating to the relevancy of judgments as evidence against strangers.(11) Under that section a judgment may be admissible as relevant under some other provision of the Act. So a previous judgment has been admitted not in order to prove an adjudication but in order to prove an admission made by a predecessor in title of the party against whom the document was sought to be used (12) This being so, the question arises whether, and if so, how previous judgments and decrees, and the litigation in which they were pronounced not being between the same parties, are admissible in evidence in proof of "right" and "custom" [13] (not being of a public nature) under this section, either as "transaction" under clause (a)

<sup>(1)</sup> Bhaya Dirgy: Deo v. Pande Fatch Bahadoor Ram, 3 C. L. J., 521.

<sup>(2)</sup> Wills, Ev., 40; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 90, 91; Jones v. Williams, 2 M. & W. 326. As to repairs constituting an act of ownership, see 4 C. W. N. ccu

<sup>(3)</sup> Under # 10, post

<sup>(4)</sup> Undet s 41, post.

<sup>(5)</sup> Under s. 42, post. (6) See Kanhayes Lall v. Radha Churn, 7 W.

R., 344 (1867) (7) Per Pontilez, J., in Guya Lall v. Fatick

Latt, 6 C., 187 (1880).

<sup>(8)</sup> S. 43, p. J.

<sup>(9)</sup> Hira Lall v. A Hills (11 C. L. R., 530); per Field, J. (1882).

<sup>(10)</sup> Per Garth, C. J., in Gunu Lall v. Fatch Lall, 6 C., 192

<sup>(11)</sup> Tepu Khan v Rojons Mohun, 2 C. W. No. 501, 505 (1898).

<sup>(12)</sup> Krishnasams Ayyaangar v Rajagopola. 18 M., 73, 78 (1895)

<sup>(13)</sup> Other than public or general rights and customs in regard to which (being matter of a public nature, adjudication seter also have always been admissible and are now so under # 42 of the Act: 1 Taylor, Ev., § 1693, Madhub Chunder v Tomee Bewah, 7 W. R., 210 (1807) .

or under clause (b), as "particular instances." This question has been the subject of many conflicting decisions.

In the Calcutta Hich Court such judgments were up to 1880 frequently Culcutta admitted,(1) the word ' transaction' being, it was said,(2) large enough to allow the proceedings in former suits to be admitted, not as conclusive, but of such weight as the Court may think they ought to have. Upon this principle previous judgments and proceedings in suits were admitted as relevant in the undermentioned cases.(3) In 1880, the Full Bench of the Calcutta High Court in the case of Gujju Lall v. Fattch Lall (4) considered the question. This was a suit to recover possession of certain property. The Lower Courts allowed the plaintiff to put in evidence against the defendant a judgment in a former suit between the defendant and others and to which the plaintiff was no party. It was contended by the defendant that the judgment in this former suit could not be used as evidence in this suit, because the plaintiff was no party to the former proceedings; while the plaintiff, on the other hand, contended that the former judgment was admissible in evidence under this section as being a transaction by which a right claimed in this suit by the plaintiff was asserted and denied. Both the Lower Courts considered the judgment admissible in evidence, and apparently upon the strength of it decided in the plaintiff's fayour tion referred to the Full Bench was whether under the thirteenth section or any other section of the Evidence Act, the judgment in the former suit, which was admitted and acted upon as evidence in this suit, was admissible. It was held (Mitter J., dissenting) -that the former judgment was not admissible as evidence in the subsequent suit, either as a "transaction" under the thirteenth section or as a " fact " under the eleventh section or under any other section of the Evidence Act. The case was accordingly sent back to the Lower Court to be decided upon the other evidence It was further held by the Full Bench (Mitter, J., dissenting) that a former judgment which is not a judgment " in rem" under section 41, nor one relating to matters of a public nature under section 42, is not admissible in evidence in a subsequent suit either as a res judicata, or as proof of the particular point which it decides, unless between the same parties of those claiming under them.(5) It has been said that this judgment practically decided that except in the case of judgments in rem, and judgments relating to matters of a public nature, a judgment in order to be evidence

Nallathambi Battar v Nellakumara Pillat, 7 Mad H. C. R., 306 (1873), Ramasami v Apparu, 12 M., 9 and s 42, post

(1) See Lala Ranjal v Donarnyan Tueury 6 B. L. R. 90 (1870), Dourge Day v Averdadur Cormar, 6 W R. 232 (1868), Kondon Nath v Direc Chandler, 20 W N., 3516 (1873), and remarks of Couch, C. J., in Nommat Ali v Gorran Davis, W R. 355 (1874), and of Uniter, J., in Gujia Loli V Fattle, Lall, 6 C, 170 (1880), (and see R v Kethal, Molanjan, 8 C, 993 (1882), remarks of Garth, C. J.

Garth, C. J.

(2) Per Couch, C. J., in Neamed Ah. v. George Doss, 22 W. R., 366

(3) Guttee Kotharto. Bhuhal Kotharto. 22 W. R. 457 (1871), (the judgments appear to be safer perica) Respectand v. Hur Kirkon. 23 W. R. 162 (1875), Bustara Bohani v. Jugo Bundhers. 23 W. R. 203 (1875), Jüdeck Chander v. Dran Burdhoo. 24 W. R., 205 (1875); Luchmedhar Pattina V. Roghecher Nangh, bb. 241; Hunon

Kooer v Shen Gobind, 16, 431 Omer Dull v. Burn, 16, 470 (1875), [ex-parte decree]

(4) 6 C , 171

(5) See the following cases in which the principle laid down in Gujiu Lall v. Fatteh Lall was concurred in and followed Hara Lall v A Halls, 11 C L. R., 530 (1882), Ram Narain v. Ramcoomar Chunder, 11 C., 562 (1885), Mohendra Lall . Resembly Dass. 12 C., 207 (1885) . and affirmed in Surendra Nath v. Brojo Nath. 13 t (F B), 352 (1886), Ince Gobind Chunder v. Srs Gobind, 24 C , 330 (1896)] "In the conclusion of that judgment we fully concur." per Tyrrell, J. Duthort, J. Shadal Khan v Aminul-lah Khan 4 A . 96 (1841) post , R v. Keshab Mohajan R v Udit Pershad, 8 C . 993 (1882) . are remarks of Edge, C J , Collector of Gorath. pur v. Palakdham, 12 A. 13 (post), (18%); and are as to the effect of this decision the remarks of Parker, J., and Handley, J., in Buathamma v. Acella, 15 M , 23 (1891), post.

must be such as would operate by way of estoppel or res judicata.(1) This interpretation knowever of the judgment is, it is submitted, incorrect. What the Full, Bench held was that a judgment or decree was not admissible under this section, but it might be evidence under others by virtue of the operation of section 43; and that in any case a judgment not inter parties was not admissible in proof of the particular point it decided, that is it was not admissible in its character of a judicial opinion and as having the effect more or less of res judicial.

In a subsequent suit, however, which was one for rent, the amount of the land held by the defendant was questioned, and it was contended that the land must be measured with a hath of 21% inches and not one of 18 mehes, as claimed by the plaintiff (zemindar), and certain decree obtained by the zemindar against other tenants in the same pergunnah, in suits in which 18 inches had been taken as the hath were tendered in evidence in support of the plaintiff's contention that the customary hath in the pergunnali was one of 18 inches, the Subordinate Judge at first ruled the decrees to be madmissible on the authority of Gujiu Lall v. Fatteh Lall, but it was held that they afforded some evidence in corroboration of the plaintiff's case, and that they furnished evidence of particular instances in which a custom was claimed (2) It may, however, be said that the judgments in this case were admissible as referring to a matter of a public nature, viz , the customary bath in the pergunnah So also where the issue was whether certain land was lakhira; or cent-paying, previous decrees were admitted to show the character of the land, and to show that in respect of the land which was alleged to be lakhira; a claim for ient was successfully made on a former occasion.(3) It was said "We do not use them as evidence in the way in which judgments and decrees are often used between the same parties, that is to show that there has been a previous adjudication on a question of title. We take it that these decrees are not evidence of any Jecision of a Court of Justice, that the land is mal or lakhwai. We do not consider that me so deciding we are in any way violating the principle laid down in the Full Bench decision in Gunu Lall v. Fatteh Lall On the contrary, and in order to prevent there being any misapprehension, we desire to say that we entirely concur in the principle of that decision so far as it was concerned with the facts which were then before the Court "(4) Though this case recognised the principle laid down in Guiju Lall v Fattch Lall it would seem to be excluded by it, in that the previous litigations were used not merely to show that claims for rent had been made but that such claims were successful. The claims could only take on this character by reference to the judgments as adjudications so asserting it. In a suit for possession of land the defendant offered in evidence a judgment obtained by him in a suit to which the plaintiff or his predecessors in title were not parties Objection wa inter partes . and was therefor inadmis f Davies v.

Lorendes(b) and Ramessur tul. (6) that this judgment was admissible in evidence to show the character of the defendant's 7) The case of ) recover lands. persons unconbe let into possession of the estate as his own property, was held admissible on behalf of the

<sup>(1)</sup> Surenter Nath v. Broga Nath, 13 C., 352
353 (1996).

<sup>(2)</sup> Januarille v. Romani Kast, 15 C., 233 (1887).

<sup>(3)</sup> Hira Lell v. Hills, 11 C. L. R., 528 (1882) (4) Per Fubl. J., & , 570, Ramezeur Perced v.

hours Belian, 4 C., 633 (1978), referred to, (5) I Bing, N. C., 607, defendant not as proof of any of the facts therein stated, but for the purpose of explaining in what character the father, through whom the defendant claimed. had afterwards taken actual possession of the estate.(1) Evidence of this kind is clearly admissible. The matter again became the subject of a Full Bench decision in the case of Surendra Nath Pal Chowdhry v. Brojo Nath Pal Chowdhru (2) The referring Judges in that case observed that the authority of Gunu Lall v. Fattch Lall(3) appeared to have been shaken by the subsequent Privy Council decision in the ease of Ram Bahadur Singh v. Lucho Kocr(4) (in which the Privy Council held that a previous judgment, though not res judicata, was evidence in the case) and by the decision of the Calcutta Court in the case of Pears Mohun Mukerji v Drobo Mons Dabia(5), and in the case of Hira Lal Pal v. Hills (6) already mentioned. The Court further observed that it did not understand why, if the judgments which were dealt with in the two last-mentioned cases could be properly used as evidence for one purpose or another. the judgment adduced in this case could not be used as evidence. Bench, however, upon the authority of Guiju Lall v. Fatteh Lall (7) considered the judgment to be inadmissible In a subsequent case, (8) these two Full Bench decisions were distinguished, it being held that a decree for possession made by a Court under the month section of the Specific Rehef Act in a suit beyond the pecuniary limits of that Court's jurisdiction, although not res judicata, was some evidence of dispossession by the defendants in a subsequent suit against the same defendants to recover mesne profits. In this case the fact of the judgment having been given was admissible. of the Calcutta High Court(9) more recently expressed the opinion that the decisions in the case of Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall, (10) and Surendra Nath Pal Choudhry v. Brojo Nath Pal Choudhry,(11) must be regarded as materially qualified owing to the decisions of the Privy Council they referred to,(12) because these decisions establish that under certain circumstances and in certain cases the judgment in a previous suit to which one of the parties in the subsequent suit was not a party may be admissible in evidence for certain purposes and with certain objects in the subsequent suit. This expression of opinion, which was obter, has been dissented from by Geidt, J. in a subsequent case(13) to which reference will be made (14) In the last-mentioned case the question was whether one A was a partner with J. An award made by an arbitrator in a previous suit brought by A against J was tendered to show the alleged partnership. Geidt, J, held that the award was not admissible; Ghose, J., that it was agreeing in the view that the Privy Council decisions referred to had qualified the rule laid down by the Full Bench and stating that he was disposed to think that the Privy Council had in these cases adopted the dissentient opinion of Mitter, J, in the Full Bench.

<sup>(5) 1</sup> Bing, N C, 607, (6) 4 C., 613, v. ante

<sup>(7)</sup> Pears Maken v. Drohomogs, 11 C., 745

<sup>(1995);</sup> in this case the judgment was properly admissible under a 43.

The Bombay High Court has concurred (15) in the judgment given in Bombay Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall. In the case cited the plaintiff sued to recover decinons. arrears of rent for a certain shop alleging the annual rent to be Rs 250. The defendant contended it was only Rs. 60. In support of his allegation, the

<sup>(1) 1</sup> Bing N C, 607, s c, 6 M & Gr, 471, 520 , Taylor, Ev , § 1668 , see note to a 43, post

<sup>(2) 13</sup> C . 352 (1886)

<sup>(3) 6</sup> C , 171 (1880)

<sup>(4) 11</sup> C, 301 (1894)

<sup>(5) 11</sup> C, 745 (15%5)

<sup>(6) 11</sup> C. L. R., 528 (1882)

<sup>(7) 6</sup> C., 171 (18%)

<sup>(8)</sup> Jainullah Sheilh v. Inn Khan, 23 C., 69

<sup>(1896)</sup> (9) Tepu Khan v. Rojons Mohun, 25 C., 522.

s c, 2,C W N, 501 (1898) (10) 6 C, 171 (1880)

<sup>(11) 13</sup> C, 352 (1886)

<sup>(12)</sup> Ram Ranjan v Ram Narain, 22 C. 53 (1895) Bhitto Kunwar v Kesho Pershad. 24

I A, 10 (1897)

<sup>(13)</sup> Abinash Chunder v Poresh Nath, 9 C. W. N , 402 (1904)

<sup>(14)</sup> v post, p 178 (15) In Ranchhoddas v. Bapu Narhar, 10 B.

plaintiff relied upon the evidence of his brother and two entries in his handwriting in the book of the firm of which the plaintiff's brother and the defendant were partners. To prove the bon't fides of these entries the plaintiff offered in evidence a judgment given in favour of the plaintiff's brother in a suit brought by the defendant, charging him (the plaintiff's brother) with improperly debiting their firm with Rs. 250 as the rent of the shop. It was held that the judgment was not admissible, Sargent, C. J., remarking: "As to the term 'transaction,' it is doubtless one of large import, and might, although by a strained use of it, be held to be applicable to proceedings in a suit : but as the result of holding it to be so applicable in the thirteenth section would be to effect a most important departure from the English rule of evidence which would make judgments, decrees and verdicts of juries only admissible in matters of public interest it may well be doubted if such was the intention of the framer of the Code "(1) More recently it has been said ." It is not easy to reconcile this conflict of views in particular instances, but apparently the cases, which decide that judgments, not inter partes, are not admissible in evidence, proceed (hiefly on the ground that those judgments are sought to be used as having the effect, more or less, of res judicata. For that purpose a judgment inter partes alone can be admitted in evidence, but for other purposes where judgments are sought to be used to show the conduct of the parties, or show particular instances of the exercise of a right or admissions made by ancestors, or how the property was dealt with previously they may be used under the eleventh or thirteenth section as exceptions recognised under section 43 as relevant evidence."(2) decision was followed in the undermentioned case. The indements rejected by the lower Appellate Court were not inter partes but were in suits brought by other creditors against the same defendants, in which the existence of the partnership denied in the suit was asserted with success. It was held that the judgments were admissible in evidence and must be treated as relevant but not as conclusive as to the existence of the partnership (3) Sed guare. And in a recent case a house had been passed to the plaintiff by a registered sale-deed by his deceased father, and subsequent to the sale certain mortgagees of the father had brought a suit on the mortgage against the plaintiff and his father and mother, on which suit the sale had been held to be a sham transaction On the plaintiff bringing a suit against his brother, his brother's wife and the widow of a deceased brother, to recover possession of the house on the strength of the sale-deed, the defendants relied on the judgment in the mortgage suit. It was held by Russell (actg. C. J.,) on second appeal that this case could not be distinguished from the two last-mentioned cases, and that the proceedings plaintiff in the suit on the mortgage were admissible as relevant evidence because the plaintiff and the defendants, either by themselves or their predecessors, were parties to that suit, and that the said proceedings came within the words "particular instances in which the right was claimed." and it was held by Beaman, J., that the judgment in the suit on the mortgage was admissible to prove that the genuineness of the sale-deed was then questioned but could not be used for any ulterior purpose.(4)

RIGHT OR CUSTOM.

Madras

The Madras High Court has also concurred(b) in the judgment given in Gujju Lell v. Fattch Lell. In a suit brought by the trustees of a temple to recover from the owners of certain lands in certain villages money claimed

L. R., 651 (1909))

Ib., 442: Naranji Bhikhabhas v. Dipa Umed, 3 B., 3, referred to and distinguished.
 Per Ranade, J., in Lakshman v. Amril, 24
 59, 509 (1980).
 Govenshi Jharer v. Chhidalal i sin, 2 Bom.

<sup>(4)</sup> Mahamad Amin v. Hasan (1906), 31 B., 143; and see Dharmdar v Dhundira; (1903), 5 Bom L. R., 230

<sup>(5)</sup> In Subramanya v. Paramaswaran, 11 M., 123 (1887), Ramasams v. Appavu, 12 M., 13 (1887).

under an alleged right as due to the temple, judgments in other suits against other persons in which claims under the same right had been decreed in favour of the trustees of the temple were admitted.(1) It was said: "We concur with the majority of the learned Judges who decided, in Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall, that a judgment of the character there under consideration, viz., as to whether a certain person was or was not the heir to another, is neither a transaction nor a fact in the sense in which the words are used in the thirteenth section of the Evidence Act, and that the judgment referred to in that case could not be given in evidence; but the judgments filed in this case are not of the character under consideration in that case; the question for determination in the previous suits was whether the payments then claimed, and which are in contest in the present suits, were claimable as of right, and in one case whether they were so claimable from a particular class of persons, viz., Christians; and it appears to us that, when a right of the character now in question is at issue, such judgments are admissible in evidence as evidence of 'particular instances in which the right or custom was elaimed,' and 'in which its exercise was disputed, asserted or departed from,' and was further adjudicated upon, and that the right was a right of the character dealt with under the thirteenth section of the Evidence Act. The case for the appellants 18-and there is evidence in support of it in the case before us as to at least six of such villages that, from those who hold lands in a large number of villages in the vicinity of the temple, the payment claimed is demanded as of right, and that such payments have been made after suits from time to time brought and determined in reference to the liability of persons occupying lands in these villages; and this being so, we are further of opinion that the decisions in the former suits are decisions which relate to 'matters of a public nature' within the meaning of section 42 of the same Act. The question for determination before us is not dissimilar in principle from that reported in Naranji Bhikhabhai v. Dipa Umed.(2) The right now claimed appears to us to be as much a right of the character indicated in the thirteenth section of the Evidence Act as the right the District

"(3) In this admissible to explain the nature of the payments made, viz., that they had been made after to his father's vendor, (c) an order made in certain execution-proceedings in which was recited a petition by his father asserting his title; (d) a ludgment obtained by his father in which his title was recognized. Neither the defendants nor their predecessors were parties to any of these instruments or proceedings: hdd that none of these documents were conclusive, since the defendants were not parties to them, but that they were relevant evidence as tending to show that the plantiff's ancestors had dealt with the site as their own for a long term of years.(4) In this case documents A and B were clearly admissible as documents of title. Dwas an assertion of right, C the judgment set out the pleas of the parties and from these it appeared that the defendant's predecessors had parted with the property to the plantiff's father, though the admission was attempted to be avoided by an allegation of an agreement to return the property. But as to this it may doubtless be said that the pleadings

<sup>(1)</sup> Ramasams v Appavu, 12 M., 9 (1687).

<sup>(2) 3</sup> B . 3. supra

<sup>(3)</sup> Ramasams v. Appare, 12 M., 13 (1887). referred to in Byathamma v. Arula, 15 M., 24

<sup>(1891) (</sup>v post); and l'ythialinga v. Venbatachala,

<sup>16 31 , 196 (1892).</sup>

<sup>(4)</sup> Venkatzsams v. Vankatredds, 15 M., 12 (1890).

would have been equally effectual for the purpose as the judgment. In Byathamma v. Avalla it was pointed out "that in Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall the sole object for which it was sought to prove the former judgment was to show that in another suit against another defendant, the plaintiff had obtained an adjudication in his favour on the same right claimed, and it was held that the opinion expressed in the former judgment was not a relevant fact within the meaning of the Evidence Act. In the case before us it is not the adjudication which it is sought to prove, for the point was never adjudicated upon, but the judgment is tendered in evidence as proof that in a particular instance the judgment, wholly irrespective of the particular decision arrived at in the suit.
This, we think, is a relevant fact. "(1) In this case the document referred to as a judgment was an entry in the Court-diary of the District Munsif and was held to be admissible under section 35, post

dilahasad decimons

The question has been considered by a Full Bench of the Allahabad High Court in the case of The Collector of Gorakhpur v Palakdhari Singh.(2) In this case the plaintiff. Palakdhari Singh, had sued a Hindu widow, to establish his right of inheritance in certain villages which had belonged to the widow's husband, to have it declared that he had died childless and that she had falsely put forward a child of unknown parentage as her husband's son. The widow was the only defendant, and she maintained that the child in question was her son by her deceased husband. The suit was dismissed on the merits by the Court of first instance and by the High Court on appeal After the widow's death the plaintiff brought a suit against one Dalip Narain Singh, whom the Collector as Manager of the Court of Wards had accepted as the minor son of the defendant in the first suit, and against the Collector as such Manager for possession of the same villages upon the same grounds as those put forward in the former suit -Held by the Full Bench that the judgments of the Court of first instance and the High Court in the former suit did not operate as res judicata in the present suit, but (Brodhuist J, dissenting on this point)(3) that they were admissible in evidence in the present suit Held, per Edge, C. J. and Tyriell J, that the judgments were not admissible under the eighth section of the ninth section, nor was either of them a "transaction," or a "fact." within the meaning of the thirtmenth section. But the record and not the judgments alone in the former suit was admissible under the clause (b) of the thirteenth section, independently of section 43, as evidence of a particular instance in which the alleged right of the plaintiff to the property now in suit was at the time claimed and disputed, the word "right," in both clauses (a) and (b) of the thirteenth section, including a right of ownership, and not being confined, as held by the majority in Gujiu Lall v Fatich Lall, to incorporeal rights. But the reasons given in the judgments in the former suit for the decree could not be considered in the present suit Straight, J., that under section 43 of the Evidence Act the question was whether the existence of the former judgments was a fact in issue or relevant under some other provisions of the Act. Here the question was not as , to the existence of the former judgments and decrees as a fact in issue or relevant fact; but though section 43 declared judgments, orders and decrees, other than those mentioned in section 40, 41, and 42, irrelevant qua

I) I. S. V. at pp. 21, 24 (1991), Krismassin, R. Rajappida, M., 73, 77 (1987).
 (2) 12 A., 1 (F. B.) (1889) has to the effect of this decision see Latchman v., Javid, 23 B, 599 (1990); a case prior to this will be found in 4 L. Shadal, Akra, v., Javia addish Akra, where at p. 90, 1strell, J., and Dathont, J., say. "In Prop. 1strell, J., and Dathont, J., say."

conclusions of that judgment (Gujju Lall v. Fattch Lall), we fully concur " judgments, orders and decrees, it did not make them absolutely inadmissible when they were the best evidence of something that might be proved aliunde. The former judgments and decrees were not themselves "transactions" or "instances" within the meaning of the thirteenth section; but the suit in which they were made was a transaction or an instance in which the defendant's right as the hving son of the widow's husband to obtain proprietary poss ssyon of his father's estate was claimed and recognized(1) and, to establish that such a transaction or instance took place, they were the best evidence. Per Brodhurst, J.: That for the reasons given by Garth, C. J., and Jackson and Pontifex, JJ., in Gujpu Lall v. Fatteh Lall, the judgments in the former suit were not admissable in evidence. Per Mahmood, J.: That for the reasons given in the dissentient judgment of Mitter, J., in Gujpu Lall v. Fatteh Lall, the former judgment of the High Court was admissible in evidence.

<sup>(3)</sup> Per Brodhurst, J. My opinions on the points that have been referred are in accordance with the judgment of the Court in Gujju Lall v. Fattek Lall, "" b. at p. 27.

The Privy Council have in three reported instances admitted in evidence Privy Council judgments and orders not between the same parties (2)

Where to actions of ejectment by a zemindar, the defendants pleaded a ghaticals tenure of the mouzahs in dispute under permanent mokurrurs and dur-mokurrure rights at fixed rents from before the decennual settlement, it was held that certain decrees in 1817 and 1845 relating thereto, to which the zemindar's predecessors in title were not parties, but which sustained the defendant's claim to hold at fixed rents, were admissible in evidence, as shewing ancient possession and assertion of title many years ago, and that taken with other evidence, they established the defendant's possession at a uniform rent for so long a period as to raise the presumption that the tenure was and is of permanent nature.(3) The judgments and decrees had also been admitted by the Lower Courts. The first Court was of opinion that they might id that the title on which the as 1788, and at subsequent . e decrees, that the orders passed in those decrees would not be evidence against the plaintiff's title, nor could they be considered as proving the defendants' title; but that they might be accepted to show ancient possession and to show that the title was asserted rightly or wrongly many years ago. The High Court observed orders passed in those decrees would not be evidence against the plantiff's title, nor could they be considered as proving the defendants' title; but that they might be accepted to show ancient possession and to show that the title was asserted rightly or wrongly many years ago. The High Court observed that the Lower Court had only used those judgments as evidence, that there was lityation between the parties thereto at the dates to which they relate; and that in former suits the parties asserted the same rights which they were then asserting; and that to this extent the judgments were admissible even though the plaintiff was no party to them. The Privy Council made no reference to this section. It is true that it cited the findings of the Lower Courts without disapproval, but it does not appear whether it approved of them. These findings appear to have been referred to on the contrary for the purpose of answering the appellant's contention that the Lower Courts had used certain of the statements of the parties as recorded in <sup>(1)</sup> Sed qu whether the judgment could be used as a recognition of right. The defendant's right was only recognised in the sense that in the opinion of the Court it was found to exist that is adjudicated one. By "recognition" in this section was meant, it is submitted, admitted on "adjudicated" upon v, you, but see also Ahnash Chandra v, Paresh North, 9 C W. X., 602 at p 415; per Ghose, J., "et it is a transaction recognising the right of Ahnash in that property within the meaning 6a. 13 of the Evidence.

Act and Gujju Lall v Fatteh Lall at p 181, per Mitter, J, where he held that the judgment was relevant because it recognised the right of the plaintiff and made therefore the existence of the fact in issue in the subsequent suit highly probable the judgments as evidence against him. The Privy Council by reference to the findings show that they did not. But the ground on which the Privy Council itself admitted the evidence was that inasmuch as by the earlier judgment a decree for rent was given at a certain rate at which rate the land had all along been held, it was competent to use the judgment as evidence showing the rent paid for the possession at and prior to that date then nearly 80 years ago. It was not the correctness of the decision, but the fact that there had been a decision that was established by the production of the judgment, and the existence of the judgment was admissible as a fact in issue under section 43, post.(1) The result of this decision appears to be that the judgments were admitted under section 43 as facts in issue and also (if the Privy Council be taken to have affirmed the decision of the High Court on this point) as evidence of assertions of right under this section. But neither Court treated the judgments as adjudications having the effect of a kind of qualified and inconclusive res judicate (2).

<sup>(2)</sup> See Tepu Khan v Rojoni Mohun, 25 C., 522; s c. 2 C W N., 501, 503 (1899).

<sup>(3)</sup> Ram Ranjan v. Ram Narain, 22 Ind. App., 60 (1894). s c., 22 C., 533.

In Bhitto Kunwar v Kesha Pershad Misser, (3) their Lordships of the Privy Council, speaking of a judgment in a former suit against one of the defendants, Bacha Tewari, observed . "this decision is not conclusive against Bacha Towar, as the suit was not between the same parties as the present suit, but their Lordships agree with the Subordinate Judge that it was admissible as evidence against him " In this case a decree obtained against the defendant that a will was revoked was held not to be res judicata in a suit against him brought by other plaintiffs, but admissible as evidence against him. There is no mention of this section in the judgment and the grounds upon which the previous decisions were admitted are not stated in the report. An opinion, however, has been expressed that as the matters in controversy in the suit in which the decree was passed related to public charitable purposes the prior decision was brought within the terms of section 42 which treats of judgments relating to matters of a public nature.(4) Whether the judgment might or might not have been admissible on this ground, the Authors have ascertamed from the records of the Allahabad High Court(5) that this was not the ground on which '

the Privy Council)

Septe

<sup>(1)</sup> Per Gentt, J., in Abmook Chandra v. Porcek Nath, D. C. W. N., 402, 408 (1904). The judgement, however, was not treated as proof that the famount decreed was the correct amount payable, but that that particular amount was by the decree made payable, b. at p. 410.

<sup>(2)</sup> Which at pear to have been the view entertained by Ghose, J., in the last-mentioned suit.

<sup>1 (</sup>which is that referred to by the Privy

(3) 24 L.A., 10 (1897), 1 C. W. N., 265

<sup>(4)</sup> Abinash Chandra v Poresh Nath, 9 C. W. N., 402 (1904), at p. 400, per Geidt, J., this was doubted by Ghose, J., in the same case; see p.

<sup>(5)</sup> See Appendix,

Council), by which certain outsides sought to have it declared that the estate was in the possession of Bacha Tewari (who was as well as his mortgagee, a party to that suit), as a trustee under the will. It was, however, held in that suit that the will was revoked and therefore the property was not subject to a At the date of that suit Bacha Teweri was in possession of his mosety. He continued to hold after the suit and held under a title which negatived the trust, namely, the title declared by the judgment in question. "This decision (the Subordinate Judge said and, as the Privy Council held, correctly) in the opinion of the Court is admissible as evidence against Bacha Tewari, although the plaintiff was not a party to it-as showing the character of the possession of Ramkishen and Bacha Tewari over the estate in respect of which the agreement of 1850 was made." . He could not after this decree have held as trustee when the trust was negatived by it. The judgment was therefore relevant and admitted not under this section, but its existence was either a fact in issue under the forty-third and fifth sections or relevant as explaining a fact in issue under the forty-third and ninth sections.

Neither of these decisions appear to affect the Full Bench decision in Guiju Lall v. Fatteh Lall.

In the later case of Dinomons Choudhrans v. Brosomohins Choudhrans(1) in which, however, this section was expressly referred to, the facts were as follows: - The suit was instituted by B. M. C. as the widow and executrix of H. N. C. against J. C. to recover possession of certain land on the allegation that it was partly a reformation on the original site of, and partly an accretion to, certain of her villages. In 1866, J. C. commenced to raise disputes as to the possession of H. N. C. whereupon proceedings took place in the Criminal Court under section 318 of the Criminal Procedure Code, XXV of 1861, in the course of which H. N. C. was found to be in possession of the land, and an order was passed by the Magistrate confirming his possession, Some time after, a third party, a neighbouring proprietor, commenced a dispute which also terminated by an order of the Criminal Court under section 530 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act X of 1872), dated 19th June 1876, in favour of II. N. C. In 1888, further possessory proceedings took place in the Criminal Court under section 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code of 1882, as the result of which the defendant J C was found to be in possession, and by an order of 31st December, 1888, she was confirmed in possession of the land in dispute. The Subordinate Judge dismissed the suit and rejected the Criminal Proceedings of 1876 as being madmissible in evidence against the defendant, she not having been a party to them The High Court in appeal admitted these proceedings as being relevant for the purpose of showing the identity of the land claimed in the suit with that which was claimed in 1876 and as showing that it was in existence at that time. On appeal to the Privy Council their Lordships observed. " These orders (made in 1867, 1876 and 1888) are merely police-orders made to prevent breaches of the "5 of the Criminal le property) the possession of the is in possession, the Magistrate is to make an order declaring such party to be entitled to retain possession until evicted in due course of law and forbidding all disturbance of such possession until such eviction. The Criminal Procedure Acts in force in 1806 and 1876 were to the same effect. These police-orders are, in their Lordship' opinion, admissible in evidence on general principles as well as under the thirteenth section of the Indian Evidence Act to show the

the following facts, all of which appear from the orders themselves, viz., who the parties to the dispute were; what the land in dispute was; and who was declared entitled to retain possession For this purpose and to this extent such orders are admissible in evidence for and against every one when the fact of possession at the date of the order has to be ascertained. If the lands referred to in such an order are described by metes and bounds. or by reference to objects or marks physically existing, these must necessarily he escertained by extrinsic evidence, i.e. the testimony of persons who know the locality. If the orders refer to a map, that map is admissible in evidence to render the order intelligible, and the actual situation of the objects drawn or otherwise indicated on the map must, as in all cases of this sort, be ascertained by extrinsic evidence. So far there appears to be no difficulty. Reports accompanying the orders or maps and not referred to in the orders may be admissible as hearsay evidence of reputed possession (Taylor on Evidence, § 517). But they are not otherwise admissible, unless they are made so by the thirteenth section of the Indian Evidence Act-To bring a report within that section the report must be 'a transaction in which the right or custom in question was created, claimed, modified, recognised, asserted or denied or which was inconsistent with its existence. These words are very wide and are wide enough to let in the reports forming 76 and 1888 Their Lordships are of it eri in secesying the report made in the

of which Mi Cohen objected."

It is true that the Privy Council refer to this section but their judgment shows that the "police-orders" as they are called but which were apparently the judgments or orders of Magistrates in Proceedings, under section 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code, were also admissible on "general principles." What these are is not stated. But as the Judicial Committee has also held that before a document can be admitted it must be shown to be admissible under the Evidence Act it must have here referred to some other section than the present one. This being so the expression of opinion as regards this section was obter. In fact the judgments or orders were admissible as facts in issue under the fifth section. The suit was to recover possession, and it was obviously admissible to show on the question whether a party had possession at a particular time that an order had been passed retaining him in possession. It might, of course, have been shown that notwithstanding such order he had not or did not get possession, but in the absence of such evidence the presumption would be that was ordered to be done was carried out. It is, however, clear that neither as facts in issue nor as "transactions" nor "instances" under this section were these orders treated as a kind of inconclusive res adjudicata; that is, it was not the correctness but the fact of the decision which was relevant. Were it not that the judgment of the Privy Council refers to this section it would create no difficulty at all. With all respect, however, it may be questioned how the order of the Magistrate could be a "transaction" or "instance" of the character mentioned in this section, except on the ground that it "recognised" the right to possession of a particular party or was "inconsistent" with the possession of the opposite party as to which, see post-What the reports were which were admitted is not stated in the decision, but this matter does not immediately touch that under discussion. It does not appear that the section was originally intended to refer to judgments, but to the acts and statements of persons which may be submitted for the consideration and determination of a Court and not to the judgments, decrees and orders of the Court itself. The section itself which is intelligible enough seems to have been intended to refer to matters such as those given in illustration of it. Considerable difficulties, however, arise

' last(1) expressly uder this section or "instance" to be otherwise. the further question is as to the use which may be made of judgments so admitted. It is not possible with certainty to say anything as to the last decision of the Privy Council as the particular grounds on which the judgment of 1876 was held to be admissible under this section were not stated. Possibly it was admitted as a recognition of right, or as being inconsistent with the right claimed by the defendant, or as evidence of an assertion of right on the part of the plaintiff. It is the last mentioned ground that the argument for the admissibility of judgments has commonly been founded. Acts of ownership in respect of the subject-matter of a litigation may be shown by proof of particular transactions or instances of the character mentioned in the section. These may be transfers of property such as gifts, sales, leases, mortgages or acts of enjoyment, such as the actual exercise of a right and the like. A claim, however, may be asserted or denied in a litigation as well as in or by ony other of the modes mentioned. It has therefore been said that such a litigation and not merely the judgment or decree only(2) is a transaction(3) or instance(4) within the meaning of this section and that the judgment and decree are admissible as evidence of the litigation in which they were rendered and pronounced (5) In this view of the case the relevant fact is the litigation, and the judgment is only the proof of it. There may be cases in which a judgment is the only proof of the assertions of the parties. But it may be objected that a claim is asserted or denied in the pleadings in the issues or in the evidence given in support or denial of those issues If these are available, are not they the proper evidence of the claim made ' The judgment is the judicial opinion rendered on the claims of the parties. It is not their claim, though it may in common with other parts of the proceedings record it. Whether judgments can be said to recognise or be inconsistent with rights has already been dealt In short great difficulties ensue in the application of this section to judgments. But whether admissible under this section or not, it is clear that the reasons(6) given for a former judgment or decree cannot be relied on to show that in sub-equent litigation either of the parties were right or wrong in their assertion or demal of the claim litigated and adjudicated upon. If in a suit by .1 against B, the former asserts a claim which is declared to be well founded by the judgment in that suit, such assertion may be evidence in a subsequent litigation between A and C, tending to show that in the last mentioned litigation A is also entitled to a decree But the opinion given in favour of A in the first suit is not relevant to prove that the judgment should also he in his favour in the subsequent suit. So to use a judgment is to use it in respect of the judicial apinion which it contains. Such an opinion may have been given on a different state of facts and was moreover rendered in the absence of the parties sought to be affected by it. Judgments considered as judicial opinions are only relevant under ss. 40-42. In this respect and to this extent the law appears to be the same now as it was before the Privy Council decisions which have been said to materially qualify it.

<sup>(1)</sup> Dimmoni Chardhrani · Brojamakini Chardhrani, 29 C., 187 (1991)

Collector of Gorath pur v. Palakdhars, 32 A., 25, 28 (1989); Tepu Khan v. Eapon Mohan,
 2 C. W. N., 26), 504 (1895); e. c., 25 C., 522.
 B. v. ante, pp. 165-170. It weems, however a somewhat forced use of language to call a littgation a transaction.

<sup>(4)</sup> Ib., v. ante, pp. 100 -170 . Journalable v.

Romani Kani, 15 C., 233 (1997), Ramasami V Appain, 12 M., 9 (1897)

<sup>(5)</sup> Teps Khan v. Eajoni Mohun, 2 C. W. N. 501, 504 (1909), s. c., 25 C., 522, S. M. Alijan v. Hara Chandra, S. A., 100 of 1902, Cal. H. C., 1 July 1904.

<sup>(6)</sup> The Collecter of Gorathpur v Palaldhari, 12 A . 1 (1889), Alijan v. Hara Chandra, supra

The decision of the Full Bench holds that a judgment not in rem or of a public nature and not inter parter is not relevant under this section " as proof of the particular point it decides" in the sense indicated. The sole object for which it was sought in this case to prove the former judgment was to show that in another suit against another defendant the plaintiff had obtained an adjudication in his favour on the same right claimed. plaintiff in short said " another Court has decided the same point in my favour so the decision should be in my favour again." The dissentient Judge thought that because the paintiff produced this prior favourable decision it therefore rendered the case of the plaintiff in the subsequent suit more probable. No decision of the Privy Council has ever sanctioned such a use of a judgment. But the existence of a judgment may be a fact in issue(1) or otherwise relevant.(2) Thus, if A has obtained a decree for the possession of land against B, and C, B's son, murders A in consequence, the existence of the judgment is relevant as showing motive for a crime (3) So again in a suit for malicious prosecution the judgment in the criminal proceeding is evidence to establish the fact of acquittal, the fact, namely, that the criminal proceedings terminated in favour of the plaintiff in the civil action.(4) Again a reference to the finding of a judgment may explain the character of a party's possession and the nature of the enjoyment had in the property in suit. (5) And so the finding of a judgment may be referred to in all other cases where the record is matter of inducement or merely introductory to other evidence.(6) And judgments are admissible where sought to be used to show the conduct of the parties, or to show particular instances of the exercise of a right, or admission made by ancestors or how the property was dealt with previously.(7) Other instances are afforded by the Privy Council decision cited.

Judgments, orders and decrees relating to matters of a public nature relevant to the enquiry, that is, public or general rights and customs, are relevant and admissible, but are not conclusive proof of that which they state (8)

The existence of any custom or right may be proved under this section by Proof of evidence of "transactions" or "instances."(9) A statement contained in right any deed, will or other document which relates to any such "transaction" as is mentioned in clause (a) is relevant, if the person by whom such statement is made is dead or cannot be found, or if he is incapable of giving evidence, or his attendance cannot be procured without an unreasonable amount of delay or expense.(10) The statement, written or verbal, giving the opinion of a person not called as a witness for similar reasons, as to the existence of any public right or custom, or matter of public or general interest as to the existence of which he would have been likely to have been aware, is relevant, provided it were made before any controversy as to such right, custom or matter had

<sup>(1)</sup> Ram Ranjan v Ram Narain, 22 C. 533 (1894), Dinomoni Choudhrani v Brojomohini

Chowdhrans, 29 C , 187 (1901) (2) Apparently (amongst others) under this section Dinomoni v Brojomohini Chowdhrani, supra, though it should be noted as already stated that in one sense the opinion was obiter as the judgment in question was held also to be admissible on general principles, v ante, Ram Ranjan v. Ram Naram, supra, if that decision admitted the decrees also on the grounds stated by High Court In so far as it may be held that these decisions admit judgments under this section they appear to have allowed the law laid down in Gujiw

Lall v Futteh Lall, according to which the section did not apply to judgments at all

<sup>(3)</sup> S 43, illust (d)

<sup>(4)</sup> v s 43, post

<sup>(5)</sup> Peary Mohan . Drobomoys Dalsa, 11 ( . 749 (1885), v ante

<sup>(6)</sup> See Commentary to s 43, post

<sup>(7)</sup> Lakshman v 4mrst, 24 B , 598, 599 (1900)

<sup>(8)</sup> v s 42, post, and note

<sup>(9)</sup> See in Jugmohandas Mongaldass v. Mangaldas Nathubhoy, 10 B. 543, observations on proof by instances

<sup>(10)</sup> S. 32, cl. (7), post, and Harronath Mullick v Nittanund, 10 B. L. R., 263, ante arisen.(1) When the Court has to form an opinion as to the existence of any general custom or right (this includes customs or rights common to any considerable class of persons), the opinion as to the existence of such customs or rights of persons who would be likely to know of its existence, if it existed, are relevant, (2) and the grounds upon which such opinions are based are also relevant,(3) Judgments, orders and decrees are relevant if they relate to matters. that is, rights and customs, of a public nature, but they are not conclusive proof of that which they state.(4) "The most satisfactory evidence," it has been said. " of an enforcement of a custom is a final decree based on the custom "(5) Customs being in derogation of the general rules of law, must be construed and proved strictly (6) In Ramalakhmi Ammal v. Shivanantha Perumal Sethurayer the Privy Council said - Their Lordships are fully sensible of the importance and justice of giving effect to long-established usages existing in particular districts and families in India , but it is of the essence of special usages, modifying the ordinary law of succession, that they should be ancient and invariable, and it is further essential that they should be established to be so by clear and unambiguous evidence "(7) The course of practices upon which the custom rests must not be left in doubt but be proved with certainty.(8) "The most cogent evidence of custom is not that which is afforded by the expression of opinion as to its existence, but the examination of instances in which the alleged custom has been acted upon, and by the proof florded by judicial or revenue records or private records or receipts that the custom has been enforced." (9) "The acts required for the establishment of customary law ought to be plural, uniform and constant. They may be rudicial decisions, but these are not indispensible for its establishment, although some have thought otherwise." (10) The evidence should be such as to prove the uniformity and continuity of the usage and the conviction of those following it, that they were acting in accordance with law, and this conviction must be inferred from the evidence. Evidence of acts of the kind, acquiescence in those acts, their publicity, decisions of Courts, or even of panchavals upholding such acts, the statements of experienced and competent persons of their belief that such acts were legal and valid will all be admissible, but it is obvious that, although admissible, evidence of this latter kind will be of little weight if unsupported by actual examples of the usage asserted.(11) A customary right to impose a charge is not proved when all the residence of such custom is the testimony of a single witness who says that he paid it, and accounts extending back to twenty-five years, which show that demands for the charge were made on certain tenants, but which do not show that it was ever paid.(12) What the law requires before an alleged custom can receive the recognition of the Court and so acquire legal force is satisfactory proof of usage so long and invariably acted upon in practice as to show that it has, by common consent, been sub-

<sup>(1) 8 32,</sup> cl. (4), por

<sup>(2)</sup> S 49, post

<sup>(3)</sup> S 51, year

<sup>(4) 5 42,</sup> post, and notes

<sup>(5)</sup> Gurdayat Mot . Jhanda Mal, 10 1 , 588 E. # 42. Dent

<sup>(6)</sup> Hurmershad v. Shro Dyal, 3 L A. 265; Beni Madhuh v. Jas Keishna, 7 B L. R., 154.

<sup>(7)</sup> Ramalolkim Ammol v. Secanananthe Perumal, 17 W. R., 553, onte, Musamat Parlate Kuar v. Ran: Chandrapal Kuar, 8 0 C, 94.

<sup>(8)</sup> Sirayananja Perumal v Mutu Ramlinga,

<sup>3</sup> Mail. H. C. H. 77, ande. (9) Lackman Ras v. 11tar Khan, I. 1, 440; per Turner, J. t as to proof of instances see l'alematha: v Herbar, 3 B., 34 (1817). (10) Tara Chand v. Reeb Rom. 3 Mad. H. C R.

<sup>57,</sup> ante. As to the plurality of acts and the eaus probands in the case of an allegation of custom, see Bean Rancholdas v Rawal Nathuthan, 21 B , 116, 117 (1895), and see further as to onus, the case of Rahimathai v. Hirbai, 3 B., 34 (1877)

<sup>(11)</sup> Gopalaggas v. Raghupatsatogan, 7 Myd. II. C R . 254 (1873); but sen Eranyols Illoth v. Eranpole Illath, 7 M . 3 (1883)

<sup>(12)</sup> Kumaru Redds v. Nagayasami Thambicks Nactor (1907), 31 M , 17; and see Peary Mohan Mukeper v Jole Kumar Mukeper (1906), 11 C. W. X., 83

mitted to as the established governing rule of the particular family, class or district or country.(1)

Local usage (deachar), if it really exist, being a custom prevalent over a whole district and not confined to one particular estate must, from its universality, be more easily susceptible of proof than family custom or usage. To prove a local custom the exidence must be precise and conclusive.(2) See the undermentioned case observations on the usage of books of history to prove in local custom (3)

A caste-custom prohibiting widows from adopting, is one which before the Court can give judicial effect to it, ought to be established by very clear proof that the conscience of the members of the caste had come to regard it as forbidden. It must be shown that a uniform and presistent usage has moulded the life of the caste.(4)

In order to establish a family-custom at variance with the ordinary law of inheritance, it is necessary that it should be established by clear and nou tive proof.(5) (v. ante). To establish a kulachar or family-custom of descent one at least of two things must be shown-either a clear, distinct and positive . tradition in the family that the kulachar exists; or a long series of instances of anomalous inheritance from which the Lulachar may be inferred (6) It is said in the case of Sumrun Singh v. Khedun Singh(7) that "to legalise any deviation from the strict letter of the law, it is necessary that the usage should have been prevalent during a long succession of ancestors, when it becomes known by the name of kulachar." By a distinct tradition in the family supplies the place of ancient examples of the application of the usage (8) It has been doubted whether evidence of the acts of a single family, repugnant or antagonistic to the general law, can establish a valid custom or usage. There is, however, nothing to prevent proof of such a family usage.(9) The Courts will, from modern uniform usage, presume an indefinitely ancient usage of the like kind, in the absence of circumstances leading to a contrary inference, but no such presumption can be made where the practice is traced to a recent agreement.(10) Well established discontinuance must be held to destroy family custom and usage.(11) As to "Usage of Trade," v. nost.

It must be proved that the right or custom shown to have been exercised one particular occasion is the same with the right or custom which has to be proved. In England the customs of one manor are not admissible to prove

<sup>(1)</sup> Secanananja Perumal v. Muttu Ramalinga, 3 Mad H. C. R., 77, ante

<sup>3</sup> Mad H. C. R., 77, ante (2) Tekaet Doorga v. Tekaetner Iborga, 20 W.

R., 157, ante
(3) Fallabha v. Mudusudanan, 12 M., 495

<sup>(1889).
(4)</sup> Patel Vandravan v. Patel Manual, 16 B.,

<sup>470 (1891);</sup> see Juqmohandas Mangaldas v Mangaldas Nathubhas, 10 B, 528, ante.

<sup>(6)</sup> Raya Nagandar v. Ruphomath Norana, W. H. 1864, 29, anti- For recent Prryy Council decisions on family custom, see Nutar Pal v. Jos. Pal, 19. A. 1 (1896); Möhach Öhmder v. Sörtzi phan Ibad, 20 C., 343 (1902); in which decrees not inter parter were admitted as evidence of custom, Chandilas Bields v. Numa Kuncur, 23 A. 2. 23 (1901); see also Millathi. Ann. v. Subbarrays Maddar, 22 M., 650 (1901). [Migration of Hindu subpect of French Indian—custom Indian.

<sup>(6)</sup> Maharani Hiranath v Ram Narayan, 9 B L. R., 274, 294 (1872)

<sup>(7) 2</sup> Sel Rep., 116; New Ed., 147

<sup>(8)</sup> Maharani Hiranath v. Baboo Ram, supra, 295, as to kularhar determining succession to an impartible estate, seo Subramanya Pandya v. Siva Subramanya. 17 M, 316 (1894); Mohesh Chunder v Solruyhan Dhal, 29 C., 343 (1902)

<sup>(9)</sup> Tara Chand v. Reb Bom, 3 Mad H. C. R. S. T. & (1889). Medharora Raphaendra v. Bed. Irnshan, 4 Bom. H. C. B. (A. C.). 113 (1889). datingeuited in Haw Nanny v. Sandrabai, 11. B. H. C. R., 271 (1874); Musmant Partait. Kurr v. Rans Chandrapad Kun, 8. O. C., 94. See also Marrie Hundu Luw, § 51, 64 Ed. (1892).

<sup>(10)</sup> Rhau Nanoji v Sundrabri, 11 Bom. H. C. R., 271, ante, following Shepherd v Payne, 31 L. J. C. P., 297; and Lord Weterpark v Fennel, 7 H. L., 650, see also Ramanami v Apparu, 12 M, 11, ante, and Joy Kishen v. Doorga Narain, 11 W. R., 38, ante.

<sup>(11)</sup> Soorendranath v. Mussamut Heeromonee, 10 W R (P. C), 35 (1868); 1 C, 195, ante.

the instance of another unless some connection can be shown between them, as, for instance, that the custom in question is a particular incident of the general tenure which is proved to be common to the two manors.(1) So also where evidence of a right exercised in a particular locality was given, it was said: "Ownership may be proved by proof of possession, and that can be shown by . acts of enjoyment of the land itself , but it is impossible in the nature of things to confine the evidence to the very precise spot on which the alleged trespass may have been committed evidence may be given of acts done on other parts, provided there is such a common character of locality between those parts and the spot in question as would raise a reasonable inference that the place in dispute belonged to the plaintiff if the other parts did. It has been said in the course of argument that the defendant had no interest to dispute the acts of ownership not opposite his own land but the ground on which such acts are admissible is not the acquiescence of any party, they are admissible of themselves proprio vigore, for they tend to prove that he who does them is owner of the soil, though if they are done in the absence of all persons interested to dispute them, they are of less weight—that observation applies only to the effect of the evidence."(2) See notes to s 42. post

Usage of trade

It has been said "that these words are to be understood as referring to a particular usage to be established by evidence and perfectly distinct from that general custom of merchants, which is the universal established law of the land, which is to be collected from decisions legal principles and analogies, not from evidence in pais "(3) Thus evidence of general (ustom is not admitted to contradict the law merchant. A custom or usage of trade must in all cases be consistent with law.(4) That law has however been gradually developed by judicial decisions, ratifying the usage of merchants in the different departments of trade, where a general usage has been judicially ascertained and established, it becomes part of the law merchant which Courts of Justice are bound to know and recognise; but it is not easy to define the period at which a usage so becomes incorporated into the law merchant (5) Mercantile usage should be proved by evidence of particular instances and transactions in which it has been acted upon, and not by evidence of opinion only (6) Usage of trade may be proved by multiplying instances of usage of different merchants if it appears to be the same as that of other merchants (7) With reference to the evidence necessary to support an alleged usage the Privy Council said that "there needs not either the antiquity, the uniformity or the notoriety of custom, which m respect of all these, becomes a local law. The usage may be still in course of growth; it may require evidence for its support in each case, but in the result it is enough, if it appears to be so well-known and acquiesced in, that it may reasonably be presumed to have been an ingredient tacitly imported by the parties into their contract." (8) The usage must be shown to be certain, (9) and reasonable, (10) and so universally acquiesced in(11) that everybody in the

<sup>(1)</sup> Marquised Anglessy v. Lord Hatherton, 10 M. & W., 235, and Taylor, Ev., §320; Roscoc, N. P. Ev., 45, as to manorial rights, see note to $42, pod (2) Jones v. Williams, 2 M. & W., 326, per

Parke, B.: Taylor, Ev., 309, 310; sec a 11, ante (3) 1 Smith, L. Cae, 9th Ed., 591, 582

<sup>(4)</sup> Meyer v. Desser, 16 C. B. N. S , 660; Indian

Contract Act, s. 1. 4. (5) Romoe, N. P. v., 24, 25, and cases there

<sup>(6)</sup> Machenzer v Dunlop, 3 Macq. H. L. Cas., 22; tunningham v. Faulianque, 6 L. & P., 44, but we 49, god

<sup>(7)</sup> tollart Bros. v. Letterelu. Audan, 11 M., 405 (1887)

<sup>(8)</sup> Juggomohun Ghose v. Manickchand, T.A. Ind App., 232 (1859), s. c. 4 W. R. (P. U.), 8; per Sir J. Coleridge cited and applied in Palakdheri Riv. Manners, 23 C., 179–183 (1895) [usage in landholder's cetate].

(b) Vollart Bros. 1 I etterela Nadan, 11 M.

<sup>462, 466,</sup> ante (10) Arapa Nagal v. Nares Kesharji d Co. 8

Bom. H. C. R. (A. C.). 19 (1871), Rensordas Bhopilol v. Keersteng Hobanlol, I. Bom. H. C. II., 231 (1803); I. idlard Biros. v. Vellexelu Nadan 11 M. 462, 480, ante

 <sup>(11)</sup> See Muckenzie Lyall v Chamron Singh, 16
 C. 702 (1889), Volkart Bras. v. Vettevelu Nadan, 11 M. 402, 408, nate particular trade knows it, or might know it, if he took the pains to enquire.(I). If effect is to be given it, it must not be meanistent with the provisions of the Contract Act(2) or repugnant to, or inconsistent with, the express terms of the contract made between the parties (3)

14. Facts showing the existence of any state of mind—such parts nowas intention, knowledge, good faith, negligence, rashness, ill-will superstate or good-will towards any particular person, or showing the existence tence of any state of body or bodily feeling—are relevant, when bodily feel the existence of any such state of mind, or body, or bodily feeling, is in issue or relevant.

Explanation 1.—A fact relevant as showing the existence of a relevant state of mind must show that the state of mind exists, not generally, but in reference to the particular matter in question.

Explanation 2. But where, upon the trial of a person accused of an offence, the previous commission by the accused of an offence is relevant within the meaning of this section, the previous conviction of such person shall also be a relevant fact.(4)

Illustrations

(a) A is accused of receiving stolen goods knowing them to be stolen. It is proved that he was in possession of a particular stolen article.

The fact that, at the same time, (5) he was in presession of many other stolen articles is relevant, as tending to show that he knew each and all of the articles, of which he was in presession, to be stolen (6)

(b) it is accused of fraudulently delivering to another person a counterfeit coin which, at the time when he delivered it, he knew to be counterfeit

(1) I ollart Bros. v. Letteriju Nadan, Il M., 461, 462; Plave v. Alleock, 4 F. & F., (1074), per Willes, J., Foxal v. International Land Credit Co., 16 L., J. N. S., 637.

(2) Act 1X of 1872, s. 1 see Madhab Chander v. Bajcoomar Das, 14 B. L. R., 76 (1874).

(3) Volkart Bros. v. Vettevelu Nadan, 11 M., 461; J. G. Smith v. Ludha Ghella, 17 B., 129 (1892), see note to a 29, proviso 5, post

(4) These Explanations were substituted for the original explanation to s 14, by Act III of 1891, s 1 (1); see also Cr. Pr. Code, s 310 (tet V of 1899); and R. v. Niels Kunner, I. C. W., Y. 164 (1897); an which the alternation effected in this section and in s 54 are decreased.

(5) See 34 & 25 Vic , c 112, s 19; R v. Drage, 14 Cox, 85; R. v. Carler, 12 Q B. D , 522

(6) According to English law such evidence of intention in the case of indictments for receiing stolen goods is admissible only subject to certain limitations: see Steph. Dig. Art. 11, 34 &

35 Vic. c 112, s 19. Roscoe, Cr Ev., 12th Ed., 84, 778, 784, and cases there cited This illustration makes no reservation as to ownership or time . so that though the stelen property belonged to other person than the prosecutor and without reference to the lapse of time since it was stolen, evidence of its possession may, under the Act, be given against the accused, its weight in each case being left to the discretion of the Court Norton, Ev., 132, see Penal Code, s 411, and s 21, illust (d), and s. 114, illust (a) post R v Cassy Mul. 3 W. R . Cr . 10 (1865) . R. v Narain Bagdee, 5 W R., Cr . 3 (1866) , R v Motee Jolaha, 5 W. R , Cr , 66 (1866) , the test of a correct presumption of guilt in a prisoner not being able to account for the property on his premises is dependent on the fact whether the surrounding circumstances of the case really and properly raise such a presumption : Re Meer Yar Ab. 13 W. R. Cr. 70, 71 (1870); R. v. Samiruddin, 18 W. R.,

Cr. 25 (1872), see Wigmore, Ev. § 324.

The fact that, at the time of its delivery, .I was possessed of a number of other pieces of counterfeit coin, is relevant.(1)

The fact that A had been previously convicted of delivering to another person as genuine a counterfeit coin, knowing it to be counterfeit, is relevant. (2)

(c) A sues B for damage done by a dog of B's, which B knew to be ferocious.

The facts that the dog had previously bitten X, Y and Z, and that they had made complaints to B, are relevant.(3)

(d) The question is, whether A, the acceptor of a hill of exchange, knew that the name of the payer was fictitious.

The fact that A had accepted other bills drawn in the same manner before they could have been transmitted to him by the payee, if the payee had been a real person, is relevant as showing that A knew that the payee was a neutrinous person (4)

(e) A is accused of detaining B by publishing an imputation intended to harm the reputation of B.

The fact of previous publications by A respecting B showing ill-will on the part of A towards B, is relevant, as proving A's intention to harm B's reputation by the particular publication in question

The facts that there was no previous quartel between A and B, and that A repeated the matter complained of as he heard it, are relevant, as showing that A did not intend to harm the reputation of B.65)

(1) See R v Nur Mahamed 8 B , 223 (1883) R v Japram, 16 B , 414 (1892) The diustra tion speaks only of possession, but it is only a single illustration of the knowledge of in the section Evidence of other utterings would be equally receivable under the section to establish guilts knowledge Norton, Es., 134. R . Whiley 2 Leach, 986, cited in R . Vapiram . Blake v. Albron Life Assurance Society, 4 C. P. D. 102 . R v Green, J C & K , 204. In England it is now well settled that evidence of uttering counterfest com on other occasions than that charged is evidence to show guilty knowledge, Boscoe, Cr Er , 12th Ed , 83, 84 , and that utterings after that for which the indictment is laid may be given in evidence for this purpose as well as those which take place before R v Foster, 24 L. J. M C . 134 , ere s 15, illust (c), proof of the prisoner's conduct (as for example, that he passed by different names) is clearly admissible. R v. Tattersell, 2 Leach, 984 , R v. Phillips, 1 In 1' C' 105, Roscoe, Cr. Es , 12th Ed , 82, 83. 1, s 8, ante. In the case of forged instruments umilsr evidence of possession and uttering has been constantly admitted in England (v met). But whether evidence is admissible of nttering other forged instruments, where these are uttered subsequently to that with which the prisoner is charged, seems to some extent doubtiu). Roscor, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 82-81 (r. post) See Penal Code, or 239-241, 471, 463-477, passing and see a. 21, illust (e), post R v

And bounder 2 W. R. Cr. 5 (1865) [counterfeit seals and larged documents], Wigmore, Ev. 4 309

(2) This Illustration was substituted for the original Illustration (h) to * 14, by Act III of 1891, * 1 (2)

(1) See Thomas & Morgon, 2 C. M. & R., 456, Indy & Cor. I Starker, 258, Illusium v. Indocets, 6 Ev., 697, Cor. Y. Brodger, 12 G. B. N. S., 430, Itosco, N. P. E., 718. In the case of while and naturally ferceives animals under as loos, tigers, monkers, etc., it a not necessary to proce **even** (**, **c*, that the decidental knows and was well aware that the animals were ferceiven, dangerous on metalsoons as the case may be knowledge will be presumed (May **Eurelet*, 9 Q. B., 112*). But in the case of dogs, horses and other domestic animals. **error**, must be proced in order to entitle the planntiff to dangers. The law relating to Dogs by F. Lupton, 1888, pp. 4, 7, cf. alse Prud Code, **e. 280, Norton, Ev., 174.

(4) This is the case of Gibson v. Hunter, 2 H. Bl., 288; Roscoe, V. P. Ev., 85, Taylor, Ev., 4 338

(5) Not only as the publication of other libetic evidence, but the mode of their publication, to show quo animo they were published (see Bond Proples, 7 C. & P. 920. where libelines band bills were carned backwards and forwards before the planniffs door). As the extreme of previous ill-feeling throws light upon the animous with which the list was published, no does the alsence.

The fact that public notice of the loss of the property had been given in the place where A was, (1) is relevant, as showing that A did not, in good faith, believe that the real owner of the property could not be found.

The fact that A knew, or had reason to believe, that the notice was given fraudulently by C, who had heard of the loss of the property, and wished to set up a false claim to it, is relevant, as showing that the fact that A knew of the notice did not disprove 4's good faith.(2)

(t) A is charged with shooting at B with intent to kill him. In order to show A's intent, the fact of A's having previously shot at B may be proved (3)

- (1) A is charged with sending threatening letters to B. Threatening letters previously sent by A to B may be proved, as showing the intention of the letters (4)
  - (1) The question is whether A has been guilty of cruelty towards B, his wife.

Expressions of their feeling towards each other shortly before or after the alleged cruelty, are relevant facts (5)

(I) The question is, whether A's death was caused by poison

Statements made by A during his illness as to his symptoms, are relevant facts. (6)

(m) The question is, what was the state of A s health at the time when an assurance on his life was effected

Statements made by A as to the state of his health at or near the time in question, are relevant facts (7)

(n) A sues B for negligence in providing him with a carriage for hie not reasonably fit for use, whereby A was injured.

The fact that B's attention was drawn on other occasions to the defect of that particular carriage, is iclevant.

(1) "And in such a manner that if knew or probably might have known of it "Steph Dig. Art. 11, illust ()] See also Norton, Ev. 137; some evidence should be given that the notice was within his knowledge.

(2) In the minance given in the illustration the first is to negative good last, the second to relat the presumption of male files raised by the first; see Frend Code, a 405. Expl (2), Norton, Ex., 156, 131, Rosco, Oc. Ex., 17th Ed., 379 g. F. v. Tarabura, I Dem. C. C. R., 387; 18 L. J. M. C., 140; in which, and in the judgment of Parke, D., the whole law with reference to larreny of good found, is considered.

(3) This illustration, which is taken from the case of R. v. foet, it & P. t. 521, is in principle bid liftest (e), port, the difference between the two illustrations is that this illustration is a case of abouting with intent to kill, while illust, (e) is of ununder entirely he P. v. Volt, the prisoner was inducted for mulciculary shooting at the presencence. Exclusive was given that the presence first at the proceeding at the proceeding at the proceeding the day. In the course of the trust it was objected that the pre-sector eight not to pre eithere of two dament feloner, but Burrough, J., Aelf, that it was admissible, on the ground that the conself for the prisoner, by his cross-trammation of the presecuter, had endeavoured to show that the gan might have gone off by seculent that the second fring was evidence to show that the first wawilful, and to remove the doubt if any existed in the rands of the jury, see Roseco, Cr. Ev., 12th

Ed., 85. Norton, Ev., 137
(4) See R v Robinson, East, P. C., 1110, in which previous letters, sent by the prisoner were read in evidence as they seried to explain the letter on which he was indicated

(5) See Taylor, Ev. § 582 This and the two following illustrations relate to feelings, the first to mental feelings of "ill-will" or "good will." the two last to "bodily feelings" (v text post).

(6) See R. v. Glaster, 18 Cox , 471; R >, Johnson, 2 C & K , 354.

(7) See Arcson v. Kennaud, 8 East, 188; R.
 v. Nicholas, 2 C. & K., 246, 2 Cor, C. C., 136 1
 R. v. Gullerdge, 9 C. & P., 471.

The fact that B was beloughly negligent about the carriages which he left to hire, to professort (1)

(c) A is tried for the murder of B by intentionally shooting him dead

The fact that I on other organous shot at B is relevant, as showing his intention. to shoot B

The fact that if was in the habit of shooting at people with intent to murder them is irrelevant

(p) A is tried for a crime

The fact that he said something indicating an intention to commit that particular crime, is relevant

The fact that he said something indicating a general disposition to commit crimes of that class, is relevant.

Principle - If the existence of a mental or bodily state or bodily feeling is, as is assumed by the section, in issue or relevant, it is clear that facts from which the existence of such mental or bodily state or bodily feeling may be inferred are also relevant. The second Explanation is merely a particular application of the general rule contained in the body of the section. The rejection of the general fact by the first Explanation rests on the ground that the collateral matter is too remote, if indeed there is any connection with the lactum probandum

a. 3 (" Fact. ) e. 3 (" Relevant )

s. 21, cl. (2) (" Admission consisting of statements of existenceof state of mind or body.")

84. 102, 106, 111 (Burden of proof.)

Steph, Dig., Art. 11 and Note VI., Taylor, Ev., §§ 580-586, 150, 160, 812, 1665, 1666, 340-347, 188; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Fd., 50, 65, 114-124; Lindley, Partnership. 536; Chitty's Equity Index, 4th Ed., "Notice;" Brett's Leading Cases in Equity, 2nd Ed., 200; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 633-635, 847-855, 736 et seq.; Norton, Ev., 131-140; Swift, Ev., 111; Cunningham, Ev., 117, 119; Pollock's Law of Fraud in India (1894), 44, 45, 61, 65, 66, 76, 77; First Report of the Select Committee, 31st March 1871; Roscoe. Cr. Ev., 87-94, Lindley's Company Law, 5th Ed., 312; Bevan's Principles of the Law of Negligence (1889); Cr. Pr. Code, s. 310; Contract Act, s 17; Best. Ev., p. 86, $\ 255, 433; Wills, Ev., 50, 52; Wigmore, Ev., §§ 309-370, 581, 058-661, 1962, 1963.

COMMENTARY.

Facts, it has been seen, are either physical or psychological; the former states of being the subject of perception by the senses, and the latter the subject of con-body or being the subject of con-body or sciousness.(2) A person may testify to his own intent. But if his acts and feeling conduct are shown to be at variance and inconsistent with the intent he swears to, his own testimony in his own favour would ordinarily obtain very little credit.(3) Of facts which cannot be perceived by the senses, intention, fraud, good faith and knowledge are examples.(4) But a man's intention is a matter of fact capable of proof. "The state of a man's mind is as much a fact as the state of his digestion. It is true that it is very difficult to prove what the state of a man's mind at a particular time is: but if it can be ascertained it is as

<sup>(1)</sup> This and the two following illustrations refer to the Explanation, illust. (a) illustrates

&quot; negligence " as well, illust, (o) should be read in conjunction with illust. (1), ante . 1. text, post.

<sup>(2)</sup> v. ante, s. 3, sliust. (d)-(3) Wigmore, Ev., § 581

<sup>(4)</sup> See First Report of the Select Committee, 31st March 1871.

much a fact as anything else."(1) The latter class of facts, however, are incapable of direct proof by the testimony of witnesses, their existence can only be ascertained either by the confession of the party whose mind is their seat, or by presumptive inference from physical facts.(2) It has been debated whether the "opinion rule" excludes testimony to another person's state of mind (3) But it may be safely and in general said that a witness must speak to facts and let the inference from those facts be drawn by the Court or jury. (4) This section is in accordance with the principle laid down in numerous cases(5) that, to explain states of mind, evidence is admissible, though it does not otherwise bear upon the issue to be tried. As regards this principle there is no difference between civil and criminal cases.(6) The present section makes general provision for the subject, and the next section is a special application . of the rule contained in the present one The subject of the existence of states of mind is one of the most important topics with which judicial enquiries are concerned, in criminal cases they are the main consideration, and in civil cases they are often highly material, as for instance, where there is a question of fraud. malicious intention, or negligence. The present section is framed to avoid all technicalities as to the class of cases or the time within which the fact given as evidence of mental or bodily condition, must have occurred. The only point for the Court to consider, in deciding upon the admissibility of evidence under this section, is whether the fact can be said to show the existence of the state of mind or body under investigation (7) The same considerations will, it is apprehended, determine the question of the admissibility of facts subsequent to the fact in issue to prove intent and other like questions (8) So also, though the collateral facts sought to be proved should not be so remote in

<sup>(1)</sup> Edgington v Fitzmaurice, 29 Ch D, App 483 (1885), per Bowen, L J see Pollock's Law of Fraud in India, p. 61.

<sup>(2)</sup> See Balmaland Ram v. Ghansam Ram. 22 (' 301, 406 (1894), [proof of intention need not he direct, it will be enough if it is proved like any other fact (and the existence of intention is a fact) by the evidence of conduct and surrounding cir. comstances | The Deputy Remembrancer v Koruna Baudobs, 22 C., 164, 174 (1894), R v Rhutten Ram, 2 W R, Cr, 63 (1865) R v Betaree, 3 W R. Cr., 23 24, 27 (1865) Jescla mations as exidence of guilty intention conduct of prisoner]. Re Meer Far 46, 13 W R , Cr , 71 (1870) · [45] : P v Rookns Kant, 3 W R. (r., as (1865) [province of jury to judge of intention], R. v. Goobal Bourer, 5 W. R. Cr. 13 38 (1866) [to some degree, of course, the mtentions of parties, to a wrongful act must be judged of by the event], R. v. Gora Chand, 5 W. 1: . (7 . 45, 46 (1866) , [presumption of intention must depend upon the facts of each particular cant ]. R v. Shurufforddeen, 13 W. R. Cr., 25 (1870); [a guilty knowledge is not necessarily a thing on which direct evidence can be afforded It is a matter of conscience and connected with the secret motives of a man's conduct : it must be inferred from facts] : R. v. Bleesdale, 2 C. & h ... 765 (felonious intent); R v. Mogg. 4 C. & P. 361 (cb.), R. v. Lloyd, 7 C. & P. 318 (lustful intent); R v. Dholu. 23 A., 124 (1900), cited in enter to a. [ini [Assembling for the purpose of committing decosty explence of intention ]

R v Papa Sans, 23 M. 159 (1899), Deputy Legal Remembrancer v Karuna Bastoloi, supra [obtaining guis for prostrution, evidence of intent), and as to declarations as proof of intention, see R. v Peteberns 7 Cox. C C, 79 As to burden of proof see so 102 105, 106, por <sup>(4)</sup> Wigmore, Er., §§ 1982. 1993. The answer to rhe objection in §641 seems to be that in whereas the watness is submitting his inference to the jun. Because the jury, have themselves to draw the inference that is no reason why the witness should be allowed to do so. As to the different meanings of "behef" or "impression" as signifying the degree of positiveness of original observations or recollection in which case there is no legal objection) of total of actual persons observation (in which case the evidence is excluded), ser th. § 558.

<sup>[4]</sup> Swift, Ev. 111 A witness must swear to facts within his knowledge and recollection and cannot swear to mere matters of belief" (5) Ner judgment of Williams, J. in R v. Richardem, 2 F & F. 348

<sup>(6)</sup> Blake v. Album Life Assurance Society, 4 C. P. D., 102

<sup>(7)</sup> Cunnuigham, Ev., 117

<sup>(8)</sup> Thus, according to English law, on charges for uttering counterfer toom, utterings offer that for which the indictment is laid may be given in endement but the point is doubtful in the case of googed instruments; and in the case of false pretences it is still doubtful whether pretences made subsequently to the one-charged are admis-

The fact that B was habitually negligent about the carriages which he left to hire, is meles ant (1)

(a) A is tried for the munici of B by intentionally shooting him dead.

The fact that A on other occasions, shot at R is relevant, as showing his intention to shoot B.

The fact that if was in the liabit of shooting at people with intent to murder them is irrelevant.

(e) A is tried for a crime.

The fact that he said something indicating an intention to commit that particular crime, is relevant.

The fact that he said something indicating a general disposition to commit crimes of that class, is relevant.

Principle - If the existence of a mental or bodily state or bodily feeling is, as is assumed by the section, in issue or relevant, it is clear that facts from which the existence of such mental or bodily state or bodily feeling may be inferred are also relevant. The second Explanation is merely a particular application of the general rule contained in the body of the section. The rejection of the general fact by the first Explanation rests on the ground that the collateral matter is too remote if indeed there is any connection with the faction probandum

```
s. 3 (" Fart. )
```

s. 21, cl. (2) (" Idmission consisting of statements of existenceof state of mind or body,"}

a. 3 (" Relevant ) 102, 106, 111 (Burden of proof.)

Steph. Dig Art. 11 and Note VI., Taylor, Ev., §§ 580-586, 150, 160, 812, 1665. 1666, 340-347, 188, Physon, Ev., 2rd Pd., 50, 65, 114-124; Lindley, Partnership, 536, Chitty's Equity Index, 4th Ed., "Notice:" Brett's Leading Cases in Equity. 2nd Ed., 260; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 633-635, 847-855, 736 et seg.; Norton, Ev., 131-140; Swift, Ev., 111; Cunningham, Ev., 117, 119; Pollock's Law of Fraud in India (1894). 44, 45, 61, 65, 66, 76, 77; First Report of the Select Committee, 31st March 1871; Roscoe.

Cr. Ev., 87-91; Lindley's Company Law, 5th Ed., 312; Bevan's Principles of the Law of Negligence (1889); Cr. Pr. Code, a 310; Contract Act, a 17; Best. Ev., p. 86, 58 255. 433; Wills, Ev., 50, 52; Wigmore, Ev., §§ 309-370, 581, 658-661, 1962, 1963.

COMMENTARY.

Facts, it has been seen, are either physical or psychological; the former simind obeing the subject of perception by the senses, and the latter the subject of conbody or sciousness. (2) A person may testify to his own intent. But if his acts and reeling conduct are shown to be at variance and inconsistent with the intent he swears to, his own testimony in his own favour would ordinarily obtain very little credit.(3) Of facts which cannot be perceived by the senses, intention, fraud. good faith and knowledge are examples.(4) But a man's intention is a matter of fact capable of proof.

state of his digestion. of a man's mind at a p

<sup>(1)</sup> This and the two following illustrations refer to the Explanation; illust. (a) illustrates "negligence" as well; illust. (o) should be read in conjunction with illust. (1), ante, v. text, post.

<sup>(2)</sup> v. aute, s. 3, illust, (d),

<sup>(3)</sup> Wigmore, Ev., § 581

<sup>(4)</sup> See First Report of the Select Committee. 31st March 1871.

much a fact as anything else." (1) The latter class of facts, however, are incapable of direct proof by the testimony of witnesses, their existence can only be ascertained either by the confession of the party whose mind is their seat, or by presumptive inference from physical facts. (2) It has been debated whether the "opinion rule" excludes testimony to another person's state of mind. (3) But it may be safely and in general said that a witness must speak to facts and let the inference from those facts be drawn by the Court or jury. (4) This section is in accordance with the principle laid down in numerous cases (5) that, differe makes general provision for the subject, and the next section is a special application of the rule contained in the present one. The subject of the existence of states of mind is one of the most important topics with which judicial enquiries are concerned: in criminal cases they are the main consideration; and in civil cases they are often highly material, as for instance, where there is a question of fraud, malicious intention, or negligence. The present section is framed to avoid all technicalities as to the class of cases or the time within which the fact given as evidence of mental or bodily condition, must have occurred. The only point for the Court to consider, in deciding upon the admissibility of evidence under this section, is whether the fact can be said to show the existence of the state of mind or body under investigation. (7) The same considerations will, it is apprehended, determine the question of the admissibility of facts subsequent to the fact in issue to prove intent and other like questions (8) So also, though the collateral facts sought to be proved should not be so remote in

<sup>(1)</sup> Fagington's Fitzmaurice, 29 Ch. D., App., 483 (1895), per Bowen, L. J. see Pollock's Law of Fraud in India, p. 61

<sup>(2)</sup> See Balmakand Ram v. Ghansam Ram, 22 (' . 3'11, 406 (1894), [proof of intention need not be direct; it will be enough if it is proved like any other fact (and the existence of intention is a fact) by the evidence of conduct and surrounding cir. cumstances ] The Deputy Remembrancer v Karnna Baistoin, 22 C. 164, 174 (1894); R v Rhutten Ram, 2 W. R. Cr., 63 (1865); R v. Befaree, 3 W R , Cr , 23, 24, 27 (1865) [exclamations as evidence of guilty intention conduct of personerl: Re Meer For Alt. 13 W. R., Cr., 71 (1870) · [15]: R. v. Rookn: Kant, 3 W. R., Cr., on (1865) [province of jury to judge of intention] . R. v. Gonkard Bouver, 5 W. R , Cr., 33, 3x (1896) [to some degree, of course, the mtentions of parties, to a wrongful act must be judged of by the event] . R v Gora Chand, 5 W. It . (7 , 45, 46 (1866) , [presumption of intention must depend upon the facts of each particular casel; R. v. Shuruffonddeen, 13 W. R., Cr., 26 (1870), ja guilty knowledge is not necessarily a thing on which direct evidence can be afforded It is a matter of conscience and connected with the secret motives of a man's conduct; it must be inferred from facts] . R. v. Bleesdale, 2 C. & K .. 763 (felonious intent), R v. Mogg. 4 C. & P. 354 (ch.), R. v Hoyd, 7 C. & P., 318 (lustful intent), R v. Bholu, 23 A, 124 (1900), cited in notes to a. 100. (Assembling for the purpose of committing discuty; evidence of intention.)

R v Papa Sani, 23 M., 159 (1899); Deputy Legal Remembraneer v. Karwna Baistobi, supra [obtaining girls for prostitution; evidence of intent], and as to declarations as proof of intention, see R v. Petcherini. 7 Cov. C C. 79. As to burden of proof, see as 102, 105 106, port.

(I) Wign or E. V. § 1692, 1093. The answer to the objection in § 601 seems to be that in such
to the objection in § 601 seems to be that in such to the jurn Because the jurn have themselves to the jurn Because the jurn have themselves to the jurn Because the jurn have themselves to the jurn Because the jurn have themselves to the jurn Because the jurn have themselves to the jurn Because the jurn have themselves to the jurn Because the seems of the jurn as significant to a supersormant of the jurn to seem significant to the jurn because the jurn because the is no legal objection; or lock of getting person observation of in which case there examine the ed), see th. § 658.

(4) Swift, Ev. 111

A witness must swear to facts within his knowledge and recollection and cannot swear to mere matters of belief."

<sup>(5)</sup> See judgment of Williams, J., in R. v. Richardson, 2 F. & F., 348

<sup>(8)</sup> Blake v. Albion Life Avantance Society, 4 C. P. D., 102.

<sup>(7)</sup> Cunningham, Ev., 117

<sup>(8)</sup> Thus, according to English Law, on charges for uttering counterfast com, utterings after that for which the indictment is laid may be given in evidence, but the point is doubtful in the case of orged instruments; and in the case of false preduces it is still doubtful whether pretence made subsequently to the one charged are admis-

fs. 14.7

neous manifestations of the given condition, whether by conduct, conversation, or correspondence, may be given in evidence as part of the res qesta, it being for the Court or jury to consider whether they are real or feigned. Thus, the answers of patients to enquires by medical men and others are evidence of their state of health, provided they are confined to contemporaneous symptoms, and are not in the nature of a narrative as to how, by whom, such symptoms were caused.(1) And if the condition of the patient before or after the time in issue be material, his declarations at such times as to his then present condition are equally receivable (2) Not only may a party's own statements but those made to him by third persons (3) be proved for the purpose of showing his state of mind at a given time (4) Thus where the question was whether a person knew that he was insolvent at a certain time, his own statements implying consciousness of the fact, as well as letters from third persons refusing to advance him money, were held to be admissible after the fact of his insolvency had been proved independently.(5) In addition to evidence of contemporancous manifestations of the given condition, collateral facts are admitted to show the existence of a particular state of mind. Acts unconnected with the act in question are frequently receivable to prove psychological facts, such as intent (6) In order to show this, similar acts done by the party are relevant : but similar acts are not relevant to prove the existence of the particular fact in issue, being inadmissible for this purpose under the rule by which similar but unconnected acts are excluded.(7) Thus when a man is on his trial for a specific crime, such as uttering a forged note or coin, or receiving an article of stolen property, the issue is whether he is guilty of that specific act. To admit therefore as evidence against him other instances of a similar nature clearly is to introduce collateral matter. This cannot be with the object of inducing the Court to infer, that because the accused has committed a crime of a similar description on other occasions, he is guilty on the present; but to establish the criminal intent and to anticipate the defence that he acted innocently and without any guilty knowledge, or that he had no intention or motive to commit the act; and generally to interpret acts, which, without the admission of such collateral evidence, are ambiguous (8) In other words, the existence of the fact in issue must be always independently established, and for this purpose evidence of similar and unconnected acts is inadmissible; but when once the fact in issue is so established, such similar acts may be given in evidence to prove the state of mind of the party by whom it was done ;(9) again,

194

<sup>(1)</sup> Areson v Kinnaid, 6 East, 188, R v Nichollas, 2 C. & K., 246; R v Gloster, 16 Cox,

<sup>471,</sup> illust (l), (m)
(2) R v. Johnson, 2 C & K. 351

<sup>(2)</sup> R v. Johnson, 2 C & K., 354
(3) Vacher v. Cocks, 1 M & M., 353; Levis v.

Rogers, 1 C M. & R., 48; Whart, § 254.

(4) Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ltd., 50; see Taylor, Ev., §§ 580-596.

<sup>(5) 1</sup>b: 39; Thomas v. Connell, 4 M. & W., 267, Vacher v. Cocle, 1 M. & M., 353, Cotton v. James, ib., 273

<sup>(6)</sup> Best, Ev., 255

<sup>(7)</sup> See notes to a 8, oate "When there is a question whether a person said or did something of that that he said or did something of the same sort on a different occasion may be proved if it shows the existence on the occasion in question of any intention, knowledge, good of lead faith, malive or other state of mind or any state of lody or bodily feeling, the existence any state of lody or bodily feeling, the existence.

of which is in issue or is deemed to be relevant to the issue, but such acts or words may not be proved merely in order to show that the person so acting or speaking was likely on the occasion in question to act in a similar manner." Steph. Dig. Art 11, and see note VI, 30

<sup>(8)</sup> Roscoc, C. Ev., 87, Norton, Ev., 131, R. v., Cole, I. Phillipp, I.Y., 608, R. v., Richardson, 2. F. & F., 343, Else v. Albore Life Assurages. Sexety, 4. C. P. D., 108 (Irand.), R. v., Balle, L. R. I. C. C., 233, and cases cited, p.o.d. "There is no principle of law which prevents that being put in evidence which might otherwise be ao, merely because it discloses other indictable officance," per Williams, J. in R. v. Richardone, supp., 340, Roscoc, C. Ev., 85; Malia v. Altoresylforard for New Small Meles, I. B., 1894, App. Cas., 63 (9) R. v. Purkhuder, port, R. v. Figuran, post; R. v. J. V. Typporny Modellar, post

when several offences are so connected that proof of one can be arrived at through evidence going to prove the others, the evidence is not on that account exchided.(1)

In R. v. M. J. Vyapoury Moodeliar(2) Garth. C. J., said: "Section 14 Scope of the seems to me to apply to that class of cases which is discussed in Taylor on Sections. Evidence, 6th Edition, sections 318-322 ;- that is to say, cases where a particular act is more or less criminal or culpable, according to the state of mind or feeling of the person who does it; as, for instance, in actions of slander or false imprisonment, or mahe ious prosecution, where malice is one of the main ingredient in the wrong which is charged, evidence is admissible to show that the defendant was actuated by spite or enmity against the plaintiff; or, again, on a charge of uttering com, evidence is admissible to show that the prisoner knew the coin to be counterfeit, because he had other similar coin in his possession, or had passed such com before or after the particular occasion which formed the subject of the charge. The Illustrations to section II as well as the authorities cited in Taylor, show with sufficient clearness the sort of cases in which this evidence is receivable. But I think we must be very careful not to extend the operation of the section to other cases, where the question of guilt or innocence depends upon actual facts, and not upon the state of a Man's Mind or feeling. We have no right to prove that a man committed theft or any other crime on one occasion, by showing that he committed similar crimes in other occasions. Thus the possession, by an accused person, of a number of documents suspected to be forged, was held to be no evidence to prove that he had forged the particular documents with the forgery of which he was charged.(3) In R. v. Parbhudas,(4) West, J, said: "The possession by an accused of several other articles deposed to have been stolen, would, no doubt, have some probative force on the issue of whether he had received the particular articles which he was charged with having dishonestly received, and the receipt or possession of which he demed altogether, yet in the first illustration to section 14, it is set forth as a preliminary to the admission of testimony as to the other articles that ' it is proved that he was in possession of (the) particular stolen article,' The receipt and possession are not allowed to be proved by other apparently similar instances, only the guilty knowledge. ... . . . . . . . . Illustration (o) to the same section makes a previous attempt by the accused to shoot the person murdered, evidence of the accused's intentior, but not of the act that caused the death ; yet it is certain that in the issue of whether A actually shot B or not, the fact that he had previously shot at him, would have some probative force, so, too, would proof of a general malignity of disposition by evidence that ' A was in the habit of shooting at people, with intent to murder them,' yet this evidence is excluded, even as proof of A's intention either as too remotely connected with the particular intention in issue, or as raising collateral questions, which could not properly be resolved in the case."(5) In the same case Melville, J., said (6) "It appears to me that the Indian Evidence Act does not go beyond the English law" As to the latter Lord Herschell said(7): " The mere fact that the evidence adduced tends to show the

R v Parbhudas, 11 Bom H C R, 90, 93
 and R v Ellis, 6 B & C, 145, cited in R.
 Parbhudas, supra, and R v lapram, 16 B,

<sup>430 (1892).</sup> (2) 6 C., 655, 659 (1881)

<sup>(3)</sup> R. v. Parkhudar, supra., R v. Nur Makmed, 8 B. 2.23, 225 (1883), in which the former case was distinguished and in which it was held that evidence of the possession and attempted disposal of coins of an unusual kind is relevant on a charge of uttering such coins soon afterwards, when the factum of uttering is denied.

<sup>(4) 11</sup> Bom H C. R., 90, 91 (1874) "A fully argued case where Mr Justice West gives a full and lucid exposition of a 14 of the Indian Evidence Act," per Jardine, J., in R v. Fakira-rappa, 15 B., 502 (1880)

<sup>(5)</sup> R v Parbhudas, supra

<sup>(5)</sup> Ib at p 97
(7) Makin v Attorney-General, New South Walee (1894), A C., 57, cited in R v. Wyall (1904) A. C., 57

neous manifestations of the given condition, whether by conduct, conversation, or correspondence, may be given in evidence as part of the res gesta, it being for the Court or jury to consider whether they are real or feigned. Thus, the answers of patients to enquiries by medical men and others are evidence of their state of health, provided they are confined to contemporaneous symptoms, and are not in the nature of a narrative as to how, by whom, such symptoms were caused.(1) And if the condition of the patient before or after the time in issue be material, his declarations at such times as to his then present condition are equally receivable.(2) Not only may a party's own statements but those made to him by third persons (3) be proved for the purpose of showing his state of mind at a given time.(4) Thus where the question was whether a person knew that he was insolvent at a certain time, his own statements implying consciousness of the fact, as well as letters from third persons refusing to advance him money, were held to be admissible after the fact of his insolvency had been proved independently.(5) In addition to evidence of contemporaneous manifestations of the given condition, collateral facts are admitted to show the existence of a particular state of mind Acts unconnected with the act in question are frequently receivable to prove psychological facts. such as intent.(6) In order to show this, similar acts done by the party are relevant ; but similar acts are not relevant to prove the existence of the particular fact in issue, being inadmissible for this purpose under the rule by which similar but unconnected acts are excluded. (7) Thus when a man is on his trial for a specific crime, such as uttering a forged note or coin, or receiving an article of stolen property, the issue is whether he is guilty of that specific act. To admit therefore as evidence against him other instances of a similar nature clearly is to introduce collateral matter. This cannot be with the object of inducing the Court to infer, that because the accused has committed a crime of a similar description on other occasions, he is guilty on the present; but to establish the criminal intent and to anticipate the defence that he acted innocently and without any guilty knowledge, or that he had no intention or motive to commit the act, and generally to interpret acts, which, without the admission of such collateral evidence, are ambiguous. (8) In other words, the existence of the fact in issue must be always independently established, and for this purpose evidence of similar and unconnected acts is madmissible; but when once the fact in issue is so established, such similar acts may be given in evidence to prove the state of mind of the party by whom it was done ;(9) again,

<sup>(1)</sup> Accson v Kinnaid, 6 East, 188, R v Nichollas, 2 C. & K., 246, R v Gloster, 16 Cox,

<sup>47),</sup> illust {l}, (m)
(2) R v. Johnson, 2 C- & K., 354

<sup>(3)</sup> Vacher v. Cocks, 1 M & M , 353 , Lewis v.

Rogers, 1 C. M. & R., 48, Whart, § 254
(4) Phipson, Ev., 3rd 12d, 50; see Taylor, Ev.,

<sup>(5) 16&#</sup>x27; 39, Thomas v. Connell, 4 M. & W., 267; Facher v. Cocks, 1 M. & M., 353; Cotton v.

James, 15 . 273

<sup>(8)</sup> Best, Ev., 255

<sup>(7)</sup> See notes to a S, aut. "When there is a question whether a person and or did some thing, the fact that he said or did something of the same sort on a different occasion may be proved H it shows the existence on the occasion in question of any intention, knowledge, good or lead faith, make or other state of mind or any variet of kelly or heldly feeling, the existence any variet of kelly or heldly feeling, the existence of which is in issue or is deemed to be relevant to the issue, but such acts or words may not be proved merely in order to show that the person so acting or speaking was likely on the occasion in question to act in a similar manner." Steph.

Dg, Att 11, and see note VI, 45.

(8) Roscop, C. Fe, 87, Norton, Ev, 131; R.

v. Cole, I. Phillipp, Ev, 508; R. v. Richardson, 27. A. F. 333, Rinke v. Albion, Life Assurages, Socrify, 4 C. P. D., 108 (frond ); R. v. Bells, L. R.

12. C. 2, 23, and cases cutel, page, "There is no principle of law which prevents that being put in evidence which might otherwise be so, merely because it diveloses other indictable officaces," per Williams, J. in R. v. Richarden, supra, 346; Ecocco, C. Ev., 85, Makin v. Attorney-General for New Social Maice, L. R. 1894, App. Cas., 65

<sup>(9)</sup> R. v. Parbhudas, poet, R. v. Lapram, poet, R. v. M. J. Vyapoory Mondelist, poet,

[8. 14.]

when several offences are so connected that proof of one can be arrived at through evidence going to prove the others, the evidence is not on that account excluded.(1)

In R. v. M. J. Vyapoory Modeliar(2) Garth, C. J., said. "Section 14 Scope of the seems to me to apply to that class of cases which is discussed in Taylor on Evidence, 6th Edition, sections 318-322, -that is to say, cases where a particular act is more or less criminal or culpable, according to the state of mind or feeling of the person who does it , as, for instance, in actions of slander or false imprisonment, or malicious prosecution, where malice is one of the main ingredient in the wrong which is charged, evidence is admissible to show that the defendant was actuated by spite or enmity against the plaintiff; or, again, on a charge of uttering coin, evidence is admissible to show that the prisoner knew the com to be counterfeit, because he had other similar com in his possession, or had passed such com before or after the particular occasion which formed the subject of the charge. The Illustrations to section 11 as well as the authorities cited in Taylor, show with sufficient clearness the sort of cases in which this evidence is receivable. But I think we must be very careful not to extend the operation of the section to other cases, where the question of guilt or innocence depends upon actual facts, and not upon the state of a Man's Mind or feeling. We have no right to prove that a man committed theft or any other crime on one occasion, by showing that he committed similar crimes in other occasions. Thus the possession, by an accused person, of a number of documents suspected to be forged, was held to be no evidence to prove that he had forged the particular documents with the forgery of which he was charged.(3) In R. v. Parbhudas,(4) West, J., said "The possession by an accused of several other articles deposed to have been stolen, would, no doubt, have some probative force on the resue of whether he had received the particular articles which he was charged with having dishonestly received, and the receipt or possession of which he denied altogether, yet in the first illustration to section 14, it is set forth as a preliminary to the admission of testimony as to the other articles that it is proved that he was in possession of (the) particular stolen article." The receipt and possession are not allowed to be proved by other apparently (o) to the same section makes a previous attempt by the accused to shoot the person murdered, evidence of the accused's intentio. but not of the act that caused the death , yet it is certain that in the issue of whether A actually shot B or not, the fact that he had previously shot at him, would have some probative force, so, too, would proof of a general malignity of disposition by evidence that '.1 was in the habit of shooting at people, with intent to murder them,' yet this evidence is excluded, even as proof of A's intention either as too remotely connected with the particular intention in issue, or as raising collateral questions, which could not properly be resolved in the case "(5) In the same case Melville, J., said (6) "It appears to me that the Indian Evidence Act does not go beyond the English law." As to the latter Lord Herschell said(7) "The mere fact that the evidence adduced tends to show the

when the factum of uttering is denied,

<sup>(1)</sup> R v Parbhudas, 11 Bom H C R, 90, 93 (1894), and R v Eller, 6 B & C , 145, cited in R v Parbhudas, supra, and R v lajuram, 16 B, 430 (1892)

<sup>(2) 6</sup> C. 655, 659 (1881)

<sup>(3)</sup> R v Parbhudas, supra, R v Nur Mahomed, 8 B , 223, 225 (1843), in which the former case was distinguished and in which it was held that evidence of the possession and attempted disposal of coins of an unusual kind is relevant on a charge of uttering such coins soon afterwards,

<sup>(4) 11</sup> Bom H C R, 90, 91 (1874), "A fully argued case where Mr Justice West gives a full and lucid exposition of a 14 of the Indian Evidence Act," per Jardine, J , in R v. Faktrafappa, 15 B, 502 (1890).

<sup>(5)</sup> R v Parbhudas, supra (6) Ib at p 97.

<sup>(7)</sup> Malin v. Attorney-General, New South Wales (1894), A C., 57, cited in R. v. B yall (1904). A. C. 57.

commission of other crimes does not render it inadmissible if it be relevant to an issue before the jury, and it may be so relevant if it bears upon the question whether the acts alleged to constitute the crime charged in the indictment were designed or accidental or to rebut a defence which would otherwise be open to the accused." In R. v. Bond it was held that where the defence to a criminal charge is that the acts alleged to constitute the crime were done by the accused for an innocent purpose, evidence that the accused did the same acts for an improper purpose on another occasion, is admissible as evidence negativing the defence, although it is evidence which proves the commission of another offence by the accused. In this case a person who was qualified to be and had acted as a surgeon was indicted for procuring a miscarriage The evidence was that he had used certain instruments and the defence was that he was performing a lawful operation. It was proved that he had crased to practise as a surgeon , and evidence was tendered by the prosecution that he had on a previous occasion used the same instruments in the same manner on another person with the avowed intention of procuring a miscarriage This evidence was held admissible by the Court of Crown cases Reserved .- Lord Alverstone, C J, and Redley, J, dissenting on the grounds that prim's facte there was no necessary connection between the act charged on the indictment and the other act alleged in the evidence, and that evidence of prior acts of a similar kind is not admissible when the only question is the purpose for which an act was done.(1) mi point of antention .(2) (a), (b), (c) and ( faith, (n) of negligence and knowledge feeling (n), (o) and (p) illustrate the explanation (3)

The question of intention is sufficiently illustrated by the Illustrations (e) (i), and (i) to the present section, by the cases illustrating guilty knowledge, and by the next section; and is further considered in the notes to the last-mentioned section and in the preceding and succeeding paragraphs (4)" A man is not excused from crimes by reason of his drunkenness, but although you cannot take drunkenness as any excuse for crime, yet when the crime is such that the intention of the party committing it is one of its constituent elements, you may look at the fact that a man was in drink in considering whether he formed the intention necessary to constitute the crime "(5) In the recent case of R. v. Meade the rule on this point was stated by the English Court of Criminal Appeal as follows . 'A man is taken to intend the natural consequences of his acts. This presumption may be relietted in the case of a sober man in many ways. It may be rebutted in the case of a man who is drunk by showing his mind to have been so affected by the drink he had taken that he was incapable of knowing that what he was doing was dangerous, se., likely to inflict serious injury. If this be proved the presumption that he intended to do grievous bodily harm is rebutted,(6)" person does an act with some intention other than that which the character and circumstances of the act suggest, the burden of proving that intention is upon him. (7) The question of intention is to be inferred from legal evidence of facts, and not from antecedent declarations by the accused himself, upon occasions distant from an antecedent to the transaction.(8)

<sup>(1)</sup> E. v. Bowl, C. C. R. (1988), 21 Cox., p. 252

<sup>(2)</sup> As to whether an act was accidental or in, feutional, r. s 15, post

<sup>(3)</sup> See Norton. Fr , 131.

<sup>(4)</sup> See cases cited in first paragraph of Commentary, sale, (1) R v Islandy, 16 Cox , 300 per Stephen

J.: R s. Ram Sahoy, W. R., Gap No., Cr., 24 (1864).

<sup>(6)</sup> R v. Meade, C C A. (1909), 1 K B, 895.
(7) S 106, post, Illust. (a)

<sup>(8)</sup> R v. Fetcherini. 7 Cox. C. C., 79, 83, per Greene, B., as to declarations accompanying an set, v. so , and s 8, onle, and notes thereto.

Facts which go to prove guilty knowledge may be proved. In R. v. Knowledge with the provent in the fact of and notice of an utterer of a forced bunk note, evidence may be given of his having previously attered other forged notes knowing them to be forced, observed that "without the reception of other evidence than that which the mere circumstances of the transaction itself could furnish, it would be impossible to ascertain whether they uttered it with a guilty knowledge of its having been forged or whether it was uttered under circumstances which showed their minds to be free from guilt." In the case of R. v. Tattersall mentioned by Lord Ellenborough in R. v. Whiley, the question reserved by Chambre, J., was " whether the presence had not furnished pregnant evidence, and whether the nury, from his conduct on one occasion, might not infer his knowledge in another ?" The opinion of the Judges was that the jury were at liberty to make such an inference. "The cases in which this has been acted on are mostly common cases of uttering forged documents or base coins, but they are not confined to those cases,"(2) Passing from the case of quilty knowledge, knowledge may be inferred from the fact that a party had reasonable means of knowledge, answered, or otherwise acted upon, them, or from the fact that such documents, properly addressed, have been delivered at, or posted to, his residence.(3) So execution of a document, e.g., of a deed or a will, in the absence of exidence to the contrary, implies knowledge of its contents ;(4) though mere attestation necessarily does not,(5) . Iccess to documents may also sometimes raise a nresumption of knowledge (6) But there is no presumption of law that a director knows the contents of the books of a company (7) And shareholders are not, as between themselves and their directors, supposed to know all that is in the company's books.(1) The publication of a fact in a Gazette or newspaper is receivable to fix a party with notice, though (unless the case is governed by Statute) it is always advisable, and sometimes necessary, to furnish evidence that the party to be affected has probably read the paper. (2) The notoriety of a fact in a party's calling or vicinity may also in some cases support an inference of knowledge (3) When the existence of a state of mind is in question, all facts from which it may be properly inferred are relevant. And so when the question was whether A, at the time of making a contract with B, knew that the latter was insane it was held that the conduct of B. both before and after the transaction, was admissible in evidence to show that his malady was of such a character as would make itself apparent to .1 at the time he was dealing with him.(4) See also Illustrations (a) (b). (c) and (d) to the section. "Notice" has also been made the subject of substantive law and of statutory definition in the Transfer of Property and Indian Trusts Acts (5) This definition codifies the law as to notice which existed before these Acts were passed.(6) Notice to an agent is notice to the principal.(7) And notice to one of several trustees is notice to all (8) Constructive notice is of two kinds there is the notice through an agent, which Lord Chelmsford has called "imputed notice;" the other is that which he thought should more properly be called "constructive notice," and means that kind of notice which the Courts have raised against a person from his wilfully abstaining from making enquiries, or inspecting documents.(9) In such cases the Courts are said to raise a presumption of knowledge which is not allowed to be rebutted, and whatever is sufficient to put a person of ordinary prudence on enquiry is constructive notice of all to which that enquiry would lead. (10) So notice of a deed or a trust, is notice of its terms.(11) And the acceptance of a contract in a common form without objection is constructive notice of its contents.(12) So when title-deeds

<sup>(1)</sup> Lundley, Company Law, 5th Fd., 312, and cases there cited

<sup>(2)</sup> See notes to a 67, post, Taylor, Ev. §§ 1865, 1868, Physon, Ev. and th. 116, Stable Dig., Art 11, illust (a), where the question was whether 4, the captain of a ship, knew that a port was blockeded it was held that the fact that the blockeded was notified in the Gazatte was relevant; Hardt it Wise, 9 B & C, 712

<sup>(3)</sup> for illust (1), and and note, though more tumour or reputation is inadimisable, R. v. Gunnel, 18 Coz. 154, Greenslade v. Dure, 20 Reau, 234 [Evalence of the general reputation of the instant) of a person, in the neighbourd in which he reside, is admissible to prove that a person was complisant of that fact]

<sup>(4)</sup> Beavan v. McDonnell, 10 Ev., 184. Locat v. Tribe, 3 F. & F., 94 but see also Greenslade v. Dure, ante

<sup>(5)</sup> S. 3, Act IV of 1882, amended by Act III of 1885 (Transfer of Property); a 3, Act II of 1842 (Indian Trusta) See cases collected in Sheyhaid and Brown's Commentaries on the Transfer of Property Act, p. 14, 2nd Ld.

<sup>(6)</sup> Charaman v. Bolla, D. A., 509 (7) Act IX of 1872 (Contract), s. 229, of the English Conveyaming Act, 1892; 45 & 46 Vio., c. 29; as to notice of dishonour of negotiable instruments, see VCLXXVI of 1881 (Negotiable Instruments, C. V. VIII. See Petrone Law of

Agency in Butteh India, 439 (8) Godefroi on Trusts, 677

<sup>(9)</sup> Aetileuell v. Hatson, L. R., 21 Ch. D., 685, 724 per Fry. J. a person refusing a regutered fetter sent by post cannot afterwards plead ignorance of its contents. Looty Ali v. Peary Medium, 16 W. R., 223 (187);

<sup>(10)</sup> Arc Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 117, Jones v Smeth 1 Hare, 43, Shephard and Brown, supro, If as to whether registration operates as constructive notice, th, 21, and bhan Mull v Madras Badding ('o., 15 M., 268, 277 (1891); Balmalundas : Mols Narayan, 8 B , 444 (1891) , Joshua v .11tianre Bank, 22 C, 185 (1894), Brett's L (' in Eq., 2nd Ed., 260, Chitty, Eq. Index, 4th Ed, "Notice," and as to notice to agent, trustee, counsel, partner, solicitor, v. sb., and ante. For a purchaser to be affected with constructive notice through his solicitor, the latter himself must have actual notice . Greender Churder v. Markintosh, 4 C. 897 (1879), and notice acquired only before the employment as solicitor began is not sufficient Chabildus Lallu Bhas v Dayal Musey, P. P ( (1907), 31 H.

<sup>(11)</sup> Paissan v Harland, 17 Ch D., 357. Beetl's L. C. in Eq., 250, and cases there exted. Rajaram

v Krishnasami, 16 M., 301 (1492) (12) Watline v Rymill, 10 Q B D., 179

199

were deposited by way of equitable mortgage with a Bank which omitted to investigate the title; the Bank was held to have constructive notice of a charge which they might have discovered (1) And when a share of a trust-fund was assigned and the trustees did not enquire into the title of the alleged assignee they were held to have constructive notice of it.(2) But a Company to whom a vessel is transferred cannot be fixed with constructive notice of the possible hability of the vendors for the unpaid costs of their solicitors even though actual vendor and the promoter of the company were one and the same person (3) Where the sellers at an auction-sale so conducted themselves with reference to the sale that bidders were induced to leave, and the purchaser was present and had notice of these circumstances, it was held that he was affected with notice of the impropriety of the sale (4)

"It is a truth confirmed by all experience that in the great majority of Good and bad faith: cases fraud is not capable of being established by positive and express proofs, fraud: It is by its very nature secret in its movements; and if those whose duty it is malice. to investigate questions of fraud are to insist upon direct proof in every case the ends of justice would be constantly, if not invariably, defeated. We do not mean to say that fraud can be established, by any less proof, or by any different kind of proof, from what is required to establish any other disputed question of fact, or that circumstances of mere suspicion which lead to no certain result should be taken as sufficient proof of fraud, or that fraud should be presumed against any body in any case, but what we mean to say is that, in the generality of cases, circumstantial evidence is our only resource in dealing with questions of fraud, and if this evidence is sufficient to overcome the natural presumption of honesty and fair dealing and to satisfy a reasonable mind of the existence of fraud by raising a counter-presumption, there is no reason whatever why we should not act upon it."(5) A party's good faith in doing an act may generally be inferred from any facts which would justify its doing.(6) In such cases the information (whether true or false) on which he acted will often be material. Although the opinions and acts of other parties are not generally admissible, yet when opinions and acts lead to the formation of a belief in another man, and that belief is the fact in issue, those opinions and acts acquire a legal evidentiary relation and become admissible. So to show the bona fides of a party's belief as to any matter, it is admissible to show the state of his knowledge and that he had reasonable grounds for such belief. (7) For though it is now settled that in order, apart from Statute, to maintain an action for deceit, there must be proof of fraud, a false statement made in the honest belief that it is true being not sufficient, and there being no such thing as legal fraud in the absence of moral fraud, yet a false statement made through carelessness, and without

<sup>(1)</sup> Bank of Bombay v Suleman Somp, P C (1908), 33 B . 1 , following In re Queale's Estate

<sup>(1886),</sup> Ir L. R. 17 Ch D. 361 (2) Davis v Hutchings (1907), 1 Ch , 356, following Jones v Smith (1841), 1 Hare, 43 (1843),

<sup>(3)</sup> The Birnam Wood, C A (1907), R 1

<sup>(4)</sup> Chabildas Lallubhas v Dayal Mowps, P C

<sup>(1907), 31</sup> B., 566 (5) Per Dwarkanath Mitter, J. in Mothoora Pandey v. Ram Ruckya, 11 W R. 482, 483 (1869), s c, 3 B L. R (A. C), 108, but fraud and dishonesty are not to be assumed upon conjecture, however probable . Sheilh Imdad Ali v. Mussummat Kootby, 6 W. R (P C.), 24 (1942) . s c. 3 Moo. I A. 1. as to secrecy as evidence of fraud. see Joshua v. Alliance Bank of Simla, 22 C . 185 (1894) , see cases cited in notes to se 102, 111. post

<sup>(6)</sup> Whart . $ 35, cited in Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed . 118

<sup>(7)</sup> Derry v Peek, 14 App Cas , 337 "A man's own assertion of what he believed, or recollection of what he thinks he believed at a certain time, is worth very little without some hind of confirmation from the external conditions Obviously the best and most natural corroboration would be found in circumstances showing that the alleged belief was such as, with the means of knowledge then at hand, a reasonable man might have entertained at the time." Pollock's Law of Fraud in India, 44 45.

reasonable belief that it is true, though not amounting to fraud, may be evidence of it; and fraud is proved where it is shown that a false representation has been made (a) knowingly, or (b) without belief in its truth; or (c) recklessly, careless whether it be true or false, and if fraud be proved, the defendant's motive is immaterial-it matters not that there was no intention to injure the person to whom the statement was made.(1) To show the bona fides of a party's belief he may show that it was shared by the community, or even by individuals similarly situated to himself.(2) "The relative positions and circumstances of the parties are often material in determining their good or bad faith in a transaction; a higher standard of probity being demanded from either when the other is, e.g. of weak intellect, intoxicated, illiterate, or acting under duress or fear, or occupies the position of child, ward, client, or patient of the other "(3) As to the burden of proof in such cases, see section III, post, and the notes thereto. Where the accused was charged under section 206 of the Indian Penal Code with fraudulently transferring three properties to three different persons on a certain day, in order to prevent their being seized in execution of a decree, and the prosecution tendered evidence of five other fraudulent transfers of property effected by the accused on the same day, and apparently with the same object, held that this evidence was admissible under this and the next section, to prove either that all those transfers were parts of one entire transaction, or that the particular transfers which were specified in the charge were made with a fraudulent intent (4) Evidence of similar frauds, committed on other persons, by the same agent of the defendant company in the same manner, with the knowledge and for the benefit of the company, is admissible to prove traud (5). In like manner, in actions for false representation, where the question turns on fraudulent intent, other misstatements besides those laid in the statement of claim will be admissible in evidence, for the purpose of showing that the defendant was actuated by dishonest motives (6) And the defendants may show representations made by him to others, with the view of proving his own bona fides (7) Where A and B were charged with conspiring to defraud C by representing that A owned certain property, and B's defence was that he honestly believed the representation, being himself the dupe of A , it was held that letters between A and B (not communicated to (') prior to the completion of the transaction, regarding it, were <sup>(1)</sup> Deeg v. Peel, supra, 316, 359, 309 374, m which the distinction is made between facts which condition from an interest facts which condition from the fact are only evidence of it. Rostop, N. P. E., 848, and cases there exist, Indian Contract Act, 8 17, Pellock's Law of Frand in India, 42-56, as to concealment of material facts, see Smill v. Hugher, L. P., 60, 20, 19, 507; Refort v. Hobbs, App. Cas. 13, inadequacy of price as endonce of fraud er. Indian Contract Act, a 25, Specific Richel Jact, a 25; see generally as to fraud; Roscop, N. P. v. 533-455, M.-555; it must be properly pleaded: a case of fraud cannot be started in multiple of cross-cannotin for the first time, Lever v. Goodens, W. N. (C. A), 1887, and 187.

<sup>(2)</sup> Blust (D, ante, Shren v. Bumpstead, 2 H. & C. 193; Roscos, N. P. Ev., 853; see note and to illust. (f) La Penny v. Hannon, 18 Q B. D. 478, the question was whether A intended to decision B by pretending to tell his fortune by the hand fide believed in his ability to tell such fortunes was madmissible. Denman, J. remarking," We do not live in times when any same man believes in such a power," and see Lucie v.

Fermor, ib. 532, 536, per Willes, J.
(3) Plapson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 118, Pollock's Law of Fraud in India, 65, 66, 76, 77; ere notes to
s. 111, post.

<sup>(4)</sup> R . Vajiram, 16 B , 414 (1892).

<sup>(3)</sup> Blate A Alban Life Assurance Sorety, 4 C. P. D. 94. See also R. I Byn (1904), T. B. 1985, in which the question was whether upon an indictment for obtaining credit by means of frault evidence could be given of smills acts committed by the accused at a period immediately preceding the offence for which the accused was bring tred, and the answer given by the Judges was fin the afficienties.

<sup>(6)</sup> Huntingford v. Mussey, 1 F. & F., 690; Taylor, Dv., § 340.

<sup>(7)</sup> Shrensbury v. Blount, 2 M. & Gr., 475.

particular occasion or matter. Illustrations (a) and (b) make this clear. A man is accused of receiving stolen goods with guilty knowledge; if he is merely shown to be generally dishonest, he probability of his having been dishonest in this particular transaction is perhaps mereased, but only in a vague and indefinite way; but if, at the time, he is found in possession of a number of other stolen articles, this fact throws a distinct light on his knowledge and intentions as to the articles of which he is found in possession. It would be dangerous to infer that because a man was generally dishonest, he was dishonest in any single case; but it is not dangerous to infer that a man, who is found in possession.

provisions as to the procedure to be adopted in the case of previous conviction. These provisions have been made with the view of preventing the jury or assessors from being biased against the accused by the knowledge that he is an old offender. But notwithstanding anything in the Code, evidence of the previous conviction may be given at the trial for the subsequent offence, if the fact of the previous conviction is relevant under this Act.(3) According to this section previous convictions become relevant when the existence of any state of mind or body or bodily feeling is in issue or relevant (4) Under the present section the previous conviction will not be relevant unless the commission of the offence for which the conviction was had is relevant within the meaning of the preceding portion of the section The second Explanation therefore does not extend the annual ·ly an application of the rule contained in m which the tion of the rule contained is acts sought to be given in a criminal proceeding previously taken (5). Having regard to the character of the offence under section 400 of the Indian Penal Code, previous commissions of dasoity are relevant under this section. Convictions previous to the time specified in the charge or to the framing of the charge are relevant under the second E-planation to this section but convictions

he charge and to the framing of the charge or an offence of keeping a common gaming Prevention of Gambling Act (IV of 1887,

...., somence that the accused had been previously convicted of the same offence is admissible to show guilty knowledge or intention (7). Where certain speeches formed the subject-matter of a charge for sedition, and where such speeches formed part of a series of speeches or lectures on one topic delivered within a short period of time, it was held that any of such speeches or lectures were admissible under this section as evidence to prove the intention of the speaker in respect of the speeches which formed the subject of the charge, (8) and that seditious articles published in the same newspaper not forming the subject of the charges were admissible to show the intention of the person who printed or published the others (9)

<sup>(1) (</sup>unningham, hv., 118, 119 (2) 8 310, as amended by let III of 1891, a 9

<sup>(3)</sup> let III of 1891, s. 9; eg, under the present section or ss. 43 & 54, post

<sup>(4)</sup> R v. Allomeya Haesas, 5 Rom. L. E. 805 (1983), v v, 24 B, 129

<sup>(5)</sup> See illust (5), ante

<sup>(6)</sup> R. v. Noba Axmar, 1. C. W. N., 146 (1897), referred to in Manlion Pain v. R., 27 C., 139, 143 (1999), n. v. 4 C. W. N., 97.

<sup>(7)</sup> P . All-maya Harris, 5 Pom. I. E.

<sup>805 (1903),</sup> Jacob, J., dissent, s c, 28 B, 129 (1903)

 <sup>(8)</sup> Chidambaran Pallai v. R. (1993), 22 M., and see R. v. Jogendra Chundra Bue (1892), 19
 C., 35; R. v. Phanudra Nath. Uniter (1993), 33
 C., 945; R. v. Eal Gangadhor. Tidal. (1893), 22
 D. 112; E. v. Amba. Praced. (1893), 20 A., 55.
 R. v. Bool. (1995), 2 N. B., 389

<sup>(9)</sup> R. v. Phanindra Nath Witter (1968), 35 Co. 915.

15. Where there is a question whether an act was accidental Facts bear or intentional for done with a particular knowledge or intention who tion],(1) the fact that such act formed part of a series of similar accidental actions. occurrences in each of which the person doing the act was tional concerned, is relevant.

Illustrations.

(a) A is accused of burning down his house in order to obtain money for which it is mounted.

The facts that A lived in several houses successively each of which he insured. in each of which a fire occurred, and after each of which fires A received payment from a different Insurance Office, are relevant, as tending to show that the fires were not accidental (2)

(b) A is employed to receive money from the debtors of B. It is A's duty to make entries in a book showing the amounts received by him. He makes an entry showing that on a particular occasion he received less than he really did receive. The question is, whether this false entry was accidental or intentional

The facts that other entries made by A in the same book are false, and that the false entry in each case was in favour of .1, are relevant.(3)

(c) A is accused of fraudulently delivering to B a counterfest rupee. The question is whether delivery of the rupee was accidental.

The facts that, soon before or soon after the delivery, to B, A delivered counterfeit rupees to C, D and E, are relevant, as showing that the delivery to B was not accidental.(4)

Principle,-The facts are admitted as tending to show system and therefore intention, this section is therefore an application of the rule laid down in the preceding one.(5) It will always be a matter of discretion, whether there is a sufficient and reasonable connection between the fact to be proved and the evidentiary fact. If there is no common link they cannot form a series, and this is the gist of the section (6)

s. 14 (Facts relevant to show knowledge or intention.)

s. 3 (" Relevant.")

Steph Dig., Art. 12; Norton, Ev., 140; Cunningham, Ev., 120, Taylor, Ev., § 328; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 135; Wills, Ev., 52.

(I) The words in brackets were added by a 2, Act III of 1891, and appear to have been overlooked in R . Alloomiya Hassan, 5 Bom L R. 605 (1903), s c, 28 B, 129, where Jacob, J. states that this section invites consideration of the question of intention only as opposed to accident (2) This illustration is founded on the case of R. v. Cray, 4 F, & F., 1102, the authority of which is doubted in Steph Dig , Art. 12, note, and see Norton, Ev., 140, 141, but see contra R v Fauram, 16 B , 433.

<sup>(3)</sup> Founded on R v Richardson, 2 F & F.

<sup>343 ,</sup> Steph Dig , Art 12, illust (b) (4) This illustration is very like illust (b) to s 14 The one speaks of possessing, the other of passing, other false coins The presumption 13 the same; Norton, Ev. 140

<sup>(5)</sup> See Steph Dig , Art 12 , and Cunningham, Ev., 120.

<sup>(6)</sup> Norton, Ev. 140.

COMMENTARY

Accident or system.

So where the question was whether Z murdered A (her husband) by poison in September 1848, the facts that B, C and D (Z's three sons) had the same noison administered to them in December 1818, March 1849, and April 1849. and that the meals of all four were prepared by Z, were held to be relevant. to show that such administration was intentional and not accidental, though Z was indicted separately for murdering A, B and C, and attempting to murder D.(1) This case and the case of R v Garner (unita) were discussed in R. v. Neil Cream(2) when Hawkins, J., admitted evidence of subsequent administrations of strychnine by the prisoner to persons other than and unconnected with the woman of whose murder the prisoner was then convicted. Where A promised to lend money to B on the security of a policy of insurance, which B agreed to effect in an Insurance Company of his (A's) choosing, and B paid the first premium to the company, but A refused to lend the money except upon terms which he intended B to reject, and which B rejected accordingly, it was held that the fact that A and the Insurance Company had been engaged in similar transactions was relevant to the question whether the receipt of the money by the company was fraudulent (3) Where a prisoner was charged with the murder of her child by porson, and the defence was that its death resulted from an accidental taking of such poison, evidence to prove that two other children of hers and a lodger in her house had died previous to the present charge from the same porson was held to be admissible (4) Upon the trial of a prisoner for the murder of her infant by suffocation in bed. held that evidence tendered to prove the previous death of her other children at early ages was admissible. although such evidence did not show the causes from which these children died.(5) Upon the trial of an indictment for using a certain instrument with intent to procure a marriage, it is relevant, in order to prove the intent, to show that at other times, both before and after the offence charged, the prisoner had caused miscarriages by similar means (6) Under an indictment for arson, where the prisoner was charged with wilfully setting fire to her master's house -Held that two previous and abortive attempts to set fire to different portions of the same premises were admissible, though there was no evidence to connect the prisoner with either of them. (7) Where the plaintiff in an action of negligence alleged that he had contracted an infectious disease through the negligence of the defendant, a barber, in using razors and other appliances in a dirty and insanitary condition, and in support of his case he tendered the evidence of two witnesses who deposed that they had contracted a similar disease in the defendant's shop. Held that as the negligence alleged was not an <sup>(1)</sup> R. v. Geeran, 18. L. J. M. C., 235, cuted in R. v. Richardson, 2 F. & R., 346, R. v. France, 12 Cox, C. C., 615, Bale v. Albina, Lile Asserman, Secula, 4 C. P. D., 101, 102, see R. v., Garser, 3 F. & F., 631, R. v. Cellon, 12 Cox, 400; R. v. Husson, 14 Cox, 40; R. v. Eders, 12 Cox, 609; ex-Taylor, Fr., § 235 and note, and Steph. Duc. Art. 12, dilut. (C) and hode.

<sup>(2)</sup> Cited in Steph Dig., p. 20, aute., 116 C. C. C., See Pa., 1451.

 <sup>(3)</sup> B'ale v. Albian Life Issurance Society.
 L. B. 4 C. P. D. 404; Steph. Dig., Art. 12, illust.
 (4) See R. v. Wyatt. 1904, 1 K. B., 188, cited in notes to last section.
 (4) A. v. Cedian, 12 Cov. 400; R. v.

heering supra, followed (5) R Relea, 12 Cox, 630, following $11. a

<sup>(7)</sup> R. v. Buley, 2 Cox, C, C, 311

Colon, supra, it was objected by the country for the presence, that the evidence admitted in R. v. Colon, pointed directly to prox axis of presening, but in this case it was not pronosed to proxthat the four children died from other than nativaral causes per Luch, 2. The value of the evidence annot affect its admissibility. "The principle of R. v. Colon, applies"

<sup>(6)</sup> R. v. Dalt, Is Cox, 703, R. v. Bond., C. C. R., 1986, 21 Cox, 253, in which Lord therstone, C. J., and v. Will R. v. Dale is to be construed to authorize the admissibility of evidence of prior acts of a similar kind where the act is admitted and the only question is the purpose for which it was done, it goes too far,"

(7) E. v. Budey, 2 Cox, C. C. 311.

isolated act or omission, but was a dangerous practice carried on by the defendant, the evidence of those witnesses was admissible (1)

16. When there is a question whether a particular act was Extreme of done, the existence of any course of business, according to which it when relevant yould have been done, is a relevant fact.

Illustrations.

(a) The question is, whether a particular letter was despatched.

The facts that it was the ordinary course of husiness for all letters put in a certain place to be carried to the post, and that that particular letter was put in that place, are relevantic[2].

(b) The question is, whether a particular letter reached .1.

The facts that it was posted in due course, and was not returned through the Dead-letter Office, are relevant.(3)

Principle.-Evidence of the existence of the course of business is relevant as laying a foundation for the presumption which the Court may ruse from the course of business when proved. The Court may then presume that the common course of business has been followed in the particular case .(4) and this presumption is but an application of the general maxim omnia præsumuntur rite esse acta, and proceeds on the well-recognised fact that the conduct of men in official and commercial matters is to a very great extent uniform. In such cases there is a strong presumption that the general regularity will not, in any particular instance, be departed from. Customs may like any other facts or circumstances be shown when their existence will increase or diminish the probabilities of an act having been done or not done, which act is the subject of contest, (5) It would seem to be axiomatic that a man is likely to do, or not to do a thing, or to do it, or not to do it, in a particular way, according as he is in the habit of doing or not doing it.(6) But the course of business must be clearly made out in order to establish that connection between the facts proved and sought to be proved which is the foundation of the presumption. (7)

5. 114, illust. (f) (Presumption as to course of business.) s 3 (" Relevant ")

1. 3 (" Fact.")

Steph, Dig., Art. 13, Powel, Ev., 92—94, Norton, Ev., 141, Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 43, 243; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 84, Taylor, Ev., §§ 176—182, Field, Ev., 122, Best, Ev., § 203; Cunningham, Ev., 121, Wigmore, Ev., § 92

(2) Hetherspin v. Armp., 4 Camp., 193 Ningwa v. Bharmapps, 23 B. 63, 66 (1877), and see Silvet v. Garbett. 7 Q. B., 848, Treiter v. Maclean, L. B., 13 C. B., 257, Nind v. Lord Londelsbrough, 12 C. B., 252, Nieph. Dig. Art 13, illust (b), but the course of business may be contradicted, Societa v. Collin, 7 M. A. W., 515, see also ss. 50 and 51 of the trended Act II of 1835

(3) Harren & Harren, 1 C. M & R., 250. 2 Lep., 54; 3 C. & P., 250; and see Saunderson 3, Judge, 2 H. L., 500, Woodcock v. Houldsworth, 16 M. & W., 124; Abbey v. Hill, 5 Bing., 253-Plum's case, R. & R., 284; Kent v. Louren, I Camp., 178; Steph. Dp., Art. 13, illust (c); see Jopendon Chunder v. Dowrsh, Nalh, 15 C., 681.

683 (1888)

(4) S. 114, illust (I), pow, the matter dealt with by this section is treated by English text, writers under the subject of presumptions — The ordinary course of business is proved and the Court is saked to presume that, on the particular occasion in question, there was no departure from the ordinary and general rule, see sutherities cited, sepres, and Field, Er., 122. Duarda Duser & Bobo Janker, 6 M I A. 50 [ "It is reasonable to presume that that which was the ordinary course was pursued in this case "]

(5) Walker v. Barron, & Minn , 508, 512 (Amer ), per Flandrau, J

(6) State v. Railroad, 52 N. H., 528, 532 (Amer.), per Sargent, C. J. See Wigmore, Ev.,

(7) See Cunningham, Ev., 121.

<sup>(1)</sup> Hales v Kerr (1908), 2 K B, 601 Times L. R. c. 24, p 779

COMMENTARY.

Course of business.

· As to the meaning of the words "course of business," see notes to the second clause of thirty-second section, post. The section relates to private as well as public offices. Illustration (a) relates to the former : Illustration (b) to the latter, namely, the post office itself.(1) Where it was sought to prove that a certain indorsement had been made on a (lost) license entered at the Custom House. at was held to be relevant to show that the course of office was not to permit the entry without such indorsements.(2) And where the question was whether A paid B his "s practice was to pay all his workmen regula was seen with the rest waiting to he paid and to complain,(3) So also where the demand was for the proceeds of milk sold daily to customers by the defendant as agent to the plaintiff, and it appeared that the course of dealing was for the defendant to pay the plaintiff every day the money which she had received without any written voucher passing, it was ruled that it was to be presumed that the defendant had in fact accounted, and that the onus of proving the contrary lay on the plaintiff (4) Where evidence was admitted of a book-keeper's custom of handing over collateral notes to the teller as indicating that it was done in this instance, Sherwood, J , said "It is really immaterial whether he was able to do more than to verify his entries and prove his invariable custom. These things being proven, the presumption arises therefrom that the usual course of business was pursued in this particular instance. Every one is presumed to govern himself by the rules of right reason and consequently that he acquits himself of his engagement and duty Whenever it is established that one act is the usual concomitant of another, the latter being proved, the former will b' presumed, for this is in accord with the experience of common life. It is simply the process of ascertaining one act from the existence of another." (5) The fixed inethods and systematic operation of the postal and telegraph service is evidence of the delivery of matter placed for that purpose in the custody of the proper authority. "If a letter properly directed (6) is proved to have been either put into the post office or delivered to the postman, (7) it is presumed, from the known course of business in that department of the public service, that it reached its destination at the regular time, and was received by the person to whom it was addressed "(8) "Again, if letters or notices properly directed to a gentleman be left with his servant, it is only reasonable to presume, primá face, that they reached his hands. (9) The fact, too, of sending a letter to the post office will in general be regarded by a jury as presumptively proved, if the letter be shown to have been handed to, or left with, the clerk, whose duty it was in the ordinary course of business to carry it to the post,

<sup>(1)</sup> Norton, Er., 141

<sup>(2)</sup> Butler v. Allaut, 1 Starkie, 222; Phipson, Ev. 3rd Ed, 96, Taylor, Ev., § 180A, see also Van Ometon v Donick, 2 Camp, 34; Waddington v Rebetts, L. R., 3 Q. H, 579; Manon v.

Wood, 1 C. P. D., 63
(3) Lucas v. Norositesti, 1 Esp., 296, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 97; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 37; and see Sellen v. Norman, 4 C. & P., 80.

<sup>(4)</sup> Erana v. Birch, 3 Camp., 10, Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 37.

<sup>(5)</sup> Mathias v. If Neill, 94 No., 527; 6 S. W., 223 (Amer.).

<sup>(6)</sup> See Boller v. Haynes, Eay, & M., 149; Burmener v. Barron, 17 Q B, 823; Taylor, Ev., s. 179, no inference should be drawn from the posting of a letter that it was properly addressed; Raw Das v. The Official Layuedate,

Colton Ginning Co , Ld , Cownpore, 9 A., 366,

<sup>384 (1897)</sup> (7) Silbeck v Garbett, 7 Q. B., 848.

<sup>(8)</sup> Best. E. 1, $400. Texplor, Er. 5, $170, and cases there cited. Scauleron x. Judge, apper. Blookteel v. Houldtoneth, supper, Flaren v. Houldtoneth, in princip freeze year. If a letter is sent by the post is reprined free proof, and it is contary be proved, that the part to whom it is addressed received it in dose course, For Parke, B. in Harrier v. Harren, supp. Lon f. Alv. Feater Makes, 10 N. N. 221 (1871) [Id. a letter is forwarded to a person by post duly regulatered it must be presumed that it was tendered to hund. See also a. 14, ant. see presumption as to post letters summarted in Powell, Er. 9, 61.

<sup>(9)</sup> Margregor v. Keily, 3 W. H. & G., 794, Taylor, Ec., § 182; Powell, Ev., 97.

and if he can declare that, although he has no recollection of the particular letter, he invariably took to the post office all letters that either were delivered to him, or were deposited in a certain place for that purpose."(1) Upon the settlement of the list of contributories to the assets of a company in course of liquidation, one of the persons named in the list denied that he had agreed to become a member of the company or was hable as a contributory. The District Court admitted as evidence on behalf of the official liquidator, a press-copy of a letter addressed to the objector, for the purpose of proxing that a notice of allotment of share was duly communicated. No notice to the objector to produce the original letter appeared on the record; but, at the hearing of the appeal, it was alleged by the official liquidator and denied by the objector, that such notice had been in fact given. There was no evidence as to the posting of the original letter, or of the address which it bore; but the press-copy was contained in the press-copy letter-book of the company, and was proved to be in the handwriting of a deceased Secretary of the company, whose duty it was to despatch letters after they had been copied in the letter-book. The objector demed having received the letter or any notice of allotment, held that the Court should not draw the inference that the original letter was properly addressed or posted; that the presscopy letter was madmissible in evidence; and that there was no proof of the communication of any notice of allotment.(2) Where a notice to quit was sent by registered letter the posting of which was proved, and which was produced in Court in the cover in which it was despatched, that cover containing the notice with an indorsement upon it purporting to be by an officer of the post office stating the refusal of the addressee to receive the letter, held that this was sufficient service of notice.(3) Postmarks on letters,-when capable of being deciphered,-are prima facie evidence that the letters were in the post at the time and place therein specified (4) the postmark on a letter has been admitted as evidence of the date of its being sent (5) but a postmark may be contradicted by oral evidence of the real date of posting (6) The presumption, in the case of the post office, that a letter properly directed and posted will be delivered in due course (7) will be extended to postal telegrams now that the inland telegraphs form part of the Government postal system.(8)
In certain cases special provision has been made by Statute with respect

In certain cases special provision has been made by Statut: with respect to matters with which this section is concerned. Thus in the case of documents served by post on companies, in proving service of such documents, it is sufficient to prove that it was properly directed, and that it was put as a registered letter into the post office. (9)

Powell, Ev , 94 , Wigmore, Ev , § 95

<sup>(1)</sup> Taylor, E. § 182, and cases cited there and oute, Suleck or Gorbou, Heldermon v Kemp. Traiters Marleon, Ward v, Lord Londschousely, Torters Marleon, Ward v, Lord Londschousely, To prove the senting of a notice by port, the planning clerk was called, who stated that a letter containing the notice was sent by not on a Tossday morning, but he had no recollection whether it was plit in by himself or another clerk; it was held that not sufficent critices of putting into the post, Haules v Salter, 4 Bing, see Rosco, N. P. Ev, 374, and Tossey v. Wu. Long, 191. & M. 1, 292

<sup>(2)</sup> Ramdas v The Official Liquidator, Cotton Ginning Co., Ld., Caumpore, 9 A., 366 (1887) (3) Jogendra Chunder v. Dwarla Nath, 15 C.,

 <sup>(1889)
 (4)</sup> Fletcher v Braddyll, 3 Stark, R, 64, Stocker v. Collin, 7 M. & W., 515, R. v. Johnson, 7 East.
 (5) Taylor, Ev, s. 179, and cases there cited; son, L. R, 6 Ex. 122, per Bramwell, B.

(8) Roscoe, N P Ev. 13, see also as to the telegraphic messages, a 88, post.

<sup>(9)</sup> Act VI of 1882 (Indian Companies), a. 90 If a notice given under the Negotiable Instruments Act (AXVI of 1881, a. 94) is duly directed and sent by post, and miscarries, such miscarriage does not render the notice invalid

<sup>(5)</sup> Abbey v. Hill, 5 Bing, 299, R. v. Plumer, R. & Ry., 264, Facel v. Louren, 1 Camp., 177, Roscoc, N. P. Ev., 213, & 214, Steph Dig, Art, 13, illust (a) a letter is presumed to have arrived at its destination at the time at which it would be delivered in the ordinary course of postal bins.

ness, Stocken v Collin, ante, Powell, Ev., 95 (6) Stocken v Collin, supra, Burr Jones, Ev., §46 (7) British and American Telegraph Co v Colson, L. R., 6 Ex., 122, per Bramwell, B.

ADMISSIONS

THE following sections (i.e., ss. 17-31), deal with the subject of admissions and confessions which have been generally said to form exceptions to the rule which excludes hearsay This is not entirely correct. Admissions are sometimes used as merely discrediting a party's statement by showing that he has on other occasions made statements inconsistent with the case afterwards set Their effect in such a case is merely destructive. It is their inconsistency with the party's present claim that gives them logical force and not their testimonial credit. For in such cases the truth of the admission is not relied on, and therefore they are not obnoxious to the hearsay rule.(1) In effect and broadly it may be stated that anything said by a party may be used against him as an admission, provided it exhibits the quality of inconsistency with the facts now asserted by him in pleadings or testimons. It follows that the subject of an admission is not limited to facts against the party's interest at the time; for though the weight of credit to be given to such statements is increased where the fact stated is against the person's interest at the time that circumstance has no bearing upon their admissibility (2) An admission in the legal is not always an admission in the popular sense re a statement which at the time it was made was against the real or apparent interest of the party (3). But an admission may also state facts against interest as where it admits a claim or a fact relied on by the adversary. In such case the admission is used as evidence of the truth of its contents and as possessing an evidentiary force per se. It is then equivalent to affirmative testimony for the party offering it. Admissions in such cases have a testinguial value independent of the contradiction and being the statements of persons not witnesses form exceptions to the hearsay rule. In this sense it has been said that - "The general rule is, that every material fact must be proved by testimony on oath There is an exception to that rule, namely, that the declarations of a party to the record, or of one identified in interest with him, are as against such party, admissible in evidence."(4) The statements which are the subject of these sections are admitted firstly, as infirmative of the case made and secondly, when amounting to proof for the adversary because in respect of the persons making them there is some security for their accuracy which countervails the general objections to hearsay testimony. An admission is only relevant against the person who makes it or his representative in interest ,(5) this rule being only a branch of the general one that a man shall not be allowed to make evidence for himself.(6) But as universal experient e testifies that, as men consult their own interest, and seek their own advantage, whatever they say or admit against their interest or advantage may, with tolerable safety, be taken to be true as against them, at least until the contrary appears.(7)

Admissions

An admission has been defined to be a statement which suggests any inference as to any fact in issue or relevant fact, and which is made by any of the

<sup>(1)</sup> Wigmore, Fr., $ 1848, et seq

<sup>(2)</sup> Ib

 <sup>(3)</sup> Physion, Ev., 3rd Ed., 192
 (4) Sparps v. Brown, 9 B. & C., 935, 938 per

<sup>(5) &</sup>gt; 21 and note thereto, post, the exceptions is also an instance of statements made by a person being offered on his own behalf. An admission may further be proved on behalf of a party if it is relevant otherwise than as an admission, a 21, cb (3)

<sup>(6)</sup> Best, Ev., § 519

<sup>(7)</sup> Best, Ev . 5 519; Taylor, Lv . 5 723

<sup>(5) &</sup>gt; 21 and not thereto, past, the exceptions (b) heat, to the rule are contained in a. 21, cls (1), (2), (7) Best, The admissibility of books of account under a. 31

persons and under the circumstances in the following sections mentioned.(1) In English law, the term admirtion is usually applied to civil transactions, and to those statements of fact in criminal cases which do not amount to acknowledgments of guilt or which do not suggest the inference of guilt; the term 'confession' being generally restricted to acknowledgments of guilt or statements which suggest the inference of guilt.(2)

Besides admissions written and oral, a party may make admissions by his conduct. These are not mentioned in the seventeenth section, as they have already been dealt with in the eighth section, and. Admissions by assumed character, conduct, silence, and the like, are not exceptions to the hearsay rule; they are usually original circumstantial evidence of the facts to which they relate, (3). Analogous to admissions by conduct is the rule which treats as admissions by a party statements made in his presence and not denied by him provided the circumstances were such as to make a demail necessary or appropriate (4).

A confession is, "an admission made at any time by a person charged with Confession a crime, stating or suggesting the inference that he committed that crime. (5) There is a distinction between admissions and confessions in the Act(6) which, however, as it does not contain a definition of the word "confession." does not itself declare in what that distinction exists. The nature of this distinction has, however, been the subject of judicial consideration in the Bombay and Allahabad High Courts. In the first place, as sections 17-31 deal with admissions generally, and include sections 24-30 which trent of confessions as distinguished from admissions, it would appear that confessions are a species of which an admission is the genus. All admissions are not confessions but all confessions are admissions. Thus a statement amounting under sections 24-30 to a confession, in a criminal proceeding, may be an admission under the twenty-first section, in a civil proceeding. So statements made to the police by accused persons as to the ownership of property which is the subject-matter of the proceedings against them, although madmissible as evidence against them at the trial for the offence with which they are charged, are admissible as evidence with regard to the ownership of the property in an enquiry under section 523 of the Criminal Procedure Code (7) The present portion of the Act adopts the term "Admission" as the generic term for both civil and criminal proceedings, and uses the particular term "confession" for admissions(a) in criminal proceedings ,(b) made by a particular person, viz, an accused person ,(8) (c) of the particular character denoted in the following definition sion is an admission made at any time by a person charged with a crime

<sup>(1)</sup> S. 17, post, see Wills, Ev., 101

<sup>(2)</sup> Taylor, Ev , 724

<sup>(3)</sup> Best, Fr., American Notes, p. 438, Norton, P. 428, Astonadmissions by conduct, ev. Powell, Er., 277, Taylor, Ev., 1804, s. 8, ants. Confessions, the admissions in civil case, may be inferent too conduct of the pressor and from his sulent sequescence in the statements of others made in this presence, respecting himself: Taylor, Ev.

<sup>(4)</sup> Best, Ev., th, see notes to a 8, ante.

<sup>(5)</sup> Steph Dig , Art. 21 , the Act contains no definition of a " confession."

<sup>(6)</sup> R. v. Macdonald, 10 B L. R., App., 2 (1872), per Phoar, J., R. v. Dabee Pershad, 6 C., 530 (1881).

R. v Meker Ah. 15 C. 339, 533 [1884] R. v. Nalandalsh, 15 C. 505 [1884] per Peterana, C. J.—"If the contents of the document dad not amount 10 a confession, the document tastly would be relevant as an admission under a 21," D. 607. None, however, of the above cases indicate the difference between "admissions" and "confessions" Se as to this R. v. Bobs Loli, 6. 4, 500, 233 [1884]; R. v. Jaryan, 7. A. 616 [1885], R. v. Pandarinani, B. B. 34 [1851], R. v. None 14 B. 200, 203 [1884]

<sup>(7)</sup> R v. Tribhoran Manekehand, 9 B., 131, 134 (1894).

<sup>[8]</sup> R. v. Tribhotun Manekekand, 9 B. 131, 134, R. v. Jagenp, 7 A., 646, 648 (1885).

(a) stating or (b) suggesting the inference that he committed that crime."(1) Therefore not only statements which amount to a direct acknowledgment of guilt "h, although they fall short of guilt. All inculpatory such as fall short of being guilt follows (2) A statement which is intended by the maker to be self-exculpatory may be nevertheless an admission of an incriminating circumstance; (3) the factor determining whether a statement amounts to a confession or not being not the motive of the party making it, but the fact that it leads to an inference of guilt. A "confession" is a statement which it is proposed to prove against a person accused of offence to establish that offence, (4) while under the term "admission" are comprised all other statements amounting to admissions within the meaning of the seventeenth and eighteenth sections, ante. Statements by way of confession which are excluded by sections 14—30 are madmissible under the eighth section, ante. This latter section, therefore, in so far as it admits a statement as included in the word "conduct," must be read in connection with the twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth sections, and cannot admit a statement as evidence which would be shut out by these sections. (5) As in the case of admissions in civil suits, the principle upon which the reception of confessions depends is the presump-

In such If prisoners really voluntarily confess, their confessions are the best possible evidence against them; and a verdict based on voluntary confessions is just as good as a verdict based in the testimony of credible witnesses. (8)

But self-harming evidence is not always receivable in criminal cases as

But self-narming evidence is not always receivable in criminal cases as it is in civil. There is this condition precedent to its admissibility that the party against whom it is adduced must have supplied it voluntarily or at least freely. (9)

A prisoner may be convicted on his own uncorroborated confession. (10) But in order to support a conviction the admission by the prisoner must be an

<sup>(1)</sup> Steph Dig , Art. 21, adopted and followed in R v Babu Lal, 6 A, 509, 539 (1844), R v. Nana, 14 B , 260, 263, F B, (1889) , R . Kanonl Mals, Cr Ref., 30 of 1905 Cal. H C . 18 Sept., 1905 , R. v. Janup. 7 A , 646 (1885) (In this last case Straight, J, was of opinion that the word "confession" cannot be construed as including a mere inculpatory admission which falls short of being ana dimession of guilt, but he also added that he did not find anything in Mr. Stephen's deportion at variance with the view he took. It may, however, be pointed out that the rule contended for is not that every meulpatory statement is a confession, but only such as fall short of being an admission of guilt and from which an inference of guilt follows. As to "plenary" and "not plenary" statements, see Best, Ev. § 524]; see also R v. Pandharreath, 6 B , 31 (1881)

<sup>(2)</sup> Haliman v. R., 51 P. L. R., 1905; 2 Cr. L. J., 230, and see notes to a. 25, past.

<sup>(3)</sup> R. v. Pandharmath, 6 H., 34, 37 (1881) (4) R. v. Tribborn Manishand, 9 B., 131, 134 (1844), it is "an admission of a criminating cursumstance, on which the prosecution mainly relet." R. v. Pandharmath, 6 R., 34, 37 (1881);

R v Nana, 14 B, 260, 263 (1889).

<sup>(5)</sup> R. v. Nana, 14 B., 260 (1889), see also R. v. Jora Haspi, 11 Born. H. C. R., 24 (1874); R. v. Rama Birapa, 3 B., 12 (1878); and s. 82, post (6) Taylor, Ev., $865, Dest. Ev., $624; Philhep & Arnold, Ev. 401, P. v. Villey-Mark.

(b) Laylor, Er. § 885. Eest, Er. § 624; Philips & Arnold, Et. 401, R. v. Fellaraddi, 6 Rom. L. R. 773, in which also the question of the importance to be attached to variations in confessional statements is discussed."

<sup>(7) &</sup>quot;In criminal cases a deliberate confession carries with it a greater probability of truth and an admission in civil case, the consequences being more serious and penal." Philips & Arnold, Fv. 402. In R v Baddey, 2 Den at p. 446, Flei, J. and, "I am of opnoin that when a confession is well proved it is the best evidence that can be procured."

<sup>(8)</sup> R v. Wuzir Mundid, 25 W. R., Cr., 25, 26 (1876)

<sup>(9)</sup> Best, Ev. § 551. (10) R v. Ranject bonial, 6 W. It., Cr., 73 (1866);

R v. Hydre Jolaka, b. 83 (1860); or on his own admission coupled with the evidence, R v. Kallychurs, T. W. R., Cr., 50 (1867); as to the effect of extra-judicial confession, v. mid.

admission of guilt. So where some prisoners during a preliminary investigation stated that the crime was committed by other persons and that any share they had in it was under compulsion, it was pointed out that, though such a statement contained an important admission, it was not an admission of guilt, and that upon such a statement alone no person ought to be convicted.(1) Confessions have been divided by English text-writers into two classes, namely, judicial and extra-judicial. Judicial confessions are those which are made before the Magistrate, or in Court, in the due course of legal proceedings. Either of these is sufficient to support a conviction, though followed by a sentence of death,-they both being deliberately and solemnly made under the protecting caution and oversight of the Judge (2) Extra-judicial confessions are those which are made by the party elsewhere than before a Magistrate, or in Court: this term embracing not only express confessions of crime, but all those admissions and acts of the accused, from which guilt may be implied. All voluntary confessions of this kind are receivable in evidence on being proved like other facts.(3) Whether, however, extra-judicial confessions, if uncorroborated, are under English law of themselves sufficient for conviction, has been doubted. In each of the English cases usually cited in favour of the sufficiency of this evidence, some corroborating circumstance will be found.(4) On this point, as on others concerning the weight to be assigned to evidence this Act leaves the discretion of the Courts unfettered ,(5) but the Court will, it is apprehended, adopt, as a matter of practice and prudence, at any rate in all but exceptional cases, that view which regards such confessions, when uncorroborated, as insufficient, an opinion which "certainly best accords with the humanity of the criminal law," and with the great degree of caution applied in receiving and weighing the evidence of confessions in other cases. Moreover, it seems countenanced by approved writers on this branch of the law.(6) Further, the words actually used by an accused, who is said to have confessed, ought to be ascertained. The Court should not accept merely the conclusions at which the witnesses, deposing to a confession, themselves arrived, from the answers which the accused gave to questions put by them. (7) As to retracted confessions, see note to s. 24, post.

--- to the proceeding.(8) And a party Persons by dmissions of the following persons ; whom admissions ;(9) (c) a person who has a proprie- man

tary or pecuniary interest in the subject-matter of the suit (10) (d) a predecessor in title or a person from whom the party to the suit has derived his interest ; (11) (e) a person whose position it is necessary to prove in a suit when the statement would be relevant in a suit brought by or against himself ,(12) (1) a referee, or a person to whom a party to the suit has expressly referred for information.(13) Generally with respect to the person whose admissions may be received, the doctrine is, that the declarations of a party to the record or of one identified in interest with him are as against such party receivable in evidence. (14)

<sup>(1)</sup> R v Kristo Mundul, 7 W R , Cr , 8 (1867) (2) Taylor, Ev , § 866 , v ante . R v Bhuttun Rupean, 12 W R , Cr , 49 (1869); as to the effect of judicial confessions and as to retracted confessions, v. s 24, post

<sup>(3)</sup> Taylor, Ev , § 867 . R v. Gopeenath, 13 W R , 69 (1870), [a confession made to a private andividual may be evidence against the prisoner if proved by the person before whom the confession was made] , R. v Mohan Lal, 4 A , 46, 94 (1881); R. v. Bysago Noshyo, 8 W P., Cr., 28 (1877)

<sup>(4)</sup> Taylor, Ev., § 868 (5) Field, Ev , 151 , The report of the case there cited in this connection [R. v Jhurree, 7 W. R., Cr.

<sup>41 (1867), (</sup>a voluntary and genuine confession is legal and sufficient proof of guilt) does not state the nature of the confession

<sup>(6)</sup> Taylor, Ev . § 868

<sup>(7)</sup> R . Soobjan, 10 B L R , 332, 335 (1873).

R v Mohan Lal, 4 A , 46, 49 (1881)

<sup>(8)</sup> S 18, post (9) Id

<sup>(10)</sup> Id (11) Id

<sup>(12)</sup> S 19. post

<sup>(13)</sup> S 20, post see notes to ss 18-20, post. (14) Taylor, Ev . § 740 . Spargo v. Brown, 9 B.

<sup>£ € , 93%</sup>

212 ADMISSIONS.

But if they proceed from a stranger they are in general madmissible.(1) The act has rendered such admissions receivable in the two cases mentioned in the nineteenth and twentieth sections, post.(2)

Subject to the provisions of the thirtieth section relating to confessions by persons who are being tried jointly for the same offence, the general rule is that an accused person can only be affected by the admissions or confessions of kimself, and not by those of agents, accomplices or strangers (3) unless made in his presence and assented to by him.(1) Nor, of course, can such confessions be used in his favour. As to admissions by prosecutors, v. post, notes to ss. 17-20.

Time when, and persons to whom, admissions may be made

When a party sues, or is sued, personally, any admission made by him on any former occasion may be given in evidence against him. Such admissions may have been made by him while a minor For though a minor, as he cannot appoint an agent (5) cannot be bound by the admissions of an agent purporting to act for him, yet admissions made by the minor himself may be proved in an action brought against him after obtaining his majority.(6) When a party sues or is sued, personally, an admission made by him on a former occasion, while sustaining a representative character, may also be given in evidence against him. Thus where a person, when defending a sint as guardian for a minor. made an affidavit of certain facts, this affidavit was held to be evidence against that person of the facts sworn to in a subsequent action against him personally.(7) But admissions made by person sued or suing in a representative character are not admissions, unless they were made while the party making them held that character (8) such persons therefore cannot affect the party represented by their admissions made before sustaining, or after they have ceased to sustain their representative character (9) Further statements by a party interested ' in the subject-matter, or by a person from whom interest is derived, must have been made during the continuance of the interest ,(10) and statements by the persons mentioned in the nineteenth section must have been made whilst the person making them occupied the position or was subject to the hability, in the section mentioned.(11)

So far as its admissibility in evidence is concerned, it is in general immaterial to uchom an admission is made. (12) Thus an admission mode to a stranger is as receivable as one made to an opponent. "It has indeed been held that, in order to render an account stated binding on a party, the admission of liability must be made to the opposite party or his agent, (13) but this only refers to

<sup>(1)</sup> Id ; Larough v. H hde, 4 B & C., 323

<sup>(2)</sup> As to when admissions proceeding from strangers are admissible, set Paylor, Ev. §170–705, 740, v. post, the admissibility, however, of the evidence in the case of referees may be added to be grounded on the principle of agency, the party referring to another makes that other has seen for the purpose of making the particular admission, Wilk Ev. 112.

<sup>(3)</sup> Taylor, Ev., ij 904... oxi; 3 Ross, (r., 485... 421, Roscoe, (r., Ev., 49... 51; see as to admissions by agents, post; and as to admissions by coproprietors, r. s. 10, mate.

<sup>(4)</sup> R v. Moulton Coz. 1 F. & F., 90; H. v Mallory ,15 Coz., 456, 454; Taylor, Ev., § 907

<sup>(5)</sup> Act IX of 1972 (Contract), s. 183; and see s. 11, st; v. pas. (6) O'Neilt v. Real, 7 Ir. L. R., 434, cited in Field, Ev., 161, "such admissions might relate to the receipt of goods or to other matters, but would not of course, affect the question of lability in cases in which a minor would not be fable on a contract unless such contract were ratified by him after attaining his majority. Field, Ev., 163; see Dharmaji Teman v Gurrar Shrinvas, 19 Bom. H. C. R. 311 (AL).

<sup>(7)</sup> Beasley v Magrath, 2 \( \text{ch. & Lef.} \), 31, 34;
Tarlor, Es., § 755; Stanton v Percual, 5
H. L. C., 257.

. L. C., 237. (8) S. 18, post, Wills, Er., 119

<sup>(9)</sup> See Steph Dig , Art 16, and post-

<sup>(10)</sup> S. 18, post. (11) S 19, post.

<sup>(12)</sup> Best, Er , § 528.

<sup>(15)</sup> Brecken v. Smith. 1 A & E., 459; Hughes v. Thorpe, 5 M. & W., 697, Bates v. Townley, 2 Figh., 156; Taylor, Ev., 4799.

the effect of the admission, not to its admissibility."(1) Even an admission made in confidence to a legal adviser or a wife is receivable, if proved by a third person.(2) So private memoranda never communicated to the opposite side or to third persons are evidence against a party (3) as are admissions made to himself in mere soliloguy.(4) But what a person has been heard to say while talking in his sleep seems not to be legal exidence against him, however valuable it may be as indicative evidence; for here the suspension of the faculty of judgment may fairly be presumed complete.(5)

So with regard to voluntary confessions, subject to the provisions of the twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth sections post (relating to confessions made to, and whilst in the custody of a police officer) it is in general immaterial to whom they have been made. So what the accused has been overheard muttering to himself. or saying to his wife or any other person in confidence will be receivable in evidence provided that, in the latter case, it is proved by some person other than the wife, counsel, or solicitor (6) An admission of crime, when fairly made after due warning, is not inadmissible simply because at the time it was made, no formal accusation had been made against the party making it (7)

In respect of the nature of admissions no difference exists, in regard to Nature and their inadmissibility, between direct admissions and those which are incidental, admission or made in some other connection, or involved in the admission of some other fact.(8) So far, at least, as its admissibility is concerned, the form of an admission is in general immaterial.(9) Thus admissions are receivable which are made parol, or are contained in books of account or letters ,(10) documents (e.g., a map) filed as correct in a former proceeding (11) rough draft of a plaint previously filed, (12) depositions, (13) verified plaints, (14) or verified petitions, (15) or written statements or answers to interrogatories, affidavits, and the like, in former suits (16) for a statement made by a party in another suit may clearly be used as an admission within the meaning of the eighteenth section (17) Entries in books of account, though proved not to have been regularly kept, may

(I) Best, Es., § 528 (2) Taylor, Ev., § 881 [ser as 122, 126-129,

(3) Bruce v. Garden, 17 W R (Fngl.), 990,

Whart. Ev , § 1123 (4) R v. Samons, 6 C A P. 540, Best, Ev.

(5) Best, Es , § 529 , R v Elizabeth Suppets, Kent, Summ Ass., 1839, cited, ib., Gore v Gib-#0n, 13 M & W , 623, 627.

(6) See Taylor, Ev , § 891, and cases cited ante , see as 25, 26, post, see also R v Sagrena, 7 W R, Cr , 56 (1867)

(7) R. v. Ram Churn, 4 W R., Cr., 10 (1865)

(8) Taylor, Ev , § 800)

(9) Wills, Ev., 102, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 197 , Best Ev., § 521 , as to admissions " without prejudice," see s 23, post.

(10) Ras Srs Kashen v Ras Hurs Kashen, 5 M I A., 432, 443 (1853), R v Hanmanta, 1 B, 610, 617 (1877), a post, a letter containing an admission does not require a stamp before it can be admitted in evidence, Situl Pershad v Monohur Das, 23 W. R , 325 (1875), see also Norain Coomary v Ram Krishna, 5 C. 864, where an entry, showing the extent of the holding and the amount of the rent, made m a book belonging to the lessor, and signed by the lessee, was held relevant as an admission, though neither stamped nor rematered

(11) Huronath Stream v Preonath Stream, 7 W-R , 249 (1867)

(12) Byathamma v Avulla, 15 M., 19 (1891). (13) Obhoy Gobind v Beejoy Govind, 9 W R. 162 (1869), Soojan Biliet v 4chmut Ali, 14 B. L. R. App., 3 (1874), s c 21 W R. 414 (v post); and see cases cited post, passim

(14) Girish Chunder v Shama Churn, 15 W R . 437 (1871)

(15) Ib , Gour Lall v Mohesh Narain, 14 W. R , 484 (1871), and see post Mohun Sahoo v Chutto Mongr. 21 W. R., 34 (1874), as to statement a filed in Court in name of pardanashin, see Asmutoonissa Bibee v Alla Hafiz, 8 W R , 468 (1867).

(16) Field, Ev., 124, Hursth Chunder v Prosunno Coomar, 22 W R, 303 (1874) Bhugmunt Narain v Loll Jha, Marshall, 487(1862)

(17) Hurish Chunder v Prosunno Coomar, 22 W R. 303 (1874), as to pleadings in the same proceedings, v post As to the admissibility in England of pleadings in other actions, see Phipson, Ev. 3rd Ed. 216

214 ADMISSIONS.

yet be relevant as admissions.(1) Admissions may be also contained in rectiful and descriptions in deris (2) horsospes (3) receipts, or mere acknowledgment given for goods or money, whether on separate papers, or indorsed on deeds, of on negotiable securities, banker's pass-books; accounts rendered, such as a solicitor's bill; sworn mentories and declarations by executors which operate as an admission of assets (4) and survey maps (5). The omission of a claim by an insolvent in a schedule of the debte due to him given on oath is an admission that it is not due (6). A statement in a bill of sale is evidence against those who are parties to it, the seller and the purchaser and the person who purchased from such last-mentioned purchaser (7). State of the purchaser and the person who purchased from such last-mentioned purchaser (7). State of the purchaser and the person who purchased from such last-mentioned purchaser (7). State of the purchaser (8) which do section, cannot be relied on as a but not one which is not turn made to a collector is an admission as to the

As to admissions in dord febrists, or in notices to enhance rent, see cases noted below. (13) Though a judgment is generally irrelevant, as between strangers, it may be relevant as between strangers if it is an admission. (14) Thus where A sued B. a carnier, for goods delivered by A to B, a judgment recovered by B against a person to whom he had delivered the goods, was held to be relevant as an admission by B that he had them (15) "It is true that a record is sometimes admitted in evidence, in favour of a stranger against one of the parties, as containing a solemn admission by such party in a judicial proceeding with respect to a certain fact. But this is no real exception to the rule requiring mutuality, because the record is admitted in this case not as a judgment conclusively establishing the fact, but as the deliberate declaration.

representative of A, the other mosety going to amount of family property as senting K's branch, a judgment and other docum by K, in which suit the advantage of the family property as evidence ag of the

Thouga

(1) R . .., vii (1811), T

(2) Taylor, Et. 91-100; 859, Roscoc, N. P., Et., 76; Powell, Ev., 249-252, v. pair; Konwar Hexopanath v. Ram Chunder, 4 I. A. 52 (1876) (3) Part Granday v. Ram Gounday, 17 M. 134

(3) Raya Goundan v. Raya Goundan, 17 M., 134

(4) Tarlor, Er., 13 859, 860

(5) See notes to a 30, post, and cases there ested
(6) Taylor, Er., § 804; Mehalls v. Daunes.

M. & Rob., 13; Hart v. Neuman, 3 Camp., 13 (7) Soojan Bibee v. Achmet Ali, supra.

Sooyan Bibre v Achmet Ali, supra.
 Popler Habloon v. Gorrer Baboo, 24 W. R.

114 (1975)
(9) Whart, § 1124, cited in Phipson, Ev., 3rd
Ed., 193-194.

(10) Act II of 1499 (Stamp), # 31

(11) Ib cl (2), other than proceedings under Ch XII (Disputes as to immovable property), Ch XXXVI (Maintenance of wives and children) of Act V of 1803 (Criminal Procedure)

(12) Audh Beharee v Ram Rai, 18 W. R., 105 (1872)

(13) Gunga Pershad v Gogun Sing, 3 C. 322 (1877), see also Narasa Coomary v Ram Krishia, 5 C. 864 (1850), Judonath v Rajah Byroda, 22 W. P. 220 (1974)

(14) Steph Dig . Art 41

(15) Tiley v Cowling, 1 Ld Ry, 744, s c, B N P, 243; Steph Dig, Art. 44, illust (*); Taylor, Ev., § 1894

(16) Taylor, Ev., § 1691

(17) Krishnasimi v. Rajijopila, 18 M., 73, 77. 74 (1935) considered in evidence in a civil case, (1) a plea of guilty in the Criminal Court may be so considered as evidence of an admission. (2) As to admissions made in pleadings, see notes to the fifty-eighth section, post.

Personal knowledge is not required. "An admission is receivable although and opinion. its weight may be slight, which is founded on hearsay, (3) or consists merely of the declarant's opinion or belief (4) but where the admission is an inference from facts, not personally from facts, not personally . . . . inference and look to the ! . ed,' without the addition ... admission."(6) The ground appears to be that even if a party has not personal knowledge, the admissions would ordinarily not be made except on evidence which satisfies the party who is making them that they are true. (7)

An admission, merely as an admission, is not conclusive against the person Effect and who makes it.(8) The latter may show that he was mistaken, or was not telling stances of the truth; he may diminish the importance to be attached to it in any way admissions. he can; he is not precluded from contradicting it, so far as the admission is merely an admission, he may induce the Court to disbelieve or disregard it if he can (9) The circumstances under which an admission was made may always, therefore, be proved to impeach, or (since the weight of an admission depends on these circumstances) to enhance its credibility. (10) An admission, however, may operate as an estoppel in which case the person who made it is not permitted to deny it.(11) As to the effect of admissions as dispensing with proof, see the fifty-eighth section, post. There may be a withdrawal of any gratuitous admission unless there should be some obligation not to withdraw it (12) According to English law admissions obtained under compulsion are evidence against a party if the compulsion was legal (e.g., evidence in the action, answers to interrogatories, and the like), but not if it was illegal (13) Under this Act the fact of compulsion would affect the weight of the evidence only. As to admissions made "without prejudice," see the tweny-third section, post. With regard to the effect of confessions both judicial and extra-judicial, v. ante, p. 210. Confessions are irrelevant in criminal proceedings if made under the circumstances mentioned in the twenty-fourth section, post, unless they come within the provisions of the twenty-eighth section But if no inducement (within the meaning of the twenty-fourth section) has been held out relating to the charge it matters not, as far as admissibility is concerned, in what way a confession has been

(I) te., to establish the truth of the facts upon which it was rendered, see notes to a. 43, post (2) Sumbo Chunder v Modhoo Kyhurt, 10 W R. 56 (1868), Field, Ev., 338

<sup>(3)</sup> Wigmore, Et , § 1053 , Re Perton, 53 L. T., 707 (1885) [statement of a person as to his illegitimacy, see also R . Walter, Cox. 99, in Taylor, Ev , § 737 (1885), the point is treated as doubtful, as to statements by an agent containing hearsay or opinions, see The Actaeon, 1 Spinks, E. & A , 176 , The Solway, 10 P D . 137

<sup>(4)</sup> Doe v Steel, 3 Camp , 115

<sup>(5)</sup> Bulley v Bulley, L. R . 9 Ch . 739, 747

<sup>(6)</sup> Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 196, Wills, Ev., 108, I Damet's Ch. Pr , 6th Ed , 575, Taylor, Ev., § 737; Trimblestown v Kemmis, 9 C & F., 780, 784-786 ; Roe v Ferrars, 2 B & P., 542, in which case it was held that if the defendant give n evidence an answer in Chancers of the plaintiff, it will not entitle the plaintiff to avail himself of any matters contained in such answer which are only stated as hearsay, but see Taylor, Ey. § 737 as to admissions, which operate by way of estoppel, ere s 115, post

<sup>(7)</sup> Kitchen v Robbins, 29 Ga., 713, 716 (Amer.). cited in Wigmore, Ev., § 1053

<sup>(8)</sup> S 31, post (9) See Cunninghman, Ev., 23, 24

<sup>(10)</sup> See notes to s 31, post, "Admissions depend much upon the circumstances under which they are made," R v Summonsto. 1 C & K , 164, 166, per Wightman, J

<sup>(11)</sup> Se 31, 115-117, post

<sup>(12)</sup> Mahommad Imam v Husain Khan, 26 C.,

<sup>(13)</sup> Taylor, Ev., §§ 798-799, Roscoe, N. P., Fr. 63

obtained, though of course the manner in which it has been procured may affect its weight.(1)

Matters provable by admission

"Admissions are receivable to prove matters of law, or mixed law and fact, though funless amounting to estoppels) these are generally of little weight, being necessarily founded on mere opinion. Thus, a defendant's admission that his trade was a nuisance has been received.(2) So a prisoner's admisson of a former valid marriage is some, though not sufficient, evidence to support a conviction for bigamy.(3) Matters of fact simply may always be proved in this manner. Thus, a wife's admission of adultery, though uncorroborated, has on more than one occasion been held sufficient evidence, where considered trustworthy, upon which to grant a divorce,(4) though if corroboration is available(5) it must be produced.(6) But, contrary to the English rule, oral admissions are not receivable to prove the contents of documents, except where secondary evidence is admissible or the genuineness of a document produced is in question (7) The execution of documents (whether attested or not) which are not recoursed by law to be attested may be proved by admission or otherwise (8) And even in the case of documents required by law to be attested, the admission of a party to an attested document of its execution by himself is sufficient proof of its execution as against him.(9) Admissions may even sometimes be received as to matters protected by privilege, provided they are proved by third person (v. ante).

The whole admission must be considered

The whole statement containing the admission must be taken together, (10) for though some part of it may be favourable to the party, and the object is only

- (1) See Taylor, Ev. § 881, s 29, post, and notes thereto
- (2) R. v. Neville, 1 Peak, N. P., 125, see also as to this case, R. v. Fairre, S. E. & B., 496 but use also note (6), post
- (3) R v. Satay. 12 Cov. 178. [no., acd., q. whether reference intended is not B. F. Ehnkritt, 2.C. & K. 782. R. v. Saraya, overrules the previous decision of R v. Nerlin, 2.M. & Rob., 503., 1.C. & R. v. 184, a. c., non., R v. Simmonato, in R v. Philip, 1 Moo. C. p. 1205, however, a declaration of the pressence, aboning who were (according to his own beitef, lat occapations was rejected when by reason of the instability of the document evidencing the transfer of their abartes, there legit title to their could not be testablished.
- (4) Robinson v. Robinson, 1 S. & T., 362., Williams v. Williams, L. R., 1 P. & D., 29 Getty v. Getty (1907), p. 234.
  - (5) White v H hite, 62 L. T , 663
- (6) Physon, Ev. Joel Ed. 1991, in regard to admissions breviewing matters of las (referred to in the above cutation from Physon, Ev.), it is said in Phillips, Ev., p. 344. 1995 Bid. 2—"Where admissions involve matters of law, as well as of matters of fact, they are obviously in many instances entitude to very little weight, and in some cases, they have been altogether rejected." Thus it has been hely that the discharge of a defendant by a Court of Quarter Issainon, under an Insolvent 4st, could not be ratabilised by peof of an neknowledgment of the dushage by the plaintiff limited; for the the hage might have been irregular and woll, or might law been mutaken by the Islandid & Sork (-View, 2 Cam), 270, homomeral 1908, home

v Adamson, 1 Bing, 73, Morie v Miller, Burr., 2007. 4x to admissions and estoppeds on points of law, see Tagore V Tagore, 1 A, Sup. Vol. 17, 1872), Sexuedra Keckaw Deorgenseders, 19 1. A, 115, 116 (1882), Gope Edit v, Mirel, Ser Chandrader, 11 B L B, 205 (1872), and Dangurs on Nond Lei, 3 MH L J, 53, and admission on a point of Law is not a "thing" within the meaning of a 115

- (7) S 22, post, as to written admissions, set s 65, cl (h), post,
- (8) S 72, post, see Taylor Lv. 85 414, 1843; Common Law Procedure Act, 1854 8 28
- (9) 5 70. junt , Taylor, Ev , & 1848, 1853 (10) Taylor Ev. § 725, Wills, Ev. 109; Sooltan Als v Chand Eibre, 9 W R , 130 (1868), explained in Shailh Shurfuras v Shailh Uhunoo, 16 W. R., 257 (1871) [a party cannot select partycular passages and read them without the context); Jodunath Roy v. Raja Buroda, 22 W. R., 220 (1874); Numut Ullah v II immut Ali, 22 W. ft., 519 (1574), Pulsa Beharte v. Walson d. Co. 9 W. R. 100 (1868), explained in Baikanthanath Kumar v. Chandra Mohan, I. B. L. R (A C) 131, 10 W. R. 190, Radha Charan . Chander Monce, 9 W. R., 200 (1885), Rajah Nilmoney v. Ramanongra Roy. 7 W. II., 29 (1867). Turnee Pershad v. Dicarlanath, 15 W. R., 451 (1871), 1A plaintiff abandoning his own case and falling back on the admissions of the defendant, is bound to take those admissions as they stand in their entirety, by so taking them he would on his own part concede the truth of those statements contained in the admissions of the defendant other than the particular statements on which he specifically relied :

to ascertain what he has conceded against himself, and what may therefore be presumed to be true, yet, unless the state of the state of the part which is evidence against himself.

whole of what he said at the same " given in evidence, it does not follow that all the parts of the statement should be regarded as equally deserving of credit; but the Court must consider, under the circumstances, how much of the entire statement they deem worthy of belief, including as well the facts asserted by the party in his own favour, as those making against him (2) The rule applies equally to written, as to verbal, admissions.(3) Thus where in a suit for rent at an enhanced rate after notice, the plaintiff set forth that the defendant and his predecessors had been holding the tenure without any change in the rent; but alleged also that the tenure had its origin at a period long after the permanent settlement, it was held that the defendant was not at liberty to avail himself to such portion of the admission as afforded a ground for the presumption of uniform payment from the permanent settlement without accepting the latter part of the admission which rebutted such presumption.(4) The principle upon which the rule is grounded is, that if a party makes a qualified statement, that statement cannot be used against him apart from that qualification, an unfair use is not to be made of a party's statement, by trying to convert into a particular admission by him that which he never intended to be such an admission (5) But though it is the rule that an admission which is qualified in its terms, must be ordinarily accepted as a whole, or not taken at all as evidence against a party, vet when a party makes separate and distinct allegations without any qualification, this rule does not apply. It is by no means the case that no portion of a party's statement can by any possibility be given in evidence against him, without every portion of the statement from the beginning to the end being also read.(6) A distinction must also be drawn between the case where an admission by one party has merely the effect of relieving the other party from giving proof of a particular fact, and the case where one party, failing to adduce independent evidence in his favour, attempts to rely on the statement of the other party as an admission. In the latter case, as the party relies on the admission, he must take the whole of it together, in the former case, the one party cannot be said to use the admission of the other as evidence at all. Under the Civil Procedure Code, "it is the duty of the Court to examine the written statements in order to see on what points the parties are at issue, to lav down the issues and to receive and consider the evidence adduced on the points in dispute, but the Court will not allow the parties to waste its time by producing evidence to establish that which has never been contradicted, and therefore to lay down that when a defendant admits any one fact contained in the

Ishan Chunder v Haran Sirdar, 11 W R., 535 (1893), Lallah Prohina v Sheonath, W R., 1861 Act N. 27, Konwur Doorganath v Ram Chunder, 4 I A, 52 (1876)

(1) Taylor, Ev., § 725; Thomson v Austen, 2 D & R, 361, Fletcher v Froggatt, 2 C & P, 566, Cobbett v Grey, 4 Ex. R, 729

(2) Taylor, E. V., F. 25. and cases there cited, Rapia Nidmoney v. Ramanosopra Ray, T. W. F. 20 (1887), (the Coart is not bound to behave the whole of the statement), Sodian Aliv Chand Blore, S. W. E., 130 (1888), Shalih Sharjaraz v. Shatih Dhanco, 16 W. R. (237 (1871) of 1), Shanim v. Petreud, S. H. L. C. 293; (Hana Chander v. Harna Sardar, 11 W. R., 285 (1889) [Four stance of the Judge upon the evidence really believe. that the payments credited in a plantiff's book were made, although he discheleves the entry as to the amount of debuts, there is nothing inequitable in his giving the defendant the benefit of the payments [ But though the Jodge may believe one part and disbelieve the other, he ought not to do so without some good reason, Lalish Prohbor v Shronath, W. R., 1884, Act N. 27

(3) Taylor, Er , § 726.

(4) Judoonath Boy v Rajah Bareda, 22 W R.,

(5) Barkanthanath Kumar v Chandra Mohan, I B L R. (4 C), 133 (1868), 10 W E., 190, explaining Poolin Behaves v Watson & Co., 9 W. R., 190 (1868)

(6) 1b . see s. 34, post; and motes therets.

218 Admissions.

written statement of the plannif, and thereby excludes independent evidence thereof, he is entitled to say that the plaintiff has relied on his statement as evidence, and that he (the defendant) is, in consequence, in a position to claim that the whole of it may be read as evidence in his own favour, is a proposition which cannot be maintained. If a party wishes to give evidence in his own favour, of course it is in his power to come forward like any other witness and subject himself to examination and cross-examination in open Court; but until he has subjected himself to cross-examination, no statement which he may volunteer can be used as any evidence in support of his own case, unless the right, so to use it, has accural from the deliberate act of his adversary. A party cannot himself determine that his own statement shall be used as evidence in his favour."(11)

Weight to be given to admissions

As in the case of admissions in civil cases, admissions in criminal cases must be taken as a whole, and the general rule is that the whole of a confession must be given in evidence, and read and taken together. "There is no doubt that, if a prosecutor uses the declaration of a prisoner, he must take the whole of it together, and cannot select one part and leave another (2) and, if there he either no other evidence in the case, or no other evidence incompatible with it, the declaration so adduced in evidence must be taken as true. But it, after the whole of the statement of the prisoner is given in evidence, the prosecutor is a situation to contraduct any part of it, he is at liberty to do so, and then the statement of the prisoner and the whole of the other evidence must be left to the jury for their consideration, precisely as in any other case where one part of the evidence is contradictory to another '(3). A confession is evidence for the prisoner as well as against him it must be taken altogether, but still the jury may, if they think proper, believe one part of it and disbelieve another. The Court is at liberty to disregard any self-exculpatory scatements contained in the confession which it disbelieves (4)

"Evidence of oral admissions ought always to be received with great caution. Such evidence is necessarily subject to much imperfection, and mistake; for either the party himself may have been misinformed, or he may not have clearly expressed his meaning, or the witness may have misunderstood him, or may purposely misquote the expression used. It also sometimes happens that the witness, by unintentionally altering a few words will give an effect to the statement completely at variance with what the party actually said."(5) So where a plaintiff sued for a sum said to be due upon a settlement of account, and instead of producing and proving the account current between himself and the defendant produced evidence to prove the admission of the debt, the Privy

Shaikh Shurfuraz v. Shaikh Dhunoo, 16 W
 257 (1871), per Amshe, J

R. v. Chalow Khon, S. W. R. (v. 70 (1890)).
 R. v. Savid, Booldon, S. W. R. (v. 7. 38 (1897)).
 R. v. Gour Chand, J. W. R. (v. 7. 17, 18 (1894)).
 R. v. Challender Formanck, S. W. R. (v. 7. 5. 5. 5. 56 (1856), R. v. Bichor Breen, 18 W. R. (v. 7. 5. 56 (1856)).
 R. v. Dishor Breen, 18 W. R. (v. 7. 50 (1873)).
 R. v. Nispo Gapat, 24 W. R. (v. 7. 50 (1873)).
 R. v. Nispo Gapat, 7 The Magazinte of Chatryan, 25 W. H., Cr., 15 (1876); Ramitson net amounting ten confession of guilt); R. v. Noncolol.
 S. W. E., (v. 22, 24 (1876); R. v. Dado Ana, 13 R. (425, 40, 4476) (1890); "It non port of a confession of the circus, the present has a light to ballefor the Court the whole of what was said in blat courtextaction, ev at Least on much as it explanatory of the part already proved, and perhape, in fouror wide all that was related to the subject-matter in Issue." The Queen's care, 2 Br & Bing, 297, a sto distinct or opposing statements by the accused, see R. V. Goolyan, 10 B. L. H., 332 (1873), R. v. Nilyo Gopal, 24 W. R. Cr., 80 (1875)

<sup>(3)</sup> R. v. Jones, 2 C & P , 800, per Besauquet,

<sup>(4)</sup> R. v. Cleers, 4.C. & P. 2.21, 2.26, R. v. Dado Ass. supra at pp. 430–470, R. v. Dabapi, cited, ib. 470; R. v. Sonovilloh, 2.3 W. R., Cv. 23, 2.1 (1870); R. may be that the Court would attach very little weight to the eculoptory parts; R. v. Americ Guarde 10 Dom H. C. R., 497, 200 (1872), (5) Taylor, Fr., § 101.

Council said: "They consider that it is a very dangerous thing to rest a judgment upon verbal admissions of a sum due, especially when there are other means of proving the case, if a true one."(1) But where an admission is deliberately made, and precisely identified, the evidence it affords is often of the most satisfactory nature,(2) Admissions depend very much upon the circumstances under which they are made (3)

As in the case of admissions in civil proceedings, the evidence of oral confessions of guilt ought to be received with creat caution.(4) But a deliberate and voluntary confession of guilt, if clearly proved, is among the most effectual proofs in the law; the degree of credit due to the confession must be estimated by the Court or jury according to the particular circumstances of each case (5) In trials by jury, it is the duty of the Judge to lay the confessions properly before the jury, pointing out the circumstances bearing for, and against, their value, but it is for the jury to form an opinion as to their weight. (6) "A judge, in fact, is hardly justified in treating a confession made by a prisoner before a Magistrate, as a mere piece of evidence which a jury may deal with in the same way as they would with the evidence of a witness of doubtful veracity. If a prisoner has confessed before a Magistrate, the attention of the jury should be drawn to the question whether there was any reason to suppose that that confession was made under any undue influence, and if there is no reason to suppose anything of the kind, the jury should be told so and advised that they may set upon it."(7) The infirmative hypotheses affecting self-criminative evidence have been in particular dealt with in the works of Bentham and Best. (8) False confessions are either the result of mistake (which may be of fact or of law) or are intentional. In the case of intentionally false confession the field of motive must be searched for such causes as mental and bodily torture, desire to stifle further inquiry; weariness of hie, vanity, desire to benefit or injure others, and motives originating in the relation of the sexes. False confessions are not confined to cases in which there has really been a crime committed. Frequently such confessions have been made under hallucination of events which are impossible The above causes affect more or less every species of confessional evidence. But extra-judicial statements are subject to additional infirmative hypotheses such as mendacity in the report, mis-interpretation of the language used and incompleteness of the statement.(9)

17. An admission, is a statement, oral or documentary, Admission which suggests any inference as to any fact in issue or relevant fact, and which is made by any of the persons, and under the circumstances, heremafter mentioned.

18. Statements made by a party to the proceeding, or by Admission and agent to any such party, whom the Court regards, under the proceeding or his age. circumstances of the case, as expressly or impliedly authorised by him to make them, are admissions.

<sup>(1)</sup> Lalia Sheopershad v Juggernath, 10 Ind Ap. 74, 79, 13 C L. P. 271.

<sup>(2)</sup> Taylor, Et , § 861. (3) R. v Simmonsto, 1 C & K , 164, 166 see notes to a 31, post

<sup>(4)</sup> Taylor, Ev. § 862

<sup>(5)</sup> Id. § 865. 1. anle, Introduction See as to the degree of credit to be given to confessions Roscoe, Cr., Ev , 39 , 1 Phillips & Arn , Ev , 402.

<sup>10</sup>th Ed., R v Dada Ang. 15 B. at p 480 (1889) (6) R v Dada Ana, 15 B , 452, 461, 478 (1899) H . Mansa Dayal, 10 B. 497, 502 (1886)

<sup>(7)</sup> R . Shahabut Sheikh, 13 W. P., Cr., 42, 43 (1870), per Norman, C J (8) Best Er , 8§ 554-573 , Norton, Et , 155,

<sup>161</sup>

<sup>(9)</sup> Ib

By suitor in

Statements made by parties to suits, suing or sued in a rerepresenta-tive charac presentative character, are not admissions, unless they were made while the party making them held that character;

representa-

Statements made by-

(1) Persons who have any proprietary or pecuniary in-By party interested in subjectterest in the subject-matter of the proceeding, and who make the statement in their character of persons so interested. or (2) Persons from whom the parties to the suit have derived matter. rived.

By person (2) Persons from whom the parties to the from whom their interest in the subject-matter of the suit. are admissions, if they are made during the continuance of the interest of the persons making the statements.

Admissions by persons whose posi-tion must be proved as against

Statements made by persons whose position or liability it is necessary to prove as against any party to the suit, are admissions, if such statements would be relevant as against such persons in relation to such position or liability in a suit or brought by against them, and if they are made whilst the person making them occupies such position or is subject to such liability.

Illustration

4 undertakes to collect rents for B. B sues A for not collecting rent due from ( to B

.1 denies that rent was due from C to B.

A statement by C that he owed B rent is an admission, and is a relevant fact as against .1, if .1 denies that C did one rent to B

Admissions by persons expressly expressly suit has expressly referred for information in reference to a matter by party to in dispute are admissions Statements made by persons to whom a party to the

> When broadly stated in s 14 that the declarations of

> > In r. 154.day 1 to 1 12. clents rec

Illustration.

The question is, whether a horse sold by A to B is sound. I says to B-'Go and ask C, C knows all about it,' C's statement is an admission.

Principle -The reception of admissions considered as exceptions to the tule against hearsay is grounded upon the fact that what a person says may be presumed to be true as against himself, and when not obnoxious to that rule upon the fact of meonsistency. But the very ground of this presumption excludes such an inference when the declarations of a person are tendered as evi-him, are as against such terest which determines the relevancy of the admission includes (a) agency :(1)

53, 564; Stanton v. Percied, 5 H L. Cas., 273 (1) Best, Er. § 519, Wills, Er., 102, but see also Taylor, Fr , § 7.23; v. ante, Introduction. (3) Taylor, Ev., § 740 and a 21, poor (4) M. IR, 20; are post.

(b) proprietary or pecuniary interest,(1) which includes (a) joint interest,(2) (b) real as opposed to nominal interest;(3) (c) derivative interest.(4) Statements by strangers are not generally relevant.(5) But to this general rule also there are certain exceptions.(6) In respect of the admissions of agents, the general principle applies qui facit per alium facit per se. There is a legal identity of the agent with the principal. If the principal constitutes the agent his representative in a certain transaction, whatever the latter does in the lawful prosecution of that transaction is the act of the principal.(7) Agency is the ground of reception of declarations by partners and joint contractors and referces (8) In respect of declarations by persons having a proprietary or pecuniary interest in the subject-matter, the rule in respect of joint interest is that the admission of one party may be given in evidence against another, when the party against whom the admission is sought to be read has a joint interest with the party making the admission in the subject-matter in the thing to which the admission relates (9) This rule depends upon the legal principle that persons seised jointly are seised of the whole; each being seised of the whole, the admission of either is the admission of the other and may be produced in evidence against that other. That is applied from real property law to other matters (10) In the case of parties who have a real as opposed to a nominal interest, the law in regard to this source of evidence looks chiefly to the real parties in interest, and gives to their admissions the same weight as though they were parties to the record (11) Lastly, in the case of derivative interest, the party against whom the admission is sought to be used takes what he claims in the subject-matter from the person who made the admission as where it is sought to read against the heir an admission made by the ancestor. The ground upon which admissions bind those in privity with the party making them is (as in the case of the other abovementioned exceptions) that they are identified in interest.(12) "He (the person against whom the admission is read) stands in the shoes of the party making the admission. He can only claim what he claims because he derives title in that way, and therefore it is only fair, according to legal principles, that he should be bound by the admissions of him through whom he claims." (13) ss. 24-30 (Rules with regard to ad-

s. 3 (" Document.")

8. 3 (" Fact in issue.") s. 3 (" Relevant fact.")

88. 22, 65, cl. (b) (Admissions as to documents.) s. 23 (Admissions " without prejudice ") missions which amount to confessions )

s. 21 (Proof of admissions)

s. 31 (Effect of admissions.)

Admission: generally -Steph. Dig , Arts. 15-20 ; Taylor, Ev., §§ 723-861 . Wharton, Ev., 1075-1220, Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 62-79, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 192-219; Wills, Ev., 101-124; Best, Ev., §$ 518-531; Powell, Ev., 246-309; Norton, Ev. 142-154; Greslev, Ev., 456; Phillips, & Arn., Ev., 308-401; Greenleaf, Ev., Ch. XI: Wigmore, § 1048, et seq. By agents -Steph. Dig., Art 17, Taylor. Ev., §§ 602, 605; Roscoe, N. P., Ev. 69-71; Best, Ev., § 531; p. 487; Evan's Principal and Agent, <sup>(1)</sup> S. 18, cl. (1), see post.

<sup>(2)</sup> See p. 195, post.

<sup>(3)</sup> Sec post.

<sup>(4) 5. 18,</sup> cl (2), see post. (5) Steph. Dig , Art 18, Taylor, Ev , § 740

<sup>(6)</sup> Taylor, Ev., $$ 759-765, see post, and s 19

<sup>(7)</sup> Taylor, Ev., § 602, Best, Ev., § 531, see post. As to admissions by agents, see the judgment of Sir W. Grant in Fairlie v Hastings, 10 Vesey, J , 123.

<sup>(8)</sup> See post, and Introduction, unte

<sup>(9)</sup> In re Bhilley, L. R , I Ch (1891), 559, 563 (10) Ib , per Kekewich, J The declarations of partners and joint contractors are admissible both on the ground of joint-interest and of agency : Taylor, Ev. §§ 598, 743, Steph. Dig., Art 17;

see post (11) Taylor, Ev , § 756, see post

<sup>(12)</sup> Ib , § 787

<sup>(13)</sup> In re Whitley, L. R., 1 Ch. (1891), 538, 563 per Kekewich, J.

By suitor in ter

Statements made by parties to suits, suing or sued in a rerepresenta-tive charac presentative character, are not admissions, unless they were made while the party making them held that character :.

Statements made by-

By party interested in subject-matter.

(1) Persons who have any proprietary or pecuniary interest in the subject-matter of the proceeding, and who make the statement in their character of persons so interested, or rived.

(2) Persons from whom the parties to the suit have derived By person (2) Persons from whom the parties to the from whom their interest in the subject-matter of the suit.

are admissions, if they are made during the continuance of the interest of the persons making the statements.

Admissions by persons whose position must be proved as against suit.

Statements made by persons whose position or liability it is necessary to prove as against any party to the suit, are admissions, if such statements would be relevant as against such persons in relation to such position or liability in a suit or brought by against them, and if they are made whilst the person making them occupies such position or is subject to such liability.

Illustration.

A undertakes to collect rents for B.

B sues A for not collecting rent due from C to B

A denies that rent was due from C to B.

A statement by C that he owed B rent is an admission, and is a relevant fact as against .1. if A denies that C did owe rent to B.

Admissions by persons

Statements made by persons to whom a party to the expressly suit has expressly referred for information in reference to a matter by party to in dispute are admissions.

Illustration.

The question is, whether a horse sold by A to B is sound.

A says to B-'Go and ask C. C knows all about it.' C's statement is an admission.

Principle -The reception of admissions considered as exceptions to the rule against hearsay is grounded upon the fact that what a person says may be presumed to be true as against himself, and when not obnoxious to that rule upon the fact of inconsistency. But the very ground of this presumption excludes such an inference when the declarations of a person are tendered as evi-

When broadly stated in such a manner as to include these exceptions, the rule is that the declarations of a party to the record, or of one identified in interest with him, are as against such party receivable in evidence.(3) This identity of interest which determines the relevancy of the admission includes (a) agency :(4) and a 21, post (2) In to 11 hilley, L. R. 1 Ch (1901), 559,

<sup>63, 564,</sup> Stanton v. Percent, 5 H. L. Can, 273 (1) Best, Fr . § 519; Wills, Ev., 102, but see (3) Taylor, Ev. 5 740 also Taylor, Fv., § 723; v ostr. Introduction, (4) Se 18, 20, see ped.

(b) proprietary or pecuniary interest.(1) which includes (a) joint interest.(2) (b) real as opposed to nominal interest.(3) (c) derivative interest.(4) Statements by strangers are not generally relevant.(5) But to this general rule also there are certain exceptions (6) In respect of the admissions of agents, the general principle applies qui facit per alium facit per se. There is a legal identity of the agent with the principal. If the principal constitutes the agent his representative in a certain transaction, whatever the latter does in the lawful prosecution of that transaction is the act of the principal.(7) Agency is the ground of reception of declarations by partners and joint contractors and referces.(8) In respect of declarations by persons having a proprietary or necuniary interest in the subject-matter, the rule in respect of joint interest is that the admission of one party may be given in evidence against another, when the party against whom the admission is sought to be read has a joint interest, with the party making the admission in the subject-matter in the thing to which the admission relates.(9) This rule depends upon the legal principle that persons seised jointly are seised of the whole, each being seised of the whole, the admission of either is the admission of the other and may be produced in evidence against that other. That is applied from real property law to other matters (10) In the case of parties who have a real as opposed to a nominal interest. the law in regard to the source of evidence looks chiefly to the real parties in interest, and gives to their admissions the same weight as though they were parties to the record (11) Lastly, in the case of derivative interest, the party against whom the admission is sought to be used takes what he claims in the subject-matter from the person who made the admission as where it is sought to read against the heir an admission made by the ancestor. The ground upon which admissions bind those in privity with the party making them is (as in the case of the other abovementioned exceptions) that they are identified in interest (12) "He (the person against whom the admission is read) stands in the shoes of the party making the admission. He can only claim what he claims because he derives title in that way, and therefore it is only fair, according to legal principles, that he should be bound by the admissions of him through whom he claims." (13) ss. 21-30 (Rules with regard to ad-

8. 3 (" Document.")

4 3 (" Fact in issue-")

a 3 (" Relevant fact.") 88. 22, 65, cl. (b) (Admissions us to documents.)

8. 23 (Admissions " without prejudice. )

mismons which amount to confes-810m 4.)

s. 21 (Proof of admissions.) s. 31 (Effect of admissions)

Admissione generally .- Steph. Dig., Arts. 15-20 , Taylor, Ev., $$ 723-861 ; Whatton, Ev., 1075-1220; Ro-coe, N. P. Ev., 62-79, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 192-219; Wills, Ev., 101-124; Best, Ev., §§ 518-531; Powell, Ev., 246-309; Norton, Ev., 142-154; Gresley, Ev., 456; Philhps, & Arn., Ev., 308-401; Greenleaf, Ev., Ch. XI; Wigmore, § 1048, et seq By agents -Steph. Dig., Art. 17; Taylor, Ev., §§ 602, 605; Roscoe, N. P., Ev. 69-71; Best, Ev., § 531; p. 487; Evan's Principal and Agent.

J., 123.

<sup>(1) &</sup>amp; 15, cl (1), are post

<sup>(2)</sup> See p. 195, post

<sup>(3)</sup> Sec post

<sup>(4)</sup> S. 18, cl. (2), we post. (5) Steph. Dig., Art. 18, Taylor, Ev., § 740, see post.

<sup>(6)</sup> Taylor, Ev., §§ 759-765, see post, and s. 19. (7) Taylor, Ev., § 602, Best, Ev., § 531, see post As to admissions by agents, see the judgment of Sir W. Grant in Fairlie v. Hadings, 10 Vesey, (n) See post and Introduction, auto.

<sup>(9)</sup> In re WALSey, L. P., I Ch. (1+31), 554, 563,

<sup>(10)</sup> B., per Kekewich, J. The declarations of partners and joint contractors are admissible both on the ground of point-interest and of agency : Taylor, Ev., 11 394, 743 , Stoph Dig., Art. 17.

see pod. (11) Taylor, Ev., § 736, see par.

<sup>(12)</sup> B., § 757.

<sup>(13)</sup> In re Whitey, L. P., 1 Ch. (1991), 558, 503, per Kekewich, J.

187—193; 2nd Ed.; Norton, Ev., 144; Pearson's Law of Agency in Bitish India, 426—428; Powell, Ev., 290; Story on Agency, §§ 134, 135; Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 46, 47; Wigmore, Ev., § 1078 By persons having proprietary or preuniary intered —Steph. Dig., Artc. 16, 17; Taylor, Ev., §§ 743—754, 787, 756—758; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 67;
 Act IN of 1908 (Limitation). s. 21. By persons from thom naterest is deried —Steph. Dig., Art. 16; Taylor, Ev., §§ 787—794, 758, 90. By strangers —Steph. Dig., Art. 18; Taylor, Ev., §§ 740, 759—765. By referees. —Steph. Dig., Art. 19; Taylor, Ev., §§ 760—765.

COMMENTARY.

As to admissions by parties (when sued or suing personally) made when a minor, or when holding a representative character, v. ante, p. 216, and as to st; admissions may be made past(2) litigation. It is not n between the same parties; tween statements admissible under the present sections, and those admissible under the thirty-third section, post. And so it was held that the deposition of a person in a suit to which he was not a party, was, in a subsequent suit in which he was defendant, evidence against him and those who claimed under or purchased from him, although he in a suit brought by Government to assess the lands, that the lands were com-character [e.g., as assignees of an insolvent,(7) executors, administrators, trustees, and the like] statements made by them before they were clothed with that character will not be admissible against them so as to affect the interests of the persons they represent,(8). Thus the declarations of a party suing as assignee of a bankrupt, made before he became such, are not admissible against him (9). The admissions of the executor of the donor must

(1) Unless the admission is one made by a person sung or sucd in a representative character, in which case it must be made whilst the person making it sustains that character, s. 18, and, and see helph. Dig. Art 16, v. ante, Introduction.

Parties.

- (2) Hurish Chunder v. Prosunno Coomar, 22 W. R., 303 (1874); Obloy Gobind v Beejoy Cobind, 9 W. R., 162 (1869); Sheo Surn v. Bam Khelawan, 14 W. L., 165 (1870); Girish Chunder v. Shama Churn, 15 W. R., 437 (1871); Bhugwan Chunder v. Meckoo Lall, 17 W. R., 372 (1872); Kashee Kushore v Bama Soundaree, 23 W. R., 27 (1575), Forbes v. Mir Mahomed Taks, 5 B. L. R , 529 (1870) , 14 W. R. (P. C ). 28 ; 13 M. I. A., 434 : ere also cases cited, ante, p. 213. In a suit by A and B, parties not entitled to the property of a decreased Hindu, as his heirs against C and  $D_s$ an admission by the person legally entitled to the property, made in a petition filed in the suit, that by her gift or relinquishment plaintiffs had a title to the property, was held to be evidence that
- such title existed anterior to the commencement of the suit Gour Lall v Mohesh Narain, 14 W. R., 484 [1871]
- (3) Sungan Bibee v. Achmut Als, 14 B L R , App , 3 (1874) , 21 W. R , 414.
  - (4) Forbes v. Mir Mahomed Taki, supra
- (5) Huronath v Preonath, 7 W. R., 249 (1867); and admissions made before an arbitrator are receivable in a subsequent trial of the cause, the reference having proved meffectual Gregory v. Howard, 3 Esp., 113, Stack v. Burhanan, Pen. R., 5
- (6) Taylor, Ev., § 755. Steph. Ing., Art. 16
  (7) Merely to speak of the "plaintiff assignee" is not an admission of the plaintiff's title as assignee; Clarke v. Mullick, 2 M. I. A., 263, 289
- (1939)
  (8) S. 18, ante, Legge v. Edmonds, 25 L. J., Ch. 125, 140, 141
- (9) Fenerick v. Thorton, 1 M. & M. 51; see Taylor, Ev., 1755.

be treated as the admissions of the donor.(1) Where property has been devised by will to executors, any admission by parties other than the executors to the will, will not bind the estate of the deceased.(2) The representative capacity of a person who represents a minor comes to an end by the death of that minor (3) In respect of co-representatives it seems that the admission of one executor will not bind another, at any rate if the admission was not made in the character of executor.(4) The admissions of an executor are not receivable against an administrator appointed during the absence of the executor.(5) Where one of several trustees had admitted that he had money of the trust-estate in his hands, and it was submitted that this admission of one of them bound the rest, it was held that it would, if they were all personally hable, but not where they were only trustees. (6) Under the eighteenth and twenty-first sections the admissions of a person accused in criminal proceedings will be receivable. But in England it appears to be doubtful whether in any case a prosecutor in an indictment is a party to the inquiry in such a sense as that an admission by him could be received in evidence to prove facts for the defence. Of course, this does not refer to the admission of facts which would go to his reputation for credibility as a witness in the case, these may always and under all circumstances be proved by the admission of the witness

The general rule is that an admission can only be given in evidence against Co-defer the party making it and not against any other party.(8) An admission or even a confession of judgment by one of several defendants in a suit, is no evidence against another defendant. (9) It is a fundamental proposition that a plaintiff cannot sue for more than his own right, and that no defendant can, by an admission, or consent, convey the right or delegate the authority to one for more than his own share in property.(10) "In general, the statement of defence, made by one defendant cannot be read in evidence, either for or against his co-defendant : neither can the answer to interrogatories of one defendant be read in evidence, except against himself, the reason being, that, as there is no issue between the defendants, no opportunity can have been afforded for cross-examination; and moreover, if such a course were allowed. the plaintiff might make one of his friends a defendant, and thus gain a most unfair advantage. But this rule does not apply to cases, where the other

<sup>(1)</sup> Dwarkanath Bose v Chundee Churn, 1 W P., 339 (1865).

<sup>(2)</sup> Chunder Kant v Ramnarain Dey, 8 W R 63 (1867).

<sup>(3)</sup> Hulodhar Roy v. Jupoo Nath, 14 W R., 162 (1870).

<sup>(4)</sup> Chunder Kant v. Ramnarain Dey 8 W R. 63 (167), and see Tullock v. Dunn, Ry. & M. 416; Scholey v. Walton, 12 M & W , 513, 514 , Fox

v Waters, 12 A & E., 43, Taylor, Ev. § 750 Act IX of 1908, s. 21 (Indian Limitation act) Williams on Executors, 1796, 1813, 1937

<sup>(5)</sup> Rush v Peacock, 2 M & Rob , 162. (6) Daris v Ridge, 3 Esp., 101, and see Skaife

v. Jackson, 3 B. & C., 421 [in which it is also said that a receipt for money is not like a release pleadable in bar, it is nothing more than a primel faces acknowledgment that the money has been paid } (7) Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed. 47, see R v

Arnall, 8 Cox, 439, and note in 3 Russ Cr. 489 As to whether the admissions of an accused may be used for purely probative purposes, that is to relieve the prosecutor of the proof of facts essen-tisl to his case, see R v Flaherty, 2 C. & K., 782, which was a bigamy case, it was held that an admission of the first marriage by the prisoner. made to a constable, was some, though not sufficient, evidence of the marriage, and in R. v Saraje, 13 Cox, 178, a similar case (overruling R v. Neston, 2 M & Rob., 503), an admission by the prisoner was tendered to prove the first marriage but was rejected, v ante, Introduction As to admission for the purpose of the trial, see s. 58, post defendant claims through the party whose defence is offered in evidence, nor to cases, where they have a joint interest, either as partners or otherwise in the transaction. Wherever the admission of one party would be good evidence against another party, the defence of the former may, a fortion, be read against the latter "[1] Similarly, the admissions or confessions of a respondent are not admissible evidence against a co-respondent [2] nor a fortion against the petitioner.[3] Nor are those of parties engaged in a joint-tort, or joint crime, receivable against each other, except to the limited extent, and under the circumstances, in the tenth section (ande), mentioned.

<sup>(8)</sup> In re Whiley, L. R., 1 Ch (1891), 538. (9) Americal Bose v. Rasoneekant. Mitter, 15. B L. R., 10, 26 (1874) , 23 W R., 214; 21 A . 113; Numutoollah Khadim v Himmut Ali, 22 W. R. 519 (1874), Lachman Singh v Tansuth, 6 A., 325 (1884), Azızıllak Khan v. Ahmod Alı, 7 A., 353 (1859), Kalı Dutt v Abdul Ali, 16 C., 627, 635 (1888), Taylor, Ev. § 754. Naraince Dasser v. Nurrohurry Mohunto, Marshall, 70 (1862) See Article in 1 All. L. J. 233n

<sup>(10)</sup> Arcellah Khan v. Ahmad Ali, sures.

He who sets another person to do an act in his stead as agent is chargeable by such acts as are done under that authority, and so too, properly is affected by admissions made by the agent in the course of exercising that authority. The question, therefore, turns upon the scope of the authority. This question frequently enough a difficult one depends upon the doctrine of agency applied to the circumstances of the case and not upon the doctrine of agency applied to the circumstances of the case and not upon the doctrine of agency applied and the circumstances of the case and not upon the doctrine of agency applied and the circumstances of the case and not upon the doctrine of agency applied to the circumstances of the case and not upon the doctrine of agency applied to the circumstances of the case and not upon the doctrine of agency applied to the circumstances of the case and not upon the doctrine of agency applied to the circumstances of the case and not upon the doctrine of agency applied to the circumstances of the case and not upon the doctrine of agency applied to the circumstances of the case and not upon the doctrine of agency applied to the circumstances of the case and not upon the doctrine of agency applied to the circumstances of the case and not upon the doctrine of agency applied to the circumstances of the case and not upon the doctrine of agency applied to the circumstances of the case and not upon the doctrine of agency applied to the circumstances of the case and not upon the doctrine of agency applied to the circumstances of the case and not upon the doctrine of agency applied to the circumstances of the case and not upon the doctrine of agency applied to the circumstances of the case and not upon the doctrine of agency applied to the circumstances of the case and not upon the a him, as his mere instrument.(5) A

A an agent whom the Court regards under the circumstances of the case as expressly or impliedly authorized to make it is admissible though not on oath (6)

Before the admissions of an agent can be received, the fact of his agency must be proved. This can be done by proving that the agent has acquired credit by acting in that capacity, and that he has been recognised by the principal in other instances of a similar character to that in question (7) A person either may expressly constitute another his agent to make an admission thus if a person agree to admit a claim, provided J S will make an affidavit in support of it, such affidavit is proof against him.(8) or he may authorize another to represent him in a particular business, when admissions made by that other, within the scope of his authority, in the ordinary course of, and with reference to such business, will be evidence against him. the principal constitutes the agent as his representative in the transaction of certain business, whatever the agent does in the lawful prosecution of that "Where the acts of the agent will business is the act of the principal (9) bind the principal, then his representations, declarations and admissions, respecting the subject-matter, will also bind him, if made at the same time and constituting part of the res gestæ." (10) The admission must be one having also flay v. Gordon, 10 R. L. R., 301, 307, 308 (1872); as to the question of the admissibility of restence of respondent against co-respondent, see Allon v. Allen, L. R., P. D. (1891), 218, and s. 137, p.st.

Agents

<sup>(1)</sup> Taylor, Er., § 733, and cases there cited; but as to consentamenton by defendant of conditional, see a 137, post, as to admissions by conditional, see a 137, post, as to admissions by conditional, see a 137, post, as to admissions by conditional, see a 137, post, as to admissions of the condition, see a 137, post, as a 137, post (a. R., 230) (1881), forestimb bonders, a 15 self Sondorn, 11 C., 583 (1885), and post, 2) R Johnson, K. Radmann, 18, S. R. 7, 203; see also fley v. Gredon, 10 H. L. R., 201, 207, 208 (1872), as to the question of the admissibility of the admissibility of the admissibility.

<sup>(3)</sup> Plamer v Plamer, 4 5 & T., 257

<sup>(4)</sup> Wigmore, Er., § 1074 (5) Franklin Bink v. Peneylminia D & M. S.

A. (a., 11 (a. 1. J., 24, 33 (Amer.) (6) Georgie Ikarer v. (Akelalal Leles, 2 Rom. L. B., 651 (1984)

<sup>(7)</sup> Roscos, N. P. Ev., 71, Evan's Principal and Agent, 192, Hestawa V. Incer, 2 Start, 260 Courlean V. Tomes, 1 Camp., 43n. Nucl. v. Evang., 1 Exp., 61. See nat to prote of agency, Eur. Bert., 7 Comp., 1 Exp., 61. See nat to prote of agency, Eur. Bert., 7 Comp., 1 Ev., 7 Comp., 2 Ev reference to the subject-matter of the agency.(1) So whatever is said by an agent either in the making of a contract for his principal, or at the time and accompanying the performance of any act, within the scope of his authority, having relation to and connected with and in the course of the particular contract or transaction in which he is then engaged is, in legal effect, said by his principal and admissible in evidence.(2) "The representation, declaration, or admission of the agent does not bind the principal. if it is not made at the very time of the contract, but upon another occasion; or if it does not concern the subject-matter of the contract but some other matter, in no degree belonging to the res gesta."(3) It does not follow that a statement made by an agent is an admission merely because, if made by the principal himself, it would have been one, for the admission of an agent cannot always be assimilated to the admission of the principal (4) party's own admission, whenever made, may be given in evidence against him : but the admission or declaration of his agent binds him only when it is made during the continuance of the agency in regard to a transaction then depending, et dum ferret opus. When the agent's right to inferfere in the particular matter has ceased, the principal can no longer be affected by his declarations any more than by his acts, but they will be rejected in such case as mere hearsay." (5) Therefore admissions by an agent of his own suthority and not accompanying the making of a contract or the doing of an act on behalf of his principal, nor made at the time he is engaged in the transaction to which they refer, are not binding upon his principal, not being part of the res gestar, and are not admissible in evidence, but come within the rule excluding hearsay, being but an account or statement by an agent of what has passed or been done or omitted to be done-not a part of the transaction, but only statements or admissions respecting it.(6) The words of the eighteenth section (ante) "whom the Court regards, under the circumstances of the case, as expressly or impliedly authorised by him to make them," leave it open to the Courts to deal with each case that arises upon its own merits, (7) having regard to the law of agency applicable and the particular facts of each case. But it is apprehended that the Courts will, in the application of this section, be guided by the principles laid down by the English and American (ases and text-writers (8) The admissions are receivable in evidence without identifies the principal and agent, and must not be taken to import that the declarations must form a part of the res gester in the evidentiary sense of that term, it has been said that the declarations of an agent are not receivable as to bygone transactions face Evans, supra. 189, citing Great Bestern Railway Company v. Hillis, 18 C. B. N. S., 748, Fairlie v. Hastings, 10 Ves., 128, Kahl . Jansen, 4 Taunt , 565 , see also Pearson's supra, 427, but this is misleading, for so long as the representations are made concerning the principal a business, and in the ordinary course of it, it is immaterial if they relate to past or present events, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 210, citing Prof Thayer in the Irich Law Times, Feb 19, 1881

<sup>(6)</sup> Taylor, Ev., § 602, and we generally M., § 602—605; Will, Ev., 112, Steph Dig., Art II; Hossel, N.P., Ev., 609—71; Hossel, B., 200, Paranos a Low of Agency in Bettich India, 423—428. Evan's Principal and Queri, 187—193. Best, Fv., p 457; Aurtin, Liu, 144 as rotheacts, contracts and representations of the agent which are original evidence, and revivable for, as well as against, his principal, via deep, Introduction, (10) Hosy on Agency, § 131. "res gade" been means "the bounces" regarding which the live.

W. LE

the authority to make admissions is at once put an end to by the determination of the agency. whether or no such determination has been properly brought about Kalee Churn v Bengal Coal Co , 21 W R , 405

(6) Franklin Bank v Pensylvania, supra, narratives of, explaining or admitting, a past act are not admissible even though the agency continue unless the agent be empowered to speak for his principal at the time Wharton, Cr Ev., p 594n For instance, an agent might be specially sent to make a statement on behalf of his principal as to what had occurred

(7) Field, Ev., 125 "The point to be regarded in this clause is not only the establishment of an agency, as to which the Court must be satisfied, but that there was authority given sufficient to cover the particular statement relied on as admissions " Norton, Ev , 144.

(8) v post, remarks of Tindal, C. J., in Garia v Howard, 8 Bing, 451.

<sup>(1)</sup> See Pearson, supra, and cases there cited, (2) Per Buchanan, C J, in Franklin Bank v Pensylvania D & M S A Co., 11 G & J., 28, 33 (Amer ), Wigmore, Ev , § 1078

<sup>(3)</sup> Story on Agency, § 135

<sup>(4)</sup> Steph Dig. Art 17, Taylor, Ev. § 602.

<sup>(5)</sup> Taylor, Ev. ib, and cases there cited

calling the agent himself to prove them.(1) As an agent can only act within the scope of his authority, declarations or admissions made by him as to a particular fact are not admissible, unless they fall within the nature of his employment as such agent.(2) Account-books, though proved not to have been regularly kept in the course of business, but proved to have been kept on behalf of a firm of contractors by its servant or agent appointed for that purpose, are relevant as admissions against the firm. The fact, however, that the books had not been regularly kept might be a good reason for rejecting the account, if offered in evidence against any person other than the contractor or his partners.(3) It is of course open to the contractor or any of his partners to show that the entries have been made after such a fashion that no reliance can be placed upon them, but if made by a clerk of the firm, they are relevant (4) An agent's reports to his principal are not, in general, receivable against the latter in favour of third persons, as admissions.(5) Thus letters of an agent to his principal, in which the former is rendering an account of the transaction he has performed for him, are not admissible against the principal (6) When, however, the principal had replied to the agent, the letters of the latter were held admissible as explanatory of the statements of the former. (7) As the declarations of an agent are admissible on the ground of the legal identity of the agent with the principal, the declarations and acts of an agent cannot bind an infant, because the latter cannot appoint an agent (8) Evidence may be given against companies, of admissions made by their directors or agents, relating to matters within the scope of their authority.(9) Thus a letter written by the secretary of a company by order of the acting directors.(10) stating the number of shares held by M, was admitted on behalf of his executors, in proceedings against them. (11) But the confidential reports of directors to a meeting of the shareholders, (12) admissions at a board meeting of less than the requisite number of members (13) have been held not to be receivable. The manager of a banking company may make admissions against the bank as to its practice in making loans to customers (14) As to admissions by servants of companies, see cases noted below.(15) The admissions of a surveyor of a corporation,

(1) Taylor, Er., § 602. Frans. agya, 188, 189, 1; the statements of the agree are admissible the statements of the agent's interpreter, acting as such in the agent's presence, are admissible without calling the interpreter, and it must be assumed as aguest the principal that the interpreter interpreted faithfully. For V. Hodson, 50; L. J., Q. U., 5, 5 E. & H., 729, admissions which emisset of hearing evidence are not reversable aguing the principal, Kall v. Janes, 4. Taunt., 554.

(2) Garth v. Howard, 8 Rug, 431, see Lenburmannant v. Chard's Holyamon, 6 Mad R. R., 127 (1871), as illustrations of the admission and rejection of statements upon this principle. arThe Kristoll Brivery Company v. The Furness Entimy Compuny, L. H., 9 Q. B., 463, 43 L. J., Q. B., 142, Garth v. Howard, appea.

(3) E. v. Hannants, 1 B. 610, 617 (1677) Set s. 34, 506, and sedes thereto.

(4) B.

(3) Steph. Dr., Art. 17; Langhorn v. Allnatt. 4 Taunt., 511; R. Derolt Cu., L. R., 22 Ch. D. 523; Coopt v. Metropoletan Found of Mock. 25 Ch. D., 472; Kell v. Janen., 4 Taunt., 283; Rayner. Faith . Hastings, 10 Ves., 123., though see contra. Schwag 10 P. D., 137. see Physion, Ev., 3rd Ed. 211 Roscov, N. P. Ev., 70., Evans, sugra, 190

- (6) Langh ra v Allanti supra.
- (7) Contex . Barnbridge, 5 Bing , 58.
- (8) Taylor Ev § 605, and v ante, Introduction.
  (9) Roscoe, N P Ev., 70, Landley Company
  Law, 183

(10) But, unless acting under the express order of the directors, the secretary of a company cannot make admissions against the company, even as to the receipt of a letter. Brieff v Great N By Co. 1P. & P. 345 ee also Burnande v Duyell, 3 Exch. 225, House, N. P. P. 7, 70, 71

- (11) Meux Executor's core 2 D M & G., 522. (12) Re Derala Co., 22 Ch D 593, v autr.
- (13) Relley v Plymonth Baking Co. 2 Esch.
- (14) Simmone v. London Joint Stock Bank (1893). A. C., 201.
- (15) Kicketell Brewery Co v Farness Ry Co., L. R., P.Q. B., 468, Gt W Ry Co v Willes, 18 C. B., N. S., 748, Mayben v Nilson, 6 C. & P., S8; Hiller v. Cordiff S. Norrystom Co., 33 L. J. O. B., 310; Against V. London Train Co., 27 L. T., respecting a house belonging to the corporation, are evidence against the latter in an action for an injury to the plantiff's house by work done on the defendant's premises (I) but the report of a surveyor to the corporation, as to the value of lands about to be purchased by it, is not evidence, either of the truth of the facts or to explain the resolutions or letters of the corporation as to the purchase (2). The admissions of a way-warden that a certain road is a highway and that the parish is hable to repair it are evidence against a highway hoard (3). The admission, as to matters within the ordinary course of business (e.g., the recept of shop goods) of a shopman are evidence against his master, but not his admissions as to a transaction outside the usual business (4). An admission by a person who has generally managed I's landed property, and received his rents, is not evidence against A, as to his employer's title, there being no other proof of his agency ad hoc.(5). As to admissions made by partners and point-contractors, v, not.

The manager of a joint Hindu family, or kirtin, is the agent for the other members, and is supposed to have their authority to do all acts for their common necessity or benefit (6). He fully represents the family, and in the absence of fraud or collusion his acts are binding on the other members of the family, (7). But he can be sued by the other members for an account, even if the parties suing were minors during the period for which the accounts are asked (8). In respect of the admission of debts he may acknowledge, as he may create debts, on behalf of the family, but he has no power to revive a claim barred by limitation unless expressly authorised to do so.(9)

The admissions of a wife merely as such cannot affect her husband. They will only bind him where she had expressed o; implied authority from him to make them. Whether she had such authority or not, is a question of fact to be found by the Court, as in the other cases of agency. The cases on this subject are mostly those of implied authority, turning upon the degree in which the husband permitted the wife to participate, either in the transaction of his affairs in general, or in the particular matter in question (10)

- (1) Peyton v St Thomas' Hospital, 3 W & By . 625n
- (2) Cooper v Met Board of Works, 25 Ch D, 5 472, supra, v ante
- (3) Loughboro' Highway Board v Curron, 55I. T. 50
- (4) Garth v. Howard, 8 Bing., 451., Schumack v. Lock, 10 B., Moo. 39., and see Clifford v. Burton, 1 Bing., 199., Meredith v. Fordner, supra., Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 70, 72.
- (5) Leg v Peter, 3 H & N, 101, 27 L J, Ev, 239, and generally as to admissions ee Roscoe, N P Ev, 62, et eeq as to admissions by shipe' officers, see Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 216.
- (6) Aos Ramaum v Bengara Szehama, 3 M. 13, 130 (1881), in which case it a sho pointed out that the position of a Polygar differs from that of a manager of a Hundu family, see also as to the larts and his relations to adult and muor members: Chucken Lell v Frons Chander, 9 W. R. 133 (1897), Obbay Fander v Forces Mohan, 1 A. R. P. B. 73 (1870), Copplairant v Maddomisty, 14 B. L. B. 2, 13, 23 (1873) [Sleiner, extended of ratification of acts of Luria], Succession Morenty, 14 Galder Kelagan, 19 B., 631 (1894), walow manager; 1 tealog Shedher v. Lukas Balsen, 16, 33 (1893) [The manager most be

- allowed a reasonable latitude in the exercise of
- (7) Jagan Nath v. Wannu Lall, 16 A., 231, 233 (1804)
- (8) Oldog (hand) Peare Woln, appa. (9) Chango, Nagud v Grunophon, 5 M 109, F B (1881) (overstling human Sonny Pale Nyappe, 1 N, 385 (1878), Kondappe v Sablo, 13 M, 189 (1889), Bhadler Palge v Vipidal Anhl, 17 B, 512 (1891), Olopaharana v Nuddowully, 14 B L R, 21, 94 (1871), Globased in Duhat x Appap, 20 B, 156 (1894). The manager of a point Hinda family or the exceeded of a Hinda will, has no power by acknowledgment to revive a debt barred by two dimitation everyta asymathimself. Abbenadis 4ppx v Stramslu, 17 M, 22 (11893).
- (10) Ne generally, Taylor, Ev. §§ 766—771.
  Roceo, N. P. Ev. 72. Powell, Ev. 290. se judge ment of Alderson, B., in Meredul v. Pachar, 11 M. M. W., NG, anto wife carrying on bounnes, see Taylor, Ev. § 60%, and as to admissions in matrimonal causes which differ in some respects from ordinary ani prise causes, in a far as in former the interest of public morbity see: 1 cerned. Plumer v. Plumer, 4.5 & T. 253, D. 274, 759.

calling the agent himself to prove them.(1) As an agent can only act within f his employve been reguon behalf of a firm of contractors by its servant or agent appointed for that purpose, are relevant as admissions against the firm The fact, however, that the books had not been regularly kept might be a good reason for rejecting the account. if offered in evidence against any person other than the contractor or his partners.(3) It is of course open to the contractor or any of his partners to show that the entries have been made after such a fashion that no reliance can be placed upon them, but if made by a clerk of the firm, they are relevant.(4) An agent's reports to his principal are not, in general, receivable against the latter in favour of third persons, as admissions. (5) Thus letters of an agent to his principal, in which the former is rendering an account of the transaction he has performed for him, are not admissible against the principal.(6) When, however, the principal had replied to the agent, the letters of the latter were held admissible as explanatory of the statements of the former. (7) As the declarations of an agent are admissible on the ground of the legal identity of the agent with the principal, the declarations and acts of an agent cannot bind an infant, because the latter cannot appoint an agent.(8) Evidence may be given against companies, of admissions made by their directors or agents, relating to matters within the scope of their authority.(9) Thus a letter written by the secretary of a company by order of the acting directors.(10) stating the number of shares held by M, was admitted on behalf of his executors, in proceedings against them.(11) But the confidential reports of directors to a meeting of the shareholders.(12) admissions at a board meeting of less than the requisite number of members (13) have been held not to be receivable. The manager of a banking company may make admissions against the bank as to its practice in making loans to customers. (14) As to admissions by servants of companies, see cases noted below.(15) The admissions of a surveyor of a corporation,

(2) Garth Moverd, 8. Bing, 431, see Prinlatermanns v. Charells, Rhynymma, 6 Wal, H., C. R., 127 (1871), as illustrations of the admission and rejection of statements upon the principle, see The Kirkstoll Benergy Company v. The Furness Railway Company, L. H., 9 Q. B., 462, 431 L., Q. B., 142; Garth v. Howard, supra (3) R. v. Ramants, 1 B., 600, 617 (1872).

(3) E. v. Hannanis, 1 B, 610, 617 (1877) See a. 34, post, and notes thereto

Ib.
 Steph. Ing., Art. 17; Langhorn v. Allandt.
 Tanni., 511; E. Deinla Co., L. R., 22 Ch. D.
 Copper v. Metropolican Bested of Works, 25
 Ch. D., 472; Eabl. v. Janson, 4 Tanni., 595; Engage Fairly v. Hastings, 10 Ves., 123, though see contra Nobray, 10 P. D., 137, see Physion, Ev., 3rd Ed. 211 Roscot, N. P. Ev., 70, Drans, sappa, 100.

(6) Langhern v .Illnutt supra.

(7) Coates v Bambridge, 5 Bing. 58

(8) Paylor, Et., § 605, and v ante, Introduction
(9) Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 70., Landley Company

(10) But, unless acting under the express order of the directors, the secretary of a company cannot make admissions against the company, even as to the receipt of a letter Bruff v Great N. Ry. Co., 1F. & F., 345, see also Burnaude v Dayrell, 3 Exch. 225, 150eec, N. F. & J., 70, 71

(11) Meux Executor's care, 2 D M. & Cr. 522

(12) Re Devala Co., 22 Ch. D., 593, v. ante, (13) Rolley v. Plymouth Baking Co., 2 Exch.

(14) Semmons v London Joint Stock Bank (1892), A C., 201

(15) Kukhall Beckery Co v Furness Ry Co., L. H. 9 Q B., 488, Gl W Ry Co v Wille, 18 C. R., N S., 748, Mayhen v. Nelson, 8 C. & P., Sa., Meles v. Cardiff S. Navigation Co., 33 L. J. Q B., 310; Agains v. London Tram Co., 27 L. T., respecting a house belonging to the corporation, are evidence against the latter in an action for an injury to the plaintiff's house by work done on the defendant's premises (1) but the report of a surveyor to the corporation, as to the value of lands about to be purchased by it, is not evidence, either of the truth of the facts or to explain the resolutions or letters of the corporation as to the purchase (2). The admissions of a way-warden that a certain road is a highway and that the parish is hable to repair it are evidence against a highway board,(3). The admission, as to matters within the ordinary course of business (e.g., the receipt of shop goods) of a shopman are evidence against his master, but not his admissions as to a trans-ection outside the usual business,(4). An admission by a person who has generally managed 1.7s landed property, and received his rents, is not evidence against A, as to his employer's title, there being no other proof of his agency ad hoc.(5). As to admissions made by partners and joint-contractors, v, post.

The manager of a joint Hindu family, or kuita, is the agent for the other members, and is supposed to have their authority to do all acts for their common necessity or benefit. (6) He fully represent the family, and in the absence of fraud or collusion his acts are binding on the other members of the family (7) But he can be suced by the other members for an account, even if the parties suing were minors during the period for which the accounts are asked (8). In respect of the admission of debts he may acknowledge, as he may create debts, on behalf of the family, but he has no power to revive a claim barred by himitation unless expressly authorised to do so (9)

The admissions of a wife merely as such cannot affect her husband. They will only bind him where she had expressed or implied authority from him to make them. Whether she had such authority or not, is a question of fact to be found by the Court, as in the other cases of agency. The cases on this subject are mostly those of implied authority, turning upon the degree in which the husband permitted the wife to participate, either in the transaction of his affairs in general, or in the particular matter in question (10)

- (1) Peyton v St Thomas' Hospital, 3 M & Ry, 625n
- (2) Cooper v Met. Board of Borks, 25 (h D, 5 472, supra, v ante
- (3) Loughboro' Highway Board v Curson 55
- (4) Garth v. Howard, 8 Bing., 451., Schumark v. Lock, 10 B., Mon. 39; and see Clifford v. Burlon, 1 Bing., 199., Meredith v. Foedner. supra., Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 70, 72
- (5) Ley v. Peter, 3 H. & N., 101, 27 L. J., Ex., 239; and generally as to admissions, ere Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 62, et erg. as to admissions by ships' officers, ere Physion. Ev., 3rd. Ed., 216.
  (6) Kota Ramassimi. v. Bangari. Seshama, 3.
- M. 143, 130 (1831), in which case it is also pointed out that the position of a Polygra differs from that of a manager of a Hindu family, we also as to the lawfe and his relations to adult and minor members. Chaclast Leil is Poran Chauder, 9 W. R. 183 (1865), Oldoy Chauder v. Ponres Mohan, 1. N. R. F. B. 75 (1870), Opploarons w. Maddon.
- maily, 14 B L. R., 21, 22 (1874) [Silence, evidence of ratification of acts of lurio], Succarum Morary, . Kalidas Kaliany, 18 B, 631 (1894), widow manager), lenkay, Shridhar v Tishau Babay, ib, 531 (1893) [The manager must be

- allowed a reasonable latitude in the exercise of
- (7) Jagan Nath v Mannu Lall, 16 A, 231, 233 (1894)
- (8) Obboy & Angde v Pears Mohn, supra.

  (3) Channeys Nayuda v Guranopham, 5 M

  100, F B (1881) [averruling & anorm Some V Pale Nogoppe, 1 N , 338 (1875), Kondeppe v Subbo,

  13 M, 180 (1889), Bhacker Talya v Fipold Nathe,

  17 B, 612 (1892), Gopelavarus v Muddomsty,

  18 H, R, 21, 40 (1871), followed in Datata

  v Apper, 20 B, 155 (1884) The manager of a joint Hindu family or the except of a Hindu vill, has no power by acknowledgment to revive a debt barred by law Glimathou except as against hmwell), Subbandri Appi v Servansile, 17 M,

  221 (1893)
- (10) Ase generally, Taylor, Ev. §§ 766—711. Rescon, N. P. Ev. 729, Psychige, Ev. 299, se judgment of Alderson, B., in Mendalt v. Fostor, B. V. S. V., 202, as a virte carrying on business, see Taylor, Ev. § 605, and as to admission im matrimonial causes which differ in some respective from ordinary any perus causes, in rof far as in the former the interests of public morbidity are; 1 cerned, Plumer v. Plumer, 4.5 & T., 263, &, 7 t3, 769.

Admissions by agents in criminal cases

It has been already observed(1) that certain rules of admissibility are applicable in criminal cases only, but this is because the issues arise in criminal cases only, but in general the rules of admissibility are the same for the trial of civil and criminal causes. Conformably to this general doctrine the admissions of an agent may be equally received in a criminal charge against the principal. But it is a totally different question in the consideration of criminal as distinguished from civil justice how the person on trial may be affected by the fact when so established. It might involve him civilly and yet be not sufficient to convict him of a crime. Whether the fact thus admitted by the agent would suffice to charge the principal criminally without his personal knowledge or connivance would depend upon the particular rule of criminal law and not of evidence involved.(2) Thus it has been said that :- "An admission by an agent is never evidence in criminal, as it is sometimes in civil cases, in the sense in which an admission by a party himself is evidence. An admission by the party himself is in all cases the best evidence which can be produced, and supersedes the necessity for all further proof, and in civil cases the rule is carried still further, for the admission of an agent made in the course of his employment, and in accordance with his duty, is as hinding upon the principal as an admission made by himself. But this has never been extended to criminal cases. Thus, in order to make a client criminally responsible for a letter written by his solicitor, it is not sufficient to show that such letter was written in consequence of an interview, but it must be shown that it was written in pursuance of instructions of the chent (3) Where personal knowledge and authority are shown the admissions will be receivable. Hence the declarations of a messenger sent to a third party by the prisoner, if made with reference to the object of the mission, are admissible in evidence against him, where the evidence shows they were made by his authority.(4) If in other cases the evidence is not admitted it is because in those cases the criminal law requires evidence of personal knowledge and authority of and in respect of the particular act (harged before criminal liability can be established. This, however, is a matter of substantive law which may admit of real or apparent exceptions as in the case of a newspaper proprietor who is prim's facir criminally responsible for any libel it contains, though inserted by his agent or servant without his knowledge (5) Where a party is charged with the commission of an offence through the instrumentality of an agent, then it becomes necessary to prove the acts of the agent, and in some cases, as where the agent is dead, the agent's admission is the best evidence of those acts which can be produced. Thus on the impeachment of Lord Melville by the House of Lords, (6) it was decided that a receipt given in the regular and official form by Mr. Douglas who was proved to have been appointed by Lord Melville to be his attorney to transact the business of his office as treasurer of the Navy, and to receive all necessary sums of money, and to give receipts for the same and icho was dead, was admissible, in evidence against Lord Melville, to establish the single fact, that a person appointed by him, as his pay master, did receive from the Exchequer a certain sum of money in the ordinary course of business.(7)"

<sup>(1)</sup> Ast., p. 215, and set Wigmore, Ev., §4, where the learned auther observes that this is the worth emphasizing because the occasional appearance in works on the law of the title. "Criminal Fisheries" has tended to force the fallesy that there is some separate group of rules or some layer number of modifications.

<sup>(2)</sup> Wigniore, Er., § 107%.

<sup>(3)</sup> R. v. Doener, 14 Cox., C. C., 446, (4) Beneving v. State, 32, Mass., 48 (Amer.) Whaten, Cr. Fv., $405.

<sup>(5)</sup> Wharton, Cr. Es., p. 595. Lord Tenterden, however, considered this case as falling within the general rule, b. It has been argued generally that to impute the agent's act to the principal eminial design must be brought home to the latter, see Chapter & State, 6 If., L. C. 740.

<sup>(6) 24</sup> How, 5t Tr , 746, v ante.

<sup>(7)</sup> Roscoe, Cr. Lv., 12th Ed., 46, 47. In which the following criticism on this case is made; "Had, however, Mr. Douglas Iren alive at the time, there can be no doubt that he must have been called.

A valid in this country has not ordinarily any greater power to bind his Bliefte client than that which is possessed by an attorney in England.(1) An attorney Counse employed in a matter of business is not an agent to make admissions for his chent, except after action commenced, and in matters relating to that action.(2) An admission made before action will, however, of course, affect the client if proof be given that he authorised the communication.(3) A pleader or solicitor has in civil cases implied authority to make admissions of fact against his client during the actual progress of litigation , and the client is affected by admissions of fact made by them. But a plaintiff is not bound by an admission of a point of law, nor precluded from asserting the contrary in order to obtain with the action and without any view to obviate necessity of proof; admissions in such cases may be made in Court, or in chambers, or by documents or cor-1 -- - 1 -- L - mala amana and calle to respondence connected primi facie evidence :(( appear for A and B, '

wards appears for them, is primi lacie evidence of the joint ownership of A and B;(7) so in an action on a bill, a notice, served by the defendant's solicitor, to produce "all documents relating to the bill which was accepted by the said defendant" is primi facic evidence of the acceptance (8) This class of admissions which are made, not indeed with the express intent of dispensing with proof of certain facts, but as it were incidentally, are generally the result of carelessness, and though not regarded, as conclusive admissions, are still considered, not unfrequently, as raising an inference respecting the existence of facts, which the adversary would otherwise have been called upon to prove. (9) Admissions, however, made by solicitor, during litigation but in mere conversation, are not evidence against his client, since the solicitor's agency only exists for the management of the action.(10) Admissions made for the purpose (v. post) of a former trial, if not expressly limited, may be used on a new trial of the and that he might have been called to prove the receipt of the money would probably not have been questioned. This case does not, therefore, as cometimes appears to have been thought, in any way, touch upon the rules that the admission of an agent does not bind his principal in criminal cases. but merely shows that, where the acts of the agent have to be proved, those acts may be proved in the usual way "

<sup>(1)</sup> Prem South v Perthee Ram, 2 Agra Rep. 222 (1867) See Pearson's Law of Agency in British India, pp 16, 153, and as to muktars

pp. 17, 114, 16 (2) Wagstaff . Watson, 4 B & Ad , 339 , Ley v. Peter, 3 H. & N., 101, 111, per Watson, B Cordery, The Law relating to Solicitors, 2nd Ed

<sup>(1858)</sup> PP 81-83 (3) 15 (4) Jelendra Mohun v Ganendra Mohun, 19

W R., 359, 367 (1872), Muss Aclyoo v. Lallah Kamekundra, 23 W. E., 400, 401 (1875) See as to admissions by legal practitioners, cases cited under . 58, pod. Field , Ev., 30, 31 , Phipson, Ev.

<sup>3</sup>rd Ed., 14, 213, Taylor, Ev., 65 772-774, Steph Dig. Art 17-" Barristers and solicitors are the agents of their clients for the purpose of making admissions, whilst engaged in the actual management of the cause, either in Court or in correspondence relating thereto, but statements made by a barrister or solicitor on other occasions are not admissions merely beause they would be admissions if made by the client himself "

<sup>(5)</sup> Krishnasami v Rajojopala, 18 M., 73, 83

<sup>(6)</sup> Cordery, 82, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 213; Taylor, Ev , § 773. In criminal cases a solicitor has no implied authority, as in civil cases, to affect his client by admissions of fact incidentally made,

R v Downer, 14 Cox. 456, v ante, see a 58, post. (7) Marshall v Cliff. 4 Camp , 133.

<sup>(8)</sup> Holt v Squire, Ry & M , 282; Taylor, Ev ,

<sup>§ 773</sup> (9) Taylor, Ev , § 773

<sup>(10)</sup> Petch v Lyon, 9 Q B, 147, Taylor, Ev., § 774 , Cordery, 82, 83, and cases there cried.

same cause, though the Solicitor has, between the two trials, died, and the new solicitor has sent notice that he will make no admissions.(1) And a statement made in a case by a pleader on behalf of his client is admissible in evidence against that client in another case in which he is a party. (2) Admissions by a clerk or agent having the management of the cause stand on the same footing as admissions by the solicitor.(3) These admissions are receivable as those of the solicitor, not only against the chent. (4) but against the solicitor in favour of the client. (5) Admissions by counsel stand upon similar though a narrower footing. A solicitor, admitted to prosecute or defend, represents his client throughout the cause, but a counsel represents his chent only when speaking for him in Court.(6) Therefore admissions made by counsel out of Court in conversation with the solicitor for the opposite side, are not evidence against his chent. Where, therefore, pending a rule nist, the attorney served with the rule inferred, from a conversation, out of Court, with the counsel who had moved the rule, that the latter would forbear to move to make it absolute for a certain time, and the rule was made absolute by that counsel within the time mentioned, the Court refused to re-open the rule. (7) But statements made by counsel during the conduct of the case are prima focie evidence against the client (8) Besides admissions of fact made incidentally during litigation they may also be expressly made for the purpose of dispensing with proof at the trial, in which case, in civil suits they are generally conclusive whether made by solicitor or counsel.(9)

Guardian and Ward A guardian has, under the Hindu law, a qualified power of dealing with the property of an infant under his charge. He can, in case of necessity, self, charge, or left if for a long term. But the infant is not absolutely bound by the act of the guardian, he could, on attaining majority, recover the property if it had been disposed of without legal necessity and in the case of an uncertificated guardian, the burden of proving legal necessity would, generally speaking, be on the person asserting it. (10) But he will be bound by the act of his guardian, in the management of his estate, when bond fide and for his interest, and when it is such as the infant might reasonably and pradently have done for himself, it he had been of full age (11). And where a contract has been validly entered into on his behalf and there is mutuality in such contract, it may be specifically enforced. (12). Where a more will be bound by the act of his guar-

<sup>(1)</sup> Doe v Bird, 7 C & P , 6, but see also Filten

<sup>1.</sup> Larlins, 5 C & P., 345, 386
(2) Comabattee v. Parushnoth, 15 W R., 135

<sup>(1871),</sup> but see Blackslone v Wilson. 2n L. J., Ex. 229; and remarks in Pravon's Law of Agency in British India, p. 423, and see Lee v Ross, 7 M & W. 102, 122

<sup>(3)</sup> Standage v. Cresgion, 5 C. & P., 40n. Tay. be v. It illane, 2 B. & Ad., 845, 858, Taylor, Ev., § 774.

<sup>(4)</sup> Taylor v. Bellane, supra

<sup>(5)</sup> Ashlard v. Proce, 3 Starts, 185; Contery,

<sup>(6)</sup> Enhandson v., Pelo., I M. & G., 895; per Thinkl, C. J., Taylor, Ev. † 703; and in one speccounsel is not the representative of the chiest, for he has the power to set without sching he client shalt be shall do: A. v. Engelser of Genesical County Court, IVQ II D. 53, 55. Not so he the specif (in the ordinary sense) of the cloud, his position is a preclaim one, delibely v. Hisen, 2 Fing. 119, L21, Justice v. N. Wasseler, L. R., 20Q

B D . 141 . Sainfen . Lord Chelmsford, 5 H. &

N., 890, see Wills, Ev., 118, and also a 58, p.sl. (7) Richardson v. Pelo, supra, and v. sl., as to the practice of entering warrants of attorney on the record

(b) I an Hart v Holley, Hy & M., A. Hallet v Horman, 2 P & F. 105, aftermed 3 L. T., No. 8 S. 741. (Ordery, 83 see also notes to a 39, post; and Taylor, Ev. § 783

<sup>(9)</sup> See a 8%, peak and as to power of coursel and pleaders to compromise, v ab, and admissions in crammal trials, ab

<sup>550 (1895),</sup> see Mayne's Hindu Law, 5th Ed., § 191-197 (11) Mayne's Hindu Law, § 190, and cases there eited. As to the couse in a suit by a migor to set ande a compromise mule by a guardian, see Lebray Roy v. Mahtabehand, 10 D. L. R., 35 (1871). (12) Mrs Sarwarjan v. Falharuddin Mahmad f handberg (1988), 31 C. 161 (Full Pench)

dian, there he may be affected by his declarations made at the same time and forming part of the res gesta, in respect of the particular act which constitutes a proper exercise of although a guardian " · although a guardian may have authority to make a partition Imissions of previous it does not follow th • transactions, so as to affect the estate of his ward.(1) It has been held by the Madras(2) and Bombay(3) High Courts, disapproving of a decision to the contrary effect of the Calcutta High Court, (4) that a guardian has authority to acknowledge a debt on the part of the minor, provided that the debt is not barred by limitation at the date of the acknowledgment. (5) and it be shown in each case that the guardian's act was for the protection or benefit of the ward's property.(6) And in a recent case the Allahabad High Court has also adopted this opinion.(7) As to guardians for the suit, and next friends, v. post, p. 234.

A partner charges the partnership by virtue of an agency to act for it How Partners, far his admissions are receivable depends therefore on the doctrines of agency Touctors: as applied to partnership.(8) Partners and joint-contractors are each other's Parties agents for the purpose of making admissions, against each other, in relation to interested partnership transactions, or joint-contracts.(9) Admissions by partners and matter joint-contractors are receivable both on the ground of agency and of joint interest.(10) After prima facie evidence of partnership, the declaration of one partner is evidence against his co-partners as to partnership business, (11) though the former is no party to the suit. (12) Each member of a firm, being the agent of the others for all purposes within the scope of the partnership business, admissions by one (provided the Court regards him as authorized to make the admission) are binding on all, unless, under the special circumstances of the case,

Thus it has been held that, as between themthis effect when tendered inter se.

(1) Suru) Mookhi v Bhagwati Konwar, 10 C L. R (P C), 377 (1891) But in Brojendra Coo mar v The Chairman of the Dacea Municipality. 20 W R , 223, 224 (1873), it was said that the guardian of an infant has no power to bind him by admissions As to an admission by the Court of Wards, see Ram Autor v Rasa Muhammad, 24 1 A , 107 (1837), as to admission made merely for probative nurposes, see s 5%, post

(2) Sobhanadri Appa v Sriramula, 17 M., 221 (1893), followed in Kailasa Padiachi v Ponnulannu Acht, 18 M . 456 (1894) (3) Annapagaudu v Sungadigyapa, 26 B 221 901), overruling Maharana Ranmalinggi v 1 adilal Valhatchand, 20 B , 61 (1894)

- (4) Wajibun v Kadir Buksh, 13 C., 292, 295 (1886), followed in Chhato Ram v Bilto Ali, 26 U. 15 (1898), Tilal Singh v. Chal Singh I All L. J. 302 (1904)
  - (5) See cases in note, ante
- (6) See Innapagauda v Sangadigyapa, supra F (7) Ram Charan Das v. Gaya Prasad (1908). 30 A. 238 [Full Bench], desenting from Tilal
- Singh v Chol Singh, supra (8) Wigraore, Pv , § 1078
- (9) Steph Dig , Art. 17 . Lucas . De la Cour. 1 M. & S. 249. Whiteomb . Whiting, 1 . L. C 644, 2 Doug. 652, Kalı Kranse v Gops Mokan,

- 2 C W N , 166, 168 (1897) , and see next note (10) Taylor, Ly $5 593, 743 , Story on Partnership, $$ 101-125 , Re Whiteley (1891), L R , 1 Ch. 558, ante Steph Dig., Art 17, Kowsullia Sundari v Mukta Sundari, 11 (*, 588, 591 (1885)
- (11) Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 71. Nicholls v. Doredine. 1 Stark., 81 , Taylor, Dv , § 743 , Lucas v De la (our, supra What admissions bind in the case of partners? Those only which relate to matters connected with the partnership For instance, an admission by one partner, that the two had committed a trespass would not bind the other In this case the declaration related to nothing in which there was that community of in terest which makes the declaration of one defendant evidence against the other " Fox v Waters, 12 A & E , 43, per Williams, J See Taylor, Ev . § 751 , and see generally as to Partnership, ib . $5 598-601, 743-754 787 Roscoe, \ P Ev . 71 . Steph, Dig., Art 17., Lindley, Partnership, 128. 162-166, Supp., 40 Pearson s Law of Agency. 424, 429, Act 1X of 1872 (Indian Contract Act), ss 239-256
  - (12) Word v Braddick, I Taunt , 104 , Roscoe, N P Ev. 71. Ta. Ev. 5 743
- (13) Latch v Wedlake, 11 A & E , 959; Taylor, Ev. § 594, as to acknowledgments of debt by partner giving new period of limitation, v post same cause, though the solucitor has, between the two trials, died, and the new solicitor has sent notice that he will make no admissions. (1) And a statement made in a case by a pleader on behalf of his client is admissible in evidence against that client in another case in which he is a party. (2) Admissions by a clerk or agent having the management of the cause stand on the same footing as admissions are receivable as those of the solicitor, not only against the client. (4) but against the solicitor in favour of the client (5) Admissions by course! stand upon similar though in a case of the solicitor, admitted to prosecute or defend, represents but a counsel represents his client only when Therefore admissions made by counsel out of solicitor for the opposite side, are not evidence against his client Where, therefore, pending a rule miss, the attorney served with the rule interred, from a conversation, out of Court, with the counsel who had moved the rule, that the latter would forbear to move to make it absolute for a certain time, and the rule was made absolute by that counsel within the time mentioned, the Court related to re-open the rule.(7) But statements made by counsel during the conduct of the case are prima facie evidence against the client.(8) Besides admissions of fact made incidentally during thigation, they may also be expressly made for the purpose of dispensing with proof at the trial, in which case, in civil suits they are generally conclusive whether made by solicitor or connect.(9)

Guardian and Ward. A guardian has, under the Hindu law, a qualified poner of dealing with the property of an mfant under his charge. He can, in case of necessity, sell, charge, or let it for a long term. But the infant is not absolutely bound by the act of the guardian, he could, on attaining majority, recover the property it is had been disposed of without legal necessity; and in the case of an uncertificated guardian, the burden of proving legal necessity would, generally speaking, be on the person asserting it (10). But he will be bound by the act of his guardian, in the management of his estate, when bond fide and for his interest, and when it is such as the infant might reasonably and prudently have done for limself, if he had been of full age (11). And where a contract has been validly entered into on his behalf and there is mutuality in such contract, it may be specifically enforced, (12). Where a minor will be bound by the act of his guar-

<sup>(1)</sup> Doe v. Bird, 7 C & P , 6 , but see also Elion v. Larline, 5 C. & P., 385, 386

<sup>(2)</sup> Oomabuttee v Parushnath, 15 W H:, 143 (1871), but see Blackstone v. Wilson, 26 L. J. Ex., 229, and remarks in Pearson's Law of Agen ey in British India, p. 423; and see Dec v. Rose, 7 M. & W., 102, 122

<sup>(3)</sup> Standage v. Crevgton, 5 C & P., 40%, Tay. Let v. Billans, 2 B & Ad., 845, 858, Taylor, Lv., § 774

<sup>174</sup> (4) Taylor v. Itellane, supra

<sup>(5)</sup> Ashlard v. Price, 3 Stark, 1×5, Cordery,

<sup>(6)</sup> Relandan v. Pelo, 1 M. & G. 896; per Tindia, C. J., Tajor, En., 1782, and none sense consact is not the representative of the client, for he has the power to set without sching his client what he shall ido. A. v. Legisters of becomes Courty Court, 13 Q. B. D. 34, 68. Nor he be the agent (in the onlinary sense) of the client, his position is a preshar one, Cellidy v. Hess, 3 Eng., 119 121, Radiview Master, 18, 2, 200.

B D, 141, Summen v Lord Chelmsford, 5 H. & N, 800, see Wills, Ev. 118, and also 8 58, post

<sup>(7)</sup> Richardson v Pelo, supra, and v. ib, as to the practice of entering warrants of attorney on the record

<sup>(8)</sup> I an B art v Wolley, Ry & M. 4; Haller v Worman, 2 F. & F. 165, affirmed 3 L. T. N. S 5, 741, Cordery, 83, see also notes to a 58, post, and Taylor, Lv. § 783

<sup>(9)</sup> See a 58, past and as to power of counsel and pleaders to compromise, v io, and admissions in criminal trials, ib

<sup>(10)</sup> Jagul Kishori v Anunda Lal. 22 C. 545. 550 (1895), see Mayne's Hindu Law, 5th Dd. 31 191-197

<sup>(11)</sup> Mayne's Hindu Law, § 100, and cases there exted. As to the cours in a suit by a minor to set and a composition made by a guardian, see Lebra, Roy v. Mahtabehund, 10.11. L. R., 35. (1871). (12) Mir. Saraviegan v. Felkaradise Mahomd Choodborg (1998), 24. C., 161. (1991. Buth.)

dian, there he may be affected by his declarations made at the same time and forming part of the res gestar, in respect of the particular act which constitutes a proper exercise of the functions of guardian hip. But although a guardian may have authority to manage the estate or possibly even to make a partition it does not follow that he would have power to make admissions of previous transactions, so as to affect the estate of his ward. (1) It has been held by the Madras(2) and Bombay(3) High " " trary effect of the Calcutta High . *to acknowledge a debt on the part of t barred by li 'town in each case . ward's property also adopted this c post, p 234.

A partner charges the partnership by virtue of an agency to act for it. How Partners far his admissions are receivable depends therefore of as applied to partnership (8) Partners and joint-cont agents for the purpose of making admissions, against t partnership transactions, or joint-contracts. (9) Admissions by partners and functional point-contractors are receivable both on the ground of agency and of joint interest. (10) After primi face evidence of partnership, the declaration of one partner is evidence against his co-partners as to partnership business, (11) though the former is no party to the suit. (12) Each nember of a firm, being the agent of the others for all purposes within the scope of the partnership business, admissions by one (provided the Court regards him as authorized to make the admission) are binding on all, unless, under the special circumstances of the case, an intention can be inferred, that a particular act should not be binding without the direct concurrence of each individual partner (13) "Though admissions by partners bind the firm when tendered by strangers, they do not necessarily have this effect when tendered inter se. Thus thas been held that, as between them-

<sup>(1)</sup> Sury Moddh v. Bhoquat Konwar, 10 C. L. R. (P. C), 377 (1881) But in Brogendra Cosmae v The Chairman of the Dacca Municipality, 20 W. R., 223, 224 (1873), it was said that the guardian of an inflat has no power to bind lim by admissions. As to an admission by the Court of Wards, see Rem. Adiar v. Roya Mahammad, 24 I. A., 107 (1897), as to admission made metetry for probative purposes, et a. 88, post

<sup>(2)</sup> Sobhanadri Appa v Sriramula, 17 M., 221 (1893), followed in Kailasa Padiachi v Ponnulannu Achi, 18 M., 456 (1894)

tannu Achi, 18 M, 456 (1894)

(3) Annapagaudu v Sangadigyapa, 26 B, 221

901), overruling Maharana Ranmalangji v 4 adi-

Iol Valhatchand, 20 B, 61 (1894)
 (4) Wayibun v Kadir Buksh, 13 C, 292, 295
 (1886), followed in Chhata Ram v Bilto Ali, 26 C, (1899), Tidal Singh v Chal Singh 1 All L
 J, 302 (1994)

<sup>(5)</sup> See cases in note, ante

<sup>(6)</sup> See Innapagauda v Sangadigyapa, supra f (7) Ram Charan Das v Gaya Prasad (1908), 30 A. 238 [Full Bench], dissenting from Tilak Singh v Chol Singh, supra

 <sup>(8)</sup> Wigmore, Ev., § 1078
 (9) Steph. Dig., Art. 17 Lucas v De la Cont.
 M. & S., 249. Whiteoth v. Whiting, 18 L. C.
 644; 2 Doug., 632. Kali Kinner v Goji Michan,

<sup>2</sup> C W N, 156, 168 (1897), and see next note (10) Taylor, Ev. §§ 593, 743, Story on Partnership, §§ 101—125, Re Whiteley (1891), L R, I

Ch. 558, ante Steph Dig. Art 17. Kowsullia Sundars v Mukta Sundars, 11 C , 588, 591 (1885). (II) Roscoe, N P Ev , 71 Nicholls v Dowdine, 1 Stark . 81 , Taylor, Ev , § 743 , Lucas v De la Cour, supra, 'What admissions bind in the case of partners. Those only which relate to matters connected with the partnership For instance, an admission by one partner, that the two had committed a trespass would not bind the other In this case the declaration related to nothing in which there was that community of in terest which makes the declaration of one defendant evidence against the other ' Fox v Waters. 12 A & E , 43, per Williams, J See Taylor, Ev . $ 751 , and see generally as to Partnership, ib , 88 598-601, 743-754, 787, Roscoe, N P Ev , 71; Steph Dig , Art 17 , Lindley, Partnership, 128-162-166, Supp., 40 Pearson a Law of Agency. 428, 429, Act IX of 1872 (Indian Contract Act), sa 239-266 selves, entries in the partnership books(1) made without the knowledge of a partner will, as against him, be inadmissible,(2) and a similar rule holds as to directors and other members of a company inter e. "(3) Admissions which are made by one partner, in fraud of the firm, are receivable against the latter (4) unless made collusively with the other side,(5)

<sup>(12)</sup> Bood's Braddick 1 Taunt, 104, Roscoe, N. P. Li., 71, Ta. Ev., § 743

<sup>(13)</sup> Latch v Wedlake, 11 A & E., 959. Taylor, Ev., § 598, as to acknowledgments of debt by partner giving new period of limitation, v. post

"When several persons are jointly interested in the subject-matter of the suit, the general rule is, that the admissions of any one of these persons are receivable against himself and his fellows, whether they be all jointly suing or sued or whether an action be brought in favour of, or against one or more of, them separately, provided the admission relate to the subject-matter in . dispute, and be made by the declarant in his character of a person jointly interested with the party against whom the evidence is tendered. (6) Thus, as has been already seen, the representation or misrepresentation of any fact made by one partner with respect to some partnership transaction will bind the firm, (7) and so also in the case of a joint-contract where A, B, C and D make a joint and several promissory note, either can make admissions about it as against the rest. (8) In order to render the admission of one person receivable in evidence against another, it must relate to some matter in which either both were jointly interested or one was derivatively interested(9) through the other, and more community of interest will not be sufficient. Thus, where two persons were in partnership, and an action was brought against them as part-owners of a vessel, an admission made by the one, as to a matter which was not a subject of co-partnership but only of co-part-ownership, was held inadmissible against the other "(10) Nor will the admissions of one tenant-in-common be receivable against his co-tenant, though both are parties on the same side of the suit.(11) And an admission by a co-tenant as to who is the landlord of a holding is not binding on the other co-tenants (12) Nor is an admission by one rvot as to the rate at which he holds (though against his own interest) evidence to prove the rate at which another ryot holds (13) And, where a contract is severed by the death of one of the contractors, nothing that is subsequently done or said by the survivor, can bind the personal representative of the deceased(14) nor can the acts or admissions of the executor bind the survivor (15) The rule that where there are several co-contractors, or persons engaged in one common business or dealing, a statement made by one of them, with reference to any transaction which forms part of their iont business, is admissible as against the others (16) was applied in the

As to the principle on which partnership broks are evidence, see Hill v. Manchester and Salf and Waterworks (o., 5 B. & Ad., 875)

 <sup>(2)</sup> Hutcheson v. Smith, 5 Ir. Eq., 117, Stewart s east, 1 Ch. App., 597, Landby, Partnership, 536
 (3) Physon, Ev., 3rd Ed., 209

<sup>(4)</sup> Eapp v Latham, 2 B & Md , 795 . Moure

* Knoph (1891), 1 Ch , 517
(5) Taylor, Er , 4 749, and cases there ested

<sup>(6)</sup> Tayler, Fr. § 732; ettel and adopted in Koverilloh Sundary v. Walta Sundary, H. C., Son, Gov (1888); r. 18, rd. (1), ante, B. Batrond, v. Battage, 2. Dang., G.2; Wood v. Braddock, J. Taunt, 101, as to acknowledgements of Joint delta for the purpose of the law of Innutation v. p.od., and Taylor, Fr. § 1609, 601; 721-747. (2) Taylor, Fr. § 1733, and v. p. 173, p. 174.

<sup>(8)</sup> Whiteenth v. Whiting, 2 Doug, 652; 1 S. L. C. 641; Steph Dig , Art 17, illust (f)

<sup>(9)</sup> See a 18, cl. (2) and peel,

<sup>(10)</sup> Invior, Ev. § 750, and other cases there and in §§ 751—753, cited, Steph Dig, Art 17; Jagpres Stammy, I Stark R. 64, Brotte v. Howard, 17 C. B. 109, as to statements by covered trustees and admissions by one of several trustees.

ante, first para of commentary
(11) Dan's Brown, 4 Caven, 443, 492

<sup>(12)</sup> Kalı Kusen v Gopt Mohan, 2 (* W. N., 116 (1897)

<sup>(13)</sup> Aurrohurry Mohanto v Narainee Dissec, W. R. F. B., 23 (1862)

W. R. F. B., 23 (1862) (14) Alkins v. Tredydl, 2 B. & C., 23; Fordham v. Wallis, 10 Have, 217, Slaymaker v. Gun-duckers, Ex., 10 Norg & P., 75 (15) Slater v. Laurson, I. B. & Ad., 306, Hathaway v. Haskell, 9 Pick , 24 (10) Per Garth, C. J., in Konsullenk Sunday v.

Mults Sunday, 11 C. 588, 590 (1988); citing Taylor, Fv. 1741, Kemble v. Farcen, 3 C. & P. 623; Lucne v. Delations, 1 M. & S., 219 case of Kowsulliah Sundari Dasi v. Multa Sundari Dasi.(1) The facts of this case were that, in a suit between a zemindar and his ijaradars for rent, a person who was one of several joicdars in the mehal, was called as a witness for the zemindar, and admitted the fact that an arrangement existed whereby he and his co-joicedars had agreed to pay rent to the zemindar direct : this suit was decided in favour of the zemindar. The ijaradars then brought a suit against the integrated are amongst whom was the witness abovementioned, to recover the sum which the jotedars ought to have paid to the zemindar direct, and which the ijaradars had been decreed to pay. The jotedars disclaimed all liability to pay rent to the ijaradars. in this suit the evidence given by the jotedar in the zemindar's suit was received as evidence on behalf of the plaintiffs against all the defendants. It was contended that the statement of the jotedar might have been received as an admission against himself only, but not as against the other defendants, but it was held, on the principle above stated, that the evidence was admissible. As to admissions founded on derivative interest (v. post). In an action for tion for tort, the admission of one others, the same rule prevails in c recognise any

The joint interest must be proved independently. An apparent joint interest is obviously insufficient to make the admissions of one party receivable against his companions, where the reality of that interest is the point in controversy. A foundation must first be laid by showing primit face that a joint interest exists. Where, it is the point in the provided in the provided primit face that a joint interest exists. Where, it is not provided in the provided primit face that a joint interest exists. Where, it is not provided primit face that a joint interest exists.

 admission of the fact of r anv of the others, to partnership or joint interest in crime.(2) partnership is shown to exist by independent proof satisfactory to the judge, that the admissions of one of the parties are received in order to affect the others. (3) In the case of admissions of persons who are not parties to the record, but who are interested in the subject-matter of the suit, the law looks chiefly to the real parties in interest, and gives to their admissions the same weight as though they were parties to the record. (4) Thus, the same weight as though they were parties to the record. (4) Thus, the same weight as though they were parties to the record. (4) Thus, the same sength as a choice of the persons interest and that of the trustee are identical. (5) those of the persons interested in a policy effected in another's name for their benefit. (6) those of the ship-owners in an action by the misster for freight. (7) and, in short, those of any persons who are represented in the cause by other parties, are receivable in evidence against their respective representatives (8). The admissions must have been made while the real party was actually interested (**post*), and further they are only receivable so far as his own interests, or the interests of those who claim through him are concerned (9). And as a nominal party may be affected by the admissions of a real party who though the total of the contribution.

The

nt.

substantial interest(1) in the result;(2) so conversely the admissions of a representative if made while sustaining that character(3) and touching his principal's interest,(4) are in general receivable against the principal; and this is so, although the representative is a mere nominal party, or bare trustee, whose name is used only for purposes of form. (5) But the declarations of a guardian for the suit, or next friend of a minor are not receivable against the latter, because these persons, though their names appear on the record, are not in fact parties to the action, but are considered as officers of the Court specially appointed to look after the interests of the minor. (6)

Principal and surety.

"The admissions of a principal can seldom be received as evidence in an action against the surety upon his collateral .... ' the main inquiry is whether the declarations of the transaction of the business for which the sure If so, they are admissible part of the res aester surety is come i and not for who to proof of the . ..... concente, when it can be had: excluding quent to the act to which they relate, and out

Limitation Act.

The Limitation Act deals with the subject of the effect of acknowledgments in writing to bar limitation. But one of several joint-contractors, partners, executors, or mortgagees(8) is not chargeable by reason only of a written acknowledgment signed by or by the agent of, any other or others of them (9)

In England it appears now to be settled law that a payment on account of debt or a written acknowledgment made by a partner in the usual course of business is sufficient to take a partnership debt out of the Statute of Limitations as against the other members of the firm, the partner being presumed to

v. Peremi, 5 H L. C. 257

Ex , 741

lathful conduct of a clerk or collector, confessions of embezzlement, made by the principal after his dismissal, cannot be given in evidence if the surety be sued on the bond , Smith v. Whittingham, 6 C & P , 78 , rough entries made by the principal in the course of his duty, or whereby he has charged bimself with the recent of money will, at least after his death, be received as proof against the surety not altogether as declarations made by him against his interest but because the entries were made by him in those accounts which it was his duty as clerk to keep and which the defendant had contracted that he should furthfully keep Il helaash v George & B & C . 556 . Goss v. Wat-

(8) ht IX of 190%, a 19 The liability must appear upon the face of the acknowledgment and such liability cannot be read into it by proof aliunde Ittapan . Nanu. 12 Mad L. J., 101 . s c . 26 M . 31, and as to the essentials of a valid acknowledgment, see Shriniums Arishna Shirallar v. Narhar Khandos Khanedkae (1994), 32 B.

Ingion, 3 B & B, 132

(9) 16., 4 21, see The Indian Limitation Act with Notes by H T Bivar, 4th Ed (1894). 50-60, 62, 61, and Field, Lv., 125-127; Steph. Dig , Art. 17, as to principal and surety, see Cockell v. Sparles, 1 H & C , WY); He Powers, 30 Ch. D. 201

<sup>(1)</sup> The "interest" is so qualified in Steph Ing Art. 15, the words of a 18, are, however "may proprietary or pecuniary interest."

<sup>(2)</sup> ante, Taylor, Ev., § 750, 757 Roscor, N P Fv. 67, Steph Dig. Art 16, Wills, Lv

<sup>(3)</sup> Legge v Edmonds, 25 L. J. Ch , 125 . Fenwiel v Thornton, 1 M & M , 51; Metters v Brown,

<sup>32</sup> L.J. Ec., 340. (4) Faz v Watere 12 1 & U. 43, Stanton

<sup>(5)</sup> Vorunty v L C & D to , L R , 5 Q B . 314, what the plaintiff on the record has said is always evulence against him, its weight being more or less, even if the plaintiff is merely a nommal plaintiff, a bare trustee for another, though slight in such a case, still it would be admissible; de, per Blackburn, J.; Steph. Dig , Art 16 , Itoscre, S. P. Fr , 67; Bauerman v Rafenius, 7 f. 11. told , Phillips. Lv , 362; though we Taylor,

<sup>(6)</sup> Taylor, by . § 742, and cases there cited; Phillips, Iv. 363, Roscor, Lt., 63, as to the admissions of committees of lunatus see Signling v. Perceal, 5 H J. C., 257 v. ante, as to admissums by guantians and as to solema admissions for the purpose of trials, see a 54, post

<sup>(3)</sup> Taylor, by , $785 , and v 25 , $786 , so if a man become surely in a bon I conditioned for the

have authority to act for the firm in making the payment or giving the acknowledgment (1) After a dissolution, however, the authority of the later partners to bind one another in this respect is determined, (2) unless the facts are such as lead to the reference that the payment is made or acknowledgment given as agent for the o . . . writing signed by the executor death jointly and severally acknowledgment only of the several liability of the deceased obligor.(4) The subject of the second clause of s. 18 is usually included under the head Fersons from whom of "privity," (5) the rule being that the admissions of one person are evidence interest against another in respect of privity between them. (6) Statements made by derived persons in possession of property and qualifying or affecting their title thereto, are receivable against a party claiming through them by title subsequent to the admission (7) Thus where A sued B to recover a watch, which B claimed to retain as administrator of C, deceased, a declaration by C that he had given tion of her ornaments by will. The question was disallowed, but the Court of Appeal held that the question was improperly disallowed since a statement by the testatrix suggesting any inference as to the execution of a will would be an admission relevant against her representatives and would therefore be admissible as evidence (9) "The ground upon which admissions bind those in privity with the party making them, is that they are identified in interest; and, of course, the rule extends no further than this identity (10) If a person who

(1) Gordenn v Parton (1880), 42 L. T. 569. in re Tucker (1894), 3 Ch , 429 , and see Taylor Ev. § 600, and § 593, and Lindley on Partnership, 6th Ed , p 271

(2) Watson v Bostman (1875), 29 Lq. 730

(3) In re Tucler, supra (4) Read v Price (1909), 1 h B , 577 , Roddam v Morley, 1 In G. & J. 1, In re Lacu (1907), I Ch., 330

(5) See Steph. Dig , Art 16, Taylor, Ev., § 787. and generally as to admissions on the ground of privity, 15 , §§ 90, 754, 787—794 , Wills, Ev., 121

(6) Fasior, Es. $ 797, the term 'privits' denotes mutual or successive relationship to the same rights of property, and privies are distributed in several classes according to the manner of this relationship, tiz (1) privies in blod, as heir and ancestor, and co-parceners, (2) privies in law, as executor to testator or administrator to intestate, and the bke , (3) privies, in estate or interest, as donor and dones lessor and lessee. joint-tenants and the like, th , § 787 See Bige low's Fatoppel, p 597

(7) Ib . * 18. cl (2), aute Phipson, Ev 3rd Fd , 203 , Clark , Brindalina & hunder, W 1; . F B. 20 (1862), as to admissions by parties through whom others claim see also Fortes a Mir Mahomed, 5 B | R 529, 540 (1870), s c. 14 W R P C 28 13 W I A. 438, Wohun Shahoo v. Chutter, Mowar, 21 W R 34 (1874) Khenum Lurce v Gour Chunder, 5 W R 268 (1866), Anna Pantsk v Gyadhur, 10 W R. 89 (1868); Lendh Beharee Sough v Ram Ran 18 W. R., 105 (1872), Situl Pershad v. Monohur Das. 23 W. R., 325 (1875). Krishnasumi Ayyangar v. Kajagopala Jugangar, 18 M., 73 (1494). Anundmoyee Chardhrain v Steeb Chunder, Marshall, 455 (1862), Gorrebollah Sircar v Boyd, 2 W R. 190 (1865) Inan Chowdhry & Doolar Chowdhry, 18 W. R , 347 (1872) Some Gornkhal v Rangam. mal, 7 Mad H C R, 13 (1871)

(8) Smith v Smith, 3 Bing N C , 29

(9) Nana v Shanlur, 3 Bom L R , 465 (1901). not, however under a II as the head-note suggest but this section But see also 4thinson . Morres, I. R., 1897, P. D. 40 [statements made by a testator are not admissible to prove the execution by him of a will, which was held inapplicable as it was based on the fact that the English Wills Act prescribes a particular form of proof, while to the will in the case cited no such rule applied

(10) Taylor, Et , § 787 , ' It is to be observed that admissions are relevant only so far as the interests of the persons who made them or of those who claim through such persons are concerned. On this principle a distinction must be made between statements made by an occupier of had in disparagement of his own title and statements which go to abridge or encumber the estate itself. For example an admission by a painidas or other holder of a subordinate tenure affects the pains or other tenure as against him and those who derive their title from him, but it will not affect the proprietary interest as against the zemin lar or other superior, so as to encumber or diminish his rights.' Field, Ft., 129; see

substantial interest(1) in the result;(2) so conversely the admissions of a representative if made while sustaining that character(3) and touching his principal's interest,(4) are in general receivable against the principal; and this is so, although the representative is a mere nominal party, or bare trustee. whose name is used only for purposes of form. (5) But the declarations of a guardian for the suit, or next friend of a minor are not receivable against the latter, because these persons, though their names appear on the record, are not in fact parties to the action, but are considered as officers of the Court specially appointed to look after the interests of the minor (6)

"The admissions of a principal can seldom be received as evidence in an Principal The admissions of a principal and surety action against the surety upon his collateral and action against the surety upon his collateral and actions are supported by the collateral and act

the main inquiry is whether the declarations of the transaction of the business for which the cur-Dist of 41

The and not to proof ...... crucence, when it can be had; excluding

nt

an ans declarations made subsequent to the act to which they relate, and out of the course of his official duty. (7)

Limitation

The Limitation Act deals with the subject of the effect of acknowledgments in writing to bar limitation. But one of several . . .. executors, c--- ' ledgment s.

a reason to be settled law that a payment on account of In Eng debt or a written acknowledgment made by a partner in the usual course of business is sufficient to take a partnership debt out of the Statute of Limitations as against the other members of the firm, the partner being presumed to

(1) The "interest" is so qualified in Steph Dig . Art 16 , the words of a 18, are, however " sny proprietary or pecuniary interest "

(2) . ante Taylor, Ev. § 756, 757, Roscoe, N P Ev., 67, Steph Dig., Art 16 Walls, Ev.

(3) Lopp v Edmonds, 25 L. J., Ch. 125. Feaworl . Thornton, I M & M . 51 , Metters . Brown.

32 L. J. Fx . 340 (4) For v Baters 12 A & C 41 Manton Percual, 5 H L. C. 257

(5) Morearly v L. C & D (a, L. R. 5 Q B, 314, what the plaintiff on the record has said is always evidence against him, its weight being more or less, even if the plaintiff is merely a nomanal plaintiff, a bare trustee for another, though slight in such a case, still it would be admissible; 1's , per Elackburg, J ; Steph, Dig , Art 16 , Roscor, A. P by , 67 , Bourman v Ralengue, 7 f. 1; , 663; Phillips, Lv , 362, though see Taylor,

(b) Taylor, Lv. f 742, and cases there ested; Phillips, Pr., 343, Roscor, Pt., 69, as to the admissions of committees of lunatics, see Manfon v. Perried, 5 11 L. C. 257 v date, as to admissums by guantians and as to solong admissions for the purpose of trials, or s 54, put

Fs , 741

(7) Taylor, Fr. $785, and r 15, $786, an if a man terrene surety in a lam I conditioned for the faithful conduct of a clerk or collector, confessions of embezzlement, made by the principal after his dismissal, cannot be given in evidence if the surety be sued on the bond , Smith v Whittingham, 6 ( & P , 78 , rough entries made by the principal in the course of his duty, or whereby he has charged himself with the receipt of money will, at least after his death be received as proof against the surety not altogether as declarations made by him against his interest, but because the entries were made by him in those accounts which it was his duty as clerk to keep, and which the defendant had contracted that he should fasthfully keep Whitnash v George, 8 B & C., 558, Gons v. Wallangton, 3 B & B , 132

(8) Let IX of 1908, a 19 The liability must appear upon the face of the acknowledgment and such liability cannot be read into it by proof sieunde. Ittapan v Nanu, 12 Mail L. J., 101, s. c. 26 M., 31, and as to the essentials of a table acknowledgment, see Merenewas Aresbna Mesallar v. Nachar Ahandos Khoncellar (1904), 32 B.,

(9) ft . a 21 . mr The Indian Limitation Act with Notes by H T Birest, 4th Ed (1894). 50-60, 62, 63, and Field, Ev., 125-127, Steph Drg. Art. 17; as to principal and surety, are Cocleil v. Sparkes, 1 H. & C. 679; He Powers, 30 Ch D , 201.

have authority to act for the firm in making the payment or giving the acknowledgment.(1) After a dissolution, however, the authority of the liter partners to bind one another in this respect is determined.(2) unless the facts are such as lead to the reference that the payment is made or acknowledgement given as agent for the o' writing signed by the executor death jointly and severally acknowledgment only of the several hability of the deceased obligor. (4)

The subject of the second clause of s. 18 is usually included under the head form of of "privity." (5) the rule being that the admissions of one person are evidence interagainst another in respect of privity between them.(6) Statements made by darress persons in possession of property and qualifying or affecting their title thereto. are receivable against a party claiming through them by title subsequent to the admission. (7) Thus where I sued B to recover a watch, which B claimed to retain as administrator of C deceased, a declaration by C that he had given the watch to A was held to be evidence against B.(8) In proceedings for probate of a will a witness who attended on the testatrix during her last illness was asked to depose to a statement made to the witness by the testatrix as to a disposition of her ornaments by will. The question was disallowed, but the Court of Appeal held that the question was improperly disallowed since a statement by the testatrix suggesting any inference as to the execution of a will would be an admission relevant against her representatives and would therefore be admissible as evidence.(9) "The ground upon which admissions bind those in privity with the party making them, is that they are identified in interest; and of course, the rule extends no further than this identity (10) If a person who

(1) Gorden v Parton (1890), 42 '. T. 569. in te Tucker (1834), 3 (h , 429 , and ore Taylor Er , § 600, and § 598, and Lindley on Partnership, 6th Ed., p. 271

(2) Watson v Hoodman (1875), 20 Lq., 730

(3) In re Turler, supra

(4) Read . Price ,1909), 1 K B 577, Roddam v. Morley, 1 De (+ & J. 1. In re Lacu (1907), 1 (h., 330)

(5) See Steph. Dig , Art 16 , Taylor, Ev , §757 , and generally as to admissions on the ground of privite, 15 , §5 90, 758, 787-794 . Wills, Ev , 121

(6) Taylor, Et , § 787 , the term 'privity" denotes mutual or successive relationship to the same rights of property and privies are distributed in several classes according to the manner of this relationship, riz (1) privies in blord, as hear and ancestor, and co-parceners, (2) privies in four, as executor to testa or or administrator to intestate, and the like / (3) privies, in estate or interest, as donor and dones, lessor and lessee, loint-tenants and the like, to , $ 787 See Bigelow's Estoppel, p 597

(7) 16 . . 18, cl (2) linte, Phipson, Ev . 3rd Ed. 203 . Clark v Brigidalina Chunder, W II. P. B , 20 (1862) . as to admissions by parties through whom others I hum, see also Forbes v. Mr. Mahomed S.B. 17 R. 529, 540 (1870), s.c. 14 W. R. P. C. 24 14 W. R. P. C. 28 13 M. I. A. 438 . Wohun Shahoo v. Chutton Modern, 21 W. R., 34 (1874) Khenum Kurce . Rur Chunder, 5 W R. 284 (1896) , Nund Pantag v. Gyadhur, 10 W. R. , 89 (1968), Leadh Behal ee Singh v. Rum Ras, 18

W. R. 105 (1872) . Situl Pershad v. Monohur Day, 23 W R 325 (1875), Krishnasims Lygangar v. Rajagopala Anganjar, 18 M., 73 (1894), Anund. movice Chowdhrain . Sheeh Chunder, Marshall, 455 (1862), Gorebollah Survey v Boyd, 2 W. R. 190 (1865) Juan Choudhry & Dodar Choudhry, 18 W. R , 347 (1872) Some Garnikal . Ranjam. mal, 7 Mad H C R, 13 (1871)

(8) Smith v Smith 3 Bing N ( , 29

(9) Nana v Stantur, 3 Bont L R , 465 (1901). not however unders 11 as the head-note suggest but this section But ser also filenson . Morres. L. R. 1897, P D 40 |statements made by a test. ator are not admissible to prove the execution by him of a will which was held mapple able as it was based on the fact that the English Wills Act prescribes a particular form of proof, while to the will in the case cited no such rule applied

(10) Taylor, Ft , § 787 . ' It is to be observed that admissions are relevant only so far as the interests of the persons who made them or of those who claim through such persons are concerned. On this principle a distinction must be made between statements made by an exampler of lind in disparagement of his own title, and statements which go to abritar or en umber the estate itself. For example, an admission by a painted or other holler of a subordinate tenure affects the pains or other fenure as against him and those who derive their title from hour hard it will not affect the proprietars interest as against the zemin lit or other superior, so as to em under or dinanish his rights' Full, by 129, and adopts another makes an admission after the adoption, this admission will not bind the person.

it has been said person adopted.

from the adopter in such a way as tomake the admission evidence against him.(1) The eases of copart eners and joint-tenants are assimilated to those of joint-promisers, partners, and others having a joint interest, which have been already considered. In other cases, where the party by his admissions has qualified.

tenant of a third person are admissible to show the seism of that person in an action brought his him against the hair for the land (2) and the declarations of an intestate right.''(4)

rurce at a given rent and the surbarakar of their zemindar, admitted their right on behalf of the zemindar, who himself filed a petition corroborating his surbarakar's statement, it was held that these admissions would bind any subse; quent zemindar not being an auction-purchaser at a sale for arrears of Government revenue (5) The same principle holds in regard to admissions made by the assignor of a personal contract or chattel previous to the assignment, where the assignee must recover through the title of the assignor and succeeds only to that title as it stood at the time of its transfer (6) But a distinction must be drawn between the case of an assignee of land or other property and that of an ordinary assignce of a negotiable institutiont. For, whereas the former has in general no title unless his essignor had, the latter may have a good title though his assignor had none. Thus the declaration, of a former holder of a note, showing that it was given without consideration, though made while he held the note, were held to be not admissible against the indorsee, to whom the instrument had been transferred on good consideration, and before it was overdue. (7) For such an indoisce derives his title from the nature of the instrument itself, and not through the previous holder Accordingly, unless the plaintiff on a bill or note stands on the title of a former holder (as if he have taken the bill overdue or without consideration), the declarations of such former holder are not evidence egeinst him.(8)

The purchaser of en estate sold for arrears of revenue is not privy in estate Sales in to the defaulting proprietor. He does not derive his title from him, and is bound execution neither by his acts nor by his laches; (1) nor by his admissione; (2) nor by rears of a degree against him, (3) and proceedings between the defaulting proprietor revenue and third parties with respect to the title to the land are not admissible in evidence in a subsequent suit brought by the auction-purchaser as against him.(4)

It has in some cases(5) been considered that a similar rule applies to ordinary execution-sales and that a purchaser at such a sale is not in privity with, or the representative in interest of, the judgment-debtor so as to be affected by the admissions or bound by the estoppel of the latter. This view appears to have been based on a misapprehension(6) of certain Privy Council decisions in which it was pointed out there is a great distinction between a private sale in satisfaction of a decree and a sale in execution of a decree. (7) In both cases the purchaser merely acquires the right, title and intere t of the judgmentdebtor ;(8) and therefore a suit to enforce an interest purchased at an executionsale was held to be barred as against such purchaser, since if the interest had remained in the judgment-debtor, a suit to enforce such inter at would have been barred as against him.(9) But there is this distinction between a private sale in satisfaction of a decree and a sale in execution of a decree that under the former, the purchaser derives title through the vendor and cannot acquire a better title than that of the vendor. Under the latter the purchaser not withstanding he acquires merely the right, title and intrest of the judgment-debtor, acquires that title by operation of law adversely to the judgment-debtor, and freed from all alienations or incumbrances effected by him, subsequently to the attachment of the property sold in execution (10) The Privy Courcil

(1) Moonshee Butlool . Pran Dhan. . W R. 222 (1867) (and v +b. p 62) followed in Radha Goland v. Ralhal Das. 12 C . 82, 90 (1895) . Watson d Co v. Nobin Mohun, 10 W R , 72 (1868) as to the rights of the auction-purchaser, see Kooldrep Narain v. Government of India, 11 B L R 71 (1871), Forbes v. Meer Mahomed, 20 W. R. (P. C.), 44 (1873)

(2) Rungo Monre v Ray Commarce, 6 W R. 197 (1866)

(3) Ib , Ridha v Rakhal, supra, 12 C , 82, 98, but as to purchasers of pains talugs sold under Reg VIII of 1819, see to at p 90 , and Taraprasad v Pam Arising, 6 B L B App 5 (1870), 14 W.R. 283

(4) Radha Gobind v Rakhal Dav. supra

(5) Lala Parbhu v Mulne, 14 C , 401, 411-414 (1887), Gour Sundar v. Hem Chunder, 16 C. 355, 360 (1890) Bashs Chender v Enaget Alt. 20 C, 236, 239 (1892), for earlier decisions, see Rungo Monse v Ray Coomarte, 6 W R , 197 (1886). Musst Invit v Lalla Debe , 18 W R , 200 (1872)

(6) Ishan Chunder . Bent Madhub, 24 C 75-77 (1896) (7) Dinen fronath Sannial v. Ram Kumar Ghose.

7 C., 107, 118, a c, 8 I A, 65, 10 C L. R, 281 (1880), Erimati Anundmayi v Dhanendra Chandra, 8 B. L. R. (P. C.), 122, 127 (1871)

(8) Ib. All that is sold and bought at an execution-sale is the right, title and interest of the judgment-debtor with all its defects , Derab Ally v Abdool Izeez, 5 I A., 116, 125 (1878), followed m Sundara Gopalan v Tentatavarada Ayyangar, 17 M., 228 (1893) the creditor takes the property subject to all equities which would affect it in the debtor's hands, Megn Hansra, & Ramis Josta, 8 Born H C R , 169, 174, 175 (1871) Sobhag Chand v Bhaichand, 6 B., 193, 202 (1892). as to the different means available to purchasers of investigating title in the respective cases of private and execution-sales, see Durab Ally v Abdool Azeez, surra, 125 See also Asshan Lall v Ganga Ram 13 A 28 (1890), Bashs Chunder v. Enayet Als, 20 C., 236, 239 (1892) Bapun Balal v Satyabhamabas 6 B , 490 (1882)

(9) Raja Enayet v Giridhari Lal, 2 B I., R. (P C). 75 78 (1869), explained in Solitag Chand Bhaichand, 6 B, 193, 205 (1882), and see Kishna Lal v Ganga Ram, supra

(10) Dinendronath Sannial v. Ramkumar Ghore, supra, see also Srimati Anandmays v Dhanendra ( handra, 8 B L. R (P C ), 122, 127 (1871) 14 W 1 A, 101, explained in Sobhag Chand v. Bhaichand, 6 B., 193, 205 (1882), Must. Imrit. Lalla Debee 19 W R., 200 (1872), Lale Melii . Kashibas 10 B., 400, 405 (1886), Lala Parbhu . Mulne 14 C , 401, 413 (1887) , Bashs Chunder v Enayet 11s, 20 C , 236, 239 (1892) , in the case of Gour Sundar v Hem Chunder, 16 C . 355 (189). it was held that a purchaser at a public sale in execution of a decree is not, but a purchaser at a private sale is, the representative of the judgmentdecisions only show that the rights of an execution-purchaser are in some resnects different from those at a private sale. They do not afford any basis for the aforementioned broad proposition deduced from them (1) It is true that an execution-purchaser makes his purchase not from the judgment-debtor and often against his wish, and he is not bound by some of the acts of the judgment-debtor such as alienations made by the latter to defeat the decree, but that does not show that his rights are not derived from the judgment-debtor. or that he is not the representative in interest of the judgment-debtor in any sense or for any purpose Even a purchaser at a private sale is not bound by any prior alienation made by the vendor to defraud him, but that does not show that such purchaser is not a representative in interest of the vendor. Because the rights of an execution-purchaser and a purchaser at a private sale are In some respects different, it does not follow that the execution-purchaser is not to be regarded as a representative in interest of the judgment-debtor even in those respects in which, and for those purposes for which, his rights are not higher than those of the judgment-debtor whose right, title and interest he has purchased (2) In the previous edition of this work it was pointed out in respect of admissions made by a judgment-debtor prior to attachment that in so far as the purchaser acquires only the title of the debtor, he should acquire it as qualified by the latter's admissions, though certain decisions of the Calcutta High Court would appear to have held otherwise The view thus taken received support from some of the earlier cases. (3) and has since been confirmed by recent decisions of the Privy Council(4) and the Calcutta High Court (5) The Judicial Committee have held that the equitable principle of estoppel laid down in the case of Ram Coomar Koondoo v. Macqueen. (6) which applies to any person, is equally binding on the purchaser of his right, title and interest at a sale in execution of a decree (7) If such a purchaser may he estapped he may a fortion be affected by the admissions of the sudgment-debtor whose interest he has purchased. The result of the cases would therefore appear to be that a purchaser at an ordinary execution-sale is in privity with, and the representative in interest of the judgment-debtor within the meaning of the twenty-first section, post, so as to be affected by the latter's admissions Prior to the last-mentioned decision of the Privy Council it had been held that, where the execution-purchaser is himself an actual party to the admission, it may, so far as it can be considered as his, be used as evidence against him ,(8) and that a mortgagee differed from a debter, followed in Janie Present v. Uljat Ali, 18. April (1984), a Unit descented from in Islanc Robert der v. Eres Meiland, 21. C., 62 (1995), as to the meaning of the terms "representative" and Island Aureus v. Joy Assert, 16. A. 494, 52 (1994), John Chauder v. Ban, 19. April (1994), and s. 21. poul Section 19. April (1994), and s. 21. poul Section 19. April (1994), and s. 21. poul Section 19. April (1994), and s. 21. poul (1994), and s. 21. poul (1994), and s. 21. poul (1994), artered to in Resport Marque, 15. B., 290 (1994); referred to in Resport Marque, Y. Jahadent, 16. B., 22 (1994)

<sup>(1)</sup> Islam Chander v. Ben Medhab, 23 C. 7 d. (1999), the case of Lada Parkha v. Myler, supra, is based on an erron-rous interpretation of the Prity Council decisions cited, supra, and is followed by Leath Chander v. Engyel Mi, supra. See 2d. et al. 77; approved in Galaxie Mal v. Medha Rim, F. B. 1 All, E. J. 65 (1994).

<sup>(2) 15., 75, 76,</sup>

F (3) Unaparena Passec v. Nofer Podder, 12 W 11, 148 (1974). (The purchaser at a sale in execution of a decree is the "ripe-entative in interest" of the judgment-debte within the meaning of the Eudence Act (1 of 1872), a 21] referred to an Aukaha Livi Gappa Ram, 12A, 2B, 31 (1890). Moved larit's Lella Debte (1872), supra, "atthe utnost the statements would be nothing most than evidence, certainly they will not conclude him," per Court, C. J.

<sup>(4)</sup> Mahomed Mazuffer v Kinhors Mehun, 22 C., 969 (1895), s. c., 22 I. A., 129., I.C. W. N., 38, (5) Ishan Chunder v Bens Madhub, 24 C., 62

<sup>(5)</sup> Islan Chundre v Bens Madhub, 24 C , 6.
(1876)

<sup>(6)</sup> L. R. J. A. Sup. Vol. 40, 43; s. c. 11 B L. R. 46; 18 W. R. 166.

<sup>(7)</sup> Mahomed Mozuffer v. Kinhors Michan, 22 C., 909, 919 (1895); Ishan Chunder v. Bens Madhub, 21 C., 62, 77 (1896)

<sup>(8)</sup> Musst. Imrat v. Latta Debec, 18 W. R., 200 (1872)

simple money-creditor in that he derives his title directly from the mortgagor, and is bound by his previous conduct in respect of the property mortgaged (1) therefore, a purchase by a mortgagee at a sale in execution of a decree upon his mortgage, of the right, title and interest of the mortgagor, who has been estopped from asserting a title to the property as against certain parties, does not place such mortgagee in a better position as regards the estoppel, which, notwithstanding the purchase is binding upon him (2) It has also been held by the Madras High Court(3) that it was a well-known principle that a purchaser at a Court-sale represents the judgmentdebter to the extent of such right, title and interest as he had in the property purchased at the date of the sale and represents the execution-creditor in so far as he had a right, to bring such right, title and interest to sale in satisfaction of his decree, and that when the plea of estoppel is available to a decree-holder, it is likewise available to the purchaser at the execution-sale as his representative or as one claiming under him. It has, however, also been held that a Courtsale cannot by itself be taken to create an estoppel either in favour of or against a Court-purchaser as against or in favour of the person whose right, title and interest, the Court-purchaser buys from the Court, because the Court-purchaser derives his title from proceedings, which are entirely invitum as regards the judgment-debtor.(4) And in a recent case where property purchased in execution of a money decree was subject to a mortgage, but not a mortgage executed by the judgment-debtor, although he would have been estopped from denving hability under the mortgage on account of his conduct in the mortgage-transaction, it was held by the Calcutta High Court that the purchaser was bound equally with the judgment-debtor masmuch as the right, title and interest of the latter had passed to him and his purchase was therefore subject to the mortgage. (5)

A man may bind himself by an admission, but he cannot bind by his admission those who do not claim under him, but who before the admission had acquired a right.(6) But part payment of the mortgage debt by the mortgagor. and appearing in his handwriting, will give a fresh start of limitation to the mortgagee, even as against a person who had purchased a portion of such mortgaged property prior to such payment.(7)

Statements whether made by parties interested, (8) or by persons from Theadmin whom the parties to the suit have derived their interest, (9) are admissions sions mus only if they are made during the continuance of the interest of the persons be made during the making the statement (10) It would be manifestly unjust that a person, who continuan of the has parted with his interest in property, should be empowered to divest the interest. right of another claiming under him, by any statement which he may choose to make (11) And so admissions made by a debtor (whose property has been sold) subsequently to such sale are not evidence against the purchaser of the property.(12) "A statement relating to property, made by a person when

(1) Lala Parthu v. Wulne, supra, at p. 413

(3) Krishnabhupati Dovu v likrama Docu,

18 M , 13, 18 (1894)

and Ganesh v Purshottam (1908), 33 B., 311.

(6) Mowatt v. Castle Steel and Iron Works Co., 14 Ch D , 58, 63

(7) Dom: Lat Sahu v Roshan Dubry, 11 C W. N . 107 : Krishna Chandra Saha v Bhairab Chandra Saha, 9 C. W. V., 868. 32 C., 1077

(b) S 18, cl. (1), ante (9) S 18, cL (2), ante

(10) S 18 aute, Taylor, Ev., §§ 794, 594, 599

(11) Ihr v Weller, I A. & E., 740, Khenum h uree v Gour Chunder, 5 W. R., 269 (1866), Taybr, Ev . § 794

(12) Khenum Kurce v. Gour Chander, supra.

<sup>(2)</sup> Poreshnath Mookerpee v Anathnath Deb, 9 C., 265 (1882), 9 J A., 147, reported in lower Court sah nom , Anathnath Deb v Bushtu Chunder, 4 C., 783, see also Austors Mohun v. Mahomed Moraffer, 18 C . 188, 198 (1890) . e c . m appeal to Privy Council, 22 C , 909 (1895)

<sup>(4)</sup> Gojanam v Nilo, 6 Born, L. R., 864 (1904). (5) Prayag Rag v Sidhu Prased Tewars (1908). 35 C., 877; and as to the estoppel, see Sarat Chandra Dry v. Gopal Chandra Laka (1892), 20 C., 296 ; Porter v. Incell (1905), 10 C. W. N., 313 ;

in possestion of that property may be evidence against himself and all persons deriving the property from him after the statement; but a statement made by a former owner that he had conveyed to a particular person, could not possibly be evidence against third persons. If it were so, A might sell and convey to B, and afterwards declare that he had sold and conveyed to C and C might use the statement as evidence in a suit brought by him to turn B out of possession If such evidence were admissible no man's property would be safe."(1) As for partners, by the very act of association each is constituted the Agent of the others and of the firm for all purposes within the scope of the partnership concern, and his acts and declarations hand his co-partners and the firm, unless he has in fact no authority to act for the firm in the particular matter, and the person with whom he is dealing either knows that he has no authority or does not know or believe him to be a partner (2) But an admission made by a partner before the partnership is not evulence against his co-partner (3) After dissolution of a partnership the subsequent acts of the individual members are binding on themselves alone. except so far as they may be acts necessary to wind up the affairs of the partnership or to complete transactions begun, but unfinished at the time of the dissolution (4) Declarations and admissions made after the dissolution relating to the previous business of the firm are admissible against all the partners interested in the transaction (5) Bankruptcy, (6) or death will sever the joint-interest, therefore, in the latter case, the admissions of the survivors will not bind the estate of the deceased (7) nor conversely will those of his representatives bind the survivors (8) So, also, the declaration of a bankrupt, though good evidence to charge his estate with debt. if made before his bankruptcy is no admissible at all if it were made afterwards.(9) This countable doctrine applies to the cases of vendor and vendee, granter and grantee, and generally, to all cases of rights acquired, in good faith, previous to the time of making the admission in question (10)

To be admissible the declarations must qualify or affect the title of the predecessor and not relate to independent matters. The statement must be one which directly affects the person's interest in the property itself, a mere statement against his interest in other respects, as, for instance, that he is in delit, whence it might be inferred that he would be likely to part with or charge his property, does not come within this rule. (II) It may further be added that it is not sufficient that the interest be subsequent in point of time; it must (as the words of the section point out) have been derived from the person who made the statement sought to be used as an admission. (12).

Proof of admissions

These admissions by third persons, as they derive their legal force from the relation of the party making them to the property in question, may be proved by any witness who heard them, without calling the party by whom they were made. The question is, whether he made the admission, and not merely whether the fact is as he admitted it to be. Its truth, where the admission is no conclusive,—and it seldom is so,—may be controverted by other restimony, and even by calling the party himself, but it is not <sup>(1)</sup> Per cuesam in Clarle v. Bindaban Chunder,

W. R., F. B., 20 (1662); a. c., Marshall, 75 (2) Taylor, 598.

<sup>(3)</sup> Tunles v. Etans, 2 Doub, & L., 747, Call v. Howard, 3 Stark., 3

<sup>(4)</sup> Taylor, 3<sup>res</sup>
(5) Pritharl v Draper (1830), 1 Russ, & My,

<sup>(5)</sup> fore B'almorrissons, 35 N. 11 (Eng.), 337

Alline v. Tredjold, 2 B A C , 23
 Slater v. Lawren, 1 B & Ad , 376

<sup>(9)</sup> Bateman v Badey, 5 T R , 513

<sup>(10)</sup> Taylor, Ev., § 794, and cases there cited.
(11) Browthomp v. Parry, 1 it & M., 89, Wills,
Ev., 122; Code v. Leakom, 3 Er., 193; Taylor,
Iv., § 792.

<sup>(12)</sup> Field Fv , 129, + 19, cl (2), unte

[s. 20.]

necessary to produce him for his declarations, when admissible at all, will be received as original evidence, and not as hearsay.(1)

Statements by strangers to a proceeding are not generally relevant as Admissions against the parties, (2) but in some cases, the admissions of third persons, by strangers to the suit, are receivable. (3) "These exceptions to the general gors. rule arise when the issue is substantially upon the mutual rights of such persons at a particular time; in which cases the practice is to let in such evidence, in general, as would be legally admissible in an action between the parties themselves. Thus the admissions of a bankrupt made before the act of bankruptcy, are receivable, in proof of the petitioning-creditor's debt ,(4), but if made after the act of bankruptcy, though admissible against himself, (5) they cannot furnish evidence against the trustee, because of the intervening rights of creditors, and the danger of fraud "(6) So his answers on public examination are inadmissible even in subsequent stages of the same bankruptcy against all parties other than himself.(7) In actions against sheriffs for not executing process against debtors, statements of the debtor admitting his debt to be due to the execution-creditor are relevant as against the sheriff.(8) The admissions of a person whose position in relation to property in suit it is necessary for one party to prove against another, are in the nature of original evidence, and not hearsay, though such person is alive . and has not been cited as a witness.(9)

"The admissions of a third person are also receivable in evidence against Referees.

the party who has expressly referred another to him for information in regard to an uncertain or disputed matter. In such cases the party is bound by the declarations of the party referred to in the same manner, and to the same extent, as if they were made by himself."(10) Thus in an action against executors, the defendants having written to the plaintiff that if she wished for further information as to the assets it could be obtained from a certain merchant—the replies of the merchant were held receivable against the executors (11) In the application of this principle, it matters not whether the question referred to be one of law or of fact, whether the person to whom reference is made, have or have not any peculiar knowledge on the subject; or whether the statements of the referee be adduced in evidence in an action on contract, or in an action for tort,"(12) Whether the answer of

<sup>(1)</sup> Taylor, Et , § 793

<sup>(2)</sup> Steph Dig., Art 18., Coole v Braham, 3 Fr. 183, Taylor, Ex., § 740, Barough v. Il hite, 4 B & C . 328

<sup>(3)</sup> Taylor, Et . $ 759 , see s 19, ante

<sup>(4)</sup> See Coole v Braham, 3 Ex., 185 (5) Jarnett v Leonard, 2 M & S , 263 , in action by the trustees of hankrupts an admission by the bankrupt of the retitioning-creditor's debt is deemed to be relevant against the defendants ,

Meph. Dig , Art. 18 (b) Taylor, Ft , § 759, and cases there cited, are also Fx parte Fdwards, He Tollemache, 14 O B D , 415 , Fx parte Revell, Re Tollemache, 13 Q P D.720

<sup>(7)</sup> Re Brunner, 19 Q P D 572 (4) Steph Dig Art 14. Kempland v Vac

caulen, Peake, 95, Halliame v. Beulges, 2 Stark . 42, as to admissions of an under-sheriff or builiff against the sheriff, see Snowball v Gundricke, 4

B. A. Ad., 541., Jacobs v. Humphrey, 2 C. & M. 413; Scott v Marshall, 2 C & J , 238 , North v. W, LE

Wiles, 1 Camp., 389, I'dwards on Execution,

<sup>(9)</sup> Ali Moidin v Flayackanidathil, 5 M., 239

<sup>(10)</sup> Taylor, Ev , § 760 see s 20, ante , Roscoe, N P Ev., 69 Steph Ing Art 19, this comes very near to the case of arbitration , 16 , note xiii (11) Williams v Innes, 1 Camp , 364 , see also Daniel v Pett. I Camp , 366n Pea Ad Cas , 238 . as to the applicability of the rule in criminal cases, see R v Mallory, 15 Cox, 458 fthe accused told a constable that his wife would make out a list of certain property, a list afterwards made out by her and handed to the constable in the husband's presence was held evidence against the latter. Coleradge, C. J., however, expressly refrained from giving an opinion upon the question if the prisoner had been absent; As to reference by accused to examination of others taken in his presence see Russ (r, 457, note (E)

<sup>(12)</sup> Taylor, Ft , $ 761, and cases there cited.

a person the referred to is conclusive against the party is, in England, a matter of some doubt.(1) They will not be so conclusive under this Act unless the admission operates as an estoppel.(2) To render the declarations of a person referred to equivalent to a party's own admission, it is not necessary that the reference should have been made by express words; -but it will suffice if the party by his conduct has tactily evinced an intention to rely on the statements as correct. Therefore, where a party on being questioned by means of an interpreter, gave his answers through the same medium, it was held that the language of the interpreter should be considered as that of the party; and that, consequently, it might be proved by any person who heard it, without calling the interpreter immell.(2)

On the same principle(3) (though as a general rule, the affidavits, depositions or trea eoce statements of a party's untresses are not receivable against him in subsequent proceedings),(4) documents or testimony which a party has expressly caused to be made, or knowingly used as true, in a judicial proceeding, for the purpose of proving a particular fact, are evidence against him in subsequent proceedings to prove the same fact, even on behalf of strangers,(5)

Proof of admissions against persons making them and by or on their behalf.

- 21. Admissions are relevant, and may be proved as against the person who makes them, or his representative in interest; but they cannot be proved by or on behalf of the person who makes them, or by his representative in interest, except(6) in the following cases:—
  - (1) An admission may be proved by, or on behalf of, the person making it, when it is of such a nature that, if the person making it were dead, it would be relevant as between third persons under section 32.
  - (2) An admission may be proved by, or on behalf of, the person making it, when it consists of a statement of the existence of any state of mind or body, relevant or in issue, made at or about the time when such state of mind or body existed, and is accompanied by conduct rendering its falsehood improbable.
  - (3) An admission may be proved by, or on behalf of, the person making it, if it is relevant otherwise than as an admission.

<sup>(1)</sup> v. s. 31, post.

<sup>(2)</sup> Taylor, Fr , § 763; Fabrigas v. Mostyn.

<sup>20</sup> How, St. Tr., 122, 123
(3) The following class of cases are explained in Rollon v. Rullin, 2 Exch. 645, 675, as instances of admissions by conduct; see Richards v. Morgen, R. & S. 641, 657, 658, in which the grounds upon which such evidence is admitted is considered.

<sup>(4)</sup> feardage v Meult, 10 A & E., 464 : Ericlel

v Halse, 7 A & E., 454, Richards v. Morgan, supra

<sup>(5)</sup> Brickell v. Huler, supra, Gardner v. Moull, supra; Bodeau v. Rutin, supra, Bicharde v. Morgan, supra, Prichard v. Bogshow, 20 L. J., C. P., 161; 11 C. B. 459; White v. Dowling, 8 Ir L. R., 123; Taylor Lv., § 759, 761.

<sup>(6)</sup> Miller v. Baba Madho, 19 1, 76 (1896);

A. C. 23 L. A., 105

Illustrations.

- (a) The question between A and B is, whether a certain deed is or is not forged. A affirms that it is genuine. B that it is forged.
  - .1 may prove a statement by B that the deed is genuine, and B may prove a statement by .1 that the deed is forged: but .1 cannot prove a statement by himself that the deed is genuine, nor .an B prove a statement by himself that the deed is forged.
  - (b) A, the captain of a ship, is tried for casting her away.

Evidence is given to show that the ship was taken out of her proper course.

- A produces a book kept by him in the ordinary course of his business, showing observations alleged to have been taken by him from day to day, and indicating that the ship was not taken out of her proper course. A may prove these statements, because they would be admissible between third parties, if he were dead, under section 32 clause (2).
- (c) A is accused of a crime committed by him at Calcutta.
  - He produces a letter written by himself, and dated at Lahore on that day, and bearing the Lahore post-mark of that day.
  - The statement in the date of the letter is admissible, because, if 4 were dead, it would be admissible under section 32, clause (2).
- (d) A is accused of receiving stolen goods knowing them to be stolen.
  - He offers to prove that he refused to sell them below their value. A may prove these statements, though they are admissions, because they are explanatory of conduct influenced by facts in issue.
- (e) A is accused of fraudulently having in his possession counterfeit coin which he knew to be counterfeit
  - He offers to prove that he asked a shiful person to examine the coin, as he doubted whether it was counterfest or not, and that that person did examine it and told him it was genume.
  - A may prove these facts for the reasons stated in the last preceding allustration.

Principle.—This section is an affirmance of the well-known principle that a party's admissions are only evidence against himself and those claiming through him and not against strangers, and of the rule of law with regard to self-regarding evidence, that when in the self-serring form, it is not in general receivable, which is itself a branch of the general rule that a man shall not be allowed to make evidence for himself (1). Not only would it be manifestly unsafe to allow a person to make admissions in his own favour which should affect his adversary, (2) but also such evidence has, if any, but a very shight and remote probative force. (3) With regard to the exceptions to this general rule, see the notes to this section and thirty-second section, post.

testify, but his subsequent assertions add nothing to what he has to say. If, on the other hand, A had said, H does not one one appriling, this is a fact of which B might make use and which might be decisare of the case. "Steph Drg., Introd. 184, 185, Norton, Er., 151. See Best, Er., a 519 Histe of pires a double example showing how the same statement may be used against, but not for the interest of the party making it.

<sup>(1)</sup> Best, Ev., § 519. Norton, Ev., 151, and p. 244, notes (2), (3) & (4), post

<sup>(2) 16 ,</sup> v ante, p 209.

<sup>(3) &</sup>quot;The reason of the rule is obvious. If A says, "B owes me money," the mere fact that he says so, does not even tend to prove the debt. If the statement has any value at all, it must be derived from some fact which here beyond it for instance, A's recollection of his having lent the money. To that fact, of course, A can

s. 17 ("Admission.")
s. 3 ("Reletant.")
s. 3 ("Reletant.")
s. 3 ("Proof.")
s. 3 ("Proof.")
s. 4 (States of snind or body.)
s. 5 (States of snind or body.)

COMMENTARY

As against the person who makes them

"As against the person who makes them " means " as against the person by or on whose hehalf they are made "(1) Thus if admissions are made by a referee they would not ordinarily be relevant against him as "the person who makes them." but against the referor on whose behalf and as whose agent they The expression " person who makes them " must, therefore, mean the person who makes them either personally of through others by whose admission he is bound. With the exceptions mentioned in the notes to the preceding sections, the rule is absolute that an admission can only be read against the party making it and that party's representatives in interest (2) It is a nellestablished rule of law, that estoppels bind parties and privies, not strangers,(3) and the same rule applies to all admissions and not to estemple only (4) And therefore evidence of an admission out of Court by an arbitrator that he made his award improperly, as, for example, by collusion or in consequence of a bribe. is not admissible against a party to the proceedings in support of an application to set aside the award (5) The principle upon which the rule rests that the admissions can only be proved as against the party has been already considered. and in accordance with this rule it has been held that where the accounts of a mortgagee who has been in possession are being taken, his income-tax papers are madmissible as evidence in his favour, though they may be used against him.(6) Notwithstanding the provisions of this section and the thirty-second section post, road-ress returns cannot, under a 95 of the Road Cess Act, be used as evidence in favour of the person submitting them (7) A road-cess return, signed by one of the plaintiff's vendors and the defendant, was filed by the plaintiff's vendors. It consisted of two parts in one of which the joint properties of the plaintiff's vendors and the defendant were set out, and in the other the properties belonging to the defendant alone were mentioned. In a suit by the plaintiff for some lands as being the joint property of his vendors and the defendant, the latter put in the road-cess return in order to disprove plaintiff's allegation, by showing that the lands were included in the second The lower Courts had relied on this return It was contended in appeal that it was madmissible under s. 95 of the Road Cess Act, being evidence in favour of the principal defendant. It was however held that the road-cess return was evidence against the plaintiff claiming through his vendor, and it was none the less evidence merely because by admitting it as evidence against the element of the harring or idence in favour of the defendant 100

No definition has been given of this somewhat vague expression.(1) "Repre-Whatever scope may be given to these words, it is apprehended that they will, sentative generally speaking, include most of the privies in blood, law, or estate of which mention has been already made in the notes to sections 17-20, ante-

Though admissions may be proved against the party making them, it is always open to the maker to show that the statements were mistaken or untrue. except in the single case in which they operate as estoppels.(2)

The section proceeds to specify those cases in which an exception is per- Exception mitted to the general rule and admissions in a person's own interest are admissible in evidence. The first clause is considered under the thirty-second section, post, which must be read in conjunction with it. Illusts (b) and (c) refer to this clause.

"The second clause has received no illustration in the Act, probably because it has already been sufficiently treated of in the fourteenth section (ante) under the head of 'facts,' showing the existence of any state of bodily feeling, and in illusts (k), (l) and (m) thereto, which, together with the notes thereon, should be here consulted. The fourteenth section merely declared that such facts are relevant. The present clause shows that such facts or statements may be proved on behalf of the person making them, notwithstanding the general rule that persons cannot make evidence for themselves by what they choose to say."(3)

The third clause provides that a fact which is relevant under the sixth section, ante, or some one of the sections following it shall not be rejected simply because it assumes the form of an admission. (4) Illusts, (d) and (e) refer to this clause. "Care must likewise be taken not to confound self-serving evidence with res gestar. The language of a party accompanying an act which is evidence in itself, may form part of the res gesta and be receivable as such." (5)

It was held in the undermentioned(6) case in which the second and the fourth defendants sold a jote to the first defendant and subsequently colluded with the plaintiff and denied a partition which had taken place as well as the sale, that the statements previously made by them which went to show that there had been a partition and they had changed their attitude were admissible under the third clause of this section and the second clause of the eleventh section of this Act

In a suit against an insolvent and the Official Assignee for sale of mortgaged property, the onus is on the plaintiff to prove that title-deeds in his possession after the insolvency were deposited with him as security before the adjudication. Evidence of admissions by him at an earlier date than the adjudication to the effect that the deeds were then in his possession are madmissible in his favour under this section, not being within any of the exceptions to madmissibility named in this section. An erroneous omission to object to such evidence does not make it admissible.(7) Any statement, as to rent payable for a holding, made by a person in a sale-certificate, which was obtained by him

<sup>(1)</sup> See remarks in Ishan Chunder . Bens Madдаь, 24 °С, 62, 72 (1996). Спиориотна Dasse v. Nufur Poddar, 21 W R , 148 (1674), as to the meaning of the terms representative" and "legal representative, ' see Eadri Naraia v Jas Kishen, 16 1, 453, 457 (1894), https://s.Judicial Inctionary, 674 (1890), Chathalelan v Goranda Anrumear, 17 M. 146 (1893), and aute, notes to ea. 17-20 "Sale in execution "

<sup>(2)</sup> See se. 31-113, post.

<sup>(3)</sup> Norton, Ev , 152

<sup>(4)</sup> Ib . Field. Ev. 133 . see Fellower v Walliamson, M & M . 300 , v ante, es. 8 and 14 and sides thereto

<sup>(5)</sup> Best, Ev., § 520

<sup>(6)</sup> Bill Guanassa v. Musemet McJaralunneres, 2 C W. N., 91 (1897).

<sup>(7)</sup> Miller v Babu Madko, 19 A . 76 (1896); s. c., 23 J A., 106.

as purchaser of the holding, at a sale in execution of a decree against the former tenant, being in the nature of an admission, cannot be used as evidence on his behalf, as such a statement does not come within the exceptions to this section (1)

Confessions

This section is subject to the special provisions relating to confessions enacted in the twenty-fourth, twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth sections.(2)

When oral admissions as to contents of documents are relevant.

22. Oral admissions as to the contents of a document are not relevant, unless and until the party proposing to prove them shows that he is entitled to give secondary evidence of the contents of such document under the rules hereinafter contained, or unless the genuineness of a document produced is in question.

Principle -The general rule is that the contents of a written instrument. which is capable of being produced, must be proved by the instrument itself and not by parol evidence.(3) An exception to this rule prohibiting the substitution of oral testimony for the document itself exists according to English law in favour of the parol admissions of a party. The admissions being primary evidence against a party, and those claiming under him, are receivable to prove the contents of documents without notice to produce, or accounting for the absence of, the originals (4) The principle upon which such evidence is receivable has been stated to be that what a party himself admits to be true, may reasonably be presumed to be so, and that therefore such evidence is not open to the same objection which belongs to parol evidence from other sources. when the written evidence might have been produced (5) But the correctness of this reasoning and of the decisions founded upon it has been questioned, and the dangerous consequences which are hable to follow on the reception of such evidence have been pointed out.(6) For though what a party himself admits may fairly be presumed to be true, there is no such presumption in favour of the truthfulness of the evidence by which such admission must be proved (7)

- s. 17 (" Admission.")
- s. 3 (" Document.")
  s. 3 (" Relevant")
- s. 58 (Facts admitted)
- s. G3 (" Secondary Evylence.")
- ss 65, 66 (Rules as to giving of secondary evidence.)
- v. 65, cl. (b) (Wretten admissions as to content of documents.)

- 340 (1903) (2) R + Bhairnb Chunder, 2 C. W N. 702
- (3) Taylor, Fr , $396; as 59, 64, 91, post
- (4) Taylor, Ev., § 410, and cases there cited., Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 63; Hest, Ev., §§ 525, 526, and see Mutularuppa Kaundan v. Rama Pillat. 3 Mad. H. C. R., 158, 100 (1866)
- (5) Matterie v. Posley, 6 M & W., 669, per Parke, B
- (6) See observations of Pennefather, C. J., in Lawles v. Quade, 8 ir Law R., 385, cited vi., § 412, and in Pett. Ev. 134. Cunningham, Fr., 130; the views there expressed, have been adopted in the present section which afters the law laid down in Neuvers v. Pedty, sopra., Norton, Fr., 152.

(7) 'According to Statterie v. Pooley, what A states as to what B, a party, has said respecting the contents of a document which B has seen is admissible , whilst what A states, respecting a document which he himself has seen, is not admissible although in the latter case, the chance of error is single, in the former, double," per Reporter in 9 Com. B , 501, n c , Darby v. Ousley, 1 H. & N . 1: as to oral testimons by the party to the same effect, ore Farrow v. Blomfield, 1 F. & F., 653: Henman v. Lester, 12 ( B N. S., 781; as to the application of the rule in criminal cases, see Roscoc. Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 6, and as to the case first cited see Chandra Kunuar v Chanes Narpal Singh. P. C. (1906), 29 A . 181 , L. R., 34 J. A . 27 . Heant v. R rices, 9 B. & C., 577.

<sup>(1)</sup> Raman Pershad v. Mahanth Adaiya, 31 ( 380 (1903)

Taylor, Ev., §§ 410—414; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 63 Field, Ev., 134; Cunningham, Ev., 137, Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 6; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 196, 480; Powell, Ev., 345; Norton, Ev., 152; Best, Ev., §§ 625, 526.

COMMENTARY.

When the existence, condition, or contents of the original document have Contents of been proved to be admitted in scriting by the person against whom it is proved documents or by his representative in interest, such written admission is admissible; (1) but oral admissions, except in the cases abovementioned, are excluded by the present section. The circumstances under which a party is entitled to give secondary evidence of a document are laid down in sections 65, 66, post. "Where the question is, not what are the contents of a document, but whether the document itself is genuine, that is, in the handwriting of the party, whose writing or signature it is alleged to be, evidence may, of course, be given to prove or disprove the forgery. This may be effected in a variety of ways; by the party, sections 21, 70; by an attesting witness, section 68; by the oath of witnesses acquainted with the handwriting; by experts, section 45, or by comparison of handwriting, section 73," " Or unless the genuineness of a document produced is in question." "The effect of the last clause of this section seems to be, that if such a document is produced, the admissions of the parties to it that it is or is not genuine [even though such admissions involve a statement of the contents of a document] may be received."(2) This section does not, it is apprehended, exclude admissions which the parties agree to make at the trial, in which case it becomes unnecessary to prove the fact so admitted (3)

23. In Civil cases(4) no admission is relevant if it is made Admissions either upon an express condition that evidence of it is not to be when relegiven,(5) or under circumstances from which the Court can vanit infer that the parties agreed together(6) that evidence of it should not be given.(7)

Explanation.—Nothing in this section shall be taken to exempt any barrister, pleader, attorney, or vakil from giving evidence of any matter of which he may be compelled to give evidence under section 126.(8)

Principle.—"Confidential overtures of pacification and any other offers or propositions between litigating parties, expressly or impliedly made vitibout prejudice(9) are excluded on grounds of public policy. For

<sup>(1)</sup> S 65, cl. (b), post. (2) Norton, Ev. 153

<sup>(3)</sup> S. 58, post, Cunningham, Ev., 136; cf. Sheikh Ibrahim v. Parrata, S Bom H. C. R., A. C. J. 163 (1871)

<sup>(4)</sup> The protection gives by this section does not extend to criminal cases, see a 29, post As to arbitration, see p. 105, gate

<sup>(5)</sup> Cory v. Bretton, 4 C. & P , 462

<sup>(6)</sup> This section, as drafted in the original Bill contained "infer that it was the intention of the parties that" for "infer that the parties agree together that."

<sup>(7)</sup> Padforl v. Forrester, 3 M. & G., 903, 918; Steph Ing., Art. 20, adds, "or sj st was made under dures." Storkfielt v. De Tastel, 4 Camp. 11, per Lord Ellenborough; see Taylor, Ev., 784.

<sup>(8)</sup> Namely, the matters mentioned in provisos (1) and (2) to a. 126, post; see notes to vaso (i) and (2) to a 120, point see most to that section.

(9) In re Amer Streams Co., L. R., 6 Ch., 822; 877, per James, L. J., "does not "without prepared mean, thinkle you an office you for the control of the con without this protective rule it would often be difficult to take any steps towards an amicable compromise or adjustment; and, as Lord Mansfield has observed, all men must be permitted to buy their peace without prejudice to them should the offer not succeed, such offers being made to stop litigation, without regard to the question whether anything is due or not." (1) It is most important that the door should not be shirt against compromises. (2) When a man offers to compromise a claim, he does not thereby necessarily admit it, but simply agrees to pay so much to be rid of the action.

```
s. 17 (" Admission.' )
```

- ~ 3 (" Evidence.")
- 126 (Professional Communications.)

Steph. Dig. Art. 20. Taylor. Ev., §§ 774, 795—797, 798, 799; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 63; Pauell, Ev., 303; Philhips, Ev., 320, 328, Cordery's Law relating to Solicitors, 2nd Ed. 83.

COMMENTARY

Admissions without prejudice

Admissions either verbal or in writing by way of compromise or during treaty are, if made under the circumstances mentioned in the section, protected-Generally, neither letters written without prejudice por replies to such letters, though not similarly guarded, can be used as evidence against the parties writing them. (3) Thus a letter marked 'without prejudice," protects subsequent (4) and even previous(5), letters in the same correspondence. Such letters, however, are only protected if bona pide written with a view to a compromise. (6) Thus a letter " without prejudice," which contains a threat against the recipient If the offer be not accepted, is admissible to move such threat. (7) So also if the admission be merely of a collateral or undifferent fact, such as the handwriting of a party, which is capable of easy proof by other means, and is not connected with the substantial ments of the cause, it will be received, even though made pending negotiations .(8) as also will offers without prejudice if the offer has been accepted (9). For it the terms proposed in such a letter are accepted, a complete contract is established and the litter, although written without prejudice, operates to alter the old state of things and to establish a new one. A contract is constituted in respect of which relief by way of damages or specific performance would be given (10). The more fact that a document is stated to have been written " without prejudice " will not exclude it. The rulwhich excludes documents marked 'without prejudice" has no application unless some person is in dispute or negotiation with another, and terms cre-

Taylor Fr., § 793, and see th., §§ 774, 796,
 795, and cases there cited, Bosser, N. P. Fr., 62,
 63, Steph Dug., Art. 29, Powell, Ex., 300, Phillips., Fr., 326

<sup>(2)</sup> Per Pouen, L. J., in Walter v. B. deler,

<sup>(3)</sup> Howeve, N. P. Es., 62: Padlick v. Forcester, 3 M. & G., 663. Hight a. v. Highton, 15 Boax., 278, 321. Walter v. Bilder, sugra.

<sup>(4)</sup> Pallek a Freezier, supra: Be Herre, 41. 4., Blay, 33. "It is not necessary to poin justice from projected at the head of except letter," A. Baller a, Baller, supra, 337. (3) Pagerk v. Harper, 26 W. R. (Figs.), 107. It is care a second letter without project was bely to protect a persions better not expressed be In "authority project" on the ground that.

the second letter was to be taken as a postsoriet to the former.

<sup>(6)</sup> Grace v. Bayaton, 21 Sol. Jour., 631, cited in Cerdery, 83. In the case of Hicker, Thompson, "Times," 19th Jun 1857, a lasyer's clerk used for breach of promise of marriage, senith to exclude his leve-letters because he had braded thers all "without prepalere."

<sup>(7)</sup> Aurte v. Spence, 35 L. T., 434

<sup>(8)</sup> Wallerlje's, Kennion, I Psp., 143, see also per Lord Kenyon, C. J., in Turner v. Radion, 2 Psp., 474

<sup>(9)</sup> Waller v. Dulaker, augus, 337; In re Liver Steamer Co., L. E., 6 Ch., 822.

<sup>(10)</sup> For Unities, L. J., in Walter v. H.d.Aer. 23 O. D. D., 335, at p. 237.

offered for the settlement of the dispute or negotiation.(1) Further, an admission without prejudice may be used against the party making it where it is made subject to a condition which has been performed by the other party. Thus in a suit on a bill of exchange, where the defendant stated in a letter to the plaintiff that he had not had notice of the dishonour of the bill, but that if the debt was accepted without costs, he would give the plaintiff a cheque for it, and the plaintiff thereupon discontinued the action on payment of costs, it was held that the plaintiff was, in a second action on the bill, entitled to use the letter in proof of waiver of notice of dishonour. The first action being discontinued before the second was begun, the conditional waiver became absolute and the letter admissible in evidence.(2) Letters without prejudice cannot, without the consent of both parties, be read on a question of costs to show willingness to settle; although the m re fact and date of such letters or negotiations, as distinguished from their contents, may sometimes be received to explain delay.(3) "Perhaps, also, an offer of compromise, the essence of which is that the party making it is willing to submit to a sacrifice, or to make a concession, (4) will be rejected, though nothing at the time was expressly said respecting its confidential character, if it clearly appears to have been made under the faith of a pending treaty, into which the party has been led by the confidence of an arrangement being effected."(5) But in the absence of any express, or strongly implied, restriction as to confidence, an offer of compromise is clearly admissible and may be material as some evidence of hability :(6) although it may not be proper to enquire into the terms offered(7) though it must still be borne in mind that such an offer may be made for the sake of purchasing peace and without any admission of hability. Much depends upon the circumstances of the case. (8) The rule does not apply to admissions made before an arbitrator; for though in this last case, the proceedings are said to be before a domestic forum, yet the parties are, at the time, contesting their rights as adversely as before any other tribunal.(9) It has, however, been held that nothing which passes between the parties to a suit in any attempt at arbitration or compromise should be allowed to effect the slightest prejudice to the ments of their case as it eventually comes to be tried before the Court. No presumption can be raised against a party to a suit from his refusal to withdraw from the determination and submit to arbitration (10)

24. A confession made by an accused person is irrelevant confession in a criminal proceeding, if the making of the confession appears inducement. to the Court to have been caused by any inducement, threat, or threat or promise, having reference to the charge against the accused want in person, proceeding from a person in authority, and sufficient, in preceeding the opinion of the Court, to give the accused person grounds which

<sup>(1)</sup> Madhacrar v. Gulabhas, 23 B. 177, 180 (1894), citing In re Daintrey; Ex parte Holt (1893). 2Q B, 116

(-) Holdsworth v Dinsdale, 19 W. R. (Fing ).

<sup>(3)</sup> Haller v Balaker, 23 Q B D . 335; ace. however, Williams v. Thomas, 31 L. J., Ch. 674

<sup>(4)</sup> Thomson v. Austen, 2 D. & 14, 361. (5) Baldridge v. Kennison, 1 Esp., 144; Taylor, Ev., § 793.

<sup>(6)</sup> Wallare v. Small, 1 M & M , 446; Watte v. Larson, id., 447 n., Nicholma v. Smith, 3 Stark. R . 129; Taylor, Ev . 1795

<sup>(7)</sup> Harding v. Jones, 1 T. & G., 135; ore also

Thomas v. Morgan, 2 C , M. & R., 496

<sup>(8)</sup> Field, Ev., 135, are also observations of Lord St. Leonards in Jorden v. Money, 5 H L C., 245 "when an attorney goes to an adverse parts with a view to a compromise, or to an action, you must always look with very great care at his evidence of what then occurred "

<sup>(9)</sup> Deed Lloyd v. Etans, 3 C. & P., 279, the admissions may be proved by the arbitrator, Gregory v. Howard, 3 Esp., 113; Taylor, Ev., $5 794, 799; Roscov, N. P. Ev., 63; as to criminating answers, ere t. 132, port.

<sup>(10)</sup> Muhabeer Singh v. Dhugo Singh, 20 W. 11. 172 (1873).

would appear to him reasonable for supposing that by making it he would gain any advantage or avoid any evil of a temporal nature in reference to the proceedings against him.

Principle.-The ground upon which confessions, like other admissions, are received, is the presumption that no person will voluntarily make a statement which is against his interest unless it be true.(1) But the force of the confession depends upon its voluntary character.(2) The object of the rule relating to the exclusion of confessions is to exclude all confessions which may have been procured by the prisoner being led to suppose that it will be better for him to admit himself to be guilty of an offence which he really never committed (3) There is a danger that the accused may be led to criminate himself falsely. The principle upon which the confession is excluded. is that, it is under certain conditions testimonially untrustworthy.(4) Moreover, the admission of such evidence would naturally lead the agents of the police while seeking to obtain a character for activity and zeal, to harass and oppress prisoners, in the hope of wringing from them a reluctant confession.(5)

```
ss. 17-22 (" Admission ")
s. 3 (" Relevant.")
```

- s. 3 (" Court ")
- s. 28 (Confession after removal of impression caused by inducement.)
- s 80 (Presumption as to document purporting to be a confession.)

Steph. Dig., Arts. 21-23; Taylor, Ev., §§ 862-906; Best, Ev., §§ 551-553; 3 Russ , Cr., 440-499 ; Powell, Ev., 310-321 ; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 227-238 ; Wills, Ev., 210-216; Norton, Ev., 154-164; Cr. Pr Code, ss 163, 343; Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 34-49. A Treatise on the Admissibility of Confession and Challenge of lurors in criminal cases in England and Ireland by Henry H Joy; Wigmore, Ev., § 822, et seq.

COMMENTARY

Appears

In the first place, an important question arises as to the meaning of these words and as to the person on whom the onus - ' sion was voluntary or involuntary. The use of said.(6) seems to show that this section de

(within the definition of the third section) of the rejection of the confession such word indicating a lesser degree of probability than would be necessary if "proof" had been required. A confession may, it has been argued, appear to the Judge to have been the result of inducement on the face of it and apart from direct proof of that fact, or a Court might perhaps in a particular case fairly hesitate to say that, it was proved that the confession had been unlawfully obtained and yet might be in a position to say that such appeared to it to have been the case (7) It is, however, to be

<sup>(1)</sup> Taylor, Ev., § 863, Phillipps & Arn., I'v. 401; Best, Ev., § 524, v. ante, p. 210, note (6); Wills, Fr., 102

<sup>(2)</sup> Taylor, Ev., $$ 872, 874; see remarks in R. v. Thompson, L. R. (1893), 2 Q B. at p. 15

<sup>(3) 3</sup> I'mes Ct , 442; per Littledale, J., in R v. Court. 7 C. & P., 4vf; but in R. v. Baldry, 2 Den. C. C. 430, Lord Campbell, C. J., said : "The reason is not that the law supposes that the statement will be false, but that the prisoner has made the confession under a bias, and that, therefore, it would be better not to submit it to the pury "

But see also Lord Campbell's dictum in R. v. Scott, 1 D &. B , 47, 48, and Taylor, Ev., § 874; B. v Nabadwip Gostrams, 1 B L. R., O S., 15, 22.

<sup>25 (1863);</sup> R v. Thomas, 7 C & P , 345 (4) Wigmore, Ev., § 822

<sup>(5)</sup> Taylor, Ev. § 874

<sup>(6)</sup> R v. Baswanta, 25 B, 168 (1900); s. c. 2 Bom. L. R . 781, 785 On this and what follows. see the able article by "Lex" in 2 Bom L. E., 157, as also an article by another contributor at p 217.

<sup>(7)</sup> R. v. Basicanta, supra

Such confessions must be recorded and signed in the manner provided in section 364. The Magistrate referred to in section 164 is a Magistrate other than the Magistrate by whom the case is to be inquired into or tried (1) If the confession is made before a competent Magistrate who is making the preliminary enquiry, it is sufficient if the provisions of section 364 are complied with.(2) But a record is unnecessary when a confession is made in Court to the officer trying the case at the time of trial where the accused can be convicted on the plea of guilty (3) It is important that a Magistrate before recording the confession of an accused person then in custody of the police should ascertain how long the accused has been in custody. If there is no record of that fact the Sessions Judge, before holding the confession relevant under the twenty-fourth section, should send for the Magistrate and satisfy himself on the point, (4) The question of the admissibility of confessions, irregularly recorded, has been much simplified by the provisious of section 533 of the Criminal Procedure Code. In cases coming within that section, the Court may supplement the defective record by taking oral evidence that the accused person duly made the statement recorded, notwithstanding the provisions of section 91, post (5) If the defects m the record cannot be cured under this section, no secondary evidence can be given of a confession under section 164 (6) Section 533 will not render a confession taken under section 164 admissible where no attempt has been made to conform to the provisions of the latter section (7)

Under section 80 of this Act whenever any document is produced before any Court purporting to be a statement or confession by any prisoner or accused person taken in accordance with law and purporting to be signed by any Judge or Magistrate, the Court shall presume that the document is genuine; that any statements as to the circumstances under which it was taken (as that the confession was voluntary) purporting to be made by the person signing it, are true, and that such evidence, statement or confession was duly taken. This formal certificate is all that the law in strictness requires, and is prima facir evidence of the voluntary character of the confession. It is the duty of the Magistrate to satisfy himself that the confession is not excluded by this section.(8) It is to be feared, however, that such certificates are often not worth much as evi-

<sup>(1)</sup> E . J. Lov., 23 W R., (r., 16 (1875) In the matter of Behars Haple, 5 ( 1. R., 238 (1879) . Kriehno Moner v. R., 6 C. I. R., 289 (1850). R v. Anuntram Singh, 3 C , 954, F B (1880) . followed in E . Falub Ahan, 5 1, 253 (1893) . the provisions of a 164, however, have no application to statements taken in the course of a colice-investigation in the foun of Calcutta, R v. Nilmadhub Water, 15 C. 595 (1888), followed m R v Vegam Baban, 21 B. 495 (1896) A Deputs Magistrate should not act as Magistrate in a case in which he is himself the prosecutor, and take confessions of prisoners before himself . R. v. Boolnath Stuah, 3 W. R., Cr., 29 (1865)

<sup>(2)</sup> Krishan Monee v. R., & C. L. P., 289 (1880) . L. v. Anuntram Singh, supra; E v. Yakub Khan,

<sup>(3)</sup> In the matter of Chumman Shah, 3 C., 756

<sup>(4)</sup> E. v. Naruyan, 25 E., 543 (1901) (5) Cr. Pr. Code, a 533, this section arphes to confessions and statements recorded under both se, 164 and 364, the corresponding section of the old Code (* 346, Act X of 1872) dealt only with statements and confessions made in the course of a preliminary enquiry and did not apply to confessions recorded under a, 122 (164 of present Code) R v Ras Ratan, 10 B. H C. R., 166 (1873), consequently when a confession taken under a 122, was madmissible in evidence oral evidence was excluded by s. 91, post, ib , R v. Shriya. 1 D . 219 (1878) , R. . Manu Tamile, 4 C , 698 (1879) . contra R v. Ramanjiyya, 2 M. 5 (1878); but irregularly recorded confessions and statements under either as 164 or 426 of the present Act may either be (1) remediable under s 533 or (2) not In the case of (1), oral evidence is admissible; in the case of (2), it is admissible at any rate in the case of an irregular record under 164 (r. nest node)

<sup>(6)</sup> R. v. 1 iran, 9 M , 224 (1886); Jai Narayon

v. R. 17 C., 882 (1950). (7) R . Viran, supra ; Jai Narayan Rai v. R, supra; latter case dissented from in E. V .

<sup>1</sup> ceram Babaji, 21 B , 495, 501 (1898). (8) P. v. Narayan, 25 L., 543 (1901); R v. Judah Day 27 C. 295; a c. 4 C. W N. 129.

H. v Basuanta, supra See Circular of Bombay

dence of the absence of inducement. Assuming that a prisoner has been induced to confess, he will not unlikely assure the recording Magistrate that his confession is quite voluntary, knowing that he will leave the Magistrate's presence in the custody of the police and remain in their charge for many days to come.(1) In the case of extra-judicial confessions there is no such mima facie evidence as that afforded by the certificate. In both cases, however, there is to be considered the effect of the word "appear" in this section. This is a lready stated, does not connote strict "proof." Still, although very probably a confession may be rejected on well-grounded conjecture, there must (unless the onus lies upon the prosecution) be something before the Court on which such conjecture can rest.(2) In the first place, does the onus he upon the prosecution in all cases to prove that a confession is voluntary before it can be used in evidence? If this be the law in England, which is doubtful, it has been held that such a rule does not prevail in this country. In the absence of evidence it is not to be presumed, that a statement objected to on the ground of its having been induced by illegal pressure is inadmissible.(3) To require as the criterion of admissibility affirmative proof that a duly recorded and certified confession was free and voluntary is not consistent with the terms of this Act or with previous decisions or practice (4) If it, however, "appears" that the confession is not voluntary, it must be excluded. Unless this is disclosed by the evidence for the prosecution the onus of establishing this fact will be upon the accuseda fact which in a large number of, if not in most cases, the accused will not be in a position to establish. It is in this connection that the question of the retraction of confessions becomes of the highest importance. If a confession, which has been previously made, whether judicially or extra-judicially, is not retracted at the trial, there appears to be little or no reason why it should not be accepted without any proof being given of its voluntary character. This is, however, not so where, as is frequently the case, the confession is retracted at the trial. In a very large percentage of sessions cases the prizoners will be found to have made claborate confessions, shortly after coming into the hands of the police; not infrequently these confessions are adhered to in the com-

High Cours (Bombay Government Gazette, 1900), Part I, p 919, 2 Bom L. R., 157), requiring Magistrates before recording confessions to satisfy themselves by all means in their power, including the examination of the bodies of the accused that the confessions are voluntary. See R v. Gunesh Koormee, 4 W. R., Cr. 1 (1563), where the prisoner retracted his statement when read over to him and said that he was compelled to make it, and the Sessions Judge without making any inquiry or taking evidence upon the point, submitted the prisoner's statement to the jury as a confession; it was held that the Judge was wrong in so doing, and that he should rather have charged the jury not to accept the prisoner's statement as a confession. As regards the bessions Court, it has been held that it is not necessary for a Sessions Judge to read out to prisoners confes. sions made by them before a Magistrate and ask them if they have any objection to the reception of their confessions . R. v. Misser Sheith, 14 W. R., Cr. 9 (1870). But it appears to have been the opinion of Sir Michael Westropp in R. v. Lashinath Dinlar, 8 Rom. H. C. R., 137, 138, that not only the committing Magistrate, but also the traing Court, ought to make needful enquiries where allegations are made in a regular and proper manner to the Sessions Court that a confession before a Magistrate was impropelly induced, a procedure which was followed in the English Courts so far back as the 12th century (Policek and Martland History of Fuglish Law, Book II, pp. 636, 631) See also R v Narayan, super, s c, 3 Bonn. L. R., 1223.

(1) See remarks of Westropp, C J., in R. v. Kausnath Dinlar, 8 Bom. H. C. R., 126.

(2) R v. Basunnta, 2 Bon. L. R., 761, 765 (1900).

(3) R. v. Balkeast Pendharkar, 11 Bom. H. C. B., 137, 138 (1874), R. v. Dreda ilan, 15 B., 452, 450 (1889); R. v. Bharman Surph, 3 A., 338, 339 (1880). A prisoner alleging that a confession was unduly extorted should offer some proof of his statements to the Court.

(4) R. v. Barwania, 2. Hom. L. E., 701, 705, [1900]; s. c. v. 23. L., 185, disapproxing of R. Ealya Imple. Cr. R. 3 of 1898 (Hom. H. C.), in which Barons, J., held that a confession to be admitted at all in evidence must be proved to have been made voluntarily and not to have been caused by improper unducement.

confession and by implication of its voluntariness is required. Where a Sessions Judge came to the conclusion that the confessions must be taken to be voluntary and true, because there was no evidence of ill-treatment by the police, and the confessions had been repeated before the committing Magistrate nearly a month after they had been made and recorded, the Court said, "There is undoubtedly a great deal of force in that reasoning, but where a confession is retracted, it is, we think, the duty of a Court that is called to act upon it, especially in a case of murder, to enquire into all the material points and surrounding circumstances and satisfy itself fully that the confession cannot but he true."(I) In other cases the Court is not at liberty to act upon mere confrecture, and its rejection of a confession must be based upon the nature of the confession, the facts disclosed by the evidence for the prosecution or adduced in proof of his plea of not guilty by the accused. If from the evidence given by the prosecution it appear doubtful whether the confession was voluntary, the onus will of course he upon the Crown to affirmatively establish that the confession was voluntary and that it is admissible. If in such case this be not established, or if it appear, upon the evidence adduced by the prosecution or the accused, that the contession was not voluntary, it must be rejected under the terms of this section

Induce ment. threat promise

This and the succeeding sections, up to and including the thirtieth section. deal only with the specific form of admission known as a confession. But the preceding sections, up to and including the twenty-second section, deal with admissions generally in both criminal as well as civil cases. The twenty-first section therefore makes all confessions admissible except those which are declared to be irrelevant or which are prohibited by this and the following sections By sections 24-26 the Legislature intended to throw a safeguard around prisoners (2)

Confession by an person

It is difficult to lay down any hard-and-fast rule as to what constitutes an inducement, a term which of course includes torture. The question is one for the discretion of the Judge, and its decision will vary in each particular case (v. post). A statement is madmissible under this section only if the Court considers 't to have been made in consequence of "any inducement, threat, or promise ''(3) The relevance of the confession is to be determined by the Court, that is the Judge or the Magistrate, and not the jury.(4) "Section 24, whilst requiring the inducement to be offered by a person in authority, leaves it entirely to the Court to form its own opinion as to whether the inducement. threat, or promise was sufficient to lead the prisoner to suppose that he would derive some benefit to avoid some evil of a temporal nature by confessing "(5) It is immaterial to whom a confession, obtained by undue influence, is made. the Sessions Judge.(6)

person, e.q., the Traffic

It is also immaterial

whether the confession be made to the same person who has used undue 86 (1973).

1

(6) R. t. Museamat Luchan, 5 N.W. P.,

(7) Id ; E v. Rama Birapa, 3 B , 12 (1878) :

per Sargent, C. J., see also a 28, pust.

E v Saire

11 . 334, 367 (14

<sup>(1)</sup> R. v. Imrgaya, 3 Bose L. R. 441 (1961) (2) R v. Rama Biraja, 3 B. 12, 17 (1978); per West, J. as to the construction of as, 21-26. we The Madree Law Journal, Jan and Feb., 1895, pp 12-44.

<sup>(3)</sup> R. v. Balvant Pendharlor, Il Bom. H. C. lt , 137, 134 (1474).

<sup>(4)</sup> R. v. Hannak Moure Mac CA. 199 : we R. v. No -

E v. Asphar Mi, 2 A , 280 (1879); E v. Cuer, 775 (1941). weenmal Luchan, supra : R v. Rama other, supra. B. L. B., App. 1

dence of the absence of inducement. Assuming that a prisoner has been induced to confess, he will not unlikely assure the recording Magistrate that his confession is quite voluntary, knowing that he will leave the Magistrate's presence in the custody of the police and remain in their charge for many days to come (1) In the case of extra-judicial confessions there is no such prima facie evidence as that afforded by the certificate. In both cases, however, there is to be considered the effect of the word "appear" in this section. This, as already stated, does not connote strict " proof " Still, although very probably a confession may be rejected on well-grounded conjecture, there must (unless the onus lies upon the prosecution) be something before the Court on which such conjecture can rest (2) In the first place, does the onus he upon the prosecution in all cases to prove that a confession is voluntary before it can be used in evidence " If this be the law in England, which is doubtful, it has been held that such a rule does not prevail in this country. In the absence of evidence it is not to be presumed, that a statement objected to on the ground of its having been induced by illegal pressure is inadmissible.(3) To require as the criterion of admissibility affirmative proof that a duly recorded and certified confession was free and voluntary is not consistent with the terms of this Act or with previous decisions or practice.(4) If it, however, "appears" that the confession is not voluntary, it must be excluded. Unless this is disclosed by the evidence for the prosecution the onus of establishing this fact will be upon the accuseda fact which in a large number of, if not in most cases, the accused will not be in a position to establish. It is in this connection that the question of the retraction of confessions becomes of the highest importance. If a confession, which has been previously made, whether judicially or extra-judicially, is not retracted at the trial, there appears to be little or no reason why it should not be accepted without any proof being given of its voluntary character. This is, however, not so where, as is frequently the case, the confession is retracted at the trial. In a very large percentage of sessions cases the prinoners will be found to have made elaborate confessions, shortly after coming into the hands of the police, not infrequently these confessions are adhered to in the com-

High Cours (Bombay Government Gazette, 1900), Part I, p. 919, 2 Bom L. R., 157), requiring Magnetrates before recording confessions to satisfy themselves by all means in their power, including the examination of the bodies of the accused that the confessions are voluntary. See R v Gunesh Accormer, 4 W. R., Cr. 1 (1865), where the prisoner retracted his statement when read over to him and said that he was compelled to make it, and the Sessions Judge without making any inquiry or taking evidence upon the point, submitted the prisoner's statement to the jury as a confession, it was held that the Judge was wrong in so doing, and that he should rather have charged the jury not to accept the prisoner's statement as a confession... As regards the Sessions Court, it has been held that it is not necessary for a Sections Judge to read out to prisoners confessions made by them before a Magistrate and ask them if they have any objection to the reception of their confessions : R. v. Misser Sheilh, 14 W. R., Cr., 9 (1870). But it appears to have been the opinion of Sir Michael Westropp in R v. Kashinath Dinlar, 8 Bom. H. C. H., 137, 139. that not only the commutting Magistrate, but also the trying Court, ought to make needful enquiries where allegations are made, in a regular and proper manner to the Sessions Court that a confession before a Magatrate was improperly induced, a procedure which as followed in the English Courts so far back as the 12th century (Pollock and Mattaind History of Fugilsh, 1960b, in pp. 630, 631). See also R. v. Narayan, supra. s. c. 3 Dom. L. R. 1221.

- (1) See remarks of Westropp, C J., in R v Kassinath Dinkar, 8 Bom H C. R. 126
- (2) R. v. Baswania, 2 Bom 1. R., 761, 765 (1900)
- (3) R. v. Brigean Pendharder, 11 Bom. H. C. R., 137, 138 (1874); R. v. Inda. Jina, 15 Ib, 452, 490 (1889); R. v. Bhatman Steph, 3. A, 333, 339 (1889). A prisoner allegang that a confession was unduly extorted should offer some proof of his statements to the Court.
- (4) R. v. Baseauda, 2. Hom. L. H., 701, 765, [1900], s. c. v. 23. L., 185, disapproxing of R. balga Dople, Cr. R. 3 of 1893 (Bom. H. C.), in which Tanony, J., held that a confession to admitted at all in evidence must be propagated by the property of the mitting Magistrate's Court; they are almost invariably retracted when the proceedings have reached a final stage and the prisoner is at the Bar of the Session Court. "These recurrent phenomena, peculiarly suggestive in themselves, can scarcely fail to attract the anxious notice of Judges who regard the efficient administration of justice as a matter in which they are directly and personally implicated, not as a more routine work mapped out for them in the higher tribunals."(1) The retraction of confessions is, as was said by Straight, J. in R. v. Babu Lal.(2) "an endless source of anxiety and difficulty to those who have to see that justice is properly administered." In the R. v Thompson(3) Cave, J., said, "I would add that for my part I always suspect these confessions, which are supposed to be the offspring of penitence and remorse and which nevertheless are repudiated by the prisoner at the trial. It is remarkable that it is of very rare occurrence for evidence of a confession to be given when the proof of the prisoner's guilt is otherwise clear and satisfactory, but when it is not clear and satisfactory, the prisoner is not infrequently alleged to have been seized with the desire born of penitence and remorse to supplement it with a confession, a desire which vanishes as soon as he appears in a Court of Justice " Were it not for the presumption raised by section 80 of this Act it is submitted that the rule, which should be followed in all cases of retracted confessions, is to throw the onus on the prosecution of affirmatively proving the voluntary character of the confession. No doubt, abstractedly considered, the mere fact that a confession is retracted raises no inference of improper inducement. Such retraction may be due to the fear of punishment for an offence, which has been the subject of a true and voluntary Having regard, however, to the notorious fact that confessions are frequently extorted in this country (4) retraction might not improperly be held to cast upon the prosecution the onus of showing that the confession was a voluntary one. When a prisoner has confessed and afterwards pleads not guilty, the truth and voluntariness of the confession is denied by implication. When a prisoner says he has been forced to confess, the Judge is put upon judicial enquiry, and that enquiry, it may well be urged, should precede the admission of the confession and any examination into its truth (5) As, however, the law now stands, provided it was voluntarily made, the confession of a prisoner before a Magistrate is admissible in evidence against the prisoner even though the confession be retracted before the Sessions Judge (6) A mere subsequent retraction of a confession, which is duly recorded and certified by a Magistrate, is not enough in all cases to make it appear to have been unlawfully induced.(7) According to some rulings of the Madras High Court a retracted confession must be supported by independent reliable evidence corroborating it in material particulars (8)

<sup>(1) 2</sup> Ben. L. R. 157

<sup>(2) 6</sup> A , at p. 543 (1884), referred to in R. 1. Dada Ana, 15 B , 452, 461 (1689).

<sup>(3)</sup> I. R., 1893, 2 Q. B., 12, 18, cited with approval in the Pepuly Legal Remembrances v. Laruna Baistobi, 22 C., at p. 172 (1894).

<sup>(4)</sup> See cases cited, post.

<sup>(5) 2</sup> Bom. L. R., 161, 163

<sup>(6)</sup> R. + Steemuty Mongola, B W. R. C. R. (1860); R. v. Mussamut Jema, 8 W. R. Cr., 40 (1867); R. v. Balcant Pandharkar, 11 Bom. H. C. R. 137 (1874); R. v. Petta Gazi, 4 W. R., Cr., 18 (1865) [when prisoners confess in the most circumstantial manner to having committed a murder, the finding of the budy is not absolutely essential to a consection] . R. v. Budduraddeen, 11 W. 1L, 20 (1969); [a Julgo held to have exercised a proper discretion in not passing armience of death in a case in which the dead body was not found): R. v. Bhuttun Rujuun, 12 W. R., Cr., 40 (1860); [the properly attested confession of a prisoner before a Magistrate is sufficient for his consuction without corroborative ersdence, and notwickstanding a subsequent denial before the Session. Court! ; but where there was misconduct of the police, it was held that the prisoners could not safely be convicted on their own retracted statements without any corroborstion · Sofruddeen v. R. 2 C L. R., 132 (1878). (7) R. v Bascanta, 25 B , 168 (1900).

<sup>(8)</sup> R. v. Range, 10 M , 295 (1886); R. v. Bharmappa, 12 M , 123 (1888); in It. v. Hum Vayer, 10 M., 482 (1694), the confessions were corre-Located.

That Court has, however, more recently held(1) in general conformity with the views expressed by the other High Courts(2) that it cannot be laid down as an absolute rule of law that a confession made and subsequently retracted by a prisoner cannot be accepted as evidence of his guilt without independent corroborative evidence. The weight to be given to such a confession must depend upon the circumstances under which the confession was originally given and the circumstances under which it was retracted including the reasons given by the prisoner for his retraction.(3) The credibility of such a confession is in each case a matter to be decided by the Court according to the circumstances of each particular case, and if the Court is of opinion that such a confession is true, the Court is bound to act, so far as the person making it is concerned, upon such belief.(4) The use to be made of such a confession is a matter of prudence rather than of law.(5) It is unsafe for a Court to rely on and act on a confession which has been retracted unless after consideration of the whole evidence in the case the Court is in the position to come to the unhesitating conclusion that the confession is true, that is to say, usually unless the confession is corroborated by credible independent evidence ,(6) or unless the character of the confession and the circumstances under which it was taken indicate its truth.(7)

A retracted confession is almost always open to suspicion, and the Court-will therefore, in conformity with the above-mentioned rulings, generally require corroborative evidence of its truth. This procedure will in effect practically achieve the same results as a rule requiring proof of the voluntary character of a retracted confession, inasmuch as though these decisions require evidence of the truth of the confession and not of its voluntary character, the truth of voluntariness may not unreasonably, though not necessarily, be inferred where the truth of the confession is established. In a recent case, where a friend of the accused had made a statement to a Police officer (which was takendown in writing) but at the trial had denied having made it and the Presidug Judge had admitted the statement in evidence both to discredit is maker and also as evidence against the accused in that it contained statements

The law, as it at present stands, may thus be summarized: (a) In the case of judicial confessions recorded in the manner prescribed by the Criminal Procedure Code, the confession is to be held primal facie to be voluntary until the contrary is shown (b) Both in the case of judicial and extra-judicial confessions the onus is upon the accused of showing that under this section a confession he has made is irrelevant. (c) While the mere fact of retraction is not in itself sufficient to make it appear to have been unlawfully induced in ordinary cases as a general rule, corroborative evidence of the truth of the

<sup>(1)</sup> R. v. Raman, 21 M., 83, 88 (1897). As to the necessity of corroboration when it is used as against others than the maker, see Yasin v. R., 28 C. 689 (1901).

<sup>(2)</sup> R. v. Bhattan Repress, 12 W. R., Cr. 49 (1869); R. v. Glarya, 19 B., 728 (1894); R. v. Gashia, 23 R., 316 (1898); R. v. Marke Lel, 20 A. 33 (1897); E. v. Kelric (1907), 29 A., 434, post, p. 186.

<sup>(3)</sup> R v. Raman, 21 M , 83, 89 (1897). (4) R. v. Maike Lal, 20 A., 123 (1897).

<sup>(5)</sup> R. v. Gharga, 19 B., 728 (1594).

<sup>(6)</sup> R v. Makabir, 18 A, 78 (1895). See R. v. Jadab Dos. 4 C. W. N., 129; s. c., 27 C., 295.

R. V. Morks Lal., 20. A., 133 (1897); see also.
 R. V. Kasharoth Daker, S. Boom, H. C. L.,
 C. Ca., 126, 138 (1871); R. v. Dada Ana, 15 B., 432, 461 (1889); R. v. Baba Lal., 6 A., 500, 542
 (1884); R. v. Daga Chandra, 20. C., 50, 77 (1894);
 Depty Logel Remembrance v. Karna Bautch,
 20. C., 164 (1894).

<sup>(6)</sup> R. v. Narayan Raghanath Pathi (1907), 32 R., 111 (Full Bench).

confession and by implication of its voluntariness is required. Where a Sessions Judge came to the conclusion that the confessions must be taken to be voluntary and true, because there was no evidence of ill-treatment by the police, and the confessions had been repeated before the committing Magistrate nearly a month after they had been made and recorded, the Court said, "There is undoubtedly a great deal of force in that reasoning, but where a confession is retracted, it is, we think, the duty of a Court that is called to act upon it, especially in a case of murder, to enquire into all the material points and surrounding circumstances and satisfy itself fully that the confession cannot but be true."(1) In other cases the Court is not at liberty to act upon mere conpecture, and its rejection of a confession must be based upon the nature of the confession, the facts disclosed by the evidence for the prosecution or adduced in proof of his plea of not guilty by the accused. If from the evidence given by the pro-ecution it appear doubtful whether the confession was voluntary. the onus will of course he upon the Crown to affirmatively establish that the confession was voluntary and that it is admissible. If in such case this be not established, or if it appear, upon the evidence adduced by the prosecution or the accused, that the confession was not voluntary, it must be rejected under the terms of this section

Indurement. promise

This and the succeeding sections, up to and including the thirtieth section. deal only with the specific form of admission known as a confession. But the preceding sections, up to and including the twenty-second section, deal with admissions generally in both criminal as well as civil cases. The twenty-first section therefore makes all confessions admissible except those which are declared to be irrelevant or which are prohibited by this and the following sections. By sections 24-26 the Legislature intended to throw a safeguard around prisoners (2)

Confession by an person

It is difficult to lay down any hard-and-fast rule as to what constitutes an inducement, a term which of course includes torture. The question is one for the discretion of the Judge, and its decision will vary in each particular case (v. post). A statement is madmissible under this section only if the Court considers 't to have been made in consequence of 'any inducement, threat, or promise."(3) The relevancy of the confession is to be determined by the Court, that is the Judge or the Magistrate, and not the purv.(4) "Section 24. whilst requiring the inducement to be offered by a person in authority, leaves it entirely to the Court to form its own opinion as to whether the inducement. threat, or promise was sufficient to lead the prisoner to suppose that he would derive some benefit to avoid some evil of a temporal nature by confessing."(5) It is immaterial to whom a confession, obtained by undue influence, is made. Thus a confession so tainted is irrelevant wh-11 or Magistrate,(7) or any Police-officer.(8) .

Manager of a Railway, (9) or the Master of

whether the confession be made to the same person who has used undue

<sup>11)</sup> R v Durgona, 3 Born L R., 441 (1991) (2) R 4, Rama Birana, 3 B. 12, 17 (1878) . ter Hest, J. as to the construction of as 24-

<sup>26,</sup> ere The Maries Lan Journal, Jan, and Feb . 1495, pp. 12-44. 13) R. v. Haliant Pendharkar, 11 Bom H. C.

<sup>12., 137, 138 (1874)</sup> (4) R v Hannah Moore, 21 L. J. Mag Ca. 199 , we E s. Narroys Indahan, 9 Hom H. C.

<sup>1: , 354, 367 (1872)</sup> (5) R. v. Narron Indicha, supra, at p 367.

per Sargent, C. J., see also s. 28, part. (8) R. . Museumat Luchon, 5 N.W. P.,

F6 (1873). (7) Id , E. v Rama Birapa, 3 B., 12 (1878) .

E . Asphar Ali. 2 1., 260 (1879) . R v. Uzer. 10 C., 775 (1884) (8) R. . Museumat Luchon, supra : E. . Kama

Eirano, aupra (9) R v. Natron Dadabhar, supra.

<sup>(10)</sup> R. v. Hiels, 10 P. L. R. App. 1 influence,(1) or whether it be made to a person other than the one who has held out the inducement, threat or promise,(2) Confessions made some days after arrest may also often be true, but such confessions will, I believe, in almost have been extorted by ig made a witness for the tion by the Police must this country are often and this fact has been the subject of frequent judicial and public comment. (5) "The reports show that many confessions are induced by improper means, and that innocent people often accuse themselves falsely is known to the reader of any book on Evidence "(6)

When a confession has been received, and it afterwards appears from other evidence, that an inducement, threat, or promise was held out, the proper course for the Judge is to strike the confession out of the record and to tell the jury to pay no attention to it.(7). A Magistrate acts without due discretion when as a prosecutor, he holds out promises to prisoners as an inducement to confess (8). A Police-officer acts improperly and illegally in offering any nuducement to an accused person to make any disclosure or confession (9). In determining whether a confession is admissible or not under this section it is necessary to consider (a) the character of the person alleged to have exercised undue influence (such person must be a "person in authority") and (b) the nature of the inducement, threat, or promise [such inducement must (a) have reference to the charge; and (b) be sufficient, &c.]

No definition or illustration is given of this expression. "It is an "person in expression well-known to English lawyers on questions of this nature; and authority," although, as all rules of evidence which were in force at the passing of the Act are repealed, the English decisions on the subject can scarcely be regarded as authorities, they may still serve as valuable guides." (10) A too restrictive meaning should not be placed on these words (11) "The test would seem to be, had the person authority to interfere with the matter, and any concern or interest in it would appear to be held sufficient to give him that authority, as in R. v. Warringham, (12) where Parke, B., held that the wife of one of the prosecutors and concerned in the management of

<sup>(1)</sup> R v Hicks, supra, R v Mussamat Luchoo, supra, R v Rama Birapa, supra, R. v Asphar Al., supra, R v. Uzeer, supra

<sup>(2)</sup> R v Nacroji Dadibhai, supra, R v Musamat Lachoo, supra

<sup>(3)</sup> R v Gobardian, 9 A., 528, 566 (1887), per Brodhurst, J

<sup>(4)</sup> Id., R. v. Modar, Weekly Notes (1885), p. 50, cited, ib., R. v. Rehary Singh, 7. W. R., Cr., 3 (1967) [exposition of a Ponce-officer's powers of arrest and detection with the view to the suppression of torture]. R. v. Sogal Samba, 21 C.,

<sup>642, 569, 691 (1897).
(5)</sup> See R v. Rodai Kaker, 5 W. R., Cr., 3 (1869), R v. Roday Sing, T. W. R., Cr., 3 (1897), R v. Niye, 509, 24; W. R., Cr., 180 (1878), R v. Niye, 509, 42; W. R., Cr., 180 (1878), Belu Lei, 6 A., 1895, 542, 543 (1884), R. v. Coderdan, 9 A., 625, 566 (1878); R. v. Dada Jane, 18 U. S., 452, 461 (1889) "It appears to be well known that the Police are in the habit of extent-lay confessions by Illegal and improper means they find that no conquery is made of them as to the truth of such charges, but they are merely told they must obtain consistions," per Petheram, C. J., & v. Romanust, All W. N. (1883), p. 217. Stephen Hist. of Criminal Law, p. 442; First Pepert of Indian Law Commissioners, and the Report of the late Police Commission. Section 163, Cr. Pr. Code, expressly forbids any such inducement, as a mentioned in this section, length inducement, as is mentioned in this section, being offered.

(6) P. v. Doda Ana, 15 B., 432, 461 (1889), per Jardine, J.

<sup>(7)</sup> R. v. Garner, 1 Den. C. C., 329 (8) R. v. Ramdhan Singh, 1 W. R., Cr., 21

<sup>(1864). (1864). (19)</sup> R. v. Dhurum Dutt, S. W. R., Cr., 13 (1867).

Cr Pr. Code, s. 163
(10) R. v. Natroji Dadabkai, 9 Bom H ( E.,

<sup>358, 368 (1872),</sup> per Sargent, C. J (11) Natur Jhandar v. R., 9 C W. \ 471

<sup>(11)</sup> Satir Jagmeder V. R., W. W. V. V. (1905). (12) 2 Den. C. C. 447

-

their business was a verson in authority, and we find the rule so laid down in Archbold's Criminal Practice."(I) Accordingly, it was held that a travelling auditor in the service of the G. I. P. Railway Company was a "nerson in authority" within the meaning of this section (2) The members of a panchayat which sat to consider whether two persons should be excommunicated from caste for having committed a murder were held not to be "in authority" within the meaning of this section (3) In a recent case the Court though not deciding the question, was disposed to think that where a panchanat was assuming an authority and leading the accused to believe that he had that authority, he came within the section (4) A Police Patel (5) Police Constable (6) a Magistrate (7) and Sessions Judge are "persons in authority" as are also the master of a vessel (8) the prosecutor (9) or his wife :(10) or his attorney ,(11) the master or mistress of the prisoner, if the offence has been committed against the person or property of either, but otherwise not :(12) and generally any person engaged in the arrest, detention, examination, or prosecution of the accused (13) It has been held in England not to be necessary that the promise or threat should be actually uttered by the person in authority, if it was attered by some one else in his presence and tacitly acquiesced in by him, so as to appear to have his confirmation and authority (14) A confession made to, but not induced by, a person in authority is admissible ;(15) while conversely a confession induced by, though not made to such a person will be rejected (16) Confessions procured by inducements proceeding from persons having no authority are admissible. (17) The inducement must (a) have reference to the charge against the accused person : that is, the charge of an offence in the Criminal Courts.(18) The inducement must have been made for the purpose of extorting a confession of the

The induce ment must have reference to the charge.

> (1) R. v. Narroy. Dadablos, supra, 369, per Surgeat, C. J. "The indiscement and authority must all be understood in relation to the presecution, that is to say, a press is deemed to be a person in authority, within the meaning of that rule, only if he stands in certain relations which are considered to imply some power of control or interference in regard to the prosecution." Wills, Ex., 210.

(2) R v Nacrop Dadabhac, supra

(3) R v Mohan Lall, 4 4, 45 (1981). And see also R v Fernand 4 Forn L R, 785 (1902), where the member of a l'anch was held not to be a person in authority.

(4) Nazir Jhamdar v. R., U.C. W. N., 474 (1905).

followed in R. v. Jacka Roya, 11 C. W. N., 904 followed in R v Jasha Berea, H C W. N., 204 (1907)

(5) R v. Rama Birapa, 3 B., 12 (1878)
 (6) R v. Mussumat Luchan, 5 N.-W P., 86

(1873); R. v. Skephon, 7. C. & P., 579. R. v. Pomstray, 7. C. & P., 579. R. v. Lougher, 2. C. & K., 527; R. v. Millen, 3. Cos., 507; so to private persons arresting, ser J. Rusa, Cr., 464, and side. Rosco, Cr. Ect., 12th Ed., 6th. twife of a constable is not a person in authority: R. v. Hardwick, 1. C. & P., 98, side (b).

(1) R. v. Asphar .II., 2 A. 200 (1870), R. v. Usere, 10 C., 775 (1841); R. v. Cteses, 4 C. & P., 221; R. v. Cooper, 5 C. & P., 535; R. v. Parker, L. & C., 42; R. v. Famdhun Sing, I W. R., Cr.,

24 (1864) (Honorary Magnetrate acting as prosecutor): also it has been held, in England, the Magnetrate's Clerk, R. v. Draw, S.C. & P., 140. (8) R. v. Hacks, 10 B. L. R., App. 1 (1872).

but see also R. Moore, 2 Den., 526; explaining R v Parratt, 4 C & P., 570.

(9) R v Jenkins, R & R, 492; R v. Jones, R R, 152

(10) R. v. Warringham, ante., R. v. Upchurch.
 J. R. & M. C. C., 465., R. v. Taylor, S. C. & P., 733., R. v. Moore, 2. Den. C. C., 522., R. v. Merman, Deam. C. C., 249.

(11) R v Croydon, 2 Cov. 67.

(12) R v Moore, 2 Den., 522

(13) See Taylor Ev., §§ 873, 874, Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 40, Phippon, Ev., 3rd Ed., 228; Whis, Ev., 210, R. v. Moore, 2 Den. C. C., 522, 526.

(14) R v Laugher, 2 C & K., 225, R. v. Taylor, 8 C. & P., 733, Quare, whether the section by the worlds "proceeding from" enacts a different role; it is submitted not; but see Field, Ev., 136.

(15) R. v. Gibbons, 1 C & P, 97, R v. Tyter,

1 C. & P., 129, (16) R. v. Bosevil, I Car. & M., 584; R. v. Blackburn, 6 Cov., 333 (17) See Roncoe, Cr. Ev., 41; Field, Ev., 136-

(18) See R. v. Mohan Lal, 4 A., 48 (1881) offence, the subject of that charge.(1) It must reasonably imply that the prisoner's position with reference to it will be rendered better or worse according as he does or does not confess.(2) And if the inducement be made as to one charge, it will not affect a confession as to a totally different charge.(3) An inducement relating to some collateral matter unconnected with the charge the prisoner a glass his wife,(7), will not ucement need not be expressed, but may be implied from the conduct of the person in authority, the declarations of the prisoner, or the circumstances of the case :(8), nor need it be made directly to the prisoner; it is sufficient if it may reasonably be presumed to have come to his knowledge, providing, of course, it appears to have induced the confession.(9)

Secondly .- The inducement must (b) in the opinion of the Court be suffi- The advancrent (see next paragraph): and the advantage to be gained, or the evil to be gained or avoided, must (a) be of a temporal nature; therefore any inducement having be avoided reference to a future state of reward or punishment does not affect the admissibility of a confession, thus a confession will not be excluded which has been obtained from the accused by moral or religious exhortation, however urgent, ence to the proceedings against the accused ;(18) as, for instance, that by

(1) In R v. Hicks, 10 B L R, App 1, a conlession under threat, made for purpose other than to extort confession was held to be insumissible. but the correctness of this ruling is doubtful

(2) R v Garner, 2 C & K , 920 . Phipson, Ev , 3rd Ed , 229 , Taylor, Ev , §§ 879-881 , 3 Russ , Cr. 42, 43 . Steph Dig . Art 22 . Wills, Er., 210 . "the threat must be a threat to prosecute or take some step adverse to the defendant's interests connected therewith, se, the prosecutior, and the promise must be a promise to forbear from some such course, " ib

(3) P v Warner, 3 Russ., Cr., 452n , unless where two crimes being charged, both form parts of the same transaction , R v Hearn, 1 Car . & M. 109

(4) Taylor, Ev . § 880

- (5) R v Sexton, cited in Joy on Confession, 17-10, is not law . Taylor, Ev , § 880; 3 Russ. Cr., 445, Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 42, 12th Ed., 39
  - (6) R v. Green, 6 C. & P., 655.
  - (7) R. v Lloyd, 1b, 393.
- (8) Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 229, R. v. Gilles, 17 Ir. C. L. 534, cited.
- (9) 15 . Paylor, Ev , § 895; but a promise or threat to one prisoner will not exclude a confession made by another who was present and heard the inducement; R. v Jacobs, 4 Cox, 54; and see R. v. Bate, 11 Cox, 5-5, where a confession by a prisoner was received although an inducement had been held out to an accomplice which might have been communicated to the prisoner but see R v. Harding, 1 Arm M. & O , 340,

(10) R v. Gilham, 1 Moo C. C., 186 (in this case the gaol cheplain told a prisoner that, as the minister of God, he ought to warn him not to add sin to sin by attempting to dissemble with God, and that it would be important for him to confess his sins before God and to repair, as far as he could, any mury he had done, the prisoner after this made two confessions to the gaoler and mayor which were held to be admissible

- (11) R. v. Jarus, L. R., 1 C. C. R., 96; R. v. R.ere. 1b . 362
- (12) R v Court, 7 C. & P., 486, R. v. Holmes, 1 Cox. 247; " as a universal rule, an exhortation to speak the truth ought not to exclude confession " per Erle, J., in R. v. Moore, 2 Den. C. C. 522, 523
  - (13) R v. Lloyd, 6 C. & P. 393
  - (14) R. v. Reere, L. R., 1 C. C. R., 302 (15) R. v. Wald, P. & M., 452
  - (16) R. v. Jarcis, L. R., 1 C. C. F., 96

  - (17) R v. Streman, Dears, 269
  - (18) Thus in P. v. Molan Lal, 4 A , 46, auges, the eval threatened (excommunication for hie,) had no reference to the criminal proceed . . against the prisoners. The case of E v H: 1c. 10 R. L. R., App., I, supra, is also oven t ... objection that it is not in accord with the partion of the section.

confessing he will not be sent to jail; (1) that nothing will happen to him; (2) that steps will be taken to get him off; (3) that he will be pardoned, (4) or he hie. A promise or threat as to some purely collateral matter will not exclude the confession (1, ante)

"Sufficient to give the accused grounds"

As the admission or rejection of a confession rests wholly in the discretion of the Judge, it is difficult to lay down particular rules, à priori, for the government of that discretion, and the more so, because much must necessarily depend on the age, experience, intelligence, and character of the prisoner, and on the circumstances under which the confessions was made. Language sufficient to overcome the mind of one, may have no effect upon that of another; a consideration which may serve to reconcile some contradictory decisions where the principal facts appear similar in the Reports, but the lesser circumstances, though often very material in such preliminary enquiries, are omitted. (5) The reported cases in which statements by prisoners have been held iradmissible are very numerous. Various expressions have been held to amount to an "inducement." But the principle has been thus broadly stated "It does not turn upon what may have been the precise words used, but in each case, whatever the words used may be it is for the Judge to consider, before he admits or rejects the evidence, whether the words used were such as to convey to the mind of the person addressed as intimation that it will be better for him to confess that he committed the crime, or noise for him if he does not."(6) "It is not because the law is afraid of having the truth elicited that these confessions are excluded, but it is because the law is lealous of not having the truth "(7) The following are given as examples of confessions which have been admitted or rejected. It has been already mentioned that confessions induced by mere moral or religious exhortation are admissible. "At one time almost any invitation to make a disclosure was held to imply some threat or promise, but a sounder practice has since prevailed, and the words used are construed in their natural sense, so that many of the older decisions are no longer safe guides." (8) Such expressions, therefore, as "what you say will be used as evidence against you" or "for or against you" will not exclude a confession.(9) for such language imports a mere caution.(10) Nor does the expression, 'I must know more about it,' amount to a threat.(11) There is, however, one form of inducement namely, "you had better tell the truth" and equivalent expressions which are regarded as having acquired a fixed meaning in this connection, as if a technical term, and are always held to import a threat or promise (12) Thus, "you had better pay the

<sup>(1)</sup> R v Narross Dadablas, 9 Bom H ( R 254 (1972)

<sup>258 (1872)
(2)</sup> R v Museumat Lucken, 5 N-W P, 56

<sup>(3)</sup> R v Pama Disspir, 3 B. 12 (1578) or "that if he confessed to the Magnetate he would can off." R v Pamilion front 1 W P. D. de

&quot;that if he confessed to the Magastrate he would get of," R v Ramdban Singh, 1 W R. Cr. 24 (1864) (4) R v Asphar Ma 2 A. 200 (1879); R v

<sup>(1)</sup> I. System 1. Sec. (1) (1) I. F. Elkinem I Bonds, 8 W. R. C. V. S. (1) (1) T. J. Brown May I From the of immunity by the policy, R. v. Josef Chadra, 22 C. Jo. 73 (1891); we Decore, Cr. E. v. 43, 4454 Kerner, K. J. M. B. J. J. 10 (1991); a renference, however, made under promise of parelon, may be admissible on the a 330, Cr. Pt. Cole. E. v. Auger 40, see sugra, E. v. Hawmark, J. D. (6) (1877).

<sup>(5)</sup> Roscoe, (r. Es., 40, see cases there col-

(b) B v Garner. 2 (. & h., 934, 925, per Erle, J

<sup>(7)</sup> B . Mansfell, 14 Cox, C. C., 938, 640, per Williams J

<sup>(8)</sup> Wills, Ev., 212 See judgment of Parke, B., in R. v Boldry, 2 Den at p. 445.

<sup>19)</sup> R v Bildry. 2 Den., 430, overtuling several earlier cases

<sup>(10)</sup> R. v. Jaren, L. R., J. C. C. R., 96. Bright's case, I Law, 45, and sec R. v. Long, 6 C. & P., 179. Philipson, Fr., 3rd Ed.

<sup>(11)</sup> R. v. Resear, 12 Cox, 228

<sup>(12)</sup> Wills, Ev., 212; "The words 'you had better' seem to have acquired a sort of technical meaning," per Kelly, C. B., in R. v. Jarris.

money, than go to jail" constitute an inducement.(1) The terms of the inducement constantly involve both threat and promise, a threat of prosecution if disclosure is not made, a promise of forgiveness if it is. The following, for instance, have been held to be such statements when made by persons in authority; "If you don't tell the truth, I will send for the constable to take you;"(2) "if you tell me where my goods are, I will be favourable to you;"(3) "if you confess the truth, nothing will happen to you,"(4) "if you don't tell me, I will give you in charge of the police till you do tell me;"(5) "if you are guilty do confess; it will perhaps save your neck; you will have to go to prison; pray tell me if you did it;"(6) "I only want my money, if you give me that you may go to the devil; "(7) "unless you give me a more satisfactory account, I will take you before a Magistrate, "(8) "the watch has been found, and if you do not tell me who your partner was, I will commit you to prison;"(9) "if I tell the truth shall I be hung?" "No, nonsense, you will not be hung;"(10) "tell me what really happened, and I will take steps to get you off, "(11) "if you confess to the Magistrate, you will get off,"(12) "it is no use to deny it, for there are the man and boy who will swear they saw you do it,"(13) "I shall be obliged if you would tell me what you know about it, if you will not, of course, we can do nothing for you,"(14) "I will get you released if you speak the truth;"(15) "you had better split and not suffer for all of them." (16) A confession made under a promise of pardon is madmissible.(17) The threat or promise need not be in express terms, if the intention is still clear, as in the case of the following statements "If you (the person in authority) forgive me, I (the prisoner) will tell you the truth" Reply: "Anne, did you do it" (18) "Hyou don't tell me, you may get yourself into trouble, and it will be the worse for you." (19) But a promise or threat must be imported. Thus the following statements have been held not to exclude the confession: "I must know more about it ,"(20) "now is the time for you to take it [the stolen propertyl back to the prosecutrix "(21) supra, see also per Field, J , in R v Uzeer, 10 C., 775, 776 (1894), and per Sargent, C J, in R. v Narrojs, Dalabhas, 9 Bom H C R. 358 .(1872), R v Fenne'l, 7 Q B D, 147, R v Hatts, 49 L. T., 780 , R v Wallley, 6 C & P. 175, but this construction will not prevail if such a statement is accompanied by other words which indicate that it was not intended in this sense, as if you had better, as good boys, tell the truth ," R v. Reere, L. R , 1 C. C R , 362 , any you had a hand in it, you may as well tell me all about it," is an inducement, R v Croydon, 2 Cox, 67

- (1) R v Navron Dedabhar, 9 Bom H C R . 359 (1572)
- (2) R v Hearn, 1 Car, & M , 109 Wills, Ev . 212, R . Richards, 5 C & P. 318
- (3) R v Cass, 1 Lea, 293, note (4) R v Mussumat Luchno, 5 N-W
- 46 (1873)
- (5) R v. Luclhurst, Dears, C C , 245
  - (6) R v Upchurch, 1 Moo. C C . 465
- (7) R v. Jones, R. & R. 152 (*) R v. Thompson, 1 Lea., 291

- (9) R v Parratt, 4 C & P , 570
- (10) R v Windsor, 4 F & F, 366
- (11) R v Rama Birapa, 3 B., 12 (1878) (12) R v Ramdhan Sing, 1 W R, Cr, 24
- (1864)
- (13) R v Mills, b C & P , 146 (14) R v Partridge, 7 C & P , 551
- (15) R v Dhurum Dutt, 8 W R , Cr , 13 (1867).
- (16) R ▼, Thomas, 6 C & P , 353
- (17) R v Ashaar Ali, 2 A. 260 (1879), R v Radhanath Dogadh, S.W. R., Cr., 53 (1867), v ante, p 125, note 3, and as to confession induced by knowledge that reward and pardon had been offered, see R v Blackburn, 6 Cox. 333 . R v Bonwell, 1 Car & M., 584 , R v Dangley, 1 C & h . 637.
- (18) R v Mansfield, 14 Cox, 639, Wills, Fv,
- (19) R v Coley, 10 Cox, 536
- (31) R v Reason, 12 Cox, 228, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Fd , 233.
- (21) R ▼ Jones, 12 Cox, 241.

Ρ.

Confession made to a Police-officer not to be proved 25. No confession made to a Police-officer,(1) shall be proved as against a person accused of any offence.(2)

Principle.—The powers of the police are often abused for purposes of extortion and oppression (3) and confessions obtained by the police through from accused persons against them."(5)

It a contession be "made to a Police-officer, the law says that such a confession shall be absolutely excluded from evidence, because the person to whom it was made is not to be relied on for proving such a confession, and he is moreover suspected of employing coercion to obtain the confession." "The broad ground for not admitting confessions made to a Police-officer is to avoid the dancer of admitting false confessions" [6]

8. 26 (Confession while in custody of police.)

 27 (Facts discovered in consequence of information.)

COMMENTARY

Construction of section The rule enacted by this section is without limitation or qualification: and a confession made to a Police-officer is inadmissible in evidence, except so far as is provided by the twenty-seventh section, post. (7) It is "better in construing a section such as the 25th which was intended as a wholesome protection to the accused. to construe it in its widest and most popular signification. The enactment in this section is one to which the Court should give the fullest effect." (8) The terms of the section are imperative. and o confession made to a Police-officer ander any account ance is inadmissible in evidence against the accused. The next section does not qualify the present one, but means that no confession made by a presence fur custody to any person other than a Police-officer, shall be admissible, unless made in the presence of a Magistrate (9). The twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth sections do not overlap each other. On the other hand, the twenty-sixth sections do not overlap each other.

prevent the practice of torture by the police for the purpose of extracting confessions." Steph. Introd., 185

(6) B v. Bahn Lal, 6 A., 509, 532 (1884). per Mahomod, J., and v. 10, 544, per Straight, J., 15., 513; per Oldfield, J.

(7) In the matter of Heran Maya, 1 C. L. R., 21 (1877), R v Babu Lal, 6 All., LO9 (1884) See as to construction of this section, the Madras Law Journal Jan and Feb., 1895, pp. 31-36.

(8) Fer Gath, C. J., in R. v., Harribale Linn-der, I. C., 215., 216 (1875), 25 W. R., Ch., 36 but see detum of Stuart, C. J., in R. v., Pancham, 4. A., 198, 207 (1882), in which, however, Straight, J., serms not to have concurred, and which was dissented from by the Calcutta Court id. Ada. Shildar v. R., 11 C., 305, 61 (1883), "the probabilities in the section must be streetly applied".

R. v. Pancham, 4 A., 204, per Straight, J (9) R. v. Hurribole Chunder, supra, 215, In the matter of Hiran Miya, supra, R. v. Dabu Lal, 6 A., 509, 502 (1881)

<sup>(1)</sup> In Upper Burns, after the word "Polecofficer," the words "who is not a Magistrate" are to be inserted, see Act XIII of 1898

<sup>(2)</sup> The above section was taken from a 145, Act XXV of 1861 (Cr Pr. Code): see R v Robu Lei, 6 A., 609, 612 (1884) As to statements made to a Police-efficie larvesting a case, and as to the use of Police-reports and diames and statements made before the police Sec Cr Pr Code (3) See Extract from The Farth Report of the Indian Law Commissioners cited in Field, Ev., 140-142; and remarks of Straight, J., in R. v. Bobn Lat, 6 A. 569, 542 (1884), and Mahmood, J., 55., 523; but see also remarks of Duthout, J., 5., 550.

<sup>(4)</sup> r autc, notes to a. 25

<sup>(5)</sup> Per Gath, C. J., in R. v. Harndon-Chander, I. C., 207, 215 (1876); 25 W. R., Cr. 26, ar also In the matter of Hiron Mayn. I. C. L. R., 21 (1872); R. v. Panchon., J. A., 199, 204 (1982); Sections 27, 26, 27 "differ whilely from the law of England and were inverted in the Act of 1801 (from while they have been taken) in order to exception or proviso to section. The two sections lay down two clear and definite rules. In this section the criterion for excluding a confession is the answer to the question-to whom was the confession made ! If the answer is, that it was made to a Police-officer, it is excluded. On the other hand, the criterion adopted in the twenty-sixth section for excluding a confession is the answer to the question-under what cucumstances was the confession made ? If the answer is, that it was made whilst the accused was in the custody of a Policeofficer, the confession is excluded, "unless it was made in the immediate presence of a Magistrate."(1) Therefore a confession to a Police-officer, even though made in the presence of a Magistrate, is madmissible. (2) The provisions of the section are unqualified, and it is therefore immaterial whether the confessing party was, at the time of making the confession, accused or not, or whether he was in police-custody or not, and whether the confession was made to a Police-officer in the presence of a Magistrate or not. When a Police-officer has evidence before him sufficient to justify the arrest of an accused, he should not, preliminary to the arrest, examine him and record his statement. The evidence of the Police-officer in regard to such statement cannot be regarded except as a confession to a Police-officer and is inadinissible under · this section and is also madmissible against the co-accused.(3)

In construing this section the term "Police-officer" should be read not in - polices any strict technical sense, but according to its more comprehensive and populofficer. I ar meaning, (4) A confession, therefore, made to the Deputy Commissioner of Police in Calcutta was held to be madmissible, (5) The provisions of this section apply to every Police-officer and is not to be restricted to officers of the regular police-force, (6) The following persons are "Police-officers" within the menning of this section: police pate! (7) daroga, (8) sub-inspector of "1) police head-con-

offs in the Presidency ie Police-officers of Native States as well as those of British India. (15) It is immaterial whether such Police-officer be the officer investigating the case the fact that such person is a Police-officer invalidates a contession. (16) A confession made to a Police-officer in the presence and hearing of a private person is not to be considered as made to the latter, and is therefore excluded by the section. (17) But a policeman who overhears a conversation may be in the position of an ordinary witness rid competent to depose to what he heard It was, therefore, held that the evidence of a policeman who overheard a prisoner's statement

<sup>(1)</sup> R v Babu Lal, 6 A, 59, 632 (1884), per Mahmood, J, and v, ib. 544, 545, per Straight, J

<sup>(2)</sup> Ib. R v Doman Kahar, 12 W R, Cr 82 (1869), R v Mon Mohan, 24 W R, Cr, 33 (1875), in this case the confession was made to the Magastrate, but the report shows that had it been made to the police it would have been held.

to be madmissible
(3) R v Jadab Das, 4 C W N., 129 (1899)

<sup>(4)</sup> R v Hurribole Chander, 1 C., 207 215 (1876), per Garth, C. 3. In the matter of Haren Hygo, 1 C. L. B., 21 (1877), R. v Bhima, 17 B., 485, 486 (1892), per Jardine, J. R. v Salemuddin Shril., 26 C., 570 (1899) R. v Nagla Kala, 22 B., 233 (1896)

<sup>(5)</sup> R v Harridele (Aunder, supra

<sup>(6)</sup> R. v Salemuddin Sheik, 26 C., 569 (1899)

<sup>(7)</sup> R. v Bhima, supra , R v Kamalia, 10 B , 595 (1886)

<sup>(8)</sup> R v Pancham, 4 A, 198 (1882)

In the matter of Hiran Miya, 1 C L. R., 21, supra

<sup>21,</sup> eupra (10) R v Pagaree Shaha, 19 W R, Cr, 51 (1873), Adu Siklar, v R, 11 C, 635 (1885)

<sup>(11)</sup> R v Macdonald 10 B L R, App. 2 (1872), R v Pilambur Jina 2 B 61 (1877), R v Piandharihnath 6 B, 34 (1881), R v Babu Lai, 6 A, 509 (1884)

<sup>(12)</sup> R v Mussumat Luckov, 5 N -W P, 86 (1873)

<sup>(13)</sup> R v Salemuddin Skeilh, 26 C, 569 (1899) See Nazir Jhander v R., 4 C W N , 474 (1905)

<sup>(14)</sup> R × Soma Paps, 7 M , 287 (1883) , see R. v. Bhima, 17 B , 485, 486 (1892)

<sup>(15)</sup> R v Nopla Kala, 22 B., 235 (1896) (16) In the matter of Hiran Miya, I C. L. R.,

<sup>21.</sup> supra

<sup>(17)</sup> R. v. Panckem, 4 1 , 198, 201, supra.

made in another room, and in ignorance of the policeman's vicinity and uninfluenced by it, was admissible; the statement not being made to a Policeofficer, not to others whilst in his custody.(1) A confession is not taken without the scope of this section by the fact that it was made to a person. not in his capacity of a Police-officer, but as an Acting Magistrate, and Justice of the Peace. (2) In this last cited case, Pontifex, J., while agreeing that the confession there in question was madinissible, added that he did so "without going so far as to say that this section of the Evidence Act renders inadmissible a confession made to any person connected with the police, for there are cases in which a person holding high judicial office has control over and is the nominal head of the police in his district."(3) If a person while in custody, as an accused, gives information to the police as complainant in another case, his statements as such informant cannot be used as evidence against him on his trial (4) A statement made to a Police-officer by an accused person while in the custody of the police, if it is an admission of a criminating circumstance, cannot be used in evidence under this and the following section (5) (v. vost).

Against.

This section only provides that "no confession made to a Police-officer shall be a roved as against a person accused of any offence." It may, however, be proved for other purposes. It does not preclude one accused person from proving a confession made to a Police-officer by another accused person tried jointly with him. But under such circumstances it would be the duty of the Judge to instruct the jury that such confession is not to be received or treated as evidence against the person making it, but simply as evidence to be considered on behalf of the other (6) So again it has been held that statements made by accused persons as to the ownership of property which was the subject matter of the proceedings against them were admissible as evidence with regard to the ownership of the property in an inquiry held by the Magistrate under section 523, Act X of 1882 (7) In this case West, J., observed: "Confession in this section of the Indian Evidence Act (I of 1872) means, as in the twenty-fourth section, a confession made by an accused person, which it is proposed to prove against him to establish an offence. For such a purpose a confession might be madmissible, which yet for other purposes would be admissible as an admission, under the eighteenth section, against the person who made it (the twenty-first section) in his character of one setting up an interest in property the object of litigation or judicial enquiry and disposal."(8)

Admission made to Policeofficers.

An admission made by an accused person to a Police-officer may be proved if it does not amount to a confession, (9) that is, if it is not a statement by him that he committed the crime with which he is charged, or a statement suggesting the inference that he did so. So where the prosecutor's watch, chain and a sum of money had been stolen from him as he was travelling by rail to Calcutta, and evidence was tendered of a statement made by the presoner to the constable who arrested him to the effect that the watch and Rs. Lo00 had hen given to him by his sister, and that he had bought the chain, Phear, J., admitted this evidence, observing that there is a distinction in the Act between Admissions and Confessions (10). This statement was clearly not a

(8) 76, 131.

<sup>(1)</sup> E v. Sageena, 7 W. R., Cr., 56 (1867).

<sup>(2)</sup> R. v. Harribele Chunder, 1 C., 267, supra

<sup>(3) 1</sup>b at p 218

<sup>(4)</sup> Moder Sheiks v. R., 21 C., 392 (1893)

<sup>(5)</sup> R v. Jarecharam, 19 B., 363 (1994); R v. Lushno Anent, 3 W. F., Cr., 21 (1865).

<sup>16)</sup> B v. Pstamber Jung. 2 R. 61 (1876).

<sup>(7)</sup> R v Trillhiman Manslehard, 9 B. 131 (1884)

 <sup>(9)</sup> R. v. Macdonald, 10 B. L. R., 1pp., 2 (1872), followed in R. v. Dabre Pershad, 6 C., 530 (1881),
 7 C. L. R. 541, see also R. v. Kangal Mala, C. Ref. 30 of 1905, Cal. H. C., 18th Sept. 1005, R. v. Nobadavy Goscoms, 1 B. L. R., O. S. C.

R v Nobadary Goaroms, 1 B. L. R., O, S. C. 15 (1998), 15 W. R., C. Y., 71, in which it was held that the access did not amount to a confession of guilt, but was a statement of facts which, if true, aboved that the unsorer was innocent confession of the theft or dishonestly receiving stolen property with which he was charged, as it was not a statement that he had stolen the goods or come by them dishonestly nor does the statement suggest any inference that he was guilty of the offences with which he was charged, but, on the contrary, if true, it showed that he was innocent.(1) So where one of the three prisoners tried for murder made two statements, of which the first was-"Sir, I have something to give you. MA gave me this paper yesterday evening to keep for him," and the other was a detailed statement of how the deceased met his death. Wilson, J., admitted the first statement (from which no inference of guilt could be drawn), but rejected the second (which led to the inference that the person making the statement took part in the commission of the offence.)(2) For an incriminating statement by an accused person to a Police-officer on which the prosecution relies is inadmissible.(3) A statement made by an accused to the police which does not amount directly or indirectly to an admission of any criminating circumstance, is admissible in evidence: hence where the accused was found carrying away a box at night, and when asked by a Policeman on duty about the ownership of the box he stated that the box belongs to him; this statement was held admissible against him, on a trial of theft regarding the box.(4) As was pointed out in the undermentioned case(5) a useful test as to admissibility of statements made to the police is to ascertain the purpose to which they are put by the prosecution. If the latter rely on the statements of the accused to the police as being true, then they may, and probably in many cases will be found to amount to confessions. If on the other hand the statements of the accused are relied on, not because of their truth but because of their falsity they are admissible. They are in such cases brought forward to show what the defence of the accused is, and that as the defence is untrue this is a circumstance to prove the guilt of the accused

<sup>(10)</sup> R v Mardonald, supra.

26. No confession made by any person whilst he is in the by accused custody of a Police-officer, unless it be made in the immediate while in presence of a Magistrate, shall be proved as against such police not to again the provent of the p

Explanation.—In this section 'Magistrate' does not include the head of a village discharging magisterial functions in the Presidency of Fort St. George or in Burma or elsewhere, unless such headman is a Magistrate exercising the powers of a Magistrate under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882.(6)

<sup>(1)</sup> But a statement, although intended to be made in self-exculpation and not as a confession, may nevertheless be an admission of a criminating circumstances, and if so, it is excluded by se 25 and 26, R v Pandharmath, b B, 34 (1881). 1 post

<sup>(2)</sup> R v Meher Ali, 13 C . 589 (1888), see also R v Jograp, 7 A, 646 (1885), in which, however, the statement was held not to amount to a confession

<sup>(3)</sup> R v Mathews, 10 C, 1022 (1884), R v Pandharinath, 6 R., 31, 37 (1851), R v. Nana, 14 B., 260, 261 (1889), R v Jarecharam, 19 B . 363 (1×94)

<sup>(4)</sup> R v Mahomed Ebrahim, 5 Boin. L. R. 312 (1903), distinguishing R v wandarinath, supra (5) R . Langal Mals, Cr Ref 30 of 1905 Cal H C, 18th Sept 1903

<sup>(6)</sup> The above section was taken from a 149. Act XXV of 1861 (Cr Pr Code), see R v Babu Lal, 6 A , 500, 512 (1884). The explanation to this section was added by a 3, Act III of 1891. It alters the law as laid down by the Madras High Court in R v Ramanjiyya, 2 M , 5 (1878)-See R. v Nagla Kala, 22 B., 237 (1996) See now the Code of Criminal Procedure 11ct V of 1695)

Principle.—The object of this section (as of the last) is to prevent the above of their powers by the police.(1) The last section excludes confessions to a Police-officer under any circumstances. The present section excludes confessions to any one clee, while the person making it is in a position to be influenced by a Police-officer, unless the free and voluntary nature of the confession is secured by its being made in the immediate presence of the Magistrate, in which case the confession person has an opportunity of making a statement uncontrolled by any fear of the police.(2)

s. 25 (Confession to a Police-officer.) s. 27 (Facts discovered in consequence of information.)

COMMENTARY.

Construction.

The law is imperative in excluding what comes from an accused person in custody of the police if it incriminates him.(3) The prohibition in this section must be strictly applied (4) This section does not qualify the preceding one(5) and therefore a confession made to a Police-officer is admissible, even if made in the pre-circ of a Magistrate .(6) but this section as well as the last, is qualified by the following one (7) The twenty-fifth section applies to all confessions to Police-officers, the present section to all confessions to any person, other than a Police-officer, made by persons whilst in police-custody. These than a Police-officer, made by persons whilst in police-custody. These past-mentioned confessions are inadiansisable unless made in the immediate presence of a Magistrate (8) But a confession madmissible under this section against the confessing party, might, however, be admissible in favour of a co-accused.(9) The word "Police-officer" in this section include the Police-officers of Native States as well as those of British India.(10) As to the meaning of these words, see Commentary to the preceding section.

Police cus

As this section relates to confessions made to persons other than Policeofficers, whilst the accused is in the custody of the police, a confession made to such third person by an accused whilst the latter is not in such custody is not excluded by the section Where, therefore, a woman, who was not in the custody of the police at the time, made a confession to a Village Munsif, whom the Court held not to be a Police-officer within the meaning of the preceding section, it was held that the confession could not be excluded under this section.(11) Some sort of custody appears to be sufficient. So where the prisoners were among certain persons who had been "collected" by a policepatel on suspicion, and the police-patel had himself accused them of complicity in the offence, the prisoners were deemed to be in the custody of the police (12) In the undermentioned case(13) a person under arrest on a charge of murder was taken in a tonga, from the place where the alleged offence was committed, to Godhra. A friend drove with her in the tongo and a mounted policeman rode in front. In the course of the journey the policeman left the tonga and went to a neighbouring village to procure a

<sup>(1)</sup> R. A. Mon Mohan, 24 W. R., (Y., 33, 36 (1875), per Birch, J.

<sup>(2)</sup> In the matter of Histon Miga, I C L R., 21 (1877), per Austic, J., R v. Hurrilade Chunder, I C., 207, 215 (1878)

<sup>(3)</sup> R. v. Mathers, 10 C., 1022, 1023 (1884), per Pold, J. See as to the construction of this section, the Madras Law Journal, Jan and Feb., 1807, pp. 36-44.

<sup>(4)</sup> R. v. Pancham, 4 A., 198, 204 (1882), per Straight, J.

<sup>(1)</sup> v. aste, p. 262,

<sup>(6)</sup> R v. Domun Kahar, 12 W. R., Cr., 82 (1869), R v. Babu Lal, 6 A, 509, 532, v ante

<sup>(7)</sup> R v. Baba Lai, 6 v, 5141 [1894); see note

to s. 27, post (9) \ ante, p. 160

<sup>(9)</sup> R [v. Pstamber Jina, 2 11, 61 (1876)

<sup>(10)</sup> R. v. Nagla Kola, 22 B , 235 (1896)

<sup>(11)</sup> R. v. Sama Popi, 7 M., 297 (1986) (12) R. v. Kamalia, 10 B., 595, 596 (1996).

<sup>(13)</sup> R v. Lester, 20 B , 163 (1894).

fresh horse, the tonga meanwhile proceeding slowly along the road for some miles without any escort. In the absence of the policeman the accused made a communication to her friend with reference to the alleged offence. At the trial it was proposed to ask what the prisoner had said, on the ground that she was not then in custody, and that this section did not apply, but it was held that, notwithstanding the temporary absence of the policeman, the accused was still in custody, and the question must be disallowed. In a subsequent case,(1) it was held that the custody of the keeper of a pail in a Native State, who is not a Police-officer, does not become that of a Police-officer, merely because his subordinates, the warders of the jail, are members of the police-force of that State. In the absence of any suggestion of a close custody inside the jail, such as may possibly occur when an accused person is watched and guarded by a Police-officer investigating an offence, this section does not exclude such a jailor from giving evidence of what the accused told him while in jail.

If the confession be made to a third person, the presence of a Magistrate In the is necessary in order to render the confession admissible under this section, immediate But a confession made to the Varietteta humself conferme to the section presence of time trate of the in the . XXV of 1861 (Criminal Procedure Code), from which the present section of this Act has been taken, it was held that, in order to give weight to confessions of prisoners recorded under section 149, there should be a judicial record of the special circumstances under which such confessions were received by the Magistrate showing in whose custody the prisoners were, and how far they were quite free agents (3) In another case decided under the same section, it was held that the words "a Magistrate" mean "any Magistrate" and not merely "the Magistrate having jurisdiction."(4) The word "Magistrate" in this section includes Magistrates of Native States as well as those of British India. And so a confession made by a prisoner while in police-custody, to a First-class Magistrate of the Native State of Muli in Kathiawar, and duly recorded by such Magistrate in the manner required by the Code of Criminal Procedure, was held to be admissible in evidence (5)

27. Provided that, when any fact is deposed(6) to as dis-How must covered(7) in consequence of information received from a person tion received coursed of any offence,(8) in the custody of a Police-officer,(9) ed from accused of any offence,(8) in the custody of a Police-officer,(9) ed from accused of any offence, (8) in the custody of a Police-officer,(9) ed from accused in the custody of a Police-officer, (9) ed from a Police-officer, (9) ed from accused in the custody of a Police-officer, (9) ed from accused in the custody of a Police-officer, (9) ed from accused in the custody of a Police-officer, (9) ed from accused in the custody of a Police-officer, (9) ed from accused in the custody of a Police-officer, (9) ed from accused in the custody of a Police-officer, (9) ed from accused in the custody of a Police-officer, (9) ed from accused in the custody of so much of such information, whether it amounts to a confession be proved or not, as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered, may be proved.(10)

<sup>(1)</sup> R v Tatya, 20 B, 795 (1895) (2) R v Man Mohun, 24 W R Cr., 33 (1875) . R v Nilmadhah Mitter, 15 C., 593 (1888).

<sup>(3)</sup> R v Koda: Kahar, 5 W R , Cr , 6 (1886) ere Criminal Procedure Code se 164 364, 533 (4) R v lahala Jetha 7 Bom H C R , C C . 36 (1870)

<sup>(5)</sup> R v Nagla Kola, 22 B , 235 (1896) (6) S. 150 of Act NAV of 1861 (Cr 17 Code) ran thus - Deposed to by a police-officer.' etc (see Baken Mannet v R , 9 W R , Cr , 18,

<sup>17 (1868)]</sup> The words in italies were omitted in the amended section substituted by Act VIII of 1869, and the omission has been here retained

As the section now stands, the fact may be deposed to by any one, Field, Et., 45 (7) S 150 of Act AXV of 1861 ran thus -

&quot;Discovered by Aim, which italicised words were omitted in the amended section substituted by Act VIII of 1869, r post

<sup>(8)</sup> N 150 of Act AAA of 1861 ran thus -"or in the custods etc., v post

<sup>(9)</sup> This word has the same meaning as in as. 25 and 26, ante, see R . Vagla Kala, 22 B . 235, 234 (1896)

(iii) This section replaces a. 150 of Act XXI of 1861 (Cr. Pr. (ode) as amended by Act VIII of 1869 see R v Baby Lal, 6 A., 512, 516 (1644)

Principle.—The broad ground f inducement, or to a Police-officer, or of admitting false confessions.(1) P pears in a case provided for by this section, when the truth of the confession is guaranteed by the discovery of facts in consequence of the information given. It is this guarantee, afforded by the discovery of the property, for the correctness of the accused's statement, which is the ground of the admission of the exception to the general rule. The fact discovered shows that so much of the confession as immediately relates to it is true. (2)

s. 24 (Confession caused by inducement.)
s. 52 (Confession to a Police-officer)

s. 26 (Confession by accused while in police-custody.)

Steph. Dig., Art. 22; Taylor, Ev., §§ 902, 903; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 232; Wills, Ev., 214; Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 49; 3 Russ Cr., 482—485.(3)

COMMENTARY. Though the words "inthe custody of a Police-officer" might seem to indicate

Construction of section that this section was intended to be a proviso to the preceding section only, and that thereby, the provisor of the preceding section only and thereby, the provisor of the preceding section only and that the provisor of the preceding section only and the provisor of the preceding section of

to the two given by an accused to a Police-officer, whether amounting to a confession or not, as distinctly relates to the facts thereby discovered, may be proved.(4) But the present section only qualifies the twenty-fifth section when the accused person is in the custody of the police, therefore, confessions to Police-officers bypersons who are accused, but not in custody, of are in custody but not accused, or are neither accused nor in custody, do not fall within the present section.(5) This section also qualifies the twenty-fourth section. Therefore, whatever the inducement that may have been applied, or made use of, towards the accused, there is nothing in the law which forbids policemen or others from, at any rate, going so far as to say "In consequence of what the prisoner told me, I went to such and such a place and found such and such a Moreover, they may repeat the words in which the information was conched, whether they amount to a confession or not, provided they relate distinctly to the fact discovered (6) Therefore, although a confession may be generally madmissible, in consequence of an inducement having been offered

<sup>(1)</sup> See cases cited in the notes to se 24, 23, 26, ante

<sup>(2)</sup> R · Baion Let., 6 A., 509, 513, 517, 524(1834), R · None, 14 B. 200, 204 (1889), 3. Rises Cr., 483, Taylor, Fr., 48 902, 907 · But not only are conference accided when obtained by means of unproper modacements, but also the acts of the presence done made the inflaence of such indicements, unless conferred by the finding of the property; for the same inflaence which might produce a groundless conference might preduce groundless conference might preduce groundless conference might produce promodless conference acceptance of the property of the produce of the property of the produce of the property of the produce of the produce

Nava, 14 B., 260, 205 (1889); R. v. Rama Birapa, 3 B., 12, 17 (1878), R. v. Bahn Lal, 6 A., 500, 517, 547 (1881).

<sup>(4)</sup> Field, Ev., 145, R. v. Pagaree Shaha, 19 W. R. Cr., 51 (1873); and see under the old law R. v. Patta Gaza, 4 W. B., Cr., 10 (1863); R. v.

Jorn Have, II Hom. H. C. R., 242 (1814). R. & Rama Biraya, S. B. 12 (1818). R. * Franchina, A. 1881(182). R. * Rabio Lai, 6. A., 500, F. E. (1884). Idu. Shidar v. R., 11. C., 633 (1885). R. * Kamalio, in B., 503 (1886), R. * * Kamalio, in B., 504 (1818). R. * Kamalio, in B., 504 (

R v Babu Lai, 6 A, 909, 513, 531, 534,
 F B (1884), per Oldfield and Mahmood, JI.
 v. post

<sup>(6)</sup> R. v. Bohn Lel, G. V. 500, 513, preferrable, C. J., ib., per Rechburst, J. exting Taylor, P. v. § 902 [contra, per Mahmood, J., ch., 535; and R. v. Kwerpole, Weelly Notes (1882), 223; set also to the some effect, vir. that a 27 does not qualify 24, R. v. Massmoot Luckoo, N. N. W. P. 60(1873)], R. v. Ramot Burger, 28, 1, 2, 9 (1978);

within the meaning of the twenty-fourth section, yet if any fact is deposed to as discovered in consequence of such confession, so much thereof as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered may be proved under this section. But though the present section qualifies the twenty-fourth section, it will not be applicable in every case that falls within the scope of that section which enacts that confessions unduly obtained are irrelevant whether the confessing party was in custody or not. But the present section refers to confessions made by accused persons in custody. Therefore confessions made by persons when accused but not in custody, or in custody but not accused, or neither accused nor in custody, will not be rendered admissible by the present section even if there is discovery.(1) This section, as a qualification of the imperative rules contained in sections 24-26, should be strictly construed and applied (2) The words "any fact" are qualified by the word "discovered" as used in the section; under the present section, it is not every statement made by a person accused of any offence while in the custody of a Police-officer, connected with the production or finding of property, which is admissible. Whatever be the nature of the fact discovered, that fact must, in all cases, be itself relevant to the case, and the connection between it and the statements made must have been such that that statement constituted the information through which the discovery was made, in order to render the statement admissible. Other statements connected with the one thus made evidence, and thus mediately, but not necessarily or directly, connected with the fact discovered, are not admissible (3) "No judicial officer [dealing with the provisions of this section should allow one word more to be deposed to by a Police-officer. detailing a statement made to him by an accused, in consequence of which he discovered a fact, than is absolutely necessary to show how the fact that was discovered is connected with the accused, so as in itself to be a relevant fact against him. The twenty-seventh section was not intended to let in a confession generally, but only such particular part of it as set the person, to whom it was made, in motion, and led to his ascertaining the fact or facts of which he gives evidence."(4) The test of the admissibility under this section of information received from an accused person in the custody of a Police-officer, whether amounting to a confession or not, is - "Was the fact discovered by reason of the information and how much of the information was the immediate cause of the fact discovered, and as such a relevant fact ?''(5) per West, J ..." It is not pretended that any discovery of facts, through information derived from R, occurred after that statement was made Its defect, as made under undue influence, therefore, was not and could not be counteracted in the only possible way " This qualification of the rule enacted in s 24 by that enacted in the present section is in accordance with the Figlish law upon the subject see Taylor, Ev , § 902 The question does not appear to have been discussed by the Calcutta and Madras Courts in any reported case But under the corresponding section of Art XXV of 1861 (s. 150), it was held by the former Court that where a Police-officer had offered an inducement to make a confession no part of his evidence, as to the discovery of facts in consequence of such confession, was admissible. R v Dhurum Datt, 8 W R . Cr . 13 (1867); see also Braken Manjee v R., 9 W. R. Cr., 16, 17 (1568).

<sup>(1)</sup> See note (6), p. 271.

<sup>(2)</sup> R v Pancham 4 v 198 (1882) see Adu Saiddar v R 11 (* 63) 642 (1885) In R v Banc Mohran, 24 W R: C, 35 (1875) Jackson, J, commented upon a presaling tendency to discrepant the provinces of a 25 of the Evidence Act which has occurred in this case, as well as in others recourse being had siftingly not justified by facts, to the provise continued in a 27

<sup>(3)</sup> R v Jora Hasp, 11 Bom H C R 242 (1874)

<sup>(4)</sup> R v Babs Lal 6 A , 509 546 (1884), per Straight, C J , cited and adopted by Norris, J , in Adv Shikdar v R 11 C 635, 641 (1885)

<sup>(5)</sup> R v. Commer Shahib, 12 M., 153 (1848), in which it was also said that the restonable construction of a 27 is that, in addition to the fact discovered so much of the information as was the immediate cause of the discovery is legal explane."

"Discover

The word "discovery" may either mean the purely mental act of learning something which was not known before to a person, as the mere mental act of becoming aware of something after hearing it stated; or, the physical act of finding upon search or inquiry some thing, or material fact, the existence or the exact locality of which was unknown till then. It is in the latter sense that the word is used in this section, that is, in the sense of a finding upon a search or inquiry of articles connected with the crime or other material fact; the reason being that it is only this kind of discovery which proves that the information, in consequence of which the discovery was made, is true and not fabricated. The statements admitted by the section are statements preceding finding upon search of inquiry (1) It is not now necessary that the discovery should be by the deponent .(2) if the latter be a Police-officer investigating a case, he will not be allowed to prove an information received from a person accused of an offence in the custody of a Police-officer, on the ground that a material fact was thereby discovered by him when that fact was already known to another Police-officer (3) When the Police succeed in discovering property in consequence of information received from an accused, it is not competent to the police to replace the property in the place whence it is discovered and to ask the other accused to produce the property because there is no further discovery under this section as against the other accused.(1) While statements preceding finding upon search or inquity are admissible under this section, on the other hand, mere statements, which lead to no physical discovery after they are made, are madmissible (5) In the case of statements made while pointing out the scene of the crime, the general rule is that if a prisoner . points out or shows the scene of the offence and objects around as connected therewith, and makes contemporaneous statements in reference thereto, his acts may be given in evidence, as amounting to "conduct" relevant under the eighth section ante, but the accompanying statements are not admissible under the present section, there being no such "discovery" as is required by it, nor do they fall within the first Explanation to the eighth section, and are therefore wholly excluded (6) So where the prisoner, besides the formal recorded confession, made a confession to the Police-officers before and during his pointing out particular places and particular articles said to have been connected with the murder of which he was charged, West, J., observed: " A confession of murder made to a police-constable is not at all confirmed by the prisoner's saying, 'this is the place where I killed the deceased,' and when, starting from the pointing to a ditch or a tier, a long narrative of transactions, some of them altogether remote from any connection with the spot indicated, is allowed to be deposed to as a confession by the prisoner, the intent of the <sup>(1)</sup> See The Madria Law Journal, asyra, March 1855, pp. 60, S. R. Jour Blay, J. Plorn B. C. R., 242 (1674). R. v. Rama Riverper, 3. B., 12 (1878); R. v. Nana, 14 E., 250 (1870), in all the cases under this section where the extended to be admissible, the "discovery" was of articles or other naterial fasts. The section, as they understood charts the same rule as is given in Taylor, Fig. 15 to 2, 907 (R. v. Rama Bropp., aspra, 17; R. v. Nana, 1994., 253); for an example of an admission subsequent to thereovery, see R. v. Aamal Falver, T. W. R., (v. 7, 0) (1852).

<sup>(2)</sup> Under a 150, Act XXV of 1861, the words were "discovered by him;" the italicised words have been obsitted in the present section.

<sup>(3)</sup> Ada Shiblar v. R. 11 C. 635, 642 (1885).

<sup>(4)</sup> R v Beshya, 2 Bom L R, 1089 (1900) (5) R v Rama Birapa, 3 B., 12 (1878); see the Modras faw Journal, sayra, 8].

(9) B. 82. R. v for Hary, II Bon., II C.

II. 212, 210 (1874); R. v Eame Burga, 3. S., V.

(8), 17 (1878), that v, assuming the accompanying statements to amount to confessescent profits the current of the statement of the second profits that the statement is such attended to the second profits month are really explanatory of the acts they accompany they may be proved (R. v, Jour Haryasupra; 225, 248; R. v. Eana Harya, supra, 17), suspect, lowers, to the further proviso that a 8, so far as it admits a statement as incloded in the word "conduct," cannot admit a statement as evidence which would be shut out by s., 25, 20;
R. v. Nasa, 14 B. 200, 201(1893).

Evidence Act is not fulfilled but defeated."(1) From the statement, "This is the place where I killed the deceased," there is no "discovery" within the meaning of this section, and therefore no guarantee of the truth of the statement; and further, the prosecution had not, in the particular case, shown that any act done by the accused had been so explained by his statements as to make the latter admissible under the first Explanation of the eighth section. Similarly, in the case of statements accompanying production of articles the general rule is that if the prisoner himself produces or delivers articles said to be connected with the offence, and contemporaneously makes declarations as regards them, the act of production or delivery itself may be proved as " conduct " under the eighth section, ante; but as there is no "discovery," the accompanying statements are not admissible under the present section, nor under the first Explanation to the eighth section, antc.(2) So where a Police-officer deposed that the accused told him "that he had robbed K R of Rs. 48. whereof he had spent Rs. 8, and had Rs. 40." and that he, the accused, made over Rs. 40 to him, the statement was held inadmissible, as no facts were discovered thereby. The High Court disapproved of the opinion of the Sessions Judge who had admitted this statement on the ground that the confession was the necessary preliminary of the surrender of the Rs. 40, and that the surrender must necessarily have been accompanied or immediately preceded by some explanatory statement (3) But where the accused makes a statement as to the locality of certain property, and after, and upon such statement, the police accompany him to the locality, where upon arrival, the accused by his own act produces the property, such statements may be admissible as leading to the discovery of the property(4) (v post)

In the first place, whatever be the nature of the fact discovered, that fact "In consemust, in all cases, be itself relevant to the case, and the connection between it quence of inand the statement made must have been such that that statement constituted the information through which the discovery was made, in order to render the statement admissible.(5) In the next place, the practical test to determine whether or not there is such a connection between the information and the discovery has been stated to be as follows :- "In regard to the extent of the words thereby discovered,' we may derive some assistance from the test applied by the Courts in dealing with proximate and remote causes of damage, namely, whether what followed was the natural and reasonable result of the defendant's act.(6)" It was formerly held by the Bombay and Allahabad High Courts(7) that where an article said to be connected with an offence was produced by the party himself after giving information in respect of it, the article could not be said to have been discovered "in consequence of the information" It was said that in such a case the article is discovered by the act of the party and not in consequence of the information. But this view was subsequently dissented from in, and (so far as the Bombay Court is concerned) overruled by, a case, (8) in which the facts were as follows The accused, in the course of the police-

<sup>(1),</sup> R. v Rama Birapa, supra, 16, 17 (2) R v. Jora Hasps, 11 Bom H C R., 242 (1874), in this case the first prisoner produced a bill-hook and knife from the field, and the second prisoner a stick, and each made a certain incriminatory statement which the Court held to be inad. missible both under this section since there was no "discovery," and under s. 8, Explanation (1), it however held that the acts of the prisoners could be proved; R v Pancham, 4 A., 198 (1882). sce R. v. Lamalia, 10 B , 595, 597 (1886), Adu Shildar v R , 11 C., 635, 640, 641 (1885) , v ante, note, (6), p 273 as to accompanying statements and Taylor, Ev , § 903 , 3 Russ. Cr , 484

<sup>(3)</sup> Adu Shildar v R , supra, 640, 641

<sup>(4)</sup> R v Nona, 14 B , 260 (1889), v put (5) R v Jora Hann, 11 B H C R , 242, 244 (1874)

<sup>(6)</sup> R v Nana, 14 B 260, 267 (1889), per Jardine, J

<sup>(7)</sup> R v Panckam, 4 A., 198, 204 (1852), R v Babe Lal, 6 A , 509, 544 (1884), per Straight, J., R v. Kamalia, 10 B , 595, 597 (1886).

(b) R. v. Nana, 14 B , 260, (1889).

in vestigation, was asked by the police where the property was, and replied that he had kept it and would show. He said that he had builed the property in the fields. He then took the police to the spot where the property was concealed, and with his own hands disinterred the earthen pot in which it was kept. It was held that the statement of the accused that he had buried the property in the fields was admissible under this section, as it set the police in motion and led to the discovery of the property, and that a statement is equally admissible whether it is made in such detail as to enable the police to discover the property themselves, or whether it be of such a nature as to require the assistance of the accused in disrovering the exact spot where the property is concealed. This year of the section has also been adopted by the Calcutta High, Court,[1]

From an accused per son in custo dy.

Section 150 of Act XXV of 1861, as amended by Act VIII of 1869, was re-embodied in the twenty-seventh section of the Evidence Act with slight The only alteration on which any stress can be laid alterations of language is the omission of the word " or ",(2) this shows that the operation of the proviso is restricted to information from an accused person in custody of the police, and does not apply to information from accused persons not in custody of the police (3) It would appear, therefore, that in order to bring a case of discovery within the scope of this section, it is necessary that the party making the statement should be both accused and in custody at such time and that (a) a confession obtained by inducement under the circumstances mentioned in the twenty-fourth section, or (b) a confession made to a Police-officer (4) will not be affected by the operation of the twenty-seventh section when the person confessing is at the time (a) neither accused nor in custody , (b) in custody but not accused : (c) accused but not in custody, -notwithstanding any discovery in consequence thereof; (c) a confession made to any person other than a Policeofficer by a person who was at the time in the latter's custody, but not accused. is madmissible, even though it may lead to discovery, unless indeed it was made in the immediate presence of a Magistrate

Where a fact is discovered in consequence of information received from one of several persons charged with an offence, and when others give like information, the fact should not be treated as discovered from the information of them all It should be deposed that a particular fact has been discovered from the information of .IB, and this will let in so much of the information as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered (5) In the case of R. v. Babu Lal, (6) Straight, J. observed as follows . I have more than once pointed out that it is not a proper course, where two persons are being tried, to allow a witness to state 'they said this,' or 'they said that,' or 'the prisoners then said. It is certainly not at all likely that both the persons should speak at once, and it is the right of each of them to have the witness required to depose as nearly as possible to the exact words he individually used. And, I may add, where a statement is being detailed by a constable as having been made by an occused, in consequence of which he discovered a certain fact, or certain facts, the strictest precision should be enjoined on the witness, so that there may be no room for mustake or misunderstanding. In detailing statements of this kind

<sup>(1)</sup> Legal Remembrancer v. Chema Nashya, 25 C. 413 (1871); and see also R. v. Pajaree Shaha, 19 W. E., Cr. 57 (1873), in which case the part) himself produced the property.

<sup>(2) 5 150,</sup> ran "accused of any offence or in the custode of a Police-officer"

<sup>(3)</sup> R. Bohn Lel, G. A., 500, 513 (1881), per Olineld, J., see The Madras Law Journal, supratip, 128, 129, April, 1895.

<sup>(4)</sup> R. v. Balm Lal. 6 A . S/9, 513 (1884); "A confession made to a Police-officer by a person who is not in the cut-tayl of the police, ext. they are be confession led to discovery, would not be admissibly in evidence, because it could not be admissibly in evidence, because it could not be under the pursiew of a 22 which is retirreted to persons. "In the cut-tayl of a Police-officer," Mahmeed, J., and see per Oldfield, J., at p. 513, avera.

<sup>(5)</sup> R v. Rom Churn, 24 W. R., Cr., 36 (1975)-(6) 6 A , 549 (1981) at pp. 549, 550.

which are alleged to have led to discovery, it is of the essence of things that what each prisoner said should be precisely and separately stated. If the witness was not clear upon this point, and the witness refused to be more explicit, the Judge should have paid no attention to it."

Upon this question there is little or no difference in ' High Courts.(1) Assistance in the construction of the distinctly to the fact thereby discovered" may be der tion of the principle upon which the enactment contained in this section is founded. Statements admissible under this section are so admissible because the discovery rebuts the presumption of falsity arising from the fact of their being made under inducement, or to the police, or to others while in policecustody. The discovery proves not that the whole, but that some portion of the information given is true, namely, so much of the information as led directly and immediately to, or was the proximate cause of, the discovery : only such portion of the information is guaranteed by the discovery, and hence only such portion of the information is admissible. A prisoner's statement as to his knowledge of the place where a particular article is to be found, is confirmed by the discovery of that article and is thus shown to be true. But any explanation as to how he came by the article, or how it came to be where it is found, is not confirmed by the discovery, and as the presumption of falsity as to these other statements is not rebutted, therefore proof of them is prohibited. In the words of West, J.: "It is not all statements connected with the production or finding of property which are admissible; those only which lead immediately to the discovery of property, and so far as they do lead to such discovery are properly admissible. .... Other statements connected with the one thus made evidence, and so mediately, (2) but not necessarily or directly, connected with the fact discovered are not to be admitted, as this would rather be an evasion than a fulfilment of the law, which is designed to guard prisoners accused of offences against unfair practices on the part of the police. For instance, a man says: "You will find a stick at such and such a place I killed Rama with it." A policeman, in such a case, may be allowed to say he went to the place indicated, and found the stick; but any statement as to the confession of murder would be inadmissible If instead of 'you will find,' the prisoner has said, 'I placed a sword or knife in such a spot,' where it was found, that too, though it involves an admission of a particular act on the prisoner's part, is admissible, because it is the information which has directly led to the Alaka, supra, is not reconcilable with the principle laid down in R v. Jora Hassi, 11 Bom H C R., 242 (1874). R. v. Rama Birapa, 3 B., 12, 17 (1878), R v Babu Lal, 6 A , 509 (1831), Adu Shildar v R . 11 C . 635 (1895) . R v Commer Sahib, 12 M., 153 (1888), R. v. Nana, 14 B., 260 (1859), and is indeed virtually overruled by 4da Shilder v R, aupra referred to in Legal Remembrancer v Chema Nashya, 25 C., 413 (1897), re The Madras Law Journal, supra, April 1895, p. 129, et any and Field, Ev , 146 In the last cited case, it was said per Banerjee, J. 'The view I take is in no way inconsistent with that taken by the Court in Ada Shilder v R . as the part of the information or statement that is here used as evidence against the accused unde a. 27, relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered and does not go beyond it," p. 416.

<sup>(1)</sup> Per Sargent, C. J., in R. v. Nasa, 14 B., 260, 263 (1889), and see R. v. Commer Sahib, 12 M., 153, 154 (1898)

<sup>(2)</sup> The relevancy of mediate connection appears to be the ratio decidends of the case of R v Pagaree Shaha, 19 W R , Cr , 51 (1873), in which a wider construction was put on the words "as relates distinctly," so as to admit not only so much of the information as leads directly and immediately to the discovery of the fact, but also the portion which leads mediately by may of explanation. Though Brodhurst, J , in referring to this case in R. v. Babu Lal, 6 4 . 509, at p 518 (1894), save that no difference is noticeable in the rulings of R v Pagarer Shaka, supra . R v Jora Hasji, post . R v. Panchem, 4 A., 198 (1882), as to the extent to which statements or confessions of accused persons can be proved by a police-officer under a 27. It m. however, submitted that the ruling in R v Paparee discovery, and is thus distinctly, and independently of any other statement connected with it. But if, besides this, the prisoner has said what induced him to put the knife or sword where it has been found, that part of his statement, as it has not furthered, much less caused, the discovery, is not admissible. The words in the twenty-seventh section of the Evidence Act 'whether it amounts to a confession or not' are to be read as qualifying the word 'information' in the immediately preceding context, not the words so much .' and the effect is that, although ordinarily a confession of an accused while in custody would be wholly excluded, yet if, in the course of such a confession, information leading to the discovery of a relevant fact has been given, so much of the information as distinctly led to this result may be deposed to, though, as a whole, the statement would constitute a confession which the preceding sections are intended to exclude,"(1) So where two persons. B and R, accused of offences under section 414 of the Penal Code, gave information to the police which led to the discovery of the stolen pr perty (this information being to the effect that the accused had stolen a con and calf. and sold them to a particular person at a particular place) the Appellate Court observed that, "If he (the Sessions Judge) had applied, as he should have done, the rule thereby (section 27) laid down, he ought to have held that that nortion of H's (the police-witness) statement in which he deposed 'they said they got' (I suppose this was intended to mean stole) 'the cow from LT.' they said that they had stolen a cow and a calf, 'they have stolen it from S 6. of Jaitpur,' 'they had stolen a gost in Belupur and sold it,' was madinissible. The only fact about the cow and calf which was admissible as distinctly relating to the discovery of those animals at A R J's was that they sold it at Madanpur to him. As to the goat, there is nothing to show from the constable's deposition, that it was in consequence of what the accused told him that he found the goat in Chelgani."(2) So also where the prisoner told the police that certain cloths had been left by him with some of the prosecution-witnesses, and the Sessions Judge was of opinion that the statement of the prisoner that he had left the property with these persons should not be proved in evidence, but only that he said that certain property would be so found, the Madras High Court held this view to be wrong, observing . "The reasonable construction is that, in addition to the fact discovered, so much of the information as was the immediate cause of its discovery is legal evidence. The statement made by the prisoner in this case, riz., that he had deposited the cloths produced with the witnesses, who delivered them up on demand, was the proximate cause of their discovery and was admissible in evidence. If he had proceeded further and stated that they were cloths which he stole on the day mentioned in the charge from the complainant, that statement would not be evidence, for it would be only introductory to a further act on his part, rez., that of leaving the cloths with the witnesses, and on that ground it would not be the immediate cause of, or the necessary preliminary to, the fact discovered. The test is: 'was the fact discovered by reason of the information,' and how much of the information was the immediate cause of the fact discovered, and as such a relevant fact "(3) Again, an accused was charged under section 411 of the Penal Code, with

R. v. Jora Hasp, 11 Bons, H. C. R., 242,
 244, 245 (1874); and see R. v. Rama Biraga, 3
 B. 12, 17 (1878)

<sup>(2)</sup> R v Hohn Let, 8 A., 1997, 849, 850, per Straight, J (1884), and v. is, 514, per (Midfeld, J., and 518, per Healmert, J The explanation of Straight, J. as to the meaning of a 27 (at p. 461) was followed by the Calcutta High Court in Adu Sheldar v. R., 11 C, 633, 641 (1885) as to the confessional statements in which case to ask up. 168, 169

<sup>(3)</sup> R. v. Commer Sahib, 12 M., 153 (1888) The Court added: "This appears to us substantially the principle on whith the cases reported in Ide Shilder v. R., R. v. Pancham, and R. v. Jura Hasps were decided," if at p. 154, Nantappel East. R. (1993), 31 M., 128 dishonestly receiving stolen property. In the course of the police-investigation the accused was asked by the police where the property was. He replied that he had kept it, and would show. He said he had buried the property in the fields. He then took the police to the spot where the property was concealed. and with his own hands disinterred the earthen pot in which the property was kept. The Court held that the statement by the accused, that he had buried the property in the fields, distinctly set the police in motion, and led to the discovery of the property. But the statement that "he had kept" the property was not necessarily connected with the fact discovered, and was therefore not admissible (1)

28. If such a confession as is referred to in section 24 is confession made after the impression caused by any such inducement, threat, made after moval or or promise, has, in the opinion of the Court, been fully removed, it impression is released by induce is relevant.

ment, threat, or promis

Principle.-If a confession has been obtained from the prisoner by undue means, any statement afterwards made by him under the influence of that confession cannot be admitted as evidence.(2) But the confession in the case mentioned in this section is deemed to be voluntary and is received as the result of reflection and free determination, unaffected and uninduced by the original threat or promise.(3)

s. 24 (Confession caused by inducement) s. 3 (" Relevant.") s. 3 (" Court.")

Steph, Dig., Art. 22; Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 41-43; Taylor, Ev., 878, 3 Russ. Cr., 459—463; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 229, 236, Wills, Ev., 213; Field, Ev., 149.

COMMENTARY

This section forms an exception to the law pro section.(4) and as a qualification of that section sh it. The impression caused by the inducement may lapse of time, or by an intervening act, such as a call of superior authority, (5) to the person holding out the inducement. An inducement may continue to operate on a man's mind for a considerable time after it was uttered (6) but, on the other hand, it may be altogether removed by subsequent statements which precede the confession, and which clearly inform the defendant that he must expect no temporal advantage from making one (7) Thus where a Magistrate had told a prisoner that if the latter would confess he would use his influence to obtain a pardon for him, and had afterwards received a letter from the Secretary of State refusing the pardon, which letter the Magismitting Magistrate on the following day, he was

<sup>(1)</sup> R v Nana, 14 B., 260, 265 (1889) (2) 3 Russ, Cr., 458.

<sup>(3)</sup> See notes, past and Introduction, aute as also s. 24, outr , Steph The , 4rt, 22,

<sup>(4)</sup> R. v. Pancham, 4 A., 198, 201 (1288). (5) R. v Lingate, 1 Phillips, Fv., 414, Roscor, 12th Ed., 41 [the prisoner on being taken into custoly had been told by a person who came to assist the constable, that it would be better for him to confees; but on his being examined before the com-frequently cautioned by the Magistrate to say nothing against himself, a confession under these circumstances before the Magistrate was held to be clearly admissible), R v Bate, 11 tox, 646; R v Romer, 1 Phillips, Ev., 414, Roscor, Cr Fr., 12th Ed , 41 R v Hores 6C & P , 404 , ore Plapson, Fr , 3rd Ed , 236 , Field, Ev , 149 , Norton, Ev., 166, 167; as to the statutory form of warning, <sup>## 11 &</sup>amp; 12 \ K., c. 42, a. 18. (6) Wills, Er., 213, R. v. Hewitt, I C. & M., 534.

<sup>(7) 1</sup>b.; R. v. Cleves, 4 C. & P., 221.

discovery, and is thus distinctly, and independently of any other statement connected with it. But if, besides this, the prisoner has said what induced him to put the knife or sword where it has been found, that part'of his statement, as it has not furthered, much less caused, the discovery, is not admissible. The words in the twenty-seventh section of the Evidence Act whether it amounts to a confession or not are to be read as qualifying the word 'information' in the immediately preceding context, not the words so much;' and the effect is that, although ordinarily a confession of an accused while in custody would be wholly excluded, yet if, in the course of such a confession, information leading to the discovery of a relevant fact has been given, so much of the information as distinctly led to this result may be deposed to, though, as a whole, the statement would constitute a confession which the preceding sections are intended to exclude."(1) So where two persons. B and R, accused of offences under section 414 of the Penal Code, gave information to the police which led to the discovery of the stolen property (this information being to the effect that the -and calf and all it

Court .

have d , ..... uown, ne ought to have held that that possed of Il's (the police-witness) statement in which he deposed 'they said they got' (I suppose this was intended to mean stole) 'the cow from LT.' they said that they had stolen a cow and a calf, they have stolen it from S 6, of Jastpur,' 'they had stolen a goat in Belupur and sold it,' was inadmissible. The only fact about the cow and calf which was admissible as distinctly relating to the discovery of those animals at A R J's was that they sold it at Madanpur to him. As to the goat, there is nothing to show from the constable's deposition, that it was in consequence of what the accused told him that he found the goat in Chelgan; "(2) So also where the prisoner told the police that certain cloths had been left by him with some of the prosecution-witnesses, and the Sessions Judge was of opinion that the statement of the prisoner that he had left the property with these persons should not be proved in evidence, but only that he said that certain property would be so found, the Madras High Court held this view to be wrong, observing "The reasonable construction is that, in addition to the fact discovered, so much of the information as was the immediate cause of its discovery is legal evidence. The statement made by the prisoner in this case, riz., that he had deposited the clothe produced with the witnesses, who delivered them up on demand, was the proximate cause of their discovery and was admissible in evidence. If he had proceeded further and stated that they were cloths which he stole on the day mentioned in the charge from the complainant, that statement would not be evidence, for it would be only introductory to a further act on his part, >12, that of leaving the cloths with the witnesses, and on that ground it would not be the immediate cause of, or the necessary prehiminary to, the fact discovered. The test is: 'was the fact discovered by reason of the information,' and how much of the information was the immediate cause of the fact discovered, and as such a relevant fact ?"(3) Again, an accused was charged under section 411 of the Penal Code, with

R v. Jorn Hasp, 11 Rem. H. C. R., 242,
 244, 245 (1874); and see R. v. Rama Biraja,
 B. 12, 17 (1878)

<sup>(2)</sup> R. v. Bahs Laf. 6 A., 599, 549, 554, per Oldfeld, J. (1883), and v. ö., 514, per Oldfeld, J., and 618, per Brodhuret, J. The explanation of Straight, J., as to the meaning of a IT (at p. 554) was followed by the Calcutta High Countries of Machideav R., 117 (2, 32), 611 (1882) as to the confessional statements in which case a, use pp. 168, 169

<sup>(3)</sup> R. v. Commer Sahib, 12 M., 153 (1889). The Court added: "This appears to us substantially the principle on which the cases reported in Ada Shibdar v. R., R. v. Pancham, and R. v. Joer Haspi were decided," S. at p. 154. Saulappa East v. R. (1993), 31 M., 127.

[s. 28.]

dishonestly receiving stolen property. In the course of the police-investigation the accused was asked by the police where the property was. He replied that he had kept it, and would show. He said he had buried the property in the fields. He then took the police to the spot where the property was concealed, and with his own hands disinterred the earthen pot in which the property was kept. The Court held that the statement by the accused, that he had buried the property in the fields, distinctly set the police in motion, and led to the discovery of the property. But the statement that "he had kept" the property was not necessarily connected with the fact discovered, and was therefore not admissible (1)

28. If such a confession as is referred to in section 24 is confession 28. If such a contession as is reteriou to in section. As to contession made after the impression caused by any such inducement, threat, removal of the Church learn fully removaled; it impressions or promise, has, in the opinion of the Court, been fully removed, it impression to the court, been fully removed, it impression to the court, been fully removed. is relevant.

threat, or promise, relevant.

Principle.—If a confession has been obtained from the prisoner by undue means, any statement afterwards made by him under the influence of that confession cannot be admitted as evidence (2) But the confession in the case mentioned in this section is deemed to be voluntary and is received as the result of reflection and free determination, unaffected and uninduced by the original threat or promise.(3)

s. 24 (Confession caused by inducement) s. 3 (" Relevant.") s. 3 (" Court.")

Steph. Dig., Art. 22; Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 41-43; Taylor, Ev., 878; 3 Russ. Cr., 458—463; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 229, 236; Wills, Ev., 213, Field, Ev., 149.

COMMENTARY

This section forms an exception to the law prosection,(4) and as a qualification of that section sh it. The impression caused by the inducement may lapse of time, or by an intervening act, such as a caution given by some persons ment of superior authority (5) to the person holding out the inducement. An inducement may continue to operate on a man's mind for a considerable time after it was uttered ,(6) but, on the other hand, it may be altogether removed by subsequent statements which precede the confession, and which clearly inform the defendant that he must expect no temporal advantage from making one (7) Thus where a Magistrate had told a prisoner that if the latter would confess he would use his influence to obtain a pardon for him, and had afterwards received a letter from the Secretary of State refusing the pardon, which letter the Magis-

<sup>(1)</sup> R. v. Nana, 14 B , 260, 265 (1889)

<sup>(2) 3</sup> Russ Cr , 458

<sup>(3)</sup> See notes, post and Introduction, ante, as also s. 24, aute , Steph Dig , Art. 22

<sup>(4)</sup> R v Panchom, 4 A, 194, 201 (128n). (5) R. v. Lingale, I Phillips, Ev., 414; Roscor. 12th Ed., 41 (the prisoner on being taken into custody had been told by a person who came to assist the constable, that it would be better for him to confess, but on his being examined before the committing Magistrate on the following day, he was frequently cautioned by the Magistrate to sav nothing against himself , a confession under these circumstances before the Magistrate was held to be clearly admissible! R v Eate, 11 (ox, 686; R v Rosser, 1 Phillips, Ev., 414; Roscoe, Cr Ev., 12th Ed , 41 . R v Hores 60' & P , 404 ; or Phipson, Ev , 3rd Ed , 236 , Field, Ev , 149 ; Norton, Ev., 166, 167, as to the statutory form of warning, pe 11 & 12 \ K., c. 42, s. 18.

<sup>(6)</sup> Wills, Ev., 213, R. v " & 31., 534. (7) R. R. v. Cleres, 4

trate communicated to the prisoner, a confesssion subsequently made was held to be admissible.(1) It is for the Court to decide under all the circumstances of the particular case whether the improper influence was totally done away with before the confession was made. In this, as well as other respects, the admissibility of the confession is a question for the Judge (2) Where the latter is satisfied that the influence has really ceased, the confession will be admitted.(3) But there ought to be strong evidence that the influence has ceased. In R. v. Sherrington, (4) Patteson, J., rejected a second confession, saving, "there ought to be strong evidence to show that the impression under which the first confession was made, was afterwards removed, before the second confession can be received. I am of opinion in this case, that the prisoner must be considered to have made the second confession, under the same influence as he made the first . the interval of time being too short to allow of the supposition that it was the result of reflection and voluntary determination.".

Confession irrelevant because of promise of secrecy, etc.

29. If such a confession is otherwise relevant, it does not relevant not become irrelevant merely because it was made under a promise of secrecy, or in consequence of a deception practised on the accused person for the purpose of obtaining it, or when he was drunk, or because it was made in answer to questions which he need not have answered, whatever may have been the form of those questions, or because he was not warned that he was not bound to make such confession, and that evidence of it might be given against him.

> Principle -In order that a confession should be invalidated, there must be an inducement operating to influence the mind of the accused either by hope of escape or through fear of punishment connected with the charge-Such inducement must relate to the charge and reasonably imply that the position of the accused with reference to it will be rendered better or worse according as he does or does not confess. If the confession be obtained by any other influence, it will not be invalidated (though its weight may be affected, (5) however much it would have been more proper not to have exerted such influence, and however much the statement itself may become liable to suspicion. The fore the Sessions Judge was made after the improssion caused by the promise had been fully removed.) Reg v Nacrop Hadabhas, 9 Bom H. C R . 359, 370 (1872) [where an inducement was held out to the prisoner in his house and he was immediately after taken to the Traffic Manager of & limiway, in whose presence he signed a receipt for a certain sum of money. Sargent, C J., said it would be impossible to hold that the impression was removed in the short interest which elapsed between the inducement and the signing of the receipt], R. v Sherrington, post.

<sup>(1)</sup> R v. Cleves, supra, see also R v. Houes, 6 C. & P. 404

<sup>(2) 3</sup> Russ. Ct. 458, Field. Dt. 149

<sup>(3)</sup> For cases where the inducement has been held to have censed, see Roscov, Cr. Es , 12th Ed , 41 , Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 236, and where held not to have ceased, Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 42 Phipson, Ev . th , and R v Museumat Luchim. 5 N -W. P., 86, 89 (1873) [where a confession had been made upon the inducement held out by the police that nothing would happen if the prisoner confessed, and the prisoner made two different confessions, the one before the Magistrate and the other before the Sessions Judge, who accepted both confessions but did not record any opinion on the point, the Appeal Court held that if it was not prepared to say that the confermion made be-present section states certain non-invalidating origins of a confession. In none of the instances given is there any inducement relating to the charge, held out to the accused which is of the character above mentioned and the subject of the prohibition contained in the twenty-fourth section.(1) The circumstances mentioned do not affect the testimonial trustworthiness of the concession.

<sup>(4) 2</sup> Lewin, C C., 123, cited in Roscoe, Cr. Ec , 47, 49; 3 Russ , Cr , 458

<sup>(5)</sup> R. v Spilsbury, 7 C. & P., 187; v post; Best, Ev., 4 529

8 21 (Proof of admissions against persons

B. 3 (" Evidence.")

s. 132 (Criminating answers) making them.) s. 3 (" Relevant.")

Steph, Dig., Art. 24 : Taylor, Ev., §§ 881, 882 ; Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 43 ; Phip son Ev., 3rd Ed., 230; Wills, Ev., 213; Phillips and Arnold, Ev., 420, 421; Norton, Ev., 167; Best, Ev., § 529, Cr. Pr. Code (Act V of 1898), sq. 163, 343. Wigmore, Ev., § 823. Jov's Confessions, 50,

COMMENTARY

Non-invali-dating

The principle of testimonial untrustworthiness being the foundation of confession. exclusions, the confessions should be taken into account unless their cause was such that the accused was likely to have been induced to untruly confess.(2) The non-invalidating origins of a confession, which are mentioned in this sertion are :- (a) promise of secrecy, (b) deception, (c) drunkenness, (d) interrogation; (e) want of warning. But there may be others. So what the accused has been overheard muttering to himself or saving to his wife or to any other person in confidence will be receivable in evidence.(3)

Promise of

This does not make the confession madmissible, though a confidence is thus created in the mind of the prisoner and he is thrown off his guard, the true question seems to be-Does such confidence render it probable that the prisoner should be thus induced untruly to confess himself guilty of a crime of which he was innocent ?(4) Thus A was in custody on a charge of murder, B, a fellow prisoner, said to him, "I wish you would tell me how you murdered the boy-pray split." A replied, "Will you be upon your oath not to mention what I tell you?" B went upon his oath that he would not tell. A then made a statement :- held that this was not such an inducement to confess as would render the statement inadmissible.(5)

Deception

Where a prisoner in jail on a charge of felony, asked the turnkey of the jail to put a letter into the post for him, and after his promising to do so, the prisoner gave him a letter addressed to his father, and the turnkey, instead of putting it into the post, transmitted it to the prosecutor, it was held that the contents of the letter were admissible in evidence against the prisoner as a confession, notwithstanding the manner in which it was obtained (6) In another case, artifice was used to induce a prisoner to suppose that some of his accom-

<sup>(1)</sup> Norton, Ev . 167 , see s 246 ante . Taylor. Fr . § 641 . Best, Ev , § 529 , see notes to B v Garin, 15 Cox, 656, and R v Brackenbury, 17 Cox, 628 (1893)

<sup>(2)</sup> Wigmore, Er , § 823, thus a confession is not excluded because of any breach of confidence or deception. The question in all cases is, was the inducement such as by possibility to elicit an untrue acknowledgment of guilt " are § 824 (3) R v Samons, 6 C. & P., 540 , R. v Sogrena,

<sup>7</sup> W R , Or , 56 (1867) but not what he has been heard to say in his sleep , aste, p 213 (4) Joy on Confessions, 50

<sup>(5)</sup> R v Show 6 C & P , 373 , R v Nabadenp, Goswami 1 R. L. P. (7 15, 23 (1869), and when a witness promised that what the prisoner said should go on further, the confession was received : R. v. Thomas, 7 C & P , 345

<sup>(6)</sup> R v Ibrrington, 2C. & P., 418, R.v. Nabadanp Gorgami, supra. 23.

plices were in cu-tody, under which mistaken supposition he made a confession. and it was admitted in evidence.(1)

Drunkenness

Whether the prisoner be made drunk for the purpose or with the motive of getting a confession, or made the confession while he has made himself drunk. it is equally receivable (2)

Interroga-

Much less will a confession be rejected merely because it has been elicited by questions put to the prisoner whoever (subject to the provisions of the twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth sections) (3) may be the interrogator and the form of the questions is immaterial, it may be in a leading form or even assume the prisoner's guilt (4) Thus a confession elicited by questions put by a Magistrate has been held admissible in England (5) In India the law expressly provides for the examination of the accused person by the Court (6) When the confession is contained in an answer given by a witness to a question put to him in the witness-box the provisions contained in section 132, post, must be borne in mind

Want of warning

A voluntary confession, too, is admissible, though it does not appear that the prisoner was warned, and even though it appears on the contrary that he was not so warned (7) It is no part of the duty of a Magistrate to tell an accused person that anything he may say will go as evidence against him.(8) The Criminal Procedure Code(9) enacts that no police-officer or other person shall prevent, by any caution or otherwise, any person from making, in the course of any investigation under Chapter XIV, any statement which he may be disposed to make of his own free will tion of provsion affecting person making it and others jointly unsame offence

Considera-When more persons than one are being tried jointly for the same offence, and a confession made by one of such persons affecting himself and some other of such persons is proved, the Court may take into consideration such confession as against such other person as well as against the person who makes such confession.

> Explanation .- "Offence," as used in this section, includes the abetment of, or attempt to commit, the offence. (10)

(1) R . Bueley, 1 Phillips & Arn., 420, see 11-0 R v. Ram Churn, 20 W R Cr., 33 (1873) in which the deception practised consisted of a statement made by the police-officer to the prisoner that the latter's brother-in-law had given out that he was mults

(2) R & Apilobury, 7 C. & P., 167, in which case Coleradge J. said "This | the fact that the prisoner was drunk 1 is matter of observation for me upon the weight that ought to attach to this statement when it is considered by the jury " her Bert, Er . 152)

(3) As to the English rule in regard to admissums obtained by questions he the police, see R. v. Ernekenburg 17, Cox, 629, not following R. v. Garia, 15 Cax. 656, which seems not to be law. we cases cited in Physics. Fr., 3rd Ed., 230; Taylor, Et .. | Atl ; Roscoe, Cr. Fr , 12th El. 43 As to the answers given to the police not amounting to a confession of guilt, see R v Nabadurp Gurams, 1 B, L, R., Cr., 15, 20 (1868)

(4) Taulor, In . § 881

(5) R v Rees, 7 C & P. 589, R. v Ellis, 1 Rt & M., 432 , cited in R. v. Nabadarip Gaswani, Supra, 25.

(6) Field, Ev., 150, Cr. Pr. Code, s. 342 (7) Taylor, Ev., 55 881, 882, see Field, Fr

150, 151 . R . Ashadway Goncams, 1 B. L. R . Cr , 15 (1868), the decision in which, on this point. has been followed by the present section

(8) R. v Uzer, 10 C , 775, 777 (1884)

(9) S 167 ( let 1 of 1808)

(10) This explanation was inserted in this section by let III of 1891, a 4, and alters the law in this respect as faul down in H. v Jaffer Ali, 19 W. F. Cr. 57 (1873). Bade v. E. 7 M. 570 (1884); R. v Alagappa Bali, Heir, 3rd Ed., 479a (1996). 1. pod, p. 241

Illustration .

(a) A and B are jointly tried for the murder of C. It is proved that A said-'B and I murdered C.' The Court may consider the effect of this confession as against B.

(b) A is on his trial for the murder of C. There is evidence to show that C was murdered by A and B, and that B said- A and I murdered C.

This statement may not be taken into consideration by the Court against A, as B is not being jointly tried.

Principle,-When a person makes a confession, which affects both himself and another, the fact of self-implication takes the place, as it were, of the sanction of an oath, or, is rather supposed to serve as some guarantee for the truth of the accusation against the other.(1) For when a person admits his guilt and exposes himself to the pains and penalties provided therefor, there is a guarantee for his truth.(2) The guarantee, however, is a very weak one, for if the fact of self-inculpation is not in all cases a guarantee of the truth of a statement even as against the person making it, much less is it so as against another. Further, a confession may be true so far as it implicates the maker, but may be false and concocted through malice and revenge so far as it affects others. While such a confession deserves ordinarily very little reliance, it is nevertheless impossible for a Judge to ignore it, and he need no longer pretend to do so, the provisions of this section being inserted for the purpose of relieving him from the attempt to perform an intellectual impossibility (3)

s. 3 (" Court.") s. 3 (" Proted ") Norton, Ev., 169; Cunningham, Ev., 26, 27, 148; Field, Ev. 156-159.

COMMENTARY.

The general rule of English law (4) and the rule which prevailed in India Construcprior to the passing of this Act(5) is and was, that the confession of an accused tion person is only evidence against himself and cannot be used against others. This section forms an exception to this rule The grounds upon which it has been enacted have been adverted to , but the weakness of the guarantee afforded by self-implication and the dangerous and exceptional character of the evidence require that this section should be construed very strictly .(6) and accordingly such a construction has been applied to each of its terms. Thus it has been held that a person who pleads guilty is not being "tried jointly," that the prisoners must be legally tried jointly, and at the same time that the words "same offence" excluded abetments and attempts, that the term " proved " is to be interpreted strictly, and that no weight is to be given to the confession as against any person other than the party making it, unless it is

<sup>(1)</sup> R v Belat 41, 19 W R Cr , 67 (1873) per Phear J. R v Jagrap, 7 A. 646, 648 (1885) per Straight, J The object sought by the rule of law to a safeguard for sincerety and for information," R . Aur Valomed, 8 B , 223 227 (1883), per West, J

<sup>(2)</sup> R v Hapt Varies, 6 B , 288, 291 (1882) per

<sup>(3)</sup> See remarks on this section in Cunningham . Fr., 26, 27, 145

<sup>(4)</sup> Roscoe, (r F1 49, 50 Taxlor, F1 51 04 871, Phipson, Fr., 3rd Ed., 231 Powell, Fv., 320

<sup>(5)</sup> R. v. Kally Churn Lohar, 6 W. P., Cr., 84 (1866), R v Bunruddi, S W P., Cr 35 (1867); R v Durbaron Dass, 13 W R Cr 14 (1970); B . Sadha Mundul, 21 W R , Cr 69 71 (1874) per Phear J The provision contained in the section is a new one there being no similar rule either in Act II of 1855, or in the Criminal Procedure Codes of 1861, 1872

<sup>(6)</sup> R . Jaffer th. 19 W. R. (7.57, 64 (1873) . per Colover 1 . R v Malappa Bis 14 Ind Jur . $ 5.19 (1891) see R v Solin Mundul, supra ; Field, Ev., 156, Norton, Fr., 169, corroborated by independent testimony (v. post). This section must be read together with, and subject to, the provisions contained in sections 24-27, ante (v. post).

"Tried

And in a recent case it has been held by the Madras High Court that under section 27 and this section a confession made by one accused can be taken into consideration against another accused when such confession is the immediate cause of the discovery of some fact relevant as against the other accused, and a direction to the jury to take such a confession into consideration when it is not the immediate cause of such a discovery is a misdirection.(1)

It is not sufficient that the co-accused should be tried jointly in fact; they must be legally tried jointly.(2) The section applies only to cases in which the confession is made by a prisoner tried at the same time with the accused person against whom the confession is used.(3) Upon the question whether, if one of several prisoners pleads quilty, such person can be held to be "tried jointly" with the rest so as to let in his confession against the others who have claimed a trial. (i) it is clearly established that a prisoner who pleads guilty at the trial and is thereupon convicted and sentenced cannot be said to be jointly tried with the other prisoners committed on the same charge who pleaded not guilty .(4) (11) and, if the prisoner's plea of guilty is not accepted by the Court, it is plain that such prisoner is still being jointly tried with the rest. (5) For it is not correct to say that a criminal trial ends with a plea of guilty ,(6) (111) The only case in which there may be a doubt is, where neither of these courses has been explicitly adopted, but the accused who has pleaded guilty is left in the dock merely to see what the evidence will show as against him, though the Court intends ultimately to convict him on the plea of guilty. In such a case it would not be fair to allow his confession to be considered as against his co-accused for that would be in effect to comply with the forms of justice while violating it in substance.(7) The mere fact that a prisoner, who has pleaded guilty, is not immediately convicted and sentenced, but is kept in the dock with the prisoners who are being tried, until the close of their trial, will not render his confession admissible, for immediate conviction and sentence are not necessary to exclude a confession by a co prisoner who has pleaded guilty.(8) So where the Judge kept the prisoner in the dock, unconvicted and not sentenced merely because it was possible that the evidence elicited at the trial might enable the Court to determine whether to pass a sentence of death or transportation, it was held that his confession could not be considered as against his co-accused as there was in fact under such circumstances after the plea of guilty, no joint trial (9)

When one of several prisoners pleads guilty, the proper course for the Court before whom the trial of the others is pending is to sentence him and either to

M , 491 (1899).

Sankappa Rai v. E. (1908).
 R v. Jagat Chandra.
 C. 50, 72, 73 (1894).
 R v. Shelh Buzza.
 W. R., Cr. 65 (1874).

<sup>(4)</sup> R. v. Kala Path. J. Bom. H. C. R. , 148 (1871). Features v. R. r. 7 M., 102 (1883). Werr. 3rd Ed., 491, R. v. Chead Falad, 14 Ind. Jar. N. S., 125 (1890); R. v. Patha, 17 A. , 524 (1895). e. W. N. (1895). H., it is not quite whether in the three last-mentioned cases the property were financialized convicted and semiconed on Juding guilly, but it seems so; R. v. t. kinner Parends, 23 M., 181 (1994).

<sup>(3)</sup> Confirmation case, No. 22 of 1893, cited in R v. Pahaja, supra, 1985; R. v. Chiman Parachy, 23 M. 151 (1899).

<sup>(6)</sup> R v Chinna Paruchi, 23 M., 151 (1899), dissenting from K v. Lakshmayya Pandaram, 22

<sup>(7)</sup> R. v. Chinna Patschi, 23 M., 151, 154 (1879), R. v. Pollua, 23 A, 53 (1990); R. v. Khemai, (1998), 30 A, 340, and as to English rule on this point, see R. v. Goold (1998); C. C. Sess Pa v. 140, 596, at p. 437.

<sup>(8)</sup> E. v. Pahuji, 19 B., 105, 197 (1994). See Subrahamana Ayyar v. E. 23 M., 60 (1001) [when an accessed person pleads guilty nothing remain's to be tried as letteren him and the Crown). Int. see R. v. Kala Patti, supra, 148, F. v. Ram Sanas, R. A., 304, 509 (1895)

<sup>(9)</sup> Ib.

.41:

"m from the dock and call him as a witness.(2) the dock unconvicted merely to see what the him in the dock (whether he be convicted or not), and either to read out his confession made previously, or to allow a person to give an account of what the prisoner had told him, (4) or to take a statement which he makes (5)

The meaning of this expression is an offence coming under the same legal "For the definition. (6) or the same substantive offence. (7) or the same specific offence. (8) offence. But when two persons are accused of an offence of the same definition, arising out of a single transaction, the confession of the one may be used against the other, though it inculpates himself through acts separable from those ascribed to his accomplice, and capable, therefore, of constituting a separate offence from that of the accomplice.(9) Prior to the insertion of the Explanation to this section, the commission of an offence and the commission of its abetment were held to be different offences. Thus it was held that, upon the trial of A for murder, and B for abetment thereof, a confession by A implicating B could not be taken into consideration against B under this section. (10) Act III of 1891 has, however, by the insertion of the Explanation to this section, altered the law in this respect. But this Explanation applies only to cases where one person is charged with an offence and another is actually charged with, and tried for, abetment of it.(11) Where there is a joint trial of accused persons under entirely different sections of the Penal Code, the confession of a co-accused cannot be taken into consideration against the other.(12) But if a joint trial has commenced in which the prisoners are charged under different sections, and afterwards the charge is altered, so that all the prisoners are then tried under the same section, their confessions may be admissible against each other. Thus where A and B were being jointly tried before a Court of Sessions, the first for murder, and the second for abetment of murder, a confession made by A that he himself had committed the murder, at the instigation of B, was put in as evidence against A. Subsequently the charge against A was altered to one of abetment of murder, and the Sessions Judge, under the authority of this section, used the confession against both and convicted them. The High Court held that the original and amended charges were so nearly related that the trial might, without any unfairness, be deemed to have been a trial on the amended whether co-accused can be examined as a witness after conviction and before sentence, see R v Annya, 3 Born, L. R., 437 (1901). Where two prisoners are tried together for different offences committed in the same transaction, it is improper and illegal to examine one prisoner as a witness against the other. In the matter of A David, 5 C. L. R., 574 (1880), referred to in Bushny. Bankary R . 1 C W N . 35 (1896).

<sup>(1)</sup> R v. Kalu Patil, supra, 148, R v Chinna Faruchi, supra (2) Venkatasamı v. R., supra, 104 , R v Pahuji, *upra, 198 , R v. Chinna Pavuchi, supra Quære,

<sup>(3)</sup> R. v Pakuji, supra, 197, R v Chinna Particks, 23 M., 151 154 (1899) but see R. v. Sala Patri R v Ram Saran, supra, be est

<sup>(4)</sup> Lenkatasams v R , supra, 103 (5) R. v Pirthu, 17 A , 524 (1895). a. c., W N. (1895), 111.

<sup>(6)</sup> R. v Malappa Bin, 14 Ind , Jur , N.S., 19, 20 (18'0), R. v Nur Valomed, 8 B., 223, 226

<sup>(7)</sup> B v. Alagappan Bals, West, 3rd Ed., 499a (1896), ore also Deputy Legal Remembrancer v.

Karuna Basstobs, 22 C., 164, 173 (1894) (8) Bad: v R, 7 M, 579 (1894), sub nom Mahomed Sahib, Weir, 3rd Ed., 495, R v Malappa Bin, supra.

<sup>(9)</sup> R v Nur Mahomed, 8 B. 223 (1883) (10) Bads v R , 7 M , 579 (1884) , and see R v

Jaffir 41s, 19 W R , Cr , 57 (1873) , R , tlagap pan Bali, Weir, 3rd Ed., 499a (1666), P v Ameria Govada, 10 Bom. H. C. R., 497, 499 (1873).

<sup>(11)</sup> Deputy Legal Remembrances v Karuna Baustobi, 22 C 164, 173 (1594)

<sup>(12)</sup> R v Bala Patel, 5 B, 63 (1840), R. v. Amesta Goranda, 10 Born. H. C. R., 497, 499 (1873). Deputy Legal Remembrancer v Karung Basaida. supra, be cut. R v. Hayappan Bale, Weir, 3rd Ed., 490a (1886), R v. Meloppe Bin, 14 Ind. Jur., N. 5, 19 (1890).

charge from the commencement; and that no objection having been taken by B. who was represented by a Vakil, to the admissibility of A's confession against hun when the charge against A was altered, the Sessions Judge was justified in using the confession against B also.(1)

"Confeesion.

The word must be construed as meaning the same in this section as in the twenty-fourth, twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth sections.(2) The subject of incriminatory statements which fall short of full admissions of guilt has been already dealt with.(3) A mere admission from which no inference of guilt follows, is not within this section, though it implicates others, and is evidence. therefore, only against the maker. Before a statement can be taken into consideration against a fellow prisoner, it must amount to a "confession" on the part of the maker with respect to the offence with which all are charged.(4) A statement of an accused person, "taken with the other evidence might well seem to establish the case against him. But when the statement is to be used against those jointly charged and tried with him, it must be a confession in the strict sense of the term. Its inherent quality must be that of a confession " Where the inherent quality of the statement by the prisoner is not a confession, it cannot be used against the other accused (5) "This Court has already had occasion in more than one case to point out that confessions, which are made use of under the thirtieth section of the Evidence Act, in the first place, can only be used so far as they make the confessing prisoner guilty of the offence for which all are being tried; and secondly, cannot stand higher than the evidence of an accomplice (6) test section 30 of the Evidence Act intended should be applied to a statement of one prisoner proposed to be used in evidence as against another, is to see whether it is sufficient by itself to justify the conviction of the person making it of the offence for which he is being jointly tried with the other person or persons against whom it is tendered. In fact, to use a popular and wellunderstood phrase, the confessing prisoner must tar himself, and the person or persons he implicates, with one and the same brush,"(7)

To render the statement of one person jointly tried with another for the same offence hable to consideration against that other, it is necessary that it should amount to a distinct confession of the offence charged. (8) In one case. (9) it appears to have been held that the word 'confession' is limited to confessions of actual guilt, but it would seem that this is not so, and that the term will include statements which amount either to a direct admission of constructive guilt or statements short of such admission, but from which the inference of constructive guilt follows,(10)

213 (1873)

<sup>(1)</sup> R. v. Gorand Bable, 11 Bonn. H. C. R., 278 (1874)

<sup>(2)</sup> R v Jugrup 7 V, 616, 648 (1885)

<sup>(3)</sup> v ante p. 246

<sup>(4)</sup> R v Makesh Bismus, 19 W. R. Cr., 16 (1873). R v. Jaffer 47c 19 W R . Cr., 57 (1873) . R v. Belat Ab. 19 W R , Cr , 67 (1873) , R v. Ameria Garanda, 10 Bom. H. C. R., 497, 500, 501 (1873). R. v. Kukrer Doram. 21 W. B., Cr., 48 (1874). L. v. Banwaree Lall, 21 W. R. Cr. 53 (1874); R v Nogo, 23 W. R. Cr. 24 (1875); R. v. Keshub Booker, 25 W. B., Cr., 8 (1876); R v Barpon t komikry, 25 W. R., Cr., 43 (1876); R. v. Ganraj. 2 A . 444 (1879) . R v. Malv. 2 1 . 848 (1840) : E. v. Dan Naray, 6 B . 288 (1883); New Bux v. E , 6 C., 279 (1980); Bishan Dan v. R., 2 MI I. J. 53 (1964) Owere- to to the correctness of the decision of R. v. Bakur Khan, & N.-W. P. 213 (1873), the statement in which case it is submitted did not amount to a confession.

<sup>(5)</sup> R v America Garranda, 10 Bom H. C. B. 97. 500, 501 (1873) the passage in quotation marks in per West, J

<sup>(6)</sup> R . Naga 23 W H. Cr., 24 (1875). Per

Phear, J. (7) R v Ganraj, 2 A. 444-445 (1879), Per Straight, J the same argument was offered, but not accepted in R v. Hakur Khan, 5 N.-W. P.,

<sup>(4)</sup> R. v. Days Narest, 6 H., 288 (1842), and see Sanlappa Rai v. R (1908), 31 M . 127. (9) R. v. Barger Chouckley, 25 W. R. Cr. 13

<sup>(10)</sup> See R v America Gerenda, 10 Pom. H. C.

From a consideration of the principle upon whic' admitted, it is plain that a statement which entirely inculpates his fellow-prisoner is not within the secti not amount to a confession of the maker's own individual guilt of the offence for which he and the others are jointly tried; nor is such a statement which affects himself and others but the latter only. Such a statement can afford no guarantee whatever of its own truth, being made without either the sarction of an oath, or of that substitute for that sanction which consists in the self-inculpation of the maker, in short, without the application of any test of truth whatever (2) The rule with regard to the extent to which the confession must affect the maker thereof has been stated to be as follows, namely :- "That; before a confession of a person jointly tried with the prisoner can be taken into consideration against him, it must appear that that confession implicates the confessing person substantially to the same extent as it implicates the person . against whom it is to be used, in the commission of the offence for which the prisoners are being jointly tried,"(3) It is this self-implication which is supposed to afford a guarantee for the truth of the statement. Again, "this section must be interpreted to mean that the statement of fact made by the prisoner, which amounts to a confession of guilt on his part, may be taken into consideration, so far, and so far only, as that particular statement of fact itself extends against the other prisoners, who are being tried, as well as himself, for the offence which is thus confessed I think the two illustrations which are given to this section bear out this view. If this be so, we must be careful not to apply statements made by R. I. D. before the Magistrate, against other prisoners than himself further than those same statements amount in themselves to a confession of guilt on his part."(4) " Neither can the statement of one prisoner be taken as evidence against another prisoner under section 30 of the Evidence Act, unless the parties are admittedly in part delictu, when that is, the confessing prisoner implicates himself to the full as much as his co-prisoner whom he is criminating."(5) The ratio decidends of the above cases is that statements which inculpate the maker more than, or equally with, others, alone can afford any satisfactory guarantee of their truth. Less weight is to

R. 497 (1873) R. v. Gauraj. 2 A. 444 (1879) R. v. Michesh, Bisuras, 19 W. R., Cr., 16 (1873). R. v. Jaffer Als., 19 W. R., Cr., 57 (1873). See Indian Penal Code, se. 114, 149

(1) R × Kehhol Bhoman, 23 M. R. (2) 8(1850) R × Blold M., 10 N. R. (7, 67 (1873) R × Beamere Loll, 24 M. R. (7, 57 (1874) R × Ganery 2 A, 441 (1879), R × Maler 2 A, 546 (1890) R × Days Narea 6 B, 238 (1882), Noor Basv, R 6 (7 279 (1889)), Beloin Date v. R. 2 Al-L J 5 5 (1991) ee also R × Moleck Bissess 19 W. R. (7, 16 (1873), R × Aburte 19 W. R. (7, 479 (1873), R × Aburte Disons H. C. K. (7, 497 (1873), R × Aburte Grame 23 W. R. (7, 481 (1874) R × Baspon Chamber 25 W. R. (7, 481 (1875))

(2) R v Belat 1h 19 W R Ur 67 (1873) per Phear J

(3) R. v. Belot H. 19 W. R. Cr. 67, 10 B. L. B., 453 (1873) per Pheer, J. followed in R. v. Garme, 2. A. 444 (1879) R. v. Male, 2. A. 646 (1884) R. v. Bolen, has Sofke 14 Ind. Jur. N. N. 175 (1984) See R. v. Violeck Biowes, 19 W. E., Cr. 164 (1873).

(4) E . Moleck Borne 19 W B., Cr. 10 23

per Phear J 10 B L R , 435n

(5) R v Baryon Chowdhry, 23 W R , Cr , 43 (1876) per Glover, J that is only when the confession makes both equally guilty of the offence. The rule is laid down more broadly in R v Belat 41s, supra, and the cases which follow it A forture statement which impacates the confessing prisoner more than his co-prisoners would appear to come within this section [see R v Belat Ali, supra, in which Phear, J , seems to have thought admissible a statement by a prisoner which made certain of his fellow-accessories before the fact and not actual actors in the transaction which constituted the foundation of the charge | But the decisions of the Calcutta and Allahabad High Courts will exclude a confession which implicates the maker in a leaser degree than his co-accused, unless the self-implication and the implication of others is substantially the same. Are however as to this R v Aur Mahamed, 8 B . 223, 227 (1893) in which the confession tended to reduce the guilt of the maker to that of a subsedinate agent of another as principal, et also R v G enad Balli. 11 Bom H C. R., 278 (1874) be attached to statements which implicate the maker in a lesser degree than others, and unless the maker (though implicating himself to a lesser degree). It is said to the said the statement to the said the said to the said the said to the said the said to t

the same extent as the others, the statement rulings of the Calcutta and Allahabad High t can be attached to statements which lay the a statement is self-serving according to the ideas of him who makes it, and is entirely excluded by the decisions of the abovementioned High Courts. Lastly, no guarantee whatever is afforded by a statement which entirely exonerates the maker, and such a statement is therefore in all cases inadmissible.

"Made"

The confessions may have been made at any time before or at the trial. (I) This section is not to be read as if the words "at the trial" were insected after the words "made," and the word "recorded" substituted for the word "proved" Therefore, a confession duly made any time by one of several accused persons who are under trial jointly for the same offence can be taken into consideration under section 30 as against the other accused persons. (2) It is not necessary that the confession, to be taken into consideration, should have been made in the presence of the co-prisoners against whom it is offered in evidence. (3)

"Proved."

But though this section allows a confession to be used against another prisoner although made in his absence, it vet requires that such confession should be "proved" as against the prisoner to whose prejudice it is to be Therefore, where two accused persons were jointly tried before the Sessions Judge on a charge of murder, and the Judge examined each of the accused in the absence of the other, making the latter withdraw from the Court during the examination of the former though without objection from the pleaders of the accused persons, it was held that the examination of each accused could be used only against himself and not against his fellowaccused (4) Provided a confession is only proved afterwards, it is immaterial whether or not the co-prisoners were present at the time of making it. When a confession is used for the purposes of this section, the person to be affected by it has a right to demand that it be strictly proved and shown to have been, in all essential respects, taken and recorded as prescribed by law.(5) When a confession of one prisoner is taken in the absence of the other prisoners and the latter have had no opportunity of denving or even of knowing what their

<sup>(1)</sup> In R v Salosdonk Charleshulle, 4 U. 437 488 (1878), (arth, C. J., appears to have been of opinion that a confiction under 3 D must not be one mode at the trial, for he says (at p. 483). "The word 'perced' in a 3D must refer to a confession made la ferchand". But see R v Tenys valed, post; and in no reported case has it sees been objected to the almistishility of a confession, that it was made at the trial in R v Chardes Nath, 7C,
65 (1881); and R v, Leidman Ende, 6B, 121 (1982); the objection to the Admissibility of the confessions taken and recented by the Session Judge at the trial was not to the fact of their having been made at the trial, but to their not having been "proved," v, peel.

<sup>(2)</sup> R. v. Tanya valad, 14 Ind. Jur., N. S., 516

<sup>(3)</sup> H. C. Proceedings, 31st July 1885, Weir, 3rd Ed., 477; R. v. Labelman Halo, 5 H., 124.

<sup>125 (1882)</sup> see R v Repin Biswas, 10 C., 970, 974 (1884) In R v Bepon Biswas, 10 C, 973, 974 (1884), it was held that, in that particular case, the confessions of two of several accused persons, made in the absence of the others, wered no weight accust the latter.

<sup>(4)</sup> R. v. Lobelmon Bolc, 6. B., 124 (1872), Indivinuing R. v. Vlander, Moh. 7. C., 05 (1872), Indivinuing R. v. Vlander, Moh. 7. C., 05 (1872), in these cases the confessions were objected to not merely because they were made during the absence of the co-pressioners, but because they were not afferwards: "proved" in any way, nor opportunity given to them to know what had been asilaround them.

<sup>(3)</sup> R. v. Chander Bhuttochargee, 24 W. R., Cr. 42 (1875) [Cr. Pt. Code] 1872 s. 122 (s. 184 of Act V of 1898), etc., in the manner provided by se. 315, 316 ins. 312, 264 of Act V of 1893).

fellow-prisoner has said, such a confession cannot be said to have been "proved"; it is only after proper proof is given that it may be taken into consideration.(1)

The word "Court" in section 30 of the Evidence Act means not only the "Court."
Judge, in a trial by a Judge with a jury, but includes both Judge and jury, (2)

By this section the Legislature has only bestowed a discretion upon the "May take Court to take into consideration such confession (3) When more persons than the into consideration one are jointly tried for the same offence, the confession made by one of them. If the the confession made by one of them.

nre\ evidence, excluding from that term statements of the character mentioned in this section.(5) And in so far as a statement by a witness only is "evidence" according to the definition given of that term when used in this Act, a confession by an accused person affecting himself and his co-accused is not "evidence" in that special sense (6) These words do not mean that the confession is to have the force of sworn evidence (7) But such a confession is revertheless evidence in the sense that it is matter which the Court, before whom it is made. may take into consideration in order to determine whether the issue of guilt is proved or not.(8) The wording, however, of this section (which is an exception) shows that such a confession is merely to be an element in the consideration(9) of all the facts of the case; while allowing it to be so considered, it does not do away with the necessity of other evidence. For even when regarded as evidence and taken at its highest value, it is of too weak a character to found a conviction upon it alone, and hence corroboration should be required in all! cases: if instead of being the statement of a fellow-prisoner it had been evidence given on oath and on examination as a witness, it would not have been anything other than the evidence of an accomplice, which, in general, requires corroboration in order to its acceptance, (1) and if the testimony of an accomplice given before the Court under the sanction of an oath and a process of careful examination, and capable of being tested by cross-examination, is vet by its nature such that, as against an accused, it must be received with caution, still more so must be the confession of a fellow-prisoner, which is only the bare statement of an accomplice, limited to just so much as the confessing person chose to say, and guaranteed by nothing except the peril into which it brings the speaker and which it is generally fashioned to lessen.(2) Though, in strictness, a conviction is not illegal merely because it proceeds upon the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice.(3) vet section 133 applies only to accomplices, as such, and not to confessing co-prisoners whose statements do not stand upon the same but on a lower footing than the testimony of an accomplice (4) And although the instance of corroboration which is appended to Illust. (b) of section 114 is corroboration to be found in accounts of an occurrence given by accomplices, there is no indication that the Legislature intended in this passage by the term 'accounts given by the accomplices' anything other than accounts given in due course of examination as witnesse. Therefore the mere confessions of prisoners do not come within the scope of this legislative declaration (5) and there is no express provision in the Act to limit, in any case, the operation of the rule that confessions of co-prisoners, standing alone, are legally insufficient for conviction

Having regard to the aforegoing considerations, the Courts have established the following rules with regard to this species of evidence:—

(1) If there is (a) absolutely no other evidence in the case, (6) or (b) the other evidence is inadmissible, (7) such a confession alone will not sustain a conviction.

Thus (a) a convection of a person who is being tried together with other persons for the same offence cannot proceed merely on an uncorroborated statement in the confession of one of such other persons (8). So where two prisoners were convicted under sections 312 and 203 of the Penal Code, and there was not, as the Court observed, a particle of orvidence against the second prisoner except the confession of the co-prisoner, it was held that the case whome of no evidence, and that the conviction was had in law and should be set scaled, (9). If a prisoner were convicted upon such evidence, whether by a jury

<sup>(1)</sup> R. v. Micheck Biewar, 19 W. R., Cr. 16, 25 (1873), R. v. Sadhu Wundal, 21 W. R., 69, 71 (1874), R. v. Halappe Lie, 11 Bom. H. C. B. 196, 198 (1874), R. v. Naga, 22 W. R. Cr. 24 (1875), R. v. Johnston, Chickerbutty, 4 C., 483 (1878), seen. 133, 114, page.

<sup>(2)</sup> R. v. Sathe Unode', 21 W. H. Cr., 69, 74 (1874), per Heart, J. and see R. v. Noge, 23 W. H., 24 (1875); R. v. Hharani, I. A., 684 (1876), R. v. Ashirani, C. Chen, C. S. (1876), R. v. Lie, C. C. S. (1876), R. v. Dana Jun, 10 H., 231 (1885), R. v. Krieksaddal, D. 19 (1885), R. v. Ross Staras, S. A., 306 (1887), R. v. Hoppyen, Dali, Will, 3rd Pd., 49rd (1886), R. v. Hoppyen, J. H. al. Jun, N. S., 175 (1889), R. v. Ganspildar, 14 Ind. Jun, N. S., 20 (1889), the corroborative explane must be more expert and should be more strictly examined by the Court ham when an accomplice gives evidence as a witness].

(3) R. 133, post.

<sup>(4)</sup> E. v. Ashedia's Checkerbatty, 4 C., 483.

<sup>414. 496 (1878),</sup> per Jackson and Analm, J.J. R. V. Bubay in, 14 Ind Jur. N. S., 175 (1888) [confessions made by accured persons at a joint trial cannot be treated as the evidence of accomplist against one another], R. v. Laksimya Pandarus, 22 M. 491, 493 (1890)

<sup>(5)</sup> R v Sadhu Mundul, 21 W. R., Cr. 69, 71 (1874), per Phear, J. R v Ashootosh Chucker butty, 4 C., 483, 494, 499 (1878), per Jackson and Analte, JJ

Pexceedings, 24th. Intuary, 1873; T. Mod.
 R. A. May 15, followed: in R. A. Admonth.
 Hulley, I. M., 163 (1876). R. v. Bharcani, I. A. 694 (1878); R. v. Rom Chand, ph., 675 (1878);
 R. v. Admotoh Charlechning, 4 C., 434, F. B. (1878); R. v. Door, Jun., 10 B., 231 (1883);
 R. v. Khandan, 15 B., 66 (1898).

<sup>(7)</sup> R. v. Ambipara Hubayu, 1 M., 163 (1876). (8) See cases tiled in note (6), ante.

<sup>(9)</sup> Proceedings, 24th January 1872, 7 Mad H C. B. App., 15, followed in R. v. Ambour

Hulagu, 1 M., 63 (1876).

or otherwise and were to appeal to the High Court, the conviction ought to be set aside; further, any Sevions Judge trying such a case before a Jury ought to direct them to acquit the prisoner.(1) (b) Where the only evidence against the second prisoner was a confession made by the first prisoner, and a statement made by the second prisoner to a police constable, it was held that the latter statement was madmissible, and that the second prisoner could not be convicted solely on the confession of the first.(2)

- (2) (a) The confessions of co-prisoners, to be rendered trustworthy must be periodocated, (3) (b) altunde by undependent evidence, and not by the testimony of accomplices or approvers, (4) (c) as well in respect of the identity of all the persons affected by it, as of the corpus delicti. (5)
- (a) It is clear, for the reasons above mentioned, that though admissible under section 30 and capable of being taken into consideration, no weight can be attached to the confession unless it is in the first place corroborated. The confessions of persons tried jointly for the same offence may be "considered' as against other parties then on their trial with them, but such confessions. when used as evidence against others, stand in need of corroboration (6) When confessions of one co-prisoner are admissible against another co-prisoner, the utmost value that can be claimed for them is that if there is other untainted evidence against the accused they may be "considered" together with such evidence (7) The corroborative evidence must be more cogent and should be more strictly examined by the Court than when an accomplice gives evidence as a witness, for a confession cannot be treated as of the same value as the evidence of an accomplice.(8) (b) In the next place, the corroboration must be by independent evidence and not by the testimony of accomplices or approvers. For, if instead of being the statement of a fellow-prisoner, it had been evidence given on oath and subject to cross-examination, it would not be any thing else than the evidence of an accomplice, which itself in general requires corroboration derived from evidence which is independent of accomplice-testimony. The testimony of one accomplice is not sufficient corroboration of another. And further, in so far as a confession does not stand as high as the testimony of an accomplice, there is a greater necessity for independent corroboration.(9) (c) Thirdly, not only must there be corroboration as to the corpus
  - R v. Ashaotosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C, 483, 490 per Garth, C. J.
  - (2) R v. Ambigara Hulogu, supra
  - (3) R. v. Jaffer Ah. 19 W. R. Cr. 57 (1879); R. v. Komp Lett, 29 W. R. C. v. 1, 4 (1873), v. pat; R. v. Sadha Mandal, 21 W. R. Cr., 69 (1874); R. v. Noge, 23 W. R. Cr., 24 (1885); R. v. Ashan-yak Chadrichity, C. v. 483 (1878); R. v. Lam Sarata, S. A. Jore, 10 B., 231 (1885); R. v. Lam Sarata, S. A. 492a (1886); R. v. Lam Sarata, S. A. 492a (1886); R. v. Campaphint, 14 Ind. Jur. N. S., 20 (1889).
  - (4) R. v. Joffer All, 1997a; R. v. Mokek Barwe. 190 N. R. (v. 161873); R. Konop Leth, 1997a. 3. ["The confession of K. L. of course could not have been legally used against the others at all excepting to such an extent as it was substantially correlated by summyeachable evalence, absord; [vr Thear, J] R. v. Sadla Mandel, 1997a; R. v. Malejo bin, 11 Bom. H. C. R. 1906, R. v. Paspot (bondlay, 25 W. Ng. Cr., 33 (1870); R. v. Dang J. Chondlay, 25 W. Ng. Cr., 33 (1870); R. v. Dang J. V. R. 1997a.

- (5) Mohesh Baucas, supra, 21; R v. Sudhu Mundul, supra; R. v. Budhu Nanin, 1 B, 475 (1876); R v. Kaliyappa Goundan, Weir, 3rd Ed. 494 (1883); R v. Dosa Jira, supra, R v. Eam
- Saron, supra.
  (b) R v Jaffir Ali, supra.
  - (7) R. v. Alagappan Bals, supra.
- (8) R v. Ganapabhat, 14 Ind Jur. N S., 20 (1889) See cases cited ante, on page.
- (9) R. v. Mokesh Biswas, 19 W. R., (Y., 19, 25 (1873); R. v Jafir Alt, 19 W. R., (Y., 57, 58 [* Tainted evidence is not made better by losing doubled in quantity "as it would be, where the only corroboration is accomplice testimons.)

delicts, but also as to the identity of all the persons concerned. The question is not whether the story is generally true, but whether it is true in the particular points which affect the persons who are accused by him, because it is just at those points that the reason for suspicion and uncertainty comes into force,(1). The accomplice (and, therefore, à fortiors, a confessing prisoner) must be corrobrated not only as to one but as to all of the persons affected by the evidence, and corroboration of his evidence as to one prisoner does not entitle his evidence against another to be accented without corroboration.(2)

(8) The confessions of prisoners are not sufficient corroboration of the testimony of an accomplice, either as to the corpus delicti, or the identity of the persons affected (3). For the corroboration which is needed of an accomplice's testimony is evidence which is independent of accomplices. But a confession of a prisoner, if given on oath, would only be the evidence of an accomplice, and as a mere confession it is even of less value, and hence it can never afford corroboration of the evidence of an accomplice, the tainted evidence of which is not made more trustworthy by a tainted confession (v. ante).

Upon the question as to what independent evidence is legally sufficient corroboration of the confession, it is necessary to bear in mind that being evidence of a very defective character, the confession requires especially careful scrutiny before it can be safely rebed on (4). The corroborative evidence must be more cogent and should be more strictly examined by the Court than when an accomplice gives evidence as a witness (5). There is no doubt as to the sufficiently corroborative character of the testimony of independent and credible eye-witnesses, or of a confession made by the accused(6) in addition to the confession by his co-prisoner implicating him, but doubt may arise in cases where the evidence is circumstantial. (7). The rulings on this point are not uniform. In one case it seems to have been thought that if the other evidence and joined together so as to justify any court in acting in such evidence R v Judob Das, 4 C W. N. 129 [1849] 2, a c, 27 C., 295

(1) R. Moheel Burear, supre, 8, p. 21 and see E. N. Bulbi Noshi, B. B. 47 (1878), and R. Cabier Payushetom, cited in note to same, R. v. Sodba Mandell, supre, R. v. Koliyappa Goweto, Werr, 3rd Ed., 497 (1893). In this case the pressure was released, as the confession was not corrolocated. "by any independent evidence to show that the appellant was one of the house-breaker," J. R. v. Eum Saran, 8. A., 306 (1885), see p. 181, note early.

(2) R. v Ram Saran, supra

R. v. Juffer eth., 19 W. R., Cr., 57 (1872).
 R. v. Mohak Brown, 19 W. R. Cr., 15, 21, 25 (1871).
 R. v. Mohak Brown, 19 W. R. Cr., 15, 21, 25 (1871).
 R. v. Mohak Brown, 19 W. B., Cr. 69 (1871).
 R. v. Saydes Mondal, 21 W. B., Cr. 69 (1871).
 R. v. Saydes Mondal, 21 W. B., Cr. 69 (1871).
 R. v. Saydes Mondal, 21 W. B., Cr. 69 (1871).
 R. v. Saydes Mondal, 21 W. B., Cr. 69 (1871).
 R. v. Saydes Mondal, 21 W. B., Cr. 69 (1871).
 R. v. Saydes Mondal, 21 W. B., Cr. 69 (1871).
 R. v. Saydes Mondal, 21 W. B., Cr. 60 (1871).
 R. v. Grad to Book Mondal, 11 M. Janes, 10 (1871).
 R. v. Chand traded Hardens, 14 Ind. Jury, N. N., 12 (1882).

(1) R. v. Sadie Mundal, 21 W. R., Cr , 69 (1874);

R v Naga, 23 W. R , Cr , 24 (1875).

(5) R v Ganapabhat, 14 Ind Jur., N. S., 20 (1889), are also R v Sadhu Mundul, appra-(6) See R v. Jaffir Alı, 19 W. R., Cr., 39, 60 (1873), R v Barjoo Chowdhry, 25 W. R. 44 (1876), R. v. Bayajı Kom, 14 Ind Jur., 384 (1886), see R. v. Barn Navar, 19 M . 482 (1896). where under the circumstances of that case the corroborating evidence was held to be sufficient (7) See (1) as to possession or discovery of prop erty (a) on charge of theft, dacoits, dishonestly receiving, R. v. Jaffir Ali, supra, R . Naga, supra: R v Ram Saran : R. v. Koonso Leth. aupra : R. v. Chunder Bhuttacharjee, supra . R. v. Kaliappa . Gounden, supra; R. v. Hardewa, 5 N.-W. P., 217 (1873), R v. Krishnalhaf, supra, R v. Dosa Jun supra, (b) on a charge of murder or injury to the body , R. v. Ram Saran, supra : (2) as to other circumstantial evidence, (a) alsence from home ; R. v. Jaffr Ali, supra ; R. v. Bepin Bieras, supra; (b) sudden duappearance; R. v. Barjon Ch. wdhry, supra; (c) presence in company of other secured; R v. Kaliyappa Gounden supra; R. v. Ram Saran, supra; (d) medical evidence; R. v. Sadhu Mundul, supra; (e) ill-Ireling . R v. Barjoo Choudhry, supra ; (1) finding of instrument of crime; R. v. Mobesh Bieras,

"tends" to conviction it would be sufficient.(1) Where, in another prosecution, the circumstantial evidence constituted "a very strong prima facic case," it was held to be sufficiently corroborative.(2) Again, it has been held that corroboration by circumstantial evidence is not sufficient "unless the circumstances constituting corroboration would, if believed to exist, themselves support a conviction."(3) Lastly, it has been said that "how far any corroborative evidence would be sufficient, coupled with the confession, to convict a prisoner, must depend upon the circumstances of each particular case."(4)

Upon the manner in which the confessions are to be taken into consideration, and upon the relation in which the confessions stand towards the other evidence in the case, the rulings are also not uniform. In some it has been laid down that they cannot be used as the basis of a case, but only as corroborative of other independent evidence, because they are not "evidence" (5) or if they are "evidence," they are "evidence" of a very weak character.(6) In other cases they have been treated as the basis of a case requiring only corroboration. The matter, however, is of no practical importance, as whether they be treated in either of the above modes, the issue of guilt will (if the confession be sufficiently corroborated) be determined upon a consideration of the whole of the evidence, including therein the confessions and the other independent evidence: both of these are elements in the case which, when combined, offer the material for the Court's decision, whichever of the two be regarded as the prior element or basis (7)

In the undermentioned case it was held by the Calcutta High Court that a retracted confession should carry practically no weight as against a person other than the maker, because it is not made on oath, it is not tested by crossexaminaton, and its truth is denied by the maker himself, who has thus hed on one or other of the occasions, and that the very fullest corroboration would be necessary in such a case, far more than would be demanded for the sworn testimony of an accomplice on oath (8) But in a more recent case it has been held! by the Allahabad High Court that a retracted confession may be taken into consideration (that is, used as evidence) against not only the person making! it but persons tried jointly with the confessing accused for the same offence, and that, as regards the person making it, such a confession may even without any corroborative evidence form the basis of a conviction, and that, as regards other co-accused, although corroborative evidence may be necessary, it is not necessary that such evidence should by itself be sufficient to support a conviction, and semble that a conviction based on the unsupported evidence afforded by the confession of a co-accused would not be unlawful.(9)

This section must be read subject to the provisions contained in those As against which precede it. Therefore a confession by one of several persons, which is such other inadmissible under sections 24-26, and when there is no "discovery" under well as sections 27, will be madmissible under this section as against both the maker person implicated thereby. If it is not inadmissible, under confession 21, 25 constitution 25 confession 2 sections 24-26, against the maker, it is admissible under this section, provided

(I) R. v. Chunder Bhattacharjee, 24 W. R., Cr., 42 (1875), per Jackson, J. : A similar view seems to be indicated in R. v. Bayan Kom, 14 Ind. Jur , 384 (1886)

<sup>(2)</sup> R v. Naga, 23 W. R., Cr., 24, 25 (1785), per Phear, J.

<sup>(3)</sup> R. v Ashnolosh Chuclerbully, 4 C., 483, per Jackson and MacDonnell, JJ.

<sup>(4)</sup> Ib., 490, per Garth, C. J.

<sup>(5)</sup> R. v Chunder Bhuttacharyee, 24 W. R., Cr., 42 (1873).

<sup>(6)</sup> R v. Ashoolosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C., 483, per Jackson, MacDonnell, and Broughton, JJ. (7) This seems to be the view of Garth. C. J. in R. v. Ashoolosh Churlerbutty, supra As a matter of convenience, however, it may be desirable to make the confession the starting point or basis. and then to consider how far the independent evidence, direct or circumstantial, supports it (8) Yasın v. R. 28 C., 689 (1901)

<sup>(9)</sup> R. v. Kehri (1907), 29 A , 434.

that it satisfies its terms, as well against the maker as against the other whom it affects. If, however, it is excluded by sections 24—26, but there is discovery under section 27, then so much of the whole, as leads immediately to the discovery being made admissible thereunder is also admissible under section 30 against both, if it is a "confession" on the part of the maker and "affects bimself and some other" co-accused, but not otherwise. A confession under section 27 is admissible under section when the admissible under section 20 is a distribution only when the admissible part is a section 20 is a distribution of the section 20 i

"confess "affects" himself and the co-accused as against whom it is considered. If the admissible part is a "confession." and "affects" both persons, it cannot be first rejected as against coprisoner B on the ground that the whole confession was unduly obtained, and then that very part admitted as against the maker A, on the ground of discovery, but should be admitted under section 30 against both ;(2) though on taking it into consideration no weight would be attached to it, as against B. unless it was sufficiently corroborated, and the mere discovery, though it might be sufficient for the conviction of A, would not generally, of itself apart from other evidence to show B's complicity, corroborate A sufficiently as to B's being concerned in the offence. But a statement made in Court by one accused, incriminating a co-accused but exculpating himself is not a "confession" and cannot legally be taken into consideration as against the co-accused. A statement made to the Police by an accused person to the effect that if certain other persons were sent for, he would see that some other property was traced out, is not evidence to prove that the accused had been guilty of abetment of theft.(3)

Admission not conclusive proof but may estop 31. Admissions are not conclusive proof of the matters admitted, but they may operate as estoppels under the provisions hereinafter contained.

Principle.—The policy of the law favours the investigation of truth by all expedient methods. The doctrine of estoppels, by which further investigation is precluded, being an exception to the general rule, and being adopted only for the sake of general convenience, and for the prevention of fraud, will not be extended beyond the reasons on which it is founded. Therefore admissions, whether written or oral, which do not operate by way of estoppel, constitute only primal force and rebuttable evidence against their makers and those claiming under them, as between them and others, (4)

Taylor, Ev., §§ 817-819, 854-861; Norton, Ev., 151; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 194, Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 62; Powell, Ev., 288-290; Best, Ev., §§ 529, 530.

COMMENTARY

Effect of admissions.

This section deals with the effect, in respect of conclusiveness, of admistion, when proved. Every admission is evidence against the person by whomit is made; but it is always for the Court to consider what weight, if any, is to be on a bill, and generally, all parol receipts, are only primit force evidence of payment, No., 2001. In general, a person's conduct and language have not the effect of operating against limit of estoppel," per Chambre, J., in Smith v. Toylor, IN R., 210.

<sup>(1)</sup> See R. v. Rama Birapa, 3 B., 12 (1878) (2) 15

<sup>(3)</sup> Richam Pull v. R., 2 A. L. J., 53, 2 Cr. L. J., 22, and for definition of "confession" see

Hatimin v. R. S Cr. L. J. 230, (4) Powell, Ev. 258; "Thus a receipt endorsed

alter

given to an admission, or any other evidence, it is not conclusive merely because it is legally admissible.(1) It is only so in certain cases, for instance, where it has been acted upon by the party to whom it was made (2) "A statement made by a party is not, speo facto, conclusive against him, though it may be used against him and may be evidence, more or less weighty, possibly even conclusive, according to the circumstances of each case and the result come to by judicial investigation."(3) Though admissions may be proved against the party making them, it is always open to the maker to show that the statements were mustaken or untrue, except in the case in which they operate as estoppels (4) The subject was clearly illustrated in the case of Heane v Rogers, (5) in which Bayley, J., observed "There is no doubt but that the express admissions of a party to the suit, or admissions implied from his conduct, are evidence, and strong evidence against him but we think that he is at liberty to prove that such admissions were mistaken or were untrue, and is not estopped or concluded by them, unless another person has been induced by them to alter his condition; in such a case, the party is estopped from disputing their truth with respect to that person (and those clauming under him), and that transaction, but as to third persons he is not bound. It is a well-established rule of law, that estoppels bind only parties and names and not et-anger "it's The destance inded were in this case, that a founded on mistake his condition, is as applicable to mistakes in respect of legal hability, as to those in respect of matters of facts (7) Where a defendant seeks to make use of

(1) Bulley v Bulley, L. B., 9 Ch App., 739, 747; Ayetun v Ram Sebuk, 12 W R., 156 (1869) (2) Janus Chowdhry v Doolar Chowdhry, 18 W. R., 347 (1872), Brojendro Coomar v. The Chauman, Dacca Municipality, 20 W R., 223 (1873), Yamani Puttu v. Radhabas, 14 B , 312 (1869) An admission made by a party in other cases may be taken as evidence against him, but cannot operate against him as an estoppel in a case in which his opponents are persons to whom the admission was not made, and who are not proved to have heard of it, or to have been in any way misled by it, or to have acted in reliance upon it. Chunder Kant v Pearce Mohun, 5 W. R., 209 (1866), see Museumat Ordey v Museumat Ladon, 13 Moo I A , 585, 600 (1870)

(3) Ayetus v Ram Sebul, supra

(4) See s. 115, post, and notes thereto, as to admissions which have been held to operate or not as estoppels.

(5) 9 B. & C., 577, 586, 587

See Janas Choschity v. Indate Choschity,
 W. R., 317 (1572), Aydun v. Kam Schuk, I.
 W. R., 136 (1869), Rom Sürun v. Pran Peary,
 J. W. L. 136 (1869), Rom Sürun v. Pran Peary,
 J. Moo I. A., 531 (1876)); Songab Belet v. Admin J.
 J. H. B. L. R., App., 3 (1874); Sreenak Roy
 J. Endado Bashare, 20 W. R. 12 (1873); Emperador Commer v. Chaurman, Deron Municipally,
 D. W. R., 223 (1873); Sreemily Deba v. Bindado
 Sondarez, 21 W. R., 422 (1874); Massiment Oxdey v. Missimant Letton, J. Moo, 13 (1874); Massiment Letton,
 M. Saran, 18 W. R., 485, 493, 494 (1872); physica
 Saran, 18 W. R., 485, 493, 494 (1872); physica defendant seeks to make use of statements which have been put in evidence and to treat them as admissions by the plaintiff who put them in it is competent for the plaintiff to show the real nature of the transaction to which they relate, and to get rid of the effect of the apparent admistions. See also Museumat Ushrufoonessa v. Bahoo Gridharee, 19 W. R. 118 (1873), in which the Privy Council held that the fact of a party having admitted the execution of a deed in a former suit did not prevent her from confesting the validity of the transactions evidenced thereby, and showing that it was colourable and not real, and see generally as to the ordinarily inconclusive character of admissions: Sreenath Nag v. Mon Makinee, 6 W. R., 35 (1866); Gordon Stuart v. Beerou Gobind. 8 W. R., 291 (1867); Grieh Chunder v. Issur Chunder, 12 W R , 226 (1829) , Mahomed Hancel v. Mozhur Ali, 15 W. R., 280 (1871), Shailh Komuroodeen v Shaikh Manye, 16 W. R., 220 (1871); Mussumat Ushrufoonessa v. Baboo Gridharee, 19 W R, 118 (1873), Bodh Singh v. Ganeschunder Sen, 19 W. R., 356 (1873)

(1) Necton v. Loddurd, 12 Q. B. 925, 927; asch a matsken impression, however, will not circled, his admission, though it will impair its weight as erulence against him. Nection v. Del. cher, 1 R. B., 921; Taylor, Ev. § 819. Roscoe, N. P., Ev. 62. 1 Philips & Arm., 334, see Gopf Lell v. Chandrace Elssoper, 10 VR. P. 13 (1873), as to admissions involving erroneous conclusions of law.

statements which have been put in evidence, and to treat them as admissions by the plaintiff who put them in, it is competent for the plaintiff to show the real nature of the transaction to which they relate and to get rid of the effect of the apparent admissions. (1) Even if an admission was made with a fraudulent purpose, the party making it may show what was the real state of facts. (2) So where a trader, intending to defraud his creditors, delivered his goods to a frend, and made out an invoice to hum and a receipt for the hetitious price, it was held open to him, when these documents were put in evidence, in an action brought by him to recover the goods from the pre-tended purchaser, to show that they were untrue (3). And a party claiming under another who has made admissions as to a transaction to which that other was a party, is at liberty to allege and prove that the admissions were made with a fraudulent purpose, and were not true, and to show the real nature of the transaction. (4)

But though a mere admission is not legally conclusive, the circumstances under, or the occasion upon, which it was made, or its formal and deliberate character may entitle it to the greatest weight and may require very strong and a clear evidence to rebut the inferences which may be drawn from it. (5) Although it may be shown that the facts were different from what on a former occasion they were stated to be, and though it may be shown (if it were so) that a former statement is false, strong evidence may, under the particular circumstances, be required to prove that what the parties had deliberately asserted was altogether untrue.(6) Moreover, an admission, if of a sufficiently grave character, may have the effect of shifting the onus of proof. (7) "As the weight of an admission depends on the circumstances under which it was made, these cirumstances may always be proved to impeach or enhance its credibility. Thus the admission (unless amounting to an estoppel) may be shown by the party against whom it is tendered to be untrue, or to have been made under a mistake of law or fact, or to have been uttered in ignorance, levity. or an abnormal condition of mind. On the other hand, the weight of the admission increases with the knowledge and deliberation of the speaker, or the solemnity of the occasion on which it was made."(8) As to admissions made "without prejudice," and admissions obtained under compulsion, ". ante, 5 23, and p. 247.

Museumat Feedbels v locar Saran, 18 W. R. 485 (1872)

<sup>(2)</sup> Rom Kuran x Museument Pransperry, 13 Meo. I A. ASI (1870) Severanth Roys Bindoo Bashiner, 20 W. R. 112 (1873), Brogendrie Commer. A Base man, Dacca Municipality, 20 W. R., 223, 224 (1873) Sevenuity Julius & Binola Swendower, 21 W. R. 422(1874)

<sup>(3)</sup> B ares v. Foster, 27 L. J., Fx., 262

<sup>(4)</sup> Secenath Roy v. Bindon Bankince, 20 N. R., 112 (1873)

<sup>(5)</sup> Sugan Biber v. Achmul Ali, 14 B. L. R. App., 3 (1874); 21 W. E., 414, Human Kover v. Sten Goland, 21 W. R., 431, 432 (1875); Makamed Humel v. Macker Ali, 15 W. R., 200 (1871); the value of an admission depends upon the circumstances under which it was made, Rootos, N. P. Ex. 62. R x dominants 4. C. 3. K., 194, 1967 where it is a more inference drawn from facts, the admires of goes no further than the facts prior 84, Polley's Bulley, L. R. 9. Ch., 779, and generally as to the weight to be attached to admiresors, sate, p. 117 and post.

<sup>(6)</sup> Sompan Biber v. Achmul. Mr. supra; see last note, and post (7) Forber v. Mr. Mahomed, 5 B. L. R. 529.

 <sup>519 (1870), 14</sup> W. H., [F. C.), 28, 13 Moo. I. A.,
 438 **, Chandra Luprary Chandri Narpel Son
 P. C. (1995), 29 A., 1884 [-1, R., 34; I. A., 27].
 (8) Physon, Fr., 2cl Ed., 194; Rest, Fr.
 520, 530; Taylor, Er., §4 854—861; Roscer,
 N. P., Er., 62

STATEMENTS BY PERSONS WHO CANNOT BE CALLED AS WITNESSES.

The provisions in the following section constitute further exceptions to section $2 the rule which excludes hearsay.(1) As a general rule, oral evidence must be direct 'a' mici g section may be regarded as d reason of the hearsay rule except based on two considerations, is the a necessity for the evidence and a circumstantial guarantee of trustworthiness.(3) It may be impossible, or it may cause unreasonable expense or delay to procure the attendance of a witness who, if present before the Court. could give direct evidence on the matter in question; and it may also be that this witness has made a statement, either written or verbal, with reference to such matter under such circumstances that the truth of this statement may reasonably be presumed. In such a case the law as enacted by section 32 dispenses with direct oral evidence of the fact and with the safeguard for truth provided by cross-examination and the sanction of an oath, the probability of the statement being true depending upon other safeguards which are mentioned in the following paragraphs.(4) The truth of the declarations are deemed to be prima facie guaranteed by the special conditions of admissibility imposed. An important difference between the law in India and in England is that in the latter country this class of evidence can only be received where the author of the statement is dead. (5) The ground for its admissibility being the absence of any better evidence, the other conditions mentioned in the section under which, in India, such evidence is receivable are consonant with reason and general convenience. These conditions of admissibility apply to all the eight classes of evidence which it comprises. It is for the Judge in his discretion to say whether the alleged expense and delay is such as justifies the admission of the evidence, without insisting on the attendance of the author of the statement.(6) The statement referred to in all the eight paragraphs of section 32 are evidence against all the world, unlike statements receivable under the sections relating to admissions which may only be proved as against the person who makes them or his representative in interest. (7) But an admission may be proved by or on behalf of the person making it when it is

The nature of the evidence in the case of depositions in former trials, and gection 23. the grounds upon which such evidence is receivable is considered in the Notes to section 33, nost.

of such a nature that, if the person making it were dead, it would be relevant as between third persons under the thirty-second section.(8) to section 33, post.

The general ground of admissibility of the evidence mentioned in both sections 32 and 33 is that in the cases there in question no better evidence is to be had.(9)

<sup>(1)</sup> See Starla v. Freecas, L. R., 5 App. Cas, 639, per Lord Blackburn.

<sup>(2)</sup> S. 60, pret.

<sup>(3)</sup> Wigmore, Er . § 1420

<sup>(4)</sup> Field, Ev. 160, 170, (5) Steph. Inc., Art., 23,

<sup>(6)</sup> Norton, Ev , 174, 175.

<sup>(7)</sup> Ib , 143; Field, Er , 181; a 21, ante. (8) S. 21, cl. (1), ante; ib , ills. (b), (c), as to cess-returns, see Cess Act, IX (B. C.) of 1950.

<sup>(9)</sup> Steph, Introd., 163

Statements as to cause of death (8 32, cl 1). The ground of admissibility of "dying declarations," as they are called and to rest, firstly on necessity, (1) the injured person, who is generally the principal witness, being ity of the approach of the obligation of an oa said however that dying declarations in India are not to be regarded as if they were made in England.(3) And Mr. Field states that he has in more than one instance known a statement made by a person, who did not expect to live many hours, turn out to be wholly and utterly untrue.(4) According to English law, it is the impression of impending death, and not the rapid succession of death in point of fact, which renders the testimony admissible, but it is still doubtful what is meant by "impending." From the English cases the true principle would seem to be that the judge must be satisfied that the expectation of death is so immediate as to give to the declaration a solemnity sufficient to dispense with those sanctions necessary to ensure the purity of evidence in other cases.(5) But in so far as it is not necessary under this Act that the declaration should have been made under expectation of death.(6) the first named ground appears to be more properly that on which this kind of evidence is receivable. When, however, the statement has been so made, it will further have the sanction which the approach of death affords in the greater number of cases. According to English law evidence of this description is admissible in no civil case, and in criminal cases only in the single instance of homicide, and then only where it is offered in the very words of the deceased, both questions and answers being given where questions have been put. (7) But the above-mentioned sanction has nothing to do with the nature of the crime or other act to which the evidence relates; it is just as existent in the case of declarations relating to the commission of one offence as Further, if this evidence be admitted on the ground of necessity, that necessity is just as likely to exist where the deceased person has been robbed, or raped, or assaulted, as where he or she has been murdered.(8) And therefore under the Act the statement is admissible, whatever may be the nature of the proceeding in which the cause of the death of the person, who made the statement, comes into question (v. post) Three reasons have been given for restricting the application of this evidence to cases of homicide (a) the danger of perjury in fabricating declarations, the truth or falsehood of which it is impossible to ascertain; (b) the danger of letting in incomplete statements, which, though true as far as they go, do not constitute " the whole truth ." (c) the experienced fact. that, implicit-reliance cannot in all cases be placed on the declarations of a dying person, for his body may have survived the powers of his mind, or his recollection, if his senses are not impaired, may not be perfect or, for the sake of ease. and to be rid of the importunity of those around him, he may say, or seem to say. whatever they choose to suggest. (9) These considerations, though they have - - -1 11 mal / ant to exclude this form of yet well be borne in mind statements in particular cases.(10) This kind of evidence has been found to be on the whole useful and

<sup>(1)</sup> Taylor, Ev., § 716; Norton, Fv., 176, Ros-cor, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 27, 28. This ground seems not to have been admitted in R. v. Riccornages Meskeppe, 6 W. R. Cr., 75 (1998).

<sup>(2)</sup> Taylor, Er. §§ 744, 717, 718, R. s. Bossersyns Moderger, supra in the matter of Moderger, supra in the matter of Moderger, supra in the matter of Modernations of Erre, L. C. R., in R. v. Woodrood, I Lee, C. C., cited in the last-mentioned case at p. J. Lee, C. Moderna, R., in Advan's Case. 2 Lee, C. 127, Warroor, Ev., E 1478.

<sup>(3)</sup> Whitley Stokes, u. 841.

<sup>(4)</sup> Field, Fr., pp. 174, 175 (5) Taylor Ev., §718,

<sup>(6)</sup> v. post, s 32, cl (1), Commentary. (7) Taylor, § 714. R. v. Milchell (1892), 17

Cax, MG, R v. Smit's (1901), 65 J P., 426 but see E v. Bhitmach (1803), 62 J P., 636 (8) R. v. Bisserunjun Meelerjee, supra, 70

<sup>(9)</sup> Taylor, Fv., # 716

<sup>(10)</sup> Field Fv., 171

necessary, but the caution with which it should be received has often been commented upon. It will often happen that the particulars of the violence to which the deceased has spoken were likely to have occurred under circumstances of confusion and surprise calculated to prevent their being accurately observed. The consequences also of the violence may occasion an injury to the mind, and an indistinctness of memory as to the particular transaction. The deceased may have stated his inferences from facts, concerning which he may have drawn a wrong conclusion, or he may have omitted important particulars, from not having his attention called to them. Such evidence, therefore, is hable to be very incomplete. He may naturally, also, be disposed to give a partial account of the occurrence, although possibly not influenced by animosity or ill-will. But it cannot be concealed that animosity, and resentment are not unlikely to be felt in such a situation.(1) Such considerations show the necessity of caution in receiving impressions from accounts given by persons in a dving state; especially when it is considered that they cannot be subjected to the power of cross-examination, and the security afforded by the terror of punishment and the penalties for persury cannot exist in this case. Further, the remarks before made on verbal statements which have been heard and reported by witnesses applies equally to dying declarations; namely, that they are liable to be misunderstood and misreported, from mattention, from misunderstanding or from infirmity of memory.(2) Where the declaration of a person wounded by the accused in committing dacoity was made on the 13th August 1899, and he died on the 20th August of the same year, and there was no other evidence to prove that the death was caused or accelerated by the wounds received at the dacoity, or that it was the transaction which resulted in his death, it was held that his declaration ought not to have been admitted in evidence."(3)

The English rule as to the admissibility of these statements is subject to Statements made in the several restrictions which, as such, appear to have no place in the Act (v. post). course of The considerations which have induced the Courts to recognise this species to business. of evidence have been said to be principally these. That, in the absence of all suspicion of sinister motives, a fair presumption arises that entries made in the ordinary routine of business and in the discharge of a duty are correct, since, the process of invention implying trouble, it is easier to state what is true than what is false, that such entries usually form a link in a chain of circumstances, which mutually corroborate each other; that false entries would be likely to bring clerks into disgrace with their employers, that, as most entries made in the course of business are subject to the inspection of several persons, an error would be exposed to speedy discovery, and that, as the facts to which they relate are generally known but to few persons, a relaxation of the strict rules of evidence in favour of such entries may often prove convenient, if not necessary, for the due investigation of truth.(4)

The ground of reception of such statements is the presumption that what Statements a man states against his interest is probably true. Self-interest is a sufficient interest security against wilful mis-statement, mistake of fact, or want of information (5. 32, cl. 3) on the part of the declarant. The place of the tests of oath and cross-examination is in some measure supplied by the circumstances of the declarant and the character of his statement. Lastly, the inconveniences that would result from the exclusion of this kind of evidence are considered to be greater, in general,

<sup>(1)</sup> Roscoe, Cr Ev., 12th Ed., 32, 33: 1 Phill. & Arn., Ev., 251 , see Taylor, Ev., $722 fal-shood and the passion of revenge must also be guarded against, and this more especially in India see remarks in Field, Ev., 174, 175; Whitley Stokes, n, 841, cited aute

<sup>(2)</sup> Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 15. · I Phill & Arn., 16 (3) R. v. Rudra Falerappa, 2 Bom L. R., 331

<sup>(1900)</sup> (4) Taylor, Ev., § 697; Wills, Ev., 125; Phipson.

Ev . 3rd Ed . 250. Hope v. Hope (1893), W. N., 20, C A.

than any which are likely to be experienced from its admission.(1) The third clause of section 32 extends the rule as accepted in English Courts. For, while in the latter the interest involved must be pecuniary or proprietary, no other kind being sufficient.(2) under the Indian Act the statement is admissible when, if true, it would expose, or would have exposed, the declarant to a criminal prosecution or to a suit for damages (v. post). It may well be thought that a declaranton by which a man makes humself liable to a criminal prosecution or payment of damages, offers as good a guarantee for its truthfulness as one simply against his pecuniary or proprietary interest.(3) Though the ground of admissibility of this kind of evidence is the improbability that a party would falsely make a declaration to fix himself with hability, yet cases may be put where his down so would be an advantage to him.(4)

Matters of public and general interest (s. 32, cl. 4)

The admissibility of hearsay evidence respecting such matters is said to rest mainly on the following grounds . "That the origin of the rights claimed is usually of so ancient a date, and the rights themselves are of so undefined and general a character, that direct proof of their existence and nature can seldom be obtained, and ought not to be required; that in matters in which the community are interested all persons must be deemed conversant; that, as common rights are naturally talked of in public, and as the nature of such rights excludes the probability of individual bias, what is dropped in conversation respecting them may be presumed to be true, that the general interest which belongs to the subject would lead to immediate contradiction from others, if the statements proved were false, that reputation can hardly exist without the concurrence of many parties unconnected with each other, who are all like interested in investigating the subject, that such concurrence furnishes strong presumptive evidence of truth, and that it is this prevailing current of assertion which is resorted to as evidence, for to this every member of the community is supposed to be privy and to contribute his share.(5) The term "interest" here does not mean that which is interesting from gratifying curiosity, or a love of information or amusement, but that in which a class of the community have a pecumary interest, or some interest by which their legal rights or habilities are affected (6) But hearsay is not evidence of matters of mere private interest, for respecting these direct proof may be given, and no trustworthy reputation is likely to arise (7) But although a private interest should be involved with a matter of public interest, the reputation respecting rights and habilities affecting classes of the community cannot be excluded, or this relaxation of the rule against the admission of hearsay

(1) Tayler, Lo. 1 [668]. Red. D. 6 [801, Plapson Ex., 304 bl. 291; Wille, Ex., 205; Wignow, Ex. [1157], the attention and care ordinarily given by men to convers in which their interests are involved are supposed to be a sufficient guarantee against inaccures,. "Plas, however, easy to conceive cases, e.g., that of a herdless spendthrift her, who has just survested to an inheritance, in which these guarantee would be of little value, This is, however, a point conceined not with the admissibility, but with the weight of the exidence." Field, Fv. [81], and see note, p. 62.

(2) Nasses Perioge Care, 11 C. & F., 103-114, explained and acted upon in Paris v. Hoyd, 1 C. & Kir., 2761. Westerness (1) is particularly pointed to this case, and indicates the departure in the Act from the Faglish rule.

(3) Norton, Fr., 184.

(4) Berl, Ev., § 500; eg., the accounts of the receiver or Stenard of an estate have, through neglect or worse, got into a state of de augustral which it is desirable to conveal from his employer; and one very obvious way of setting the Islams straight is a falsely charging humself with haring revised money from a particular person. Ib (5) Taxlor, Ev., § 406, and cases there circle.

(5) Taylor, Ev., § 666, and cases there extent.

R. v. Hedfordshire, 4 E. & B., 542; Starker, Ev.

4th Fel., 43-50, 185-190

(6) R. v. Hedfordakter, supra, per Lord Camp-

(2) B. and see per latel kenyon, in Morecook, W. Bord, 14 East, 3.7m; Norten, Ev., 185. In Heckers, Sporte, 1 M. & N., 60n, Bayley, Jonathies rule thus, "I take it that where the term public right is used, it does not mean public in the Interal sense, but is synonymous with general.

evidence would often be found unavailing.(1) Evidence of this description is frequently included under the general term "reputation."(2) Strictly speaking. "general reputation" is the general result or conclusion formed by society as to any public fact or usage, by the aid of the united knowledge and experience of its individual members. Such fact may, according to English law, be proved not only by such general reputation, but by the declarations of those who were likely to have possessed a knowledge on the subject derived either from their own observation or the information of others.(3)

Section 32 in its fifth and sixth clauses deals with two classes of statements Statements which are usually treated by English text-writers under the single head of tionality matter of pedigree and is in some respects more extensive than, and differs etc. [22] from the English rule on the came analyses (1) makes (2) and [23]. from, the English rule on the same subject (v. post). The grounds upon which this class of statements is received are-necessity-such inquiries generally involving remote facts of family history known to but few, and meanable of direct proof; and-the special means of knowledge which are possessed by the declarant.(4)

As to statements in documents relating to a transaction by which any Statements indocument right and custom was created, claimed or the like, see post, and the thirteenth relating to section, antc.

by which any right or custom was claimed and

As to statements made by a number of persons, and expressing feelings or Statements impressions (v. post).

made by a persons and expressing feelings or impressions

Before statements or depositions under section 32 or 33 are admissible, it Burden of must be shown that the circumstances and conditions mentioned and imposed proof; contradiction by those sections exist; as that the person who made the statement sought corroborato be proved is dead, or cannot be found, or the like. The burden of proving this is on the person who wishes to give the evidence.(5) Whenever any statement relevant under section 32 or 33 is proved, all matters may be proved either in order to contradict or corroborate it, or in order to impeach or confirm the credit of the person by whom it was made, which might have been proved if that person had been called as a witness and had denied upon crossexamination the truth of the matter suggested.(6)

32. Statements, written or verbal, (7) of relevant facts Cases in which made by a person who is dead, or who cannot be found, or who statement has become incapable of giving evidence, or whose attendance fact by which cannot be procured without an amount of delay or expense which, under the circumstances of the case, appears to the Court unformation and the country to the state of the case of the ca reasonable, are themselves relevant facts in the following cases :- that is, what concerns a multitude of persons." Greeley, Ev , 305.

(1) R. v. Bedfordshire, supra

(2) Starkie, Ev., 4th Ed., 43, et seq., 186n.; ere as to the difference between reputation of a fact and evidence of a fact, Mosely v. Dans, 11 Price, 167, arguendo.

(3) Starkie, Fr , 13, 41

(4) See Taylor, Ev., § 635, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 268; Gresley, Ev., 319, and post.

(5) S 104, post. (6) S. 159, post: see further as to proof, the Commentary to ss 32, 33, post, (7) As to the meaning of this expression, see Chandra Nath v. Nilmadhub Bhattacharpet. 2 C, 236; s. c., 3 C. W. N, 88 (1898), and post.

When it relates to cause of death (1) When the statement is made by a person as to the cause of his death, or as to any of the circumstances of the transaction which resulted in his death, in cases in which the cause of that person's death comes into question.

Such statements are relevant whether the person who made them was or was not, at the time when they were made, under expectation of death, and whatever may be the nature of the proceeding in which the cause of his death comes into question.(1)

Or is made in course of business; (2) When the statement was made by such person in the ordinary course of business, (2) and in particular when it consists of any entry or memorandum made by him in books kept in the ordinary course of business, or in the discharge of professional duty, or of an acknowledgment written or signed by him of the receipt of money, goods, securities or property of any kind, or of a document used in commerce written or signed by him, or of the date of a letter or other document usually dated, written or signed by him. (3)

Or against interest of maker;

h

ŧ

(3) When the statement is against the pecuniary or proprietary interest of the person making it, or when, if true, it would expose him or would have exposed him to a criminal prosecution or to a suit for damages. (4)

Or gives opinion as to public right or custom or matters of general in terest

(4) When the statement gives the opinion of any such person, as to the existence of any public right or custom or matter of public or general interest, of the existence of which, if it existed, he would have been likely to be aware, and when such statement was made before any controversy as to such right, custom or matter had arisen. (5)

Or relates to existence of relation ship

(5) When the statement relates to the existence of any relationship by blood, marriage or adoption between persons as to whose relationship by blood, marriage or adoption the person making the statement had special means of knowledge, and when the statement was made before the question in dispute was raised.(6)

Or is made in will or deed relating to famiiy affairs

(6) When the statement relates to the existence of any relationship by blood, marriage or adoption between persons deceased, and is made in any will or deed relating to the affairs of the family to which any such deceased person belonged, or in any family pedigree, or upon any tombstone, family portrait or other thing on which such statements are usually made and metre to clause (5) & (8).

<sup>(1)</sup> Ill. (a); v. aste, p. 293, and post, p. 302 (2) As to the meaning of onlinery course of business are Missing v. Blannappo, 23 B, 63

<sup>(1417),</sup> and part, p. 317.
(3) Ille (b), (c), (d), (g), (h), (j) = 21, ille(b), (c), and acts, p. 273, and part, pp. 315, 318.

<sup>(4)</sup> Ills (c), (f), 1, ants, p. 295, and pad, notes to clause 3.
(5) Ill. (j); 1, ants, p. 293, and pad, notes to clause 4.
(6) Ills, (k), (l), (m), 1, ants, p. 298, and pad.

when such statement was made before the question in dispute was raised.(1)

(7) When the statement is contained in any deed, will or or ment relate other document which relates to any such transaction as is men-ing to trans tioned in section 13, clause (a).(2)

(8) When the statement was made by a number of persons or is made and expressed feelings or impressions on their part relevant to persons, and the matter in question (3) the matter in question.(3)

relevant to question

Illustrations.

- (a) The question is, whether A was murdered by B , or A dies of injuries received in a transaction in the course of which she was ray shed
  - The question is, whether she was ravished by B, or

The question is, whether A was killed by B under such circumstances that a suit would be against B by A's widow.

- Statements made by A as to the cause of his or her death, referring respectively to the murder, the rape, and the actionable wrong under consideration, are relevant facts.(4)
- (b) The question is, as to the date of A's birth

An entry in the diary of a deceased surgeon, regularly kept in the course of business stating that, on a given day, he attended if's mother and delivered her of a son, is a relevant fact (5)

- (c) The question is, whether A was in Calcutta on a given day.
  - A statement in the diary of a deceased solicitor, regularly kept in the course of business, that, on a given day, the solicitor attended A at a place mentioned. in Calcutta, for the purpose of conferring with him upon specified business, is a relevant fact.(5)
- (d) The question is, whether a ship sailed from Bombay harbour on a given day.
  - A letter written by a deceased member of a merchant's firm, by which she was chartered, to their correspondents in London to whom the cargo was consigned, stating that the ship sailed on a given day from Bombay harbour, is a relevant fact.(5)
- (e) The question is, whether rent was paid to A for certain land.
  - A letter from A's deceased agent to A, saying that he has received the rent on A's account and held it at A's orders, is a relevant fact (6)
- (f) The question is, whether A and B were legally married.

The statement of a deceased clergyman that he married them under such circumstances that the celebration would be a crime, is relevant.(6)

(g) The question is, whether A, a person who cannot be found, wrote a letter on a certain day.

The fact that a letter written by him is dated on that day is relevant, (5)

(h) The question is, what was the cause of the wreck of a ship.

A protest made by the captain, whose attendance cannot be procured, is a relevant fact.(5)

<sup>(1)</sup> Ille, (k), (l), (m); v ante, p. 296 and pool, mites to clauses (5) & (6)

<sup>(4) 5.32,</sup> cl. (1). (5) 5.32, cl (2).

<sup>(2)</sup> See a. 13, aute, v port, notes to clause (7)

<sup>(6) 8</sup> J2. cl (3)

<sup>(3)</sup> Ill. (n); v. post

- (i) The question is, whether a given road is a public way.
- A statement by A, a deceased headman, of the village, that the road was public,
- is a relevant fact.(1) (a) The question is, what was the price of gram on a certain day in a particular market.
  - A statement of the price, made by a deceased banya in the ordinary course of - his business, is a relevant fact.
  - (1) The question is, whether A, who is dead, was the father of B. A statement by A that B was his son, is a relevant fact.(2)
  - (1) The question is, what was the date of the buth of A.
  - A letter from A's deceased father to a triend, announcing the birth of A on a - given day, is a relevant fact (3) (m) The question is, whether and when, A and B were married.
  - An entry in a memorandum-book by C, the deceased father of B, of his daughter's
  - marriage with A on a given date, is a relevant fact.(3) (n) .1 sues B for a libel expressed in a painted caricature exposed in a shop

n todou The question is as to the similarity of the caricatine and its libellous character, The remarks of a crowd of spectators on these points may be proved.(4)

Principle.-The general ground of admissibility of the evidence mentioned in this section is that in the cases there in question no better evidence is to be had.(5) As to the further and particular grounds on which each of the several classes of evidence mentioned are admitted, see Introduction, unte, and Note, post. s. 3 (" Relevant. ") - 114, ill. (f) (Presumption as to

s. 3 (" Fact.") course of business.) s. 3 (" Evidence.") . 8, ills. (1), (k) (Examples of dying s. 3 (" Court.") declaration v.) s. 3 (" Document.") s 21, of (1), alls. (b), (c) (Proof of n 118 (Who may testify.) admission by, or on behalf of, s. 158 (What matters may be proved verenn malina ill in connection with proved × 90 (Agreent documents.)

statement reterant under 9, 12) ~ 47, 67 (Proof of handwriting.) s. 104 (Burden of Droring fact to be s 13, 48 (Public and general rustoms proved to make evidence ad-or rights.} merchle.1 <. 12 (Indepents relating to matters of a public nature.)

4. 38 (Relevancy of depositions.) * B5, cl. (d) (Secondary evidence.) a. 80 (Presumption as to document-4. 50 (Opinion on relationship when produced as record of evidence.) relevant.)

Dying Diclarations :- Steph. Dig . Art. 26; Wigmore, Ev., § 1430-1452; Taylor, Ev., §§ 714-722; 3 Russ, Cr., 354-362; Best, Ev., § 505, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 277-282; Roscoe, Cr., Ev., 12th Ed., 27-33; Powell, Ev., 265-213; Wills, Ev., 139-141; Field, Ev., 170-175; Norton, Ev., 175-177. Declarations in the course of business :-Steph. Dig , Art. 27; Taylor, Ev., §§ 697-713; Best, Ev., § 501; Roscoe, N. P. Ev.,

(I) N. 32, el. (I) (4) N. 32, cl. (*). (2) S. 32 ele (5) & (6). (5) Steph. Introd , 163

<sup>(3) 2 32</sup> ch (5) 4 (6)

60-62; Wigmore, Ev., § 1517-1561; Powell, Ev., 226-236; Smith; L. C., Note to Price v Torrington; Wharton, Ev., $$ 238-257; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 250-256; Wills, Ev., 125-129; Field, Ev., 175-179; Norton, Ev., 177-179 against interest; -Steph. Dig., Art. 28; Wigmore, Ev., §§ 1455-1477; Taylor, Ev., 85 668-696; Phinson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 241-249; Best, Ev., 8 50; Roscoe, X. P. Ev., 55-50; Smith, L. C. Note to Higham v. Ridgican . Powell, Ev., 214- 225; Wharton, Ev., 226-237; Wills, Ev., 130-138; Act IX of 1908 (Limitation), s. 20, Field, Ev., 179 -185; Norton, Ev., 179-184. Declarations as to public rights -Steph, Dig., Art. 30 : Taylor, Ev., §§ 607-634 , Best, Ev., § 497 ; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 257-267 ; Wigmore, Ev. 88 1563, Roscoe: N. P. Ev., 48-51: Powell, Ev., 170-185, Wills, Ev., 167-177; Field, Ev., 185-188; Norton, Lv., 184-188 Declarations as to relationship -Steph. Dig., Art. 31; Wiginore, Ev., §§ 1480-1510; Taylor, Ev., §§ 635-637; Best. Ev., § 498; Physon, Ev., 3rd Ed., 268-276; Wills, Ev., 158-166. Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 44-48; Habback's Ev. of Succession, 648-711; Wharton, Ev., §§ 201-225, Powell, Ev., 193-204; Field, Ev., 188-194; Norton, Ev., 188-190 Statements in documents relating to transaction mentioned in s. 13 -Field, Ev., 194-196; Norton, Ev., 190-192. Statements by a number of versons expressing technique or various states. Field, Ev., 196-198 : Norton, Ev., 192-193 , cases cited.

COMMENTARY

The word "person" must not be read as "persons." If a statement, "Person" written or verbal, is made by several persons, and one or some of them is or are dead, and one or others is or are alive, the statement of the deceased person or persons is admissible under this section notwithstanding that the other person or persons who also made the statement is or are alive. In such a case the statement is not one statement but each person making the statement must be taken to have made the statement for himself or herself, and if any of the makers of the statement is dead, the statement made by that person is admissible under this section if it comes under one or other of its clauses, being thus the statement of a person who is dead. It may in such a case however be matter for legitimate comment that the statement of the deceased person must be received with caution, if the party tendering it has not without proper excuse called the author or authors of the statement still living to depose to its accuracy, but the matter cannot be placed higher than that.(1)

The conditions upon which the statement may be tendered are the same "Bead or as those mentioned in section 33 (see notes to section 33, post), with the exceptional found to be section 33.

to be madmissible in evidence as statements of a deceased person. It was attempted to distinguish the case on the ground that the defendant had himself (after the person whose statements were filed was dead) filed certain other statements of this same man. As to this the Privy Council observed : " But those documents which were doubtless filed in case the respondent's (plaintiff's) documents should be admitted, are not evidence, and their production by the appellant (defendant) cannot be held to compel the Court to depart from the rules of evidence in the decision of the case."(2)

See Notes to section 33, past.

"Incapable of giving .

<sup>(1)</sup> Chandra Nath v. Nilmadhab blanced arges, (2) Japitjal Singh v. Jegether Baleh, 25 A. 26 C. 276 . e c. 3 C H. N. 88 (1898). 143 (1902)

" Delay or excense

See Notes to section 33, post

FIRST CLAUSE

Statement as to cause

The first clause is widely different from the English law upon the subject of "dying declarations," according to which, (a) this description of evidence is admissible in no civil case, and in criminal cases only in the single instance of homicide, that is, murder or manslaughter, where the death of the deceased is the subject of the charge and the circumstances of the death are the subject of the dving declaration.(1) On the other hand, under this Act the statement is relevant whatever may be the nature of the proceeding, in which the cause of the death of the person who made the statement comes into question (2) And further.(b) according to English law certain conditions are required to have existed at the time of declaration, viz., it is necessary that the declarant should have been in actual danger of death, that he should have been aware of his danger and have abandoned all hope of recovery, and that death should have ensued.(3) The existence of the last condition is of course as necessary under the Act as under the English rule, masmuch as the statement is admissible only in cases in which the cause of the death of the person who made it comes in question But under the Indian Evidence Act the statement is relevant whether the person who made it was or was not at the time when it was made, under expectation of death (4) Therefore, whether the declarant was or was not in actual danger of death, and knew or did not know himself to be in such danger, are considerations which will no longer affect the admissibility of this kind of evidence in India. But these considerations ought not to be laid aside in estimating the weight to be allowed to the evidence in particular cases (5) Of course before the statement can be admitted under this section the declarant must have died. Where a person making a dying declaration chances to live, his statement cannot be admitted in evidence as a dving declaration, though it may be relied on under s. 157 to corroborate the testimony of the complainant when examined in the case. (6)

Subjecttion

The statement must be as to the cause of the declarant's death, or as to any the declara of the circumstances of the transaction which resulted in his death. (7) that is

> (1) Taylor, Ev. 8 714-716, thus in a trial for robbers, the dsing declaration of the parts robbed has been rejected, and where a presoner was indicted for administering drugs to a woman, with intent to procure abortion, her statements an extremes were held to be insilmisable, ib . § 715 , Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Fd., 28-29. 3 Russ Cr., 354-3n2

> (2) 8 32, cl (1), Illustration (a) gives an ex ample of a civil, as well as of a criminal case and as an example of the latter, a charge of rape | Even under the previous law as contained in s 371 of Act XXV of 1881, and a 29, Act 11 of 1855, it was held that the rule of English law restricting the admeson of this exidence to cases of homicule had no application in India; and that the dring declaration of a deceased person was admissible in evidence on a charge of rape; R. s. Biangunjun Mosterpes, 6 W. R. Cr. 75 (1866), Field, Fv. 171 : Norton, Fv., 175

> (3) Taylor, (Fe., § 718; Rower, Cr., Ec., 12th Fd . 25-31; 3 Rose Cr . 354-363

> (4) × 32, e). (1); E, v Ingumber Thaline, 19

W. R., Cr. 44 (1873), R. v. Blechynden, 6 C. I.

R . 278 (1860) (5) Field L. 172. Norton, Ev., 175. Under the law which was in force prior to this Act (* 371. Act ANA of 1861) . a 29. Act II of 1855, and which, with one modification relating to the en tertainment by the deceased of hopes of recovery. was similar in this respect to the English law, it was held that before a dying declaration could be received in evidence, it must be distinctly found that the declarant knew, or believed at the time he made the declaration, that he was dring, or likely to die In the matter of Shealk Tenen, 15 W. R., Cr., 11 (1871), E. v. Bixeorunjun Monketree, 6 W. R. Cr., 75, 76 (1966), R. s. Symmler Singh, S W. R., (Y., 2 (INSS), as to the English rule, see R. v. Gloder, 16 ('ox, 471 (1884), 10 which the result of the case-law is stated, and R. v. Milchell, 17 Cox. 503 (1492) and text-looks cited.

(6) R. v. Eama Saltu, 4 Born, L. R., 434 (1982) (7) 5, 32, cl (1); Steph Dig , Art 26, the cause and circumstances of the death, and not previous or subsequent transactions (1) such independent transactions being excluded as not falling within the principle of necessity on which such evidence is received.(2) Nor must they include matter madmissible from the mouth of a witness-c.q., hearsay or opinion; (3) and whatever the declaration may be it must be complete in itself, for, if the dving man appears to have intended to qualify it by other statements which he is prevented by any cause from making, it will not be received.(4)

The person whose declaration is thus admitted is considered as standing Competency in the same situation as if he were sworn as a witness. It follows, therefore billy that when the declarant, if living, would have been incompetent to testify by reason of imbeculty of mind, or tender age, his dving declarations are inadmissible.(5) And his credibility may be impeached or confirmed in the same manner as that of a witness (6) In a trial for dacoity the statement of a deceased person ought not to be admitted in evidence in the absence of evidence to show that his death was caused or accelerated by the wounds received at the dacoity, or that the dacoity was the transaction which resulted in his death (7) As to the weight which should be attached to this kind of testimony, and the caution with which it should be received, v. ante p. 293,

The declarations may be oral or written. (8) A person was tried for the Form of murder of one D. The deceased had been questioned by a Police-officer, a Magistrate and a Surgeon , the deceased was unable to speak, but was conscious and able to make signs. Evidence was offered and admitted to prove the questions put to D, and the signs, which she had made in answer to such questions. The evidence was held to have been rightly admitted, as the questions and the signs, taken together, might properly be regarded as "verbal statements," within the meaning of this section (9). Sometimes declarations by dving persons are made on oath, in which case, assuming them to be in the presence of the accused and otherwise formal, and that an opportunity for cross-examination has been given, they are depositions. The essence of a dying declaration, so-called, is that it is not upon oath. The lapse of time between the declarations and death is immaterial, and the presence of the accused at the making of the declaration is unnecessary. But it cannot be used as a deposition unless taken in the presence of the accused with all the usual formalities of a deposition, and unless admissible within the terms of the following section (v. post).(10) Though the declaration must, in general, narrate facts only, and not mere opinions (v. ante), and must be confined to

<sup>(1)</sup> R. v. Mead, 2 B. & C., 605, R. v. Hind, 8 Cox, 300 , R. v Murton, 3 F & F., 492 , Steph. Dig , Art 26. Khana v. R , 67 P. L. R., 2 Cr 1. J . 237.

<sup>(2)</sup> Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 279, so also in America, the declarations are restricted to the respector ib , and cases there cited.

<sup>(3)</sup> Taylor, Ev. § 720, esting R. v. Sellers, Carr C. L., 233; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 279, citing 1 Greenleaf, a. 159, note (a),

<sup>(4)</sup> Taylor, Ev , § 721. (5) R.v. Pile, 3 C. & P . 598; R.v. Drummond, 1 Lea, C. C., 338 : R v Perkins, 9 C. & P., 295 ; Taylor, Ev , § 717; Field, Ev , 172; Norton, Fv.

<sup>175;</sup> see a. 118, post. (6) S 158, post , Steph. Dig , Art. 135. This rule is also established in America. Thus previous consistent statements by the deceased not made under the fear of death, were admitted for this purpose (Felder v. State, 59 Am. Ren.,

<sup>777,</sup> cited in Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 278), and dying declarations were allowed to be corroborated by proof of prior consistent statements, though the latter were not admissible themselves as dving declarations (State v. Blackburn), 80 N. C., 474. cited in Pest, Ev., p 457; ese also Roscoc, Cr Et , 12th Ed , 33 , 3 Russ Cr , 361.

<sup>(7)</sup> R. v Rudra, 25 Bem., 45 (1900).

<sup>(9)</sup> R v Aldulla, 7 A , 385, F. B. (1885); Bata v. R , Punj Rec., 1886; p 2. cited in Henderson's Cr. Pr. Code So also in America it has been held that the declaration may be by signs, or any other method of expressing thought: Com. v. Carey, II Cush, 417, 421, cited un Best, Ev , p. 456.

<sup>(10)</sup> Norton, Ev., 175, 176; Rescee, Cr Ev., 12th Ed., 32; if the evidence te inadmissible unders 33, it may yet be admissible under a. 32, cl. (1); R. v. Bochia - Mohato, 7 C., 42 (1981)

what is relevant to the issue. (1) it is not necessary that the examination of the deceased should have been conducted after the manner of interrogating a witness in the cause, though any departure from this mode may affect the neight of the declarations.(2) Therefore, in general, it is no objection to their admissibility that they were made in answer to leading questions, (3) or obtained by partiest solicitation.(4) But where a statement, ready written, was brought by the father of the deceased to a Magistrate, who accordingly went to the deceased and interrogated her as to its accuracy, paragraph by paragraph, it was rejected.(5) A declaration is not irrelevant merely because it was intended to be made as a deposition before a Magistrate, but is irregular and inadmissible as such.(6)

Record and proof of

The right to offer the declaration in evidence is not restricted to the proseproof or declaration, cutor, but it is equally admissible in favour of the accused. (7) When a Judge is sitting with a jury, the admissibility of this evidence in any particular case is a question to be decided by the Judge admitted, proof must be given that the

upon the person who wishes to give the : circumstances of the case permit, the statement should be taken in the presence of the accused, and should be written as a formal deposition in accordance with the provisions of the (riminal Procedure Code.(10) If this be done, and the injured person die or become incapable of giving evidence at the Sessions, the depositions so taken will, subject to the provisions of the following section, be admissible in evidence without further proof.(11) If the statement be not taken down in the presence of the accused, and as a formal deposition, it will none the less be relevant under this section, but, before it can be admitted in evidence it must be proved to have been made by the deceased it is not rendered admissible without such proof because it was taken down by a Magistrate The writing made by such Magistrate cannot , he admitted to prove the statement of the deceased without making it evidence in the ordinary way by calling the Magistrate who took down the declaration and heard it made. If the Magistrate be called to prove the dying declaration, he may either speak to the words used by the deceased, refreshing his memory with the writing made by himself at the time when the statement was made , or he may speak to the writing itself as being an accurate reproduction of what the deceased had said in his presence.(12) A dying declaration recorded in the absence of the accused and by a Magistrate other than the inquiring Magistrate is not admissible until it is proved by the recording officer (13) Adving declaration made to a Police-officer in the course of an investigation, may, if reduced to writing, be signed by the person making it, and may be used as evidence against the accused (14) if such writing be

173

m 5 32

<sup>(2)</sup> Taxlor, 1 . . § 720

<sup>(3)</sup> R. v Smith, 10 tox, 82, but see also R

s. Markell, 17 Cos. 563, cited post (4) R v. Fojent, 7 C & P., 234, R v. Reason.

<sup>1</sup> Str., 400, R. v. II kiloveth, 1 F & F. 382. (5) R s. Fatzgerold Ir Cir. Rep., 168, 169, ested in Taylor, Lr., $ 720, where we observations of Crampton, J , in the same cause (6) E. v Burdad, I hast . P. C., &&, Steph

Ing , Act. 26 , 1. jeur (7) R v. Acade, 1 M & Rob. 851

<sup>14) (7 17.</sup> Cale, a. 204; Tarlor, I v., 11 23c, 24. Longer, Ch. I v. 25.

<sup>(3) 5 164,</sup> West (a), good

<sup>(10) (</sup>b) AM, Act 1 of 1894, see Field, Era

<sup>(11) 10</sup>th Let, 173, se 33, 80, peak.

<sup>(12)</sup> B . Fata Adap, 11 Bom. H. C. R. 247 (1874) R v Samiruddin, 8 C., 211 (1981): 10 t L. R. 11 followed in R . Daulat Kunger 12 arg 6 t W \ 121, and see as to proof of doing designation R v. Mathern Thaker (1981). 81 11-1 72

<sup>(13)</sup> Pascha Int v R (1907), 31 C. 6 N. 11 C W 1, 660

<sup>(14)</sup> See Cr. Pr. Code s. 182; Field, Ev., 4th Ed. 161, such a declaration is admissible not under a 162 of the Cr. Pr. Code, which is a purely negative proximon, but under the general lan as embedied properly proved by the Police-officer in whose presence it was signed, and the declaration, which it embodies, was made. "A declaration should be taken down in the exact words which the person who makes it uses, in order that it may be possible from those words to arrive precisely at what the person making the declaration meant. When a statement is not the spisissima terbo of the person making it, but is composed of a mixture of questions and answers, there are several objections open to its reception in evidence which, it is desirable, should not be open in cases in which the questions may be leading questions, and in the condition of a person making a dying declaration there is always very great danger of leading questions being answered without their force and effect being freely comprehended. In such circumstances the form of the declaration should be such that it would be possible to see what was the question and what was the answer, so as to discover how much was suggested by the examining Magistrate and how much was the production of the person making the statements."(1)

SECOND CLAUSE.

Statements made in the course of business, whether written or verbal, of Statements relevant facts by a person who is dead, or who cannot be found, or who has course of become incapable of giving evidence, or whose attendance cannot be procured business, without an unreasonable amount of delay or expense, are themselves relevant. Though the statement is admissible, whether it be verbal or written, (2) the effect of the statement as to weight may be very different in the two cases. The words "and in particular" in this clause seem to point to the superior

Hustrations (b), (e), (d), (g), (h), (p), refer to this Clause, as also illustrations (b) and (e) of section 21; the leading case in English law on the subject being that of Price v.  $Torrington_1(1)$  In this case the plaintiff, who was a of the brew-house, and gave him an account of the beer they had delivered out, which he set down in a book kept for that purpose, to which the draymen set their names, and that the drayman was dead, but that this was his hand set to the book, and this was held good evidence of a delivery, otherwise of the shop-book itself singly, without more (5). Thus also where the plaintiff, a Mahommedan lady, sued for her deferred dower, an entry last to the amount of her dower entered in a register of marriages kept by the Mujtahid, since deceased, who celebrated the marriage, was held to be admissible as evidence of the sum fixed, being an entry kept in the discharge of professional duty within the meaning of this section. (6). In another case a deed of conveyance force of written over verbal statements.(3)

in = 32, cl. (i) of the Eridence Act. The Code merely declares that that law shall not be affected by the fact that the declaration was made to a Police-officer in the course of an investigation.

<sup>(1)</sup> R v Muchall, 17 Cox, C. C., 503, 507, per Cax, J., adding "It appears to me, therefore, that a statement taken down as this was, giving the substance of questions and auxiers, cannot be said to be advictation in such a sense as to make it admissible in evidence, and that this doument cannot be admixted upon that ground.

S. 32, cl. 2, ante, ill. (j), Stapplion v. Clough,
 E. & B. 933, Edie v. Kingeford, 14 C. B., 750.

R v. ButHey, 13 Cox, 293.

<sup>(3)</sup> Norton, Ev., 177
(4) 1 Smith, L. C. (9th ed.), 352 and notes, Salkeld, 225. as to English rule, see Taylor, Ev., 1997—713, Steph. Dig., Art., 27. Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 69—62, Best. Ev., 4 501, Plupson Ev., 3rd. 425., 1259. Powell, Ev., 125—129. Powell, Ev., 125—129.

<sup>226-236
(5)</sup> See also Doe v. Turford, 3 B. & Ad., 839, in which the earlier cases are rited and discussed.

in which the earlier cases are cited and discussed, (6) Zaters Ecquin v. Salina Ecquin, 19 C., 689 (1892). 19 L. A., 157.

which purported to bear the mark of the defendant as vendor was tendered in evidence. The defendant, however, denied that she had ever put her mark to it. It was proved to be attested by a deed writer who was dead, and it was manifestly all in his writing, including the words descriptive of the markswoman. The statement of the deed-writer, that the mark was that of the defendant, was held to be admissible under this clause, apparently on the ground that it had been made by him in the ordinary course of his business.(1) The section make;

ment usually dated, written, or signed by him. (5) In a suit to recover loss sus-defendants.(6) It cannot, however, he said that the execution of a mortigatedeed is an act done in the ordinary course of bisiness.(7) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 21 and the present section, cess returns cannot, under section 95 of the Road Cess Act, he used as evidence in favour of the person submitting them.(8) Entries in accounts relevant only under section 34 are not by themselves alone sufficient to charge any person with hability; corroboration is required. But where accounts are relevant under this clause they are in law sufficient evidence in themselves, and the law does not, as in the case of accounts admissible only under section 34. require corroboration. Entries in accounts may in the same suit be relevant under both the sections, and in that case the necessity for corroboration does not apply (9)

It has also been held in England that the declarations must have been made in discharge of a duty to a third person, a mere personal custom not involving responsibility being insufficient (10). No such limitation appears in the words of the section, or is to be directly gathered from a consideration of the Illustrations thereto. It may be that the framers of the Act considered the accuracy which is generally produced by commercial or professional routine to be a sufficient quarrantee of the credibility of this class of evidence without having recourse to the guarantee which exists in the obligation to discharge an imposed duty

- (1) Abdullo Paru v. Gannibar, 11 B, 600 (1887)
  (2) Illust (b), (c), as to the admissibility and effect of entires in books of account and efficial
- records, whether the major is dead or not, 1part, st. 34, 35 (3) For some cases relating to delibles, are
- (3) For some cases relating to dallitles, see Fig.1, Er., 178, 179
- (i) As to letters of advice, see R. v. Tentriciones Bry. 9. B. R. R. App. 24 (1872). It this case the pisoner was charged with forging for the purpose of cheating, and using as ground a forged railway receipt for the jurgow of oblaming from a Rudway Company certain posts which had been entirested to the Company for the current from Dilit to Takutta. The Nandang Consul for the pracecules neaght to prove the dilivery of the goods to the Company by putting in a kter from the constince at Dilit ho ha gartner in Cabutta, advanting the despatch of the goods submitting that the letter was a "document uned in commerce, written or agend" by a person "whose attendance could not be pooren!"
- etc." The Court (Macpherson, J.) refused to receive the evalence, and intimated a doubt whether such a letter would, under any oreumstances, be receivable. "since it was beyond the instances specified in the section." As to estimster, see Herr Chistiana v. More Lakhman.
- 11 B , 97 (1886).

(1877).

- (5) Illustration (g).
   (6) Barlow v Chuni Lal, 28 C., 269 (1901)
   (7) Λingawa v Bhormappa, 23 B. 63, 65, 70
- (8) Hem Chundes v. Act, Prassanna, 26 C, 821, 838 (1809)
- (9) Eampyarahas v Rolaji, 6 Rom. L. B., 30 (1994), z c. 24 B., 294
- 110) R. v. Horth, 4.Q. B. 172, Masny v. 30cs, 13 Ch. D., 558-567, "the entry must be made in the course of business, in the performance of dety," it, per Mall, V. C.; Thipson, Ev., 3cd Fd. 250, an apparent exception is presented by the case of the v. Turford, 3 B & A , 590; lut see at to this case, Wills, Ev., 128.

faithfully. Declarations in the course of duty differ, in English law, from those against interest, in requiring contemporaneousness, personal knowledge, and the exclusion of collateral matters, none of which restrictions are declared by the section to exist upon the admissibility of such declarations in Indian Courts.

"The applicability of this clause entirely depends on the exact meaning of Course of the words 'course of business.'"(1) "In using the phrase the Legislature probably intended to admit in evidence statements similar to those admitted in England as coming under the same description. The subject is dealt with in Chapter XII (2) of Mr. Pitt Taylor's treatise on the Law of Evidence, and the cases which he has collected show that this exception to the general rule against hearsay extends only to statements made during the course, not of any particular transaction of an exceptional kind such as the execution of a deed of mortgage, but of business or professional employment in which the declarant was ordinarily or habitually engaged. The phrase was apparently used to indicate the current routine of business which was usually followed by the person whose declaration it is sought to introduce."(3) "The expression course of business' occurs in more than one place in the Evidence Act. Thus in section 16, where there is a question whether a particular act was done, the existence of any course of business according to which it would naturally have been done is a relevant fact. Illustration (a) to that section is evidently the case of Hetherington v. Kemp.(4) The 'course of business' there put forward was a certain usage in the plaintiff's counting house a usage in a private house which, however methodical, cannot carry the same weight as the ordinary routine of an office So, too, by section 114 the Court may presume the existence of any fact, which it thinks likely to have happened, regard being had to the common course of natural events, human conduct, and public and private business, in their relation to the facts of the particular case. What is meant by the common course of public and private business ' Illustration (f) with its explanation refers to the public business of the Post Office. Private business would apparently apply to such a case as that alluded to above (Hetherington v Kemp). If the expression was meant to business, ration (c) ell-known popular sense must mean a man habitually engaged in mercantile transactions of trade Again, in the Explanation to section 47 it is said that a person is said to be acquainted with the handwriting of another person, when in the ordinary course of business documents purporting to be written by that person have been habitually submitted to him. Here, too, the expression must mean in the ordinary course, of a professional avocation. The illustration is that of a broker. to whom letters are shown for the purpose of advice.

Again, by section 34 entries in books of accounts, regularly kept in the course of business, are relevant. In Munchershaw Bezonn v. The New Dhurumsey Spinning and Wearing Company. (5) West, J., referred to a private account tendered in evidence which had been entered up casually once a week or fortnight. with none of the claims to confidence that attach to books entered up from day to day, or (as in banks) from hour to hour as transactions take place (he said) "are, I think, regularly kept in the course of business."

Having regard, then, to the above considerations, there can, I think, be no doubt that the expression 'in the ordinary course of business' in the second clause of this section must be read in the same sense. It may in one sense be

C, 118 (1899), a c, 4 C. W. N., 147.

<sup>(1)</sup> Nisgawa v Bharmappa, 23 B , 63, 64 (1897), per Candy, J (2) Chapter VII, Part III of 10th Ed.

<sup>(3)</sup> R , at p 70, per Fulton, J.

<sup>(4) 4</sup> Camp , 193.

<sup>(5) 4</sup> B , 576, 583 (1890) This decision was not approved of by the Privy Council in Deputy Commissioner, Lara Banks, v. Pam Persad 27 true that it is, in the ordinary course of business, for a mortgage-deed to contain recitals of the boundaries of the land mortgaged. But that would not make the recitals evidence. The question is, whether the mortgage-deed itself is a statement made in the ordinary course of business. Looking at the particulars set out in the second clause of this section which, though not exhaustive, may fairly be taken as indicating the nature of the statements 'made in the course of business,' and looking at the sense in which the expression is apparently used in other sections of the Evidence Act, it cannot be said that a mortgage-deed executed by an agriculturist falls within that term. It is not the 'profession, trade or business? (to borrow the words used in section 27 of the Contract Act) of an agriculturist to execute mortgage-deeds "(1)

Personal

According to the English rule it is necessary that the declarant should have had personal knowledge of the transaction recorded.(2) But this appears not to be law in India (3) Under the present section it seems to be not necessary that the person making the entry or other statement should have had a personal knowledge of the fact recorded or stated; it is sufficient to show that the statement was made in the ordinary course of business, the question as to how the person making the statement came to know about the matter, though it might affect the weight to be given to the statement not affecting its admissibility.(4) So it has been held that account books containing entries not made by, nor at the dictation of, a person who had a personal knowledge of the truth of the fact stated, if regularly kept in course of business, are admissible as evidence under section 34 and semble under the second clause of this section. (5)

Contemporaneous

According to the English rule the statement must also have been made at the time of, or immediately after, the performance of the transaction (6) Thus an interval of two days has sufficed to exclude a declaration.(7) But contemporaneousness is not required by the section for the admissibility of the evidence, though in determining the weight to be allowed to it in particular cases it will always be important to consider how far the statement or entry was contemporaneous with the fact which it relates (8)

Collateral matters

Further, entries made in the course of business are, under English law, evidence only of those things which, according to the course of business it was the duty of the person to enter, and are no evidence of independent collateral matters, however intimately any such collateral matters may be incorporated in the statements (9) Thus, where the question was whether A was arrested in

- (1) Aingawa v. Bharmappa, 23 B , 63, 65-67 (1897), ver Candy, J.
- (2) Brain v Prece, 11 M & W., 773, where the facts were as follows -- it was the ordinary duty of one of the workmen at a coal put, named H. to give notice to the foreging of the coal sold The foreman, who was not present when the cool was dilicered, being himself unable to write, employed a man named B to make the entries in the books from his dictation, and these entries were real over every night to the foreman. H and the foreman being dead. If was called with the book to prove dilivers of the coal; but the evilence was held inadmicable, on the ground that, although the entries made under the foreman's direction might be regarded as made by him, set, as he had no personal landledge of the facts stated in them, but derived his information executions from the workmen, there was not the same guarantee for the truth of the entres as to Price v Torringia, where the party signing the entry had himself dure the business. See

- Taylor, Et $$ 700 70%, Wills, Et., 128; 19 ipson, Ex 3rd Ld 251, Steph Ing , Art, 27; Powell, Ev 226 (3) R : Hanmanta 1 B , 610 (1877). The olversations of the Press Council as to the necessity of personal knowledge and belief which must he found or pre-unest in any statement of a
- decraved person (Ingalpel Singh v. Jogethar Bolis, 25 4 , 143 (1902), relate to statements umber of (5), the terms of which require "special means of knowledge " (4) R v Hanmanta, supra Frekl, Ev., 176;
- Cunningham, Es., 150
- (5) R. v. Hanmanta, supra,
- (6) Inc : Turked, 3 B & Ad. KW; Mult · Freezes, & App. Cas., 623 Smith v. Harley. L. R. 2 Q B. 320. The Henry Corns. 3 P D. 156; Taylor, L. , 1 701
  - (7) The Henry Curon, supra.
- (*) Frekl, Ev., 177, Cummigham, Ev., 157. (9) ( kambers v. Bernascones, 1 C. M & R., 317. Taylor, Ev., 1 705.

a certain parish;—a certificate annexed to the writ by a deceased sheriff's officer stating the fact, time, and place of the arrest, returned by him to the sheriff, was held inadmissible on the ground that the duty merely required the fact and time but not the place of the arrest to be returned.(1) But this restriction on inadmissibility is not imposed in terms by the section. "The statement or entry, in order to be admissible under the Act, must relate to a relevant fact (2) and it would appear to make no difference, so far as the question of admissibility is concerned, whether this fact is connected with the performance of a duty or is merely an independent collateral matter. Whether this fact naturally finds a place in the narrative, what is the nature of its connection with the fact, the statement of which was matter of duty, and whether this connection was such as to raise a presumption of accuracy of information or observation must, however, be questions of importance in estimating the weight due to such evidence when it relates to collateral matters merely."(3)

The person withing to give the evidence must give extrinsic proof of the Extrinsic at the declarant, or of the existence of the other circumstances conditional to the admission of this evidence (4) Similar evidence of the ordinary course of business will also be necessary. (5) Where the statement is a written one, evidence must be given that it is in the landwriting of the person alleged to have made it; and this may be done by calling a witness who saw him write it or who is conversant with his handwritine. (6)

THIRD CLAUSE.

The leading case on the subject-matter of this clause is that of Higham v Statements Ridging (7) There the question was whether one William Fowden, junior, interest was born before or after the 16th April 1768 — The plaintiff, in order to prove that his birth was subsequent to that date, tendered in evidence the following entries from the Day Book and Ledger of a man-midwife, who had attended the mother of William Fowden, junior, at his birth and was since deceased —

DAY-BOOK FATRIES.

22nd April 1768.
38* Richard Fallow's wife, Biamhall, Filius circa hor 9, matutin, cum forcipe, etc., paid. [Then followed in the same page the entry in question without any interiening date.]

Wm. Fowden, june 'st wife, 79* fibus circa hor 3, post merid, nat, etc.

(1) Id., per Lord Denman — We are all of opinion that whatever effect may be due to an entry made in the course of any ofter triporting feel necessary to the performance of a duly, the statement of other currentiances, however, naturally they may be thought to find a place in the marrature, is no proof of these circumstances."

(2) And must have been made in the ordinary course of business

(3) Field, Er., 177, 178, cases may perhaps however, occur in which the matter in question is accollateral and the entry for this and other reasons is of such an unusual character that it can awarely be said to have leven made on the onlinary course of business:

(4) v anie, Introd to se 32 33, s 104, post, Field, Ev., 178, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 251, and wasts there cited (5) In connection with this, see a 114, illust

(f), post

(h) Field, Ex., 178., as to ancient documents, see 8 90, post Doe Dailes, 10 Q B, 314. Regardiller v. Wheatley, 28 L R, Ir, 144., and see 847. 67, post, as to proof of hand-writing

(7) 2 Smith's L C (6th Ed.), 748, 10 East, 109 Illustration (b) in this case, with the portion of the entry which was against statement of the statements made in this cause of bosones, not that as to the present class of statements which is exemptified by Illustrations (c) & (f) See Narraphy, 27 D, 60 (1957), see also Dev. Direct, referred to in the last mentioned case, and in Hore Childrens v. Moreous

Lakshman, 11 B . 97 (1886).

* The figures $5 and 79 referred to the corresponding entries in the I edger † This was thereesing attor at that time of the father of the William Fowden, june , in question,

LEDGER ENTRY.

Wm. Fowden, junc., 1768.

Aprilis 22. Filius natus, etc.

Wife

26th Haustus purg. . . . 0 15 0

It was held that all these entries were connected together or one whole, and that the entry as to the payment of the man-midwife's charges rendered them all admissible. It will be observed that the entry of the date (22nd April 1768) was in no way against the interest of the person who made it, but was collateral to that portion of the entry, namely-" Pd. (paid) 25th Oct., 1768," which was against interest, as showing that a certain sum of money was no longer due and owing to such person. On this point Lord Ellenborough said: "It is id'e to say that the word 'paid' only shall be admitted in evidence without the context, which explains to what it refers . we must, therefore, look to the rest of the entry to see what the demand was which he thereby admitted to be dischaged" (v post) The statements, provided they be relevant, may be either written or verbal. The form in which such declarations are ordinarily offered is that of writwn entries, the maccuracy with which oral statements are repeated makes them less satisfactory, but such objection lies to the credibility of the statement and not to its reception (1) Such entries are not receivable where better evidence is to be had to prove the same fact, as where the maker of the entry is lamself forthcoming personally but they are not the less recervable because the same fact may be proved by evidence of another description. " For instance, in Higham v. Ridgicay, the evidence of the entry of the acconcheur would not have been rejected, because the evidence of a midwife, who was present at the delivery, might have been forthcoming, though this may seem at first night to militate against the rule that the best evidence shall alone be received. The entry of the accoucheur would not have been receivable if be himself had been forthcoming, because then his testimony on oath would have been superior to his entry, which was not on oath, but as we shall see her after, when we come to consider the rule, that the best evidence must always be given, the rule applies to the quality and not the quantity of evidence, and that a fact may often be proved by independent testimony, notwithstanding there may be two distinct ways of proving it,"(2) The distinction should be observed between mere admissions and statements receivable under the present Clause. An admission may or may not be against the interest of the maker at the time when it is made. An admission merely as such is neither receivable in maker's favour nor in favour of his representatives in interest, nor against any person other than the maker or his representative. On the other hand, an admission which amounts to a statement against interest within the meaning of this Clause may not only be received in favour of the maker thereof and his representatives, but is evidence in favour of, or against, strangers A class of statements which may be admissible under

<sup>(1)</sup> C/ Section and Museummat Zayaub v. Halpe Hala, 2 Ind Jac. N. S., 64 (1866), Best, Lv., 1 562

<sup>(5)</sup> Norton, Ev., 181, "Thus, the mere lact that there has been a service recept given for money will not proclude the proof of payment by the ocal evalence of witnesses who saw the payment. Thus in the case of Mullition v

Motor (10 II & C. 317) a private book, kept by a decreased collector of taxes, contaming entireby him, acknowledging the receipt of sums in Micharacter of collector, was also held to be almostil evaluate or ma action against his surely although the parties sho had paid him were ables and might have been called," 16, 182

this Clause are endorsements or entries in respect of the payment of interest due on bonds and similar instruments. (1) Such endorsements or entries, it made before the claim became barred by the law of limitation, would be against the interest of the payee, inasmuch as they are admissions of payment, but if they are made offer the claim became so barred they would be for and not against the creditors' interest, inasmuch as by the admissions of a small payment the would be enabled to recover the larger remaining portion of the debt, such payment having the effect of preventing the claim to the capital sum from being barred. Whether then the endorsement or entry is admissible, as an entry against interest, depends upon the question whether it was bond fide made before the claim became barred by limitation, and it ought not to be admitted until it be shown by evidence debors the instrument that it was made at a time when it was against the interest of the creditor to make 1t.(2) (See next paragraph.)

The main difference between the rule enacted by this section and the The English law(3) upon the same subject consists in the nature of the interest to interest. which statement must be opposed. According to the latter the interest involved must be (a) pecuniary; or (b) proprietary. But declarations against interest in any other sense, as for instance an admission of hability to criminal prosecution, do not come within the rule.(4) Thus where the question was whether A was lawfully married to B, a statement by a deceased clergyman that he performed the marriage under circumstances which would have rendered him liable to a criminal prosecution was held not to be relevant as a statement against interest. (5) But in so far as the present section includes (c) an interest in escaping a criminal prosecution the statement would have been admissible under this Act.(6) Further, under the present section, the interest to which the statement may be opposed may be (d) an interest in escaping a suit for damages. The section not only extends the English rule by recognising two additional forms of interest, but also in rendering this class of statements under certain circumstances admissible, even if the persons who made them be still

An entry against interest means an entry prima facie against the interest alone, primâ effect

or value when received. Thus the following entry in the handwriting of a deceased person—"J. W. paid in three months' interest," which was followed by other entries pointing to a loan to J. W., was held to be admissible

(5) Ib.

See s. 20 of Act IX of 1998 (Limitation), and ib., Art 75, Sched. ii, and remarks in Field,
 Ev., 181—183, Norton, Ev., 182 183

<sup>(2)</sup> Taylor, Er., 34 600-695, and cases there cited: Rose v. Bryant, 2 Can p., 221, Field, Ev., 181-183, Norton, Ev., 182, 183, Bryya v William, 6, D. M. & G., 12. The express provision of a 20 of the Limitation Act that the payment whether of interest or principal, must have been misched before the right to sue had become barred, appears to require proof of the time of payment.

<sup>(3)</sup> See Steph Dig, Art. 28, Taylor, Er, 1668-606; Rosco, N. P., Ev, 55-59. Best, Ev., $ 600. Wils, Ev., 130-138, Powell, Ev, 214-225; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 241-249. Smith, L. C., Note to Hiphom v. Erdgwey (4) The Sweet Perrope out, 11 C. & F, 108

<sup>(6)</sup> Illustration (f), Norton, Ev. 183, 184;
Field, Er., 184, 185, Cunningham, Ev., 158.

<sup>(7)</sup> Toylov v Billom, R. 3 Ch. D. 605, 607, 607 yet Jessel, M. R., 50 Ch. D. 605, 607, yet Jessel, M. R., following Parks, B. in R. v. Ishdohalasi of Lover Heyglord "of course, if you can prove divade that the man had a particular reason for making it and that it was for has interest, you may destroy the value of the endence allogether, but the question of admissibility is not a question of value. The entry may be ulterly worthless when you get it, if you shew any reason to believe that be had a motive for making it, and that though apparently against has interest, yet really it was for it, but that is matter for neablogueric consideration when you estimate the value of the testimony." Ib, per Jessel, M. R.

LEDGER ENTRY.

It was held that all these entries were connected together or one whole. and that the entry as to the payment of the man-midwife's charges rendered them all admissible. It will be observed that the entry of the date (22nd April 1768) was in no way against the interest of the person who made it, but was collateral to that portion of the entry, namely -" Pd. (paid) 25th Oct., 1768," which was against interest, as showing that a certain sum of money was no longer due and owing to such person On this point Lord Ellenborough said : "It is id'e to say that the word ' paid' only shall be admitted in evidence without the context, which explains to what it refers, we must, therefore, look to the rest of the entry to see what the demand was which he thereby admitted to be dischaged " (v post) The statements, provided they be relevant, may be either written or verbal. The form in which such declarations are ordinarily offered is that of writing entries, the maccuracy with which oral statements are repeated makes them less satisfactory, but such objection lies to the credibility of the statement and not to its reception (1) Such entries are not receivable where better evidence is to be had so prove the same fact, as where the maker of the entry is himself forthcoming personally, but they are not the less recervable because the same fact may be proved by evidence of another description. "For instance, in Higham v. Ridguay, the evidence of the entry of the acconcheur would not have been rejected, because the evidence of a midwife, who was present at the delivery, might have been forthcoming; though this may seem at first night to militate against the rule that the best evidence shall alone he received. The entry of the accoucheur would not have been receivable if he hunself had been forthcoming, because then his testimony on oath would have been superior to his entry, which was not on oath , but as we shall see her after, when we come to consider the rule, that the best evidence must always be given, the rule applies to the quality and not the quantity of evidence, and that a fact may often be proved by independent testimony notwithstanding there may be two distinct ways of proving it."(2) The distinction should be observed between mere admissions and statements receivable under the present Clause. An admission may or may not be against the interest of the maker at the time when it is made. An admission merely as such is neither receivable in maker's favour nor in favour of his representatives in interest, nor against any person other than the maker or his representative. Or the other hand, an admission which amounts to a statement against interest within the meaning of this Clause may not only be received in favour of the maker thereof and his representatives, but is evidence in favour of, or against, strangers. A class of statements which may be admissible under

Melon (10 B, & C, 317) a private book, kept by a decreased collector of taxes, contaming minby him, acknowledging the receipt of sums in hicharacter of collector, was also high to be almostled evidence in an action against his surely attempt the parties who had paid him were abic and much harm been existed, 75, 482.

<sup>(1)</sup> Cf. Section and Massammal Zayne's stadies title, 2 feet Jur. N. S., 54 (1808); Post, Ex., § 562

<sup>(2)</sup> Norton, Ev., 18t., "Thus, the mere fact that three has been a serious receipt given for money will not probled; the proof of payment for the oral evidence of althouses who are the gayment. Thus in the case of Maddeous."

this Clause are endorsements or entries in respect of the payment of interest due on bonds and similar instruments.(1) Such endorsements or entries, if made before the claim became barred by the law of limitation, would be against the interest of the payee, inasmuch as they are admissions of payment, but if they are made after the claim became so barred they would be for and not against the creditors' interest, inasmuch as by the admissions of a small payment he would be enabled to recover the larger remaining portion of the debt, such payment having the effect of preventing the claim to the capital sum from being barred. Whether then the endorsement or entry is admissible, as an entry against interest, depends upon the question whether it was bond fide made before the claim became barred by limitation, and it ought not to be admitted until it be shown by evidence debars the instrument that it was made at a time when it was against the interest of the creditor to make it.(2) (See next paragraph.)

The main difference between the rule enacted by this section and the The English law(3) upon the same subject consists in the nature of the interest to interest. which statement must be opposed. According to the latter the interest involved must be (a) pecuniary; or (b) proprietary. But declarations against interest in any other sense, as for instance an admission of liability to criminal prosecution, do not come within the rule (4) Thus where the question was whether A was lawfully married to B, a statement by a deceased elergyman that he performed the marriage under circumstances which would have rendered him liable to a criminal prosecution was held not to be relevant as a statement against interest.(5) But in so far as the present section includes (c) an interest in escaping a criminal prosecution the statement would have been admissible under this Act. (6) Further, under the present section, the interest to which the statement may be opposed may be (d) an interest in escaping a suit for damages. The section not only extends the Euglish rule by recognising two additional forms of interest, but also in rendering this class of statements under certain circumstances admissible, even if the persons who made them be still

An entry against interest means an entry prind lace against the interest of the maker that is to say, the natural meaning of the entry, standing alone, must be against the interest of the man who made it.(7) If the entry is prind lace against interest, it is admissible for all purposes irrespective of its effect or value when received. Thus the following entry in the handwriting of a deceased person.—"J. W. paid me three months' interest," which was followed by other entries pointing to a loan to J. W., was held to be admissible

<sup>(1)</sup> See s 20 of Act IX of 1908 (Limitation), and & Art 75, Sched ii, and remarks in Field, Ev., 181-183; Norton, Ev., 182-183

<sup>(2)</sup> Taylor, Ev., §§ 600-699, and cases there exted Rose * Ripeat, 2 Can p. 321, Febd. Ev. 181-183, Netton, Ev., 182, 183, Brags v. 184-181-183, Netton, Ev., 182, 183, Brags v. 184-68, 5 D. M. & G. 12. The express provision is 20 of the Lamitation Act that the payment whether of interest or principal, must have been made before the right to sue had become barred, appears to respute proof of the time of payment

<sup>(3)</sup> See Steph. Dig. Art. 28. Taylor, Ev., $\f$658-656, Rosco, N.P., Ev., 55-59. Rest, Ev., $\f$608, Wills, Ev., 130-138, Powell, Ev., 214-225, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 241-249; Smith, L. C., Note to Highom v. Ridgivoy

<sup>(4)</sup> The Sussex Permye case, 11 C. & F., 108 (5) Ib.

<sup>(6)</sup> Illustration (f), Norton, Ev., 183, 184;
Field, Ev., 184, 185, Cunningbam, Ev., 158

(i) Topler v Hishom, L. R., 2 Ch. D. 605, 607, per Jessel, M. R., following Parke, B. in R. v Isshahanas of Lover Hrijford "of course, if you can prove olswed that the man had a particular reason for making it and that it was for his interest, you may destroy the value of the exclose allogether, but the question of admissibility is not a question of value. The entry may be utterly worthess when you get it. If you shew any reason to believe that he had a motive for making it, and that though apparently against his interest, yet really it was for it; but that is a matter for audequal condensation when you estimate the value of the testimony." B., pet Jersel, M. R.

as evidence whether or not the effect of it, when admitted, would be to establish the existence of a debt due to the testator.(1) Where the fact that the declaration is against the declarant's interest does not clearly appear from the statement itself, it is permissible to give independent evidence to supply this want.(2) Though the statement must have been prima facie against an interest specified by the section, yet the amount of the interest is immaterial so far as the admissibility of the declaration is concerned.(3)

The declaration must have been against interest at the time they were made; it is not sufficient that they might possibly turn out to be so afterwards.(4) Statements and entries against interest may be received as evidence of independent and collateral matters, which, though forming part of the declaration were not in themselves against the interest of the declarant. A statement, though indifferent in itself, becomes against the proprietary interest of the declarant when made as a material part of a deed, the object of which is to limit his proprictary interest. It cannot be said not to affect his interest, because assuming it to be material, the deed, if it were struck out, would be less effective than it otherwise would be. If, on the other hand, the statements were unconnected with the purpose of the deed and were not in themselves adverse to the declarant's interest, they would doubtless have to be rejected (5) In an early case where the declarations were partially against interest the rule was applied as follows: "We cannot concur in the opinion of the learned Judge that this statement was not admissible in evidence. It is a statement by which the interest in the mehal of the person making it is reduced or affected, it is against his interest and against his proprietary right. The effect of it is to cut down the proprietary right, to subject it to the tenure or incumbrance which is mentioned. It is true that in one part of it there is what may be said to be not against his interest, but in his favour, namely, the amount of the original rent and increased rent payable to him. But when a document of this kind is tendered in evidence, it is not to be divided into parts, and the part which is in favour of the person making it rejected, and that which is against his interest accepted. The question is whether, taking the document as a whole, it is against the interest or the proprietary right of the person making it. In estimating the value of any particular part of it, that may be looked at , but the principle upon which the admissibility of sion of certain land. The defendants denied the plaintiff's title. The latter tendered in evidence a registered mortgage-deed of adjacent land executed in 1877, which set forth the boundaries of the land comprised in the mortgage, and as one of such boundaries referred to the land in question as then belonging to the plaintiff. At the date of the deed there was no bingation existing between the present litigants, and at the date of the present suit the mortgagor was dead. It was held that the statement in the deed was admissible under this clause of this section. The Court, referring to the case cited in the preceding note at the foot of this page and pointing out that the law under and previous to this Act was the same, observed as follows: "If, then, a statement of a reminder that

<sup>111 25</sup>

<sup>(2)</sup> Wills, Ev., 134; see Museumat Zoyanh v. Hadye Luka, 2 Ind. Jur. N S., 54 (1866).

<sup>(3)</sup> Ibnuon, Er., 3rd Ed., 281; Field, Er., 181; but upon the amount of interest involved the degree of attention likely to secure accuracy must materially depend, 15.

<sup>(4)</sup> I'z parte Llunde, Be Tillemacke, 14 Q B. D., 415, 416; Maney v. Allen, 13 Cb. D., 558;

Smith v. Haley, L. B., 2 Q. B., 320 the interest must not be too remotel. Migmore, Ev., § 1465. (5) Associate Bharmoppa, 23 B., 63, 71, 72 (1877), following case next cited.

<sup>(6)</sup> Eaph Leilanund v. Mussamut Lakhpatter. 22 W. H., 231, 233 (1874), per Conch. C. J., etcl. and followed in Mingram v. Itharmappa, 23 R., 63, 67, 91 (1897).

<sup>(7)</sup> Ningues v. Bharmappa, 23 It, 63 (1897).

there was a certain glatted occupant in portion of his mehal was held to be a statement against the interest of the zemindar, in the same way the statement of a registered occupant of a survey-number in the Bombay Presidency that he is indebted in a certain sum of money, which is a charge on his land, must be held to be both against his pecuniary and proprietary interest. If so, then the same case quoted above is also an authority for holding that the whole statement is admissible in evidence not only to prove so much contained in it as was adverse to the interest of the person making it.

in the statement which fact was not for and formed a substantial part of it "(1

items of which charge the declarant though other connected items discharge him, or even shown balance in his favour, for it is not to be presumed that a man will discharge himself falsely for the mere purpose of getting a discharge, and in the latter case, the debit items would still be against interest, since they diminish the balance in his favour (2)

But it is immaterial that the declaration may prove in the circumstances which have happened at the time when it is sought to be put in evidence, to be for the interest of the declarant, or even that it can be shown by independent evidence to have been in truth for his interest at the time when it was made, provided that, standing by itself, it was, at the time when it was made, against his interest (3)

A declaration is against the pecuniary interest of the declarant who makes (i) Pecunit whenever it has the effect of charging him with a pecuniary liability to another, ary or of discharging some other person, upon whom he would otherwise have a necessary

art.(5) For it is not the charge of which estanding the provisions the entry shows the subsequent(6) liquidation. Notwithstanding the provisions of the twenty-first section and the present section cess-returns cannot, under section 95 of the Road Cess Act, be used as evidence in favour of the person submitting them.(7)

Declarations made by persons in disparagement of their title to land are (ii) Proprieadmissible, if made while the declarant was in actual possession(8) of the pro- tary.

<sup>(1) 16</sup>

<sup>(2)</sup> Taylor, Ev., 5 674

<sup>(3)</sup> Taylor v. Witham, L. R., 3 Ch. D, 605, Wills, Ev., 130, 131; v aute.

(4) Dos v Robson, 15 Dart., 32, 35, per Bayley,
L: Wills, Ev., 130 Higham v Ridguay affords an example of a statement which discharges another, and Willsums v. Greeze (see next note) and ullus, (e) of a statement charging the maker.

<sup>(5)</sup> Steph Dg., Art 29, thus where the question was whether A recured rent for certain land, a deceased steward's account, charging hasself with the recept of such rent for A, was held to be relevant, shough the balance of the whole account was in favour of the steward. 30, III. (4); IELIENEN, Ormer, S. C. & P., 502, see Egold Ledound v. Jiasomwi Labbyster, 22, W. IL, 211 (1874).

<sup>(6)</sup> Taylor, Ev., § 675. Steph. Dog. Art. 28. R. v. Raylord, exted in Note to Hugham v. Nidyney in 2 Smath, L. ci., where he v. Voolet, J. M. & R. 251; in Taylor v. Bitlam, L. R., 3 Ch. D. 605. Jessel, M. R., followed R. v. Hugherl, and dissented from Doe v. Voolet There is nothing in the Act to prevent the admission of the statement in the case above mentioned: any objection that may be made will got the weight, and not to the admissibility of such evidence; Field Ev. 181.

<sup>(7)</sup> Hem Chandra v. Kol, Prassanna, 26 C, 832, 838 (1899), s. c. 8 C. W. N., 1, 7.

<sup>(8)</sup> There ought to be some evidence that the declarant was actually in possession, since otherwise his declaration that he has an interest, though limited, may appear to be a statement rather in his favour than otherwise.

perty(1) as statements against their proprietary interest. And as, in the absence of other proof, mere possession imphes an absolute interest,(2) any declaration by an occupier tending to cut ' interest will be receivable under had he has no interest in the land executed, in favour of one B D, a varaspatra or deed of heirship, this deed was, in subsequent suit between the heir of B D, and a mortgage of certain property covered by it, admitted in evidence as being against the widow's proprietary interest, as by it she divested herself of her widow's estate in the property.(5) Thus also a statement by a deceased occupier of land that he held a life-estate in it under a particular will, of which C and B were executors, was held admissible to prove the existence and executors of the will, being against proprietary interest on account of its two-fold limitation of the declarant's estate to a lifeinterest, and under a particular document (6). A statement by a landlord who is dead that there was a tenant on the land is a statement against his proprietary interest (7)

A distinction, however, exists between statements which limit the declarant's own title, and those which go to abridge or encumber the estate itself. According to English law the former are admissible even between strangers. whereas the latter are only so as against the declarant and his privies. Thus, admissions by the holder of a subordinate title are not receivable to affect the estate of his superior which he has no right to alienate or encumber -e.g., those of an occupier, his landlord's title; or those of a tenant for life, the title of the remainderman or reversioner. The ground for this distinction is said to be that, though it is unlikely (to take a specific instance) that a person possessed of an absolute interest in property will admit that he is only a tenant, many causes might induce a tenant to acknowledge the existence of an easement, or a highway, or the like, which might be either not inconvenient or even absolutely beneficent to him (8)

(iii) Interest in escaping a criminal ra suit for damages

It has been already noticed that the section at this point extends the English a criminal rule. (9) The words "would have exposed him" mean "would have exposed

> (1) The English rule alds "and as to matters within his personal knowledge or belief;" Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed , 241-242, Taylor, Ev , § 685; Tramblestown v. Kemmis, 9 C. & F., 780, aliter under this section, v. post, p 112, note 10

(2) Taylor, Ev., § 835

(3) Phipson, Er., 3rd Ed., 241-242; Wills, Ev., 136; Pield, Ev., 183, 184; Taylor, Ev., $$ 684-686, Norton, Ev., 179, 180

(4) Grey v. Redman, 1 Q. B. D., 161.

(5) Han Chastaman v. Moro Lalahman, 11 H., 89 (1886).

(6) Sly v. Sly, 2 P. D . 01; so again where the question was whether A (deceased) gained a artilement in the panch of B by renting a tenement, a statement made by A whilst in posses. sion of a house, that he had paul rent for if, was held relevant, because it reduced the interest which would otherwise be inferred from the fact of A's possession: R. v. Ezder, L. R., 4 Q. B., 341; Steph. Dig , Art. 28, ill. (1).

(7) Abdul Ariz v. Ebrahim, 31 C., 865 (1904) foll. Burka Mandars v. Megh Nath, 2 Cal. I. J., 4# (1903),

(8) R v. Dlies, 7 A. & E., 550; Scholes v. Chadwick, 2 M. & Rob , 507; Hower v. Malkin, 40 la T., 196, 27 W. R. (Eng.), 340, Papendick v Bridgenater, 5 E. & B. 166. [In this case the question was whether there was a right of common over a certain field. A statement by A, & decrased tenant for a term of the land in question that he had so much right, was held to be relevant as against his successors in the term but not as against the owner of the field.] Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 242, 203; Steph. Dig., Art. 28, Powell, Ev., 224; Taylor, Ev. § 687 It is difficult to see any objection in principle to treating declarations by an occupier of land which admit the existence of an easement over it as being within the rule, since the admission of its existence might well be considered a statement against interest. See remarks in Wills' Ev., 136, 137. Probably here as elsewhere under the Act any objection that may be made will go, not to the admissibility, but to the weight of the evidence. See Field, Ev., 184.

(9) v. aute, Introd. to ss. 32, 33 and p. 311.

him at the time that the statement was made." It was hardly intended that a statement made after the risk had passed away, as for example after a suit for 1 -- 11-1 7 4: . 11 11 ant to a prosecution, or suit for damages.(1) This construction is supported by the rule laid down with regard to statements against pecuniary and proprietary interest.(2) On the other hand, it may be said that if the fact that the risk had passed away was not known to the declarant, the statement might in the belief of the latter, though not in fact, be against his interest, and thus have the guarantee which is proper to this class of evidence.

. The statement against interest is not only evidence of the precise fact which Collateral is against interest, but of all connected facts (though not against interest) which facts are necessary to explain, or are expressly referred to by, the declaration and whether contained in the same or other documents(3) (v. ante, "Interest") Thus in an action, by the executor of one T, by which it was sought to establish against the defendant a debt of £2,000 as due to the testator's estate for money lent, and where the defence was that the defendant had received it as a gift, the plaintiff tendered in evidence a private account-book of the deceased containing (a) entries of several sums of £20 each, purporting to have been received from the defendant as quarturly payments of interest, and (b) an entry stating that the defendant had on a particular date acknowledged that he had borrowed of the testator the sum The defendant objected to the admissibility of the book on the ground that the tendency of the entries was to establish the claim for £2,000 in favour of the estate. But it was held that since the entries of the receipt of interest, taken by themselves, (4) were at the time when they were made against the interest of the testator, all the entries were admissible, notwithstanding that the entry by which the testator recorded the defendant's acknowledgment of the loan was in his favour. (5) As in the case of a declaration against pecuniary interest, so in the case of a declaration against proprietary interest so soon as the adverse interest is proved the whole statement becomes admissible.(6) So statements by tenants have been admitted to prove not merely the fact that they were tenants, but also both the amount, (7) and the payment (8) of the rent, and the nature of the tenure. (9) But disconnected facts, though contained in the same document or statement, are inadmissible. Statements not referred to in, or necessary to explain, declarations against interest are not relevant merely because they were made at the same time or recorded in the same place. (10) Upon the question, in the case of written entries, as to what is to be deemed the whole statement within the meaning of the rule, it would seem that the same tests.

<sup>(1)</sup> The construction given in the text and adopted in the first edition from Whitley Stokes, it, 874; Field, Ev., 185, was subsequently approved by the Calcutta High Court in the case of Nukdas v. Asphar, the final judgment in which is reported in 24 C . 216 (1896). The decision of the Court, however, upon this point having been given during the course of the examination of the witnesses has not been reported.

<sup>(2)</sup> See Ex parte Edwards and Massry v. Allen

(v. ante, pp 312-313, note 4).

<sup>(3)</sup> Ningrica v. Bharmappa, 23 B , 63 (1897) : Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 242; Steph. Dig. Art. 28, Posell, Ev., 215, 217; Wills, Ev., 131; * Taylor, Ev., $$ 677-680; Higham v. Ridgung, 2 Sim. L. C. (v. ante. p. 206); Taylor v. Hithum, <sup>3</sup> Ch. D., 311.

<sup>(4)</sup> v. aufe, p. 311.

<sup>(5)</sup> Tador v. Hirkan, L. R., 3 Ch. D., 603, supra; and see ante, Higham v. Ridgung, and the remarks on debtor and creditor accounts at n. 312 : Rojah Ledinund v. Mussamut Lakhputtee, 22 ' W. R., 231 (1874)

<sup>(6)</sup> Peacelle v. Watson, 4 Taunt , 16. (7) R. v. Birmingham, 31 L. J., M C., 63

<sup>(8)</sup> R. v. Ereter, L. R., 4 Q. B , 341. (9) Dx v. Jones, 1 Camp , 367.

<sup>(10)</sup> Steph, Dig , Art. 28; Doe v. Beriu, 7 C. B , 456, Knijht v. Waterford, 4 Y. & Coll., 293.

Whaley v. Carlide, 15 W. R. (Eng.), 1183: Aux. gawa v. Bharmappa, 23 B , 63 (1897), v. ante.

will a second to select inons, must be applicable here, namely, that the second selection is to be given in evidence as a part of the main state.

Personal knowledge contemporaneousness. The statements are admissible, although the declarant had no personal knowledge of the fact stated, but received them merely on hearsay. (2) Nor is it necessary that such statements should be contemporaneous with the fact recorded, it is sufficient that they are made at any subsequent time. (3) These circumstances affect the weight, not the admissibility, of the declaration.

Extrinsic proof must be given of the declarant's death or of the existence of the other circumstances under which alone this evidence is receivable; and that the statement was either made, written, or signed by him, or if made or written by another on his behalf, that it was authorized or adopted by the declarant furports to charge himself as the agent, or receiver of another, it is generally necessary, in addition, to give some proof that he really occurred the alleged position (5)

FOURTH CLAUSE

Statements giving opinion as to public right or custom or matter of public or general interest

Illustration (i) exemplifies this clause, the points to be regarded in which are, that (a) opinion may be given in evidence as to the existence of (b) any public custom or right, (c) or of any matter of public or general interest, (d) provided there was a probability of knowledge on the part of the declarant, and (c) provided the declaration was made and tittem motion. The grounds upon which the evidence in this and the seventh clause mentioned is admitted, are considered memory (6) The best way to prove ancient rights is to prove particular acts and usage, as lar back as hving memory goes, and then addice evidence of reputation in regard to the preceding time. In a suitin which the question was whether there existed a cussion of the Kadwa Kanbi case to which the particle belonged, prohibiting a widow from adopting a son, the lower Court, apparently considering that it would be unreasonable to oblige the plaintiff to incur the expense of procuring the attendance of the witnesses, admitted in evidence under this clause, a statement signed by several witnesses to the effect that a without without without without required nent was,

<sup>(1)</sup> Willes, Er., 132.

<sup>(2)</sup> Cross v. Barett, I. C. M. & R., 919, Percard v. Xussus, 7 Ez., J. Tsylor, Ez. f. §509, J.

see Wills, Ev., 133, 134, those were cases of declarations against perentisty interest: in England clerations against propriety interest are not admirable, unless the declarant adds his own befor in the heaving; Traditionen v. Kennis, P.

C. & F., 760, the Act, however, makes no such distinction. As to the decision in Apoptiol Single
v. Jacysler Bales, 23 A., 147 (1901), which refers to cl. 150, see moles to Cl. (1), 20, 304, and.

<sup>(3)</sup> Doe v. Turford, 3 B & M., 890, 597, 898.
(4) Doe v. Hawkins, 2 Q B, 212, Barry v.
Belbington, 4 T. R., 514, Lancum v. Lovell, 6 C,

A. P. 477. Exeter v. Webree, 15 Q. B., 773. Bradley v. James, 15 C. P., 822. quore, whether the Acts adopt a different rule by the use of the word "made" in the opening clause of the action Field, Ev., 180, 181. as to proof of handwriting. see as 47, 67; and as to document 30 years old, see as 47, 67; and as to document; 30 years old, see a 90, pust. (5) Taylor, Ev., §§ 682, 683; as to independent evidence of the existence of the charge subse-

quantly liquidated, v. ants, pp 312, 313
(5) Crease v. Barrett, 1 C. M. & R., 919, 930; and cases cited in Taylor, Ev., § 619.

The stater the opinion of reputation whith The declarant' belief alone, but also the concurring opinions of others similarly interested to lumself, and those opinions in their turn may be bosed in part on earlier traditions extending back through any number of generations. This is what is understood in this connection by the term 'reputation.' But if the deel rant's circumstances were such that he was apparently competent to testify as to what the common report upon the subject was, it will be presumed, till the contrary is shown, that his utterance was an expression of opinion common both to himself and others. Reputation as to the existence of particular facts is inadmissible. The declaration must relate to the general right, and not to particular facts which support or negative it, for the latter not being equally noterious are hable to be misrepresented or misunderstood, and may have been connected with other facts which, if known, would qualify or explain them (1). Thus, if the question be whether a road is public or private, declarations by old persons since dead that they have seen repears done upon it, are madmissible. (2). On the other indirectly do so, as by setting up an inconsistent private claim, or by omitting all mention of it, where mention might reasonably have been expected.(5)

The terms "public" and "general" are sometimes used as synony- Matters of mous. (6) But a distinction is drawn in English law between the two terms public and when dealing with the question of the competent knowledge of the declarant. interest. According to it public rights are those common to all members of the State, e.g., rights of highway and ferry, while general rights are those affecting any considerable section of the community, eg., questions as to the boundaries of a parish or manor. The distinction is of importance in English law, because when the point in issue is of a public character, evidence of any person is receivable as to it, even though he has no specific means of knowledge, all being concerned are presumed competent, the absence of peculiar means of knowledge going to weight and not admissibility; in the case of general rights on the other hand, the declarants must have possessed competent knowledge which may either be shown by proof of residence in, or other connection with, the locality, or presumed from the circumstances under which the declaration was made (7) But as this clause requires a probability of knowledge in all cases, this distinction ceases to be of importance in India. In both classes of rights, public and general, the right must have been one of the existence of which, if it existed, the declarant would have been likely to be aware. (8) Instances of matters which have been held

<sup>(1)</sup> Wills, Ev., 167, 170, and cases there ested, Taylor, Et., § 617; Steph Dig., Art. 30 [Declarations as to particular facts from which the existence of any such public or general right or custom or matter of public or general interest may be interrued are deemed to be irrefevant.]

<sup>(2)</sup> R. v. Bliss, 7 A. & E., 550

<sup>(3)</sup> Crease v. Barrett, 1 C M. & R., 925.
(4) Drinkwater v. Porter, 7 C. & P., 181.

<sup>(3)</sup> Drinkrater v. Porter, supra, followed in Siroundramanya v. Secretary of State, 9 Mr., 285, 294 (1884). [No distinction can be drain between evidence of reputation to establish, and to duputage a public right.] Taylor, Ev., § 620;

Field, Ev., 186, 187.

(6) As to the meaning of the term "interest" v. ante, introd. to ss. 32-33, R. v. Bedfordshire,

<sup>4</sup> E & B , 535.

<sup>(1)</sup> Taylor, Ev., §§ 600-612; Steph, Du., Att 30; Phopon, Ev., 3rd 2d, 257, v. astr., p. 160; as to the meaning of "general custom or right, ser. 48, post; as to whether the rights mentioned in this clause are monogrens only, see Guya Ladi v. Fatih Ladi, 6 C., 180, 180, 187 (1880), and cf. Streambermanya v. The Secretary of State, 9 M., 275 (1881).

to be of public and general interest are, questions as to the boundaries of a county, town, parish, manor or hamlet, the existence of a highway or of a right to tolls on a public road, the hability of certain landowners to repair a bridge or sea-wall, manonal customs, and the like. On the other hand, questions as to the boundaries of two private estates, the existence of a private right of way over a field, a custom of electing the master of a grammar school, and the like, have been held to be matters of a private nature.(1)

"The Indian decided cases furnish few examples, (2) Illustration (1) is taken from those parts of the country in which the village-system still exists; it has long died out, if it ever perfectly existed, in Lower Bengal, Public rights or customs are little understood; and the order of the Government or of the Executive head of a district is often accepted as conclusive concerning them. In large zamindaries questions, however, occasionally arise somewhat analogous to those which occur in manors in England, such for example as to the zamindar's right to take dues on the sale of trees, or to receive one-fourth of the sale-proceeds in cases of involuntary sale, as in execution, or in case of a bouse sold privately "(3)

Declarations by deceased persons as to private rights are inadmissible. since these are not likely to be so commonly or correctly known, and are more liable to be misrepresented (4) In the undermentioned case it was held that neither cl. 4 nor cl 5 of this section justifies the admission of hearsay evidence upon the question whether a particular person survived another or upon the question whether a man was, at the time of his death, moint with or separate from other members of his family, nor can the grounds of the opinion of a deceased person as to the existence of a custom, even if stated to a witness, be as such proved under this rection. (5) The grounds upon which evidence of reputation upon general points is receivable do not apply to private titles, either with regard to particular customs or private prescriptions, as it is not generally possible for strangers to know anything of what concerns only private titles.(6) Reputation may, however, be given in evidence under this Act in proof of private rights, if it corsists of the written statements mentioned in the seventh clause post. (7)

Form of the Declarations as to the public and general rights has been declaration form or manner. (8) The statements under this clause may have been substantially as to matters of general interest is not confined to the declarations here mentioned. It may be evidence by recitals in deeds, wills or other documents under the provisions of the seventh clause. The following are instances of the manner in which declarations as to matters of public and general interest may be made: they may be made by or in statements, verbal or written, giving opinions, (9) maps prepared by, or by the direction of, persons interested in the matter (10) deeds and leases between private persons ;(11) orders, judgments, and decrees of Courts, if final (12)

In order to prevent bias, the declarations, to be admissible, must have Lis mota been made ante litem motam, or before the commencement of any contro-an versy, legal or otherwise, touching the matter to which they relate. By his interest mota is meant the commencement of the controversy and not the commencement of the suit.(1) This qualification is not confined to matters of public

- 1 ---- 1 mt----t but ---- liv ----- the admissibility of hearsay evidence must be, nor merely facts which may · suit, or contreversy preparatory to a suit, actually commenced, or disputes arisen, and that upon the very same pedigree or subject-matter which constitute the question in litigation."(3) Therefore, declarations will not be rejected in consequence of their having been made with the express view of preventing disputes ;(4) they are admissible if no dispute has arisen, though made in direct support of the title of the declarant ;(5) and the mere fact of the declarant having stood, or having believed that he stood, in pari jure with the party relying on the declaration, will not render his statement inadmissible. (6) The declarations will also be received, although made after a claim had been asserted but finally abandoned, (7) or after the existence of non-contentious legal proceedings involving the same right(8) or after the existence of contentious legal proceedings involving 11 (0) 6 the controversy must have declarations made after the hough the existence of the controversy was not known to the declarant, for to enquire into this would be to enter into a collateral issue (11) The admissibility of declarations terminates with the commencement of the controversy, and the termination of this admissibility is not affected by its being shown that proceedings were fraudulently commenced with the view to exclude the possibility of any such declarations :(12) and the evidence will be excluded, even though the former controversy were between different parties, or had reference to a different property or claim, it matters to which the statement relates were clearly under discussion in the former dispute.(13)

FIFTH & SIXTH CLAUSES.

For the purpose of Indian Courts the extent to which hearsay evidence with regard to relationship is admissible may be summarized shortly under three heads—(a) statements made orally or in writing by persons deceased, etc., having special knowledge, ante litem motam (section 32, fifth clause); (b) statements in writing as to relationship between persons deceased in wills or deeds . relating to the affairs of the family to which they belonged, etc., made ante litem motam (section 32, sixth clause); (c) opinion shown by conduct as to the existence of a relationship by a person who had special means of knowledge (section 50).(14)

- (1) Berkeley Peerage case, 4 Camp , 417; Monchton v. Atty. Genl . 2 Russ. & Myl , 161 ; Taylor, Ev., § 629.
- (2) See cls. (5) and (6), its operation may therefore be illustrated by indiscriminate reference to both these classes of cases; Taylor, Ev .
- (3) Davies v. Loundes, 7 Scott N R , 214, per Lord Denman; Taylor, Ev., § 630, and cases there ested.
- (4) Berkeley Peerage case, supra. (5) Doe v. Darres, 10 Q B., 314, 325 [although
- a feeling of interest will often cast suspicion of declarations it will not render them madmis-"able, Per cur ?

- (6) Taylor, Ev., §§ 630, 631.
- (7) Phipson, Ev , 3rd Ed , 258, citing Hubb, Ev of Suc. 668
- (8) Ib., Briscoe v. Lomar, 8 A. & E. 198; Get v Ward, 7 E & B , 509
- (9) Ib ; Freeman v. Phillips, 4 M. & S , 486 (10) Taylor, Ev. $ 632; Wills, Ev., 172; see
- as to this, Field, Ev., 187. (11) Shedden v. Atty.-Genl , 30 L. J , P. & M , 217; Berkdey Perrage case, supra,
- (12) Shedden v. Atty.-Genl , supra,
- (13) Taylor, Ev., § 633.
- (14) Bejai Bahadur v. Bhupindar, 17 A., 465, 459 (1895); see a. 50, post.

Clauses fifth and sixth, which are exemplified by illustrations (A and (m), together with section 50, post, deal with the relevancy of ce facts which are treated by English text-writers under the single hea " matters of pedigree." There are, however, important differences bet the English and Indian law on the subject of the statements which are with by the above-mentioned clauses of this section. There is furth distinction to be noted between the kinds of evidence to which each of refers. The statement declared relevant by the fifth clause is a stater relating to the existence of any relationship between persons living or i as to whose relationship the person making the statement had special m of knowledge, such as the statement of deceased relatives, servants, and de dents of the family (1) The statement mentioned in the sixth clause statement relating to the existence of relationship between deceased per only. This last clause does not embrace the case of a statement of relai ship between a deceased person and a living person (2) It does not deal the question by whom the statement is to be made nor does it require it should have been made by a person who had special means of knowle possibly on the ground that it is improbable that any person would insert solemn deed, will, etc , any matter the truth of which he did not know or not satisfactorily ascertained (3) but states that it must be contained the documents of other material things therein mentioned.

Besides the documents and other material things mentioned in the siclause family bibles, coffin plates, mural tablets, hatchments, rings, arms bearings and the like amongst Christians, and horoscopes among Hindus, examples of

made (4) H

mentioned c

the cases noted below. Inscriptions on tombstones, mural inscriptions: the like may be proved by any secondary evidence. (8) The statement genealogical table hied by a member of a family who is dead, regarding <sup>(1)</sup> Generalização Present v Separasticação Probad, 27 1. A. 238, 251 (1900). s. c. 23. A. 37, 51; Oriental Lijs Asturance Co. v. Nevanuela Chari. 23 Mad, 183, 207, 209, în which the atsisments of the decessed hirosil, his sister san others were tendered or admittel; as to the report of a punchayet as crudence of predigre, see Asphang v. Namelson, 25 I. A., 48 (1898); 25 B. J. 3 C W. N., 130.

<sup>(2)</sup> Ramnarun Kallia v. Monee Bibee, 9 C. 613, 614, (1883).

<sup>(3)</sup> Field, Er., 189, 190

<sup>(4)</sup> See generally Taylor, Lt., $ 650-657

<sup>(5)</sup> Rennerous Kalles v. Mones Biles, 0 C. 63 (1893) The bold ground on which the evidence was rejected in this case was that it was not shown that the attendance of the unite was not proventable; Sotis Chander v. Molonder Ld., 17 C., 849 (1893) [spoore as for bits case, assuming the horsecope to have been tendered, as stated, under cl. 63; that classes does not require that the maker of the statement should have had any special mosas of knowledge, and if tendered under cl. (3); Banaseras Kalles v. Mones Biles which this case purported to follow, does not serm in point. Further, upon the question whether the exactors is finely and the order of the statement of the service of the statement of the statement of the service below the statement of the service below the statement of the statement of the service of the servi

the question in issue is one of relationship v., and whether the words "includes to the exist of relationship" cover statement as to the c mescages of relationship in point of time post J. Additionally is to be observed between the post of the po

<sup>(6)</sup> All Mones v. Museumus Zuherwanies. W. R., 371 [1887]; [where the meedental meniof a child's age in the rectal of a will was it to be no proof of the caset age of such child; Report does not show whether the child's dead at the time the endence was offered dead, the case is no longer law *ledd., 1 1935 [Abmendu v. Mullunchand, 20 B.]

<sup>(7)</sup> Timma a Daramma, 10 M, 362 (188" Jin which it was ruled that a statement sa to lationship in a deed held to be invalid was a missible in evidence

<sup>(8)</sup> S. 65, cl. (d), post : see definition of "do ment" in a. 3, onte

descendants of another member of the family, before any question arose as to the latter is relevant under this clause. (1) Statements, whether they are tendered under the fifth clause or the sixth clause, must, in order to be relevant, have been made ante litem motam ;(2) and for the admissibility of statements under either of these clauses it must be shown that the attendance of the person who made the statement is not procurable.(3) So where a plaintiff tendered in evidence a horoscope under the sixth clause, but was unable to say who wrote it, and therefore unable to say whether the writer was dead, or could not be found, etc., the document was on this, as on other grounds held, to be madmissible. (4) It will in no way affect the admissibility of this class of evidence that witnesses might have been called to prove the very facts to which it relates.(5) A register of baptism, while evidence of that fact and of the date of it, furnishes, even if it states, the date of a person's birth. no proof of the age of that person further than that at the date of such ceremony the person referred to was already born. Evidence regarding the date of a man's birth has been held under certain circumstances to be admissible under cl.5; but in the case of an entry in the register in question there is nothing to show by whom the statement entered was made, much less that the person making the statement had any special means of knowledge.(6)

According to English law(7) declarations made by deceased relatives are The stateadmissible if made ante litem motam to prove matters of pedigree only. They ments are are relevant only in cases in which the pedigree to which they relate is in to prove the issue, but not to cases in which it is only relevant to the issue. (8) Thus where tained the question was whether A sued for the price of horses and pleading infancy therein on any issue was on a given day an infant or not, the fact that his father stated in an affidavit in a Chancery suit to which the plaintiff was not a party that A was born on a certain day, was held to be irrelevant. (9) The terms "matters of pedigree" or "genealogical purpose" are confined primarily to issues involving family succession (testate or intestate), relationship and legitimacy; and secondly, to those particular incidents of family history "which are immediately connected with, and required for the proof of, such issues—e.g., the birth, marriage, and death of members of the family with the respective dates and places of those events, age, celibacy, issue or failure of issue; as well, probably, as occupation, residence, and similar incidents of domestic history necessary to identify individuals.(10) The principle upon which such evidence

<sup>(1)</sup> Shuamanand Das v Rama Kanta, 32 C., 6 (1904)

<sup>(2)</sup> v post, p 325 (3) Ramnarain Kallia v Monee Bibee, 9 C., 613 (1887), Surjan Sing v Sardar Singh, 27 I A., 183 (1900), s c , 5 C W N , 49 , 2 Bom L. R ,

<sup>(4)</sup> Ib

<sup>(5)</sup> Taylor Ev , § 641

<sup>(6)</sup> Collier v Baron, 2 N. L. R . 34, as to proof of date of birth after lapse of years, see Naucob Shah Am Begam v Nanto Begam, P C. (905), H C W N 130

<sup>(7)</sup> Taylor, Ev., §§ 635-657, Roscov, N. P., Ev., 41-48, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 268-276; Steph Dig , Art. 31 , Best, Ev , $ 499 , Powell, Ev. 193-204, Wills, Ev. 158-166 (8) Steph. Dig., Art. 31; Powell, Ev., 202, when they are not required for some genealogical purpose, they will be rejected; see next case.

<sup>(9)</sup> Haines v. Guthre, L. R., 13 Q B. D., 818 (1881); this case (in which all the authorities on this point are fully considered) is not law in India; ere note 2, p. 322. (10) Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 268, citing Taylor, Ev., $$ 643 646, Steph Dig., Art 31, Hubback's Ev of Succession, 204, 468, 648-650, citing Hood v. Lady Beauchamp, 8 Sim, 28, Shule v. Boucher, I D. G. & S. 40, Righton v. Nesbitt, 2 M. & R , 554; Loral Perrage, 10 Ap. Cas., 763; see also Powell, Ev., 201; Taylor, Ev., $ 642, Wills, Ev. (159); it was a one time a most point in English law whether evidence as to date and place of birth was admissible even in "pedigree cases," but the weight of opinion was in favour of its admissibility. (Taylor, Ev., § 612), and this view has been adopted by the framers of the Act: [s 32, allasts (1), (m); Bipin Behary v. Sreedam Chunder, 13 C., 42 (1886); Ram Chandra v. Jojennar Narais, 20 C , 758 (1823)]; Oriental Life Assurance Co., Ld. v. Naranmha Chari, 25 M., 183, 209, 210 (1901); the words " relates to the existence of relationship " being wide enough to cover statements as to the commencement of Clauses fifth and sixth, which are exemplified by illustrations (1), (1) and (m), together with section 50, post, deal with the relevancy of certain facts which are treated by English text-writers under the single head of "matters of pedigree." There are, however, important differences between the English and Indian law on the subject of the statements which are dealt with by the above-mentioned clauses of this section. There is further a distinction to be noted between the kinds of evidence to which each clause refers. The statement declared relevant by the fifth clause is a statement relating to the existence of any relationship between persons living or dead, as to whose relationship the person making the statement had special means of knowledge; such as the statement of deceased relatives, servants, and dependents of the family.(1) The statement mentioned in the sixth clause is a statement relating to the existence of relationship between deceased persons only. This last clause does not embrace the case of a statement of relationship between a deceased person and a living person (2) It does not deal with the question by whom the statement is to be made. nor does it require that it should have been made by a person who had special means of knowledge, possibly on the ground that it is improbable that any person would insert in a solemn deed, will, etc., any matter the truth of which he did not know or had not satisfactorily ascertained (3) but states that it must be contained in the documents of other material things therein mentioned.

Besides the documents and other material things mentioned in the sixth clause family bibles, coffin plates, mural tablets, hatchments, rings, armoublearings and the like amongst Christians, and horoscopes among Hindus, are examples of other documents and things on which such statements are usually made.(4) Horoscopes have, however, been held to be admissible in the undermentioned cases.(5) As to statements contained in wills(6) and deeds(7) see the cases noted below. Inscriptions on tombistones, mural inscriptions and the like may be proved by any secondary evidence (8) The statement in a genealogical table filed by a member of a family who is dead, regarding the <sup>(1)</sup> Generalises, Praced v Separadines, Perhade, 27 I. A. 238, 281 [1905). a. c. 23A, 27, 51; Original Life Assurance Co. v. Nerannala Chara. 23 Mad., 183, 267, 207, in which the statements of the decessed himself, his sister and others were tendered or admitted; as to the report of a punchayet as evidence of pedigres, see Asphangy Nanablan, 28 I A, 48 [1898), 23 B. 1. 3 C. W. N. 120.

<sup>(2)</sup> Ramnarzon Kallos v. Monee Bibee, 9 C., 613, 614, (1883)

<sup>(3)</sup> Field, Ev., 189, 190

<sup>(4)</sup> See generally Taylor, Ev., § 650-657

<sup>(5)</sup> Ramaneura Kallur v. Moner Dibte, 9 C. (6) (1883) The chief ground to which the evidence was rejected in this case was that it was not known that the attendance of the writer was not provurable; Seite Chauder v. Moloselae Lel, 17 C. 849 (1980), [spoore as to this case; assuming the horocope to laser been tendered, as stated, under cl. (6), that clause does not require that the maker of the attenuent should have bad any special most of homodrope, and if tendered under cl. (3); Ramaneura Kallur v. Moner Dibte, which this case purposed to follow, does not seem in pond. Further, upon the question whether the evidence is limited to cases where the question in issue a one of relationship v, postand whether the word: "relates to the existenof relationship." cover statement as to the commencement of relationship in point of time, vpost! A distinction is to be observed between horsecopes tentered unders 32; cl. (0), unders 32; cl. (3), as the statements of persons having 9; crall means of knowledge, and as being an admission under as 17, 18. See as to their use as admissions, they a Coundar. V Roya Goundar, 17 M, 134 (1831) See Rationship v. (Chaddley, 138, 134

<sup>(6)</sup> Nil Monee v. Musumui Zuherunnuan, 8 W. R., 331 (1887), [where the medicatal mention of a chall* as gain in the rectal of a will was shell to be no proof of the exact age of such child; the Report does not show whether the child was dead at the time the eridence was offerd. If dead, the class is no longer law, Field, Ev., 1931 (Zamandiu v. Mullanchand, 20 B, 562 (1893)

<sup>(7)</sup> Tamma v. Daramma, 10 M., 362 (18%). [in which it was ruled that a statement as to relationship in a deed held to be invalid was admissible in exidence.

<sup>(8)</sup> S 65, cl. (d), post - see definition of "document" in s 3, onte.

descendants of another member of the family, before any question arose as to the latter is relevant under this clause.(1) Statements, whether they are tendered under the fifth clause or the sixth clause, must, in order to be relevant, have been made ante litem motam ;(2) and for the admissibility of statements under either of these clauses it must be shown that the attendance of the person who made the statement is not procurable.(3) So where a plaintiff tendered in evidence a horoscope under the sixth clause, but was unable to say who wrote it, and therefore unable to say whether the writer was dead, or could not be found, etc., the document was on this, as on other grounds held, to be madmissible.(4) It will in no wav affect the admissibility of this class of evidence that witnesses might have been called to prove the very facts to which it relates (5) A register of baptism, while evidence of that fact and of the date of it, furnishes, even if it states, the date of a person's birth, no proof of the age of that person further than that at the date of such ceremony the person referred to was already born. Evidence regarding the date of a man's birth has been held under certain circumstances to be admissible under cl.5, but in the case of an entry in the register in question there is nothing to show by whom the statement entered was made, much less that the person making the statement had any special means of knowledge.(6)

According to English law(7) declarations made by deceased relatives are The stateadmissible if made ante litem motam to prove matters of pedigree only. They admissible are relevant only in cases in which the pedigree to which they relate is in to prove the issue, but not to cases in which it is only relevant to the issue. (8) Thus where facts con the question was whether A sued for the price of horses and pleading infancy therein on any issue was on a given day an infant or not, the fact that his father stated in an affidavit in a Chancery suit to which the plaintiff was not a party that A was born on a certain day, was held to be irrelevant. (9) The terms "matters of pedigree" or "genealogical pi and ing family succession (testate secondly, to those particular in mmediately connected with, and required for the proof of, such issues-e.g., the birth, marriage, and death of members of the family with the respective dates and places of those events, age, celibacy, issue or failure of issue; as well, probably, as occupation, residence, and similar incidents of domestic history necessary to identify individuals (10) The principle upon which such evidence has been admitted has, as regards the date of birth been stated to be that the time of one's birth relates to the commencement of one's relationship by blood, and a statement therefore of one's age made by a deceased person having special means of knowledge relates to the existence of such relationship within the meaning of the fifth clause of this section.(1)

But under the Act the declarations are admissible on any issue provided they relate to a fact relevant to the case.(2) Thus where in a case one of the questions was as to whether the plaintiff was a minor when he signed a certain deed, the plaint in a former suit verified by a deceased member of the family was held to be admissible under the fifth clause to prove the order in which certain persons were born and their ages.(3) "It was contended on the part of the plaintiff, on the authority of the English cases, that, as the question at issue in this case did not relate to the existence of any relationship by blood, marriage, or adoption, the section did not apply, and the statements are excluded by the ordinary rules of evidence. I think that on this point the law in India under the Evidence Act is different to the law of England, and that the effect of the section is to make a statement made by such a person, relating to the existence of such relationship, admissible to prove the facts contained in the statement on any issue, and that the plaint was admissible here to prove the order in which the sons of S were born and their ages, and when admitted, it to my mind satisfactorily proves that the defendant was the son who was born on the 6th of June 1868."(4) So also a statement under thus clause was admitted to prove the date of the plaintiff's birth for the purpose of the decision of a question of limitation (5) Not only are such declarations admissible in proof of relationship upon any issue, whether of pedigree or not, but they are also admissible in cases other than those of pedigree to prove the commencement of the relationship in point of time or the date of the birth of the person in question (6) It would appear according to English law that hearsay evidence must be confined to such facts as are immediately connected with the question of pedigree, and that incidents which, although inferentially tending to prove, are not immediately connected with the question of pedigree will be rejected (7)

Persons from whom declarations are receivable

In England such declarations are only admissible when made by deceased relatives by blood or matriage, and further the declarants must be legitimately related.(8) But under the Act the statement may be made by any person.

relationship in point of time and as to the locality when it commerced or existed. See Field, Ex., 101. As to the admissibility of the evidence in cases other than "pedigree cases," v. post (1) General Life, Lempase Co., Lit. x. Norausaho Chrit, 23 M., 183, 200, 210 (1001). See also Josepha Espay v. Josepha Dalak, 25 A, 114, 182 (1002), in which the question was whether one F. S. from whom the respondents descended was born before Z. S. from whom the appelliants had descended.

- (2) Dhan Mull v. Ram Chunder, 24 C., 265 (1800), s. c., 1 C. W. N., 570, etted in Ram Chandra v. Joyceon Norvin, 20 C., 758, 760 (certuling Beyes Richary v. Sreedam Chunder, 13 C., 42 (1880)), followed in Ram Chandra v. Jogestuar Normie, 20 C., 752 (1803)
- (3) Islan Mull v Ram Chunder, supra.
- (5) Lam Chunt v Jageswar Agrain, supra, (6) Ib.: Dhan Mult v. Fam Chunder supra

- (7) Taylor, Ev , § 644
- (8) Taylor. Ev . $$ 635-638; Doe v. Barton, 2 M & R , 28 , see Doe v Davies, 10 Q. B , 314. As to declarations by a deceased person as to his ours illegitimacy, see Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed , 269; and cases there ested, and Field, Ev., 190, under the Act such a declaration would be relevant as against strangers, th, s 47 of the repealed Act II of 1885 rescanded the English rule on this subject and admitted the declarations not only of illegitimate members of the family, but also of persons who, though not related by blood or marriage, were yet intimately acquainted with the members and state of the family The latter portion of this section would have included servants, friends, and neighbours who are excluded (Johnson v. Lauson, 2 Bing, 86) under English lan. The rule lakl down by the Act is still more general in its terms than the Act of 1855, as it renders admissible not merely the statements of persons deceased, but also of Fer-provided only that such person had special means of knowledge of the relationship to which the statement relates. Proof of this special means of knowledge is a pre-requisite to the admission of the evidence, and this proof must be given by the party who wishes to give such evidence.(1) This knowledge may be shown by proof that the declarant was a member of the family, or was intimately connected with it or had any special means of knowledge of the family concerns.(2) A family priest is a person having special means of knowledge as to the relationship of members of the family .(3) but a mukhtear, merely as such is not.(4) A series of statements extending from 1860 to 1890 by a wasigadar made in accordance with the practice of the wasiga office, a department under Government, as to who were her heirs, and made at a time when no controversy on the subject was in contemplation, and letters written by her, in reply to enquiries by the uasiga officer, explaining and confirming such statements, was held to be admissible in evidence in support of the legitimacy of such heirs, and under the circumstances to be conclusive in their favour. (5) A statement relating to the existence of any relationship contained in a document signed by several persons, some only of whom are dead, is admissible in evidence under the fifth clause of this section (6)

According to English law it is not necessary that the declarant should have Personal had personal knowledge of the facts stated, it is sufficient if his information knowledge purported to have been derived from other relatives, or from general family repute, or even simply from "what he has heard," provided such "hearsay upon hearsay" as it has been called, does not directly appear to have been derived from strangers. (7) But if the declarant's information purport to have been derived either wholly or in part from incompetent sources, the declarations so founded will be excluded.(8) In other words, this evidence cannot be successfully objected to on the ground that it is "hearsay on hearsay," provided that all the statements come from persons whose declarations on the subject are admissible.(9) "If this were not so-the main object of relaxing the ordinary rules of evidence would be frustrated, since it seldom happens that the declarations of deceased relatives embrace matters within their own personal knowledge."(10) A similar rule will be followed in cases under the Act, provided all the statements come from persons whose declarations on the subject are admissible (that is, persons who are shewn to have had special means of knowledge) the evidence will not be rejected merely on the ground that the declarant had no personal knowledge of the facts stated. But where on a question of relationship the statements of certain witnesses who were supposed to be speaking from information derived from others were sought to be made admissible, but these witnesses did not state the persons from whom they derived that information nor at what period of time they derived it, the evidence was rejected.(11) In other words where the witness is speaking from hearsay he must show that his knowledge comes from a person whose statements are sons whose evidence is not procurable for other reasons. As to a person claiming as illegitimate son establishing his alleged paternity, see Gongla-sami v Arunachellam, 27 M., 32, 34, 35 (1903) (1) S 104, post, we Taylor, Ev , § 640, Wills, Ev., 160, 161.

<sup>(2)</sup> Sangram Singh v. Rajan Bibi, 12 C, 219, 222 (1885), 12 I A , 183 , see also Bejas Bahadur v Bhupendar Bahadur, 17 A , 456 (1895)

<sup>(3)</sup> Sham Lall v. Radha Biber, 4 C. L. R., 173 (1879)

<sup>(4)</sup> Sangram Singh v Rajan Bibi, supra (5) Bagar Al. v. Anjuman Ara, 25 A., 236 (1903); s c., 7 C. W. N. 463

<sup>(6)</sup> Chandra Nath v. Nilmadhah Bhuttacharjee, 26 C, 236; s c, 3 C W N, 88 (1898)

<sup>(7)</sup> Taylor, Ev., § 639, Shedden v Attorney, General, 30 L. J., P & M., 217; Phipson Ev, 3rd Ed., 270; Wills, Ev., 164

<sup>(8)</sup> Daries v. Loundes, 6 M & G . 525.

<sup>(9)</sup> Thus the declarations of a deceased widow respecting a statement which her husband had made to her as to who his cousins were, have been received: see Taylor, Ev , § 639

<sup>(10)</sup> Taylor, Ev , $ 639, and cases there ested. (11) Must Shafiquansesa v. Shalan Ali, 9 C.

W. N., 105 (1904); a c., 16 A., 581 admissible. The statement, however, which is relied on must be shown to be under this section the statement of the ument R. G. S. had So in the undermentic a genealogical table died before the trial: filed on behalf of G in a claim made by him for certain villages. The document, however, was in no way brought home to G except as being an exhibit binding upon him for the purposes of that suit. The Privy Council held that the document was inadmissible, observing as follows -" His (G's) relation to the document is therefore something entirely different from the personal knowledge and belief which must be found or presumed in any statement of a deceased person which is admissible in evidence. For aught that appears the genealogical table in question might never have been seen or heard of by G, personally, but have been entirely the work of his pleader "(1) But where in a recent case a Lursinama was produced purporting to have been made by an ancestress " by the pen of gomasta" and alleged to have been filed by her in a suit to establish the same fact in 1804, the Privy Council held that it was admissible (2) According to English law in the case of marriage, repute and conduct need not be confined to the family. General reputation among, and treatment by, friends and neighbours being receivable except in certain criminal cases when stricter proof is required, as evidence of marriage. (3) But the testimony must be general, if it is based merely on the statements of some particular person, it ceases to be admissible as geneal reputation, and can only be tendered on a question of pedigree, and in England, as the statement of a deceased relation(4) or in India as the statement of a person having special means of knowledge made ante litem motam (5) The grounds upon which general reputation, when relevant, is receivable are partly the difficulty of obtaining better evidence in such cases, and partly because "the concurrence of many voices" amongst those most favourably situated for knowing, raises a reasonable presumption that the facts concurred in are true.(6) While, however, provision has been made by the Act in s 50 for the reception in

Contemporangouspess

The declarations need not refer to contemporaneous events; thus state ments as to matters occurring six generations before have been received, (7) for such a restriction "would defeat the purpose for which hearsay in pedigree is let in, by preventing it from ever going back beyond the lifetime of the person whose declaration is to be adduced in evidence."

evidence of conduct as proof of relationship, there appears to be none for the Particular facts It has been already observed that in matter of public or general interest distantions as to particular facts are excluded. But the same rule does not apply in cases of pedigree. "In cases of general right, which depend upon inimemoral usage, living witnesses can only speak of their own knowledge to admission of the general reputation abovementioned

<sup>(1)</sup> Jagatpal Singh v Jageshar Singh, 25 A., 143 (1902); s c., 7 C W. N., 209.

<sup>(2)</sup> Shahzadi Pepam v Secretory of State for India, P. C. (1907), 34 C., 1059, L. R., 34 L. A., 191

<sup>(3)</sup> Taylor Er, § 578; Physon, Er., 3rd Ed, 338, 94, Wills, Er, 156, 157, Field, Ev, 197, as to conduct, see note to s. 50, seef.

<sup>(4)</sup> Sheller v. Patrick, 30 L. J. P. M. & A. 217, 231, 232. "There is no doubt that general reputation of a marriage max it given releasing the state of the patricular periphodrhood—asy in New York—may-be called to any that the reputation in New York—was that it.

and B were man and wric, but you cannot sake what any particular individual, not bring a member of the family, said on the subject; that is getting into a different class of evidence," 45, pcf Sir C. Cressiell see also Wills, Rv., 156, 157.

 <sup>(5)</sup> S. 32, c) (5), pnic, as to opinion expressed in conduct, see a 50, post.
 (6) Taylor, Er., §§ 577, 578, Hilpson, Er.

(a) Jaylor, L., 14 511, 516, 1 mps. a., 227, 3rd Ed., 378
(7) Monchen v. Allerney General, 2 R. & Myle.
157; Datter v. Lesendes, 6 M & G., 525; Phys.

son, Ev., 3rd Ed., 270, citing Hubb, 639 Taylor, Ev., § 639, (8) Taylor, Fr., 8 639, quoting Lord Brougham what passed in their own time; and to supply the deficiency, the law receives the declarations of persons who are dead. There, however, the witness is only allowed to speak to what he has heard the dead man say respecting the reputation of the right of way, or of common, or the like. A declaration, with regard to a particular fact, which would support or negative the right, is inadmissible. In matters of pedigree, it being impossible to prove by living witnesses the relationship of past generations, the declarations of deceased members of the family are admitted; but here, as the reputation must proceed on particular facts, such as marriages, births, and the like, from the necessity of the thing, the hearsay of the family as to these particular facts is not excluded. General rights are naturally talked of in the neighbourhood; and the family transactions among the relations of the parties. Therefore, what is thus dropped in conversation upon such subjects may be presumed to be true."(II)

As in the case of statements with regard to public and general rights, de-Lis mota. clarations as to relationship must have been made before the question in dispute, in relation to which they are proved, was raised ,(2) but they do not cease to be relevant because they were made for the purpose of preventing the question from arising.(3) Further, the fifth clause of section 32, does not apply to statements made by interested parties in denial, in the course of htigation, of pedigrees set up by their opponents.(4) In a recent case it has been held by the Privy Council that a pedigree (not an ancient family record handed down from generation to generation and added to as a member of the family died or was born, but a document drawn up on a particular occasion for a specific purpose by a member of the family) was to be treated as a mere declaration made by the person who made or adopted it. It was also held that to make a statement madmissible as post litem motam the same thing must be in controversy before and after such statement is made, and that this pedigree was admissible as a declaration made and adopted by a deceased member of the family, and touching the family reputation, on the subject of its descent, and not shown to be post litem motam.(5)

SEVENTH CLAUSE.

Statements contained in any deed, will, or other document which relates statements to any such transaction as is mentioned in cl. (a) of the thirteenth section, that in documents is, any transaction by which any right or custom was created, claimed, modi-relating to fied, recognized, asserted or denied.

may be proved under this clause. together with the present clause, recustoms. (6) The present clause, the present clause is the present clause.

nght and customs (7) According verbal, made by deceased persons are admissible in proof of rights of a public or general nature, but to prove rights strictly private, such evidence is not general nature, but to prove rights strictly private, such evidence is not generally receivable (8). The fourth clause ante, and the present clause deal, the able evidence in that case.

<sup>(1)</sup> Bericley Peerage case, 4 Camp, 415, 416, per Sir James Mansfield

<sup>(2)</sup> S. 32, cls. (5) and (6) v aut., p. 319. In Bahadus Suph, v. 10-las Suph, 2. 14-las Suph, 2. 24-las Suph

(3) Stepli. Ing , Art. 31 , Berkeley Perrage case,

<sup>4</sup> Camp., 401-417, and see Lorat Peerage cost, L. R., 10 Ap. Ca., 797, Wills, Ev., 163

L. R., 10 Ap Ca., 797. Wills, Ev., 163
(4) Narasas Audr v. Chands Din, 9 A., 467

<sup>(5)</sup> Kalka Prased v Mothura Prased, P. C.

<sup>(1908), 30</sup> A., 510 (6) v date, s. 13

<sup>(7)</sup> See Hurronath Mullick v Natanund Mullick, 10 B L. R., 263 (1872), in which the custom was a family custom, v. onte, p. 183.
(8) v. onte, cl. (4), and post.

<sup>(-) .. -</sup>m., ... (1), .... p.2

former with verbal and written, and the latter with written, statements relating to public or general rights and customs in general accordance with the English law upon the same subject so far as the latter extends. The first-mentioned clause admits the verbal or written statement giving the opinion of some particular persons to the existence of such rights. But hearsay as to matters of general interestis not confined to such declarations. It may be proved under this clause by recitals and descriptions of the public or general right in wilk, deeds, leases, maps, surveys, assessments, and the like(1) however recent, such documents may be.(2) In a suit by a zemindar to recover certain forest tracts from Government, the plantiff relied on certain accounts, called again accounts, as furnishing proof of the inclusion of the said tracts within the limits of his zemindary. Held, that masmuch as they were from time to time prepared for administrative purposes by village-officers, and were produced from proper custody and otherwise sufficiently proved to be genuine, they were admissible as evidence of repuration (3)

But further, this section deals with rights and customs generally, private rights and customs heigh therein included, and, in respect of such last-mentioned rights, effects a departure from the English rule. According to the latter, learnessy is not, as has been already mentioned, admissible in questions concerning merely private and personal rights, except by evidence of ancient possession in cases where a controversy refers to a time so remote that it is unreasonable to expect a ligher species of evidence. It is, therefore, a rule that ancient documents (i.e., documents more than 30 years old) purporting to be a part of the transactions to which they relate, and not a mere narrative of them, are receivable in evidence that those transactions actually occurred, provided they be produced from proper custody (4)

But to prove or disprove a right or custom it is not enough to adduce evidence of a transaction in which, or in the course of which, the right or custom was asserted or denied, though the transaction will be relevant under section 13, cl. (d), if it be one by which the right or custom was asserted or denied. When the question was whether a tenant held lands under the not be observed in the question was whether a tenant held lands under the not be not be hold systems of rent, and the Court based its decision on a statement contained in a held-nama executed by the deceased grandfather of the tenant, it was held that the heldmann was not admissible under this clause read with section 13, cl. (a).(5)

Evidence of ancient possession.

The law upon the subject has been thus summarised — "Ancient documents by which any right of property purports to have been exercised (c-f) reases, licenses, and grants) are admissible, even in favour of the grantor of successors, in proof of ancient possession The grounds of admission are two-fold,—nrecessity, ancient possession being incapable of direct proof by witnesses.

9 Eq. 241. Danie v Hilkin, supra, Modra pubbe surveys. — Budder v Brudges, 34 W. F. (Eng.), 514. 64 L. T., 529. affirmed, W. N., 1886. p. 148. Ancient pubbe assessments. — Plaries P. Deres, supra. Physion. Er., 2nd Ed., 299. Cool ev Banks, 2 C. & P., 478; Ely v. Calderd. 7 Bags. 437.

(2) Norton, Ev. 102, the words of the clause are "in any deed, will, etc.," but v post, as to jurigments, orders and decrees which are admissible in matters of jurblic or general interest only, see a 42, post.

(3) Swarphramanya v. Secretary of State, 9 M., 285 (1894)

(4) Powell, Er., 186

(5) Banchi Singh v. Mor Amir Ab (1907).
11 C. W. N., 703.

<sup>(1)</sup> S 32, cl (7), Norton, Et , 190, see Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 257-262, Roscor, N. P., Ev., 48-51; Powell, Er. 170-185, Best, Dr. § 497. Steph. Dig., Art 30. Taylor, Et., $1 607-674; Frett v. Beales, M & M. 416 · Curson v Lomas, 5 Esp , 60 , Platton v. Pare, 10 B. & C , 17 , Doc v. Wittemb, 4 H L. C. 425, Combt & Cother. M & M., 398; Rosey, N. P., Ev., 214; Private Acts -Curron v Lonnar, supra, Carnarion v Willebear, 13 M. & W., 313; Branfort v. Smith. 4 Fx , 450 , Rosco', N. P., Ex., 185; Manor books and presentments -Phipson, Er, 3rd Ed, 200; Private Maps ... R. v Millon, I C. & K. 58 , Hammont v. Braddrest, 10 Ex , 300 , Pape v. Felcker, 28 L. J. Q. B., 12; Daniel v. Willin, 7 Lx , 421; Ancient Public Surveys -Freeman v. Led. 4 B & S . 174; Smith v. Brownlow, L. B .

and the fact that such documents are themselves acts of ownership, real transactions between man and man, only intelligible upon the footing of title, or at least of a bond fide belief in title, since in the ordinary course of things men do not execute such documents without acting upon them (1) (a) The documents should purport to constitute the transactions which they effect; mere prior directions to do the acts, or subsequent narratives of them, being inadmissible (2) Thus, though expired leases (or even counterparts) (3) may be tendered to show ancient possession of the property demised, or reserved from the demise, recitals in such leases of other documents or facts will be rejected except as admissions.(4) (b) Deeds of this nature must, to ensure genuineness, be, like other ancient documents, produced from proper custody; and should, to be of any weight, be corroborated by proof within living memory of payments made, or enjoyment had, in pursuance of them. The absence of evidence of modern enjoyment, however, goes merely to weight and not to admissibility: (c) Ancient documents, admissible as acts of ownership, may be tendered on questions either of public or private right; and must be distinguished from those ancient documents which are received as evidence of reputation, which latter may consist of bare assertions, or recitals, of the right, but are confined to questions of public and general interest.

"Modern possession being susceptible of proof by witnesses cannot be established by modern leases, &c., even though supported by evidence of payments made thereunder."(5)

In the first place, it is to be observed, with reference to the law prevailing in India, that while the fourth clause admits parole vidence of reputation in proof of public or general rights and customs, the present clause does not provide for the admissibility of parole evidence of reputation in the cases to which it applies. (6) The Act, therefore (being in this respect in accord with English law), does not admit parole vidence of reputation in proof of private rights and customs. It, however, declares that reputation to be relevant in proof both of public and private rights (in respect of such last-mentioned rights departing from the English rule) which consists of statements contained in any deed, will or other docuwhich any right or custom was created, claimed, enied, or which was inconsistent with its existo deal with both public and private rights the present section includes any deed, will of other document, so that the rule as to ancient document receivable either as evidence of reputation or as acts of ownership is in terms extended and enlarged: for under this clause a statement in any relevant document, though not more than thirty years old, and however recent, is admissible (7). In practice, however, the rule under the Act in this last-mentioned respect must remain much the same as that under English law since, in the case of modern documents, direct proof by witnesses will in most cases be procurable, and the conditions under <sup>(1)</sup> Malcolmon v O'Dea, 10 H L. C, 593.

Bristow v Cormican, 3 Ap Cas, 641, see also
The Lord Advocate v Lord Lord, 5 App., 273, cited p 169, ante, note 4, and cases in notes (6),(7), 16., see also s 13, ante, passim, and as to proof of ancient documents, s 90, post

<sup>(2)</sup> Ib.

<sup>(3)</sup> Taylor, Ev , § 427.

<sup>(4)</sup> Briston v Cormican, supra, 662

<sup>(5)</sup> Bridow v. Cormican, supra, 668, per Lord Blackburn; Clarkson v. Woodhouw, 3. Doug, 189; the passage in quotation marks is from

Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 91, citing Taylor, Ev., $5 658-667, Roscoe, N. P., Ev., 53, 54, Powell,

Ev. 186—192. Wharton, Ev. §§ 194—199 (6) The statement made relevant by cl. (7) must be urnites, and the word 'verbal' at the commencement of this section has no application to this clause which this form of hearsay testimony is alone admssible will not be found to exist. Moreover, even where such conditions exist, recent documents may often, for various causes, be of little weight.(1)

<sup>(7)</sup> Norton, Ev. 102. Field, Ev. 103, 106 in Harronarh Mallick, v. Nationarh Mallick, 10 B. L. R., 263 (1872), the document in question was executed only 18 months before suit brought. As to the alimentability of reprofess ecompanying orders as beensay evidence of reputed possession, see Disconnia Chordiarens v. Englo. Midnin, 29 C., 185 (180).

FIGHTH CLAUSE.

Statements impressions

Statements made by a number of persons, and expressing feelings or im-Statements made by a pressions on their part relevant to the matter in question are relevant, and may persons, and be proved by the testimony of persons, other than those who made them, when evidence, or when their attendance cannot be procured without an amount of delay or expense, which, under the circumstances of the case, appears to the Court unreasonable.(2) Some or all of these conditions will necessarily be found to occur, at any rate in by far the greater number of cases, when relevant evidence of this character is tendered. The meaning of this clause has been said to be "that when a number of persons assemble together to give vent to one common + - 1'-1 + + - 17 1 > exclamations of a crowd; and the evidence is receivable on account of the difficulty or impossibility of procuring the attendance of all the individuals who compose such crowd or aggregate of persons.(4) So to prove that a caricature destroyed before the trial was meant to represent two of the relations of the defendant, exclamations of recognition by spectators in a public picture-gallery, where the caricature was exhibited, were held to be admissible (5) And to prove that a libel referred to the plaintiff, and the consequences which had necessarily resulted to him from its publication, evidence that he was publicly jeered at in consequence of the libel was held to be admissible.(6) And it was held that,

> > im

that they were alarmed at these meetings and had requested him to send for military assistance.(7) But the section has no application to the case of a Police-officer, who goes round and collects a great number of statements from persons in different places; nor can be be permitted to give the result of these statements as evidence.(8)

Relevancy facts there

33. Evidence given by a witness in a judicial proceedrelease for ing, or before any person authorized by law to take it, is relevant proving, in a subsequent judicial proceeding, proceeding or in a later stage of the same judicial proceeding, the truth of the facts which it states, when the witness is dead, or cannot be found, or is incapable of giving evidence, or is kept out of the way by the adverse party, or if his presence cannot be obtained without an amount of delay or expense which, under the circum-

<sup>(1)</sup> Hurronath Mullick v. Asttanuad Mullick.

Pupra (2) S 3, cl. (8), illust, (a); Field, Er., 196, 197 (3) R. v. Ram Dett, 23 W. R., Cr., 35, 38 (1874), ser Jackson, J. (4) Norton, Et , 193; Field, Et., 196, 197; Taylor, Fv . $5 578, 779.

<sup>(5)</sup> Du Bost v. Beresford, 2 Camp , 511; etc Norton, Ec., 192, 193; Taylor, Ev. $ 579

<sup>(6)</sup> Cook v. Hard, 4 M. & P., 99, Physon, Er, 3rd Ed., 339 (7) R. v. I incent, 9 C & P . 275; Refford v .

Birley, 3 Stark. R , 89 (8) R. v. Ram Dutt, 23 W. R., Cr., 35 (1874.)

stances of the case, the Court considers unreasonable: Provided-that the proceeding was between the same parties or their representatives in interest; that the adverse party in the first proceeding had the right and opportunity to cross-examine;

that the questions in issue were substantially the same in the first as in the second proceeding. Explanation .- A criminal trial or inquiry shall be deemed to be a proceeding between the prosecutor and the accused within the meaning of this section. Principle,-The general rule is that the best evidence must be given : no evidence will be received which is merely substitutionary in its nature so long evidence of oral testimony may be given.(2) Under these circumstances the production of primary evidence is either wholly (as if the witness is dead or cannot be found, or is incapable, or is kept away) or partially (as in the case of delay or expense), out of the party's power. In the last mentioned case there is the further ground of convenience. But the use of such secondary evidence is limited by certain provisos based on the following principles. The first is enact ' than

adver

which had it been tendered against him, would have been clearly inadmissible :(3) the second because it is certainly the right of every litigant, unless he waives it principle involved in the third proviso in requiring identity of the matter in issue is to secure that in the former proceeding the parties were not without the point upon which

The admission of that the parties and the issues being the same, and full opportunity of cross-examination having been allowed, the second trial is virtually a continuation of the first (6)

s. 3 (" Evidence.") s 3 (" Court.")

(1) Taylor, Ev , § 331.

officer )

section \

W R , 17 (1870), post

s. 3 (" Relevant ") s. 104 (Burden of proof) s. 57, cl. 7 (Judicial notice of pullic offiss. 107, 198 (Burden of proof death).

ss. 74, 76, 77, 79 (Public documents certified copies )

s. 158 (Matters which may be proved in connection with statements under "his

s. 91 Except. 1 (Appointment of public

a. 80 (Presumptions as to record of evidence)

(4) Gorachand Stream v Ram Narain, 9 W. R., 587 (1868), see also Gregory v Docley Chand, 14

(2) C/. Taylor, Ev . § 454 (3) Taylor, Ev . § 469; Dec v. Derby, 1 A. & E., 783, 786, Norton, Ev., 196, Laurence v

(5) R. v Rams Redds, 3 M., 48 (1881), at p. 52. (6) Whart , s. 177, cited in Thirson, Ev., 3rd

French, Drew , 472; Morgan v Nickol, L. R. C. P., 117.

Ed., 396

Steph. Dig., Art. 32, and sec Ch. XVII; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 198—290; Best, Er., § 496; Powell, Ev., 233, 575—607; Taylor, Ev., § 4664—478; and Ch. V, parsim, 546—549; Starkes, Ev., 498, et sep.; Physon, Ev., 3rd Ed., 396—401; Norton, Ev., 193—193; Wills, Ev., 181—190; Act X of 1873, ss. 5, 13 (Indian Oaths); Cr. Pr. Code, ss. 353—365, 503, 509, 512, 265, 264; Civ. Pr. Code, O. XVIII, pp. 815—822; Cr. Pr. Code, ss. 512 (absconding accused); s. 288 (evadence taken before Committing Magistate), Crr. Pr. Code, O. XXVI, rr. 1—8; pp. 1052—1056; Cr. Pr. Code (Evidence on Commission). See sections, as also Acts and Statutes stired spost.

COMMENTARY,

Depositions in iormer trials

The conditions on which the evidence is receivable are analogous to those relating to judgments, and whenever a decree in one case would be evidence of the facts decided when tendered in another, then the testimony of a witness in the former trial, who was lable to cross-examination, but is incapable of being called, is receivable. Depositions of witnesses in a former suit are not admissible in evidence when the contract with the properties of the state of the contract witnesses in a former suit are not admissible in evidence when the contract witnesses in a former suit are not admissible in evidence when the contract witnesses in a former suit are not admissible.

with great c

it was) to p

actually impossible to produce him, or to be so difficult to do so that it is, under the circumstances, unreasonable to insist on his production."(2) The grounds of admissibility in the present section depend not, as in the case of the previous section, on the character of the statement and the subject to which it refers, but on the circumstances under which it was made and these circumstances (which must be shown to exist, in order to the admissibility of the evidence) are:—

(a) That the evidence was given in a judicial proceeding,(3) or before a person authorized(4) by law to take it —such as a Commissioner,(5) or Coroner, (6) or Arbitrator. As to evidence given by affidavit, see note to the first section aute. (7) The evidence should also have been given on eath or solemn affirmation. (8) The evidence of a witness given in a proceeding before a Judge or Magistrate who had no jurisdiction, and which was thus pronounced to be corone no judice, cannot therefore be used under this section on a tertial before competent Court. (9) (b) that the witness is dead, or that the other grounds mentioned by the section exist thus inconvenience to witnesses is no ground (10) (v. post) these grounds are (with the exception of the witness being kept away), the same as those enumerated in section 32, cute, and (c) that the conditions required by the provisos have been fulfilled (v. post).

The burden of proving these facts hes on the person who tenders evidence under this section. (11)

824

<sup>(1)</sup> Harist Charler v. Ters Chand, 2 B. L. R., App., 4 (1869); Taylor, Er. 5, 464; Hönden Mayer v. Umhara Charr, 23 W. R., 343 (1874). See generally as to conditions of section, Chalaurs Single v. Kang J. Kur., 2 All. L. J. 91 (1904), in which the conditions of the section not being fallial: the deposition was regreted.

<sup>(2)</sup> R. v. Morjon, 29 W. R., Cr., 69 (1873), per Macpherson, J., concurred in by White, J., in R. v. Pyari Lall, 4 C. L. R., 511 (1879), and see R. v. Mule, 2 A., 648 (1880)

<sup>(3)</sup> This can be generally proved by the production of the Original Recond: r. ss. 50, 57, cl. (3), 91, Exception (1), past for a certified copy, see ss. 74, 76, 77, 79, post Steph. Introl., 166

<sup>(4)</sup> See R v Dossays Gulam, 3 B, 334 (1978) [British Consul at Zanzibarl.

<sup>(5)</sup> As to evidence taken on commission v. Civ. Pro. Code, O. X.VII, p. 1032—1055. (6) R. v. Rigg, 4 F. & F., 1085; and see Acts. IV of 1871, V. of 1889, and se. 174—176, Cr.

Pro. Code.

(7) And see Civ. Pr. Code, O. NIX, pp. 823-

<sup>(8)</sup> Act X of 1873, s. 5, but see s. 13, ib (9) R. v. Rams Redds, 3 M., 48 (1881). (10) R. v. Burks, 6 A., 224 (1884), as to s. 225, Cr. Pr. Cole, v. pod

<sup>(11)</sup> S. 140, post,

The evidence is admissible for the purpose of poving the truth of the facts which it states either in an entirely new judicial proceeding, or in a subsequent stage of the same proceeding.

The Court has no discretion as to admitting a deposition when the witness (i) is dead; or (ii) cannot be found; or (iii) is incapable; or (iv) is kept out of the way : the deposition of such witnesses is declared to be relevant and must therefore be admitted. The Court has such a discretion in the case of the circumstances mentioned at the close of the section.(1) When the evidence of an absent witness is admitted under this section, the grounds for its admission should be stated fully and clearly, to enable the High Court to judge of the propriety of its admission.(2) Assuming that there are reasons why the Court thinks fit to dispense with the personal attendance of a witness and circumstances are disclosed, showing that his presence could not be obtained without an unreasonabe amount of expense and delay, the evidence to supply such reasons and to prove such circumstances should be formally and regularly taken and recorded.(3)

Where everything turns on the evidence of an absent witness, and without it the prosecution must fail, the provisions of the section ought to be most strictly applied.(4) This section does not justify a Magistrate when proceeding under section 491. Criminal Procedure Code, in using evidence taken in a previous criminal trial in suppression of evidence given in the presence of the accused.(5)

The evidence given in the previous proceeding must have been recorded in the manner prescribed by law (6) Subject to the other provisions of this Act, oral evidence is as receivable under this section as when it has been reduced to a formal deposition (7) When the law requires that the entire statements(8) made by witnesses, or parties called as witnesses, should be reduced into writing, no evidence can be given in proof of such statements except idary evidence ie case has not

533, Criminal Procedure Code.) (10) and it does not appear to have been so actually decided, it is submitted that statements required by law to be recorded, but which are informally recorded are not admissible under this section Similarly, failure to comply with the provisions of O. XVIII, rr. 5, 6 (Civil Procedure Code), in a tion was admissible.(11) The usual presumptions, however, in favour of the proceedings and depositions having been regular will be made unless the contrary be shown.(12) But where the law either does not require the statements of witnesses to be reduced to writing, (13) or merely requires the substance of the

<sup>(1)</sup> In the matter of Payars Lall, 4 C L R, 500 (1879)

<sup>(2)</sup> R v Mouyan, 20 W. R. Cr., 69 (1873) (3) R v Mulu, 2 A, 648 (1880)

<sup>(4)</sup> R v Mourjan, 20 W R . Cr . 69 (1873) In the matter of Pyara Lall, 4 C L R , 504 (1879). at pp 505, 506, 509 , R . Burle, 6 A , 224 (1884) (5) R v Prosonanchuadra, 22 W R , Cr , 36

<sup>(6)</sup> See Cr. Pr Code, as 353-365, 513, 519, 512, 263, 264, Cir Pr Cole, O XVIII, m 4-17, pp. 816-822.

<sup>(7)</sup> Norton, Ev., 194.

<sup>(8)</sup> Civ Pr Code, O XVI r 21, p 809, O XVIII. + 5, p 817, Cr Pr. Code, se 356, 360, 362, 384, 503 and notes to as 29, unte, and 91, post, and Field, (11) R v Mayadeb Gorsoms, 6 C., 762 (1881). and see cases cited in motes to as 80, 91 . Roscor. Cr Ev., 63, 66, Taylor, Ev., 1756, poet. See notes to a 91, pad (12) v s. 114, illust (e), post

<sup>(9)</sup> T & 91, post, and note to same (10) See Nosha: Midri v R. 5 C. 958 (1880).

<sup>(13)</sup> S. 293, Cr.* Pr. Code.

evidence of witnesses.(1) or of witnesses and parties called as witnesses.(2) to be recorded; in the first of these cases certainly, and it would seem also in the second (though it has not, it is believed, been so decided), oral evidence of such statements as had not been recorded would be admissible under this section.(3) What a witness has orally testified may be proved, either by any person who will swear from his own memory, or by notes taken at the time by any person who will swear to their accuracy, or possibly from the necessity of the case, by the Judge's notes How far it may be necessary to prove the precise words does not clearly appear. Perhaps on occasions when nothing of importance turns on the precise expression used, it will be considered sufficient if the witness can speak with certainty to the substance of what was sworn on the former trial.(4) When a note of the evidence has been made by a reporter or shorthand writer, he could, of course, use the note to refresh his memory, and from such a source a shorthand writer might be able to swear to the very words (5) Under English law a stricter rule is applied in Criminal than in Civil proceedings (6) But this section, which is generally more extensive than the English law on the same subject. (7) applies alike to Civil and Criminal proceedings.

Use of previous statements

The distinction should be carefully preserved between the use of previous statements as evidence-in-chief or substantive evidence under this section, and the use of previous statements (whether on oath or not, and whether in a judicial proceeding or not) to discredit or corroborate a witness only, and as admissions when the witness in a former, is perty to a subsequent suit. (8) Depositions may also be used as dying declarations under the preceding section or to refresh the memory of witnesses under section 159 if the conditions set forth in that section caust. Depositions though informally taken are receivable, like any other admissions, against the deponent whenever he is a party; or they may be used to contradict and impeach him when he is afterwards examined as a witness. But before they will be available as secondary evidence and as a substitute for near that sitions of deceased witnesses may, under the preceding section, be admissible even against strangers; as for instance, if they relate to a custom, prescription or pedigrewhere reputation would be evidence; for, as the unsworn declaration of persons deceased would be here received, their declarations on oath are if loritors admissible.(10) When depositions are tendered in evidence as secondary proof of oral testimony, they are, of course, open to all the objections which might have been raised hard the witness himself been personally present at the trial. Leading and other illegal questions are, therefore, constantly suppressed, together with the answers to them, and this, too, whether the testimony has been taken tria tocor or by written interrogatories.(11) But a party cannot repudiate an answers which has been given to an illegal question put on his sown side (12). And if secondary evidence of documents is improperly given on commission and is accepted without objection made, it will be too late for the party against whom the evidence is given to take subsequently the objection which he might have urged at the time.(1)

As to what matters may be proved in connection with statements under Contradicthis section by way of contradiction, corroboration, or otherwise, see section roboration. 158, post.(2)

Some proof of death must be offered and proper enquiries be shown to have "Death" been made. (3) In proof of this fact reference should be made to the provisions of sections 107, 108, post As to the discretion of the Court and proceedings coram non judice, v. ante.(4)

It must be shown that reasonable exertion has been made to find the witness. (5) "Cannot be A deposition was rejected because there was nothing on the record to show that by ordinary care, and the use of ordinary means, the witness could not have been produced. (6) When a summons was properly taken out to be served on one J A at the Cutcherry house in which he lived, but the peon in his return stated that, as he was unable to find J A and serve him personally, he hung up the summons on the Cutcherry-house, and there was evidence to show that J. I suddenly disappeared from the Cutcherry-house, and it was further shown that enquiry was made in his native village whether he had returned there, but the result of the enquiry was that nothing had been heard of him, and it was, therefore, impossible to say where J A was, or to serve him with a summons, it was held that J A's deposition was properly admitted.(7) How far answers to enquiries respecting the witness are admissible to prove that he cannot be found is not very clearly defined by the decisions. That such answers will be rejected as hearsay, if tendered in proof of the fact that the witness is abroad, is beyond all doubt ,(8) but where the question is simply whether a diligent and unsuccessful search has been made for the witness, it would seem, both on principle and authority that the answers should be received as forming a prominent part of the very point to be ascertained (9) In order to show that enquiries have been duly made at the house of the witness, his declarations as to where he hied cannot be received :(10) neither will his statement in the deposition itself, that he is about to go abroad, render it unnecessary to prove that he has put his purpose into execution (11) As to the Court's discretion, v. supra

The words "incapable of giving evidence," it has been held, denote an "Incapaciincapacity of a permanent, and not of a temporary kind; and where a witness tyis proved to be incapable of giving evidence, the Court has no discretion as to admitting his deposition. But where the absence of a witness is casual or due to a temporary cause, the Court has such a discretion " if his presence cannot be obtained without an amount of delay or expense, which under the circumstances the Court considers unreasonable."(12) In a subsequent case (13) however, the Court was of opinion that the incapacity to give evidence contemplated by this section is not necessarily a permanent incapacity.(14) To bring a case within poet, p 339, note (1).

504

<sup>(1)</sup> Robinson v Daties, 1879, 5 Q B. D., 26, Taylor, § 549 (2) See Foollusery Dossee v Nobin Chunder.

<sup>(3)</sup> Benson v Olire, 2 Str., 920

<sup>(4)</sup> In the matter of Pyors Lall, R . Rams Redd), supra, Taylor, Ev., 472

<sup>(5)</sup> R . Luckly Names, 24 W. R. Ct. 19 (1875)

<sup>(6)</sup> R. v. Monjan, 20 W. R., Cr., 69 (1873) (7) R v. Rockia Mohato, 7 C , 42 (1881)

<sup>(8)</sup> Taylor, Ev , § 475 , Robinson v. Marke, 2 M. & Rob., 375 , Der v. Porell, 7 C. & P., 617.

is obster, as it was not necessary to decide that question in the case, v. Roscoe, Cr. Er . 65.65;

<sup>(9) 1</sup>b, Wyatt v Bateman, 7 C. & P., 586, Burt v Walker, 4 B & A . 697 . dustin v Rumeru. 2 C & Kir , 736 , R v Rochia Mohato, supra. (10) Doe v Powell 7 € & P , 617

<sup>(11)</sup> Proctor v. Launeon, 7 C & P., 631

<sup>(12)</sup> In the matter of Pyars Lall, 4 C L. R.

<sup>(13)</sup> In the matter of Argur Hossens, 8 C. L. R., 124 (1881) . c , 6 ( , 774

<sup>(14)</sup> Fer Pentifex and Field, JJ The dictum Taylor, Ev., 5 472, 478.

the section, in order to admit the deposition of a witness alleged to be unable to attend by reason of illness, it is not sufficient that such witness should be stated to be ill and confined to the house; but precise evidence should be required by the Court as to the nature of the illness and the incapacity to attend.(1) If the witness be proved at the trial to be insane, his deposition will be admissible (2) If from the nature of the illness or other infirmity no reasonable hope remains that the witness will be able to appear in Court on any future occasion, his deposition is certain y admissible (3) Of course a doctor's certificate however authentic in itself, is ro legal evidence of the state of the witness. His condition must be proved on oath to the satisfaction of the Judge who tries the case-It appears to be the established practice that in the case of a witness being alleged to be ill, the doctor, it he be attended by one, must be called to prove his condition.(4) Where the astorney for the prosecution was put into the box to prove that the witness was unable to attend, and stated that the witness's residence was 23 miles off, and that he had seen him that morning in bed with his head shaved. Earle be, short of that of :

a person extremely 1

rejected.(5) And Lord Coleridge, C J. in giving judgment in R. v. Farrell.(6) said "it would be dangerous to admit any such latitude of construction as would bring this case within the words of the Statute."

"Kept out of the way

The proposition that if a witness be kept out of the way by the adversary, his former statements will be admissible, rests chiefly on the broad principle of justice, which will not permit a party to take advantage of his own wrong. (7) In a case where three prisoners were indicted for felony, and a witness for the prosecution was proved to be absent through the procurement of one of them, the Court held that his deposition might be read in evidence as against a man who had kept him out of the way, but that it could not be received against the other two men. (8)

Delay or expense

The last ground for admitting the deposition of an absent witness is governed by three considerations.—the delay, the expense, and the circumstances of the case. (9) Of the last "one of the chief which the Judge has and ought to weigh, is the nature and importance of the statements contained in the deposition. It would be unreasonable to incur much delay and expense when the facts spoken to in the deposition are of some link in the case

witnesses are produced at the trial. On the other hand, it might be very reasonable to submit to much delay and considerable expense, when the evidence of the deponent is vited to the success of the prosecution, or has a very important bearing upon the guilt of the accused. (10) Where the delay hiely to have been orcavioned was about a fortinght, and the witness lived or was staying within a short distance of the Court, the witness' deposition was rejected. (11) When

<sup>(1)</sup> In the matter of Asyur Hossein, supra

<sup>(2)</sup> Taylor, Ev., § 472—478; Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 65, Dot v. Powell, 7 C & P., 617, Norton, Ev., 196

<sup>(3)</sup> Taylor, Ev., § 472-478, and cases there ested; as to bindness r. s. 47, note.

(4) Rosco, Cr. Ev., 66; "as a general rule it will be prudent, though it is not absolutely necessary to have the testimony of a medical man." Taylor, Fv. 4 489.

<sup>(5)</sup> R v. Phillips, 1 F. & P., 105, and see R v Hilliams, 4 P. & F., 515.

<sup>(6)</sup> L. R., 2 C. C. R., 116, see also R. v. Wilton, 9 Cov., 281, R. v. Bull, 12 Cov., C. C., 31

<sup>(7)</sup> Taylor, Ev., § 478 (8) R. v. Scatle, 17 Q. B., 238, s. c., 5 Cos. 243

Assatic Steam Manifation Co. τ. Bengal Coal Co., 35 Col., 751.
 In the matter of Pyars Lall, supra, per

White, J., at pp 500, 510

<sup>(11) 16.</sup>

the witnesses were at a considerable distance from the place of trial, and their attendance was not easily procurable their depositions were admitted. (1) Where the writness changed his lodging after the order was given for his appearance in the Ses

"I be admitted his deposition "as much win louse or elsewhere," it was that this witness could made to find him.(2) It not hav is only in extreme cases of expense or delay that the personal attendance of a witness should be dispensed with.(3) "In my opinion it was intended that the provisions of the section as to emergency (delay or expense) were only to be sparingly applied, and certainly not in a case like this where the witness was ahve and his evidence reasonably procurable."(4) Quarc.—Whether the expense contemplated by this section is confined to the expense of obtaining the attendance of the witness, or whether it also includes the expense of adjourning the trial (5) In a case(6) where the Sessions Judge admitted a deposition on the grounds that the attendance of the witnesses could not be procured without an expense of Rs. 500, an amount which he considered unreasonable, that the witnesses would be inconvenienced, and that their evidence did not concern the accused personally, having reference only to the identification of the property in respect of which the accused was charged -Held that the Sessions Judge had improperly admitted such evidence. Inconvenience to witnesses is no ground allowed under this section, and the question of identification was a most material one, and the evidence of the witnesses in question was of the utmost moment, the whole case resting on it; and, as regards the ground of expense, it was impossible to consider the amount unreasonable, considering that the entire case rested on the evidence of those witnesses, and that the accused had not cross-examined those whose evidence had been taken by commission, nor, looking at his position could be arrange for their cross-examination. Held also that on similar grounds the Sessions Judge was not justified in issuing a commission under section 503 of the Criminal Procedure Code. (7) If there is nothing of a special nature to stand in the way, the case should be adjourned to the next sessions to procure the attendance of the witnesses. (8) Where a Sessions Judge, finding that the witnesses who had been summoned to give evidence for the prosecution did not appear upon the date fixed, adjourned the case, and ordered fresh summons to be issued, and on the witnesses failing to appear on the adjourned date, made use of the evidence which they had given before the Magistrate stating that he did so under this section, it was held that the evidence could not be so used, for he ought to have compelled the witnesses to attend (9) But where on remand by the Bombay High Court for the determination of certain issues, the District Court sent down the case to the first Court in order that the evidence might be taken there and the evidence of the plaintiff was taken on commission, it was held that the defendant was not aggreeved by that procedure.(10)

The "proceeding" referred to is the former proceeding the language would Same have been more accurate if it had been "Those whom they represent in interest." [11] It makes no difference that the parties are differently marshalled

Bom., 441

(11) Norton, Ev., 169

```
(1) R v. Rünn. Reddi, 3 M., 48 (1881).
(2) R v. Lukhy. Norein, 24 W. R., Cr., 18
(1873)
(3) R. v. Mals, 2 A., 646 (1880)
(4) bl., per Strught, J., at p. 648
(5) In the matter of Pyenr Lell, uppra, at p.
(10) Kadolca v. Chardrolhogolon (1976), 32
```

549; R. v. Luthun Santhal, 21 W. R., Cr., 56

<sup>(1874).</sup> (6) R. v. Burke, 6 A., 224 (1884).

in the two proceedings, the plaintiffs in the first proceeding, being defendant in the second, or rice versa : nor if there have been plurality of parties in the one case and not in the other. Therefore, where a witness testified in a suit in which A and several others were plaintiffs and B defendant, his testimony was, after his death, held admissible in a subsequent action relating to the same matter, brought by B against A alone.(1) Where, however, one of the parties to a subse-

a representative in interest (3) of a taken in the first suit is not admiss be brought by or against the same parties or their representatives in interest at the time when the suits are proceeding and the evidence is given. (4) This section does not apply to the deposition of a witness in a former suit, when the witness is himself a defendant in the subsequent suit, and the deposition is sought to be used against him, not as evidence given between the parties, one of whom called him as a witness, but as a statement made by him, which would be evidence against him whether he made it as a witness or on any other occasion, such a deposition is admissible under the sections relating to admissions, although it might be shown that the facts were different from what on the former occasion they were stated to be(5) (v post, Note to Explanation).

Cross-exa-

Under the old law, as well as under the present section, there must have been the right and opportunity to cross-examine ,(6) and therefore if a commission be executed without any notice, or without a sufficient notice (7) being given to the opposite party, to enable him, if he pleases, to put cross-interrogatories, the depositions will be rejected , (8) yet it is by no means requisite that he should exercise that power; and if notice has been given to him of the time and place of the examination, and he neither intimates any wish to crossexamine, nor applies to the Court to enlarge the time for that purpose it will be presumed that he has acted advisedly, and the depositions will be received.(9) So, where a defendant, after joining the plaintiff in obtaining a commission to examine witnesses upon interrogatories, gave notice that he declined to proceed with the examination, whereupon the plaintiff sent him word that he should apply for a commission ex-parte, which he accordingly did : the Court held that the examinations taken under this order were admissible in evidence, although the defendant had received no notice of the time and place of taking them. (10) The deposition of a witness who was not cross-examined before the committing Magistrate and who died before the trial

(1) Wright v. Doe d Thatam, 1 A. & E , 3 (2) R v. Ishra Singh, 8 A., 672 (1886), R v Rami Relds, 3 M., 45 (1881); R v. Veman, 5 Bom. L. R , 599, 601 (1903)

(3) See Meinomoyee Duber v. Bhochunmoyee Dabea, 15 B. L. R , 5, (1874); s c. 23 W. R , 42, and notes to as 21, ante, and 40, post. As to judgments for or against a remainderman where there are several remainders limited by one deed, , see remarks of Couch, C. J., 15 B. L. R., ft, supra, and Pute v Crouck, 1 Ld. Raym., 730, Dec d. Hoyl v. Passespham, 2 C. & P., 446.

(4) Stanath Imes v. Mohesh Chunder, 12 C. 727 (1886)

(5) Soojan Bibre v. Achmut Als, 14 B L. R., App., 3 (1974), a c , 21 W. R., 414

(6) R. v. Florarre Dharer, 21 W. R., Cr., 12 (1874); and see R. v. Lurkly Narain, 24 W. H., Cr., 18 (1875), An Heal, v. Daviers, M'Chil &

G , 160 . Taylor, Et . § 466; R v. Ichr. Singh. 8 A . 672 (1886) , R v. Ramehandra Gorind, 19 B , 749, 757 (1895) [ "There may be erreumstances where, although a prisoner has the right he has not the opportunity, eg, where the wif ness is at a great distance and the prisoner cannot go to the place and is too poor to employ a pleader or too unfamiliar with the ways of the place to get legal help there " Per Jardine, J (7) Fitzgerald v Fitzgerald, 3 Sw. & Tr., 397

Tarucknath Monkerpee v. Gourge Churn, 3 W. R. 47 (1865)

(8) Steinkeller v. Neuton, 9 C. & P., 313; ecc Gregory v. Doctey Chand, 14 W. R., 17 (1870). (b) Taylor, Ev . $ 466; Cazenore v. l'aughan, 1 M & S.1 , 4 ; R v. Moujan, 20 W. R , 69 (1873); Norton, Ev., 196, 197

(10) M'Combie v. Anton, 6 M. & Gr., 27.

was held to be admissible in evidence masmuch as the accused persons had the right and opportunity of cross-examining him notwithstanding the omission of their pleader to aval himself of that right.(1) The words "opportunity to cross-examine" do not imply that the actual presence of the cross-examining party or his agent before the tribunal taking the evidence is necessary. (2) In England it has been held that if the prisoner was present, there is a presumption (which may be rebutted) that he had a full opportunity of cross-examination.(3) But, in R. v. Mowjan,(4) the Court remarked as follows: "We observe further that there is nothing on the face of the Extra Assistant Commissioner's record to shew that an opportunity was presented to the prisoner of cross-examining the witness, Ratoo Ray. It may be gathered from the context that

But it is not sta an opportunity that, in order t

evidence that the accused person did, in fact, have an opportunity of crossexamining."(5) So also it has been held in the Bombay High Court that to make evidence admissible against an accused person, the fact that he had full opportunity of cross-examination, if not admitted, must be proved.(6) Quare-Wishington and administration and a contract of the contract of requires an effectual cross-examination complete and not partial where a commission was returned when the witness had been in part, but before he had been fully, cross-examined it was held to be inadmissible (8) Platt, B., in R. v. Johnson, (9) reprobated the practice of taking depositions in the absence of the prisoner and then supplying the omission by reading them over to the prisoner and asking him if he would like to put any questions to the witnesses. The Magistrate should, when the prisoner is undefended, invite him to cross-examine the witnesses at the end of each examination, and not merely at the end of all the examinations and should allow him sufficient time to consider his questions (10)

The question in issue must have I in the second proceeding. And so, i comes directly in issue, the testimony

st as Question · fact in issue the same point in another action between the same parties or their privies, though the last suit relates to other lands. (11) So also in the proceedings before a Magistrate on a charge of causing grievous hurt, two (among other) witnesses, one of whom was the person assaulted, were examined on behalf of the prosecution The prisoners were committed for trial. Subsequently the person assaulted died in consequence of the injuries inflicted on him. At the trial, before

W, LE

<sup>(1)</sup> R v Baswanta, 2 Bom L R , 761 (1900) . 25 B . 169

<sup>(2)</sup> R v Ram Chandra Gorind, 10 B , 749 (1893)

<sup>(3)</sup> R v Praceck, 12 Cox, C C, 21 (4) 20 W R , Cr , 69 (1873)

<sup>(5)</sup> Ib., at p 70, per Macpherson, J

<sup>(6)</sup> R v. Ramchandra Gorind, supra

<sup>(8)</sup> Beingemof v Nakariet Jute Co., 5 C. W. N . cerr (1901).

<sup>(9) 2</sup> C. & K., 394, and see at 353, 537, Cr.

Pr Code, and notes to sa 135, 167, post, and R.

v Bishonath Pal, 12 W R., Cr., 3 (1869), R. v Mohun Banfor, 22 W R , Cr , 38 (1874) . Als Meah, 25 W R , Cr , 14 (1876) , R. v. Nandram, <sup>9</sup> A , 609 (1887) , Norton, Ev , 197 (10) R. v Dey, 6 Cox, 55 , R v. Hatta, 9 (ox.

<sup>(11)</sup> Doe d Derby v. Foster, 1 A. & E., 791, cited in R v. Rams Reddi, 3 M., 48 (1881), see also Laurence v. Frenck, 4 Drew, 472, Phipson, Er., 3rd Ed., 397.

evidence was admissible, either under the first clause of section 32, or the lditional charges before the Sessions Court. The sapplicable—that is, whether the questions at me depends upon whether the same evidence is consequences may follow from the same ect (!) stroke of a sword which, though it did not immediately cause the death of the deceased, yet conduced to bring shout that result subsequently. In consequence of the person having died, the gravity of the offence became presumptively increased; but the evidence to prove the act with which the accused was charged remained precisely the same. We therefore think that this evidence was properly admitted under the thirty-third section."(2) "Although the Act in using the word questions' in the plural seems to imply that it is essential that all the questions shall be the same in both proceedings to render the evidence admissible, that is not the intention of the law. And though separate proceedings may involve issues, of which some only are common to both, the evidence to those common issues given in the former proceeding may (on the conditions mentioned in section 33 arising) be given in the subsequent proceedings "(3) In deciding whether the questions in issue are substantially the saine, it is always an useful test to see whether the same evidence will prove the affirmative of the issue in both (4)

Explanation to section The Explanation to the section is inserted for the purpose of excluding the objection which may arise, when the depositions are taken in criminal cases, that they cannot be used in a subsequent proceeding for wear of mutuality, because the King is the prosecutor in all criminal proceedings. (5) As some explained, the section admits of the control of of the cont a criminal trial or the reverse.

Thus a prosecution was metitu behalf, of F for criminal trespass into a house belonging to F (Penal Code, section 448), and on his own behalf for assault and insult (d, sections 352, 504), and S at the trial gave evidence on these charges. A civil suit was subsequently brought by F against NCB for possession of the house under the ninth section of the Specific Relief Act. Between the date of the prosecution and civil suit S died.

tendere

Aald, augera.

the cha

the charge of I as the real prosecutor, that therefore the parties in both the prosecution for treapass and the civil sunt were the same, that N C B had had the right and opportunity to cross-examine and had, in fact, exercised that right, that the issues in the civil suit were whether F was in possession and whether K C B's entry was unlawful; and that in order to establish the charge of criminal trespass, it had had to be shown that I was in possession, that N C B had unlawfully ousted her and that such ouster was with a criminal intest; that two of the issues in the suit were the same as those in the criminal trial that the fact that there was an additional issue in the criminal trial made no difference, C0 and that under I I1 was admissiful that the fact has therefore the criminal trial was admissiful that the fact of the criminal trial I2 and I3 and I4 and I5 and

<sup>(1)</sup> R. v. Rochia Mohato, 7 C., 42 (1881), a. c., x C. L. R., 273 (2) 1b., per Pontilex, J., see Taylor, Ev., §§

 <sup>467, 468;</sup> Norton, Ev., 198.
 R. v. Rome Reddi, 3 M., 48 (1881), at p. 52.
 Field, Ev., 202, 203; see E. v. Rockia Mo-

<sup>(5)</sup> Norton, Ex. 597, 108, for the question * win is proventor," "see Goya Prasad v. Phonal Singh, To A. 525; and Pands Goya Pardod Pewars v. Sardor Bhagat Singh, P. C. (1988), Times 1, R. v. 24, at p. 46

<sup>(8)</sup> See R. v. Eami Reddl, supra-

on objection that such copy was inadmissible and that the original record should be produced, the objection was overruled and the certified copy admitted in evidence. A witness under examination was ten asked what information S had given him on the morning following the date of dispossession. On objection being again taken, the question was held admissible under section 158 in corroboration of the deposition of S in the criminal trial.(1)

<sup>(1)</sup> Failtimay Doses v. Notin Charder, 21 C., 441 (1895).

evidence was admissible, either under the first clause of section 32. or this section, notwithstanding the additional charges before the Sessions Court. The question whether the proviso is applicable—that is, whether the questions at issue are substantially the same depends upon whether the same cridence is applicable, although different consequences may follow from the same act.(1) "Now here the act was the stroke of a sword which, though it did not immediately cause the death of the deceased, yet conduced to bring about that result subsequently. In consequence of the person having died, the gravity of the offence became presumptively increased; but the evidence to prove the act with which the accused was charged remained precisely the same. We therefore think that this evidence was properly admitted under the thirty-third section."(2) "Although the Act in using the word 'questions' in the plural seems to imply that it is essential that all the questions shall be the same in both proceedings to render the evidence admissible, that is not the intention of the law. And though separate proceedings may involve issues, of which some only are common to both, the evidence to those common issues given in the former proceeding may (on the conditions mentioned in section 33 arising) be given in the subsequent proceedings "(3) In deciding whether the questions in issue are substantially the same, it is always an useful test to see whether the same evidence will prove the affirmative of the issue in both (4)

Explanation to section

The Explanation to the section is inserted for the purpose of excluding the objection which may arise, when the depositions are taken in criminal cases, that they cannot be used in a subsequent proceeding for want of mutuality. because the King is the prosecutor in all criminal proceedings.(5) As soexplained, the section admits of the use, in a civil suit, of a deposition taken in a criminal trial or the reverse, provided the conditions of the section are fulfilled Thus a prosecution was instituted by S against N C B at the instance, and on behalf, of F for criminal trespass into a house belonging to F (Penal Code, section 448), and on his own behalf for assault and insult (1d., sections 352, 504). and S at the trial gave evidence on these charges A civil suit was subsequently brought by F against N C B for possession of the house under the ninth section of the Specific Relief Act. Between the date of the prosecution and civil suit 8 died. At the hearing of the suit, the deposition of S in the Criminal Court was tendered on the issue of possession It was held that, according to the evidence, the charge of criminal trespass had been at the instance of F, and was therefore the charge of F as the real prosecutor, that therefore the parties in both the prosecution for trespass and the civil suit were the same , that NCB had had the right and opportunity to cross-examine and had, in fact, exercised that right, that the issues in the civil suit were whether F was in possession and whether N C B's entry was unlawful; and that in order to establish the charge of criminal trespass, it had had to be shown that F was in possession, that NCB had unlawfully ousted her and that such ouster was with a criminal intent; that two of the issues in the suit were the same as those in the criminal trial. that the fact that there was an additional issue in the criminal trial made no difference,(6) and that under the above circumstances the deposition of Sm the criminal trial was admissible in the civil suit, in proof of the issue therein, of possession. A certified copy of the deposition was therefore tendered, and

<sup>(1)</sup> R. v. Rochia Wohato, 7 C., 42 (1881); s. c. s. C. L. R., 273

<sup>(2)</sup> Ib., per Pontifex, J., see Taylor, Ev., §§ 467, 468; Norton, Ev., 195.

 <sup>(3)</sup> R. v. Rami Peddi, 3 M., 48 (1881), at p. 52.
 (4) Field, Ev., 202, 203; see R. v. Rockia Mohata, supen.

<sup>(5)</sup> Norton, Ev., 197, 198, for the question "vio is prosecutor," "see Gaya Praced v. Bloom Siegh, 30 A., 525, and Pands Gaya Parked Tevars v. Sardar Bhogat Siegh, P. C. (1998). Times L. R., v. 24, at p. 46

<sup>(6)</sup> See R. v. Rams Reddl, supra.

as to carry conviction that they are true."(1) They are, moreover, subject to the restrictions that they shall not be alone sufficient evidence to charge any one with hability without some independent evidence of the facts stated in them.(2) The second class of statements are conceined either in public documents, such as official books, registers, or records, or in documents of at least a public character, such as maps offered for public sale. The grounds upon which these statements are admissible have been given in the Notes to the following sections. Public documents are entitled to an extraordinary degree of confidence on the ground of the credit due to the agents who have made them and of the public nature of the facts contained in them. Where particular facts are enquired into, and recorded for the benefit of the public, those who are empowered to act in making such investigations and memorials, are in fact the agents of all the individuals who compose the public; and every member of the community may be supposed to be privy to the invertigation.(3) The other documents mentioned in the following sections, such as maps offered for public sale, deal with matters of public interest, are accessible to the entire community, and being open to its criticism, are unlikely to be maccurate: and if inaccurate, are hable to detection and to consequent currection.(4)

STATEMENTS MADE UNDER SPECIAL CIRCUMSTANCES.

Two general classes of statements are dealt with in this portion of the chapter, -(a) Entries in books of account, regularly kept in the course of business. (b) entries in public documents, or in documents of a public character. Both classes of statements are relevant, whether the person who made them 19, or is not, called as a witness, and whether he is, or is not, a party to the suit, and are admissible owing to their special character and the circumstances under which they are made which in themselves afford a guarantee for their truth. The first class of statements were not generally admissible according to the principles of the English Common Law, except in the case of entries against interest, or made in the course of business, by deceased persons (1) but Courts of Equity have for some years past acted upon the principle of admitting account-books in evidence, in cases in which the vouchers have been lost (2) and the same principle has now been adopted in certain cases, by the Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883, (3) and the powers of the Court with reference to the production of documents and of entries in books or of copies of either have been also considerably enlarged by the Rules of the Supreme Court. 1897, as amended by the Rules of July 1902. O XXX, r. 7, now runs as follows "on the hearing of a summons the Court or a Judge may order that evidence of any particular fact, to be specified in the order, shall be given by statement on oath of information and belief, or by production of documents, or entries in books, or by copies of documents or entries, or otherwise as the Court or Judge may direct."(4) The object of this rule is to dispense, under the powers of the Judicature Act and to a certain limited extent, with the technical rules of evidence.(5) As a general rule, a man's own statement is not evidence for him, though in certain cases it may be used as corroborative evidence.(6) The entries alluded to in section 34, being the acts of the party himself, must be received with caution (7) But these statements are in principle admissible upon considerations similar to those which have induced the Courts to admit them in evdience when made by persons who are dead and cannot be thus called as witnesses. Moreover, in the words of the Judicial Committee, "accounts may be so kept, and so tally with external circumstances

<sup>(1)</sup> Taylor, Ev., 700 Steph., Dez., Arts., § 25-41, Bett, Fr., 8, § 601, Reit, Reece, N. P. Ev., 400-42; Powell, Ev., 218-228, Statue, Ev., 400-42; Powell, Ev., 218-228, Statue, Ev., 55. Thus J. awar for the price of goods sold—an enter in A's shop-looks, delating B with the goods, is not evaluate for A to prove the delt, Smith v. Anderson, 7 C. B., 21, but an entry delating C and not B with the goods is evaluate agricult of to disprove the delt; Store v. Scott, 6 C. A. P., 241.

<sup>(2)</sup> Taylor, Lv., § 711, and see 15 & 16 Ng., c. 86, s. 4

<sup>(3)</sup> Ord. XAAIII, rr. 2, 3.

<sup>(4)</sup> Tayl v. § 711. (5) Barriesa v. The Chartered Mercantile Bank (1875), 2 (h., 488

<sup>(6)</sup> Ishan Chunder v. Haran Sirdar, 11 W. F., 526 (1869) See Introduction to the Sections of Admissions (s. 17 et arg.), ante

<sup>(1)</sup> Khero Monte v. Brop Golind, 7 W. E. Millson, 1990, E., 2 for but proper washin must be gaven to them where it was said that "an account-book in nothing, it is only pavete affair and he may prepare it as he likes," the Prof. Concil remarked, ""It is true that there may be account to which that description would spike. Other accounts may be so kept, and may or tally with external circumstances as to cirry consistent that they are true. And the Evidence Act, s. 14, therefore enact, &c": Journal of Single v. Show Arasis, 10 A., 15, 161 (1891).

as to carry conviction that they are true."(1) They are, moreover, subject to the restrictions that they shall not be alone sufficient evidence to charge any one with liability without some independent evidence of the facts stated in them.(2) The second class of statements are contained either in public documents, such as official books, registers, or records, or in documents of at least a public character, such as maps offered for public sale. The grounds upon which these statements are admissible have been given in the Notes to the following sections. Public documents are cutitled to an extraordinary degree of confidence on the ground of the credit due to the agents who have made them and of the public nature of the facts contained in them. Where particular facts are enquired into, and recorded for the benefit of the public, those who are empowered to act in making such investigations and memorials, are in fact the agents of all the individuals who compose the public and every member of the community may be supposed to be privy to the investigation. (3) The other documents mentioned in the following sections, such as maps offered for public sale, deal with matters of public interest, are accessible to the entire community, and being open to its criticism, are unlikely to be inaccurate; and if inaccurate, are hable to detection and to consequent currection (4)

34. Entries in books of account, regularly kept in the Entries in course of business, are relevant(5) whenever they refer to a account matter into which the Court has to inquire, but such statements relevant. shall not alone be sufficient evidence to charge any person with liability.

Illustration

A sues B for Rs. 1,000, and shows entries in his account-books showing B to be indebted to him to this amount. The entries are relevant, but are not sufficient, without other evidence, to prove the debt.

Principle.-The presumption of truth which arises from the character and nature of this evidence and its constant liability, if false, to be detected (r. Introduction, supra, and the second clause of section 321.

s. 32, cl. (2): (Statement made in course of business by person who cannot be

s. 65 (2) (Numerous accounts secondary

evidence)

s. 32, cl. (3) (Sftatement against interest by same per son.)

< 39 (How much of a statement is to be proved 5 3 (" Relevante")

Civil Procedure Code, O XIII, r. 5, p 782 (Production of Account Books in Evidence), O XXVI, rr. 11, 12, p. 1061, 1062 (Commissions to examine Accounts); Act VI of 1882 (Indian Companies), s. 198, Acts XVIII of 1891 and I of 1893 (Bankers' Books and Books of Post Office Savings Bank and Money Order Offices). Taylor, Ev., § 709; Best, Ev., §§ 501, 503. Field, Ev., 212, 5th Ed.; Id., Appendix, 4th Ed.; Wigmore, Ev. $ 1558.

(2) S. 34, post, and Commentary. (3) Starker, Ev., 272, 273. Fon Somer Danick T. Juguel Kishore, 27 C., 278, 370 (1895).

(5) "Relevant" " ream minuentle : Lola Latini v. Saryed Harder, J. C. W. N., extern (1884, <sup>(1)</sup> c. 1. 32, cl. (2), supra., Taylor, Ev , § 697 . Powell, Ev., 218, Starkie, Ev., 65, Steph, Introd., 164, 165 Jeruval Singh v. Nico Narola, supra. 161, 162, one test of genuineness is correspondence of books with themselves, but a better is correspondence with other evidence, it.

COMMENTARY

Books of account

A question sometimes arises whether a particular account should be considered, and can be referred to, as the original account. If accounts be merely memoranda and rough books from which the regular accounts are prepared.

each of such books is an original account-book.(2)

 This section takes the place of section 43 of the repealed Act II of 1855 which was as follows "Books proved to have been regularly kept in the course of business shall be admissible as corroborative but not as independent proof of the facts stated therein." Under that Act, therefore, account books would not have been admissible to prove a fact unless some other evidence tending to extablish the same fact had also been given. "But the language" of that Act "differs very materially from that of the present Act. That language has not been adopted in the present Act The only limitation in section 34 is that statements contained in documents of this kind shall not alone be sufficient to charge. any one with hability It appears to me that this change of expression has made substantial alteration in the law."(3) Therefore documents (jama-wasil baki papers) admissible under this section, though not alone sufficient to charge any one with liability, were held to be sufficient to answer a claim set up to exemption from what would be the ordinary liability of a tenant e.g., in a suit for enhancement of rent to rebut a presumption arising from uniform payment for 23 years.(4) These documents were not used alone in the liability that had been imposed upon him the land he occupied by reason of its occi, considered a fair and equitable rent for the land occupied, and what these documents were used for was not to charge him with the liability, but to answer the claim which he set up to exemption from what would be the ordinary hability of a tenant (5) Therefore, books of account when not used to charge a person with liability (civil or criminal) (6) may be used as independent evidence requiring no corroboration, but when sought to be so used they must be corroborated by other substantive evidence independent of them. (7) And in this sense books of accounts remain under the present as under the repealed Act, corroborated evidence only, and cannot be used as independent primary evidence of the payment or other item- to which the entry refers nor when payments entered in many of the items of a book of account are corroborated by other evidence can the inference be raised thereon that even the entries which are not so corroborated are accurate, or in other words, afford good substantive evidence of the Pay-

(1562).

<sup>(1)</sup> Raja Peary v. Narendia Nath. 9 C W N. 421, 431 (1905) See Wig nore, Ev., $ 1558.

<sup>(2)</sup> Megra; v. Seirnarata, 5 C. W. N., oclyxyni (1901), ace s. 63, post

<sup>(3)</sup> Belaet Khan v. Aash Beharee, 22 W. R., 549 (1874), per Markby, U (s post) the present section substitutes " regularly kept " for " proved to have been regularly kept " but of course proof to still required except in those cases in which it is rendered unnecessary by the admissions of the parties. As to account-books as corrotorative evidence of separation in estate, we Japan Koor v. Roghomundan Lall, 10 W. P., 148 (1968). As to Act II of 1955, see Rame kristo Pat v. Hatylus Kounder, Marshall, 219

<sup>(4)</sup> Ib. (5) Ib. this decision, in so far as it held james wasil baks papers might in certain cases be other than corroborative evidence only, appears to be dissented from by Princep and Rose, JJ., in Secnomoys v. Johur Mahomed, 10 C. L. R., 546 (1882); v. post; but it does not appear in the latter case what use was sought to be made there in of these papers ; ere also Gupat Mondul v. Ndo Kishen, 5 W. R. (Act X), 81 (1866); Shis Per shad . Promothonath Chose, 10 W. P., 193 (1969).

and prot. (6) R. v. Hurdesp Salog, 23 W. R., Cr. 27

<sup>(7)</sup> Ib., Duarta Dane v. Sant Bulsh, 18 A., 92 (1893).

ments to which they refer.(1) Entr es in accounts relevant only under this section are not by themselves alone sufficient to charge any person with liability : corroboration is required. But where accounts are relevant also under the second clause of section 32, they are in law sufficient evidence in themselves, and the law does not, as in the case of accounts, admissible under only this section, require corroboration. Entries in accounts may in the same suit be relevant under both the sections; and in that case the necessity for corroboration does not apply.(2) In a suit to recover money due upon a running account the plaintiff produced his account-books, which were found to be books regularly kept in the course of business in support of his claim. One of the plaintiffs gave evidence as to the entries in the account-books, but in such a manner that it was not clear whether he spoke from his personal knowledge of the transactions entered in the books, the entries in which were largely in his own handwriting or simply as one describing the state of affairs that was shown by the books He was cross-examined, but no questions were asked him to show that he was not speaking as to his personal knowledge. Held, that the evidence given as above should be interpreted in the manner most favourable to the plaintiff and might be accepted in support of the entries in the plaintiff's accountbooks, which by themselves would not have been sufficient to charge the defendants with hability.(3) The mere production of the books without further proof is not enough; (4) and such further proof must be afforded by substantive evidence independent of them, as by that of witnesses who speak to the payment of money or delivery of goods, or of evidence of receipt of, or given for, the same (5) In a case decided under the repealed Act, the Privy Council observed as follows .—" The evidence which the Subordinate Judge seems to have considered sufficient to prove the payments which the defendants were bound to prove consisted of the mercantile books of the banking firm and of a general statement by the defendant G P that the stems in those books were correct. Their Lordships are of opinion that the books being that lay upon him, particularly as with respect to many of the disputed items be had the means of producing much better evidence. (6) It has been held that, at all under any section of the Act is, it is submitted, erroneous, and has not in such sense been followed.(8) This section which presupposes the existence of an entry and deals with the question how far existent entries tendered in evidence may fix parties with liability, does not obviously apply where there is no entry.

<sup>(1)</sup> R v Hurdrep Sakoy, 23 W. R., Cr 27 (1875)

<sup>(2)</sup> Rampyarahas v Balaji Shridhar, 6 Bom L. R., 50 (1904), 8 C. 28 B. 294

<sup>(3)</sup> Decerta Does v. Sant Bulsh, 18 A 92 1895).

<sup>(4)</sup> Sr. Kishen v. Hure Kishen, S.M. I. A., 432. Surbajer I scha v. Konsurjer Manifjer I. M. I. A. 47. s. c. 5 W. R. (P. C.). 29 (1866). Renshan Bibre v. Hurroy Krisho, S. C., 331.

<sup>(5)</sup> R. v. Hardeep Sakow, 23 W. R. Cr. 27 (1875), and v. post.

<sup>(6)</sup> Gunga Persad v. Indeepet Singh, 23 W P. P. C.), 300 (1875).

<sup>(7)</sup> R . Grees Chunder, 10 ( , 1024 (1884), and see In the matter of Juggun Lall, 7 C L. R.

<sup>(6)</sup> Sopramille Manney, C. W. N., ceru (1900). In Rom Pendod v Labpato Kery, 30°C, an'p 24°C. Lord Davry referred to R. v. Greec Chender, 10°C, 1024, sept., and Lord Rolestron and "The Act applies to entres un books of account, but no inference can be drawn from the absence of na entry relating to any particular matter," but this remark must be taken to have been made with reference to the preceding attainment of Counsel which referred to this section.

Evidence that there is no entry is not admissible under this section, but may be so under other sections of the Act, as for instance, the ninth and eleventh sections. Thus evidence having been given of the visit of M to Calcutta which he denied, the latter's son was called by the other party to corroborate M's statement. He deposed that it was usual when a partner of his firm (to which both he and M belonged) made a journey on the firm's business to enter in the account-book the expenses of such journey, and he was allowed to produce the account-book of his firm and to state that there was no entry of expenses relative to such alleged visit.(1) of the statement the whole of it.

that the payments credited in a plaintiff's account-books were made, althoughle disbelieves the entry as to the amount of the debits, there is nothing inequitable. The Judge is bound to

> Is he believes to be true, Books of account regularly kept may be appealed to not only for the purpose of refreshing the memory of a witness but also as corroborative evidence of the story which he tells. Books of account containing entries referring to a particular transaction are not entitled to the same credit that is given to the books that record that transaction in common with other transactions in the ordinary course of business.(3) Where any company is being wound up, all books accounts, and documents of the Company and of the liquidators are, as between the contributories of the Company, prima factor evidence of the truth of all matters purporting to be therein recorded (4) As to a hathchitta book being, in the absence of fraud, binding upon the vendor for whose security it is kept, see the undermentioned case (5) Besides their use as corroborative evidence under this section, entries in books of account, may, under the conditions mentioned in section 159, be used to refresh the memory, or as admissions (v ante), and also under other sections of the Act. Further, statements made in books kept in the ordinary course of business by persons who cannot be called as witnesses, may be proved under the provisions of the second clause of the thirty-second section (6)

Kept in the "regular course of business"

The book must have been kept in the regular course of business. A too limited meaning must not be given to this part of the section. Where one of the plaintiff's witnesses, named K  $T_s$  stated in cross-examination that he had formerly been employed by C D at intervals of a week or fortnight to make entries in this (C D s) cash-book relating to private transactions which he (the witness) the designation of books of account regularly kept in the course of busines. It is C** private account-book entered up casually once a week or fortnight, and with none of the claims to confidence that attach to books entered up from day to day or (as in banks) from hour to hour as transactions take place. These only are, I think, regularly kept in the course of business. "(7) But in a recent course of business."

rpressed, verecor-

<sup>(1)</sup> Ragurmult v. Manraj, 4 C. W. N., ecvii (1966).

Ishan Chunder v. Haran Sirdar, 11 W. R., 1869), per Peniock, C. J.
 Blog Hong Kong v. Ramanathen Chetty,

<sup>29</sup> C., 234 (1992); s. c., 4 Bom. L. R., 378.

(4) Act VI of 1882 (Indian Companies), s. 199

(5) Coper Mohar v. Abdod Royal, 1 Jun N. S.

<sup>358 (1866)</sup>

<sup>(6)</sup> v. s. 32, ante.
(7) Munchreshum Bezonjs v. New Distributions
Spinning Company, 4 B., 576 (1880) at p. 5833
External to in Ningawa v. Estamoppa, 23 B., 66 (1898).

<sup>(8)</sup> Deputy Commissioner of Bara Banks v. Kam. Persod, 22 C., 119 (1899), s. c., 4 C. W. N., 147

be excluded from being used as corroborative evidence and that the time of making the entries may affect the value of them, but should not, if not made from day to day or from hour to hour, make them entirely irrelevant. It is thus not necessary that the entry should have been made at the time of the transaction, provided that the book has been kept in the regular course of business. In the case cited, the course of business in keeping the accounts in the office of a talukdari estate was that monthly accounts were submitted by kaimdars at the head office where they were abstracted and entered in an account book, under the date of entry, that being in some cases many days after the transaction of payment or receipt, but the entries were made in their proper order, on the authority of the officer whose duty it was to rec ive or pay the money. It was held, that the entry in the account-book was admissible as corroborative evidence of oral testimony as to the fact of a payment for what it was worth, objection being only to be made to its weight, not to its relevance, under this section.(1) But account-books, though proved not to have been regularly kept in the course of business, but proved to have been kept on behalf of a firm of contractors by its servant or agent appointed for that purpose, are relevant as admissions against the firm.(2)

The regular proof of books and accounts requires that the clerks who have Proof or kept those accounts, or some person competent to speak to the facts, should be accounted to prove that they have been regularly kept, and to prove their general accuracy. (3) Yet the necessity of strict proof may be removed by the admission of the defendant, and the fact of the absence by him of any evidence to impeach the accuracy of the accounts, the disputed items being satisfactorily accounted for. (4) The section simply requires that entries in accounts should, in order to be relevant, be regularly kept in the course of business. and although it may be no doubt important to show that the person making or dictating the entries had, or had not, a personal knowledge of that fact stated, this is a guestion which affects the reduce, not the admissibility, of the entries. (5)

Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts made up at the end of the year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts made up at the end of the year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts made up at the end of the year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts made up at the end of the year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts made up at the end of the year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts made up at the end of the year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts made up at the end of the year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts made up at the end of the year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts made up at the end of the year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts made up at the end of the year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts made up at the end of the year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts made up at the end of the year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts made up at the end of the year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts made up at the end of the year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts made up at the year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts made up at the year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts made up at the end of the year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts made up at the end of the year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts made up at the end of the year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts made up at the year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts made up at the year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts made up at the year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts made up at the end of the year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts made up at the end of the year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts made up at the end of the year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts made up at the end of the year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts made up at the year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts and the year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts and year show- Jama-wasil-bahi papers are accounts lance due at the rent (6) They

o have been kept ey are not admistherein but it is perfectly right that a person who has prepared such papers on receiving payments of the rents should refresh his memory from such papers when giving evidence as to the amount of rent payable, when so used, they are not used as independent evidence." (8) In a suit where the Lower Court found upon the evidence of (inter alia) certain pama-wasil-bak; appers that the defendant had been the plaintiff; tenant at a certain rate of rent and gave the plaintiff a decree for that rent, it was observed as follows —" Then it is said that, in the first Court, the Munsiff relied improperly on certain pama-wasil-bak; papers, These pama-wasil-bak; papers, we all know, are not evidence by themselves. The mere production of such papers is not enough. But, coupled with other evidence, these papers often afford a very useful guide to the truth in cases of

<sup>(1)</sup> Deputy Commissioner, Bara Banki v. Ram Porshad, 27 C., 118 (1899) n. c., 4 C. N. N., 147 (2) Munchershow Bezonji v. New Dhurumoty

Spinning (b., 4 B., 576 (1880).

(3) Dwarka Dass v Jankes Duss, 6 M. L. A.,

<sup>88 (1853),</sup> at p. 181.

(4) As to Bankers' Books and the books of Pout Office Saving Banks and Money Order Offices, c. Acta XVIII of 1891 and I of 1803.

<sup>(5)</sup> R. v. Hannania, 1 B., 610 (1877), at p. 616 (6) Field, Ev., 4th Ed., Appendix

Ram Lall v. Tura Soondars, 7 W. R., 280
 Akerto Monce v. Bipog Gorind, 7 W. R.,
 S33 (1867) Bipog Golind v. Bheeko Roy, 10 W.
 R., 291 (1868), Jackson, J., doubting

<sup>(8)</sup> Akkill Chandra v Nayu, 10 C., 248 (1683), and see Mahomed Mahmood v. Safar Als, 11 C., 409 (1885).

this kind; and it is only right that those who have been collecting rent with the assistance of such papers should produce them in Court. [1] And in a suit[2] for arrears of rent at an enhanced rate it was said:—"The appellant's pleader contends that the jama-wasil-bala papers under the Evidence Act of 1872 are no longer regarded as corroborative evidence, and that, therefore the Judge has taken a wroing view of the weight which should be attached to them. But we would observe that, with the exception of one case, Belack Khun v. Rah Beharce[3] we are not aware of any case in which this Court has regarded jama-wasil-bala papers in a different light. In fact, so farms my own individual experience goes as a Judge of this Court, I have never known them to be looked upon as anything else. It seems to us, moreover, that the terms of section 34 of the Evidence Act do not give such papers any weight beyond that of corroborative evidence."(4)

Value of these papers With regard to the value to be attached to these papers, there have been varying decisions. In a suit for possession on the allegation of wrongful dispossession, it was said — Jama-wasil-bals papers in a case of this kind are really of very little consequence or value, as it is a matter of perfect ease for either party in the suit to produce any number of such papers. the absence of particular papers of this kind does not appear to be a very material omission."(5) In the case of Allyat Chinaman v. Juggut Chinadre(6) the Court(7) remarked as follows: "But it is contended their allegations are corroborated by the juma-wasil-bals papers filed by the respondent, in which the names of these ranjuts are entered. Now, we observe that such a document—a private memorandum made for the zemindar's own use and by his own servants—must be looked up.

by the production of a document wh and to any required pattern. Has then this document been attested? We think not. Doubtless a person calling himself a kurkun's muharrir has been produced to depose to I C's (the tchsildar's) signature to this particular paper; but the tehsildar himself has not been examined, and it is not pretended that the man is either dead or unable to depose. The best evidence was required to prove a document so naturally open to suspicion, and that evidence has not been given." In a subsequent case. (8) Norman, J., referring to this case, said: "As to the value of jama-wasil-baki papers as evidence in rent-suits for the zemindar, the Deputy Collector quotes a passage from the 5th Volume of the Weekly Reporter, p. 243, and treats it as if the language applied to all jama-wasil-bakis. But there is a wide distinction between the case with which the learned Judges were then dealing, and to which they applied their remarks, and the present. Here we have a series of jama-wasilbakis apparently regularly kept for ten years, with one gap, from 1249 to 1258. There is a single paper unattested, the writer of which was not called and his absence not accounted for. Of course, all books of account and entries made by or on behalf of a party when produced as evidence in his favour must be received with caution; but there seems to be no reason why a series of collection-accounts, or jama-wasil-baki papers, appearing to be regularly kept, should not be entitled to credit on the same principle as other contemporary records made and kept by the party producing them in

<sup>(1)</sup> Roudan Biber v. Hurray Kristo, 8 C., 931 (1842), per Garth, C. J.

<sup>(2)</sup> Surmmays v. Johns Mahamel, 10 C. L. R., 545 (1882).

<sup>(3) 22</sup> W. B., 549, v. ante, p. 342,

<sup>(4) 16.</sup> at p. 546, per Princep & Hoor, JJ.; but are note, 342 and Note

<sup>(5)</sup> Sheo Sukuye v. Goodur Roy, 8 W. B., 32rd (1867), per Jackson, J., but see Rouchan Blaces. Hurray Krain, 8 C., 926, supra.

<sup>(6) 5</sup> W. It , 242 (1866)

<sup>(7)</sup> Phear and Glover, JJ, (8) Absert Monte v. Repay Gobind, 7 W. P., 533 (1967).

the ordinary course of his business." In a case,(1) where, in order to rebut the presumption in favour of a permanent tenure created by the fourth section, Act X of 1859, the fact of the rate at which rent was paid having varied, was the fact sought to be proved by pama-neast-bah; and similar papers, it was observed:—"The Judge (of the Lower Court) alludes to the evidence of the gomastahs who filed or attested certain papers of the zemindar. Such papers, we need hardly observe, cannot incontestably prove variations in a rangat's jama, unless it can be shown not merely that the jama-neasil-bah; and similar papers show a varying rate, but that the rangat has paid at varying rate, otherwise every rangat would be at the mercy of a zemindar or it agents. The Judge says that the witnesses attest these papers, but he does not say how he considers the rangate bound by them,(2)

The jamabands shows the quantity of land held by each cultivator, its Jamaband different qualities (i.e., what is grown upon it), the rate of reut for each kind of and other land, the total rent for all the land of that particular kind in each cultivator's possession, and, lastly, the grand total for all the lands of every kind held by him (3) Many of the following cases were decided under the law as it stood prior to the passing of this Act In Guno Koer v. Adlay Ahmed, (4) D N. Mitter, J., said . "The jamabands paper may be only used as corroborative evidence, viz, of the same value as that which is attached to books of account under Act II of 1855. These papers were admittedly prepared by the zemmdar's own agent in the absence of the raigats, and if the mere fact of the agent coming forward to swear that he wrote the papers is to justify a Court accepting every fact recited therein as true against the rangals, no rangal in this country would be safe" And where certain jamabandi papers prepared by fomer patieurs were produced in order to show the rent paid by the defendant during previous years, Phear, J., said "Had the former paticari come forward as a witness and sworn that he had collected rent from the defendant at the rate shown in the jamabandi and that the jamabandi was his own record of the fact, then this would have afforded very material evidence in support of the plaintiff's claim. but this man is not called, and his jamabandi papers without him are valueless"(5) Jamabandi papers for the year in respect of which rent is claimed, made out by the officers of the person claiming the rent, cannot be evidence of his right to that which they set forth; though the evidence of the jatuari (as being the officer usually charged with the duty of collecting rent) as to the amounts collected in previous years, corroborated by the jamabandis of those years, would be about as conclusive in respect of the claim as it well could be (6) But where the raights signed a jamabandi they were held to be bound by it (7) A tenant cannot be sued for enhanced rent upon a jamabandi to the terms of which he has not consented.(8) As to Jaibaki,(9) Ism-navisi,(10) Settlement Behavi

Gopal Mundul v. Adio Kissen 5 W R
 (Act A), 83 (1866)
 (2) Ib, at p. 84, but see Shib Pershad v. Pro-

<sup>(2)</sup> Ib., at p. 81, but see Shib Pershad v. Pershads Nath, 10 W. R., 193 (1868); and Below Khan v. Rash Behary, supra.

<sup>(3)</sup> beld, Ere, 4th Ed., Appendix, 739

<sup>(4) 14</sup> W. R., 474 (1871) S. C., 6 R. L. R. App., 62, and see Chamarace Bibee v. Ayrandah Sirdar, 9 W. R., 451 (1864).

<sup>(5)</sup> Rhugean Dutt v Shee Mungul 22 W R., 236 ((1874).

<sup>(6)</sup> Dhanockthere Saker v. Toomey, 20 W. R., 142 (1973); and see Kishore Disc v. Phrein Matter, 20 W. R., 171 (1973).

<sup>(7)</sup> Waterm & Co v Mohendra Nath, 23 W R v 436 (1875)

<sup>(8)</sup> Ensysteedah Meah v Nobo Coomar, 20 W R., 207 (1873), Reazonddeen Mahommed v Mc-Alpine, 22 W R. 540 (1874) both followed in Alphaga Kumar v Shama Chura, 16 C 556 (1889)

<sup>(9)</sup> Bordonath Parasyr v. Rusnel Lall, 9 W. B. 274 (1868) (10) Fergusson v. Government, 9 W. 18,7 158

<sup>(1868).</sup> Farquharom v. Dearthanath Sing, 8 B. L. R., 5/4 (1871). a. c., 14 M. I. A., 259; Erstine v. Government, 8 W. R., 232 (1867).

and Awargha,(1) Hastabud,(2) and Kanungo(3) papers, see cases cited below.(4)

Relevancy of entry in public record made in performance of duty. 35. An entry in any public or other official book, register, or record, stating a fact in issue or relevant fact, and made by a public servant in the discharge of his official duty, or by any other person in performance of a duty specially enjoined by the law of the country in which such book, register, or record is kept, is itself a relevant fact.

Principle.—The principle upon which the entries mentioned in this section are received in evidence depends upon the public duty of the person who keeps the book, register or record to make such entries after statistying himself of their truth. It is not that the writer makes them contemporaneously, or of his own knowledge, 65 for no person in a private capacity can make such entries (6). They are admissable though not confirmed by oath or cross-examination, partly because in some cases they are required by law to be kept and in all are made by authorized and accredited persons appointed for the purpose, and under the sanction of the official duty, partly on account of the publicity of the subject-matter, and in some instances of their artiquity. Moreover, though the facts stated in these entries are of a public nature, it would often be difficult to prove them by means of sworn witnesses.(7)

- ss. 65 (e), (f), 77 (Proof of public documents.)
  - . 74 (Definition of "public d ments.")
- 76,77 (Certified copies of public documents.)

78 (Proof of certain official documents)
79 (Genuineness of certified copies)

81 (Genumeness of documents directed to be kept by law.)

Public and Official books, registers, and records—Martiage Registers(8)—Acts VI of 1865 (Parn Marriage and Divorey), 88, 6, 8, and Schedule: III of 1872 (Non Christian Marriage), 88, 13, 13A, 14, and Schedule III, XV of 1872 (Christian Marriage)
88, 28, 30, 31, 32—37, 54, 62, 79, 80, and Schedules III, IV; 13 & 15 Vice, Cap. 40; Acts
VI of 1886 (Registration of Buths, Deaths, and Marriages), 87, 79, 22—33A; 1 of 1876
(B. C.) (Mahomomelan Marriages), 98, 74, 74, 75, 22, 25, 28, 32—35A, Registers or Records of Baptica, Naming, Dedication, Buriol —Act VI of 1886 (uppel), 88

Cetter or Records of Baptica, Naming, Dedication, Buriol —Act VI of 1886 (uppel), 88

Buncorry Lall v. Forlogg, 9 R R , 239 (1888).

<sup>(2)</sup> Ram Normag v. Tripman Sundurer, 9 W. R., 105 (1868).

<sup>(3)</sup> Khero Monee v. Beejoy Goland, 7 W. R., 531 1867). Nucl. Dustjut v. Tora Chand, 2 W. R. (Act. N), 13 (1863). Humkwath Charleshutty v. Tara Sondari, 8 W. R., 517 (1865).

<sup>(4)</sup> And v. Field, Ev., 217, 218

<sup>(5)</sup> The diction of Garth, C. J., which dynears to be to the contrary in Autoral Plan's. Disaped Stock, B. C., 474 (1882), was discented from in Models Howards v. Garth Classific, 20 C., 940 (1863), and is, it is submitted, opposed to the cision of the Privy Council in Letter f. Amer. Machine State, 744, 724, 723 (1879); cf. also acceptance of this principle in s., 10 A. of the acceptance of this principle in s., 10 A.

<sup>21</sup> of Act VI of 1886 (Registration of Births, Deaths, and Varriages), post, Deaths, and Marriages), post.

(6) Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 298; Deax. Asdrews, 15 Q B., 756, per Erle, J., Starla v. Freevid.

App. Cas., 624-644, Lyall v. Kennedy, 56 In T., 647, Leckraj Kuar v. Mahpal Singh, anti Starkie, Ev., 272, 273, Taylor, Ev., § 1591.
 ser remarks of Privy Council in Roja Bommaras, 219

Ranga samy Mudaly, 8 M 1. A. at p 249 (1825). Namar Islandh v. Juggul Kishori. 23 C., 370, 371.
 See also following repealed Acts t V of 1812

(Marriage by Registrate), sa. 41, 42, 48; XXV of 1864 (Marriage of Christians), V of 1865, s. 44 (Marriage of Christians).

<sup>(9)</sup> v. Akadem Als v. Tajimunnisea, 10 C., 607 (1881).

32-35A. Registers directed to be kept by the Indian Registration Act :- Act XVI of 1908 (Indian Registration), Part XL(1) Log-books :- Act I of 1859 (Merchant Seamen), ss. 103-108; 17 & 18 Vic , Cap. 104 (Merchant Shipping Act), ss. 280-285. Registers of Printing Presses, Newspapers and books published in India .- Act V of 1867 (Printing Presses and Newspapers), sa 6-8, and Part V; Registry of Copyright :- Act XX of 1847 (Copyright), ss. 3, 5, 6, 11, 14. Registers of Inventions and Designs(2) :-Act V of 1888 (Inventions and Designs), ss. 12-14, 52, 61 Registers of Literary, Scientific and Charitable Societies :- Act XXI of 1860 (Registration of Societies). Registers of Companies. - Act VI of 1882 (Indian Companies), ss. 47, 60, 68, 70; Part V and passim.(3) Register of British Ships :- Act X of 1841 (Ship Registry), 8. 4, 17 & 18 Vic., Cap. 104 (Merchant Shipping Act); Records of Rights -Act XVII of 1887 (Punjab Land Revenue); N.-W. P. Act III of 1901; (N.-W. P. Land Revenue) Settlement Record -Beng, Reg. VII of 1822, cl. 0, s. 9. Register of Tenures -Act II of 1869 (B. C.) (Chota Nagpur Tenure).(4) Registers -Act VII (B C.) of 1876 (" Bengal Land Registration.")(5) Registers of Common and Special Registry -Act XI of 1859 (Sales for Arrears of Revenue, Lower Provinces), Thirty-minth section (6).

Taylor, Ev., §§ 1591—1595, 1774—1780, Powell, Ev., 357—364, Roscoe, N. P. Ev., §§ 24—129, 209—216. Steph. Dir., Art. 34; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 298.

COMMENTARY

The Act does not contain any definition of either of the terms "public" "Public" or "official" or of a "public servant". but for the purposes of interpretation "Durist reference may be made to the seventy-fourth(7) and seventy-eighth sections, post, and to section 21 of the Penal Code in which the term "public servant" is defined. Certain Acts declare that the officer's appointed under them are to be deemed "public servants". Thus, every Registrar of Births and Deaths appointed under Act VI of 1886 is deemed to be a "public servant "within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.(8). So also are census officers,(9) and registering officers appointed under Act XVI of 1908.(10) It has been queried whether the section applies to an entry in a public register or record kept outside British India.(11)

This section in the main follows, but somewhat extends the English law on the same subject. (12) The book, register or record must either be a public

" public document " has been defined to be a document that is made for the

<sup>(1)</sup> See also repealed Acts AIII of 1871. AX of 1890 AVI of 1894. AI of 1851. AVIII of 1847. IV of 1845. VIX of 1843. I of 1843. and

ANA of 1838
(2) See also repealed Acts AV of 1859 (Patents)

and AHI of 1872 (Patterns and Designs)
(3) v. Ram Dass v. Official Liquidator 9 A., 368 (1887)

<sup>(4)</sup> v. Kirpol Narain v. Sulurmoni, 19 C., 99 Pertab Udai v. Mass Das. 22 C., 112 (1894)

<sup>(5)</sup> to post cases under this Act.
(6) Lukkynarain Chattopadkya to liorachand

Governy, 9 C., 118 (1882) (7) See Somer Insulh v. Juggal Kishire, 33

C., 366, 369 (1895).
(5) Act M of 1896, a 14 A manager of an estate employed under the Court of Wards has been held to be a public servant under the Penal Code, P v. Mathera Prasad, 21 A, 127 (1898), E v. Solhw, 28 A, 542 (1894), [Gorant]

<sup>(9)</sup> Act XVII of 1890 (Census) a 13 Not thetanding anything to the conterpy in E stence Act. Records of Census are not admissible in evidence in any civil proceeding or any proceeding under Chapters 12 or 36 of the Crimunal Procedure Code (Act XVII of 1892), 12)

 <sup>(10)</sup> Act XVI of 1948, a 84 (Indian Registration).
 (11) Possammal v Sundaram Iniliai, 23 M,
 499 (1940).

<sup>(12)</sup> r Feld, Er . 221

<sup>(13)</sup> Taylor, Ev., $1592a., and cases there c ted

<sup>(14)</sup> Sturia v. Freces, 5 App. Cas., 643

purpose of the public making use of it-especially where there is a judicial or quasi indicial duty to inquire. Its very object must be that the public, all persons concerned in it, may have access to it.(1) Registers kept under private authority for the benefit or information of private individuals are madmissible.(2) Two classes of entries are contemplated by this section : (a) by public servants, (b) by persons other than public servants. In the case of the latter the duty to make the entry must be specially enjoined by the law of the country in which the book, register, or record is kept (the section thus includes British, foreign or colonial register); (3) in the case of entries by the former it is sufficient for their admissibility that they have been inade in discharge of official duty. But in either case, as well in India as in England, the entry must have been made by a person whose duty it was to make it. Provision, however, is made by Act VI of 1886 for the admission m evidence under certain conditions of certain records and registers made otherwise than in the performance of a duty specially enjoined (4) (v. post) In England it has been held that the entries should be made promptly or at least without such long delay as to impair their credibility. Thus an entry made more than a year after the event has been rejected. (5) In India such delay will go to the weight of evidence only. Errors, crasures, alterations and minor irregularities affect the weight and not the admissibility of the entries (6) So also the fact that the entry is to the interest of the officer or body keeping the register (7) Where objection was taken to the reception in evidence of certain village-papers directed to be made by Reg. VII of 1822, on the ground that they were not prepared or attested by the Settlement Officer in person as required by law, the Privy Council said "When documents are found to be recorded as being properly made up and when they are found to be acted upon as authentic records, the rule of law is to presume that everything had been rightly done in their preparation unless the contrary appears."(8)

Documents

In the last case it was also held, on the question whether there did or did held admis sible or not not exist a custom in the Bahrulia clan in Oudli excluding daughters from inheriting, that entries in a wantb-ul-arz were properly admitted to prove this custom, this custom being a usage of the kind which Settlement Officers were required by Reg. VII of 1822 to ascertam and record.(9) A wajib-ul arz being an official village-record is always admissible in evidence, though its weight may be very slight or considerable according to circumstances (10) A wanb-ul-arz prepared

<sup>(1)</sup> Study v Freeco, 6 App Cas , 643

<sup>(2)</sup> Taylor, Es , $ 1592s, and cases there ested See Basy Nath v. Sukhu Mahton, 18 C . 534 (1891)

<sup>(3)</sup> With regards to the books recognised as official registers and public documents in England, see Taylor, Ev , 1596s Roscor, N P Ev . 124-129, 209-216; m particular as to births, deaths and marriages in India, up 127, 128

Rateleff v Rateleff, 1 Sw. & Tr., 487, Queen's Proctor v Fru. 4 P. D. 230, 14 & 15 Va , Cap 40, a. 11, 42 & 43 Vic , Cap 8

<sup>(4)</sup> Act VI of 1886 (Regretration of Births, Daths, and Marriages), s. 35

<sup>(5)</sup> The v Beay, 8 B & C., 813.

<sup>(6)</sup> Lyell v. Acanedy, 14 App. Cas., 437. As so the correction of errors in registers under Act 11 of 1850, r. a 28 of that Act. (7) Sturla v. Fereria, 5 App Cas. 843; Irich

Servely v. Deery, 12 C. & E., 641. (8) Lelray Kuar v. Makpal Singh, 5 c . 752

<sup>(9)</sup> It A want almet is primit facie explenee of customs its object is to supply a record of exesting local custom see the following cases -Ists Singh v Gunga, 2 A , 878 (1880); Muhammad Havan , Munna Lal, 8 A. 434 (1888); Declinandon v Sri Ram, 12 A. 257 (1889). Superundhwaja Prasad v Garurudhwaja Prasad, 15 A , 147 (1893) , Uma Parsad 4. Gandharp Singh, 15 C 20 (1887) , Sadhu Sahu v. Raja Ram, 16 A . 40 (1894) , Garurudhwaja Pramid v. Superundhwuja Pramd, 5 C W. N , 33 (1900); s c , 3 1.37, H. Nastr & Manik Chand, 25 A. 90 (1902), Ram Surup v Setal Prasad, 1 All, L. J. 278 (1984), s c, 26 A, 549. [Entrus in sca) th ular. Entry primit farse evidence under this section of existence of custom); Cokul Dichit v. Maharaj Inchit, 2 All L. J., 790 (1905). Marsemat Lall v. Murls Dhar, 10 C. W. N., 730, P. C. 8 Bon., 402

<sup>(10)</sup> Mahammad Imam v Surdae Husson, 2

C. W. N., 737 (1898)

and attested according to law is prima facic evidence of the existence of any custom of pre-emption which it records. It is a document of a public character which is prepared with all publicity, and accepted by the Courts as sufficiently strong evidence of the existence of any custom recorded in it so as to cast upon parties denying the custom the burden of proof.(1) In the undermentioned case it was held that upon a question of custom a want-ul-arz is generally more valuable as a record of opinion of persons presumably acquainted with the custom, than as an official record of the custom; but if duly attested by Settlement officials and signed by zemindars of the village to which it relates it may be admitted in evidence under this section.(2) In a suit for possession of a fishery. an admission made by the defendant's predecessor in title in a written statement filed in a previous suit was allowed to be proved under this section by the production of the decree in such previous suit, it being the duty of the Court under the old practice of Mofussil Courts to enter in the decree an abstract of the pleadings in each case.(3) Quinquennal papers were rejected by the Lower Court : the latter was ordered to take these into consideration on the remand of the case (4) Revenue-registers in the Madras Presidency, judgments, and other public records were admitted in Byathamma v. Atulla. (5) The measurement papers prepared by Butwara Ameen do not,(6) but chittahs of the revenue-ficate is neither a book nor a register, nor a record kept by any officer in accordance with any law, but is a certificate, as it professes to be, of which there is only this one, and which is not a public record or register of any kind, but is a document issued to a particular person giving to that particular person, and only to him, a particular kind of authority. It is no evidence of minority under this section.(8) A tess khana register (so called from the number of columns in the statement or register) prepared by a paticari under rules framed by the Board of Revenue under section 166 of Regulation XII of 1817, is not a public document. nor is the patware preparing the same a public servant. It is a document prepared in the zemindar's sherista by the paticari who is paid by the zemindar but approved by the Collector. These registers are no doubt kept for the information of the Collector, but that does not make them binding as official records of the facts contained in them. (9) Copies of judgments have been admitted under this section. (10) Statements of facts made by a Settlement Officer in the column of remarks in the dharepatral are admissible as being entries in a public record stating facts, and made by a public servant in the discharge of his official duty; but the opinion of the survey-officer as evidenced by the effect of the dharcpatrak and the place assigned to the defendant's ancestor in it, the survey-officer not being at that time invested with authority to decide questions of tenure between the khot and his tenants, is not, even if regularly recorded admissible.(11) A statement of a witness to a police-officer under the provisions

<sup>(1) 4</sup>h Nanh v. Wansk Chand, 25 A . 90, 96 (1902)

<sup>(2)</sup> Mummat Parkats Kuar s Rum Chandrapal Kuar, 8 O. C., 94

<sup>(3)</sup> Parbutty Disen v. Purno Chunder, 9 C., 586 (1883), followed in Byathamma v. Arulla, 15 M., 23 (1891) and Thama . Ausdan, 15 M., 378. of Subramanyan v Parawasmaran, 11 M., 12 (1887)

<sup>(4)</sup> Shooks Bhusun v. Grook Chunder, 20 C. P42 (1493)

<sup>(5) 15</sup> M , 24, 25, supra (6) Medi Choudhury v Diero Messmin, 6 C

L R , 139 (1880)

<sup>(7)</sup> Grandra Chandra . Rajendra Nath, 1 ( W N . 530 533 (1897)

<sup>(8)</sup> Satis Chunder v Mehenden Lat 17 C . 849 (1890) followed in Gunjra huar v Allakk Pande, 18 4 . 478 (1896)

<sup>(9)</sup> Easy Nath v Nulku Makton, 18 C. 534 (1891), followed in Somer Danish v Jegullings Singh, 23 1 , 356 (1695). (10) Krisknasami Aysensgar v. Pajagspala Ayyanger, 18 M , 73, 78 (1695). (11) Madkarran Appays v. Donal, 21 B., 195

<sup>(1596).</sup>

of section 162 of the Criminal Proceduce Code, reduced to writing, is not a record within the meaning of this section.(1)

In a case in which the question was a .... of a englomary right and certain reports of former Collectors of le under sections 10 and 11 of Mad. Reg. VII of te Privy Council said -- "Their Lordships think it must be conceded that when these reports express opinions on the private ric be regarded as having judicial authority of he officers made in the course of duty a entitled to great consideration, so far as ceedings and historical facts, and also in so far as they are relevant to expusit the conduct and acts of parties in relation to them and the proceedings of the Government founded upon them."(2) A single document may be a public record within the meaning of this section, and a report made by District Officer in the discharge of his duty as such officer is accordingly admissible in evidence. (3) A document purporting to be a certified copy of a will taken from the Protocol

Proof by Public Re cord. If the entry states a relevant fact, then the entry having stated that relevant fact, the entry itself becomes by force of the section a relevant fact; that is to say, it may be given in evidence as a relevant fact, because heing made by a public officer or other person in performance of a special duty it contains an entry of a fact which is relevant (5) The entry is evidence, though the person who made it is alive and not called as a witness. For the proof of public and official house the state of the person who may be primal fact.

**Note: Though the register may be primal fact.

**Hough Though the register may be primal fact.

**Hough Though the register may be primal fact.

of Record in Cevion was held not to be admissible under this section.(4) and the statements in them may or remaining

Facts of which pub lic records are evidence This section does not make the public book evidence to show that a part lan.

or of matters entered by a puom. a.c., y [10]. But entries of matters which there is no duty to record are madmissible [11]. Where a husband and wife (Mikhonmedans) registered their marriage under Bengil Act I of 1876, setting out in the form prescribed in Schedule A to the Act, as a "special condition" that the wife under certain circumstances therein set out might divorce her husband, it was held in a suit by the husband that the

<sup>(1)</sup> Inth Mandal v. R., 5 C W N., 65 (1900). n c., 24 C., 348

<sup>(2)</sup> Mutta Ramlinga v. Perionnyagum Pillas, 1 I. V. 201, 238, 239, see Leilannad Singh v. Musammat Lakhputtee, 22 W. R., 231 (1874), in which a terooft was rejected.

<sup>(3)</sup> Roman v. Secretary of State, 11 Mad. L. J., 115 (taken from headnote of Digest, report not being to hand).

<sup>(4)</sup> Ponnammal v. Sundaram Pulai, 23 M., 449, 503 (1914) (5) Lebraj Kuar v. Mahjal Singh, 5 C., 754.

l'arhatts Dissi v. Purna Chunder, aute (6) Bam Das v. Official Loyusdates, 9 A , 3 % (7) Letroj Kuar v. Mahpal Singh, 5 C , 785 does not extend to entries which a Public Office is not expected to and is not permitted to make Ab Near v. Monit Chand, 25 A, at p. 104, the presumption as to truth and accuracy cannot be extended to entries which were never intended to find a place in the record. 10, at p. 103

<sup>(8)</sup> In the matter of Jappin Lall, 7 C. L. R. 756 (1884), and see R. v. Gress Chander, 10 C. 124 (1884), Ab. Nauer v. Manil. Chand. 25 A. 90 (1992).

(P) Doe d. France v. Andrews, 15 Q. B., 756; Roscov, N. P. Ev., 124

<sup>(119</sup> Cf. Lekraj Kuor v. Mahpal Singh, ante, and Parksity Dassi v. Purno Chunder, ante (11) Lyell v. Kennedy, supra. The section does not extend to entries which a Public Officer.

"special condition" was a matter which, under the provisions of the Act, it was the duty of the Mahommedan Registrar to enter in the register, and that, therefore, a copy of the entry in the register was legal evidence of the facts therein con'ained.(1) An entry of a particular fact is none the less evidence, though the person enjoined to make that entry has no personal knowledge of that fact, as where it is reported to him.(2)

The admissibility of this class of evidence does not depend upon personal knowledge (v. ante). And so when the manner, in which certain vapib-ul-arari (or village-papers), directed to be made by Regulation VII of 1822, were made up with respect to a custom, appeared to be that the officer recorded the statements of persons who were connected with the villages in the paragina in which the talug in suit was situated, and objection was taken to their reception in evidence on the ground that they were not prepared or attested by the Settlement Officer in person, as required by

of them did not show that the information they received, it w

the papers had been prepared and attested by officers subordinate to the Settlement Officer, and that the fact that the officers recorded these statements and attested them by their signature amounted to an acknowledgment by them that the information they contained was worthy of credit, and gave a true description of the custom (3)

In Sarascati Dass v. Dhanpat Singh, (4) Garth, C. J., said that he thought that entries in a register made by the Collector under Ben. Act VII of 1876 (Bengal Land Registration) could never be evidence of title nor even of possession, except perhaps in the case of entries made under the fifty-fifth section, (5) and that he understood this section (section 35) to relate to that class of cases where a public officer has to enter in a register or other book some actual fact which is known to him, as for instance, the fact of a death or marriage, but that the entry that any particular person is the propered of certain land, is not, properly speaking, the entry of a fact but is a statement that the person is entitled to the property, and is the record of a right, not of a fact, (6). But in a subsequent case, (7) in which the plaintiffs tendered in evidence extracts from the authority of Sarasuati Dasi v. Dhanpat Singh, it was held (dissenting from the dictum of Garth, C. J., which, it was pomted out was not assented to by Field, J., and was opposed to the decision of the Privy Council in Lethray Kuar v. Mahpat Singh), (8) that the entires being of matters which it was the Collector's duty to record, and in the form directed by the law to be kept, certified copies thereof were admissible in evidence quantum valcant. (9) In the undermentioned case, (10) the Count said with regard to these entires' as evidence of ownership their value may be, and I think is, very small, but it is impossible to say that

ŧ

(I) Khadem Ali v Tajimunima 10 C , 690

<sup>(2)</sup> Doe v. Andrews, supra., per Gartli C. J., contra (v. post)

<sup>(3)</sup> Leleng Kuar v. Makpal Singh, supra, 751, 753

<sup>(4) 9</sup> C., 431

<sup>(5)</sup> Act VII of 1876 (B. C.), which provides for cases in which there is a dispute between two persons. As to which is entitled to be registered, and the Collector has to ascertain which of those betroug to in hossession

<sup>(6)</sup> Samunati Dasi v. Ishanpat Singh, supra, 434, 435, and see Ram Bhusan v. Jelli Mahto, 8 C., 853 (1982).

<sup>(7)</sup> Shooks Bhowsum v Greek Chunder, 20 C., 940 (1893)

<sup>(8) 5</sup> C. 744
(9) Shooks Bhusun v Grick Chunder, supra,

<sup>942.</sup> (10) Gungamoyre Debs v. Ayurba Chandra, Sait 632 of 1901, Cal. H. C., 28 Nov., 1902.

they are not evidence, and I therefore admitted them."(1) It has been held in Damhar that a Collector's book is kept for purposes of revenue not for purposes ---- in the Collector's books lish that person's title, purporting to be so entered of of the factor, A certified copy of certain registers of marriage made otherwise than in performance of a special duty is admissible under Act VI of 1886 for the purpose of proving the marriage to which the entry relates (7) The solemnization of a marriage Datish India may be proved in England by the production

Registrar is admissible lot to which the entry relations, the same purpose. A certified copy of certain registers of birth, baptism, naming, dedication, death or burial made otherwise than in performance of a special duty, is admissible under Act VI of 1886 for the purpose of proving the birth, baptism, naming, dedication, death or burial to which the entry relates (12) The register of members of a Company is prima facie evidence of any matters Y ... Commanies Act directed or authorized, to be inserted therein. [13] -1 --ne and report.(1b) The number of an

(1) Per Henderson, J .- The value of these entries (which have frequently been admitted in other cases) must to some extent depend upon the circumstances proved In the case cited, the following documents were admutted -Collectorate Registers, Registers under the Land Registration Act, Land resenue challans, Muniemal Bills, Collectorate Bill Registers, Mutationproceedings, Assessment Register of Calcutts Municipality and pottah granted by Government. As to the nature of the latter, we Freeman v. Fairle, 1 M. I. A , 330, 338 346

such tings

<sup>(2)</sup> Falma v. Durya, 10 Bom. H C. R., 187 (1873) : Eharon v. Bapun, 13 B . 75 (1888) . Eile Kharer v. Bile Rukha, 8 Rom L. R., 983 (1904). (3) Act VI of 1886 (Registration of Births, Draths, and Marriages), s 9 (4) Act XV of 1865 (Parti Marriage and Di-

TOTOT), ME. E R.

<sup>(5)</sup> Act III of 1572 (Non Christian Marriage).

<sup>** 13, 14</sup> (6) Act XV of 1872 (Christian Marriage), pt.

<sup>79, 80</sup> (7) Act 11 of 1886, s. 35 [As to Mahommedan marriages, v Act I of 1876 (B C.), and Aladem

Als v Tajimunissa, ante] (8) Westmarett , Westmarett, P. D (1899).

<sup>183</sup> s c , 3 C W N, cxla

<sup>(9)</sup> Lyell . Aennely, 14 App Can , 437, 448 (10) In the cutate of Mary Goodrich (decease), Payne v Bennett (1904), 1 K. B , 139, dies from In ee Bintle, L R , 9 Eq , 373. See 1 All I. J.

<sup>(11)</sup> Act 11 of 1886, a D.

<sup>(12) /6 . # 35</sup> (13) Act VII of 1882 (Indian Companies), 4 60), Ram Das v Official Liquidator, aute.

<sup>(14)</sup> Act VI of 1862, a. 54.

<sup>(15) 76 .</sup> s. 67.

roceedings.(1) When a Company is being any and liquidators are, as between the the truth of all matters purporting to be under section 52 of the Indian Registra-

e of proving the contents of the original eclaration under the Printing Presses and News-papers Act is prima facic evidence that the person whose name is subscribed to such declaration was printer or publisher of the periodical work mentioned in the declaration.(1) A certified copy of an entry in the book of Registry of Copyright is prima factor proof of the proprietorship or assignment of copyright or license as therein expressed (5) An entry in the register of Inventions and Designs will be relevant under the section.(6) Certified copies of documents of Literary, Scientific and Charitable Societies filed with the Registrar are prima facie evidence of the matters therein contained.(7) Certified and scaled copies of proceedings taken and had under the Insolvent Debtors Act are, without proof of seal or other proof whatsoever, sufficient evidence of the same. (8) Entries in registers prescribed to be kept by the various Municipal Acts, and the proceedings of Municipal Committees recorded in accordance with the provisions of the particular Act applicable thereto, will also be relevant under this section, as also will all other entries in any public and official books, registers and records, directed to be kept by any law for the time being (v. ante, Cognate References to Section and Appendix). In England it has been considered doubtful how far a register can be received to prove incidental particulars concerning the main transaction even where these are required by law to be included in the entry.

It is said that if such particulars are necessarily within the knowledge of the Registering Officer they will be admissible, otherwise they seem to be evidence only when expressly made so by Statute (9) But it is submitted from a consideration of the words of the section and on the authority of the cases previously cited, that (even where not so expressly declared) a public register in India is evidence of all particulars required by law to be inserted therein, whether they relate to the main or incidental fact or transaction. Under this section a statement made by a Survey Officer, in a Village Register of Lands, that the name of this or that person was entered as occupant would be admissible, if relevant, but it would not be admiss ble to prove the reasons for such an entry as facts in another case (10) So also statements of facts made by a Settlement Officer in the column of remarks in the dharepatrak but not his reasons for the same feven though they may consist of statements of collateral facts, which it was no part of his duty to inquire into) are admissible in evidence.(11)

The identity of the parties named in the register must be proved indepen-Proof of dently. Thus in the case of a register of marriage, as the register affords no proof parties of the adentity of the name of the identity of the parties, some evidence of that fact must be given, as by named calling the minister, clerk or attesting witnesses or others present, the hand-

<sup>(1)</sup> Act VI of 1882, a 92 (2) 16 . . 198

<sup>(3)</sup> Act AVI of 1908, a 57 Sec also Act VII of 1876 (B. C.) (Bengal Land Registration), Ram Elusur v Jelli Makto, 8 C., 853 Samewate Pare v. Ishanpat Singh, Shooks Bhiovan v Girish Chander, ante

<sup>(4)</sup> Act XXV of 1867 , se 7, 8

<sup>(5)</sup> Act XX of 1847, a 3.

<sup>(6)</sup> Act V of 18x8 (Inventions and Designs),

<sup>40 14 61 (</sup>b) (7) Act XXII of 1800 (Pegistration of Literary, Scientific and Charitable Societies), s. 19 (5) 11 & 12 Vic , Cap 21 a 74, and see a 78

<sup>(9)</sup> Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 301, Doe v. Barnes, IM & R. 386. Huatley v Donoran, 15 O B 96 (10) Gorandray Deshmuth v Ragho Deshmuth. * B , 547 (1884) , followed in Madharran Appays Donal, 21 B. 695 (1896). as to Collecters' books as evidence of title, v. Falma v. Darya Saleb 10 Bom H C Rep. 187 (1873), Blazas v Bapun, 13 B , 75 (1888).

<sup>(11)</sup> Madherron Appen v. Decemb, 21 B , 605

<sup>(1633).</sup>

writing of the parties may be proved.(1) To prove the handwriting of the parties in the register, it is not necessary to produce the original register for that purpose, but the witness may speak to the handwriting in it without producing (2) A photographic bleness may often be used for the purpose of identification: this is constantly done in actions for divorce,(3) and has been even allowed in a Crimnal trial. So where a woman was tried for biganty, a photograph of her first husband was allowed by Willes, J., to be shown to the witness present at the first mortrage, in order to prove his identity with the person mentioned in the certificate of that marriage,(1)

Relevancy of statements in maps, charts and plans 36. Statements of facts in issue or relevant facts, made in published maps or charts generally offered for public sale, or in maps or plans, made under the authority of Government, as to matters usually represented or stated in such maps, charts or plans, are themselves relevant facts.

Principle.—This section includes two classes of maps: (a) published maps or charts generally offered for public sale, and (b) maps or plans made under the authority of Government. The admissibility of the first class depends on the ground that the publication being accessible to the whole community.

ie ground that taken to have been made by, and to be the result of, the study or inquiries of competent persons and further (in the case of surveys and the like), they contain or concern matters in which the public are interested. (6)

- 9. 3 (" Fact in issue.")
- s. 3 (" Relevant.")
- 4. 3 (A map or plan is a "doccument")
  8. 75 (13), (Reference to maps by (part.)
- 4. 71.77 (Proof of public documents.)
  - 83 (Presumption of accuracy in case of Government maps or plans.)

 83 (Proof of maps or plans made for the purpose of any cause.)

- s 87 (Presumption as to any published man or chart.)
  - 11 tished map or chart.)

    90 (Presumption as to map or plant
    30 years old.)

Taylor, Ev., §§ 1674, 1767—1773, 1777. Starkie, Ev., §§ 284—291, 404—408; Ro-coe, N. F. Ev., 194—196; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 313; Steph, Dir., Art, 35.

COMMENTARY.

Maps. Charts and

This section is a considerable extension of the English rule (7) In the well-known English case of R, v. Orton, maps of Australia were given in evidence to show the situation of So also in the case of  $P\alpha$

<sup>(1)</sup> Roscie, N. P. Ev. 124

<sup>(2) 1</sup>h. · Sayer v. 6d map 2 Exch , 469.

<sup>(1)</sup> In Marine v Marine, 2 C. W. N. Ixvii (1897), the responds a mass skintful to her photograph. However in Fred v. Farth, L. P. D. (1896), 74, it was held that in matrix-modul cases, except under very agentl circumstances the court will not act upon slentth ation by a photograph only.

<sup>(4)</sup> Roscov, N. P. Ev., 124, R. v. Telem, 4 F. & L., 103.

<sup>(5)</sup> Field, Et., 224.

<sup>(6)</sup> C/ Taylor, Ev., $ 1767

<sup>(7)</sup> v Taylor, Ev., §§ 1770, 1771, Steph Diz. Art. 35
(8) Steph Dig., Art. 35, p. 47, note and for * recent case on admissibility of railway maps see Else d Deschamps v. Red Mountain Railway Co., P. C. (1919), A. C., 361.

<sup>(9) 2</sup> B. L. R. (P C ), 111 (1869); a. c., 12 W. R. (P. C ), 6.

<sup>(10)</sup> Ib , at p. 139

A mahalwari man is relevant under this section.(1) As to the rule that mans drawn for one purpose are not admissible in a suit for another purpose, see Note to section 83. The maps and plans made under the authority of Government referred to in this section are (as has also been held in the case of section 83) maps or plans made for public purposes such as those of the survey which have been in numerous cases referred to and admitted in evidence (v. post). The provisions of the section are not applicable to a map made by Government for a particular purpose, which is not a public purpose, such as the settlement of the silted bed of a certain river.(2) The statements must be as to matters usually represented or stated in such maps; i.c. (generally, speaking), in the first class of maps, the physical features of the country, the names and positions of towns, and the like; and in the second class, not only such features but also boundaries of villages, estates and (in khasra maps) fields.(3) In a case decided under the 13th section the corresponding section of Act II of 1855, it was held that "Government survey-maps are evidence, not only with regard to the physical features of the country depicted, but also with regard to the other circumstances which the Officers deputed to make the maps are sectially commissioned to note down; and that an ordinary Government survey-map was for this reason evidence as to the boundaries of any plots or estates which stand under a separate number in the Collector's books. Further than this, they are not evidence as to rights of ownership."(4) In the first(5) of the undermentioned cases, pencil memoranda on a Government survey-map were held to be admissible, and the second (6) the Court observed with reference to a chart of the River Hooghly -" The chart to which I have already referred is issued under the authority of Government and the notes thereon may be referred to as authoritative. I find one note which is worthy of attention worded thus. Owners of vessels are strongly advised not to risk their vessels laving at anchor awaiting orders at the Sandheads between the months of April to November inclusive. Vessels are recommended to go into Saugor Roads where there is a safe anchorage and telegraph station." The record of the proceedings and the maps of the survey being public documents, are provable by means of certified copies. (7) Maps or plans made by Government are to be presumed to be accurate, but maps or plans made for the purpose of any cause must be proved to be so. (8) This provision refers to maps or plans made by Government for public purposes only, a map made by Government for a particular purpose which is not a public purpose may be admissible, but its accuracy must be proved by the party producing it (9) The Court may, however, presume that any published map or chart, the statements of which are relevant facts, was written and published(10) by the person, and at the time and place by whom or at which it purports to have been written or published. The Court may resort for and to maps as documents of reference (11) The presumption ans as well as to any Thirteenth section,

the present section is silent as to-maps made under the authority of any public municipal body.

- (3) Whiteley Stokes, Vol. 11, p. 878
- (4) Koomodinee Daloa v. Pourno (hunder, 10) W. R., 300 (1868).
- (5) Shame Mouther & Beammares Deber, 10 W R., 343 (1848).
  - (6) In the matter of the German S S . Prack-
- (7) Ss 74-77, post
- enfels, 27 C , 860, 871 (1962) (%) $ 83, part
- (9) Kanto Prashad . Jajut ( handra, 23 ( ... 335 (1895)
- dm S. 87 post (11) S 57, per
- (12) Se 3, Illust. antr. and 9), post. See Mal-Late Sundari v Garanenda Anth. b C. H. A. 111, 113 (1994).

<sup>(1)</sup> Madhabs Sunface & Gajanend's Nath, 9 C. W. N., 111, 113 (1904) (2) Kanto Prochad v Jajat Chandra, 23 C.,

Survey maps as evidence of possession.

There are numerous decisions as to the true effect and value which should be assigned to survey-man-(1) in evidence "If these cases are carefully examined, it will be found there is no real conflict of decisions between them -reasonable allowance being made for observations, which were directed, not to the consideration of a general proposition, but to the particular facts of the case which happened to be at the time before the Court. (2) A survey in the provinces is not made under the authority of any enactment of the Legislature It is a nurely executive not. At the same time the proceedings of the Sarrerauthorines have been recognized by the Leuslature and are referred to in lit IX of 1847 (Assessment of New Lawts) (3) The co-operation of the parties is terested in the measurement is required to be sought by the Survey Officers It is reasonable to presume that the parties were present at, and had notice cl. the -urver proceeds 1- 14. If the ourver was effected in due course, it was made on notice and in the absence of evidence to the contrary, the survey must be pre-umed to have been rightly carried out. The survey-man therefore is endence between the parties quantum s were (5). That it is good evidence of posses sion has been declared by many do stone in When the question is simply one of title and the available evidence is proof of possession at a particular period. survey-man is and ought to be most care they dence (7) But it is not condasive evidence of possession (* A survey-map is evidence of possession at perricular time the time at shich the surser was made (9)

But evidence of possession honever short is evidence of title and if evidence of possession they are absorberators evidence of title, (10). There are some eases which seem to imply the contrary, (11). "But the proposition which is be defined from all the cases is this; a surver-man is not direct evidence of title.

ii Far a description of the maps of the Tingenometrial Survey, debtine (housing mark) and Happer (defaulted measurements rapped and Happer (defaulted measurements rapped and Happer (defaulted and Tinata). As the markets of Landfield and Trantal." As to map other than from of the rattery, see Januarity Maried v. Dereckson's Myro, S.C., 250, 11970. January American Myro, S.C., 250, 12970. January Myro, and V. Japper Cherden, 20 C., 255, (1982). And Nate to as St., and market of abelien, J. in Pattern of Euclosian St. 1982, See Marier, 2 W. R., 211, 212, 1985.

(2) Nobo Corman v. Gland Chander, 9 C. L. R. (1991), per Field, J., at p. 30.

(3) B., or also Act XXXI of 1858 (Albaria) Lands, Bengali, IV of 1858 (R. C.); V (E. C.) of 1867 (Bengal Surrey).

(4) Eam Narola v. Mulcal Cavedor, 19 W. Eu. 202 (1973).

(I) Fadla Chordenia v. Giredlare Salm, 20 11, E., 243 (1873)

(6) Gan Maner, Hare Kiden, 10 W. E., 233 [Soc.); Shear Modler & Ensement Delice, 15 Sensement Delice, 15 Sensement Delice, 10 W. E., 241 (1981); Publish Sen r. Endle North, 2 E. L. E. (P. C.), 10 (1982); Goldstein Laurie et Terr Clark, 15 W. E., 3 (1871); Palla Clarker et Goldstein et Girectard Schot, 20 W. E., 20 (1971); Aberla Kalaser Ever, Lend Soc., 20; W. E., 27 (1971); Jupichi Candor v. Zonde Kharen, 25 W. E., 24 (1970); Proceedings of the Conduct Kharen, 25 W. E., 24 (1970); Proceedings of the Conduct Kharen, 25 W. E., 24 (1970); Maneric Candor v. Land Margare Bask, 25 W. E., 45 (1970); Maneric Candor v. Land Margaret Bask, 25 W. E., 45 (1970); Maneric Candor v. Land Margaret Bask, 25 W. E., 45 (1970); Maneric Candor v. Land Margaret et al. (2012); Palla Philosophed et al. 5 C., 25 (1970); Maneric et al. (2012); Palla Philosophed et al. 5 C.

2003. Syam Latt v. Lachman Chrestey. 15 C-200 (1888). Joy'sra Irsesse v. Mohamed Mohards 8 C. 902 (1892); and me case cited, and solgent.

(7) March Charles v. Jugget Charles, 5 Co. 212 (1879), per Jackson, J., at p. 214

(8) Mahomed Meher v. Sheel, Parshall, 6 W. L. 257 (1956), and for a reason why it to not eremarks of the count in the aunce Cability Estarji v. Tars Chand, 15 W. L., 3 (1951) Process Chander v. Land Maripoge Dash, 25 W. Lin 453 (1956).

19: Spin Lall v. Lyckner Charling, 15 E-

323 (155) (10) Stanes Morther v. Binnengen Inder, 10 W. R., 343 (1854., per D. N. Mitter, J., at p. 34 Green Louded v. Lybrato Clauder, 6 W. L. C [1875], Comet Fatima v. Linia Gopal, 13 W. S. 50 (1870): Pom Norvin v. Modesh Charle L. H. R., 2d (1975); Popule v. Milhand Charles W. R., 36 (1876); Spam Lad v. Lorina Charetry, 25 W. 15 C., 253 (1564); Samuel Glove v. Sorniery of State, 22 C. 252 258 (164 Kriskes borge v. Liapowe, 20 B., 2700 (194). (11) Malema Chandra v. Rejlumer (Irle lary I E. L. E. (A. C.), 5 (156a), ["This dress of bowerer, must be understood with reference to the facts of that particular case, m what the award and the maje were the very subjects of Liceton" Field, Er., 224), Grammer ! Harry Linkson, 10 W. R., 228 (1858, 17 mar) Colorer at Population v. Irrapo Suplane. 2 W. IL, 216 (146), Jacker, J., doctors lepland in femal Farms s. Flatt Gigal, 15 W. F. 5

in the same way as a decree in a disputed cause is evidence of title, for the Survey-Officers have no jurisdiction to enquire into or decide questions of title. Their instructions are to lay down the boundary according to actual possession at the time; and this is what they do, ascertaining such actual possession as well as they can; and, if possible, by the admissions of all the parties concerned. A survey map is, therefore, good evidence of possession according to the boundary demarcated thereupon, and which may be taken to have been admitted by those concerned to be correct, regard being had to what has been said about the nature of this admission in each particular case. In several of the cases quoted this Court has (to my mind, very properly) refused to lay down any general rule as to the weight to be assigned to a survey-map as a piece of evidence : and in one case(1) a learned Judge of this Court declined to say whether in any particular case maps ought not to be corroborated by independent evidence. A survey-map is then direct evidence of possession; and with reference to particular circumstances of each case, the Courts must decide whether this evidence sumption of title."(2) And in of possession is i h Court said : "We are not Suam Lal Saha . prepared to sav of survey-maps be sufficient evidence of title. Each case must be decided upon its own merits." But though evidence of title, maps and survey-proceedings are not conclusive. (4) The Privy Council have in a recent decision held that maps and surveys made in India for revenue-purposes are official documents prepared by competent persons and with such publicity and notice to persons interested as to be admissible and valuable evidence of the state of things at the time they were made. They are not conclusive and may be shown to be wrong, but in the absence of evidence to the contrary they may be judicially received in evidence as correct when made (5) This decision was followed in the undermentioned case, (6) in which it was held that the object of the thak map being to delineate the various estates borne on the revenue-roll of the District, the entry in thak map that certain lands formed part of a certain estate becomes a relevant fact under this section, and such entries in that bust maps are evidence on which a Court may act. It is open to a Court to hold that the same state of things existed at the time of the permanent settlement. As to comparison of land with map. (7) and of thak map with survey-map (8) see the cases mentioned below. In the undermentioned case it was held that a thakbust manwas not only evidence but very good evidence as to what the boundaries of the property were at the time of the pernament settlement and also as to what they (by the admission of the parties) were in 1859, when the survey was made and maps prepared.(9) As to maps used in subsequent suit admitted to be correct in prior arbitration-proceedings (10) and as to the amount of accuracy to be expected in a thak map (11) see the undermentioned cases.

(1870), Ram Narain v. Mohol (Aunder, 19 W. R., 202 (1873), and in Moleck ('Aunder v Jupyut

Chander, 5 C , 212 (1979)1 (1) Ram Norman v. Modeck Chander, 19 W. R., <sup>202 (1973).</sup> (2) Anto Custor v. Grind Charles 9 C. L. R., per Field . J., at p. 34t.

<sup>(3) 15</sup> C. 353 (1888).

<sup>(4)</sup> Popuse v. Mohand Churder 23 W. 36 (1876) Lulest Nursia v Aurein Sings, 1 11 II., 333 (1965; Thomas Browns v. Thomas Lallist W R (1864), 120 Kowlash Chundery Ray Chan for (Sarrey-award), 12 W R., 140 (150);

<sup>(5)</sup> Jopedindra Nath v. Serverey at State 30 C. 201 (1975)

<sup>(6)</sup> this Hamily Kires Classics, 7 C. W. N.,

<sup>847 (1931,</sup> and see Taylor Dumer Stock v. Action Japanesi Single 1906 H. C. W. N., 250. (7) Eadle Charm v. Annual Sein 13 W. R.,

<sup>445 (1871).</sup> (*) Eura v Achesta & w 20 W R , 14 (1873) (9) Syrma Sundan v Japa Manda 16 C., 156 (155) or also Sattown Glass v. Secretary or State, 22 C , 252 255 (1994). Each it not been questioned it would have seemed almost unnecessary to state that oral evalence is sufferent to prove boundaries. Sand Soudane v. Pa-Hodra Kinkey, 9 11 1: 123 (150)

<sup>(10)</sup> Harmark Simer v. Present Simer, T.W. R., 249 (197) v Acre s. 33, extr

(II) Ren L'onnabier v. Ratou & Co., 4 C. 11 V. 113 (1991) L. L. II C. 256

And in a recent case where the ownership of land was disputed and the plaintiffi produced survey-maps of the year 1852-1853 and also a thabbut map which contained a statement supporting his case, and it was shown that the predecessor of the defendant had had full notice of the thak proceedings, it was held that the evidentiary value of the plaintiff's thalbust and survey-maps was greater than that of an unsupported survey-map of the year 1855-1856 produced by the defendant; and that the statements of zemindars or their agents contained in thalbust maps may amount to admissions that the land belonged to one village, and that such admissions should be greatly relied on as made at a time that the transport of the production of the statements of the production of the production of the plaintiff of the production of the production of the plaintiff of the production of the plaintiff of the production of the production of the plaintiff of the plaint

Evidential value of surveymaps when there was no dispute as to boundaries (1) " Thak maps are, as has been pointed out in many decisions of this Court, good evidence of possession, but the value of that evidence varies enormously. In the case of a thak map containing definite landmarks and undisputed boundaries signed by the parties of their accredited agents and representing and which has been brought under cultivation, and is in the possession of raivats whose names are known or can be discovered from the zemindary papers, a thak map is very valuable evidence of possession. But the value of such a map is greatly diminished when we find that there are no natural landmarks delineated thereupon : that the land was jungle when measured ; that the boundaries are not discoverable from a mere inspection of the map; and that neither the zemindars nor their agents have by their signatures admitted the correctness of the that."(2) "The officers engaged in survey-operations are required to seek the co-operation of the parties interested in the measurement. These parties are to be induced, if practicable to make themselves acquainted with the contents of the that and Lhasra plans, and to sign them or state their objections in writing. Persons who are familiar with what takes place in these provinces when Survey Officers commence operations in a locality are well aware that neighbouring proprietors do, as a rule, carefully watch their proceedings; and if the persons interested consider that the boundary demarcated by those officers between any two estates is incorrect, they take immediate and prompt action to object and to have the map rectified. We must then look at the matter somewhat in this way: The proprietor of estates have reasonable notice, and may be presumed to be well a care that the boundaries are about to be demarcated upon a map made by imperial Government Officers, and which is by consent and usage regarded as important evidence in cases of boundary dispute; they are invited to co-operate and to point out to the Survey Officers what they admit to be true boundaries between their estate: (3) If they or their agents point out the boundaries, and the ich is then correctness.

Dunne v. Diarens. Kanta Lakiri (1975) 33
 G. 621, and see Abdul Hamid Mian v. Kuran Chandra Roy (1993), 7 C. W. N., 842.

<sup>(2)</sup> Joyan Jaser v. Mahond Morret, S. C., W.S. pp Ph.M. at a p. S.J., et also Edit Cheedlens v. Geredlener Sako (condent of patter important), St W. P., 233 (1873); Erresent Cheedley v. Lett Meck, H. W. R., 374 (1873); Grand Cheedley v. Lett Meck, H. W. R., 374 (1874) (map and questioned); Present P. y. Kally Praket, H. W. R., 346 (1872) (map admitted to be corrett); Eddied Meka v. Geopt. Norie, 3 U. R., 113 (1874) (map not objected to,) and 5 C., 212, auto. Salvoni Globa v. Secretary of Make, 212, 212, 257 (1874).

<sup>(3)</sup> See remarks of Jackson, J., in Collector of Papeladope v. Inverpr Sundance, 2 W R., 211 (1865)

<sup>(4)</sup> IS, at p. 212. The map show that at the me of the energy, the Junith alone had claim to the hard and that no one dispring localism. Such a public assertion of a might of connecting as also, I think, important endence of his first. In the alone of domest influence, acts of ownership are the best proof of right. "In connection with the saley rist of this claim of orders, a. 13, cl. (0), and, should be kept in mind.

conies of chitabs and a field-book of the Survey Denartment, were received in evidence.(1) Bayley, J., remarking that these papers are the primary recordout of which a survey-map is made and are originally component parts of the map and evidence of the fact of demarcation of lands and properties measured and surveyed at or about the date of such map and for the purposes of the State and litigated oue-tions respectively that notice of their being made is issued to the parties, so that these records cannot be said to be made in the absence of parties; for legally they were present when they had the opportunity of being present. This was a decision under the 11th and 13th sections of Act II of 1855. but on the view there taken of the nature of chittahs they would also had been admissible under this section. But whether admissible or not under this section as component parts of maps or as plans, "a chittah of the revenuesurvey is a public record to: the record of public work carried on by a public officer-the Superintendent of Survey-under the directions of the Government of Bengal "(2) and is therefore admissible under the thirty-fifth section (3) Any chittah moreover if made by the persons and under the circumstances mentioned in the 18th section may be admissible under that section as documentary admissions or under the 13th section as an assertion of right.(1) The Privy Council in the case of Echowice Single v. Heeralall Scal. (5) speak of chittahs as no evidence of title in boundary disputes between rival proprietors when they are without further account, introduction or verification words," said Hobhouse, J., "it seems to me, their Lordships held that if chittahs are relied upon without any account given or verification made of them, then they are not to be considered as evidence, but here an account was given of the chittahs and that were properly introduced and verified, and therefor that remark of their Lordships does not seem to me to apply to the chitishs now before us. They were therefore, I think, properly used as evidence in this case "(6) "It may here be observed," says Mr. Field "that the reports do not always show what was the precise nature of the chittahs offered in evidence in each particular case; and to this may be attributable some of the difference of omnion which seems to prevail upon the subject in question. There is, and ought to be, a wide distinction as regards, both weight and admissibility, between the chitiahs and other measurement-papers of the revenue-survey of the country designed and carried out as an executive act of State the similar paper of a decennal survey made under the provisions of Act IX of 1847 (v. ante); the chittahe of a measurement of a particular thas mehal made by Government as cemindar; (7) the chillahs of a measurement made by a private zemindar(8) at a time when the relations between him and his rawats were friendly; and the chittaks of a measurement made by the same

(1) In the following cases: also survey chilidae, were reterred as evulence; Nadhhan Choodenna, Reymolan Rose, 3, B. L. L., (A. C.), 381 (1899). Molomoff Fedy. V. Ozorodelara, 10 W. R. 20, 10 (1898). Survey Tower V. Cubira Nuck, 2, W. R., 192 (1875); Torslawth Moderije v. Molomenna, 60 (1971), 13 W. P., 5, 61 (1870); Morderero, Mapher V. Rusandhar Roy, 22 W. R., 410 (1875); Amous Kir v. Amoushas (No. 1271) de 1871, Jeckelet on 28th Feb. 1872 by the Calvatta Bah Court (1974).

<sup>(2)</sup> Per Jackson, J., in Surrountly Issuer & I when Nami C4 W. B., 192 (1875)

<sup>(3)</sup> See Greader (Lanles v. Nogrademath (Latterjee, 1 C. A. N., 50), 533 (1897)

<sup>(4)</sup> See remarks of Jackson, J., in Collecter of Errolphys v. Jacque Seemdures, 2 M. R., 211, <sup>212 (1865); (</sup>v. post) Taylor, Et . 3 1770 C.

<sup>(5) 2</sup> B L R (P. C.), 4 (1868), a c , 11 W R (P. C.), 2.

<sup>(8)</sup> Sudukhina Choudrain v Rajmihan Bose, 3 B. L. R. (A. C.), 381 (1800). See Dinominal Choudrain v. Broj mohtni. Choudrain, 29. C., 201 (1901).

<sup>(7)</sup> New Junmappy Mulliel v. Dwarkunath Myter, 5 C., 287 (1875): Rain Chanler v. Bunserdhur Naik, 9 C., 741 (1883); Tarveknath Monkerjee v. Michaederinath Ghose, 13 W. 13., 56 (1870).

<sup>(8)</sup> As to children other than those of the survey, see fopal Chunder v. Madhab Chunder, 21 W. B., 29 (1874); Arishno Chunder v. Mer. Saldar, 22 W. B., 326 (1874); Alam Chund v. Rimbrado Bereils, 19 W. B., 200 (1873).

semindar when disputes had arisenas to enhancement of rents. If the original records of the reported cases were examined with reference to this distincton, it is more than probable that any seeming difference of opinion may be found reconcilable with sound and uniform principle."(1) Where children were produced by the property of th

when, with their assistance, a purtal (new, revised) measurement had been carried out in the village (2)

37. When the Court has to form an opinion as to the exist-Relevance of any fact of a public nature, any statement of it, made in a ment as recital contained in any Act of Parliament or in any Act of the Benard Governor-General of India in Council, or of the Governors in Council of Madras or Bombay, or of the Lieutenant-Governor in tions Council of Bengal, or in a notification of the Government appearing in the Gazette of India or in the Gazette of any Local Government, or in any printed paper purporting to be the London Gazette or the Government Gazette of any colony or possession of the Queen, is a relevant fact.

This section applies also to any Act of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council of the North-Western Provnices and Oudh, the Punjab, or Burma.(3)

Principle.—These documents are admissible on grounds similar to those on which entries in public records are received. They are documents of a public character made by the authorized agents of the public in the course of official duty and published under the authority and supervision of the State, and the facts recorded therein are of public interest and notoriety. Moreover, as the facts stated in them are of a public nature, it would often be difficult to prove them by means of sworn witnesses.(4)

s. 3 (" Fact.") s. 78 (Proof of Notifications.)

s. 3 (" Relevant.") s. 81 (Presumption as to Gazettes, News-

E. 57 (2) (Judicial notice of Acts.) papers and Private Acts )

Steph. Dig., Art. 33; Taylor, Ev., § 1660; Starkie, Ev., 278; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 187, 188; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 294; 31 & 32 Vic., Cap. 37 (The Documentary Evidence Act, 1868, amended by the Documentary Evidence Act, 1852); Act I (Mad.) of 1867, s. 7 (recital in any Act of the Governor in Council of a public nature is primal finite evidence of the fact recited): Act XXXI of 1863 (Gazette of India): 11 & 12 Vic., Cap. 21, s. 82 (Insolvent Debtors): Act XXII of 1879, s. 5 (Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition).

COMMENTARY.

The fact us to the existence of which the Court has to form an opinion must Recitals to the of a public nature. A similar expression occurs in section 42, post, which foliage speaks of "matters of a public nature." (5) The Gazette of India, the organ of tions

(3) Added by a. 2, Act V of 18'r)

Field, Ev., 226
 Debte Pershad v. Ram Coomar, 10 W. R., et seq.

<sup>443 (1868). (5)</sup> v. Notes to ss. 13, 32 (1', sale and 42, post-

the Government of India, was first published in 1863 only. Previous to that date the notifications of the Government of India were published in such of the Gazettes of the Local Governments as was necessary. By Act XXXI of 1863 publication in the Gazette of India was declared to have the effect of publication in any other Official Gazette in which publication was prescribed by the law in force at the date of the passing of the Act.(1) In the case of the R. v. Amiruddint2) the Gazette of India and the Calcutta Gazette containing official letters on the subject of hostilities between the British Crown and Mahomedan fanatics on the frontier were held to have been rightly admitted in evidence under the sixth and eight sections (3) of the repealed Act II of 1855 as proof of the commencement, continuation and determination of hostilities. It was further held that it was not necessary that these documents should be interpreted to the prisoner. It was sufficient that the purposes for which they were put in were explained In the subsequent trial of the Wahabi conspirators at Patna. the Gazette was used in evidence for a similar purpose (4) According to the English rule a recital in a public general Act is in general prima facie, but not conclusive, evidence of the facts regited, because in judgment of law every subject is privy to the making of it but a private Statute (though it contains a clause requiring it to be judicially noticed as a public one) is not evidenced at all against strangers either of notice, or of any of the facts recited.(5) The present section draws no distinction between public and private Acts of Parliament, merely requiring that the fact spoken to in either should be of a public nature; but of course neither in the case of the Acts nor of the Gazelles in the section mentioned is any recital therein contained conclusive of the fact recited unless expressly declared to be so and knowledge of a fact although it be of a public nature is not to be conclusively inferred from a notification in the Gazette it is a question of fact for the determination of the Court.(6)

By Statute the Gazette has been expressly evidence of various matters

Thus by the Documentary Evidence Act(7) the Gazette is made prima facie evidence of any proclamation, order, or regulation, issued by Her Majesty, the Privy Council or any of the principal departments of State. So also, by section 82 of the Insolvent Debtor's Act, the production of the London Gazette containing the notice mentioned in the section is sufficient evidence of the filing of petition, adjudication, confirmation or revocation thereof, and of the dates of the same proceedings respectively, and, in the case of any adjudication, of the date of the petition on which the same is grounded (8) and a notification in the Gazette of India under the fifth section of the Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act is conclusive proof of the truth of the matters stated in the Notification.(9)

Gazettes as medium to prove

The Gazettes and Newspapers are often evidence as a medium to prove notices, as of the dissolution of a partner-hip, which is a fact usually notified in that manner. But, unless the case is governed by some special Act, such evidence is very weak without proof that the party to be affected by the notice has probably read the particular Gazette in which it is contained, e.g., that he takes it in or attends a reading-room where it is taken, or has shown knowledge of other matters contained in the same number, or that it is a publication with which it is his duty to be familiar, or the like , but the mere fact that the paper

Act to the present section.

 (f) 1ct \\\\ 1 of IMB, x I Myacha v Naja Shrarucha, 2 B., 38 (1876) : Lal-(2) 7 R. L. R. 63, a c. 15 W. R. O. 25.

<sup>13,</sup> S. 6 of Art 11 of 1835, corresponds generally to a, 57 (publical notice) and a. R of the same

<sup>(4)</sup> Field, Fr , 211 , for English cases, + Tayine, Pr. 4 1860, and Starker, Fr. 278

<sup>(5)</sup> Taylor, Fr , $1 1660, 1661; Steph Dag , Att. 13 : Howeve, V. P. Fr., 187, 188, See Labor.

lard v. Hoy. 5 l. J. Ex. 207

<sup>(6)</sup> Harrett v. H.or. 9 B. & C., 712, Starker, Es . 280

<sup>(7) 31 &</sup>amp; 32 km, Cap. 37 (1868), s. 2, an ended by the Dacumentary Fridence Sct. 1882, a & (8) 12 & 12 Nic , Cap 21, 8 82

<sup>(9)</sup> Act AA1 of 1879, a 5.

circulates in his neighbourhood is not sufficient, (1). Moreover, in the case of those who dissolve partnership, it is incumbent upon them to give to add customets of the firm an express and specific notice by circular or alterwise (2). Under section 350 of the repealed Act VIII of 1859 (Cval Procedure) the Chay times facetic containing the advertisement of sale, and a printed paper purporting to be the conditions of sale alluded to in the Grattle, and is and from the Master is described in a condition of prove the act and conditions of the deed of sale (3). Notice of a resolution for similar upon a Company voluntarily must also be given by advertisement in the Loud certain orders made thereunder will affect creditors after prod of nature given and the lapse of a certain time, (6).

38. When the Court has to form an opinion as to a law poterous of any country, any statement of such law contained in a book interface of purporting to be printed or published under the authority of the matter of overment of such country and to contain any such law, law become and any report of a ruling of the Courts of such country contained in a book numerical part to be a report of such country contained in a book numerical part to be a report of such country contained in a book numerical part of such country contained in a book numerical part of such country contains.

of Patliament, it may refuse, if called upon by any person to do so, until such person produces any such appropriate book or document of reference as it may consider necessary to enable it to do so.(1) Statements of law other than those contained in Reports must purport to be prated or published under authority. So a statement contained in an unauthorized translation of the Code Napoleon as to what the French law was upon a particular matter was held not to be relevant under this section (2) but reports of rulings need no tes so published, if only the book containing them purport to be a report of the rulings of such country. As to the presumption of genumeness of the books in this section mentioned, see s. 81, post they administer, a departure from common has been obtained urder the statutory procedure mentioned below) be proved as a fact by skilled witnesses, or (in the case of foreign customs and usages)(1) by any witness, expert or not, who is acquainted with the fact and not by the production of the books in which it is contained.(5) In India also Foreign law may (in addition to the method provided by this section) be proved by the opinions of persons specially skilled in such law (6). Further there exists a statutory procedure for the accertainment of Foreign and Colonial law By 22 and 23 Vic. Cap. 63, a case may be stated for the opinion of a superior Court in any of Her Majesty's dominions to ascertain the law of that part.(7) and by 24 and 25 Vic., Cap. 11, a similar case may be stated for the opinion of a Court in any Foreign State with which Her Majesty may have entered into a Convention for the ascertainment of such law. (8) and as to judicial aptice of the territorial extent of the jurisdiction and sovereignty exercised de lacto see "The Foreign Jurisdiction Act. 1880."(9)

<sup>(1)</sup> S. 57, post

<sup>(2)</sup> Christian v. Delanney, 26 C., 031 (1899)

s c, 3 C W N, 614
(3) e definition of "Foreign Court" Civil

Pr Code, s 2, p 33.
(4) Lando v Belisario, 1 Hagg C R, 216

<sup>(4)</sup> Lando v Belisario, 1 Hagg C R, 216 Sutter Peeruge Case, 11 C & F., 114-117, Vanderdonckt v. Thelluson, 8 C. B, 812.

<sup>(5)</sup> Suster Perrage Case, supra; Mostyn v. Fabrigat, Comp., 174; Roscoe, N. P. Er., 119—121; Batter v. Batter (1907), P. 333 (expertexulence required to prove the validity of foreign matriage)

<sup>(6)</sup> e * 45, post.

<sup>(7)</sup> Login v Princess Victoria, 1 Jun O S. 109, in which the Court of Chancery in England forwarded a case on Hindu Law to the Supreme Court of Calcutta

<sup>(8)</sup> This Act is stated to be practically a dead letter, as no Convention has ever been made in pursuance of it. Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 342. See also 6 & 7 Vic., Cap. 94, § 3, and R. v. Dor.

mps Gulam, 3 B, 334 (1878) (9) 53 & 54 Vict, c 37

HOW MUCH OF A STATEMENT IS TO BE PROVED

TWILE on the one hand, in the case of a statement in a civil or criminal proceeding by way of admission or confession, the whole of timust be taken and read together, since thus alone can the whole of that which the person making the statement intended to come ye he certainly arrived at: and since it would be obviously unfair to take that only which is against the interest of the declarant, while the very next sentence might contain a material qualification, on the other hand, great prolixity, waste, of time, and not seldom injustice, might occur if evidence of matters (often otherwise madmissible) were allowed to be given simply on the ground that the whole of the documents or conversations must be before the Court. The latter is, therefore, constituted the judge of the amount which may be given in evidence of any document or conversation. The discretion is to be guided by the principle of letting in so much, and so much only, as makes clear the nature and effect of the statement and the circumstances under which it was made.(I)

39. When any statement of which evidence is given forms what evidence to a longer statement, or of a conversation or part of an given which isolated document, or is contained in a document which forms formative part of a book, or of a connected series of letters or papers, evidence shall be given of so much and no more of the statement, conversation, document, book, or series of letters or papers, are conversation, document, book, or series of letters or papers, are conversation, document, book, or series of letters or papers, are conversed in the Court considers necessary in that particular case to the full pair.

Principle—The rule laid down by the present section (which is to the same effect as the English law on the same subject) is founded on the general ground of convenience and justice (v. Introduction, supra).

88. 21, 23 (Proof of Admissions.)

tion; Cross-examination; 15 1

extract put in expressly refer to other documents, these may be read also, (1) but the mere fact that remaining portions of the papers or books may throw hight on the parts selected by the opposite party will not be sufficient to warrant their admission, for such party is not bound to know whether they will or not, and moreover, the light may be a false one "(2) It may be inferred, it has been said, from this section how much of a police-diary may be seen by an accused person when it is used to refresh memory or to contradict the nolice-officer. In such case the accused person is entitled to see only the particular entry and so much of the special diary as is, in the omnion of the Court, necessary in that particular matter to the full understanding of the particular entry, so used and no more (3)

Conversation

"The same rule prevails in the case of a conversation in which several distinct matters have been discussed, and although it was at one time held, on high authority, that if a witness were questioned as to a statement made by an adverse party, such party might lay before the Court the whole that was said by him in the same conversation, even matter not properly connected with the statement deposed to, provided only that it related to the subject-matter of the suit(4) yet, a sense of the extreme mustice that might result from allowing such a course of proceeding has induced the Courts, in later times, to adopt a stricter rule, and if a part of a conversation is now relied on as an admission, the adverse party can give in evidence only so much of the same conversation as may explain or qualify the matter already before the Court "(5) It is settled law, that proof. on cross-examination, of a detached statement made by or to a witness at a former time does not authorise proof by the party calling that witness of all that was said at the same time, but only of so much as can be in some way connected with the statement proved (6) Therefore, where a witness has been cross-exammed as to what the plaintiff had said in a particular conversation, it was held that he could not be re-examined as to other assertions, made by the plaintiff in the same conversation, that were not connected with the assertions to which the cross-examinations related, although they were connected with the subjectmatter of the suit.(7)

Letters

"With regard to letters it has been held that a party may put in such as were written by his opponent, without producing those to which they were answers, or calling for their production; because, in such a case, the letters to which those put in were answers are in the adversary's hands, and he may produce them, if he thinks them necessary to explain the transaction (8) But while this is the strict rule, yet in practice if a party reads a letter from his opponent and is in possession of a copy of his own letter to which the opponent's is an answer, he is expected to read both. If a plaintiff puts in a letter by the defendant on the back of which is something written by himself, the defendant is entitled to have the whole read (9) and where a defendant laid before the Court several letters between himself and the plaintiff, he was allowed to read a reply of his own to the last letter of the plaintiff, it being considered as a part of an entire correspondence."(10)

<sup>(1)</sup> Sturge v Buchanan, 10 A. & E. 600, 603 The reference megaporates the two together Johnson v. Galson, 4 Esp., 21, Falcanor v.

Hanson, 1 Camp., 171, (2) Murge v. Buchanan, supra, 600-603;

Taylor, Ev. 1 732. (7) R . Mannu. 19 A . 495 (1897) per Edge, C. J. (4) The Queen's care, 2 B & E , 207, 298 , per Abbett, C. J.

<sup>(5)</sup> Priare v Sumo, 7 & & E , 627, 634, 615. Taylor, Er , § 733

(b) Printe 1. Samo, supra, 627; Sturge v. Burkanan, 10 A. A E , 605.

<sup>(7)</sup> Taylor, Et , $ 1474 Prince v Samo. supra, 637 In this case the opinion of Lord Tenterden m The Queen's case (2 B & B . 298). that evidence of the whole conversation, if connected with the suit, was admissible, though it related to matters not touched in the cross-exammation, was convilered and overroled.

<sup>(8)</sup> Lard Barrymore . Taylor, 1 Esp., 327. De Molina v Owen, 3 C & Kir , 72. (9) Daglack v. Dodd, 5 C. & P., 238.

<sup>(10)</sup> Taylor, Ev., § 734 , Roe v. Dez, 7 C. & P.,

JUDGMENTS OF COURTS OF JUSTICE WHEN RELEVANT.

TRANSACTIONS unconnected with the facts in issue are, according to the general rule of relevancy, madmissible in evidence. Judgments in Courts of justice on other occasions form, however, in certain cases, an exception to the exclusion of evidence of transactions not specifically connected with facts in issue.(1) Sections 40-42 declare when, and in what manner, judgments, orders and decrees are admissible Judgments, orders and decrees other than those mentioned in these sections are irrelevant, unless the existence of such judgment. order or decree is a fact in issue, or is relevant under some other provision of this Act.(2) Judgments are either domestic or foreign, and either of these may be in personam or in rem.

(a) In the first place, all judgments are conclusive of their existence as The general distinguished from their truth Thus if the object be merely to prove the existing to judg. tence of the judgment, its date, or its legal c of the decision rendered), the production o is conclusive evidence of the facts against :

the law attributes unerring verity to the substantive as opposed to the judicial portions of the record. And the reason is, that a judgment being a public transaction of a solemn nature, must be presumed to be faithfully recorded. In the substantive portion of a record of a Court of Justice, the Court records or attests its own proceedings and acts. Quod per recordum probatum, non debet esse negatum. In the judicial portion, on the contrary, the Court expresses in this connection where the record is matter of inducement, or merely introductory to other evidence (5)

- (b) All judgments are conclusive of their truth in favour of the Judge. that is, for the purpose of protecting him who pronounced it and the officers who enforced it.(6)
- (c) The admissibility and effect of judgments when tendered as evidence of their truth, that is, as evidence of the matters decided, or of the grounds of ------- of sonaluding an annangut unas al - frat- dis .

<sup>(1)</sup> Steph Introd. 164

<sup>(2)</sup> S. 43, post.

<sup>(3)</sup> Absnash Chandra v. Poresh Nath, 9 C. W. N., 402, 410 (1904).

<sup>(4)</sup> Taylor, Ev., § 1667; Best, Ev., § 500; Steph. Dig. Art. 40; Phipson, Fv., 3rd Ed.

<sup>359-389,</sup> r = 43. (5) See s. 43, post

<sup>(6)</sup> Taylor, Ev , $$ 1689-1672, Steph. Dig . Art. 45; Roscoe, N. P. Er., 204, 205, 1194-1201; see Act XVIII of 1850

<sup>(7) 5 41,</sup> port, or Norton, Et., 206.

JUDGMENTS OF COURTS OF JUSTICE WHEN RELEVANT

Thansacrious unconnected with the facts in issue are, according to the general rule of relevancy, madmissible in evidence. Judgments in Courts of justice on other occasions form, however, in certain cases, an exception to the exclusion of evidence of transactions not specifically connected with facts in issue.(1) Sections 40-42 declare when, and in what manner, judgments, orders and decrees are admissible. Judgments, orders and decrees other than those mentioned in these sections are irrelevant, unless the existence of such judgment, order or decree is a fact in issue, or is relevant under some other provision of this Act.(2) Judgments are either domestic or foreign, and either of these may be in personam or in rem.

(a) In the first place, all judgments are conclusive of their existence as The general distinguished from their truth. Thus if the object be merely to prove the existing to judgtence of the judgment, its date, or its legal consequences (and not the accuracy ments are of the decision rendered), the production of the record, or of a certified copy, is conclusive evidence of the facts against all the world.(3) In other words the law attributes unerring verity to the substantive as opposed to the judicial portions of the record. And the reason is, that a judgment being a public transaction of a solemn nature, must be presumed to be faithfully recorded. In the substantive portion of a record of a Court of Justice, the Court records or attests its own proceedings and acts. Quod per recordum probatum, non debet esse negatum. In the judicial portion, on the contrary, the Court expresses its judgment or opinion on the matter in question, and in forming that proceeding in which it was pronounced, is only resinter alios judicata; and hence the rule, that it does not bind, and is not in general, evidence, against anyone who was not such party or privy.(4) So also judgments are admissible in this connection where the record is matter of inducement, or merely introductory to other evidence.(5)

- (b) All judgments are conclusive of their truth in favour of the Judge. that is, for the purpose of protecting him who pronounced it and the officers who enforced it.(6)
- (c) The admissibility and effect of judgments when tendered as evidence of their truth, that is, as evidence of the matters decided, or of the grounds of the decision for the purpose of concluding an opponent upon the facts determined, vary according as the judgments are (as they are called) in rem or in personam. Generally speaking, a judgment in rem is one which binds all the world and not only the parties to the suit in which it was passed and their privies. It belongs to positive law to enact what judgments shall have such a character. Accordingly, the Act declares (7) that a judgment, in order to have this effect,

 $\mathbf{b}_{\mathbf{f}}$ ſο

<sup>(1)</sup> Steph. Introd., 164 (2) S. 43, post.

<sup>(3)</sup> Abrack Chandra v. Poresk Nath, 4 C. W. N., 402, 410 (1904).

<sup>(4)</sup> Taylor, Ev., § 1667; Best, Ev. § 5%). Steph. Dig , Art. 40; Phipson, Fv., 3rd Ed.,

<sup>359-389;</sup> r. s. 43, port. (5) See # 43, post.

<sup>(6)</sup> Taylor, Er., $$ 1609-1672, Steph. Dr Art. 45; Roscoe, N. P. Er , 314, 215, 1194-120 er Act XVIII of 1850.

<sup>(7)</sup> S. 41, poor, ser Norton, Ev.,

370 JUDGMENTS.

must have been pronounced by a competent Court in the exercise of Probate. Matrimonial, Admiralty, or Insolvency jurisdiction. Such a judgment is conclusive of certain matters against all the world, and not against the parties and their prives only. On the other hand, the judgment in personam (or the ordnary judgment between parties and in case of contract, tort, or crime) of a Court of competent jurisdiction is conclusive proof, in subsequent proceedings, between the same parties or their prives, only of the matter actually decided. (1) but is no evidence of the truth of the decision between strangers, or a party and a stranger, (2) except upon matters of a public nature in which case, however, they are not conclusive evidence of that which they state. (3) The reasons of this rule are commonly stated to rest on the ground expressed in the maxim ics inter alios acts of judacia allers noere non debet, it being considered unjust that a man should be affected, and still more that he should be bound, by proceedings, in which he could not make defence, cross-examine or appeal (4)

Foremost among the judgments, orders and decrees which are declared to be admissible by the following sections are those which have the effect of barring a second suit or trial (5). Thus judgments, orders and decrees may be relevant for the purpose of showing that there is a lis pendens, (6) or that the matter is res judicata, (7) or that the claim advanced forms part of a former claim or that the remedy for which the plaintiff sues is one for which the plaintiff the same cause of action.(8) exercise of Probate, Matrimo-declared to be relevant and conclusive proof of certain matters. (9) The general nature of these judgments is not to define a person's rights against the particular individuals who are parties to the proceeding, but to declare his status generally as against all the world. And the broad principle of the rule is that public policy requires that matters of status should not be left in doubt, and a decision in rem not merely declares status, but apso facto renders it such as it is declared. (10) With the exception of such judgments, there are no judgments conclusive in Indian Courts against persons other than the parties to the proceedings or their representatives,(11) as to the facts which they declare or the rights which they confer. There are, however, such judgments, namely, those relating to matters of a public nature, which, (12) though not conclusive proof of what they state and not binding upon anybody but the parties to the proceeding and their representatives, may yet be considered by the Court by way of evidence as to the facts with which they are concerned. Thus, in a suit in which the existence of a public right of way is disputed, a judgment between other parties, in which the existence of the same right of way is affirmed or negatived may be put in as evidence of the existence or non-existence of the right; though the party against whom it is employed will be at liberty to counteract it, if he can as he would any other piece of hostile evidence. Further, apart from their admissibility under the preceding sections, the existence of a judgment, order or decree may be a fact in issue in the case or a relevant fact under some of the other provisions of this Act as to relevancy. (13) Thus where A sues B.

<sup>(1)</sup> See 8 40, post.

 <sup>(2)</sup> v. 16 , s 43, post, illusts (a), (b), (c)
 (3) S. 42, post, where the ressons for this Exception are considered.

(4) See Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 384, where the grounds of this rule are considered.

(5) S. 40, post,

<sup>(6)</sup> Civ. Pr. Code, Part I, s. 10, p 93, see s. 40, post. (7) 16., Part I, sa 11-14, pp. 97-99, Cr. Pr

Code, s 403, see s 40, post, Furness Withy Co v. Hall (1909), Times L R, v 25, p 233.

Hall (1909), Times L. R., v. 25, p. 233.
(8) Civ. Pr. Code, O. II, r. 2, p. 549, see s. 40, post.

<sup>(9)</sup> S 41, post

<sup>(10)</sup> See note to 8 41, post (11) Norton, Ev., 204, 214

<sup>(12)</sup> S. 42, post.

<sup>(13)</sup> See a 43, jost

because through B's fault A has been sued and cast in damages, the judgment and decree by which such damages are given is a fact in issue; or where B is charged with the murder of .1, the fact that .4 has obtained a decree of ejectment against B may be relevant as showing the motive in B for the murder of 4.(1) Lastly, as fraud is an act which vitiates the most solemn proceedings of Courts of Justice, and as a judgment delivered by an incompetent Court is a mere nullity, the Act provides that any party to a suit or other proceeding may show that any judgment, order or decree, which is relevant under sections 40-12, and which has been proved by the adverse party, was delivered by a Court not competent to deliver it, or was obtained by fraud or collusion.(2)

40. The existence of any judgment, order or decree, which Releaves by law, prevents any Court from taking cognizance of a suit(3) orders and or holding a trial, is a relevant fact when the question is whether decrees as such Court ought to take cognizance of such suit, or to hold such second suit or trial trial.

Principle.-See Introduction ante and Notes, post.

- 83. 41-43 (Judgments, orders, and decrees.) s. 3 (" Relevant.")
- s. 3 (" Fact.") s., 44 (Fraud : want of jura diction.)
- 8 3 (" Court,") se. 74, 76, 77 (Public documents, certified copies.)

Steph Dig., Arts, 39-47; Taylor, Ev., § 1684, et seq.; Smith's L. C. Note to Duchess of Kingston's case; Field, Ev., 235-319; Estoppel by Matter of Record in Civil suits in India by L. Broughton (1895); The Law of Estoppel in British India by A. Caspersz (1893): The Law of Res Judicata by Hukm Chand (1894).

COMMENTARY.

This section provides for the admission of evidence for the purpose of Previous showing that a sunt or trial is barred, as for example on the ground (a) that the release to matter in issue is the subject of a previously instituted pending suit; (4) bara second (b) that the relief sought forms part of a claim for which the plaintiff omitted to sue in former suit; or was one of several remedies in respect of the same cause of action, for which the plaintiff, in a former suit, omitted, without the leave of the Court, to sue; (5) (c) that there is an estoppel by judgment, the matter in issue being res judicata.(6) Under the first of the above-mentioned grounds, the order admitting the plaint of the former suit, in the second and third, the judgment, and in either, such other portions of the record as are material to show that the matter is without the cognizance of the Court, would be relevant and admissible evidence under this section. Each of the abovementioned grounds of objection to a second suit or trial forms a portion of the law of Procedure, and as such is dealt with by the Civil or Criminal Procedure Codes. Whether a person ought to be allowed to litigate any particular question, and if so by what limitations the right should be restricted, are questions which do not belong, in any proper sense, to the Law of Evidence, whose province it is simply to provide the means by which partito suits may prove any right to which the Legislature entitles them. Il.

(t) Cunningham, Et., 29-32; see a 43, past, and illusts (d), (e), (f), thereto.

<sup>(2)</sup> S. 44, por.

<sup>(3)</sup> See Ranchhoddas Krishnadass v. hipu Nar-Aor, 10 B. at p. 443 (1996).

<sup>(4)</sup> Cir. Pr Code, Part I. s. 10, p. 93.

<sup>(5)</sup> Cir. Pr. Code, U.11, r.2, p. 51 ). (6) Ib., Part I, a. 11-14, j, 57-17, 1 1.

Code, st 403.

present section, accordingly, is so worded as to carry out whatever may be for the time the law of Procedure on such questions. (1) It is therefore not intended in this work to deal with these subjects, but merely to cite the provisions of the Codes relating thereto.

The reception of this evidence is grounded upon the fact that, unless it were admitted, effect could not be given to the provisions of the law of Procedure which this section is intended to subserve. If that has declares that a Court shall not in particular circumstances hold or take cognizance of a judicial proceeding, it is plannly necessary to be able to show that these circumstances exist. The piecent section accordingly enables such proof to be given.

Pending suits Except where a suit has been staved under the Civil Procedure Code, a Court shall not try any suit in which the matter in issue is also directly and substantially in issue in a previously instituted suit for the same rehef between the same parties, or between parties under whom they or any of them claim, pending in the same or any other Court, whether superior or inferior, in British India, having jurisdiction to grant such relief, or any Court beyond the limits of British India established by the Governor-General in Council, and having like jurisdiction, or before Her Majesty in Council. Explanation.—The pendency of a suit in a foreign Court, (2) does not preclude the Courts in British India from trying a suit founded on the same cause of action, (3) This section only provides that no suit shall be tried if the same issues are involved in a previously instituted suit. It does not dispense with the institution of a suit within the proper time when the law requires such institution (4).

Omission to sue for relief or remedy

In respect of rehef or remedies for which the plaintiff in a former action omitted to sue, the Civil Procedure Code enacts as follows -

Every suit shall include the whole of the claim which the plaintiff is entitled to make in respect of the cause of action; (5) but a plaintiff may relinquish any portion of his claim in order to bring the suit within the jurisdiction of any Court.

If a plaintiff onth to sue in respect of, or intentionally relinquish any portion of his claim, he shall not afterwards sue in respect of the portion so omitted or relinquished.

A person entitled to more than one remedy in respect of the same cause of all of any of his remedies but, if he omits (except with the leave of the Court obtained before the first hearing) to sue for any of such remedies, he shall not afterwards sue for the remedy so omitted. For the purpose of this section an obligation and a collateral security for its performance shall be deemed to constitute but one cause of action.(6)

Res judicata The rule of estoppel by judgment or res judicato is that facts actually decided by an issue in one suit cannot be again litigated between same parties and are conclusive hetween them for the purpose of terminating litigation. (7)

<sup>(1)</sup> Cummgham, Ev., 175, 176 (2) See as to meaning of Civ. Pr. (ode, v. 2)

<sup>[3] (</sup>n. Pr. Cuic, Patt I. s. 10, p. 97; Indiavalien Mahmed v. Offside Tratte, 7 C, 82 (1881), Biltzdan v. Arden Led., H. A., 148 (1880), Malya Kediu v. Dincount, 8 C L R, 113 (1880); Malya Kediu v. Dincount, 4 C L R, 222 (1879); Remedings Chett v. Beylmattle Euro, 9 M., 418 (1877) Neurope Chetti v Chidundorm, 24 M, 18 (1877) Neurope Chetti v Chiv. Indiatema, Reld., 22 M, 250 (1888).

 <sup>(4)</sup> Nemajanda v. Paresha, 22 B. 640 (1897)
 (5) Lenkutarama tyystr v. Lenkuta hubrahmanian, 24 M., 27 (1990)

<sup>(6) (</sup>n Pr Code, O II, r. 2, p 549,

<sup>(7)</sup> Boslows V. Reiles, 2 Ex., 665, 581, per Park, B., and per Lond Hardwacke, in Greeper, Lidden sourid, 3 Athans, 625, cited in Scorpomone Dayer s. Sedemard Molegatier, 12 B L. R., 304, 315 (1873) "Estopped by Judiment results from a matter having been directly and substantially messee in the single been derived by Judiment and Smally deceded." Kall Krichine v. Serceture of North, 16 C., 171 (1889), Poullon v. Alguedde Coarr and Booler Bird Co., C. A. (1998), 2 Clu. 240 For an apparent exception thas role in the case of a potition to revoke a priest, which is exception serves load on the

There is nothing technical or peculiar to the law of England in this rule which is recognised by the Cvul law and has been held to be consistent with the Code of Cvul Procedure.(1) Independently of the provision in the Code of 1839, the Courts in India recognised the rule and applied it magreat number of cases, and the re-enactment of the provision in the Code of 1877 appears to have been made with the intention of embodying in the 12th and 13th sections of that Code, the law then in force in India, instead of the imperfect provision in the second section of Act VIII of 1839 (2). The provisions in the present Code, (3) which embody the law of extoppel correspond very nearly with those in withthis subject under the head settoppel, but the authors of the Indian Codes have regarded it as belonging more properly to the head of the Procedure (5). The principle of res judicata as simple remarked by West, J., in Sridh. "Yery to the results to the statement but presents." Yery numerous cases have arisen 1 | ectrons of the Code dealing with this subject, and the reports contain a great number of decisions upon them. Many of them turn upon facts, and the difficulty has generally been to apply the principles to the facts. Even if the matter properly belonged to the subject of this work it would be unprofitable and lead to confusion to enter into an examination of many of these decisions, (7) for a case may perhaps be a binding authority as to the conclusion arrived at where the facts are identical but not otherwise, in any other case the tribunal must investigate the facts for itself and determine, (8) referring to previous cases only for such propositions of law as are contained in them. With respect to the rule as applicable to Civil cases, the provisions of the present Code of Civil Procedure in regard to res judicata as contained in sections 11—14 are as follow:—

No Court shall try any suit or issue(9) in which the matter directly and substantially in issue has been directly and substantially in issue has been directly and substantially in issue in a former suit between the same parties, or between parties under whom they or any of them claim, litigating under the same title, in a Court of jurisdiction compatent to try such subsequent suit, or the suit in which such issue has been aubsequently raised und has been heard and finally decided by such Court.

has been decided prior to the suitin question, whether or not it was instituted prior to the suitin question, whether or not it was instituted prior thereto.

Explanation II.—For the purpose of this section the competence of a Court shall be determined irrespective of any provision as to a right of appeal from the decision of such Court.

ground that such a petition is on behalf of the public, see in re Deely's Patent (1895), 1 Ch., 687. & Taylor, § 1685(a).

 (1) Khuptee Singh v Housein Bux, 7 B. L. B.
 673. 678 (1871). But while consistent it was not identical with it, see Hulm Chand, Res. Jud. 7.

(2) Misir Raykbur v. Shen Balsh, 9 C., 439.
445; 9 I. A., 197, 202, 204 (1882). Kamesmar

Pershad v. Rajkumar, Ruttun, 19 I. A., 238., 20 C., 79 (1892).

(3) Act V of 1908, sc. 11—14, pp. 97—99

(4) Cf as to the law on this subject, Estoppel by matter of record in circl state in India, by L. Brouchlon (1893), The Law of Letoppel in Brouch India, by A. Caspera, [1897], Field's Er. 235-347 (5th Et., 1894), The Law of Rev Judy.

cota by Hukm Chand (1894).

(5) See remarks of Mahmood, J., in Seta Rom

v. Amer Begum, 8 A , 325, 331 (1886). (6) 11 Bom. H C. R., 228 (1874).

(7) See Broughton, up est , 7

(8) London Josef Stock Brak v. Namacone, Ap. Cas., 1802, at p. 222, per Lord Helenchell; v. id. at p. 210 per Lord Helshory, L. C. "I must make a protest that it is not a very probable inquiry whether one case resembles another in the fact."

(9) As to the property of the extension of the doctrine to exclude the trial of an issue, see Rai Chiera v. Kwand Mohon, 2 C. W. N., 287, 301 (1874) · n. c., 25 C., 571, and see Chandi Provides, Makender Single, 23 A., 5, 8, 11 (1960). Explanation III.—The matter above referred to must in the former suit been alleged by one party and either denied or admitted expressly or impliedly by the other.

Explanation IV.—Any matter which might and ought to have been made ground of defence or attack in such former suit, shall be deemed to have been a matter directly and substantially in issue in such suit.

Explanation V.—Any relief claimed in the plaint, which is not expressly granted by the decree, shall, for the purpose of this section, be deemed to have been refused.

Explanation VI — Where persons litigate bona fide in respect of a public right or of a private right claimed in common for themselves and others, all persons interested in such rights shall, for the purpose of this section, be deemed to claim under the persons so litigating (1)

The rule contained in this section applies equally to appeals and miscellaneous(2) proceedings as to original suits

Where a plaintiff is precluded by rules from instituting a further suit in respect of any particular cause of action, he shall not be entitled to institute a suit in respect of such cause of action in any Court to which the Code applies. (3)

A foreign judgment shall be conclusive as to any matter thereby directly adjudicated upon between the same parties, or between parties under whom they or any of them claim hitgating under the same title, except—

- (a) Where it has not been pronounced by a Court of competent jurisdiction,
- (b) where it has not been given on the merits of the case:
- (c) where it appears on the face of the proceedings to be founded on an incorrect view of international Law or a refusal to recognize the law of British India in cases in which such law is applicable;
- (d) where the proceedings in which the judgment was obtained are opposed to natural justice;
- (e) where it has been obtained by fraud .
- (f) where it sustains a claim founded on a breach of any law in force in British India.(4)

The Court shall presume upon the production of any document purporting to be a certified copy of a foreign judgment that such judgment was pronounced by a Court of competent jurisdiction unless the contrary appears on the record; but such presumption may be displaced by proving want of jurisdiction.(5)

These sections as also the present section of this Act, must be read as subject to any other encetments touching their subject-matter. Thus an entry of a record prepared under section 108 of the Land-Revenue Code, Bombay Act V of 1879, by the Survey Officer, describing certain lands as khoti, is by force of the seventeenth section of the Khoti Act (Rom, Act I of 1880) conclusive and final evidence of the liability thereby established and shuts out the evidence of a prior decision under this section of the Evidence Act as proof of res judicata whereby a Civil Court adjudged the land to be dhara. (6)

<sup>(1)</sup> Civ. Pr. Code, s 11 (2) Ballishan v. Kishan Lal, 11 A , 148 (1888)

<sup>(3)</sup> Civ Pr. Code, s. 12

<sup>(4)</sup> Civ. Pr. Code, s. 13. (5) Civ. Pr. Code, s. 14

<sup>(6)</sup> Ramchandro Bhaskur v. Raghunath Bacha

set, 20 B, 475 (1895) See also as to Khott Act, Boley, Raghuneth v. Bultin Roghop, 21 B, 235 (1895), Copal v. Daesralh Set, 21 B, 244 (1895); Antoj, Kushinath v. Antaj, Madhat, 21 B, 480 (1896), Copal v. Maphencar, 21 B, 608 (1896).

The rule with regard to previous judgments in criminal cases is contained in the Criminal Procedure Code(1) and is as follows:—

A person who has once been tried by a Court of competent jurisdiction for an offence, and convicted or acquitted of such offence, shall, while such conviction or acquittal remains in force, not be hable to be tried again for the same offence, nor on the same facts for any other offence for which a different charge from the one made against him might have been made under section 236, or for which he might have been convicted under section 237.

A person acquitted or convicted of any offence may be afterwards tried for any distinct offence for which a separate charge might have been made against him on the former trial under section 255, first paragraph.

A person convicted of any offence constituted by any act causing consequences which, together with such act, constituted a different offence from that of which he was convicted, may be afterwards tried for such last-mentioned offence, if the consequences had not happened, or were not known to the Court to have happened, at the time when he was convicted.

A person acquitted or convicted of any offence constituted by any acts may, notwithstanding such acquittal or conviction, be subsequently charged with, and tried for, any other offence constituted by the same acts which he may have committed, if the Court by which he was first tried was not competent to try the offence with which he is subsequently charged.

Explanation.—The dismissal of a complaint, the stopping of proceedings under section 249, the discharge of the accused, or any entry made upon a charge under section 273, is not an acquittal for the purposes of this section.

In the Appendix to the second edition will be found a note dealing shortly and analytically with the provisions of the thirteenth section and then with the subject of foreign judgments. The rule, as has been already seen, is applicable in criminal cases also, and a person who has once been tried by a Court of competent jurisdiction and convicted or acquitted, cannot be tried again for the same offence.(2) The principle of the rule of res judicata is one that is well settled, namely, that a matter which has been put in issue, tried, and determined by a competent Civil or Criminal Court cannot be re-opened between those who were parties to such adjudication. The grounds upon which parties and privies are precluded from re-litigating the same matter between them are, firstly, that of public policy, it being in the interest of the State that there should be an end of litigation (interest res publice ut sit fines litium), secondly, that of hardship to be individual that he should be twice vexed for the same cause (nemo debet bis vexari pro una eadem causa), or twice punished for one and the same offence (nemo debet bis punire pro uno delicto).(3) Inasmuch, however, as an estoppel shuts out enquiry into the truth, it is necessary to see that the principle of res judicata is not unduly enlarged (4) Although the plea of res judicata may be taken at any stage of a suit, including first or second appeal, an Appellate Court is not bound to entertain the plea if it cannot be decided upon the record before that Court and if its consideration involves the reference of fresh issues for determination by the Lower Court.(5)

<sup>(1)</sup> S 4/13

<sup>(2)</sup> Cr. Pr Code, s 403 acts the mode of procing a previous conviction or an acquitta', we

<sup>(3)</sup> Leekyer v. Ferryman, 2 App. Cas., 519. Phipson, Er., 3rd Ed., 36s. cited in Ranched

Marar v. Rezasji Edulji (2) B. at p. 91 (1894) (4) Ras Churn v. Kumud Mohan, 2 C. W. N., 297, 301 (1894), a. c., 25 ( , 571)

Kenes Lell v Surej Kunwer, 21 A., 446 (15<sup>(9)</sup>).

Relevancy of certain judgments in probate, etc., jurisdiction. 41. A final judgment, order or decree of a competent Court, in the exercise of probate, matrimonial, admiralty or insolvency jurisdiction, which confers upon or takes away from any person any legal character, or which declares any person to be entitled to any such character, or to be entitled to any specificating, not as against any specified person but absolutely, is relevant whon the existence of any such legal character, or the title of any such person to any such begal character, or the

Such judgment, order or decree is conclusive proof-

- that any legal character which it confers accrued at the time when such judgment, order or decree came into operation.
- that any legal character, to which it declares any such person to be entitled, accrued to that person at the time when such judgment, order or decree(1) declares it to have accrued to that person;
- that any legal character which it takes away from any such person ceased at the time from which such judgment, order or decree(1) declared that it had ceased or should cease;
- and that any thing to which it declares any person to be so entitled was the property of that person at the time from which such judgment, order or decree(1) declares that it had been or should be his property.

Principle.—A decision in tem not merely declares the status of the person or thing, but yapo facto renders it such as it is declared. Public pobby requires that matters of social status should not be left in continual doubt and as regards things every one, generally speaking, who can be affected by the decision, may protect his interests by becoming a party to the proceedings (2)

```
88. 40, 42, 43 (Judgments, orders and decrees) 5 3 (" Relevant ")
```

s. 44 (Fraud and vant of jurisdiction ) s. 4 ("Conclusive proof")
s. 3 ("Court.")

Taylor, Ev., §§ 1673—1681; 1733—1738; Best, Ev., § 593, Pigott on Foreign Judgments (1879); Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 193, 194; Everest and Strode on Extoppel; Story's Conflict of Laws; Westlake's Private International Law (1880); Wheaton's International Law, 216, 225 (1889), 3rd Eng. Ed; Foote's Private International Law; Broughton's Extoppel by Matter of Record in India, 114; Casperaz's Law of Estoppel, 450; Hukm Chand's Res Judicata, 493; Field, Ev., 319—235; Phinson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 364; Steph. Dig., Att., 39—47, pp. 176—178.

<sup>(1)</sup> The whols "order or decree" in the last (2) Physion, Ev., 3rd Ed., 30%, and authorithree paragraphy were added by a 3, Act XVIII ties there cited.

COMMENTARY.

Although the term "judgment in rem" is not used in this Act, yet this "Judgments section incorporates the law on the subject of such judgments as explained in the decision of Sir Barnes Peacock in Kanhya Lall v. Radha Churn.(1) Many difficulties on the subject, at any rate so far as domestic judgments in rem are concerned, are removed by this section, which greatly simplifies the law relating to these judgments. For the section declares what are the judgments which are alone to have a conclusive character, and one of the main difficulties has always been to ascertain some principle upon which to rest this class of judgments so as to determine what cases fall within it. Foreign judgments in rem stand on a footing somewhat different from that of domestic judgments in rem as well as from that of foreign judgments in personam. Their recognition and enforcement is still void of express legislative sanction, as while they are beyond the rule of res judicata enunciated in the Civil Procedure Code, there is nothing in this Act to directly indicate that its provisions relating to judgments in rem are to be construed so as to include foreign judgments. But it is apprehended that in analogy with the practice of the English Courts, such judgments given in the exercise of probate, matrimonial, admiralty, or insolvency jurisdiction will receive in India the same recognition as is accorded to domestic judgments of the same character.(2)

It has been pointed out in the note to the last section that a judgment, as a

to th worl
unfr only an Yare
Lall

received a full consideration. The present section, which is based upon the judgment in the latter case, declares that a judgment, order, or decree in order to operate otherwise than inter partes, must be a final judgment of a com-

<sup>(1) ?</sup> W. R , 318 (1867) see this pulgment Firkl, Ev. 329-331 Yarakulamma v Annalala, 2 Mad H C R, 276 (1864). Jogendon Deb v Funender Deb. 14 M J A, 367 11 B L. R. 244 (1871), where the subject of judgments as rem, and the meaning of the terms in rem, " 'pira in rem' and 'status' are fully discussed. See also Broughton, op cat, 114 (aspers op cat, 450). Hukm Chand, op cit, 493 Bigelow on Estoppel Pigott on Foreign Judgments (1879) Westlake's Private International Law (1880) Wheaton's International Law 216 225 (1889) 3rd Eng Ed Foote's Private International Law . Furest and Strode or Estoppel Stores Conflet of Laus With reference to this section the whet Committee on the Bill remarked in their Report as follows - For the sake of simplicity and in order to avoid the difficulty of dehuing or enumerating palgments as rem we have alouted the statement of the law in hir Barnes Praco. L in Anakon Lall , Radin Chara 7 11 1: . 339 **

<sup>(2)</sup> See Hukm Chand, op est, bed et any Parott, op est, Bertlake, op est, Weston, op

est , supra, note (1)

<sup>(3)</sup> As to the histors and position of judgmunts a rem in India prior to this Act, see Farela-lamma v Annalada, 2 Mad. H. C. R. 776 (1884), Kanhaga Lell. v Redha Churn, 7 M. R. 184 (1887), Jogendra Dieb. v Fontadra Deb., 14 M. I. A., 373 (1871). Ahmedikoy v Lulleldong, 6 B., 703 (1882).

<sup>(4) 2</sup> Mod. H. C. R., 256 (1884). The condusion of Hollows, J. — That a decision by a competent Court that a Hindu family was joint and understell, or upon a question of Jeptimes, Joseph and potential for upon a question of Jeptimes, Joseph and potential for a set to the present in a soft state present in a contractive jeaking to an activate present in a contractive jeaking to an activate present in a soft application to read present in the present of and confirmed by Pleace's 1 (4) delivering the judgment of the full Breach in the case of Arasiga Lell's Follow (2018), 333, pp. 6.

<sup>(5) 7</sup> W. M. 338 (1867) B. L. R., Sup. Vol., F. B., 862

petent Court made in the exercise of Probate, Matrimonial, Admiralty or Insolvency Jurisdiction. Besides these, there are no other judgments of a conclusive character. Moreover, these judgments are conclusive proof of certain things only,(1) namely, the legal character to which a person may be declared to be entitled, or to which a person may be declared not to be entitled, and the title to which a person may be declared to possess in a specific thing. This section not only therefore enumerates the different kinds of judgments in rem, but also enacts what their effect shall be. This effect is of a limited character and less extensive than that which has been allowed at times to judgments in rem, in English Courts, (2) whose present tendency is, however, to narrow the effect of such judgments, making them binding for their proper purposes only, in accordance with the view which has been adopted by the Indian Legislature. For, according to recent English decisions (3) judgments in rem, with the exception of the adjudications of Admiralty Courts in prize causes (4) operate in rem against all persons only so far as the judgment itself is concerned, and beyond the judgment only parties and their privies will be within the estoppel (5) Under the provisions of the present section the judgments therein mentioned will operate in rem only in respect of those matters of which these judgments are declared to be conclusive proof. Beyond this only parties and privies will be within the estoppel In English law a judgment in rem is strong prima

(1) See Konhoya Loll v Rodia Chura supra, where it is said of a decree of divorce— It is conclusive upon all persons that the parties have been divorced, and that the parties are no longer humband and wife, but it is not conclusive, nor even primal face evidence against strangers that the cause for which the decree was pronounced creted. For instance, if a divorce between it and I's new granted upon the ground of the duditiety of B with C, it would be conclusive as to the divorce, but it would not be even primal force vidence against C, that he was guilty of adulter with B, intelles the were a part to the aut."

(2) According to English Law a domestic pudyment is run is conclosive start names of the matters actually decoded, and also in puze cases of the grounds of the decation, it these are plainly stated. A foreign judgment in run in generally conclusive against strangers only upon questions of puze, where the ground of condemnation is plainly stated; or of instrange and derover where the marriage was solumised and the parties domested in the foreign country; or of bankruptes as to contract made in such country, or of probate, administration and guardinaphy for a limited extent - see Pinpson, Et. 3rd 2d, 364, 505, where the authornics are cited.

(3) De Mora v. Concha, L. R., 29 Ch. D., 268; Concha v. Concha L. R., 11 App. Cas., 541

(4) See Berserds 1. Mottenz, Dong, 574, 680
"All the world are parties to a sentence of a Court of Admiralty." per Lord Mannfield, Hupshar Cornollars, 2 Sm. L. Ca, 9 HE 64, 287, 754 Helmo, 4 Hob Adm, 3 Such adjudent town hare been held conclusive not only for their own proper purposes but for other purposes as well, but if has been doubted whether, since the case of Conche v. Concho, supra, the find ings and ground of the judgment as distinguished from the judgment itself, would be deemed conclusive upon all the world. Bigelon on Estoppel, 5th Ed., 242 Sec. Caspersz. op. cir. 457, 450, 30, and following note

(5) The Court of Appeal in De Mora v Concha. 29 Ch D. 268, planly intimate that none of the generally accepted kinds of judgment in rem are such, with the single exception of admdication in prize causes in the admiralty, in the sense, that is to say, that the findings and grounds of decision bind inter owner. The judgment itself may operate in rem in a variety of cases, but nothing else than the judgment except in the case mentioned result is that the discussions in regard to the distmetion between judgments in rem and judgments in personam appear to have become for the greater part obsolete learning. If the two cases referred to point aright (De Mora . Concha, supra; Brigha . Fayerweather, 140, Mass. 411), there is but one pure judgment in rem. carrying, that is to say, in its broadly conclusive effect, necessary findings and grounds of the decision, other judgments operate in rem, only so far as they have perfectly and completely against all persons-established a right on rem. Beyond the judgment, only parties and their privies are within the estoppel Prize cases themselves are treated by both Courts. English and American, as exceptional, possibly the foundations even of Hughes v. Cornelius (a prize case, v. supra) are no longer secure." M. M. Bigelow in the Law Quarterly Review, Vol. 11, p. 406 (1886) facre evidence in a criminal case on behalf of the person in whose favour such judgment was given; but it is not conclusive; (1) and a criminal conviction is not in a subsequent proceeding conclusive of the facts necessary to be proved to obtain the conviction, and is subject to the same rules of evidence as an ordinary judgment inter partes; indeed, such a judgment would not seem to be a judgment in rem at all, except in so far as a conviction for felony amounts to a judgment that the person convicted is a felon.(2) But under this Act such a judgment will be conclusive in a criminal, equally and to the same extent, as in a civil proceeding (3) An order may be conclusive otherwise than under the provisions of this Act. Thus an order upon a contributory under the Companies Act is conclusive evidence that the moneys ordered to be paid are due, and all other pertinent matters stated in such order are to be taken to be truly stated as against all persons and in all proceedings whatsoever.(4) As in the case of judgments inter partes, a judgment in rem must be final and pronounced by a Court of competent jurisdiction. (5)

The Courts exercise testamentary and intestate jurisdiction(6) under Probate the Indian Succession Act, (7) the Hindu Wills Act, (8) and the Probate and Jurisdic-Administration Act. (9) This section is applicable to probates granted prior to the passing of the Hindu Wills Act.(10) In the case now cited, it was contended that, as the testator died before the Hindu Wills Act came into force, and as the executor of the will of a Hindu dying before that Act came into force, was a mere manager having no title to the estate, the probate of his will neither conferred a legal character, nor declared the executor to be entitled to any legal character But the Court held as above-mentioned and said -"I have examined the cases which have been cited, but I am of opinion that section 41 of the Evidence Act applies to this case. It is quite true that a Hindu executor was, at any rate until the passing of the Hindu Wills Act, only a manager, but as such manager he had certain powers over the estate, and for many purposes he represented the testator. It may be that the probate did not confer upon the executor any legal character, but I think that the effect of probate is to declare the person to whom probate is granted to be entitled to the powers of an executor, whatever his powers as such may be. The words 'legal character' are not anywhere defined, but I think that it is quite clear that it is intended to include the case of an executor. The fact that this section has been frequently applied to cases of persons dying after the Hindu Wills Act came into force shows this. The only legal character which the Probate Act declares a person to be entitled to is that of executor. It confers the character of administrator It does not declare it So the section would be meaningless unless 'legal character' included the office

<sup>(1)</sup> Taylor, Ev., $ 1680

<sup>(2)</sup> Taylor, § 1674 & see Anderson & Collinson (1901), 2 K B, 107, an order made in affiliation proceedings is not a judgment in rem neither is an order to wind up a Company . In re Bowling d Welby's contract, 1895 1 Ch , 663 (3) Field, Et . 335, see p 340, 277, post, miles (2) and (3)

<sup>(4)</sup> Indian Companies Act 1882 s 165 (5) S. 41 see a 44, post, and a 40, autr

And see Toronto Railway Co v Corporation of Torreto (1904), A. C., 809

<sup>(6)</sup> As to the effect of probate and letters of administration, see De Mora v Concha, L. R. 29 Ch D , 268 , Whicker v. Pume, 7 H. L. C. A , 124 . Conche v. Conche, L. R., 11 App. Cas., 541, and other cases cited in Phipson Ev 3rd Ed . 391-702 · Taylor, Ev., 35 1750-1761, Roscoe, N. P.

Ev. 201, 202 (note a Probate 10th Ed., 352-356 Williams on Exceutors, 369, 576, 557 (1902-1903), Hukm Chand, op cat , 513, Act X of 1865, ss 242, 188 191 Act V of 1881, as 59, 12, 14, and nost Komellockun Dutt v Adeutton Mundle. 4 ( , 360 (1878) Teen Course . Hurechur Mon-Lergee, 8 W. R., 308 (1867). Hormunger Norrosji v Bar Dhanbarjee, 12 B 164 (1887) Mayho v. Hilliams, 2 N.W. P. Rep., 268 (1870)

<sup>(7)</sup> Act X of 1865 see Part AAAL as 242 179, 331 as to the High (ourt, see Letters Patent 1865, cl (34) In the matter of Factoriaden 4dam Sav 11 W R 413 (1869).

<sup>(8)</sup> Act XAI of 1870. (9) Act V of 1851.

<sup>(10)</sup> Ginsk I kunder v. Levuphia, 14 ( , M). 574-576 (1857).

of an executor. I do not think that the circumstance that in the particular case the powers of the executor may be limited makes any difference in the construction of the section."(I)

The judgment of a Court refusing probate, it has been said, is as much a judgment in rem as one which grants it Such a judgment takes away from 11 41 1 -- 1 -1 - - - 1 does not conclusively show that the will propounded is not the genuine will of the testator. From a refusal to grant probate it by no means necessarily follows that, in the opinion of the Court, the will propounded is not the genuine will of the testator. It may

To operate conclusively there must !

the genuineness of the will. A mere been given of the execution of the will probate on the part of the executors when they are in a position to support it with more complete proof.(3) Where the genuineness of the will is not disputed and the applicant is not legally incapable, the Court has no discretion to refuse probate (4) The judgment of a Probate Court granting, or refusing probate is a judgment in rem, and, therefore, the judgment of any other Court in a proceeding inter partes cannot be pleaded in bar of an investigation in the Probate Court as to the factum of the will propounded in that Court. The only sudgment that can be put forward in a Court of Probate in support of the plea of res judicata is a judgment of a competent Court of Probate (5) In the undermentioned case(6) it was held that the order of a Judge was ultra rires which was passed under section 476 of the Criminal Procedure Code, so long as the probate of the religious and have been been seen as all a seen as a line. 10 P 1 1 ness of a will, and : '1' artificate to a Compatition trade attack there is a or to convict any person or having rorged a writ which had been found to be genuine by a competent Court, and that this section provides that in such matters the finding of the Civil Court is conclusive. A grant of letters of administration, with the will annexed, does not make any question as to the title to property covered by, or as to the construction of the will, res judicata in a subsequent suit in which such title or construction come in issue. (7)

Matrimo nial juris-liction

The Courts exercise matrimonial jurisdiction under the Indian Divorce Act.(8) and other Acts(9) relating to marriage and divorce A decree of divorce, though conclusive inter ownes that the parties have been divorced.

L R. 966 (1904)

<sup>(1)</sup> Greich Chunder v., Broughton, 14 ( P., 875. per Ticyclyan, J.

<sup>(2)</sup> Chinnasams v. Harsharabadra, 16 M. 380. 383 (1893)

<sup>(3)</sup> Canesh Jarganath . Ramchandra Ganesh, 21 13 . 563 (1896)

<sup>(4)</sup> Hara Coomar v. Desirgamons, 21 C., 195

<sup>(1892),</sup> Pran Nath v. Jadu Nath, 20 A., 189 (1897) (5) Chinagams , Harshardsadra, 16 M , pp.

<sup>(6)</sup> Mansonals Iteli v Rosadas Shows, 4 C W N, claret (1900)

<sup>(7)</sup> Arunmoyi Lan v Mohenden Nath, 20 C. 189 (1893) . 'It has been held that in a proceeding upon an application for probate of a will the only question which the Court is called upon to determine is whether the will is true or not, and that it is not the province of the Court to date name any question of title with reference to the property covered by the will-" it, 891 805. Behary Lall v. Juggo Mohun, 4 C. 1 Brey Noth \ Chandar Mohan, 19 A. 458 (1897) Jaquanatu Pro-ad . Ranjel Singh, 25 C. 354, 369 (1897) [shebatship] Ochanium v Dulatram, 6 Rom

<sup>(8)</sup> Act IV of 1869 as to the reatemorphis jurisdiction of the High Courts see Letters patent, 1885, cl (35)

<sup>(9)</sup> Acts XV of 1872 (Indian Christian Marrisge), N of 1865 (Parsee Marriage and Divorce); XXI of 1866 (Native Convert's Marriage Discolution), III of 1872 (Relating to Marriage Intween persons not professing the Christian, Jewish, Hindu, Mulioniniadan, Parsi, Buildhist, bikh or Jama religious)

is not conclusive, nor even prima facie, evidence against strangers that the cause for which the decree was pronounced existed.(1) But such a decree in common with others may be re-opened on the ground of fraud or collusion. (2) The general rule with regard to foreign judgments is that they are conclusive where the marriage was solemnized and the parties domiciled in the foreign country.(3) Section 20 of the Indian Divorce Act (IV of 1869) does not make the proviso in the seventeenth section applicable to the confirmation by the High Court of a decree of nullity of marriage made by a District Judge. and such a decreee may therefore be confirmed before the expiration of six months from the pronouncement thereof. Assuming the proviso in the seventeenth section to be applicable to a decree of nullity, a decree by High Court confirming the same before the six months' period has expired cannot on that ground be treated as made by a Court not competent to make it, within the meaning of sections 41 and 44 of the Evidence Act, and is therefore under section 41 conclusive proof that the marriage was null and void.(4)

See with regard to this jurisdiction, the Letters Patent of the High Admiralty Courts(5) and the Colomal Courts of Admiralty Act, 1890,(6) which abolishes tion the Vice-Admiralty Courts, and enacts that every Court of law in British possession which is for the time being declared in pursuance of this Act to be a Court of Admiralty, or which, if no such declaration is in force in the possesjurisdiction, shall be a Court of Ad-, mentioned, and may, for the purpose

ers which it possesses for the purpose of its other civil jurisdiction, and such Court in reference to the jurisdiction conferred by this Act is in this Act referred to as a Colonial Court of Admiralty.(7) It is with reference to vessels condemned as prizes that questions concerned with this jurisdiction usually arise, and to such judgments of condemnation, the last paragraph of this section will be applicable

The Presidency High Courts exercise this jurisdiction under their res- insolvency pective Charters, (8) and the Statute II & 12 Vic , cap 21, and the Mofussil Jurisdiction. Courts under Chapter XX of the Code of Civil Procedure

Judgments, orders or decrees other than those men-Relevancy tioned in section 41, are relevant if they relate to matters of a public(9) nature relevant to the inquiry: but such judgments, orders or decrease. orders or decrees are not conclusive proof of that which they other than those menstate.

section 41

Illustration.

A sucs B for trespass on his land. B alleges the existence of a public right of way over the land, which A denies.

The existence of a decree in favour of the defendant, in a suit by A against C for a way, is trespass on the same land, in which Calleged the existence of

App Cas, 43, Hukm Chand, op of , 527

<sup>(1)</sup> Kanhya Loll v Radha Churn 7 W R . 338 (1867) s ante p 378, note (1). As to the n= of a decree in a previous suit, see Ruch v. Ruch L R P D (1896), 152

<sup>(2)</sup> S 44, and we Perry v Meditorcraft 10

Ikas . 138, 139 (3) Westlake, Private International Law 19

<sup>48, 721,</sup> me Sindare v Sindare, 1 Hage, 244 Rach v. Garran, I Ves. St., 157. Shaw v. Grall 3 F & I. App., 35. Harrey v. Falmir, L. B. .

see Broughton op. est. 13% (9 See Horager v. I res. 25 B., 441 (1946)

<sup>(4)</sup> Caston v. Laston, 22 A., 270 (1900), see . 44, pod.

<sup>(5)</sup> Letters Patent 1855, cls. (32), (33)

<sup>(6) 57 &</sup>amp; 54 Vect 327 See in the matter of the British milion ship Falls of Ellert. 22 ( 311 (1495 47 Po . . 2 see Broughton, up cst , 149-154 18: No Letters Patent 18:5 (Calcutta), cl. 18;

of an executor. I do not think that the circumstance that in the particular case the powers of the executor may be limited makes any difference in the construction of the section."(1)

The indoment of a Court refusing probate, it has been said, is as much a judgment in rem as one which grants it. Such a judgment takes away from the executors named in the will the legal character of executors and from the legatees and beneficiaries their legal character, and this result is final as against all persons interested under the will (2) But every refusal to grant probate does not conclusively show that the will propounded is not the genuine will of the testator. From a refusal to grant probate it by no means necessarily follows that, in the opinion of the Court, the will propounded is not the genuine will of the testator. It may be based upon entirely different grounds To operate conclusively there must have been a prior final decision against the genuineness of the will. A mere finding that sufficient evidence has not been given of the execution of the will, will not preclude a fresh application for probate on the part of the executors when they are in a position to support it with more complete proof.(3) Where the genuineness of the will is not disputed and the applicant is not legally incapable, the Court has no discretion to refuse probate (4) The judgment of a Probate Court granting, or refusing probate is a judgment in rem, and, therefore, the judgment of any other Court in a proceeding unter partes cannot be pleaded in har of an investigation in the Probate Court as to the factum of the will propounded in that Court. The only judgment that can be put forward in a Court of Probate in support of the plea of res judicata is a judgment of a competent Court of Probate, (5) In the undermentioned case(6) it was held that the order of a Judge was ultra vices which was passed under section 476 of the Criminal Procedure was unrevoked and that it was for th ness of a will, and that it was not open or to convict any person of having for genuine by a competent Court, and that this section provides that in such matters the finding of the Civil Court is conclusive. A grant of letters of administration, with the will annexed, does not make any question as to the title to property covered by, or as to the construction of the will, respudicate in a subsequent suit in which such title or construction come in issue. (1)

The Courts exercise matrimonial jurisdiction under the Indian Divorce Act.(8) and other Acts(9) relating to marriage and divorce A decree of divorce, though conclusive inter ownes that the parties have been divorced.

Matrimonial jurisdiction

<sup>(1)</sup> Girich Chunder v Broughton, 14 C P., 875, per Tievelyan, J

<sup>(2)</sup> Chinna same v. Harcharubadra, 18 M., 380, 383 (1893)

<sup>(3)</sup> Ganesh Jaggunath v Ramchandra Ganesh, 21 B , 583 (1896)

 <sup>(4)</sup> Hara Cormar v. Deorgamoni, 21 C., 195
 (1802) Fran Nath v. Jada Nath, 20 A., 189 (1897)
 (5) Chinnasami v. Hariharabadra, 16 M., pp. 383, 284

<sup>(6)</sup> Manjanals Ibbs v Randas Showe, 4 C W. N. elvest (1900)

<sup>(7)</sup> Arannoya Bani v. Mohendra Nath, 20 C. 189 (1803) 'It has been held that in a proceeding upon an application for probate of a will the coly question which the Court is called upon to determine is whether the will is true or not, and that it is not the province of the Court to deter.

name any question of the with inference to the pages its created by the mill—2 by 804 keVs. Behavey Lall & Jagoo Mohan, 4 C. 1 Res. 1866. Chandar Mohan, 16 A, 458 (1897) Jagonanto Prand & Reary Singh, 5 C. 535, 369 (1997) [shebantship] Ochonoma & Didatum 6 Bont I. R, 966 (1997)

<sup>(8)</sup> Act IV of 1869 as to the matrimonial jurisdiction of the High Courts we Letters jutent, 1865, cl. (35)

<sup>[9]</sup> Acts AV of 1822 (Indian Christian Marrang), Xv of 1865 (Parsee Marriage and Draceci), XXI of 1885 (Native Convert's Marriage Bissonlation), 111 of 1872 (Relating to Marriage Extract persons not professing the Circuitan, Jewsch, Handu, Mubominoslan, Parsi, Buddhat, Sikh of Janar Pulghuva.

is not conclusive, nor even prima facie, evidence against strangers that the cause for which the decree was pronounced existed.(1) But such a decree in common with others may be re-opened on the ground of fraud or collusion. (2) The general rule with regard to foreign judgments is that they are conclusive where the marriage was solemnized and the parties domiciled in the foreign country.(3) Section 20 of the Indian Divorce Act (IV of 1869) does not make the proviso in the seventeenth section applicable to the confirmation by the High Court of a decree of nullity of marriage made by a District Judge. and such a decreee may therefore be confirmed before the expiration of six months from the pronouncement thereof. Assuming the proviso in the seventeenth section to be applicable to a decree of nullity, a decree by High Court confirming the same before the six months' period has expired cannot on that ground be treated as made by a Court not competent to make it, within the meaning of sections 41 and 44 of the Evidence Act, and is therefore under section 41 conclusive proof that the marriage was null and youd.(4)

See with regard to this jurisdiction, the Letters Patent of the High Admiralty Courts(5) and the Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act, 1890,(6) which abolishes tion the Vice-Admiralty Courts, and enacts that every Court of law in British possession which is for the time being declared in pursuance of this Act to be a Court of Admiralty, or which, if no such declaration is in force in the possession, has therein original unlimited civil jurisdiction, shall be a Court of Admiralty, with the jurisdiction in this Act mentioned, and may, for the purpose of that jurisdiction, exercise all the powers which it possesses for the purpose of its other civil jurisdiction, and such Court in reference to the jurisdiction conferred by this Act is in this Act referred to as a Colonial Court of Admiralty.(7) It is with reference to vessels condemned as prizes tha questions concerned with this jurisdiction usually arise, and to such judgments of condemnation, the last paragraph of this section will be applicable

The Presidency High Courts exercise this jurisdiction under their res- insolvency . pective Charters, (8) and the Statute II & 12 Vic, cap 21, and the Mofusul jurisdic-Courts under Chapter XX of the Code of Civil Procedure.

42. Judgments, orders or decrees other than those men-relevancy tioned in section 41, are relevant if they relate to matters of a judgments, public(9) nature relevant to the inquiry. but such judgments, decrees, orders or decrees are not conclusive proof of that which they other than those agent. state. section 41

Illnstration.

A sues B for trespass on his land B alleges the existence of a public right of way over the land, which .1 denies

The existence of a decree in favour of the defendant, in a suit by A against C for a way, is trespass on the same land, in which Calleged the existence of

<sup>(1)</sup> Kanhun Lall v Rodha Churn 7 W R . 138 (1807) a mate p 37%, mode (1). As to the use of a decree in a previous suit we Ruck v. Ruck

L P P D (1896), 152 (2) S. 44 past see Perry v. Mediocendt 10

Feb. 139 139 (3) Westlake Private International Law &

<sup>46, 321,</sup> see Similare v. Similare, J. Hage., 294., Ruch's Garma, I Vos Sr. 157 Marc's Goalf 3 F & L. App., 55 Harry v Falmer L. B. . App Cas., 43 Hukm Chand, op Ct., 527

<sup>(4) (</sup>aston ) (aston, 22 A, 270 (1900); see · 44. 1418.

<sup>(5)</sup> Letters Patent, 1865, els (32), (33)

<sup>(6) 53 &</sup>amp; 54 Vict . 327. See in the matter of the British miling ship ' Falls of Filled," 22 C 711 (1895)

<sup>(7)</sup> Pr , = 2 we Broughton, op. ret , 149-154 (8) See Letters Patent, 1865 (Calcutta), cl. 18; ere Broughton op. cit., 154.

<sup>(9</sup> So Heinger v. Inc. 23 B., 441 (1940)

the same right of relevant, but it is not conclusive, proof that the right of way exists.(1)

Principle.—This section also forms an exception to the general rule that no one shall be affected or prejudiced by judgments to which he is not party or privy. (2) In matters of public right, however, the new party to the second proceeding, as one of the public, has been virtually a party to the former proceeding. (3) Judgments of this character (which are regarded as a species of reputation) are said to be receivable on the same grounds as evidence of reputation, which in matters of public or general interest is admissible. (4) On account of the public nature of the earlier proceedings an exception is made to the rules which excludes res inter altos acta. (5) But the earlier judgment is not conclusive, and the technical considerations by which the rule as to res judicada is narrowed, lose all their force when it is considered whether the underment may be used, not as a bar, but merely as evidence in the cause. (6)

```
ss. 40, 41, 43 (Judgments, orders, decrees.) ss 13, 32, cl. (4), 48 (Public right and custom)
```

s. 4 (" Conclusive proof.")

Steph. Dig., Art. 44; Taylor, Ev., §§ 624-626, 1682, 1683; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 261, 385; Starkie, Ev., 386-388, Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 190-192; Wills, Ev., 176, 177.

COMMENTARY.

Judgments upon matters of a public nature.

The English rule (which is reproduced by this section)(7) is that on questions of public or general interest, wherein reputation is evidence, the verdict, judgment or order, even inter allow, of a competent tribunal is admissible, not as tending to prove any specific fact existing at the time, but as evidence of the most solemn kind of an adjudication upon the state of facts and the question of usage at the time.(8) The relevancy of adjudications upon vubjects of a public rature (which means subjects of public or general interests, and customs), such as customs, to the general rule that judgor against strangers in proof of nature, as evidence of reputation or this purpose are regarded as a and this too, whether the parties in the second suit be those who litigated the first or utter strangers (9) The effect, however, of the adjudication, when adjusted, will so far yary that if

in the second suit be those an ingested in the second straight of the deflect, however, of the adjudication, when admitted, will so far vary that, if the parties be the same in both suits, they will be bound by the previous judgment; thut if the litigants in the second suit be strangers to the parties in the first, the judgment, though admissible, will not be conclusive (10) It ough

<sup>(1)</sup> See Petrs v. Nuttall, 11 Ex , 569

<sup>(2)</sup> Judgments are relevant under this section not as res judicals, but as evidence, whether between the same parties or not Gujin Lall v. Fatth Lall, 6 C, 174, 491, post

<sup>(3)</sup> Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall, 6 C, 171, 183 (1890); per Pontalev, J

<sup>(4)</sup> Taylor, Ev. §§ 1082, 1683 (s. post), Norton, Ev. 216; see s. 32, 1 (s), ante. When Junever summoned de reviselo, and assumed to be acquainted with the subject in controversy, there excludes were properly evalence of reputations but at the present day they are not so see Taylor, Ev. § 6.24; Wille Ev. 176, 177.

<sup>(5)</sup> See Norton, Ev., 216, Madhub Chunder, Tomee Bunah, 7 W. R., 210 (1867). Bai Baija v. Bai Nantol., 20 B., 53, 57, 58 (198) (1894).

<sup>(6)</sup> Durga Doss v. Norendro Coemar, 6 W. R., 232 (1866)

<sup>(7)</sup> Norton, Ev., 218
(8) Taylor, Ev., § 624, 4s to the meaning of "public or general interest" see s. 32, 1, (4).

aste. (9) Taylor, Ev., $\frac{1}{2}\frac{1682}{1683}, Field, Ev., 105, 106, Wills, Ev., 176, 177

<sup>(10)</sup> Taylor, Ev , § 1683, and see generally textbooks cited, supra.

to appear clearly from the previous judgment that the question of custom was determined.(1) The most satisfactory evidence of an enforcement of a custom is a final decree based on the custom.(2) The existence of local custom, such as a right of pre-emption is a matter of a public nature, and previous judgments will be admissible under this section in proof thereof. (3) Manorial customs may also be of a similar character.(4) sued for damages for value of timber carried away by Government, after being washed on to his estate, and to have his right declared, as against Government, to all timbers that in the future may be washed on to his estate, it was held that it was not necessary for the plaintiff to produce in support of the right some decree or decision of competent authority establishing the custom.(5) Where a custom alleged to be followed by any particular class of people is in dispute, judicial decisions in which such custom has been recognised as the custom of the class in question are good evidence of the existence of such custom.(6) Judicial decisions recognizing the existence of a disputed custom amongst the Jains of one place are very relevant as evidence of the existence of the same custom amongst the Jains of another place, unless it is shown that the customs are different; and oral evidence of the same kind is equally admissible. There is nothing to limit the scope of the enquiry to the particular locality in which the persons setting up the custom reside (7) In a suit brought by the trustees of a temple to recover from the owners of certain lands in certain villages money claimed under an alleged r ght as due to the temple, it was held that judgments in other suits against other persons in which claims under the same right had been decreed in favour of the trustees of the temple were relevant under this section as relating to matters of a public nature (8) A custom under which lands are held is a matter of public and general interest to all the villagers, and a former decree is most cogent evidence against them of the existence and validity of the custom The existence of customs of whose exercise a plaintiff seeks to enforce (9) succession in particular communities is a matter of public interest, and decrees sible under the present action.

<sup>(1)</sup> Tota Ram v. Mohun Lall, 2 Agra, 120, 121 (1867), see also Laybourn v Cresp, 4 M & W. 42, 325, 326, as to reading of the decree in connection with the judgment, see Shet Gonesh t Kesharras, 15 P., 635 (1890), port

<sup>(2)</sup> Gurdyal Mal v Jhandu Mal, 10 4, 580 (1888), Luchman Ras v Akbar Khan, 1 A., 445 (1877).

<sup>(3)</sup> Madhub Chunder v Tomee Bewah, 7 W R , 210 (1867) . Tota Ram v Mohun Lall, 2 Agra. 129 (1867), [in this case, however, it was held that a previous decree made in pursuance of a compromise could not be cited as any judicial deration of the existence of the custom, or any admission by the defendant in that suit, that such a rustom submisted]. Shaikh hurdintorlah s Mohins Mishon, 5 Rev Civ & Cr Rep. 200 (1807) [Decisions of local Courts, where not conflicting, may be good proof of local customs. See also as conflicting decisions, Inder Narain v Mahomed Nazarondia, 1 W. Pt., 234 (1864). Gurdayri Mal v. Jaandu Mal. 10 4 . 583 (1888) . (in this last mentioned case the Court appears to have Admitted the previous judgments under s 13 (b)]. Collector of Gorakhpur v Palakdhars Singh, 12 A. 117; but they would have also been admis-

<sup>(4)</sup> Lachman Ras v. 4kbar Khan, I. A., 440. 441 (1877), as to manorial rights, see Aglian Days v Bhageraths, 6 A , 47 (1883) , Lola v Hera Singh, 2 A., 49 (1878). Aklar Khan v Sheiratan, 1 A. 373 (1877) Sheebaran v Bhaveo Prama, 7 A , 880 (1895), in the case of the Lower Provmees, eer Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885). se 74, 183, and Reg VIII of 1793 a 51

<sup>(5)</sup> Chuttor Lall v The Government, 9 W R. 97 (1868) [rights of Lords of Manors]

<sup>(6)</sup> Shimbu Nath v. Gayan Chand, 16 A. 379 (1894). Harnath Pershad v Mundal Dass, 27 ( .

<sup>379 (1899)</sup> (7) Harnath Pershad v Mundal Dass, 27 ( , <sup>(8)</sup> Ramasims v. Apparu, 12 Mal 9 (1887). the judgments were also held to be relevant under s 13, ante, as being evidence of instances in which the right claimed had been ascertained See x 13, ante ner also Nallathambs Battar v Milakumaka Pillar 7 Mad. H ( R., 308 (1873).

<sup>379 (1899),</sup>

<sup>(9)</sup> Lenkalaswams Nayaklam v SuDa Rau, 2 Nad H C R., 1, 6 (1864), rer Scotland, C. J. as to judgment in regard to the nature of the interest of a certain family and of a shrine in certain villages see Stri Ganest v. Kestaceret Gorsed, 15 B . 625, 635 (1870).

of connecent Courts are good evidence thereof.(1) In a sout by the landlords to avoid the sale of an occupancy-holding in their mouza and eject the purchaser thereof, one of the questions was as to the existence of a custom or usage under which the raivat was entitled to sell such a holding. It was held that a judgment of the High Court as to the transferability of similar tenures in an adjoining village of the same pergunnah was admissible as evidence of such usage under this section.(2) It has been held in England that neither interlocutory orders not involving any judgment upon the rights of the parties. awards, nor claims not prosecuted to judgment are admissible under the rule which is contained in this section.(3) Many matters may go to the weight of this class of evidence which will not, however, affect its admissibility. Thus it matters not with respect to the admissibility, though it may as to the weight of such evidence that the judgment has been suffered by default, or, though of a very recent date, is not supported by any proof of execution or of the payment of damages.(4) And judgments standing upon a different footing from ordinary declarations by private persons, the conditions as to his motor do not, and indeed cannot, apply to them (5)

Judgments etc, other than those mentioned in ss 40 to 42 when relevant 43. Judgments, orders of decrees, other than those mentioned in sections 40, 41 and 42, are irrelevant, unless the existence of such judgment, order or decree, is a fact in issue, of its relevant under some other provisions of this Act.

Mustratums

- (a) A and B separately suc C for a libel which reflects upon each of them. C in cach case says, that the matter alleged to be libellous is true, and the circumstances are such that it is probably true in each case, or in notiber.
- A obtains a decree against  $\ell$  for damages on the ground that  $\ell'$  failed to make out his justification—The fact is urelevant as between B and  $C_{\ell}(b)$
  - (b) A prosecutes B for adultery with C, A's wife
    - B denies that C is A's wife, but the Court convicts B of adulters
- Afterwards, C is prosecuted for bigamy in marrying B during A * lifetime -C says that she never was A * wife.

The judgment against B is irrelevant as against C.

- (c) A prosecutes B for stealing a cow from him. B is convicted
- A atterwards succ C for the cow, which B had sold to him before his conviction. As between A and C, the judgment against B is irrelevant.
- (d) A has obtained a decree for the possession of land against B = C, B's son, murders A in consequence.
  - Bar Barji v Bar Santok, 20 B., 53, 57, 58
     B41
- (2) Dalglish v. Guzuffer Hassain, 23 C, 427
- (3) Taylor, E., § 6.26, the last mentioned claims, though medimentals as evidence of requirements, the admissible as evidence of each of mention may, however, is admissible as evidence of acts of ownership these old Bills and Anserthy the cold Bills and Anserthy the cold Bills and Anserthy the cold Bills and Anserthy the Color of the Latter of acts of ownership the color of the Latter of a public right as followed by the Color of the Latter of the Color of the Color
- an indictment whether submitted to or prosecuted to conviction was admissible as evidence of the right in suit being exercised R v Inhabitiants of Brightside, 14 Q B. 933, at to awards, see Econo. V Res., 10 A & R. 151. bit see also
- Tota Ram v. Mohan Lal. 2 Agra, 120, supra.

  (4) Taylor, Ev., § 624
  - (5) Starkie, Ev., 190, note (c)
- (8) Cf. Deorga Churn v. Shosher Bhassan, 5 W. R., ~ C C Ref., 23 (1899), in which it was held that the finding in a previous judgment was not ey dence of fraud

The existence of the judgment is relevant, as showing motive for a crime.(1) (e) A is charged with theft and with having been previously convicted of theft. The previous conviction is relevant as a fact in issue.(2)

(f) A is tried for the murder of B.

The fact that B prosecuted A for libel and that A was convicted and sentenced is relevant under section S as showing the motive for the fact in issue.(3)

Principle.-Judgments considered as judicial opinions are only relevant under sections 40-42 under the circumstances mentioned in those sections. Other judgments when tendered against strangers, are sometimes said to be

Such judgments are said not to be evidence for a stranger, even against a party because their operation would thus not be mutual. The propriety of this last ground has however been questioned.(6) But if the existence of the judgment is a fact in issue or relevant under some other provision of this Act the judgment is not excluded.(7)

Steph. Dig., Arts. 40, 42, 44; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 359-389; Taylor, Ev., §§ 1667. 1668, 1682, 1694; Best, Ev., § 590; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 190-192.

COMMENTARY.

It has been seen that section 40 deals with the effect of judgments as Judgments barring suits or trials by reason amongst others, of their being res judicata orders and that section 41 deals with the effect of the so-called judgments in rem and other than section 42 with the admissibility of judgments relating to matters of a public ready mennature. This section declares that judgments, orders, and decrees, other than tioned those mentioned in those sections, are of themselves irrelevant, that is, in the sense that they can have any such effect or operation as mentioned in those sections qua judgments, orders and decrees, that is, as adjudications upon and proof of the particular points which they decide (8) For a former judgment which is not a judgment 'ic nature.(10)

is not admissible

or as proof of th

same parties or th

12 A (F B), 1, 25 (1889)

(1) Gujja Lall v Fatteh Lall, 6 C , 181 (2) Illusts (e) and (f) have been added by s 5, Act III of 1891 See also Lakshman v Amrit, 24 B , 591, 593 (1900)

(3) R v Fontaino Mobeau, 11 Q B, 1028, 1035, per Lord Denman, C J, Krishnasoms Ayyangar v Rajagopala Ayyangar, 18 M., 77 (1893), Gunu Lall v Fatteh Lall, 6 C at p 188, per

Garth, C. J. (4) Steph. Dig. Art 14, Wharf, s 280, but er Phipson, Ev , 3rd Ed , 384 (5) Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 384, where the grounds of this rule are considered, Gujju Lall v Fattel Lall, 6 C at p. 189 Taylor, Ev.

(6) Taylor, Et , § 1682, as to bankruptey, administration, and divorce proceedings, see Phipeon, Er , 3rd Ed , 385-387.

(7) See Notes to s. 13 ante. (b) Collector of Goralkyore v Palaldhari Singh.

- - (9) Under a. 41, ante (10) Under a 42, ante (11) Under s 40, ante

(12) S 43, in effect declares that for such purpose they are irrelevant see R v. Parchudas, 11

Bom H C R , 90, 96 (1874). The sole object for which it was sought to use the former judgment in Gujju Lall v. Fattch Lall (a past) was to show that in another suit against another defendant the plaintiff had obtained an adjudication in his favour on the same right, and it was held that the opinion expressed in the former judgment was not a relevant fact within the meaning of the Evidence Act." Krishnasami Ayyangar v. Espograpola Ayyangar, 18 M., 77

(13) Gujju Lall v. Fattch Lall, 6 c. (F.R.), 171, see ss. 13, 40, sate, and Notes thereto.

W. LE

judicata,(11)

between the t section expressly contemplates cases in which judgments would be admissible either arfacts in issue or as relevant facts under other sections of the Act. And as to this Garth, C.J., in the case has cited, said: "This is quite true. But then I take it that the cases so contemplated by section 43 are those where a judgment is used not as a res judicata, as evidence more or less binding upon an opponent by reason of the adjudication which it contains (because judgments of that kind had already been dealt with under one or other of the mmediately preceding sections). But the cases referred to in section 43 are such, I conceive, as the section itself illustrates, viz., when the fact of any to be proved in the case. As that he had been convicted of the alleged slander was true.

other fact in the case, and quite irrespective of whether A had been actually guilty of the forgery or not. This, I conceive, would be one of the many cases alluded to in the forty-third section (1) And though judgments other than those mentioned in sections 40-42 are irrelevant qua-judgments, this section does not make them absolutely madmissible when they are the best evidence of something that may be proved diamde.(2) The existence of such judgment may be a fact in issue,(3) or it may be a relevant fact,(4) otherwise than ints character of a judgment.

With regard to the existence of the judgment, its date or its legal consequences, the prduction of the record or of a certified copy is conclusive evidence of the facts of th a public transac recorded.(5) "I and sues the privilence for the plaintiff to establish the jact of acquittal, although the parties are necessarily not the same in the action as in the indictment, (6) but it is no evidence whatever that the defendant was the prosecutor, even though his lice or of want of probaverdict, is still at liberty pay the amount of damages awarded, but it is not evidence of the fact upon which it was founded, namely, the misconduct of the servant or agent.(10) So, a judgment recovered against a surety will be evidence for him to prove the amount which he has been compelled to pay for the principal debtor; but it furnishes no proof whatever of his having been legally liable to pay that amount through the principal's default.(11) Thesame doctrine will apply to other cases where the party has a remedy, over, as for contribution, or the

<sup>(1)</sup> Gujju Lall, v. Fatteh Lall, 6 C. at p. 192

<sup>(2)</sup> Collector of Goralhpore v. Palakéhars Singh, 12 A. (F. B.), 1, 25 (1889).

<sup>(3)</sup> Sec s 43, ull (c)

<sup>(4)</sup> See s. 43, illude (d), (f), and s. 54, explonation (2). (5) v. ante, Introduction to ss. 40-44; Abinach

Chandra v. Paresh Nath, 9 C. W. N., 402, 410 (1904); Taylor, Ev., sa. 1667, Phipson. Ev., 3rd Ed., 359; as to certified copies, see a 76, post.

<sup>61, 359;</sup> as to certified copyrs, see a 76, po (6) Legalt v Tollerrey, 14 East, 302.

<sup>(7)</sup> B. N. P., 14,

<sup>(*)</sup> Parcell v Macnamara, 9 East, 361, In-

<sup>(9)</sup> B. N. P., 15 {10} Green v. New River Co., 4 T. R., 589; Problem v. Hitchcock, 6 M. & Gr., 185, per Crosswell,

<sup>(11)</sup> King v. Norman, 4 C. B., 894, 898.

hke.(1) In an action against a surety where the defence was that the plaintiff had received certain moneys from the principal in satisfaction of his damages it was held that the plaintiff, in traversing this plea, might put in evidence a judgment recovered from him by the assignees of the principal for the amount 'so received as money had to their use, not indeed as conclusive proof that the money had been paid to him by the principal in the way of fraudulent preference, but as showing that he had actually repaid the money to the assignees, and as generally remained the money had been paid to find the satisfaction. ''I'm Saif the latter the to dispense the first property of the same than the same that the same than the s trial, the judgm be strangers, will be admissible for the purpose of introducing the evidence of his former statements.(3) Judgments are admissible when they are tendered for the purpose of contradicting the testimony of a witness. So where if having sworn that her son B was born on March 18th, i.e., five days after her marriage, an application order of deceased Justices reciting that A swore B was born on March 8th was received to contradict her testimony though not to prove the bastardy or date of birth.(4) Upon an indictment for perjury committed in a trial the record will be evidence to show that such a trial was had(5) and if a party be indicted for aiding the escape of a felon from prison, the production of the record of conviction from the proper custody will be conclusive evidence that the prisoner was convicted of the crime stated therein. (6) So where the judgment constitutes one of the muniments of the party's title to land or goods,—as where a deed was made under a decree in Chancery (7) or goods were purchased at a sale made by a sheriff upon an execution, (8) the record may be given in evidence against a party who is a stranger to it. So, in an action to recover lands, a decree in a suit between the defendant's father. and other persons unconnected with the plaintiff, which directed that the father should be let into possession of the estate as his own property, has been held admissible on behalf of the defendant not as proof of any of the facts therein stated, but for the purpose of explaining in what character the father, through which the defendant claimed, had afterwards taken actual possession of the estate.(9) Many other instances might be given of the admissibility of judgments inter alsos, where the record is matter of inducement, or merely introductory to other evidence; but those cited will suffice to illustrate the principle (10) A Judgment may be relevant as between strangers if it is an admission being received in favour of a stranger against one of the parties as an admission by such party in a judicial proceeding with respect to a certain fact (11) This is no exception to the rule which requires mutuality, since the record is not received as a judgment conclusively establishing the fact but merely as the declaration of the party that the fact was so. Thus not appealing against an adverse judgment may operate as an admission by the party of its correctness (12) . And a stranger to a judgment may also be estopped thereby, not directly but by his acquiescence therein (13) So if A pleads guilty to a crime and is convicted, the record of judgment upon this plea is admissible against him in a civil action, as a solemn judicial confession of the fact.(1) But if A pleads not guilty to a crime, but is convicted, the record of judgment upon this plea is not receivable against A in a civil action as an admission to prove his guilt.(2) For the judgment contains no admission, and in conformity with the rule which rejects judgments inter partes as evidence either for or against strangers to prove the facts adjudicated, a judgment in a criminal prosecution unless admissible as evidence in the nature of reputation(3) or, taken in communition with the prosecution, as an act of ownership (4) cannot be received in a civil action to establish the truth of the facts on which it was rendered , and a judgment in a civil action, or an award, cannot be given in evidence for such a purpose in a criminal prosecution (5) Technically, the judgments are madmissible as not being between the same parties, the parties in the prosecution heing the Queen-Empress on the one hand, and the prisoner on the other, and in the civil suit the prisoner and some third party, and substantially, because the issues in a civil and criminal proceeding are not the same, and the burden of proof tests in each case on different shoulders.(6) Thus A is convicted of forging B's signature to a bill of exchange. B is afterwards sued by C. to whom A has transferred the bill A's conviction is not admissible to prove the forgery (7) So again a certificate of acquittal on a charge of rape is not admissible to disprove the rape in a divorce-suit founded thereon.(8) A mother murdering her son is not beneficially entitled to take his estate by inheritance, but the fact of her having been acquitted or convicted is not relevant in a civil court upon the question whether she has committed the wrongful act imputed to her and, if so, whether by such act she has forfeited her rights of inheritance (9) A stranger to a judgment may also be

<sup>(1)</sup> R. v. Fontasne Moreau, 11 Q B 1028 1033, per Lord Denman, C J ' Why does what a man anys of himself cease to be evidence by being stud in Court"? As to a pira of guilti being evidence of an admission, we Adamie Chunder v Madhoo Aybert, 10 W. R., 56 (1808) A plea of guilty in the Cruminal Lourt may but a verdect of conviction cannot, be considered in evidence in a civil case; Taylor, Ev., $ 1694

<sup>(2)</sup> R . Warden of the Fleet, 12 Mad. 339. and v. post.

<sup>(3) &</sup>amp; 42, ante Taylor, Ev , 5$ 1593, 624

<sup>(4)</sup> Taylor, Er , §§ 169J

<sup>(5)</sup> Taylor, Ev , § 1693, and cases there cited . Castrique : Imrie, L. R., 4 E & I., 434, Keenmutodlah Chmedkry v Gholam Hosmen, 9 W R . 77 (1888), [A proceeding of a criminal Court se not admissible as exidence a Civil Court is bound to find the facts steelf), Bushmath Nergy v. Hura Gobind, 5 W. P., 27 (1808) The conviction in a criminal case is not conclusive in a civil suit for damages in respect of the same act). Netyanund Surmah v Kashinath Nyafunler, 5 11. R., 26 (1886) [A Civil Court is not bound to adopt the view of a Magatrate as to the genomeness or otherwise of a document1: Doctor Daser. Doorge Churn, 6 W. R., Cir. Rel., 28 (1866). TA aust for money forcibly taken from the plaintiff in the defendent is maintainable in Civil Court, notwithstanding the defendants' accounted in the Criminal Court on the charge of robbery; Ab Bulsh v. Shaukh Samsrudden. 4

B L B . A C , 31 (1869) 1 W R , 477 In a suit for damages for an asseult. The persons conraction of the defendant in a Criminal Court is no evalence of the assault. The factum of the assault must be treed in the (mil Court R , Bedger (1852), at p 135 Agoremach Rose v Radhika Pershad. 14 W R . 339 (1870) Gogun Chunder v. R . S C . 247 (1880) Rom Lold . Tulla Ram, 4 A , 97 (1880) Set Ray Lumare : Bama Aundare, 23 C , 610 (1896), in which, hourses Ghose, J , observed that he was not propored to say that the decision in a cavil sust would not be admiswhile in exidence in a criminal case if the parties were substantially the same and the money in the two cases identical Rampini J. contra. Manjanud Debs v Ramdas Shinne, 4 ( W K. ciant (1908) For a case in which a cred judgment was rejected in a criminal proceeding see R 1-Fontaine Moreau, 11 Q B , 18128

<sup>(6)</sup> Gogun Chunder 1 R , 8 ( 247 (1890), per White, i

<sup>(7)</sup> Cadrique > Imrie, L. R. 4 E. & I. 234; Parsons v. London County Council, 9 T L. R.

<sup>(8)</sup> June 1 Times, 69 L T , 460 See also an the trial of A as accessory, to a felony committed by R , the conviction of B though admissible to prove that fact, as no evalence of B a guilt See Phipson, Ev , 3rd Ed , 387, et ile eases bound by it if he has so contracted. Thus, if A contract to indemnify B against any damages recoverable against the latter by C, and B has bond fide defended the action and paid the amount, the judgment will be conclusive of A's liability. But this does not apply where B has no contract with, but merely a claim against A for such indemnity.(1) In the absence of special agreement, a judgment or an award against a principal debtor is not binding on the surety, and is not evidence against him in an action against him by the creditor, but the surety is entitled to have the liability proved as against him in the same way as against the principal debtor.(2) As to decrees considered as evidence of the necessity of alienation, see authorities cited below.(3)

<sup>(9)</sup> l'edanoyagur Mudulser s Ledanmal, 14 Mad, L. J , 207.

44. Any party to a suit or other proceeding may shew Fraud or collusion is that any judgment, order or decree which is relevant under obtaining sections 40, 41 or 42, and which has been proved by the adverse or incompensative, was delivered by a Court not competent to deliver it, or court not seem of the compensation of the court not competent to deliver it, or court not seem of the court not competent to deliver it, or court not competent to deliver it. was obtained by fraud or collusion.

Principle -A judgment delivered by a Court not competent(4) to deliver it, as by a Court which had no jurisdiction over the parties or the subject-matter of the suit, is a mere nullity (5) And though the maxim is stringent that no man shall be ---fraud can be shewn, this maxim when a decree is passed between each other.(7) Fraus et jus nunquam cohabitant Fraud avoids all judicial acts, ecclesiastical or temporal. It is an extrinsic collateral act, which vitiates the most solemn proceedings of Courts of Justice, which, upon being satisfied of such fraud, have a power to vacate and should vacate their own on of this rule it makes no difference whether pronounced by an inferior or by the highest it is competent for every Court, whether superior or inferior, to treat as a nullity any judgment which can be clearly shown to have been obtained by manifest fraud (9)

88. 40-42 (Judaments, orders and decrees.) s. 3 (" Court.") s. 3 (" Relevant.")

Steph. Dig., Art. 46, Taylor, Ev., §§ 1713-1717; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 362; Best, Ev., § 595; Field, Ev., 340-343; Norton, Ev., 218, 219; Wharton, Law Lexicon (1892); Hukm Chand's Res Judicata, 484.

(9) Shelden v Patrick, I Macq H L., 535, as to the procedure to be taken to set aside a deeree obtained by fraud and collusion, see Mews Lal v Bhujun Jha, 13 B. L. R., App., 11 (1874). Ashortooch Chandra v. Tare Prasanna, 10 C . 612 (1884), Eshan Chundra v Nundamons Isasses, 10 C., 357 (1884), Karamalı Rakımbkoy v Rahimbley Habibboy, 13 B , 137 (1888) Bann Lall Ramis Lall, 20 A . 370, 374 (1898), Nestarens Dasere v. Nundo Lall, 26 C. 9/7 (1899). A consent-decree cannot be set assie on motion on the ground that it was obtained by fraud and marepresentation. A separate suit must be brought for that purpose Charge of fraud cannot properly be tried on affiliavits. Followwary Dan v Woodoy Chander, 25 C., 649 (1998). See abo Act IX of 1919, Sch. t. Art. 95.

<sup>(1)</sup> Parler v Louis, 8 Ch App., 1035, 1058, 1023

<sup>(2)</sup> Ex-parte Foung In re Litchin, 17 Ch D (3) Field, Ev., 328-340, Mayne's Huidu

Law, $1 323, 324, and cases there ested (4) See Kettilamma v. Kelappan, 12 M., 224

<sup>(1897).</sup> Sardarmal v Aranvayal Sabbapathy, 21 B , 205, 212 (1896).

<sup>(5)</sup> See cases cited, post

<sup>(6)</sup> Rogers v. Hadley, 2 H & C. 247, av Huffer v. Allen, L. R., 2 Ex . 18.

<sup>(7)</sup> Bandon v. Becker, 3 C. & F., 510

<sup>(8)</sup> Duckey of Asagmon's cam, 2 Sm L. C. per Lord de Grey, C. J. . Philipson v The Earl of Egremont, 6 A & E., 357. 605. Paranje v. Kanade, 6 B., 148 (1652).

COMMENTARY.

Incompetency, fraud, collusion

When one of the parties to a sunt tenders or has put in evidence(1) at judgment, order or decree under the fortreth, forty-first, or forty-second section(2) it is open to the other party under this section to avoid its effect on any of the three grounds, (a) want of jurisdiction in the Court which delivered the judgment, (b) that the judgment was obtained through fraud, or (c) collusion.(3)

4) Гасотреt асп

A judgment delivered by a Court not competent to deliver it is a mere nullity, and cannot have any probative force whatever between the parties.(4) The words 'not competent' in this section refer to a Court acting without jurisdiction (5) And although one Court cannot set aside the proceedings of another Court, for want of jurisdiction, yet when a matter arises before a Court in the ordinary course of its jurisdiction, and one of the parties relies on, or seeks to protect himself by, the proceedings of another Court, then in that way the jurisdiction of the Court whose proceedings are pleaded may be inquired into.(6) By the law both of this country and of England anybody, whether party or stranger, against whom a previous judgment is used in a subsequent suit may impeach it in the suit in which it is so used on the ground of want of jurisdiction in the Court which passed it (7) The competency of a Court cannot depend on whether a point which it decides has been raised or argued by a party or counsel. It cannot be said that whenever a decision is wrong in law or violates a rule of procedure, the Court must be held incompetent to deliver it. It has never been and could not be held, that a Court which erroneously decrees a suit which it should have dismissed as time barred or as barred by the rule of res judicata, acts without jurisdiction and is not competent to deliver its decree. This and section 41 recognise that given the competency of the Court, even error or irregularity in the decision is a less evil than the total absence of finality which would be the only alternative (8) There is a distinction between an order which a Court is not competent to pass and an order which even if erroneous in law or in fact is within the Court's competency. (9)

(11) Frand,

The Act contains no definition of the term "fraud" for the purposes of this section. It was held in one case that the fraud must not consist in the fact of a fraudulent defence having been set up, it must be fraud in procuring the judgment, such as collusion or the like between the parties, or fraud in the Court itself (10). In a subsequent case it was said that the fraud <sup>(1)</sup> See Nistoria: Doss v. Aundo Loll, 30 C, 369, 382 (1902), where it was objected that the decree had not been proved by the adverse party.

<sup>(2)</sup> In Norton, Ev. 218, it is suggested that the same rule ought to apply in the case of a judgment, order or decree tendered under a. 43

(3) Ib See Ahmedikoy Hobibby v Vallerbhoy Casumbhoy, 6 B, 716 (1882); it was suggested that the word may be read as equivalent to "fraud and collision"; and quore, see post (4) See Kalka Parshod v. Kunhaya Singh, 7 N.-W.

P., 99 (1875), Sodrum Muser v. Crossly, 19 W. R., 284 (1873); Gunnesh Patter v. Ron Nidste. 22 W. R., 301 (1874); R. V. Basen Gothe, 8 B., 307 (1894). Where an offence is tred by a Court without jurnals too, the proceedings are void and the offender if acquitted is liable to be trad (5) Kethlamsev v. Ketapon, 12 M., 228 (1897).

<sup>(5)</sup> Ketililamner v Kelappan, 12 M., 228 (1897). Competency is bere synonymous with jurisdiction, Surdarmal v. Anorrayal Subbapathy, 21 B.

<sup>205, 212 (1896)</sup> See the same matter reported in 21 B , 297 (1897).

<sup>(6)</sup> Gunnesh Pattro v Ram Nidhee, 22 W II., 361 (1874)

<sup>(1)</sup> Raylo Panda v Lakhon Scadh, 27 C, 11, 21 (1899). Steph Dug, Art 46. Taylor, Ev. 5 1714 According to English Law while in the case of frand or collusion strangers alone may be above their existence, want of jurisdiction may be above my anybody. As to fraud and collusion in this country, v post

<sup>(8)</sup> This passage was cited with approval in Nothin Raim v Kaligan Dav, I All L J, 21, 222 (1904), s c, 28 A., 522 Caston v. Caston, 22 A. 270, 281 (1899); see z 41, onte

<sup>(9)</sup> Sardarmal v. Aurneayal Salshapathy, 21 B., 205, 211 (1896).

<sup>(10)</sup> Cammell v. Secoll, 4 Jur N S. 978, (1858). s. c., 3 H & N., 617; 5 H & N. 728, see Story, Eq. Jur., 238, § 252a, as to enquires in the Bank.

must be actual fraud, such that there is on the part of the person chargeable with it the malus animus putting itself in motion and acting in order to take an undue advantage of some other person for the purpose of actually and knowingly defrauding him. The fraud must be such as can be explained and defined on the face of a decree and mere irregularity or the insisting upon rights which, upon a due investigation of these rights might be found to be overstated or overestimated, is not the kind of fraud which will authorise the Court to set aside a decree.(1) In a subsequent case(2) an action was brought for infringement of a patent, and judgment was recovered by the plaintiff which was reversed by the Court of appeal on the ground that the facts shewed no infringement. Subsequently the plaintiff brought an action to impeach the judgment on the ground that when an expert sent down by the Court, and whose evidence was the only material evidence before the Court as to the nature of the defendant's process, examined the defendant's works, the defendant fraudulently concealed from him certain parts of the process, so that he had no opportunity of discovering the points in which it resembled that of the plaintiff. On the original trial the fraud was found to be proved and the judgment was set aside. On appeal(3) by the defendint the Court of Appeal (James, Baggallay and Thesiger, L. JJ') the judgment of the lower Court was reserved on the ground that the fraud was not proved. But James, L. J., added the following observations, in which Thesiger, L. J., concurred; Baggallay, L. J., dissenting "Assuming all the alleged falsehood and fraud to have been substantiated, is such a suit as the present sustainable? That question would require very grave consideration indeed before it is answered in the affirmative. Where is higation to end if a judgment obtained in an action fought out adversely between two litigants sur juris and at arm's length could be set aside by a fresh action on the ground that perjury had been committed in the first action or that false answers had been given to interrogatories, or a misleading production of documents, or of a machine, or of a process had been given hundreds of actions tried every year, in which the evidence is irreconcilably conflicting and must be on one side or the other wilfully and corruptly perjured. In this case, if the plaintiffs had sustained in this appeal the judgment in their favour, the present defendants in their turn might bring a fresh action to set that judgment aside on the ground of perjury of the principal witness and subornation of perjury, and so the parties might go on alternately ad These observations which were obiter dicta were cited by Petheram, C. J., in the case undernoted, (4) where the plaintiff alleged that he was induced by the fraud of the defendant not to defend the action and in which the following observations (which were also obiter as fraud was negatived) were made -"The principle upon which these decisions rest is that where a decree has been obtained by a fraud practised upon the other side by which he was prevented from placing his case before the tribunal which was called upon to adjudicate upon it in the way most to his advantage, the decree is not binding upon him and may be set aside in a separate suit, and not only by an application made in the suit in which the decree was passed to the Court

Policy Court guarding against fraud with regard to the consideration for a judgment-delit, see Expire Revill. In re Tollemotie, 12 Q B D, 230 Expart. Lenaux, 18 Q B D, 335 Fripatte Flatas, 22 Q B D, 83 Ex parte Booken, 18 Q B D, 605, Exparte Official Review R Vol. Fr. 571 L, 7, 601, Re Frame (1802), 22 Q B, 633 Ec Harshian, Exparte Troop (1803), 1 Q B, 444 As to the effect of fraud in judgments see Halshian.

(hand, op cat., 484 (1) Patch v Bard, L. R., 3 (h. D., 203, cited in Mahimed Golob v. Mahomed Sulliman, 21 C. 617 (1894)

<sup>(2)</sup> Florer's Lloyd, 6 (h. D. 297 (1877) cited in Asslavin Possee's Aundo Lall 28 C., 891 (1899)

<sup>(3)</sup> Florer v. Lloyd. 10 Ch. D., 327 (1978), see in this decision criticised. About iff v. Oppenheimer, 10 Q. B. D., 295–397, 308 (1982).

<sup>(4)</sup> Mahamel Golob v. Mahamel Sulman, 21 C, 612, 619 (1994).

by which it was passed, but I am not aware that it has ever been suggested in any decided case; and n my opinion it is not the law that because a person against whom a decree has been passed alleges that it is wrong and that it was obtained by perjury committed by, or at the instance of, the other party, which is of course fraud of the worst kind, that he can obtain a rehearing of nerely changing the form in which his plaint that the first decree was hose favour it was given. To so avoid the operation not only of that which relates to res judicata ie case are very clearly stated by ed . . ." Since the English decision cited there have been several cases where the Court has under similar circumstances exercised jurisidation. In the undermentioned case (1) B in an action brought in the Probate Division had propounded a will and A had propounded the substance of a later will algenge that the earlier will had been obtained by undue influence A compromise was effected under which the alleged earlier will was admitted to probate. Afterwards A discovered that the last-mentioned alleged will was a forgery and that B was a party or privy to the forgery and brought an action to set aside the compromise as having been procured by fraud and obtained judgment in that action. In a recent case, (2) the plaintiff alleged that a judgment was procured by the fraud of the defendant in that the latter fraudulently exhibited to the Court and jury certain false and fraudulent entries touching the matters in issue in the action and the judgment so fraudulently obtained was set aside.

tration to the estate of a deceased landlord, sued a tenant for rent, and the latter m his written statement objected that the letters of admunistration had been obtained upon a misrepresentation by the plaintiff as to his relationship with the intestate, it was held could be regarded as an order tions of the defendant were no for the purpose of proving that the letters of administrations were invalid in law, and also that such a defence could not be successfully ruised so long as the letters of administration were not revoked by a competent Court_(3)

But in another, where the plaintiff, having obtained letters of adminis-

With regard to the parties who may show fraud it is clear that a stranger

Priestman v. Thomas, 9 P. D. 210 (1884)
 Cole v. Langlord, 2 Q. B. (1898), 36, crted in Sri Rangammal, 23 M., 216, 219 (1899)
 Ambra Charan Das v. Kala Chandra Das,

 <sup>10</sup> C. W. N., 422.
 (4) Taylor, Ev., § 1713; Steph. Dig. Art. 46;
 Bigelowe's Estoppel, 208 Huffer v. Allen, L.

R , 2 Exch , 15.

<sup>(5)</sup> This view is by no means a clearly settled and accepted one, the rule with regard to innocent parties being treated as open to some doubt, Rajib Panda v. Lakhan Sendh, 27 C, 23 (1892) (6) Ahmedhon Hubbhoy v. Vulleshboy Cassambhoy, 6 B , 703, 715 (1882).

a previous suit in which a judgment was obtained may in a subsequent suit aver and prove that it was obtained by fraud though the judgment remains unreversed.(1) So in a suit brought by A against B for khas possession of a tank, the plaintiff put in a decree based on a compromise in a previous suit between him and the defendant to prove his right to khas possession. The defence inter also was that the decree was a fraudulent one. It was objected by the plaintiff that as the defendant was a party to the former decree which was unreversed. he should not be allowed to prove that it was procured by fraud, but it was held that the defendant was entitled to do so.(2) A party to a proceeding is never disabled from showing that a judgment or order has been obtained by the adverse party by fraud ;(3) and if it can be proved that the decree in the former suit was obtained by fraud there can be no question of res judicata (4) In the undermentioned case it appeared that A mortgaged certain property to B, who instituted a suit on his mortgage and obtained a decree therein. Subsequent to such decree A sold the property to a third party C. B having attempted to execute his decree against the property in the hands of C, the latter instituted a suit against A and B, for the purpose of having it declared that the property was not hable to satisfy the decree, because the mortgage-transaction was a fraudulent one, and the decree had been obtained by fraud and collusion. such suit B contended that C having purchased subsequent to the decree was absolutely bound by it. But it was held that, having regard to the terms of this section, it was perfectly open to C to prove that the decree had been obtained by fraud and collusion (5) The words of the section "any party to a suit, &c.," are wide enough to include parties to the first suit both innocent and guilty. But there can be no doubt that the benefit conferred by the section is given only to an innocent party not privy to the fraud. For though the words of the section would, by themselves and independent of the general law, allow a party to set up his own fraud in procuring the former judgment in order to defeat it (which has been characterised as a startling proposition), (6) it is clear that a guilty party would not be permitted to defeat a judgment by showing that in obtaining it he had practised an imposition on the Court. (7) But in that case a party is precluded not by any rule of evidence but by the general principles of justice which forbid a person to plead his own fraud (8) It is no doubt a general rule that a Court will not interfere actively in favour of a party who has been particeps criminis in an illegal or fraudulent transaction, and this rule

<sup>(1)</sup> Rajib Panda v. Lakhan Sendh, 27 C., 11 (1899), s c., 3 C. W. N., 660, Nutarine Dasse v Nundo Loll, 26 C , 891 (1899) , s c , 3 C W. N , 670. In appeal, 30 C, 369, s c, 7 C W N, 353, it was held that the High Court had original jurisdiction to entertain a suit to set aside a deeree of a mofussil Court on the ground of fraud and that even if this were not so masmuch as admittedly the Court had jurisdiction to entertain the suit so far as it was one for administration, if the decree was relied upon by the defendant the plaintiff might show that it was obtained by fraud [approved in Srs Rangammal v. Sandammal, 23 M., 216, 218 (1899) . J. Bann Lal v Dhapo. 24 A., 242 (1902), in which cases this matter and prior decisions thereon will be found fully discussed. These three cases are supported by dicte in Ahmedikoy Hubithoy v lullcetkoy, supra, Manchharam v Kalidas, 19 B., 621, 626 (1994) . Milmoney Mulhopadhya v Aimuniam Biber. 12 C., 156 (1895). The case of Bann Lal v Ramp. Lell. 20 A , 370 (1895) cannot be regarded as an authority, as the present section was not considered nor even mentioned in that decision. See Bonsi Lal v. Dhaps, 24 A., 242, 245 (1902). As to foreign judgments, see Nedarias Doser v.

Nund) Lall, 28 C at p 910 (1879)
(2) Raph Panda v Lakhan Sendh, 27 ( , 11 (1899)

<sup>(3)</sup> Manchharam v Kalidas, 19 B., 821 (1894). (4) Krishnabhupati v Ramamurti, 16 M., 198 (1892)

<sup>(5)</sup> Admoney Mulhopadhya v Aimuniosa Biree, 12 ( , 156 (1885)

<sup>(6)</sup> Ahmedikoy Hutsikoy v Lulletikoy e as sunkkoy, 6 B, 703 (1842), at p. 716, per Latham J, having regard to the maxima Allegans swam turnstudiaem non est andiendes and Nemo ex d lo-eus proprio relevatur aut auxilium capeat.

(7) Nistarius Insere v. Nando Lall, 28 C., 891, 947 (1899).

<sup>(8)</sup> Eaph Panda v Lalling Scalls, 27 C., 11, 22, 23 (1899).

ordinarily applies to persons who are privies in estate. But the rule that a privy in estate cannot set up fraud as an answer is not of general application. There are cases which form an exception to it, such as cases in which the act in which the parties concur is against the principles of morality or public policy. In such cases the Court sees the necessity of supporting the public interest, however, blameable the parties themselves may be. Another exception is where the collusive fraud has been on a provision of the law enacted for the benefit of the privies. The rule which prevents a person who is a party from pleading the illegality of his act does not hold good as against persons claiming through such party, if they are the parties sought to be defrauded. So where by means of a fraud practised on the Court the owner of considerable property caused a decree to be passed against himself as defendant in a collusive suit upholding a fictitious wakf-namah, by which it was intended to the up the property in perpetuity for the benefit of the direct descendants of the waqui to the exclusion of his collateral heirs, it was held in a suit by such heirs to recover possession of their share by inheritance of the property so dealt with (a) that a Court, which was otherwise competent to entertain the suit had jur sdiction, on the finding that it had been obtained by means of fraud, to treat the previous decree as a nullity, and (b) that the plaintiffs were not prevented from setting up the plea that the previous decree had been obtained by fraud by the fact that the person who practised such fraud was their predecessor in title.(1)

(111) Cultusion

As in the case of the term "fraud" the Act contains no definition of the word "collusion" for the purposes of this section. "Collusion" is the uniting for the purposes of fraud or deception, and has been defined to be a deceifful agreement or compact between two or more persons to do some act in order to prejudice a third person or for some improper purpose. Collusion in judicial proceedings is a secret agreement between two persons that the one should institute a suit against the other in order to obtain the decision of a judicial for some sinister purpose and appears to be of two kinds. (a) When the facts put forward as the foundation of the sentence of the Court do not exist, (b) when they exist but have been corruptly preconcerted for the express purpose of obtaining the sentence. In either case the judgment obtained by such collusion is a nullity.(2)

It is e' that a stringer to an administration around its office has a collusion.

cannot ord challenged by a third person, (3) or innocent party (4) who stands to suffer by it in the same or any other Court; yet as between parties themselves to a collusive decree neither of them can escape its consequences, (5) Strangers no doubt may falsify a decree by charging collusion, but a party to a decree not complaining of any finand practised upon himself cannot be allowed to question it. It from it, but for the protection of the defoulants. It was held that there was not fixed in pocuring the former judgment, but that it was no bar insumed as there had been collaison (deceil) and the defendants in the second area in truth that planning and defendants in the former action the judgment in which was pleaded as a bar to fasterward. Arousying Sobbappathy, 21 B, 205, 225 (1850) in was held that there was no collumon

<sup>(1)</sup> Barkut-un-news v Faul Haq, 26 A, 272 (1904)

<sup>(2)</sup> Whaten's Law Levcon (1892), who loos "Collusion" is 131. This definition is perhaps in some respects too limited. Proof of collusion in the seven that the parties, even without fraud, were not really in context, will rutius the judgment. Earl of Janhadon v. Berker, 20. C. E. 7, 510; Girlettone v. Braphon Aquerium Coy. 4 Et D. 197 [Internet on Noterial Source Number of July 20. C. at p. 900 (1993)]. The former action is the raw last civil was one brought not for the purpose of groung the person named as plaintiff. the fruits of it or indeed any brought with the first for it or indeed any brought with the first for it or indeed any brought with the first for it or indeed any brought with the first for it or indeed any brought with the first for it or indeed any brought with the first for it or indeed any brought with the first for it or indeed any brought with the parties of its or indeed any brought with the parties of its original parties.

<sup>(3)</sup> Chenvirappa · Puttappa, 11 B. 708, 713

<sup>(1001).</sup> (4) In cases cited ante

<sup>(5)</sup> Chenrurappa v. Puttappa, supra

is not competent to a party to a collusive decree to seek to have it set asude (1) A party to a collusive decree is bound by it except possibly when some other interest is concerned that can be made good only through his (2). The distinction between fraud and collusion has been said(3) to lie in this, that a party alleging fraud in the obtaining of a decree against him is alleging matter which he could not have alleged in answer to the suit, whereas a party charging collusion is not alleging new matter. He is endeavouring to set up a defence which might have been used in answer to the suit, and that he cannot be allowed to do consistently with the principle of res pudicata.(4)

The question of fraud as affecting judgment and decree was considered (1v) Courally, by the Bombay High Court on general grounds of English law in the case of Ahmedboop Hubibhoy v. Vullechboy Cassimbboy, (5) which must be read in conjunction with the previous observations. After a division of persons into three classes, with reference to their position as affected by the judgment, viz. (a) privises, (b) persons who, though not claiming under the parties to the former suit, were represented by them therein, (c) strangers, mether privise to, nor represented by, the parties to the former suit, the Court proceeded to consider the effect of a previous judgment on these three classes respectively with reference to their capacity to dispute it.

In the first place, the judgment may be an honest one, obtained in a suit conducted with good faith on the part of both plaintiff and defendant In such a case the previous judgment is clearly binding both on class (a) and class (b) . class (c) will be in no way effected by the judgment if it be inter partes . but if it be one in rem passed by a competent Court, (6) they will be bound by and cannot controvert it. (7) In the second place, the judgment may be passed in a suit really contested by the parties thereto, but may be obtained by the fraud of one of them as against the other. There has been a real battle, but a victory unfairly won In this case again class (a) and class (b) and as regards judgments in rem class(c) are in one and the same position, which is that of the parties themselves. The judgment is binding on them so long as it remains in force, but it may be impeached for fraud and set aside if the fraud be proved. In the third place, the previous judgment may have been obtained by the fraud and collusion of both the parties to the former suit. In this case." there has been no battle, but a sham fight. As between the parties to such a Judgment, it is binding. The same rule will apply between the privies of these parties; (8) except probably where the collusive fraud has been on a provision of the law enacted for the benefit of such privies (9) Thus in the undermentioned case A with the intention of defeating and defrauding his creditormade and delivered a promissory note to B without consideration, and collusively allowed a decree to be obtained against him on the note, and conveyed to B a house in part-satisfaction of the decree it appeared that certain of A's Creditors were consequently induced to remit part of their claims . 1. having died, his widow and legal representative under Hindu law sued B to have the note and conveyance set aside, and to have the defendant restrained by in-Junction from executing the decree, but it was held that the plaintiff was not entitled to relief in respect of the note and the decree, although she was not personally a party to the fraud masmuch as she claimed through A by who.

<sup>(1)</sup> Faradarajulu Naidu v Srishvasalu Naidu, 20 M., 333 (1837)

 <sup>(2)</sup> Chentrappa v Puttappa, 11 B., 708 (1887)
 (3) Landarajulu Naidu v Seintrasolu Naidu
 (3) M. at p. 339

<sup>(6)</sup> Ib., if it be proved that the decree was a channed by the collaron of others there can be no respectively. Krishnaldpriv v. Komamuris 16 M., 198 (1892).

<sup>(5) 6</sup> B. 703 (1882)

<sup>(6)</sup> r = 41 anfe

<sup>(7)</sup> Ahmedidon Huloldony v Tullerldony Cammentiony supers (8) Ahmedidony Huloldony v Tullerldony Cum

sumlking, supen Rangement v Lentutarham, In M. 378 (1893)

<sup>(9)</sup> Aimelikoy Hubildoy v Tulloddou (us. sumidoy supra,

fs. 44.7

contrivance and collusion the defendant was enabled to obtain the decree.(1) But as regards class (b) and (where a judgment in rem is in question) class (c) any member of either class may, in any subsequent proceeding, whether as plaintiff or defendant, treat a previous judgment so obtained by fraud and collusion as a mere nullity, provided of course, that he clearly establish the fact of the fraud and collusion.(2)

<sup>(1)</sup> Rangammul v. Venkatachari, 18 M , 378 sumbhoy, 6 B at pp. 710-714, and are Bus-(1895) kanta Nath Roy Choudhry v. Mohendra Nath Roy, (2) Ahmedbhoy Hubibhoy v Vullethoy Cas-I C. L. J. 65. '

OPINIONS OF THIRD PERSONS, WHEN RELEVANT.

The opinions of any person, other than the Judge by whom the fact is to be decided, as to the existence of facts in issue or relevant fact are, as a rule, irrelevant to the decision of the cases to which they relate. To show that such and such a person thought that a crime had been committed, or a contract made, would either be to show nothing at all, or it would invest the person whose opinion was proved with the character of a judge. The use of witnesses being to inform the tribunal respecting facts, their opinions are not in general receivable as evidence, though what is matter of opinion is sometimes a question of some difficulty. In some few cases, the reasons for which are self-evident, it is otherwise. They are specified in the following sections 45—51.(1) A distinction, must, however, be drawn between the cases where an opinion may be admissible under sections 6—611 (undependently of its correctness as such) as forming a link in the chain of relevant facts to be proved, and those in which an opinion is tendered merely as such, and is sought to be made use of solely by reason of the correctness of its findings upon its subject-matter. In the last of the opinions of experts who cannot be called as witnesses, oral evidence, if it refers to an opinion or to the grounds on which that opinion is held, must be the evidence of the person who holds that opinion on those grounds (section 60).

The weight of such evidence depends on the maxim cuilibet in aite sua credendum est, and the grounds of its admissibility are contained in the general rule "that the opinion of witnesses possessing peculiar skill is admissible, whenever the subject-matter of enquiry is such that inexperienced persons are unlikely to prove capable of forming a correct judgment upon it without such assistance, in other words, when it so far partakes of the character of a science or art, as to require a course of previous habit or study in order to obtain a competent knowledge of its nature."(2) On the other hand, it is equally clear that the opinions of skilled witnesses cannot be received, when the inquiry relates to a subject which does not require any peculiar habits or course of study in order to qualify a man to understand it. (3) Thus witnesses are not matters permitted 15 would of moral or probably h her than another, be ... i opinion as the witnesses themselves. (4)

Opinion Evalence, 1. Wigmore, Ev., § 1917 et = q. (2) Taylor, Fv., § 1418, as to the meaning of the term expert, see Lawson's Expert and Opinion Evidence, 1905

(3) Taylor, Ev. § 1419. see Pranjoundar v. Mograma, I Rom H. C. R., 81 p. 155 (1983). See remarks to Lord Branwell in G. v. M. I. R., 10 App. Cas. 171, 290. and of Vaughan Williams, J., in R. v. Scherick, L. R., 2 Q. B. D. (1994).

(4) Tauler, Ft , § 1419 , Greenles', Er., § 441.

<sup>(1)</sup> Steph Introl, 187. Opinions in so far as they may be founded on no existence, or I heal existence, are worthers, and in no far as they may be founded on legal existence, tend to usurp the functions of the rintimal shows province alone it is to draw conclusions of law or fact. Thirpon, Ex., 361 Ed., 337, etting Best, Ex., 3 181. Powell, Ex., 107, Lawren a Fayert and St. Powell, Ex., 107, Lawren a Fayert and

398 OPINION

Opinion missible

The opinions of skilled witnesses are admissible in evidence not only where they rest on the personal observation of the witnesses themselves, and on facts within their own knowledge, but even where they are merely founded on the case as proved by other witnesses at the trial. But here the witnesses cannot in strictness be asked his opinion respecting the very point which the Court or iniv are to determine. So if the question be whether a particular act, for which a prisoner is tried, were an act of insanity, a medical man, conversant with that disease, who knows nothing of the prisoner, but has simply heard the trial, cannot be broadly asked his opinion as to the state of the prisoner's mind at the time of the commission of the alleged crime , because such a question involves the determination of the truth of the facts deposed to, as well as the scientific inference from those facts. He may, however, be asked what judgment he can form on the subject, assuming the facts stated in evidence to be true.(1) An expert may refer to text-books to refresh his memory, or to correct or confirm his opinion, (2) e.q., a doctor to medical treatises, a valuer to price-lists, a foreign lawyer to codes, text-writers, and reports. If he describe particular passages therein as accurately representing his views, they may be read as part of his testimony though not (in England) as evidence per se.(3) The opinion of an expert is open to corroboration or rebuttal :(4) and when the opinion is relevant.(5) The evidence of experts is to be received with caution, because they may often come with such a bias on their minds to support the cause in which they are embarked, that their judgments become warped, and they themselves become, even when conscientiously disposed, incapable of expressing a correct opinion (6)

Distinction opinion.

Accurately to distinguish 'matter of fact' from 'matter of opinion' is not became with the design of the control of the contro ments of fact the witness really testines to the opinion formed by the judgment upon the presentment of the senses. Statement of opinion is, therefore, necessarily involved in statement of fact. An instance erroneously supposed to be simply an 'opinion,' is found in cases where the phenomena being too numerous or intangible to permit of correct or effective individual statement, witnesses are permitted to state simply the impression such phenomena produced in their minds. This, apparently, is simply another method of stating facts (7) Thus a witness can testify as to whether a person appeared to be in 'good health' or the reverse; or seemed 'hostile' or 'friendly,' or appeared 'intoxicated'; or looked 'excited', or 'scared', 'old', or 'voung', or was of a particular age, 'pleased', or 'agitated', or that two persons seemed to be 'attached' to each other, or that a building or document was 'in good or OPINION. 599 bad preservation,' or the like. Such persons are not experts properly so-called; though experts with the same facilities for observation, may, of course, testify in the same manner and to the same points. The obvious, and perhaps, the only, limitation placed on evidence of this nature, which may be described as the opinions of non-experts, is that the witness will not be allowed unnece-arily to invade the province of the Judge or Jury, substituting his opinion for theirs.(1) But such evidence is admitted on the grounds that positive and direct testimony is unartainable.(2) As all language embodies inferences of some sort, it is not possible to wholiv dissociate statements of opinion from statement of fact. The evidentiary rehas been said to be, that if the fact stated recessivily involves the component facts, it will be admissible as amounting to a mere abbreviation; if it does not necessarily involve them, but may be supported upon several distinct phases of fact, the particulars only should be given and not the inference. Thus, though a witness might, without objection, state that "A shot B." or "A stabled B,' vet the statement that 'A killed B' would be improper; as involving a conclusion that might be remote and doubtful, and apply equally to a variety of different incidents." (3) So it was held that a witness's statement that a party is in posession is no evidence of that fact; that the mestion of possession is a mixed one of law and fact; and that the evidence produced must give the various acts of ownership which go to constitute possession; so that the Court may arrive at its own conclusion.(4) In. however, a subsequent case it was laid down that a statement by a witness that a party is in possession, is, in point of law, admissible evidence of the fact that such party was in possession. (3) Such general and varue statements are, however, as a rule of but httle value. (6) A common instance of such opinion evidence of non-experts is that which is given respecting the identity of persons and things,(7) as also respecting the genumeness of disputed handwriting.(8) In Fryer v. Gathercole (9) Parke B., remarked . "in the identification of persons you compare in your mind the man you have been seen with the man you see at the trial. The same rule of comparison belongs to every species of identification." as for instance, to the identification of handwriting (1) The opinions of witnesses are also admissible to prove the innuendoes of libel, where ordinary words are used in a peculiar sen

400 OPINION.

age wh

or

 $\mathbf{P}_{\mathbf{t}}$

A person may always testify to his own mental and physical condition; his testimony being based not on inference but consciousness, (3) but it is not so with respect to the mental condition of others. Thus, neither the opinion of nonexperts nor general reputation is admissible to prove insanity; (4) the proper course being for the witness to state the facts which he considers gave rise to that conclusion. Witnesses may, however, as has been already observed, when they are allowed to speak to character.(6) Value may also be proved by the opinion of any witness possessing knowledge in the subject. There are many things in almost universal use, the value of which any one may testify to, it being a matter of common knowledge. In other cases the opinion of an ordinary witness would not be sufficient. The market-value of land is not a in an early case, 'is necessarily a matter of opinion as well of fact of the land in question, and so also witnesses may express their opinions as to the value of goods and chattels. 'Market-value,' said Mr. Justice Story, in an early case, 'is necessarily a matter of opinion as well of fact or rather of opinions gathered from facts. How are weto arrive at 17. Certainly not by the mere purchase made by a single person, or by purchases made by a few market-price, or the market-price may her purchased above or below the market-price, or the market-price may be fluctuating and the sales too few to pustify any general conclusion. Buyers may refuse to buy at a particular price; sellers may refuse to sell at a lower price. In this state of things we must necessarily resort to opinions of merchants and others conversant in trade for opinion what under all the circumstances is the fair market-price or value of the goods. In the next case the knowledge of their market-price being thus, in fact, a matter of skill, judgment and opinion, it is in no just sense.

mere hearsay; but is in the nature of the evidence of experts."(7) may be presumed to have a sufficient

<sup>(1)</sup> See Best, Ev., § 233; s. 47, poof See Harrie Law of identification (1889) [Teesting of persons; hame, séem sonnes, adentity of praoner, photographs, opmon evadence, nourder identification; ancent records and documents; handwriting, identity of real estate; adentification of personal property; saw of premese by jary, compulsory physical examination, mistaken identity, etc.]

<sup>(2)</sup> Olgers on Libel, 567, Starks on Libel, 561 Ed., 465; Whatton, s. 955, Phipson, Er, 76d Ed., 254, Dures v. Hardey, 3 Ex., 200, referred to in Cunnongham, Er., 191, Barnsavet, Harner, 3 C. & K., 10, Barnett v. Allen, 3 H & N. 378, Summons v. Mitchell, 6 App Cas., 153, 163, Cartes v. Peck, 13 W. R. (Eng.), 230

<sup>(3)</sup> v ante, p 193

<sup>(4)</sup> Wright v Tathom, 7 A & L , 313 . R . Nevil, Cr & Dir. Ab Cas , 96 . Greenslade v. Dare, 20 Beav , 284 , nor under this Act , Field, Ev., 346, note

<sup>(5)</sup> v. Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 354-355, and ante, p 294.

<sup>(6)</sup> Phipson, Dv , 3rd Ed , 355 . Ch XII , see Notes to 8. 55, post

<sup>(7)</sup> Alloano v. United State, 2 Story, 421 (1812) (Amer.), Lawson's Expert Evulence, 331—450, 439, 11 is no objection to the evidence of a vinear ness testifying as to market-value that such cutduce rests on hearnay. Whatton, Ev. 40. Wigmorr, Ev. § 1840 See as to market-rate, Norsan Chander v. Coder., 10 C, 56 (1884).

The rule upon evidence in matter of opinion has been thus summarised.(1) summary The general rule is that a witness must only state facts; and his mere personal opinion is not evidence. But this rule is subject to the following exceptions, namely:—(a) On questions of identification, a witness is allowed to speak as to his opinion or belief. (b) A witness's opinion is receivable in evidence to prove the apparent condition or state of a person or thing. (c) The opinions of skilled or scientific witnesses are admissible evidence to elucidate matters which are of a strictly professional or scientific character. Sections 45, 46, 51 of this Act deal with the last exception, and sections 47, 51 with the first, in so far as it bears on the question of identification of Inadwriting. Sections 48-50 add further exceptions relating to opinions on general customs and rights, (2) to usages, tenets, and the like, (3) and to opinions on relationship, provid-d such opinions are expressed by conduct, (4)

45. When the Court has to form an opinion upon a point opinions of foreign law, or of science or art, or as to identity of handwriting [or finger-impressions], (5) the opinions upon that point of persons specially skilled in such foreign law, science or art, or in questions as to identity of handwriting [or finger-impressions] (6) are relevant facts.

Such persons are called experts.

Illustration 9

- (a) The question is, whether the death of A was caused by poison.
  - The opinions of experts as to the symptoms produced by the poison by which A is supposed to have died, are relevant.
- (b) The question is, whether A, at the time of doing a certain act, was, by reason of unsoundness of mind, incapable of knowing the nature of the act, or that he was doing what was ether wrong or contrary to law.
  - The opinions of experts upon the question whether the symptoms exhibited by the commonly show unsoundness of mind, and whether such unsoundness of mind, and whether such unsoundness of mind usually renders persons incapable of knowing the nature of the method which they do, or of knowing that what they do is either wrong or control to law, are relevant.
- (c) The question is, whether a certain document was written by A. Another  $c^i$  ment is produced which is proved or admitted to have been written by A.

The opinions of experts on the question whether the two documents were by the same person or by different persons, are relevant.

46. Facts, not otherwise relevant, are relevant support or are inconsistent with the opinions of expersions of expersions are relevant.

<sup>(1)</sup> Powell, Ev. 111, et seq. (2) S. 48, post

<sup>(3)</sup> S. 49, post

<sup>(4)</sup> S. 50, poor. (5) The portion in brackets was added by

<sup>(6)</sup> Id Enger-Ingrathumb-impression / mittee cited, 3 / 1

Illustrations.

- (a) The question is, whether A was poisoned by a certain poison.
  - The fact that other persons, who were poisoned by that poison, exhibited certain symptoms which experts affirm or deny to be the symptoms of that poron, is relevant.
- (b) The question is, whether an obstruction to a harbour is caused by a certain sea-wall.
  - The fact that other harbours similarly situated in other respects, but where there were no such sea-walls, began to be obstructed at about the same time, is relevant[1].

Principle.—The use of witnesses being to inform the tribunal respecting facts, their opinions are not in general receivable as evidence. Facts should be stated and not inferences. The rule, however, is not without its exceptions. Being based on the presumption that the tribunal is as capable of forming a judgme. The sumption, it is not inference in the opinions of specially skilled persons are mony rests is the supposed superior knowledge or experience of the expert in relation to the subject-matter upon which he is permitted to give an opinion as evidence.(3)

- s. 3 (" Court.") s. 3 (" Relevant.")
- s. 3 (That a man holds a certain opinion
- is a fart.)
  s. 3 (" Fact.")
- s. 60 (Evidence of opinion must be direct)
- s. 60 Proviso (Opinion of expert who cannot be called as a witness.)
- s. 74 (Opinion as to handwriting.)
- s. 51 (Grounds of opinion.)
  s 73 (Comparison of handwriling)
- s. 159 (Expert refreshing memory.)
- s 57 (Reference by Court to books of experts)

Steph. Dig., Arts. 49, 50, Taylor, Ev. §§ 1423-1425, 1417-1419; 1425, 1445, 337; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 339-352; Norton, Ev., 225, Field, Ev., 343-347; Best, Ev., 511, et seq., Powell, Ev., 114, 116, 340; Roscoe, N.-P. Ev, 85, 174, 176; Rogeron Expert Testimony (1883), 2nd Ed., 1891, Lawson, on Expert and Opinion Evidence (1886); Yames Ohio Law of Opinion Evidence (1886); Yames Ohio Law of Opinion Evidence (1889); Wignore, Ev., § 1917, et seq.; Harris, Law of Identification (1892); Hagan on Dreputed Handwriting (1894).

COMMENTARY.

"Expert"

The phrase "expert "testimony is not applicable to all species of opinion evidence. A witness is not giving expert testimony who without any special personal fitness or special intelligence simply testifies as to the impressions produced in his mind or senses by that which he has seen or heard, and which can only be described to others by giving the impression produced upon the witness. Neither is he giving such testimony strictly speaking when he is testifying as to matters which require no peculiar intelligence and concerning which any person is quantified to judge according to his opportunities of observation. Expert testimony properly begins with testimony concerning those branches where some intelligence is requisite for judgment and when opportunities and habits of observation must be combined with some practical experience. An expert is one who is skilled in any particular art, trade or <sup>(1)</sup> Folkes v. Chadd, 3 Dougl , 157.

<sup>(2)</sup> Best, Ex. 55 511-513 See Introduction

ante, and Notes, post

<sup>(3)</sup> Rogers on Expert Testimons, 21, profession, being possessed of peculiar knowledge concerning the same.(1) Many definitions have been given,(2) but for the purposes of this Act the term is defined by section 45 (see post).

The competency of an expert should be shown before his testimony is Competer properly admissible. The competency of an expert, that is, that he is possessed of the necessary qualifications is a preliminary question for the judge; though in practice considerable laxity prevails upon the point. . Though the expert must be skilled by special study or experience, the fact he has not acquired his knowledge in the course of professional experience goes merely to weight and not to admissibility. Thus unqualified practitioners, hospital students and dressers, have been permitted to testify as medical experts, and on questions of handwriting not only specialists but post-office officials, lithographers and bank clerks and a solicitor "who had for some years given considerable attention and study to the subject and had several times compared handwriting for purposes of evidence though never before testified as an expert" (3) have been permitted to testify as experts. (4) If the examination-in-chief (there being no separate preliminary examination according to the practice of Indian Courts) clearly shows no competency, the opinion-evidence of the witness will be excluded. In prima facie cases of competency the witness will be allowed to give his evidence and also probably in doubtful cases for what the evidence is worth. It is not easy for an incompatent person to sustain himself in the character of an independent witness. The want of qualification may be shown by cross-examination(5) or otherwise (6) The peculiar knowledge or skill may be derived from expersence(1) in the particular matter in question whether gained in the way of his business or not(2) or the study(3) of a matter without practical experience in regard to it may qualify a witness as an expert. But it has been held in America that a witness cannot testify as an expert in a particular matter when that matter does not pertain to his special calling or profession and his knowledge of the subject of enquiry has been derived from study alone, it being considered unwise to recognise the principle that a person might qualify himself to testify as an expert, merely by devoting himself to a study of the authorities for the purpose of groung such testimons when such reading or study is not in the line of his special calling or profession. Thus where the question was whether the editor of a stock journal who had read extensively on the subject of ' loot-rot' could testify as an expert in relation to that dusease, it was held that he could not (4) Of course no exact test can be laid down by which one can determine with mathematical precision how much skill or experience a witness must possess to qualify him to testify as an expert That question rest, within the fair discretion of the Court, whose duty it is to decide whether the experience or study of the witness has been such as to make his opinions of any value (5)

Subjects of mony

The subjects of expert testimony mentioned by the section are foreign Subjects of experteesti-law, science, art, and the identity of handwriting. The words 'science or art' if interpreted in a narrow sense would exclude matters upon which expert testimony is admissible both in England and America, such as questions relating to trades and bandscrafts (6) But it is approbended that these words are to be broadly construed, the term 'science' not being limited to the higher sciences and the term 'art' not being limited to the fine arts but having its original sense of handiciaft, trade, profession and skill in work, which, with the advance of culture has been carried beyond the sphere of the common pursuits of life into that of artistic' and 'scientific' action In some cases it may be difficult to determine whether the particular question be one of a scientific nature or not, and consequently, whether skilled witnesses may or may not pass their opinions upon it The following tests may be applied :--Is the subject-matter of inquiry such that mexperienced persons are unlikely to prove capable of forming a correct judgment upon it without the assistance of experts? Does it so far partake of the character of a science or art as to require a course of previous habit or study in order to obtain a competent knowledge of its nature, or is it one which does not require such habit or study 7(7)

Foreign law

Foreign law must, according to the English rule, unless an opinion has been obtained under the statutory procedure mentioned below(8) be proved as a fact by skilled witnesses, and not by the production of the books in which

(3) Hogers, § 19

where persons offer themselves as experts to testify respecting a business in which their experience has not been very great, it is competent to rall persons of greater expensence and enquire of them how much time and experience are necessary to make one an expert in respect to that bumpess Mason v. Phelps, 48 Mech., 127 (Amer.) ested in Lanson's Expert Testimony, <sup>(1)</sup> Rogers, op cit, $ 18; but the opinion of an expert is not confined to matters or questions which he has actually seen or heard of , Lawson, op. est , 221; see post, "Scope of the Opinson-" (2) R v. Silverland, 2 Q. B (1894), 768.

<sup>(4)</sup> Ib , p 48 [see argument, R. v. Sveerlocks supra, at p 768, Briston v. Sequenille, 5 Ex.

<sup>(5) 76 . § 21.</sup>

<sup>(6) &</sup>quot;On questions of science or skill, or relating to some art or trade, persons matructed therein by study or experience may give their opinions; such persons are called experts. Every business or employment which has a particular class devoted to its pursuit, is an 'art' or "trade." Lanson, op m., 2; Taylor, Ev, § 1417.

<sup>(7)</sup> Taylor, Et., $1 1418, 1419 (8) v Notes to s 38, ante, and see Field, Ev., 345, 345.

405

it is contained.(1) But when an expert has touched a foreign Code, an Eng-Science and Jish Court may construct it for itself.(2). In India such law may not only be experience of proved under this section by the evidence of persons specially skilled in it, but also, under section 38, by the production of a book printed or published under the authority of the Foreign Government.(3) Foreign customs and usages may be proved by any witness whether expert or not, who is acquainted with the fact.(4)

"The opinions of medical men are admissible upon questions within their or province, e.g., insanity, the causes of disease or death or injuries, the effects of injuries, medicines, potons, the consequence of wounds, the conditions of gestation, the effects of hospitals upon the health of a neighbourhood; the likelihood of recovery; those of actuaries as to the average duration of life with respect to the value of annuities, those of naturalists as to the ability of fish to overcome obstacles in a river, those of chemista as to the value of a particular kind of guano as a fertiliser, the safety of a 'non-explosive camphene and fluid kind,' the constituent parts of a certain chemical compound, the effects of a particular poison, fermentation of liquor; those of geologists as to the existence of coal seams, those of botanists as to the effects of working coke ovens upon trees in the neighbourhood; those of persons specially skilled in insurance-matters, such as the opinion of an insurance agent and examiner that a partition in a room increased the risk in a fire-polory, and so with other branches of science.

The opinions of artists are admissible as to the genumeness and value of a work of art; the opinion of a photographer as to the good execution of a photograph though a non-expert might speak to its being a good likeness; the opinion of an engraver or professional examiner of writings as to erasure in a document; those of engineers as to the cause of obstruction to a barbour; that the erection of a dam would not cause the adjoining land to be overflowed by back water; that certain drains do not lessen the quantity or flow of water: that a contract for doing a piece of work or building a vessel did not call for connecting the engines by a centre shaft; that a bridge built of wood should have been built of stone in order to withstand a flood and the like; those of scal-engravers as to the impressions from a seal, those of officers of a fire-brigade as to the cause of a fire; those of military men as to a question of military practice; those of post-office clerks as to post-marks; those of ship-builders, marine surveyors and engineers as to the strength and construction of a ship, and (when the Court is not sitting with assessors) those of nautical men as to the proper navigation of a vessel."(5)

Mechanics, artizans, and workmen are experts as to matters of technical Trade skill in their trades, and their opinions in such cases are admissible. So the opinion of a mason as to how long it takes to dry the walls of a house; of a miner as to the cause of the settling of the walls of a mine; of a blacksmith as to whether a horse was properly shod; of the foreman of a mill as to the running order of the machinery; of a road-builder as to the necessity of a railing along an elevated part of a road; of a railroad man as to questions of

<sup>(1) 16 ,</sup> Taylor, Ev., $$ 1423, 1425

<sup>(2)</sup> Concha v. Murrietta, C. A. (1889), 40 Ch. D. p. 543.

<sup>(3)</sup> v Notes to a 38, nate, et seq ; and as to a. 60, v post.

<sup>(4)</sup> Ganes v Lanesborough, 1 Peale R., 18; Susses Peerage Case, 11 C. & F., 124; Hodyn v. Fobrigas, 1 Cowp., 174; Vander Doncht v. Thalluson, 8 C. B., 812, Lindo v. Balisario, 1 Hagg G. B., 216; see s. 49, post. As to the construction of foreign documents, see Di Sora v Philipps, 10 H L. C., 624, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 342; Taylor, Ev., § 1424.

<sup>[5]</sup> Lawson's Expert and Opinion Evidence, See pressim, Index, Whatton, Er. §§ 441, 446, Physon, Er. 3rd Pd. 340, 341; Taylor, Er. §§ 1417, 1418, et sey, and cases there exted. As to evidence of mechant untresses and reports of chemical examiners, see Cr. Pr. Code, so. 509, 510.

railroad management, such as whether a rail was properly laid; as to the cause of a train being thrown from the track; as to the distance within which a train can be stopped; whether the boiler of an engine was safe; whether coupling compliances were defectively constructed : have been held to be admissible. So also are the opinions of farmers and agriculturists on matters peculiarly within their knowledge; as that of a grazier on the effect of disturbance in the value of cattle, of a farmer as to the quality of the soil of a farm. So also a banker may speak as to the genumeness of a bank-note, a merchant may depose to the value of goods in which he deals and so forth. According to English decisions the opinions of shop-keepers are admissible to prove the average waste resulting from the retail sale of goods, those of persons conversant with a market to prove a market-value; and those of business-men to prove the meaning of trade-terms and the like.(1)

Handwriting

Experts may give their opinions upon the genuineness of a disputed handwriting after having compared it with specimens proved to the satisfaction of the Judge to be genuine (2) But independent of all cases in which handwriting is sought to be proved by actual comparison, the testimony of skilled witnesses will be admissible for the purpose of throwing light upon the document in dispute, as upon the question whether a writing is in a feigned or natural hand, or the probable date of an ancient writing, or as to whether interlineations were written contemporaneously with the rest of a document, or whether the writing is cramped, or one document exhibits greater ease or facility than another, or whether a writing has been touched by the pen a second time as it done by some one attempting to imitate, or whether the writing has been made over pencil-marks, or whether a document could have been made with a pen, or whether two documents were written with the same pen and ink, and at the same time, or whether two parts of a writing are written by the same person or the like.(3) But opinion as to handwriting is not confined to experts, but may be given by any person who is duly acquainted with it (4)

By nature and habit individuals contract a system of forming letters which give a character to their The general rule which admits on the reason that in every per prevailing character other person.(6) In the T e nury said : "Manifold as a in which one man differs from another, there is nothing in which men differ more than in handwriting; and when a man comes forward and says, 'you believe that such a person is dead and gone; he is not, I am the man, if I knew the handwriting of the man supposed to be dead, the first thing I would do would be to say 'Sit down and write,' that I may judge whether your hand-

<sup>(1)</sup> Phipson, Ev., sh, and see last note and s 49, pod

<sup>(2)</sup> r s. 73, post, for a case in which a judge was held to have wrongly called expert testimony. ave Bindescuree Dutt v. Doma Singh, 9 W R., 89 (1869)

<sup>(3)</sup> Taylor, Ev., $5 1877, 1417, Best, Ev.,

<sup>$ 248</sup> See notes to s 47, prod (4) See notes s. 47, post

<sup>(5)</sup> Lawson's Expert Ev., 277. "Men are distinguished by their handwriting as well as by their faces ; for it is seldom that the shape on their letters agree any more than the shape of their bodies," Buller's New Prins, 236, 2 Evans Pothier on Obligations 'The handwriting of every man has something peculiar and distinct from that of every other man and is easily known those who have been accustomed to see it." Peake's Et , 67 "Almost everybody's usual handwriting possesses a peculiarity in it and distinguishing it from other people's unting." Ram on facts, 68 See at p 69, citation from Cowper's work (Letters), Vol V., 217, Ed 1896 (6) Strong v. Brewer, 17 Ala , 706-710 (Amer ) cited in Lauson, op. est , 278.

writing is of the man you assert yourself to be; if I had writing of the man, with whom identity was claimed. I should proceed at once, to compare with it the handwriting of the party claiming it. For that reason I shall ask you carefully to look at and consider the handwriting of the defendant and to compare it with that of the undoubted Roger Tichborne and with that of Arthur Orton."(1) "Calligraphic experts have for years asserted the possibility of investigating handwriting upon scientific principles, and the Courts have consequently admitted such persons to testify in cases of disputed handwriting. It is claimed that experiment and observation have disclosed the fact that there are certain general principles which may be relied upon in questions pertaining to the genuineness of handwriting. For instance, it is asserted that in every person's manner of writing, there is a certain distinct prevailing character which can be discovered by observation, and being once known can be afterwards applied as a standard to try other specimens of writing, the genuineness of which is disputed. Handwriting, notwithstanding it may be artificial, is always in some degree, the reflex of the nervous organisation of the writer. Hence there is in each person's handwriting some distinctive characteristic, which, as being the reflex of his nervous organisation, is necessarily independent of his own will, and unconsciously forces the writer to stamp the writing as his own. Those skilful in such matters affirm that it is impossible for a person to successfully disguise in a writing of any length this characteristic of his penmanship, that the tendencies to angles or curves developed in the analysis of this characteristic may be mechanically measured by placing a fine specimen within a coarser specimen, and that the strokes will be parallel if written by the same person, the nerves influencing the direction which he will give to the pen. So too it is claimed that no two autograph signatures will be perfect fac-similes. Experts. therefore, claim that if, upon superimposition against the light, they find that two signatures perfectly coincide, that they are perfect fac similes, that it is a probability amounting practically to a certainty that one of the signatures is a forgery."(2) In determining the question of authorship of a writing, the resemblance of characters is by no means the only test. The use of capitals. abbreviations, punctuation, mode of division into paragraphs, making erasures and interlineations, idiomatic expressions, orthography, underscoring(3) style of composition and the like, are all elements upon which to form the judgment.(4) "Conclusions from dissimilitude between the disputed writing and authentic specimens are not always entitled to much consideration, such evidence is weak and deceptive, and is of little weight when opposed by cyidence of similitude The reason why dissimilitude is evidence inferior to similitude is that it requires great skill to imitate handwriting, especially for several lines, so as to decrye persons well-acquainted with the genuine character and who give the disputed writing a careful inspection while, on the other hand, dissimilitude may be occasioned by a variety of circumstances,-by the state of the health and spirits of the writer, by his position, by his hurry or care,

(3) See following passage from Cowper's work

<sup>(1)</sup> R v Castor, 762

<sup>(2)</sup> Rogers, op. ct., 201, 202. With reference to the last observation it is stated that in the Morford Bull Gase (4 Am. Las. Review, 825, 649). First Pures, Professor of Mathematics in Har and Laiversty, testified that the olds wire just exactly, 286,000,000,000,000,000,000 to 1 that an individual could not with a pen write his name three times so exactly ablac as were the three alleged signatures of Sylvia Am Roshand, the testating, to a will and two codicile, Hagan, op. cq. 201, 200.

(Latters), Vol. V. p. 217, 1839. "Hours and hours have I spent in endeasons altogether fruitless to trace the writer of the letter that I still, by a munite examination of the character and never did it strike me until this moment that your father write it fin the sight I discover him in the source of the complained words—his never-failing spectice—in the fermation of many of the letters, and in the addu at the lot-tom so planks, that I could handly be more convinced had I seen him write it." (Stel in Ram on Facts, 69)

<sup>(4)</sup> Lauson, op. ett., 277, 278, note

by his materials, by the presence of a hair in nib of the pen, or the more or less free discharge of ink from the pen which frequently varies the turn of the letters,—circumstances which deserve still more consideration when witnesses rest their opinion on a fancied dissimilarity of individual letters."(1)

It being granted that there is such a thing as a science of handwriting it follows that the opinions of witnesses who are skilled in the science, who by study, occupation and habit have been skillul in marking and distinguishing the characteristics of handwriting may be received in evidence. These may be experts in handwriting, stretty so-called, that is persons who have made the study of handwriting, a speciality; or others whose avocations and business-experience have been such as naturally quality them to judge of handwriting. And so writing—angravers, lithographers, letters, cashiers and other officers of banks, (2) post-office officials, book-keepers and cashiers of commercial houses, writing—masters (3) and a solutior(4) "who had for some years given considerable attention to the subject and had several times compared handwriting for purposes of evidence, though never before testified as an expert," have been admitted to give evidence on this subject. (5)

The palms of the hands are covered with two totally distinct classes of

Finger-im pressions.

marks. The most conspicuous are the creases or folds of the skin which interest the followers of palmistry and which show the lines of most frequent flexure & ' ' the most numerous by finger impressions. curious variety g all their pecuof shape Itarities surer criterion of identity than any other bodily feature. So far as the proportions of the patterns go they are not absolutely fixed, even in the adult, masmuch as they change with the shape of the finger. The measurements vary at different periods, but, on the other hand, the numerous 'bifurcations,' 'origins,' 'islands' and 'enclosures' in the ridges that compose the pattern are said to be almost beyond change. Practice is, however, required before facility can be gained in reading and recognising finger-prints (6)

Those who have made finger-prints their special study have come to the conclusion that their similarity is, as a rule, evidence of personal identity and their dissimilarity will, therefore, as a rule, be evidence of the reverse.(7) Therefore when in the case last cited, one of the main questions for determination was whether a document impugned was or was not presented before the Registrar by the complainant, one N.S. a comparison of the thumb-impression of the person who presented the document with that of N.S. was held admissible under the 9th section of this Act, if the similarity of those impressions could establish the identity of that person with N.S. or under the second clause of the Ith section of this Act if their dissimilarity made such identity improbable. It was, however, held that, though the comparison of thump-impressions was allowable, such comparison must be made by the Court itself; and that the opinion of an expert as to the similarity of such impression was not admissible

<sup>(1)</sup> Lawson, op. ct., 278, 270n, citing, Young v. Broun, 1 Hag Ecc R., 550, 569, 571 Contable v Leibel, 1 Hag Ecc. R. 50, 60, 61, 2 Philips, Ev (Cow. and Hill's Notes), 609 and 482, and American cases. See also Hagan, op

<sup>(2)</sup> As to the competency, however, of these, are remarks in Hagan, up cet, 30

<sup>(3)</sup> Ib., 33, where it is stated that these as a class furnish experts of the least ability.

<sup>(4)</sup> R v. Silverlock (1894), 2 O B , 766.

<sup>(5)</sup> Rogers, op cit, 297, 298, Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 344, Best, Ev, § 246, and as to expert evidence of writing in criminal cases, see Srikans v. R, 2 All L J, 444 (1904), Panchu Mondal v. R, 1 C. L. J, 385 (1905)

<sup>(6)</sup> Galton on Finger-Prints; Introduction,

<sup>(7)</sup> R v. Fakir Mahamed, 1 C. W. N., 33, 34 (1898) - per Bancepe, J., Oting Galton on Finger

under the present section.(1) The words in brackets were accordingly added to the present sections by Act V of 1899, the Statement of Objects and Reasons of which Act contains the following paragraph:- "The system of identification by means of such impressions is gaining ground and has been " introduced with considerable success, especially in the Lower Provinces of Bengal. It seems desirable that expert evidence in connection with it should be admitted, and with that object it is proposed by the third clause of the Bill expressly to amend the law on the subject."(2) Evidence of a witness is now therefore admissible; but the evidence must be that of a person specially skilled in questions of identity of finger-impressions. By the same Act, section 73, as amended, applies also with any necessary modifications to fingerimpressions. In order, therefore, to ascertain whether a finger-impression is that of the person of whom it is said to be, any finger-impression admitted or proved to the satisfaction of the Court to be the finger-impression of that person may be compared with the former impression, although that impression sion has not been produced or proved for any other purpose. The Court may also direct any person present in Court to make a finger-impression for the purpose of enabling the Court to compare the impression so made with any impression alleged to be the finger-impression of such person.

The opinions of experts are not receivable upon the question of the construction of documents whether domestic or foreign, though it is otherwise with local, foreign or technical terms, unless they are such as are equally intelligible to ordinary readers, nor upon matters of legal or moral obligation. Their testimony is, of course, not confined to opinion-evidence; as they may. and frequently do testify to matters of facts as well.

The opinions of experts are admissible in evidence, not only where they Scope of the test on the personal observation of the witness himself, and on facts within his own knowledge, but even when they are merely founded on the case as proved by other witnesses at the trial. An expert may give his opinion upon facts proved either by himself (3) or by other witnesses at the trial, (4) or upon hypothesis based upon the evidence, that is, the expert may give his opinion on facts put before him in the form of a hypothetical case (5) But his opinion is Prints, Che VI, VII (but see an article on "Ex pert Evidence on Finger-Impressions" in 3 C W. N., iv., it may further be observed that, masmuch as the decision quoted ruled that expert evidence could not be given under a 45, it implied that the subject or knowledge of the identity of finger-impressions did not constitute a 'science' (1) 16.

(2) Statement of Objects and Reasons cited in 3 C. W. A., xxiv, eee also it, pp ir & lxxxii (3) Bellefontaine, etc , R Co v Bailey, 11 Ohio St., 333 (Amer ) cited in Lawson's Expert Ev , 221. In this case the question was whether a certain railroad train could have been stopped in time to avoid running over a term at a crossing. The apinion of the engineer of the train was held admissible, the Court saying that if an expert may give his opinion on facts testified to by others there was no reason why he might not do so on facts presumably within his own personal knowledge of his knowledge was defective the parties could show it by cross-examination or by testimony alounde (4) e.g., the question is as to the value of a clock A is a dealer in clocks, but has never seen the clock in question, which is described to him by other witnesses. His opinion is admissible Whiton v Snyler, 88 N 1 , 299 (1882), cited in Lawson, op ct., 221

(5) Lawson's Expert Evidence, Rule 42, p 221 The following is an example of a hypothitical question which was propounded by the defence to the experts in the trial of Guilean charged with shooting President Garfield (cited in Ro ger's Expert Testimony,73). 'Assuming it to be a fact that there was a strong hereditary taint of insanity in the blood of the prisoner at the bar also that at or about the age of thirty-four years his own mind was so much deranged that he was a fit subject to be sent to an insane asylum also that at different times after that date during the next succeeding five years, he manifested such decided symptoms of insanits, without simulation that many different persons conversing with him and ob-rving his conduct, believed him to be insane, also that in or about the month of June 1881, at or about the expiration of saxt term of five years, he became demented by the not admissible as to facts stated out of Court which are not before the Court or Jury,(1) or which have merely been reported to him by hearsay(2) and purely ; no foundation in the evidence are utioned rule is this: In examinationwere assumed in hypothetical questions which did not bear upon the matters under inquiry or which were not fairly within the scope of any of the evidence. The testimony must tend to establish the facts embraced in the question. The Court should not, however, reject a question which Counsel claims embraces facts which the evidence tends to prove, simply because in its opinion the facts assumed are not established by a preponderance of the evidence. The question is properly allowable if there is any evidence tending to prove the fact assumed, it will not be allowed if the evidence does not prove or tend to prove the fact assumed. So in a case moveling the value to the plantiff of a contract which the defendant had broken, a question which did not accurately state the terms of the contract was held in-admissible. A question may, however, be allowed which assumes facts which the evidence already in the case neither proves not tends to prove, provided Counsel in putting the question declares that they will by subsequent testimony supply the necessary evidence to warrant the facts so assumed. When idea that he was inspired of God to remove by death the President of the United States also that he acted on what he believed to be such anspiration, and as he believed to be in accordance with the divine will in the preparation for and in the accomplishment of such a purpose also that he committed the act of shooting the President under what he believed to be a divine command which he was not at liberty to disober and which beluf made out a conviction which controlled his conscience and overpowered his will as to that act, so that he could not resist the mental pressure upon him, also that immediately after the shooting he appeared calm and as if relieved by the performance of a great duty also that there was no other adequate motive for the act than the conviction that he was executing the divine will for the good of his country -assuming all of these propositions to be true, state, whether in your opinion, the prisoner was same or invane at the time of shooting President Garfield " The quistion propounded by the prosecution was too long to permit of its reproduction. In Woodbury . Obear, 7 Grav, 487 (Amer ), Shan, C. J., saul that the proper form of question was this. " if certain facts assumed by the question to be established should be found true by the jury what would be your opinion upon the facts thus found true as to, etc " But in a subsequent case it was said that this form was not to be regarded as an exclusive formula Lawson's Expert Ev . 223, where at p 222 another instance of the hipothetical question is given. The question may be put in a great variety of forms. Rogers, op cit . 62.

(1) Wherton, Er., § 452, Physion Dv., 3rd 2d. 345

(2) Physon, Pr., 3rd Ed., 345, esting R v. Stranton, "Times," Sept. 28th, 1877, Tuly's

Legal Medicine, 8, 17, 25, Gardner Peerage, La Marchant, 75-80

(3) Wharton, Et , § 452 . Best, Et , American notes (f) to § 511 . Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed , 345 .

Rogers' Expert Testimony, 67 (4) Lawson's Expert Ev., 222, Rogers' Expert Testimons, 64-68 A hypothetical question is a question which assumes as a hypothesis, the truth of the facts given in evidence by a particular party and embraced in the question Such a question may be asked either simply as to facts given in evidence or as to relevant hypothesis arising on these facts, re, facts given in evidence. So in a salvage case where the evidence had shown that a steam vessel was lving at anchor in the month of September at the Sandheada at the mouth of the laver Hooghly without a rudder which she had lost in a previous gale, that the weather which had been Lad prior to the anchoring of the vessel had calmed down at the time of the salvage service, that evelone storms were likely to occur at that time of year and that the shore off which the vissel was anchored was a dangerous one, a nautical expert was after obnction, allowed to be asked a question which, after assuming the above-mentioned facts, proceeded "what would have been the condition of such a vessel lying rudderless at that time or year at the Sandheads in the event of a evelonic storm coming on before assistance could be procured." If closely examined the objection here appears fundamentally to have been not so much to the form of the question or the admissibility of expert testimony but to the relevancy of the evalence having regard to the facts of the case, and the salvage law applicable, it being contendtil by the objectors, but unsuccessfully, that to earn salvage reward the denger from which a vesad has been resented must have been actual prethis course is pursued if such testimony is not afterwards given, it would be the duty of the Court to strike out the answer to the question (1)

